

6 Weeks of Bad Weather is Predicted As Groundhog Sees His Shadow

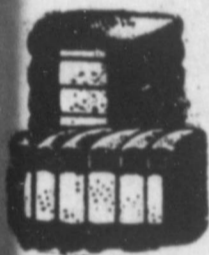

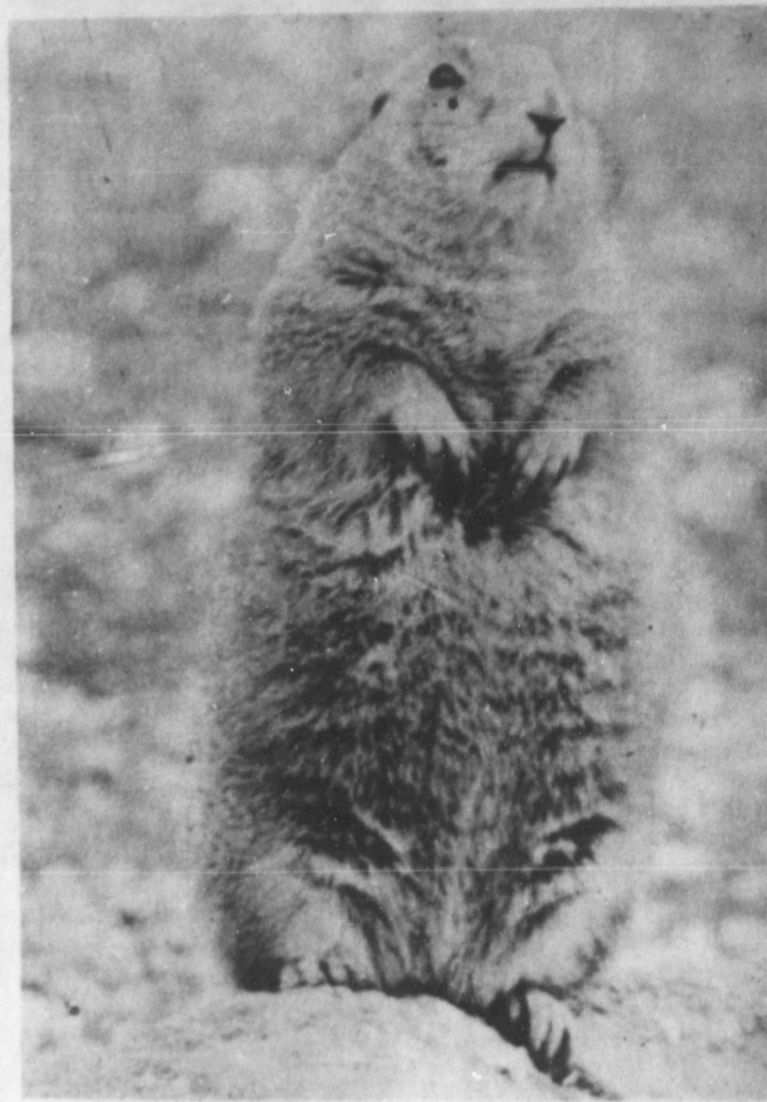

There are several ways of predicting the weather. But then seasoned residents don't predict the weather anyway. There is the proverb, often quoted that "only fools and new comers predict the weather."

You can depend on the weather service. Or you can listen to all the people who have special ways and signs of determining what the weather is going to be. And then --- there is the ground hog. Monday morning, Feb. 2 at Punxsutawney, Pa. the ground hog came out of his burrow and immediately he saw his shadow and went back into hiding for six weeks -- six weeks of bad weather.

It is said that the tradition came to this country from Germany, where the old myth relates "if Candlemas Day (Feb. 2) is bright and clear, there will be two winters in the year."

One thing that is not known about the little furry animal--does he come out at 7 a. m. standard time, or does he come out on daylight savings time.

In commenting on the ground hog's ability to predict the weather, Monday the Lubbock Weather service said "We can do as good job as he can." Have a good day.

Workshop Set To Deal With The Juvenile Problems

ABILENE--Current problems in dealing with juvenile offenders will be the focus of a workshop for area local governments, Feb. 4, at the Moody Center of Hardin-Simmons University.

The workshop for officials and employees of local governments will be conducted by the Division of Continuing Education and the Center for Public Service at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, in cooperation with the West Central Texas Council of Governments and Tri-College Continuing Education, Abilene.

"Emphasis will be placed on defining the responsibility of local governments and their officials in planning for handling juvenile offenders," said Charles P. Bubany, professor of Criminal Law, Texas Tech University School of Law, and coordinator of the workshop. "We will look at current problems in treating juvenile offenders and examine the controversial subject of how the local community should respond to the problems of juvenile delinquency."

Registration for the workshop will begin at 9 a.m. Sessions start at 9:30.

Topics include "Introduction: Juvenile Rights and Limitations on State Authority," by Bubany, and "The Present Role of the Juvenile Court Judge," by Henry J. Strauss, Domestic Relations Judge, Taylor County.

A panel discussion on "Alternatives to Formal Adjudication and Institutionalization" will begin the afternoon sessions. Panel members include Patricia Elliott, assistant district attorney, Taylor County; George Maxwell, chief juvenile probation officer, Taylor County; and Casey Bradshaw, officer, Abilene Police Department, Juvenile Division.

The final session will be on "Future Treatment of Juvenile Offenders," a group discussion of problems and solutions by workshop participants.

HOSPITAL QUIPS

"I'M SORRY, BUT UNDER THE TERMS OF YOUR GROUP POLICY, YOU DON'T COLLECT UNLESS THE ENTIRE GROUP IS SICK."

A New Look For License Plates

Austin--Starting in February, it will be "something old, something new" for most Texas license plates.

The something old will be the five-year license plate issued in 1975 already mounted on the vehicle. The plates were designed to last for at least five years, being made with more durable materials than the one-year plates issued in earlier years.

The something new will be a red, white and blue validation sticker to be affixed in the embossed rectangle at the upper left-hand corner of the license plate issued a year ago. Affixing the sticker will make the plate good for another year's driving.

The new system not only saves the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation $8.5 million over the five-year period, but it relieves the burden of learning a new license number for most of the state's vehicles owners, not to mention the chore of removing and replacing the entire license tag.

Holders of personalized plates and other special license plates will receive a new plate, but the majority of Texas vehicle owners will receive stickers and keep the same registration numbers.

Opening February 1, the vehicle registration season continues through March. The new stickers must be affixed by midnight April 1 or drivers will be subject to arrest and penalties.

Vehicles must be registered with the county tax assessor-collector of the county of the owner's residence. Most counties operate substations where registration fees may be paid.

Vehicle owners received computerized three-part registration forms for their vehicles by mail during January. All that is needed for registration is to bring the three-part form and the registration fee to the county tax assessor-collector's office or to one of the many substations that will be in operation during the registration season.

Vehicles can be registered by mail through the month of February by sending the registration form, the fee, plus $1 (per vehicle) for handling to the county tax office. Owners should allow at least 30 days for delivery.

AG LOANS TO BE DISCUSSED AT SCHOOL

A special session dealing with agricultural loans will be one of the highlights of the Texas Farm and Ranch Credit School at Texas A & M University, February 9-11.

Discussions will deal with loans for crops and machinery, cow-calf operations, feedlots and dairying. Other sessions will deal with the changing political, market and financial environments as they relate to agriculture and the outlook for the money market and such key agricultural commodities as cotton, grain and livestock, points out an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

COOLER WORLD

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. -- Scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are predicting that the world is going to get chilly. It will be about 125 years before a "little ice age" is expected to show up.

Marriage is the sensitive development of two different individuals binding together the generations that have gone before, Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, points out.

Does more rain occur over the ocean at night or in the daytime?

Rain is more likely to occur from clouds above the oceans at night. This is contrary to the situation on land, where most of the rain is experienced during daylight hours.

Water does not absorb heat from the sun's rays as readily as does land. The earth heats up in the daytime and the heat theros which rise produce clouds, and these clouds, as they rise, produce rain.

The process over the sea is often the reverse, especially if cold winds move in over the water at night. The warmer water, and warmer air just above it, will often rise and produce rain at night. So the general rule is, more rain over land by day and more rain over the sea by night.

CLOTHING CARE

by Harold DeShon
Dow Chemical Drycleaning Service Center
Caring For That Leather Look

It's true, fashion-conscious people today are buying clothing with the "leather look" where garments and trim are made of genuine and simulated leather. Only a leather specialist or drycleaner speccialist or drycleaner specializing in leather care is equipped to properly care for the expensive garments. Another tip: garments made of or trimmed with simulated suede or leather should come with instructions on their care. Some are drycleanable; others can be laundered. Also, make sure both the outer fabric and the trim are cleanable by the same method.

Magic Marker—don't fool with such spots. A drycleaning solvent, like that used by your drycleaner, must be used first. Do not use any water on such spots yourself. Magic Marker "marks" are especially hard to remove, even for your cleaner.

Crayon—home laundering won't remove crayon spots. It will only make these stains virtually impossible to remove, and can result in staining other light articles in the wash. Take articles spotted with crayon marks to your cleaner. Better yet, check children's pockets for crayons before putting their garments into the washer. Depending upon the type of fiber and whether the crayon stain becomes heat set during washing and drying cycles, the stains may be impossible to remove.

A No-No In Removing Spots—The International Fabricare Institute points out that some stains do not dissolve in either water or cleaning fluid until they have been changed chemically. Examples are dried blood, paint and egg stains. A professional cleaner is about the only one equipped to handle such stains. The Institute explains that in home spot removal, stains like flour or fat should be treated first by lifting or scraping off the worst of it with the fingernail before using anything to dissolve what's left. Don't try to rub off thick stains while they're wet. They will only rub in deeper.

In home spot removal, it's often hard to avoid that familiar ring which forms around the stained area. Smooth fabrics of solid light color are especially liable to show rings. Often rings are harder to remove than the stain themselves.

Finally, the Institute points out that, we have to face it, some stains are permanent and can't be removed without damaging the fabric, its color or both. A professional spotter at your neighborhood cleaner is still your best source of advice on spots and stains according to the Institute.

The Spooks

That the nation is without authority to prohibit publication of the names of its intelligence agents is a poor commentary on the judiciary's (and the government's) inability to prevent abuses of freedom of the press.

The nation obviously must have an intelligence service and its members must be afforded reasonable protection. Not only is America made the laughing stock of the world, when sensational journals print U.S. agents' names, but lives are endangered—and the national interest openly flouted.

The President, Congress and the courts are all involved. In some practical, sensible way the three branches must agree on proper safeguards and common-sense policy for providing U.S. intelligence agents throughout the world reasonable security.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION
MEMBER 1976

Football Progress

The National Collegiate Athletic Association's committee on rules of play for football, slumbering peacefully for decades, has come alive. After urgings from this newspaper and others, new safety rules have finally been adopted.

This is sure to lessen criticism of the game, which injures too many high school and college players permanently and seriously as played today. Most of the rules changes affect blocking, others affect roughing quarterbacks.

While the new rules changes probably won't make U.S. tackling as safe as Canadian football tackling, they are nevertheless a major, long-awaited step in making American collegiate (and high school) football a safer game for students.

New rules seek to limit the use of the head and helmet in "hitting" and this should reduce the number of head and neck injuries; they seek to eliminate spearing altogether. They make shoulder and hip pads mandatory, require that in blocking the hands must be in advance of the elbows and bar many other uses of the hands.

Red Dye No. 2

The recent ban on the use of Red Dye No. 2 has produced cries of anguish from some spokesmen in the food processing industry.

Some food products will disappear from market shelves, others will lose popularity, etc., it's said. That's because Red Dye No. 2 is such an effective coloring agent—making so many food products an attractive color.

But the Food-Drug Administration ban was ordered in the public interest, because many think the dye adds to the risk of incurring cancer. Until industry proves this assumption false, the dye will remain banned.

Actually, few food products are likely to disappear from shelves. If they do—if all that was enticing the public was red coloring—then not much has been lost. Substitute dyes, meanwhile, such as 4 and 40, can somewhat replace No. 2.

a little BIG NOW

We all get a thrill out of seeing our children put on our hats or shoes. Obviously they don't fit now, but some day he, or she will grow to fit them. At the same time imagine that they are trying on our lives. Would they fit? ... or do you live the type of life that you would want them to grow to. Live a life of worship of the Lord.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

There is one practice we see quite often now, that presents yellow journalism at its very worse. That is the practice by some, who are completely unprincipled, that wait several years after the death of some very famous national figure--and then write a bunch of filth about the so called personal life of that person. As example the stories now hitting the press, written by certain individuals who say they know personally about the unusual sex life of President John F. Kennedy.

Always these things come out after the death of the person, when there is no way of denying the stories.

But Kennedy is not the first one this has happened to--They told these kind of things on Washington, both Roosevelts, and many others.

To me this kind of junk is smut at its very worst.

It was discussed on the tube a few nights ago, that it is being proposed in Congress to outlaw the polygraph, or lie detector machine. First, it certainly violates the privacy of an individual, and then it is said it is a failure anyway.

The lie detector, in fact gets its power from the element of fear.

I have talked to people who took the test, when applying for a job. And they said "they spilled everything" about their personal past, because as they put it "the machine would find it anyway."

This is getting to be a growing evil. Many companies now require all applicants for jobs to undergo the test.

Sometimes, in a large corporation, if there is some sort of a personnel problem, they call for the test--and then many people quit their jobs rather than take the test.

It is not legal to require the test, we are told. But, many will go ahead and take it--because they want the job, and know it will not be available unless they do take it.

The American political system is a good one I think. I mean the system of representative government.

Too many people just wave off criticism of the federal government, with the remark there is nothing you can do about it. That is definitely wrong.

All representatives in the national congress, are highly sensitive to their mail, and to the thinking of the people "back home."

You write a letter to your congressman, and not only will he be influenced by your remarks, but you will get an answer from him (or her.)

Just try it. Texas Senators are John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen. Our Congressman is Omar Burlison. Also Congressmen representing nearby areas are George Mahon and Jack Hightower.

If you have a beef with government, or, if you think these men are doing good jobs in Washington, write any one or all of them a letter, and you may be surprised how much good it will do.

The weather is now dry, dry, dry.

It is difficult to find a time when all farmers agree now is the time for a rain, but this comes about as near as any time I have ever seen.

This week end I was talking to a farmer down in the Stamford area. He said he had a real serious decision to make. The green bugs were eating up his wheat, which was also suffering from lack of moisture. But he spent a thousand dollars for insecticide to fight them-- $2.50 per acre for 400 acres. "This may be a thousand dollars I threw away" he said. The dry weather may get it anyway."

A couple of Sundays ago, where I go to church, the visiting minister took for his sermon topic, the remarks from the prophet Isaiah "As the rain cometh down from heaven, and the snow and watereth the earth.... etc."

After the service closed I told him "I guess you knew you were talking to a bunch of cotton farmers." He smiled.

You are driving down the road at a nice clip. You have the speed control on your car set at the highest rate of speed you think it is safe to travel--the motor is humming steadily, and the tires are whining on the pavement. It is late at night, and these are the only sounds. There is the constant coming on of the pair of headlights, and then they pass on off behind you. It gets monotonous, and then you get sleepy, and have a problem keeping alert.

This is one world. But then there is another. That is the world for people who have CB radios in their vehicles. For these people there is no monotony.

These people, and particularly the truckers, and those who drive a lot, have a great time. They constantly pick each other, and carry on conversations. But the uninitiated may not be able to understand them--for they have a dialect all their own.

The entire game, though, centers around one theme--and that is keeping up with the location of the traffic officer. The highway patrolman is Smokey Bear, the Sheriff's officer is a county mounty, and a city car is a local yokel.

On the Interstate, where there are distance markers every mile, if a patrolman appears on the scene, they will herald his presence to a tenth of a mile, and every car that sees him, will give a later report. All his actions are broadcast to other drivers for miles around. If he crosses from one side of the road to another he is flip-flopping. If he is writing out a citation, then he "is handing out green stamps."

The CB people live in a world all their own--and they enjoy it too.

Notice To Jayton Chronicle Readers

The Jayton Chronicle now has quite a number of subscribers whose times have expired, and it will be necessary that they pay their renewal, if they want to continue to get the paper, A.E. Richards, publisher said this week.

Postal regulations require that all subscriptions be paid in advance. In the past the paper has sent out renewal notices before removing names from the mailing list, but the high cost of postage and other expenses makes this inadvisable, Richards said.

Check the expiration date on your address label, and if your subscription is due, please mail it in, or leave it at the office.

Subscription price is $4.00 in Kent and adjoining counties, and $5.00 elsewhere.

National SCORE Chairman Are Re-Elected

Reelection of J.C. "Jay" Lansford, a retired Dallas businessman, as National Chairman of the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) was announced in Dallas on January 22 by Fred Neumann, Regional Director of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

SCORE is an all-volunteer national organization which comprises 5800 retired businessmen in 300 chapters throughout the nation, whose purpose is to counsel small businessmen free of charge. The organization works closely with some 2,000 still-active business people in the Active Corps of Executives (ACE), who also volunteer their counseling services. In West Texas, there are SCORE and ACE chapters in Amarillo, Lubbock, Abilene, Odessa, and El Paso.

Describing small business as a vital element of the economy, Neumann said that small business employ approximately 55 percent of the private sector labor force, and produce approximately 48 percent of the gross business product. He pointed out that nationwide, these organized groups are helping solve the problems of small business at virtually no expense to the taxpayer, since their professional services are employed on a volunteer basis. SCORE and ACE operate under the auspices of SBA.

"We need the continuous involvement of a wide variety of people from the private sector in order to make sure our programs remain fresh, modern and relevant," Neumann said.

Lansford, first elected Chairman of SCORE in 1975, joined the local chapter after retiring as Southwest zone manager of Johnson Wax Company
