This Week

It seems that down at Austin the State of Texas has a two billion dollar surplus—money in the State treasury that is not earmarked to be spent anywhere. In the races for the Legislature, and other state contests, this has been a discussion point—what they will do with this big state surplus?

The answer is very simple—the Legislature has set a mark at a higher mark than was needed to care for the needs of the State.

Now, it would seem that the most logical answer to the question has not been mentioned, or has been talked out—and that is simply to lower state taxes, and not to raise taxes that are not needed.

But this is unheard of in taxing circles at any level. Have you ever heard of taxes being lowered—or a tax being removed?

The federal government is squandering $1.29 billion of your hard-earned tax money so President Carter can have a place to show off the hundreds of thousands of trinkets Americans are sending to the White House.

"It never fails," snorted U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-N.Y.).

"Free-spending bureaucrats can even turn a patriotic event like the country's Bicentennial celebration into an expensive boondoggle."

Rangel's ire is directed at the U.S. Park Service spending $940,000 refurbishing the "Great Hall" located in the Commerce Dept. building—as a play center for the Bicentennial gifts.

In addition to renovating the Great Hall, the Park Service is spending $150,000 on decorations and fancy display cases and a whopping $200,000 will go for a 60-man staff to run the center and answer tourists' questions.

"With the hundreds of museums and public buildings in Washington—including the Smithsonian Institution—you'd think that some suitable place could be located to show off the gifts," Congressman Rangel said.

"But that would be the easy, less expensive way to display the gifts."

"Instead, the taxpayers will have to pick up the tab for renovating, decorating and staffing the mammoth old hall, which will be open to the public for eight months."

The White House reports that the President has already received more than 400 gifts and that more are pouring in daily.

The gifts range from a replica of the Declaration of Independence made of alphabet noodles to a solid bald eagle with diamond wings.

"The real kicker to all this is that just a few blocks down the street, the Park Service is putting the finishing touches on a $41 million National Visitors Center," Rangel pointed out.

"It's a permanent information center and it's scheduled to open on July 4."

"The new center is designed to provide the same public services to tourists as the one being opened in the Great Hall—and it could be used to display the gifts, too."

"We certainly don't need two information centers within walking distance of each other offering the same service," said Rangel.

"The Park Service explains that it thought that two centers 'would be nice for the tourists.'"

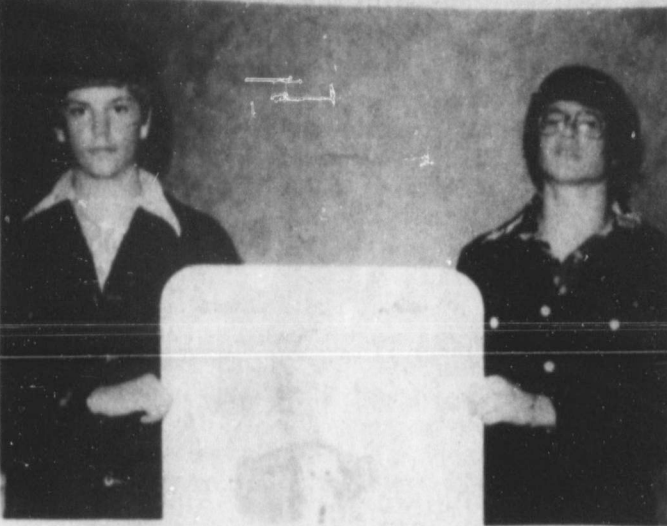

"I say that if the Park Service wants to do something nice for the taxpayers, they should stop squandering hard-earned tax dollars on unnecessary projects like this one," Rangel added.

Bicentennial Plans Are Being Made

A meeting was held in the County Courtroom of courthouse, in Jayton June 7. Plans were discussed for the Kent County Centennial Celebration to be held August 21. Several suggestions were made and the following things were decided on:

- To clean-up and decorate the buildings in Jayton.
- To use the old Hotel as a vocal point and sponsor contest to rename it.
- To have an art, quilt, and possible antique show.
- To ask everyone to dress as near as possible the way they dressed in 1876.
- The Student Council will have a lemonade stand and sponsor games.
- Judge Norman Hahn asked all the separate committees to meet and start putting their plans into effect. Everyone in the County is urged to help. If you are not on a committee, contact someone that is. There are jobs for everyone.

Compete at State

Billy Harrison, left, and Randy Prince, right, Kent County 4-Hers, were one of 15 teams competing in the team division of the State Farm and Ranch Management Contest held on the Texas A&M campus, June 1-3.

Their demonstration, "Solar Energy," took top honors on the county and district levels in order to qualify for state competition.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Production Credit Associations of Texas.

Billy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy John Harrison and Randy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hays Prince, all of Jayton.

School Board Meeting Is Set For Thursday

The Jayton School board will hold its monthly meeting at the board room in the high school tonight, according to the agenda sent out to board members Wednesday.

Several important matters will be considered by trustees, not the least of which will be that of personnel.

Two resignations will be considered, that of Joe Don Gibson and Corky Cox. Four applications for positions will be considered, that of Johnny Jones, Wendell Neff, Judy Browning and Oran Hamilton.

Bids will be received and opened on the supplying of milk, L.P. Gas, Oil and Gasoline.

Wilson Hunt of the tax appraising firm will meet with the board, and discuss reduction of oil values within the school district.

Other items to be discussed are the budget, seating at the football stadium, and paying of the bills.

Also the superintendent will discuss building plans, and other items.

School To Sponsor Putting Tourney

The new addition of putting cups to the front lawn of the school will be used on Friday, June 18. Jayton School will sponsor a free putting tournament to introduce the new recreation facility.

There will be three age divisions as follows: Ages 12 and under, 4:00 p.m.; Ages 13-18, 6:00 p.m.; and Ages 19-up, 7:30 p.m.

There will be no pre-registration and no fees charged. The school will furnish the putters and balls for use in the tournament. There will be no entry fee.

Come to the school and join the fun on Friday, June 18.

Methodist Pastor Now In Jayton

Rev. Gene B. Louder is the new pastor of the Jayton United Methodist Church, coming to Jayton after having served as pastor of the Welch and Wellman United Methodist Churches.

He replaces the Rev. Marvin Fisher, who has retired and is now living in Lubbock.

Arriving on Wednesday, June 2, Rev. Louder preached his first sermons at the Jayton church last Sunday.

A graduate of McMurry College, Abilene, Louder attended Perkins Theological Seminary of Southern Methodist University, Dallas.

Recent churches Louder has served as pastor are the Hartley church for three years, the Texline church, for two years and the Welch-Wellman churches.

Rev. and Mrs. Louder are the parents of one son, Monte Gene, who is eight years old and will be a third grader in the Jayton school starting this fall.

On Dean's list

Edith Narae Gallagher of Jayton, a student at Angelo State University in San Angelo, is listed on the Dean's Honor Roll for the spring semester at the University.

Miss Gallagher, an accounting major at ASU, is listed on the 3.00 to 3.49 honor roll.

Mark A. Geeslin Gets Master Degree At Texas A & M

Kent County Extension Agent Mark A. Geeslin received the degree of Master of Education from Texas A&M University during the spring graduation at Texas A&M, May 7. Geeslin's major was Agricultural Education. He has been attending classes at night and during the summer for the past three years.

Geeslin has been Kent County Agricultural Extension Agent for twenty-five years.

Kent County Well 4H Club Roundup

Kent County was well represented at the Texas 4-H Club Round-Up and State Contests at Texas A&M, on June 1-2. The Kent County 4-H Club Range Judging team was first place winner in the state contest. Team members Leslie Partridge, Brent Cleveland, Brian Cleveland, and Lex Dunham won their contest in grass identification and characteristics, range management and improvement practices, and range placing. They were trained by County Agent M.A. Geeslin and SCS men William Reeder and Joe McAdams.

Two second place awards were won by Kent County 4-H club members. Janet Johnson was first alternate in the 4-H Food Show. Rena Bural won a similar award in the Family Resource Demonstration. County Extension Agent Bert Stanaland and adult leaders Mrs. Carroll Johnson and Mrs. Jim Bural trained the club girls.

Kent County club members placed fourth in the statewide Entomology contest and the Rifle marksmanship competition. Entomology team members Greg Nauert, Gene Cleveland, Billy Ballard and Bobby Capps were coached by 4-H Adult leader Rendal Nauert. Adult leader Bettye Cravey coached Jan Kimmel, Don Wayne Jones, Bruce Stewart, and Lesa Pickens in the rifle contest. Mrs. Cravey has coached a state competitor the past three years at state 4-H contest, and assisted three years in state competition prior to that.

Other Kent County 4-H members in state contests included the following: LaRhonda Carriker in Family Life Education Demonstration, Melody SoRelle in Foods and Nutrition, Billy Harrison and Randy Prince in Farm and Ranch Management, and Soil Judging Team Steve Sweet, Charles Arnold, Bobby Grice and Ronnie Cheyne.

Adult leaders attending were Mrs. Gordon Cravey, Mrs. Jimmy Bural, Mrs. Carroll W. Johnson, Mr. Rondal Nauert, Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Kimmel, and County Extension Agents, Bert Stanaland, Gay Patterson and Mark A. Geeslin.

New Director Of Extension Service

COLLEGE Station—Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel has been named director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System's public service agency which provides agricultural, homemaking, 4-H and consumer assistance to thousands of Texans throughout the state.

Pfannstiel's appointment was made Tuesday by the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents, subject to concurrence of the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. The appointment is effective June 1.

The 2,000 employee service, which operates offices in all but two of Texas' 254 counties, is a joint-state-federal program which has traditionally served farmers, ranchers and residents of rural communities and is becoming increasingly popular with urban dwellers.

"We have searched throughout the nation to confirm what we thought was the case all along: that we already have in our ranks the best person for this key position," pointed out Board of Regents Chairman Clyde H. Wells in announcing Pfannstiel's promotion.

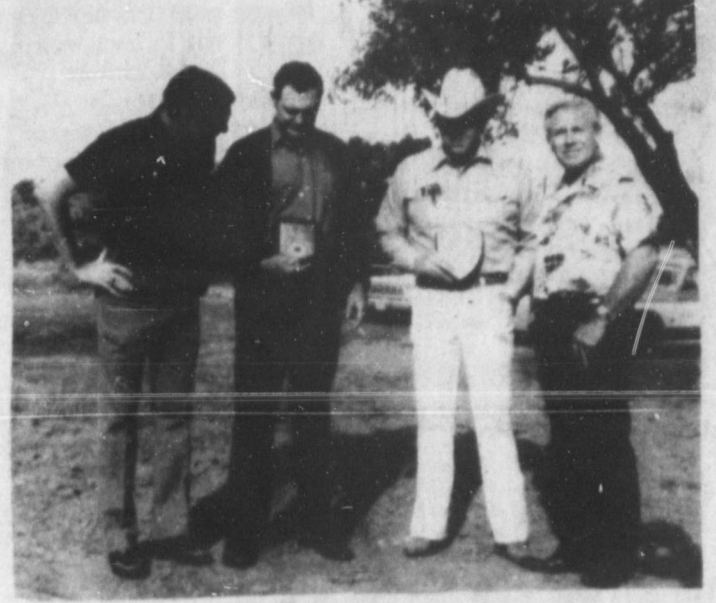

Pfannstiel, 48, has served the Texas Agricultural Extension Service for 27 years, as associate director since 1971. He joined the Extension Service upon graduation in 1949 from Texas A&M. He worked his way up through the ranks, from assistant county agent in Wharton County to county agent in Matagorda County in 1952, to administrative assistant at the service's College Station headquarters in 1956 and to assistant director in 1959.

At far right is Norman Hahn Vice Chairman of the Duck Creek District who presented Manuel Davis of Clairmont with the resident Conservation Award.

Honors Are Made

As in observance of Soil Stewardship week the Duck Creek Soil and Water Conservation District Sponsored their annual Breakfast and Tour on the morning of May 21. The breakfast was held at Swenson Park at Spur.

Two ranchers were recognized for their outstanding achievements in carrying out, outstanding conservation programs on their land in the District. Manuel Davis of Kent County received the award for outstanding resident Conservation Rancher, Joe Lowrie of Crosby County was recognized as the outstanding non-resident Conservationist. Following the breakfast and presentation of Awards the group was taken on a tour of Local Conservation Programs.

The Plaques for the Award winners were furnished by the Jayton and Spur Lions Club. Approximately 50 persons attended the Breakfast and Tour.

Genealogy Club Sets Meeting Date

Meeting of the Kent County Genealogy Club will be Tuesday June 15 in the Kent County Community Center at 8:00 p.m.

The program for the meeting will be "Available Records and How to Find Them". Also we think the Microfilm census of 1880 Kent County will be here for anyone interested. "We would like to invite everyone to come and enjoy the program and discussion. You don't have to be a member to come to the meeting," a spokesman said here Tuesday.

Girard Home Dem. Club Meets

The Girard Home Demonstration Club will continue the June and July meetings. The club thinks that these meetings are needed to hold the interest of the Demonstration club work. Mrs. Alton Clark had charge of the June 2, meeting. Seven members and two visitors were present. The program was on home decorations. The following meeting dates are: Girard Community, June 16 and July 7, and a tour to Lubbock, July 21. August will be vacation month. Mrs. George Darden was hostess for the meeting.

New Law On Fats and Oils

COLLEGE STATION--Fats and oils in food products will soon have to be specifically identified, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist, reports.

"A recently developed Food and Drug Administration regulation will require that all fats and oils be identified by origin on food labels by January 1, 1978," she said.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

"Under the new requirements, fats and oils will have to be listed by name such as 'cottonseed oil,' 'corn oil,' 'soybean oil,' or 'beef fat.' The term 'vegetable oil' or 'shortening' can be used, but only if it is followed by an identification of the specific oil or fat," she explained.

The specialist pointed out that this regulation has long been desired by people who have dietary restrictions on certain fats and oils because of medical or religious reasons.

"But the picture isn't all rosy--because the reason for non-specific labels, according to the industry, has been that the oils used depend primarily upon cost and availability, and they change from time to time.

"And even with the new regulation for labeling, the vegetable oils will continue to be selected on the basis of availability and cost, as well as on their functional characteristics.

"This will likely mean that labels will have to be changed more often--at an added cost to the consumer," she said.

The Postal Dilemma

Congress, which has such a dismal record in recent years, has been unable to do anything about unsatisfactory postal service. The initial blunder, committed under the banner of free enterprise idealism, was to turn over what had been an essential service to the people under presidential direction to independent bureaucrats.

The choice of a Postmaster General for the suddenly freed corporation was unfortunate. And the power of the bureaucracy was soon reflected when, scandalized, he was forced to resign, and his assistant, who should also have resigned, moved up. Since, results have continued to be unimpressive.

Yet the Service can flex its muscles unimpaired by either the President or Congress. It is currently out to save $100,000,000 by closing small rural offices. Some, of course, should be closed but others are part of the public service citizens have long expected from government.

With billions being sent overseas as foreign aid, it's hard for rural citizens to understand why U.S. Post Offices are being closed to save $100,000,000. This would not be happening if the government were still in charge, a government this year sending twenty times that amount to aid the Israeli alone.

There are many capable employees in the Postal Service. There are good intentions. There is a Consumer Advocate--for customers to appeal to--since 1972. But mail is often slow, though perhaps better in recent months. Lines in post offices are long and clerks too slow, but that's not new.

The billion-dollar bulk mail centers are yet to prove their worth, though damage to packages handled by these centers has been excessive (though lately reduced). The power of organized mail handlers is so great service is sometimes adversely affected. On top of all this there has been unjustified extravagance at the top, lush office furnishings, lush salaries and other lush expenditures.

As a result, some in Congress propose to open the way to more competition. That would seem a better last resort. The best solution is for the Postal Service to improve its mail performance, image and organizational efficiency. The nation, however, can't wait forever.

STATEWIDE SOYBEAN CONTEST

Soybean producers in Texas have an opportunity to compete for awards in the 1976 Texas Five Acre Soybean Yield Contest. The contest is sponsored by the Texas Soybean Association and Elanco Products Co. in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Awards will consist of 50, 25 and 15 quarts of Treflan for the top three winners in each of the three soybean producing areas of the state, with the state winner receiving a trip for two to Acapulco. Area and state winners will also receive a plaque. Entrants in the contest must grow at least 10 acres of soybeans, five of which must be harvested. All entries must be in by August 15, notes an Extension Service agronomist.

LIFE STYLES

Casual, informal life styles are reflected in contemporary, versatile shoe styles. Similar shoe types are being worn for different occasions and are often styled with "split personalities." A dress pump may be given a casual look with a thick sole, or a sandal may contain a mixture of sporty and dressy detailing. Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, notes.

An investment in Your Future

ATTEND CHURCH

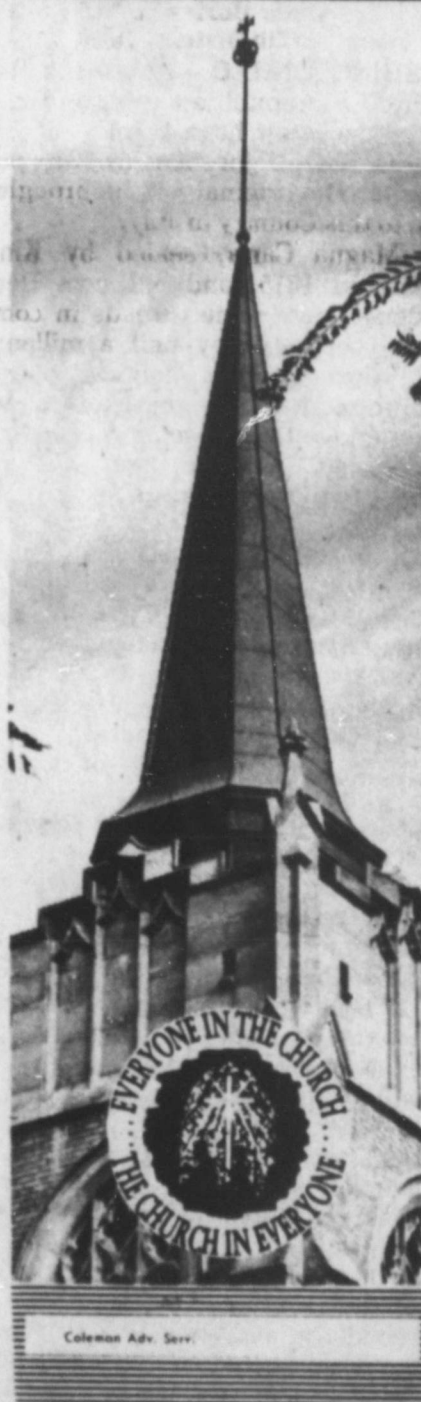

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

A PLACE TO PRAY

Man can, and should, pray anywhere. God has placed no limitations on his communing with him.

Our Lord has said, "... Ask and ye shall receive." God listens when we seek him, no matter where, however he desires that we gather together in prayer too. "... mine house shall be called a house of prayer for all people."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Red-Orange Markers Need To Be Kept In Shape

COLLEGE STATION--The red-orange triangle placed on the rear of farm tractors and other slow-moving self-propelled highway vehicles is a familiar sight to drivers. This "slow-moving vehicle" emblem, also called a SMV emblem, was created to reduce the serious problem of death dealing rear-end collisions with slow-moving highway vehicles. Its widespread use has sharply reduced highway accidents and injuries; however, many emblems need replacing as they have become faded.

"Both time and sunlight exposure have caused the colors and reflectancy of many SMV emblems to become faded," points out Dr. Gary Nelson, agricultural safety engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "In its original condition, the SMV emblem is designed to improve driver recognition and response to slow-moving vehicles on highways to avoid collisions. Its use has become state and federal law."

The center section of the SMV emblem triangle is designed to be visible in daylight while the outside border is designed for night visibility from a distance beginning at 600 feet from the rear. "When the SMV emblem becomes faded, it no longer provides adequate protection to the vehicle or its operator," notes the Texas A&M University System specialist.

The fading problem most recognized occurs to the center color of the emblem which is a brilliant fluorescent red-orange when new. With time and exposure to sunlight, this color fades to a relatively non-fluorescent yellow, thereby increasing the risk of rear-end collisions. Not only can such collisions cause death or bodily injury but they can also be costly in terms of property and equipment damage which could cause production delays and losses.

To deal with the fading problem, Nelson advises mounting the SMV emblem at the proper height and where it will not become damaged. He also suggests keeping it clean of soil and other debris and parking vehicles in shaded areas or inside structures where possible or covering the emblem from the sun during long periods of non-use. Of course, any SMV emblem that has faded from a bright red-orange to a nonfluorescent yellow should be replaced, he emphasizes.

Burleson Reports From Washington

Umar Burleson, M.C.
17th District, Texas.

WASHINGTON, D.C.-- As a result of ceremonies held in the U.S. Capitol last week and in London the week before, we now have a gold-embossed copy of the Magna Carta for display as part of our Bicentennial. The original will be brought by Queen Elizabeth to this Country in July.

The Magna Carta, sealed by King John at Runnymede in 1215, and our own Declaration of Independence have some threads in common. Both documents, separated by half a millennium, were essential steps to limit political power by law. Running through both great documents is the fundamental idea that those who exercise power are accountable for the manner and quality of Government to those who are subject to it; that rules must pre-exist and are not to be made up on whim as some contest of strength arises.

Our own Declaration of Independence has a turbulent history. Not only was it in controversy during its formation but the document itself has had many physical ventures during its 200 years.

Contrary to legend, The Declaration was not signed on July 4, 1776, but, rather, on August 2 of that year. Not all members of the Continental Congress were present to sign, when after a month scribe Matlack had completed the document in large fanciful script. In the following days, the document was unrolled, signed, and rolled again as Members showed up. Due to the movements of the British, the Congress adjourned to Baltimore, back to Philadelphia, then to Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and next to Princeton, Annapolis, Trenton, New York City, and finally back to Philadelphia, with the document taken along. History indicates it was stuffed into a barrel and pushed along in a cart in all kinds of weather.

In 1800, the government moved to Washington and the parchment was stored in different buildings until Secretary of State Monroe, in 1814, had it moved to a barn in Leesburg, Virginia, to hide it from British invaders.

When it was returned to Washington, it was in a decrepit condition and John Quincy Adams decided the Declaration should be printed for posterity. Printer W.J. Stone took what was known as a wet-pressing from the original, damaging it to an extent from which it has never recovered.

After the print was made, it was decided that the parchment was beyond restoration and should be kept under cover.

At that time, the Department of State was placed in charge of it and placed it in a dark vault. Scholars and researchers were always wanting to see the original and, armed with letters from their Congressmen, insisted on having it brought out into the light. In the end, the decision was made to turn the manuscript over to the Library of Congress. The Librarian had it photographed but lost the negatives. He also had it enshrined in a marble case which now stands vacant in the Library of Congress.

When World War II was declared, the declaration was packed in a sealed bronze case and taken to Fort Knox for safety. In 1951, it was returned to Washington and sealed in a thermopane glass case filled with humidified helium to prevent further deterioration. A year later, it was transferred in an armored car, under armed escort, to its permanent home in the National Archives where it can now be viewed by the public.

At night, along with the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the documents are lowered 20 feet into a steel and concrete vault.

In this Bicentennial year, thousands and thousands of Americans will view these documents and acquire a sense of history which they might not otherwise have.

Autograph Party Is Set For Robertsons

A Panhandle-wide autograph party will honor R.L. and Pauline Durrett Robertson of Amarillo, on Sunday, June 13 from 2 to 5 p.m., in the East Sunburst Room of the Quality Inn, 2915 Interstate 40 East in Amarillo. The Robertsons will be autographing their new book Panhandle Pilgrimage: Illustrated Tales Tracing History in the Texas Panhandle.

To commemorate our Panhandle's Centennial, the Robertsons have spent the last 3 years researching and writing the book that honors the pioneers, settlers and events of the top 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle. It is published by Staked Plains Press of Canyon to coincide with America's Bicentennial and the Panhandle's Centennial.

Panhandle Pen Women and Amarillo Photographic Society are hosting the autograph party and extend an invitation to attend to everyone in the Panhandle--and especially to those whose families pioneered the top 26 counties.

- ★ Your air-conditioner will operate inefficiently if filters are not cleaned regularly. Dirt and lint, collected on the filters, restricts air flow to the coils. Clean filters every two weeks.
- ★ Let nature help you save energy by shading your home with trees and shrubs to help cut down on summer cooling costs. Draw draperies against afternoon sun.
- ★ Remember to keep outside doors, windows, and fireplace dampers closed. If you have window units, close the heating vents near the floor, as cool air falls and can escape through vents.

Farmers Face Loss Of Participation In Boll Weevil Program

LUBBOCK--Communities along the eastern edge of the Caprock of the Texas South Plains face possible loss of participation in the joint producer-USDA funded Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program if holdouts in their area continue to thwart efforts to stop the weevil's migration onto the Plains.

In a strongly worded statement released recently in Lubbock by the steering committee of the boll weevil control program, steps were mapped out which would lead to the exclusion of communities where producers having significant amounts and locations of acreages refuse to participate.

Such action could possibly affect several area counties where pockets of holdouts exist.

The statement was compiled by the Technical Advisory Committee of the control program and adopted by the steering committee. The advisory group is made up of representatives of Plains Cotton Growers, based in Lubbock, Plant Protection and Quarantine Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Texas Department of Agriculture, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas A&M University, Texas Tech University, and several representatives of the cotton and allied communities.

The steering committee is composed of 10 persons from the South Plains area.

The Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program was begun in 1964 along a 15 county area stretching from the upper South Plains southward and southwestward to the New Mexico line, along the Caprock. Its purpose is to use pest management concepts, including spraying and field scouting, to prevent the boll weevil from migrating westward from its overwintering areas along the Caprock.

Officials believe they have successfully prevented the establishment of overwintering infestations above the Caprock on the Texas High Plains and eastern New Mexico by treating infested fields along the Caprock. Cotton producers in this area voluntarily participate in the program which is administered by producers through Plains Cotton Growers and the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Plant Protection and Quarantine.

Producers refusing to participate give a number of reasons for holding out, the statement said. Many of them say they are fearful that treatments may open the door to bollworm infestations.

To overcome the threat of a bollworm problem, officials have adopted recommendations of the advisory committee that treatments for boll weevil control be delayed from August 25 to September 6. This has the effect of delaying the disruption of beneficial insect activity which keeps the bollworm in check.

A second step to counter the objection would be to continue the practice of providing for bollworm counts in the field along with weevil counts. During the fall, field scouts are customarily sent out to survey weevil infestations. This second measure includes survey of bollworm activity as well.

According to the statement, the steering committee aims to "make the best use of public and private funds which have been made available in good faith." The way to do this, the report concludes, is for treatment activities to be restricted to those areas in which there is "a reasonable chance that effectiveness can be maintained."

To accomplish this, the committee outlined in the statement the following procedures for dealing with the holdout problem:

--Contact will be made with present holdouts in efforts to persuade them to participate on a continuing basis. If this fails, an appropriate committee will consider and evaluate their cotton acreage and its location within the community. Should this acreage and location render impractical and ineffective the spraying of other cotton in that community, that community will be dropped from the program.

--If the community should be dropped, financial and agricultural leaders as well as news media in the area will be notified of this action.

--The community (a defined geographical area to be determined by the review committee) will be excluded for the remainder of the season or until such time that the appropriate committee may review a petition from the uncooperative growers requesting readmittance.

Provisions also were outlined in the statement for dealing with potential holdouts. When USDA and PCG personnel are notified by growers that they do not want their fields to be sprayed, efforts will be made to "persuade them to stay in the program. If this fails, the growers will be told that their request will be honored, but that their names can not be held confidential when there are inquiries about holdouts."

USDA and PCG officials say the steering committee adopted the statement with no ill feelings or harassment intended, but simply to make the best use of tax money and private funds which have been made available to the Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program for its specific goals.

The recommendations of the statement take effect with the 1976 treatment program which already is being mapped out.

Officials said information about the statement can be obtained by calling or writing Plains Cotton Growers or USDA Plant Protection and Quarantine, in Lubbock.

Motorists Can Help Lower Rates By Driving Course

AUSTIN--Texas motorists interested in lowering their automobile insurance premiums have an easy solution to this budget problem.

They can complete an eight-hour classroom course in defensive driving and earn a 10 percent discount on their insurance premiums.

Since September of 1972 the State Board of Insurance has granted a 10 percent reduction in car insurance rates for three years following completion of the course. Joe Christie, Chairman of the Insurance Board, said the Board granted reduction because national figures show the course cuts down on accidents.

Christie says Insurance Board figures show that the average Texas driver saves between $17 and $32 annually for each of the three years after completing the Defensive Driving Course. Last year more than 100,000 Texas motorists completed the Defensive Driving Course of the National Safety Council in a program coordinated by the Texas Safety Association.

At the same time, insurance companies reportedly lost $300 million, with the biggest losses in automobile insurance lines. The 1975 experience is leading automobile insurance firms to seek relief from these losses, and Texas insurance companies have served notice they will request a new hike in automobile insurance rates when the Insurance Board meets in July.

This means that auto insurance may be harder to get in the future, especially for those with poor traffic records, and cost more for everyone.

Christie recommends that people interested in keeping their auto insurance rates in line complete a Defensive Driving Course, and repeat it if a driver took it initially before September 1972.

The Defensive Driving Course concentrates on driver motivation, positive driving habits, and anticipating the incorrect actions of others and adverse operating conditions, including weather,

The hills were hard to climb.
He gently closed your loving eyes
And whispered, "Peace be thine."
