Crashed Plane And Dead Passengers Found In County

A massive three day land and aerial search over all of the Rolling Plains area ended late Tuesday in Western Kent County, at the scene of a plane crash, where two dead bodies were found.

A Morton businessman James Dale White, along with his six year old son, Bradley had been over in East Texas on a fishing trip and had started the flight back to Morton, when apparently they ran into turbulent weather. Friday afternoon another plane in Kent County heard a faint distress signal. Later in the day when the plane was overdue, White's wife sounded the alarm.

Shortly a massive search was underway, which continued through Saturday, Monday and Tuesday in the entire area from Fort Worth to Lamesa, and all points in between.

The crashed plane was found in Western Kent County, about a mile north of U.S. 380. Apparently the plane ran into a storm, and nose dived. Jayton Justice of the Peace W.H. Harrison pronounced White and his son dead at the scene. It was guessed that they died instantly with the crash of the plane.

The search, which included more than 200 people with planes, helicopters and ground workers, and it was one of the "choppers" which eventually found the wreckage.

The searching party in this area was under the direction of Kent County Sheriff Raldo Goodall.

Goodall expressed appreciation to all the people who worked so faithfully in the search.

School Board to Have Monthly Meeting Tonight

The Jayton school board will have its regular monthly meeting here tonight in the board room at the school house.

In the prepared agenda, sent out Tuesday to board members, the following items will be taken up.

To accept bids on a duplicating machine.

Miss Ann Timmons of Matador will be proposed as English teacher, and Jim Cockburn as band teacher.

In the building report, it is noted that the gym is out of the ground and masonry work should begin this week. "We are now waiting on the concrete beams for the stadium".

Over 200 sacks of cement have been poured on drives, sidewalks and curbing around the school.

Most grassed areas have been sanded. The greenhouse is practically complete, and Rondal is attending a greenhouse workshop, it was reported.

The stadium seats will be purchased from American Desk Co. at a cost of $35.10 each.

The meeting is scheduled to begin with the reading and approving of the minutes of the previous meeting, and examining and paying the bills.

Screwworms Are Being Found In West Texas Ranches

MISSION— July, Screw worms moved into 30 more Texas counties during June as 2,305 infestations were recorded in 102 counties, says Dr. M.E. (Cotton) Meadows, Jr., director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Screwworm Eradication Program.

The parasite has been recorded in almost all Edwards Plateau and Hill Country counties. They are steadily moving northward into Plains counties, observes Meadows. To date Armstrong is the most northerly county to submit a positive sample.

In all, 110 Texas counties have tallied 4,274 lab identified cases of this parasite of warm blooded animals for the year. This compares to 1,744 the first half of last year, and 21,097 for the same portion of 1972.

Seventeen counties in the region counted their first 1976 case in June. They are Lampasas, Mills, Brown, Reagan, Upton, Crane, Midland, Ward, Nolan, Callahan, Dawson, Borden, Fisher, Lynn, Garza, Stonewall, and Armstrong. Screwworms are larvae of the screwworm fly. Adult females of this species deposit their eggs on wounds in warm blooded animals.

As eggs hatch the worms enter the wound. They feed on live flesh for about a week. After growing to half an inch in length they drop to the ground to pupate, emerging as adults in another week.

The Screwworm Eradication Program is operated by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS). It is based on:

- (1) Rancher care of animals to prevent a large population buildup;
- (2) Prompt submission of samples of all worms found in wounds; and
- (3) Release of APHIS reared sterile flies to mate with wild flies.

Female screwworm flies mate only once in their lifetime. Eggs they produce after mating with a sterile male will not hatch—ending the life cycle.

Arizona has recorded 42 screwworm cases in nine counties this year. New Mexico's cases total 22 from six counties.

Pest Management Demonstration Held

A pest management demonstration is being conducted on several Kent County cotton farms during 1976. A suction equipped tractor is shown collecting insects and trash from the field. The insects are blown into sacks and collected by Charlie Arrington, a technician on the project.

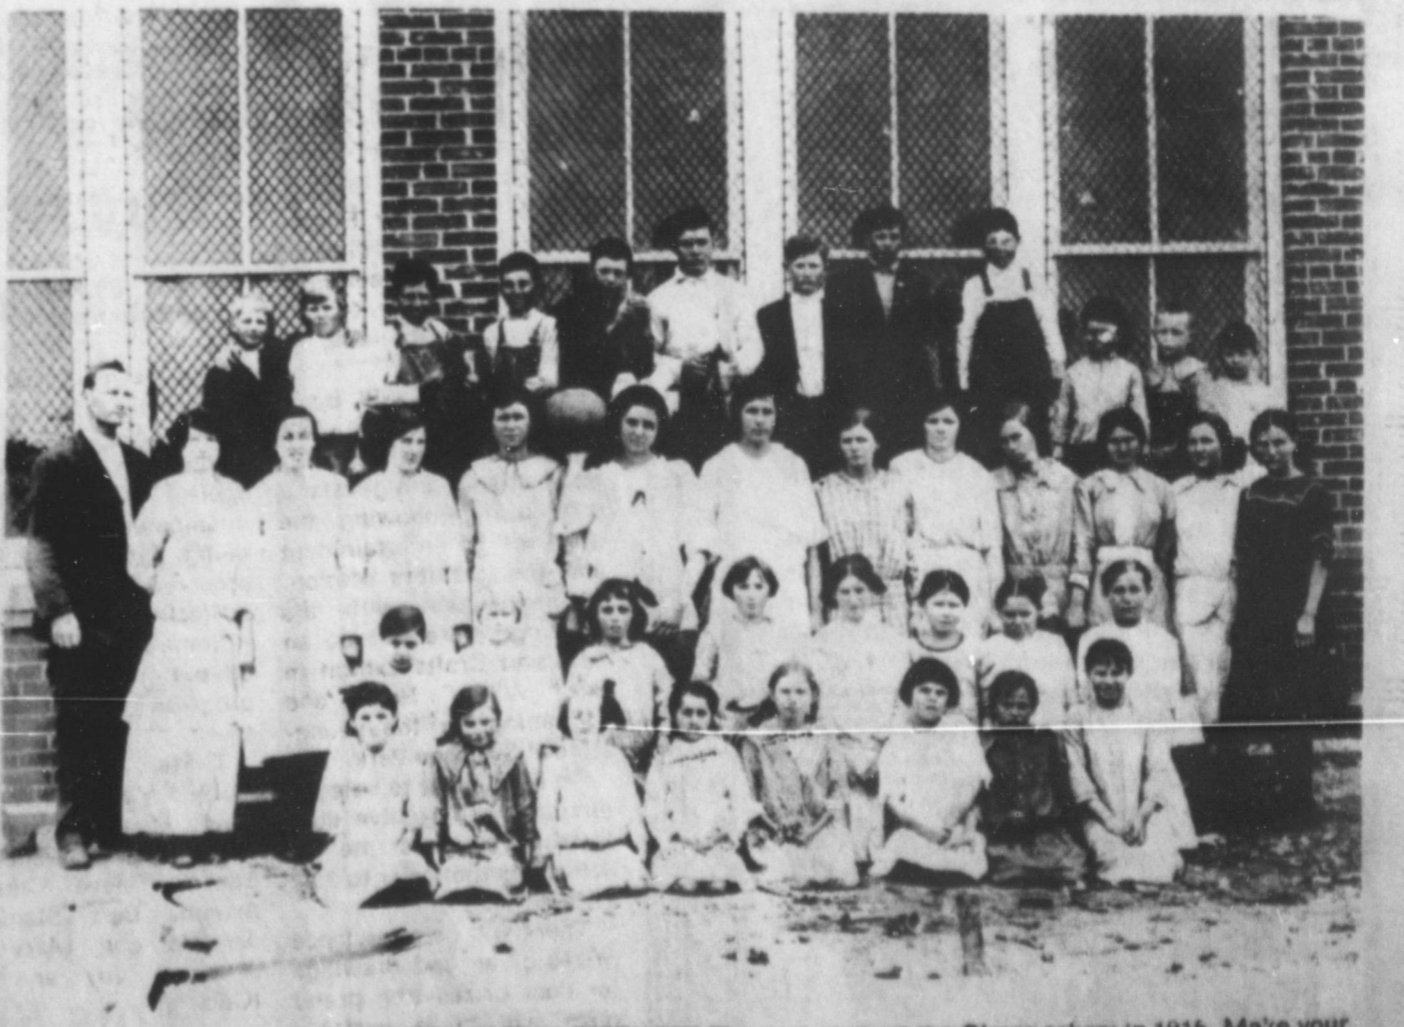

Contents of the sacks are counted to determine harmful insects and beneficial insects.

Fields in the demonstration are the H.D. Wade, W.E. Walker, and Tucker

Reeve farms, about 10 miles west of Jayton. The U.S. Department of Agriculture-Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA-APHIS) is cooperating with Kent County Extension Agent Mark A. Geeslin in these demonstrations.

Part of the fields will be treated with an experimental hormone that will affect the growth habits of the harmful insects.

Results will be reported as they become available.

Letter to Editor

John A. Matthews is an oil operator and business man in Abilene. A few years ago he was a candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture of Texas on the Republican ticket.

For many years he operated the family spread, the Paddle Ranch in Kent County.

Recently Matthews wrote a very interesting letter to the editor of the Abilene Reporter News. This paper has been requested to reprint this letter, which follows below:

Dear Editor:

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), under the United States Department of Labor, is in the process of writing regulations whereby people working on farms and ranches must have toilet facilities with a five minute walk of where they are working.

I feel an average sized person can walk about a third of a mile in five minutes. He might do better if he was in a hurry. This means that on a 30 section ranch, you would have to build 120 flush toilets complete with septic tank and water storage. They will also require proper toilet paper holders and locks on the doors to insure privacy.

Also, I think it would be necessary, on ranches covered with brush, to erect a tall flag pole at the toilet site so the worker could zero in on his objective. Otherwise, he might get lost and you could be fined for non-compliance.

Beyond the fact that all of this will cost one big pot of money-no pun intended-I am worried about some other aspects. It seems to me that this is going to discriminate against short-legged people who can't walk a third of a mile in five minutes. Will the foreman have to work the short-legged man one minute closer to the toilet, or will it be necessary to have a walking demonstration before you hire a new worker so you can gauge just how far from the toilet he can work?

I can see further complications in that sometime some of the crew may drink some gyp water and come up with a case of the "Green Apple Two-Step". Then you would have to work them only a one or two minute walk from the toilet or be in danger of non-compliance if you had them three minutes away and they didn't make it. This is going to take some careful planning before you start a crew to work every morning. You will have to ask each one just what shape his innards are in before assigning jobs for the day, and you may never have a day when they will all be five minute men and can work in a group.

I thought at first that a person might get around the whole idea by designing a "Handy Dandy Quick Relief Portable Toilet" that each man could carry, but that wouldn't work since OSHA's whole idea is to have the men use flush toilets—even the ones that don't know how to use them.

OSHA stand for safety and health. I am unable to see where making it mandatory to have millions of toilets scattered over the range is going to increase safety, so they must be aiming at the health aspect. When they get all these cowboys and farmhands "potty-trained" which will be no small undertaking, I guess they will start on my cows. Did you ever try to train a cow to walk anywhere to go to the bathroom?

If anyone wants to write OSHA about this, the address is:

MOVE in the RIGHT DIRECTION

To attend Church is the first step in finding God. To attend regularly is to continue in the right direction, and gives one an opportunity to understand God's will in his life. Now is the time to make your move. Choose the way that will lead you to God.

Attend Church

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Fresh Corn Is In Good Demand

COLLEGE STATION—Fresh corn, coming to market in abundance, attracts consumer "know how" for buying, says Mrs. Gwendolyn Ciyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

hydro-cooled as soon as it is harvested and kept under refrigeration until it reaches the market—because the sugar in corn, which makes the corn sweet, starts to change to starches as soon as the corn is picked. This change is hastened by warm temperatures (above 40 degrees F.) but develops at a slower rate when corn is cooled.

Fresh corn of good quality has a fresh looking husk; the cob should be firm enough to offer resistance to pressure," she said.

"Hurry fresh corn from the store to your refrigerator. If the husk is still on the corn, leave it on until just before you cook it," Mrs. Ciyatt advises.

Color of the kernels may be white or yellow, depending on the variety. Sweet taste runs to the new types.

If the husk was removed at the store then wrap it or put in a moisture proof container to store in the refrigerator. The sooner you use it the sweeter and tastier the corn.

CANNING

Canning probably offers greater money-saving opportunity than other methods of home food preservation. But the most economical methods depend on the family's eating habits. News & Views From The Capitol

Dear Friends:

While the House has been moving appropriation bills as if it were the end of the Session, the Democrats have been trying to correct some of the obvious shortcomings in our housekeeping system. I never have thought that we had a very sound system of handling the expenses of operating a big business, like the House of Representatives; but for a great many years under the Chairmanship of our neighbor, Congressman Omar Burleson, the Committee on House Administration functioned with a very small staff without any criticism of improper use of public money. Mr. Burleson resigned the Chairmanship of this Committee some years ago to accept membership on the Ways and Means Committee. At that time the Committee had 8 employees. He was succeeded by Congressman Freidel of Baltimore, who got about 40 of his constituents on the payroll and raised the staff of the Committee to 23. He, in turn, was succeeded by Mr. Hays of Ohio, who increased the Committee staff to about 220 and who immediately began to build up a political following by extending privileges, employment and payments to other Members.

This week the Democratic Caucus revoked most of the authority that it had given to the Chairman of the House Administration Committee and adopted new rules relative to expenses incident to operating Congressional offices. I think on the whole these rules are reasonable and will be helpful; but I am afraid they will be misunderstood as they in effect lump all of the expenses of operating an office (telephones, stationery, office equipment, travel, etc.) into the large sum. There is going to be a disposition on the part of many people to feel that Members are being given this entire amount, let us say, for stationery. It is true that all of the money could be spent for stationery; but if it were, there would be no money left to pay telephone bills. If all of the money were spent on telephones, there would be no money for equipment, etc.

It is always difficult to change rules of procedure to meet changed conditions, and the Congress has simply failed to keep its procedures modified as rapidly as its activities have grown. It was not until the Theodore Roosevelt Administration that Congressmen even had offices. It was not until the Franklin D. Roosevelt Administration that Congressmen had more than one room. When I came to Congress, I understand the average Member received about two dozen letters a day. He now receives about 200 and a great many more phone calls and visitors.

It is obvious that it now takes a much larger force to operate Congressional offices, but I think that we have in the last two years expanded our operations—such as special committees, investigations, and research beyond all reason. Of course, many Members argue that with all of this expansion their salaries should be raised. I have opposed raising Congressional salaries for a number of years, because I felt that in so doing we would be more likely to restrain further inflationary governmental spending.

I, therefore, voted against the recent 5 percent increase in Congressional salaries, which has been the only Congressional pay raise in the last 8 or 10 years.

The Veep

There's real danger selection of a Vice Presidential candidate will become a political gesture to female, black or other voter groups. There's nothing wrong, of course, with the selection of any qualified American for the post—so long as that person is the best qualified in his or her party.

But in this nuclear age the Vice Presidency is no longer a meaningless office—as it was for generations. The Vice President must be an individual versed in government, experienced in military affairs, if possible, and qualified in many other ways.

If the individual who best qualifies by these standards is female, black, Jewish, Spanish-American or of any other voter group, well and good.

If not and the selection is a sop to a segment of the population for votes in November, then one must see the vast majority of voters in this political play in a process and selection which could vitally affect the life of every American.

Some people pay their debts and others forget them, if they can.

As It Looks From Here

By Rep. Omar Burleson
Member of Congress, Texas

17th District, Texas
WASHINGTON D.C.—If it is mystifying to those of us who sit in the midst of where bureaucratic regulations are made, certainly, it must be more so for those away from Washington who must comply with them.

Everyone is for clean water, clean air, health and safety and for protecting the environment generally. Those who want to see common sense and practical measures adopted for these purposes are sometimes accused of being for dirty water, dirty air, unsafe and unhealthy working conditions. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

A few examples make the point. Thousands could be cited but a few are current in creating serious problems without solving anything.

In 1972 the Congress passed the "Clean Water Act". Under the law, anyone doing any dredging or filling work on "navigable waters" must have a permit from the Corps of Engineers. In this instance, it was the Courts who applied the rule that "navigable waters" means all waters of the United States.

Initially, the Corps of Engineers interpreted the ruling as meaning that any rancher or farmer wanting to enlarge a stockpond or deepen an irrigation ditch or plow a field, or a mountaineer who merely wants to protect his land against erosion, will have to get a Federal permit.

After scads of complaints the Corps is now proposing somewhat more narrow requirements but still has red tape which really does nothing to abate water pollution. Efforts are now being made to clarify this situation to limit the Engineers' authority to protect navigable waterways and important estuaries which provide breeding ground for aquatic life. This is what was intended in the first place.

On the matter of clean air, impossible standards were set for automobiles. Limitations on motor use in some cities is completely beyond compliance. The environmentalists were going to clean up the air on Los Angeles and are just now finding out that the air quality was not good in that area before people even came there.

Reports in other instances strongly support allegations that bureaucrats in the Environmental Protection Agency's research program have significantly distorted the findings of scientists in their own agency on the effects of sulphur-bearing fuels on human health. The charges are that some of those at the top of the agency rewrote the work of scientists, often deleting what the researchers felt were important qualifiers on experimental results. It is now believed by investigators that the material deleted did not show a connection between sulphur pollution and adverse health effects.

A Dr. John Finkler of the EPA resigned his position last year but was then named Director of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. Reading some of the regulations of OSHA gives rise to further suspicion that the Doctor is in the right place to issue more asinine regulations. One only has to look at some recent instructions on farm safety. One is to be careful of wet floors in a cow barn, with a further warning that it is dangerous to stumble over a lying-down animal.

Another 13-page pamphlet gives instructions on the use of ladders. There are many kinds of ladders and each is given an extensive and detailed description on how it should be used.

No doubt ladders can be hazardous and it is assumed that stumbling over an animal lying down would not be good for one's well-being. It also assumes that people are pretty stupid and have got to be told from Washington what to do about everything.

Variety Is Key In Fashions and Fabrics For This Fall

COLLEGE STATION—Variety is the key to fall fabrics and fashions. Rather than one important new look, many different trends and influences are in style, Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, reports.

"Major trends are the layered look, classics, naturals and the ethnic look," she said.

Miss Vanderpoorten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Layers looks will be most evident in active sportswear. Layers will be functional as well as decorative. Terry cloth, corduroy and fleece, muslin, poplin and shirting fabrics will be popular in both natural and bright colors, she reported.

"Classics, termed the 'thoroughbred look,' will be seen in neutral colors and new basics such as luggage red and spruce green. Refined tweeds, herringbone patterns and pin stripes will combine with solids to give an elegant tailored look to favorite separates. Blazers, vests and simple skirt or pant styles will be front runners," she said.

Kuhn's Major Leagues

In 1920 Major League club owners set up a powerful, watchdog commissioner, following a baseball scandal, and for decades the baseball world listened and heeded the tough words of the game's boss.

In more recent decades that has not been the baseball scene. When a commissioner became too much of a problem, or pain, he was given the heave-ho by owners.

Today's baseball commissioner is suddenly trying to assume the role of the late Commissioner K.M. Landis—and has intervened in a baseball trade, to nullify the sale of Joe Rudi, Rollie Finders and Vida Blue to Boston and New York.

Oakland owner, Charles Finley, who sold the former two players to the Red Sox for a million each and Blue to the New York Yankees for a million and a half, has taken Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to court, and is given a good chance to win.

Kuhn is suspect because he and Finley have been at odds for years and last year Finley tried to block Kuhn's reelection as baseball's boss. In any event, it's eye-opening to say the least when the commissioner steps into trades and nullifies them because he thinks it will unbalance the league.

In the opinion of most observers, Kuhn has erred. Such player sales have long been part of the game. What's worse, he has plunged Major League baseball into its worst legal and internal mess in years. The eventual result is likely to be Kuhn's exit from the scene.

Church College Grants

The Supreme Court recently decided, 5-4, that Maryland could provide public money to church-run schools. The controversial decision is a sign of the times, and proves that judicial interpretation often takes into account need or urgency.

It's no secret church-run schools are in financial trouble all over the United States. It's also no secret that for two hundred years most judicial and legal opinions have held that public funds could not be voted to church-owned schools because of the provision in the U.S. Constitution providing for strict separation of church and state.

Little by little, church-run schools have been nibbling away at that barrier. Initially, only the Roman Catholic Church, which traditionally seeks public money, and which actually runs the schools in some countries, was a major agitator for public dollars for its schools.

Many Protestant school leaders and many Jews opposed the use of public monies for these schools. The late John Kennedy remained adamantly opposed. But as the economic crunch among all private schools has become severe, some have been changing their views.

The Supreme Court's decision regarding Maryland does not mean similar laws in effect in Illinois, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oregon and Pennsylvania are necessarily constitutional. But it is encouraging to backers of those laws in these nine states.

It also means state legislatures in the forty states without church school aid programs will come under increasing pressure to enact legislation similar to that in Maryland. Legislatures in many states may remain opposed to the Maryland concept—as did four Justices of the Supreme Court—as a violation of the Constitution.

But the high court has ruled, even if 5-4, and that opens the gates to a flow of public funds to church-run schools.

An Open Letter

An open letter to the news director of the Lubbock Avalanche Journal:

Every town and community has its pride. Kent County and the city of Jayton are small, that is true, but they are not short on pride. Per capita, the community spirit is as strong here, as any place in the world.

All of the above being true, one should not be surprised that the people of this little community are disturbed with the way your news staff handled the story of the plane hunt in your Wednesday morning edition.

The focal point of the hunt was in Kent County, and the scene of the wreck was in Kent County, but this fact is extremely difficult to determine in reading your Wednesday account of the incident.

You gave the story a Post-deline, and you identified all the activities in relation to the distance from Post.

As a metro newspaper with a regional circulation and a fine staff of newsmen, certainly you people know how they think work. We would like to think this was just a slip up on the part of your staff and that Jayton and Kent County were not deliberately shunned—but still we want to point this matter out to you.

Fraternally,
A.E. Richards, Publisher of the Jayton Chronicle.

Changes Made In Show At The Fair

LUBBOCK --- Barbara Mandrell has been booked to replace Dolly Parton in the entertainment lineup at the 59th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair.

Steve L. Lewis, general manager, said Mandrell will appear on stage with Freddy Fender on Sept. 27-28.

Superstar Parton withdrew on her doctor's advice. Her personal physician ordered her to take a "complete, uninterrupted rest" until Oct. 1.

Mandrell is the youngest member of Nashville's Grand Ole Opry. The pint-size (5-2, 95 pounds) country stylist also is adept on the five-string guitar, steel guitar, bass and saxophone.

Considered a show business veteran at 14, Mandrell set several records in 40 and 50 yard dashes in a Los Angeles track meet during her high school days. She still admits to being a "tomboy."

She started out with a family band and landed a stint at the Showboat Hotel in Las Vegas at 14. Now a successful Columbia Records artist, her top releases include "Midnight Oil," "Treat Him Right," "Holdin' On to the Love I've Got" "Show Me",
