

All About Nothin'

It seems I'm to be left without a thing to fuss about in 1938. The chamber of commerce, target for many bricks from this column last year, has started the new year with plenty of UMPH. Sponsoring Boy Scouts here, reviving trades day programs, delving into the matter of a new or improved hotel, setting regular meeting dates with a smoker at the home economics cottage and plans to install caution lights on the highway in town are some of the objectives set by the civic body in meeting last week. If those things are accomplished by the group, I will toss bouquets with more gusto and more pleasure than I did the bricks.

And as to the other bone of contention, cleanup week, I have decided to take the city duds up on their offer to appoint me city clean up commissioner. I'll take the job and do my best to do it right.

Last year when there was so much in this column about cleaning up the town of trash and weeds, Miss Claudia Neelley, school teacher here graciously offered the co-operation of students in her grades in the campaign to make the city cleaner. Fall activity was beginning to creep up on the town when her offer was made. So I filed it away in the back of my moronic mind.

Within the next few weeks plans will be formulated for the most intensive spring clean-up campaign this town has ever known. Not because I am working, but because citizens of the town are going to co-operate to make it a successful campaign.

The caustic, but true, remarks made by visitors about the untidy, unclean conditions and unpleasant odors in the city make me ashamed of the situation.

If the city duds allow me to conduct the campaign it will cost some money to put it over right—money for prizes, and for hauling trash and junk to the dump ground. So if they don't want to appropriate a fund for this purpose and if they don't want me to conduct the campaign—speak now or forever hold your peace. (where have I heard that phrase before?)

Secretary Bill Richter says prospects for obtaining rural electrification for our territory through the Lubbock county setup are favorable. He and Ray Pinson contacted REA officials in Lubbock last week.

Caution lights placed at several points on the highway through town, is another worthwhile objective of the group. It may save lives of some of our school children.

A fine token of appreciation is the sponsoring of the supper Friday night for several who pioneered business in Abernathy.

Chamber of Commerce Snaps Into Action for '38

A nervous gun toter caused a young riot here Monday night. The man was encountered by Lamar McKenzie and City Marshal O. Rutledge near McKenzie's stock pen at about 9:30 p. m. They thought he came from inside the pens where Lamar has several head of cattle and Ed Abney has a few horses. When Rutledge and Lamar asked the prowler his name he said "Brown." Rutledge started to get out of Lamar's car and the "Mr. Brown" drew a gun from a scabbard buckled on at his waist and ordered him back into the vehicle. After Mc and Rutledge failed to obey his commands, "Brown" grew nervous, so nervous that he used his left hand to raise the pistol in his right hand for another convincing "you'd better get moving or I'll blow hell out of you." Which command Lamar and Rutledge obeyed. After giving the nervous command, the prowler broke and ran. And like any sensible person would have done, they let him keep running to where. They don't know. But a party of several men assisted in an intensive, but futile, search which followed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jenkins, who were coming to the pens to care for their cow, were mixed up in the exciting encounter but it was all over before they realized what was happening.

The "Mr. Brown" wore khaki trousers, boots and spurs and the six shooter was in a scabbard on a belt in regular wild west cowboy fashion, Rutledge said.

Several nights ago Abney's horses were turned out of the pens. And the gate was unfastened Monday night, an inspection revealed. It is believed that "Brown" had intended to "borrow" the horses and lead them to a trailer or truck parked somewhere near the pens.

R. Reikin, farmer near Center, reported seven head of steers were stolen from his place one night last week.

Jack Camp has found no trace of the milch cow which was stolen from his farm north of town two weeks ago. His cow was loaded into a trailer from a bank of dirt near the pen.

Apparently, cattle rustlers and horse thieves have not completely disappeared from the Plains country.

The proposal to have a joint revival meeting at the tabernacle here this summer seems to be a good idea. If the four churches of the town would concentrate their collective efforts in one intensive religious campaign this summer I believe much good would result from the co-operative meeting. More about the plan later when Methodist Pastor Ed Tharp, Baptist Pastor W. A. Reed, Nazarene Pastor D. Herbert Land and Church of Christ Minister E. V. Wilson go into conference on the subject.

Early Days In Hale County Recalled By Founder Of Wayland College

Founder of Wayland Baptist college of Plainview and at one time Hale county's only physician, Dr. J. H. Wayland of Plainview is Hale county's most valuable citizen, and has earned a place on the list of Panhandle pioneers. His early days as a doctor caused him to carry a compass so that he would not get lost on long trips to other cities.

In April, 1891, Dr. Wayland became a Hale county citizen.

"This country was wild and open," Dr. Wayland stated. "There were no farmers, but as the settlers came in and erected windmills they planted a little garden and cattle raising was their means of livelihood.

"During the 30 years of my general practice on the plains, from 1891 to 1921, going almost day and night on this broad expanse of territory, many and varied were my experiences. Hardships, out in the sandstorms, wet or dry, sleeping on the bldies or in dugouts with cats, dogs or fleas, was a real pleasure. To the tenderfoot that may not seem true. In those days waterdogs, tarantulas, centipedes, as well as polecats and wolves, were plentiful.

"For many years my practice extended south far beyond Lubbock, north to Amarillo and near Childress, as far southeast as Matador, west to the ranches in New Mexico and northwest to Hereford—including the ZIT Ranch—a territory 200 to 250 miles across this vast Llano Estacado territory.

"Many times I have run over a fence, not knowing it was there until I struck it in the dark.

"In the early days the country was wide open, the first fence being 16 miles west of Plainview, and the next one was 35 miles farther, near the old Spring Lake Ranch headquarters. Of course we had no roads to travel and I had to go to these various points by directions given me by the cowboys who came after me. Many a dark night I would be at my wits' end to keep the proper course. At such times if a star was in sight I would watch it and if I could see it between my horses' heads I would be all right, but sometimes the clouds would hide it and then I would find another star and watch it as long as I could.

"While driving I would get so cold in the winter that I had to get out and walk many, many miles to keep from freezing.

"Even the old screaming windmills the range were great mileposts and the cow trails leading to told of my approach to a I might get a drink for the team.

"I'd down on the ground to rest a few minutes while my horses were resting. I was disturbed at times by the annoying sniffing and howling of the wolves and oftentimes was aroused by wolves coming up near me and sniffing in my face, hunting for food. Even a polecat bit me on the ear one night. I always carried two big mo-hair laprobes with me and heavy woolen blankets.

"I soon discovered I must find some way of making these long trips and not get lost in doing so. I sent to a mail order house and got a pocket compass which I carried for 20 years. That little pocket compass rests safely in my iron safe and will pass on to my grandchildren.

"Many people were coming to the plains in the early nineties and it was not long until I was doing a general practice for many miles around Plainview. I was often called to see some sick member of a family in a tent, or only a wagon bed covered with a wagon sheet, or in a dugout.

"Several times have I seen a good housewife and mother with her children building them a home by excavating the dugout in which they were to live, while the husband and father had gone to the breaks after fuel or posts, or to Amarillo for lumber with which to cover the dugout.

"Coming to Plainview as I did, a young man, in the early nineties, with the country undeveloped, I made many pleasant discoveries. Highly educated people with university degrees, with a great desire for getting a home for themselves and their families, were very cheerful pioneers of this country and were charming entertainers in their humble dugouts.

"Many of the women would line their dugouts with tow sacks and even put tow sacks on the floors. Some would whitewash the walls of their dugouts and do many things to make their homes attractive.

"It was while traveling over these bald plains in those early days that I conceived the idea that there should be built somewhere on these plains a literary school or junior college. Cherishing that idea for many years I finally succeeded in interesting the Staked Plains Baptist Association in the project in 1906. The school was organized in 1909, and work was begun on the administration building, and Wayland Baptist College was formally opened Sept. 27, 1910.

"The charter first called for Wayland Literary and Technological Institute, but this was later changed to Wayland Baptist College. In 1913 the school was correlated with the Baptist Convention of Texas and admitted into the system of schools and colleges as fostered by the Baptists of Texas. It was recognized as a standard junior college in 1917, and in 1926 was admitted to membership in the American Association of Junior Colleges.

"In the 25 years this school has been in operation many young men and women have received their education there."

Dr. Wayland's gift to the college was 30 acres of land for a campus and $100,000.

Letter To The Editor

Abernathy, Texas Jan. 17, 1938 Editor and Mrs. Davenport, My dear young folk! Of course, we have all learned sometime ago from local talk as well as other reliable sources that you recently became married. I have been too busy and can't recall now whether you made the grade on Christmas, New Year's Day or after.

It is natural and altogether too often the case, as in my case, the groom misrepresents the brightness of his life. He fools the poor unsuspecting girl into believing he is undoubtedly the genuine article, all wool and a yard wide; brilliant and above reproach.

Laying all jokes aside, did you know that a man does his very best advertising when he seeks a bride? with the lone exception of death, the most serious subject in the world is marriage.

SINGING SCHOOL

New song books will be installed during the next few days and a singing school will be conducted from the 24th of Jan. through Feb. 3. This will be a "community school" and will be free to every one who will attend. It will be a church school of course, but will be offered as a contribution to the general interest in singing throughout the community.

We invite all who are interested in singing, more singing and better singing to attend this school every night beginning at 7:30 o'clock, Monday, Jan. 24. A special course in Rudiments and sight-singing will be given for both beginners and those advanced. Also special work is to be done with each of the voice groups, as well as with the children. All congregational and choir leaders and quartet groups are invited to participate in this school and help to make it of the greatest possible value to all. We would like to open this school with at least 100 enrolled the first night. Come, bring some friends, and let us all together show to this community what co-operation for the general community benefit can accomplish. Church affiliation will not be given any concern in this school—we are more interested in it as a community benefit, hence, we solicit the entire community interest as a whole in promoting this school. All preachers and church leaders are being solicited with confidence. Remember the date, Monday, Jan. 24, and the hour, 7:30 p. m. INSTRUCTOR AND DIRECTOR

E. V. Wilson, minister of the local church, who has had several years experience in this type of work, not only in the congregations of the Church of Christ, but also in many other churches and public schools of the country, will be instructor and director in this school. He will, however, ask for the help and co-operation of all leaders and music teachers in promoting this work in behalf of the community in general. He has had special work under some of the most eminent teachers and composers, and with considerable experience in this field, should be able to advance the general interest in a "community singing school". Your personal interest is hereby solicited, and request is made that this announcement be made in all the churches in Abernathy and surrounding communities where this paper is read.
