How Did they Do It?

There have been so many terrible stories lately about mothers who have killed their children. It's something I cannot understand. But I really got irritated when I read an article the other day that said "every mother deep in her heart understands. At some time she has been to that black verge". I don't think so! I'm not going in to the rights, wrongs, madness verses evil aspect of these killings. What I am going to do is look back a little.

Think of all the people you know who come from big families. One that comes immediately to your mind is Juanita Webster Sparks. She grew up with six sisters. That means her mother had seven children to cook for, as well as her husband and herself. Over a wood stove, I might add. There was no air conditioning, no central heat. There was no running water for many years! That meant no inside bathroom. There were no disposable diapers, paper towels, tissues, or handy dandy little baby monitors. Clothes all had to be washed in a wash pot, hung out to dry and starched and ironed, often with a heated on the stove flat iron.

There were also no vacations, nor were their "Mother's Day Out" programs. They did not expect a break from the duties of raising their family.

They also had to grow gardens, can, and preserve, and frequently did all this after a full day in the fields of cotton or other crops.

They worked hard, killing hours. They went to church on Sundays, and it must have seemed a peaceful and welcome break.

Yet, Juanita has wonderful memories of her childhood. Her parents raised healthy, normal, productive citizens.

We all know people who come from families of six, eight, ten, even thirteen.

I have no doubt that they, and every mother, have wished at times they didn't have children to burden them. They must have put their heads down and wept in frustration, anger or despair.

Today's mothers do the same thing. Yes, I'm sure each and every one of them has days when they wish those children weren't there. I'm sure they have wished for just a few minutes of peace and quiet, without the demands of family.

But these mothers do NOT understand parents who kill their children.

I don't believe it. I believe that the majority of parents today love their children and would fight and die for their offspring...instead of asking their children to die for them!

Grandparents home turned into special place for guests

By Nanalee Nichols

There are well kept secrets in the world, and one can be found nestled among the trees, just off of Hwy. 271 in Pattonville. "Bed and Bath" is the dream of a young woman who taken on a challenge of creating a peaceful, pleasant place to stay that will be in keeping with the memories she has of her grandparent's home.

Betty Jo is the granddaughter of Barney and Earline Wilson, longtime residents and business people in Pattonville. They spent many years in a modest white frame house, then in 1959 they built a pink brick house next door to the frame house and moved in to it.

Betty Jo now lives in the brick home, but has turned the frame cottage into a bed and bath for visitors.

She has used her imagination to make some charming touches to the place.

The little house rents to visitors for as little as $50 per night. That rate is for the whole house, not per person! Guests will be greeted, once they enter the house, with spotless cleanliness, little nosegays of fresh flowers, and dozens of amenities.

If a visitor is looking for highly polished sophistication, they should look elsewhere. But if they are looking for peaceful country living, where the beds are comfortable, the bath tub is huge and the yard is a garden of delights, they are definitely at the right place.

The inside of the cottage has two bedrooms. One is the Honeymoon room, with a light, airy feel and a big bed draped in white gauzy fabrics. A chilled bottle of nonalcoholic cider or juice will welcome guests. The other bedroom is painted black. The twilight room has the constellations, authentically aligned as they are in the heavens, painted on the ceilings. This room steps out into the back yard, and overlooks a pleasant lily pond.

"I wanted to create a place that I would like to stay in if I were traveling" Betty Jo smiles.

The trim, attractive young woman recalls with fondness how magical her grandparent's home was to her as a child, and how opening a place for people to stay in the house was part of her dream of preserving their memory.

The kitchen is modern, and features a refrigerator with snacks in the freezer, a microwave, sink, washer and dryer and more. All the things for coffee are there, and plates, forks, dish towels and more.

The garden tub room has a huge bathtub, just right for relaxing, plus chairs and a pleasant decor. Bowls of floating candles are scattered around the home.

A game room has just been completed, complete with a pool table and the "totally tacky, but always necessary" prints of dogs playing pool on the wall.

The television comes with a VCR and a box of tapes for viewing.

A further exploration of the property reveals a small pond with two paddle boats, fishing rods, a small gazebo and the most recent addition, a concrete sand castle.

The just-finished castle and keep has a moat around it, and delights old and young alike.

Antique bricks form paths through the garden, and run to the back door of Betty Jo's home, where a parrot can be heard chattering away. Patterned after the ones found on farms years ago, make sure that the paths stay dry and safe.

"The live entertainment here is the hummingbirds" Betty Jo points out, as the little jewels flash and fly from blossom, feeding to feeder. Swings dangle, invitingly from trees, bird houses are surrounded by wire circles to keep the cats from getting near nestlings.

Bird baths abound, and there is a newly planted "secret garden" which Betty Jo hopes will grow into a totally private enclave with two seats and a seclusion from the world.

Old pear trees groan from the weight of their ripening fruit, butterfly bushes feed those fluttering marvels of nature they are named for, and even in the heat of summer the entire property is delightful. Most of the hedges, trees and plants are old natives, denizens of this area because they are hardy and suited to the climate.

"There's some misunderstanding about what this is" Betty Jo states, "I think people think it's in my home, but obviously it's not. It's totally private. Vehicles have their own drive way, they just need to check in here at my house or make arrangements with me ahead of time. I don't serve breakfast, so it's not truly a bed and breakfast. But, there are a few things for people in the ice box, and it's easy to wander over to M & M Food Mart or to lay in something to cook in the morning" she explains.

It's a surprising business to discover only a block away from a busy highway, in a town without true tourism. But it's a pleasant surprise, as is the friendly, eager-to-please enthusiasm of a young woman who wants to help preserve a little piece of a simpler, older lifestyle, and the memories of her grandparents and their warm hospitality.

Betty Jo can be reached in the evenings at 903-652-5602 or a message can be left at 903-782-8256.

In the meantime, her dream is helping others have pleasant dreams of their own in a simple, unassuming frame farm house.

Eleanor McCluer and Dr. Jack Troutt

Bogata Library/Museum farm room nearing completion

Eleanor McCluer and Dr. Jack Troutt are pictured on the little farm house back porch at the Bogata Library/Museum. Mrs. McCluer toured the Cotton Museum in Greenville recently with a group from Paris. She told the organization in Bogata about the little back porch in that museum and how lovely it was. "It takes you back in time" she said, making the group want their own.

They got pictures and dimensions and gave them to Neil Rozell who built the replica. Neil used rustic sheet iron for the porch roof from his place. Mac Howison gave lumber from the house where his mother, Raviah Howison, lived until her death. The old screen door was purchased from an antique store in Paris. The little back porch is a nice addition to the museum. It does take you back to "the good ol' days" of the farm.

The rub board on the porch was donated by Bunky Smith. He had only on reservation, "I'd like to ask that you return it each Monday so Floy can do the washing" he said. The porch is located in the area that was Dr. Jack Troutt's lab when he practiced dentistry in the building in the 1950's and until the late 1960's. Part of the area was his dark room for developing x-rays and a cabinet area where he poured impressions and made false teeth. Dr. Troutt expressed his pleasure in seeing the little back porch, with corn and cotton planted just east of it, where he had spent so many hours doing dental work before building his dental clinic on Main St. in Bogata.

Everyone is invited to stop by and view the new room as well as the many wonderful artifacts of Bogata's past and to make use of and enjoy the library which offers so many types of books, videos and more.

THE MOST IMPORTANT part of the new elementary, as far as the students see it, is the playground and workers were busy putting up the new playground equipment last week. The students, staff, parents and community have worked hard to earn funds to give the children an extra fun place to play. (Staff Photo Nancy Brown)

Christus St. Joseph's to acquire hospital from Texas Health Resources

Christus St. Joseph's health System in Paris has signed a definitive agreement to purchase the buildings, equipment and certain services of McCuiston Regional Medical Center, also in Paris, from Texas Health Resources, effective August 5. With the acquisition, Christus St. Joseph's and McCuiston will consolidate services of the two Paris hospitals into one system.

"Our primary goal is to meet the health care needs of Northeast Texas and Southeast Oklahoma residents, patients, physicians and employees in the most efficient and effective way possible," Monty McLaurin, chief executive officer of Christus St. Joseph's said. "Like hospitals across the country, the Paris hospitals have been faced with an increase in the number of uninsured and underinsured patients and a decrease in reimbursement from the government and managed care plans. To continue to operate two hospitals separately in a community of 25,000 residents would not work long term and would not be in the best interests of the community."

"McCuiston is a valuable asset and resource for the community," said Douglas D. Hawthorne, president and chief executive officer of THR. "I am pleased that we have been able to complete this transaction with Christus St. Joseph's. This will enable the residents of Paris to continue to receive outstanding health care services in their community. Through a long term affiliation agreement with THR signed with Christus St. Joseph's Health System, we will continue to work together to improve the health of those served by Christus St. Joseph's."

The two organizations announced their intent to consolidate in February and have spent the last five months working through the details of the transaction, according to McLaurin. "We have had teams of Associates working to ensure that the transition taking place today is as seamless and as smooth as possible. Our next step is to work closely with our physicians and clinical staff to determine how to coordinate and consolidate services to best meet the needs of our community while eliminating as much duplication as possible."

As part of the agreement between Christus St. Joseph's and THR, Christus will invest some of the proceeds in a not for profit foundation designed to improve the health of the communities served by Christus St. Joseph's.

"The Christus mission calls for us to reach out to communities in need to ensure that quality health care is available and accessible," said Thomas C. Royer, M.D., president and CEO of Christus Health. "We have been an important part of the Paris community for many years, but recent challenges in reimbursements, coupled with an increasing number of uninsured and underinsured patients, have made it increasingly difficult to remain viable there. The plan to combine our health care services there into one system will be a great benefit for the community, and Christus is pleased to have the opportunity to work with THR to make that happen."

THR has committed to invest approximately $3 million in the construction and operation of the Lamar Women's Health Center, a 4,700 square foot ambulatory surgical center located on the second floor of McCuiston Regional Medical Center. The center, which will operate as a separate, 5.01(c)(3) not for profit corporation, will be licensed separately, governed by its own board of directors, managed by an independent management team and have its own separately credentialed medical staff.

Christus St. Joseph's has been part of the Northeast Texas community for more than 100 years. McCuiston Regional Medical Center has served health care needs of the residents of Paris and surrounding communities for 87 years.

Headquartered in Dallas, Christus Health is one of the largest Catholic health systems in the country, employing more than 25,000 people with total assets of $3.4 billion, with a mission to extend the health ministry of Jesus Christ, Christus Health comprises more than 40 hospitals and long term care facilities, as well as dozens of other health services, in more than 70 communities in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Utah and Mexico.

Texas Health Resources, based in Irving, serves 32 counties in North Central Texas and southeast Oklahoma with 12 acute care hospitals, two behavioral health facilities, a retirement center, senior health centers, a medical research institute, fitness centers, an air ambulance program and a transitional care facility. THR was formed in 1997 with the merger of Ft. Worth based Harris Methodist Hospitals, Dallas based Presbyterian Healthcare System and Arlington Memorial Hospital. THR employs more than 15,500 people and has more than 4,500 physicians with privileges on its medical staff.

Country Cooking

Our recipes this week deal with something cool to eat that is light in calories and some others that will be good for lunches or after-school treats. School will be starting next week at all area schools and although students enjoy the nutritious lunches served, some still enjoy taking their lunch to school.

There is something about the first week of school that has everyone wanting a new lunchbox to take and having mom get up a little earlier so that she can pack all the "good stuff" in it! By the time rolls around, lunches are usually traded around, because someone else's always looks better. Stores are loaded with all types of displays that catch the eye (and the kids too) and urge parents to buy for their child's lunch, so that they can have a delicious and nutritious noon meal. Be sure to check the labels though. Most of these are misleading and can lead to the kids having loads of sugar and other things that are not very good! Which can lead to teachers having very bad afternoons!

Enjoy the recipes and we will see you in the kitchen and in school next week! NOTE: in last week's column the Buttermilk Cake needs 1 cup of buttermilk and the Baked Spaghetti needs to bake at 375 degrees. For questions or comments, contact me at: lizirwin@hotmail.com

Taking care of customers after the sale has been the key to the dealership's success, moving from sales of 200 units in its first year of operation to more than 1,100 units last year.

"The thing I've learned first hand about success is that it's built around satisfied customers," Michael said.

Presently acting as sales manger, Michael will become the dealership's general manager pending formal approval from Chrysler Corporation. DPS reminds motorists to watch for those kiddos!

As the school year starts, the Department of Public Safety reminds motorists to slow down around schools and to watch for children who may be exiting school buses. Drivers also should be aware that children may cross streets without watching where they're going.

"The first few days of school, it's easy to be distracted," said Col. Thomas A. Davis Jr., director of the DPS. "Make sure you're paying attention when you're driving, especially in and around school zones or near school buses. You don't want to become part of a tragedy."

More than 1.3 million Texas children a day ride school buses, which continue to be the safest form of highway transportation--fewer than 1 percent of traffic crashes in the state involve them.

The most common time for collisions is when school buses are loading or unloading students. According to the National School Bus Loading and Unloading Survey, most children injured or killed while getting on or off buses are under the age of 10. All students should be taught to follow safety rules and to watch for traffic before crossing streets.

Texas law forbids vehicles from passing a school bus while its alternately flashing red warning lights are activated. Motorists can be fined up to $1,000 for passing a school bus while the warning lights are activated. Subsequent violations can lead to suspension of a driver license for up to six months.

"Stopping for school buses is the law. DPS has zero tolerance for vehicles that pass stopped school buses; if you pass a stopped school bus, you will receive a ticket," Davis said.

In 1999--the latest year for which statistics are available--two children were killed in separate incidents when they exited school buses in Travis and Rusk counties.

In other incidents across the state, 1,348 bus drivers or occupants were injured in school bus crashes and 18 were injured while loading or unloading school buses.

For more information on school bus safety, please contact DPS School Bus Safety Program Administrator Charley Kennington at 254-867-4611 or the Public Information Office at 512-424-2080.

FIRE DANGER-Fire Danger is set in Northeast Texas including Lamar, Red River and Titus Counties. There is moderate to extreme fire danger at any weather station in the region, and a high to very high fire occurrence. Multiple fires per day are common, there are occasional night fires and or fires exceeding one burning period. There are safety concerns such as long hours and fatigue for fire fighters and the region maybe in for long term severity. This level is set and used by the State Forestry Service for use as a planning and staffing tool. Fire danger is very high, and anyone doing any outside burning should first check to see if there is a fire ban, and use extreme caution.

Guaranty reports second quarter results

Guaranty Bancshares, Inc., the parent company of Guaranty Bank, reported net income for the second quarter 2001 of $723,000, compared with $688,000 for the same period in 2000. Net income for the six months ended June 30, 2001 was $1.5 million or $0.48 per diluted share compared to $1.2 million or $0.39 per diluted share for the same period of 2000.

"Considering the dramatic drop in interest rates and subsequent margin pressure, Guaranty performed well during the quarter. Our next interest margin dropped 20 basis points compared to the same quarter last year, while our net earnings per share increased 9.1%. We think that is a very positive accomplishment," said Art Scharlach, President of Guaranty Bancshares.

Shareholders equity was $30.56 million at June 30, 2001. Total Tier 1 capital was equal to 8.34% of average assets. For the second quarter ended June 30, 2001, on an annualized basis, the company realized a return on equity of 9.50% versus 10.04% for the second quarter ended June, 2000.

As of June 30, loans increased 14.0% to $300.3 million. During the same period total assets increased 9.8% to $428.1 million. Total deposits increased 12.4% to $380.9 million.

"Our asset quality continues to compare favorably to industry standard and based on today's earning asset levels, our net interest and the likelihood of future rates cuts, we currently expect 2001 earnings to be a significant improvement over year 2000 earnings" said Scharlach.

Guaranty Bancshares paid a semi-annual dividend of $0.13 per share on June 15, 2001 to shareholders of record on June 8, 2001.

The company currently serves seven Northeast Texas counties with ten locations and Pecos County in West Texas with one location in Fort Stockton.

Serotinous Cones

In the summer of 2000, thousands of acres burned in the western United States. A map was displayed during a TV news broadcast, a map that highlighted where each fire was. It seemed as if almost every state west of Texas was included. How were forests to survive?

The bible proclaims, "For since the creation of the world, His invisible attributes, His eternal power and divine nature, have been clearly seen, being understood through what has been made, so they are without excuse" (Rom. 1:20 NASB). God's wisdom of design is seen in His creation. (By the way, I believe there to be Divine wisdom, and physical need, purpose and design for wildfires-But, we'll not develop this right now). Let's examine coniferous, or cone bearing trees.

Many trees (such as the giant Sequoia and various pines) produce a certain number of serotinous cones. These are cones that are scaled up by a resin that is sensitive to high heat. They open normally only after a fire. A man I know visited Yellowstone National Park after its great fire several years ago. He was amazed to see the abundant growth in areas that had been scorched. He was told of serotinous cones!

What a design! God provided a way for reforestation to occur. He provided a special cone that both protects the seed from intense heat and releases seed for regrowth, just when needed most, following a fire.

Did it not take a mind for such design? But, trees have no mind. There must have been a mind, an intellect for such a design to be in place, for if there is design there must be a designer. The bible says, "every house is built by someone, but he who built all things is God" (Heb. 3:4 NKJV).

Letter to the Editor

Letter to the Editor:

Dear Nanalee,
 Three cheers for your July 26th Nichols worth. Friends who think the country is going to the dogs should remind themselves that a couple of generations back, people remembered that it is the U.S. Constitution that has made us great! OK, maybe it just allowed us to become great--same thing.

Of course we should criticize acts of government to make government better, but I am pained to hear self-styled patriots bashing government in words that in the past would have caused the FBI to investigate them.

Having seen a few other governments, I believe we are fortunate to have ours.

John Howison, Bogata
