Council Approves Settlement Points

The Clarksville City Council approved several points that could serve as a basis for settlement of a $300,150 civil rights lawsuit in executive session on Monday, January 12. Attorney for the plaintiffs in the suit, Jim D. Lovett met with the council and the council agreed to put into action several of his recommendations.

The city was named as a co-defendant with Red River County and four law enforcement officers in a lawsuit alleging that plaintiffs Gene Shadid and Peggy Mitchell were subjected to police brutality while being held in the Red River County Jail.

On Tuesday, January 13, Jim D. Lovett met with Red River County officials to discuss the county joining with the city on the points decided upon. He was also scheduled to meet with the Red River County Commissioners on Wednesday, January 14, at 1:30 p.m. The commissioners will have the final say as to whether the county accepts or rejects the proposal.

The points agreed to by the city council include the establishment of a public review board which would investigate all acts of violence and assault alleged against police officers, Lovett said.

The board would contain five members, four of which would be appointed by state district judges. Two of those members could not be or ever have been a police officer or judicial officer. The fifth member of the board, which would be the chairman, would be selected by the other four members and could not currently be a peace officer or judicial officer.

Lovett said that the board would be funded to the extent that they could hire private investigation and that they would have funds for administering polygraph tests. An officer could be fired for refusing to take a polygraph test.

Lovett has also proposed that the board would recommend the hiring and firing of officers and would be empowered to investigate the background of prospective officers and investigate mistreatment in the jail.

The board would also establish uniform operating procedures for all law officers.

Another point the council agreed upon in any settlement of the lawsuit was the issuance of a statement of principle saying that it is the duty of government to see that justice is done.

Lovett said that a money settlement had not been reached, and further stated that he and his clients were interested only in attaining enough to cover actual costs and damages incurred in the beating. He stated that they were more interested in the policy changes than a large amount of money.

The council requested the session with Lovett, which lasted for ninety minutes.

Additional time in which to answer the lawsuit has been requested by city attorney Clayton Hall. The suit was filed December 23 in U.S. District Court in Tyler. Originally the defendants had 20 days to answer the suit.

IRS Publications Answer Farmers' Questions

Today's modern farmer has many unique tax situations, and a free publication from the Internal Revenue Service can help answer the questions that arise from these situations.

IRS Publication 225, "Farmer's Tax Guide," covers a wide range of subjects, such as soil sales, crop destruction, chicken purchases, casualty losses and share farming. Examples of how to prepare the Form 1040 and related schedules, and listings of important tax dates which affect farmer's throughout the year are also included.

APHIDS IN WHEAT

Infestation levels of the Oat Bird Cherry Aphid in area wheat fields is running pretty severe. The mild weather has been ideal for insect buildup and the present weather pattern of cold nights and warm days will not kill the "sap suckers."

It will take an extended severe wet cold spell to reduce infestation levels. Producers do need to check fields for infestation levels and apply insecticide when needed.

Stop by our office or telephone for the insect control guide for small grains.

Denison Named Division Chariman

John Denison, drafting instructor at Paris Junior College since 1971, has been named chairman of the Division of Industrial Technology at PJC to replace Dr. Harley Davis, who recently was promoted to dean of applied sciences instruction. In his new position, Denison will be in charge of the departments of air conditioning, construction technology, drafting technology, electronics, machine shop and welding at PJC, Dr. Davis said in making the announcement.

A resident of Deport, Denison attended Deport High School and Paris Junior College before receiving his B.S. and M.S. degrees in the industrial education from East Texas State University. He completed additional graduate work at Texas

A&M University.

Before joining the PJC faculty, Denison worked for Campbell Soup Co. and with the Jasper Independent School District. Earlier this year, he was chosen by the American Council on Education to serve as a consultant on standardized tests. He went to Washington, D.C. to serve in this position.

Consideration Being Given To Alcohol Fuel Plant

There will be a meeting at the Paris Rodeo and Horse Club building on Monday, January 19 at 7:00 p.m. Farmers, bankers or anyone interested are urged to attend since the purpose of the meeting is to look into the possibility of an Alcohol Fuel Manufacturing Plant for the area.

There are many questions that must be answered as to the economic feasibility of such a facility, and the more people who come out, the more questions and answers can be formulated.

The plant size, cost, output and money-making potential must all be seriously considered before definite steps can be considered.

Also, the amount of grant, or federal loan which could be obtained, there being such programs available, and how much would be bank financed must be delved into.

The benefits of such an operation are evident, providing jobs, a place for farmers to take their grain, much closer, and additional income to the community.

Whether the plant is feasible or not will depend upon many factors, all which must be considered.

Therefore, farmers are strongly urged to come out, express their views on the subject, and hear what is said.

Country Stores Fading Away

By John Worth Hood
The old shadowland store building still stands on the road between Fulbright and Deport. There aren't many of the old country stores around any longer. There used to be a store at every little community. Folks would go for the things they forgot on their weekly trips to the larger towns like Bogata, Deport or Cunningham. When I was a small boy there were stores at Halesboro, Lone Oak, Shadowland and Minter, which had several. Back then of course, there were car agencies, banks, schools and service stations in each little town. Pattonville also had a bank, and a good dry goods store, and three grocery stores, plus a blacksmith shop. Most all the stores had a gas pump in front. The gas had to be pumped into the top of the pump and then let gravity force it into your tank. The old stores were a meeting place for the men of the community, and you could swap most anything that you wanted to. The trade system worked well here. If someone had a few chickens extra they took them and swapped them for something they needed, such as groceries or clothing. One country store still in existence and going strong is Jim's Country Store at Pine Branch on the old Bogata road. Cunningham still has Musgrove's, and there are several still around. But for the most part, the leisurely pace of the country store has been replaced by supermarkets. I, for one, kind of hate to see them go completely.

East Texas Eating

By Margie Rice
Avocados seem to be a bit small this year but the quality is good and prices are more reasonable than they have been for sometime. If your family loves Guacamole, that marvelous avocado sauce that is served over finely shredded lettuce in Mexican restaurants, now is a good time to make your own. Here is a Guacamole recipe that I've used for several years. We like it better every time I serve it with chili, or Frito Pie, or Enchiladas, or whatever Mexicanish fits our fancy. This Guacamole is equally as good when served as a dip for big corn chips or fried tortillas.

Guacamole
2 large ripe avocados
1 small green chili pepper (fresh or canned, drained and chopped)
1 Tablespoon lemon juice
2 Tablespoons finely chopped onion
pinch of sugar
1 ripe tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped
3/4 tsp. salt
black pepper, freshly ground
Halve the avocados, remove the seeds and peel off the skin. Mash. Add all of the other ingredients except the tomato and mash well. Stir in the chopped tomato. Season to taste. If you do not have any green chili peppers, a bit of jalapeno pepper may be finely chopped and substituted. Or, use a dash of tabasco pepper sauce.

Serve over lettuce that has been finely shredded on the crosswise. If the Guacamole is not to be used immediately, cover tightly and refrigerate.

Here is a Frito Pie recipe that combines beautifully with the Guacamole.

Frito Pie
1 large can Chili
3/4 of a $1.09 pack of King Size Fritos
1/2 cup water
1 large onion
1 cup grated American cheese
Heat the Chili with the 1/2 cup of water. Butter a casserole dish. Spread the chili in the bottom of the dish.

Next, spread a layer of the Fritos. Then, a layer of the chopped onion. Top with grated cheese.

Heat in a 325 degree oven for 20 minutes or until cheese bubbles. Or, microwave on medium power for five minutes, or until cheese bubbles. Serve hot.

OPENING A COCONUT
Fresh coconut adds a distinctive flavor to salads and desserts, but having to open them up first discourages many people from giving them a try.

To open a coconut, pierce the "eyes" with an ice pick or large nail and drain the liquid.

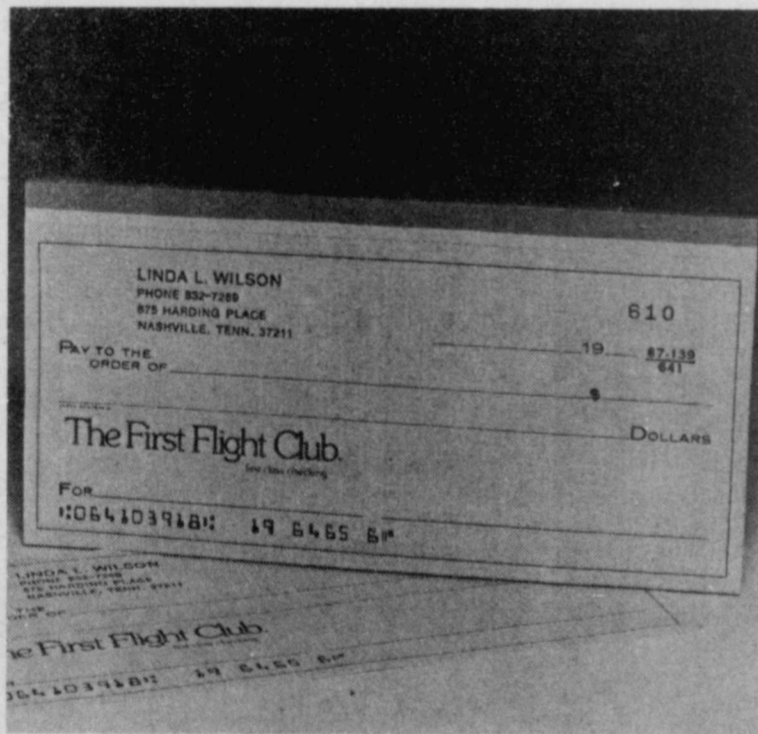

To remove the shell easily, bake the drained coconut at 350 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes, or put it in the freezer for an hour.

Then place the coconut on a firm surface and tap the shell lightly with a hammer in several places until it cracks.

Separate the meat from the shell and use a vegetable parer to remove the brown skin.
