Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving. We talk about it, we write about it, we gather together about it. And, I'd like to take this time to declare my list of things I have to be thankful for.

You see, I had begun to think it hadn't been a very good year. We've had surgeries, bills, losses, and more hassles with putting out five newspapers than usual. The nation faces some really heavy stuff. The economy isn't exactly bright and healthy.

But, I sat down to give myself a pep talk, and came out feeling pretty good.

Here's a partial list:

I have a beautiful little great-niece, to add to the healthy, happy other great-nieces and nephews.

I'm thankful for my family, and my husband's family, they are such a joy.

I'm thankful for my husband, who has to be one of the finest men in the world.

I'm thankful for my friends, we have quite a few of the type that you really can call at 4:00 a.m.

And, if I lost them all, I would still have to be thankful that I had ever had them in my life.

I'm thankful for each and every loyal subscriber and advertiser that makes it possible for us to continue providing a community newspaper.

I'm thankful (remind me of this on Tuesday nights about 8 P.M. please) for the opportunity to serve our communities by publishing the newspapers.

I'm thankful for my titanium knees, that leave me free of pain.

There are a few new things I've learned to be thankful for this past year, too.

I've learned to be thankful for the wonderful emergency service we have, and the emergency room staff. Doing clinicals on both the ambulance and at ER has made me aware of what a difference quality care can make.

And, because of those experiences, I've learned to cherish those I care about so much more.

I'm thankful more than ever for every single volunteer firefighter and first responder.

I'm thankful for strangers who do kind things when you are "in a bind". Twice I've witnessed the kindness of strangers recently, and it's beautiful.

To turn to the much-done...I'm thankful for this nation. For all its faults and foibles, all its problems and prejudices, I'd still rather live here than anywhere else, and I still believe with all my heart we have a future.

To turn to the less mentioned, I'm thankful I live now...and not back when the Pilgrims sparked this holiday. They had a pretty pitiful collection of things to be thankful for compared to our blessings now.

My list is long and I'm glad. Go through your own, folks, and you'll be amazed!

Lady Rebels host Chapel Hill

by Nancy Brown

The Rivercrest Lady Rebel JV and Varsity hosted the Chapel Hill Lady Red Devils last Tuesday night. In the JV game the Lady Rebs were up 11-8 after one quarter. But, in the second quarter their lead was shortened to only 3 points at the half. Score 18-15. The second quarter had both teams scoring 7 points with an even match, 2 field goals and 3 free shots.

In the third the Lady Rebels came back slow. The ladies from Chapel Hill held them scoreless in the quarter while netting 13 points for themselves. In the final quarter the Lady Rebs took the wake up call and swished in 20 points while holding the Lady Red Devils to 3 points for the quarter. Final 38-31.

Leading scores for the Lady Rebels was Mandy Crawford with 11. Also scoring were Casey Hammonds-9; Cassandra Norman-8; Monique Savage-3 and Cassie McCuller-7.

The Lady Rebel Varsity did not start off well trailing the Lady Red Devils 10-24 at the end of the first quarter. However, this became a game as the Lady Rebels worked to catch up. At the half they trailed 29-32.

In the third the Lady Rebels worked hard and overtook the Lady Red Devils 44-42. Fifteen points were earned by the Lady Rebels in the quarter with Rachel Case leading the scoring. Case had an outstanding game for the team as did Tina Carder, Erica Williams and Ashley Beers. In the final quarter of a very rough, fast paced game the Lady Red Devils matched the Lady Rebels and if a game was ever won on free shots, this one was. The Lady Rebels were forced to foul to try and regain ball control. Gina Baker seemed to be the Lady Red Devil with the ball each time the Lady Rebels fouled and she put in 7 of 10 shots putting the Lady Red Devils up 60-57.

Leading scores for the Lady Rebels was Erica Williams with 17 followed by Rachel Case with 16. Also scoring were Ashley Beers-13, Tina Carder-7, Jessica Rose-2 and Molly Hare-2.

Rivercrest boys complete busy week

by Coach Steve Weddle

The Rivercrest Rebel basketball teams recently completed a very busy week of hoops. Tuesday the J.V. played Hughes Springs and came away with a 26-19 victory. Troy Morris and Jake Needham played good defense while Brad Rollen and Dustin Perry were dominating the inside defensive play. Adam Horn had two big buckets in the lane to help maintain the lead. Payden Franks pushed the ball up the floor finding open men for some fast break points.

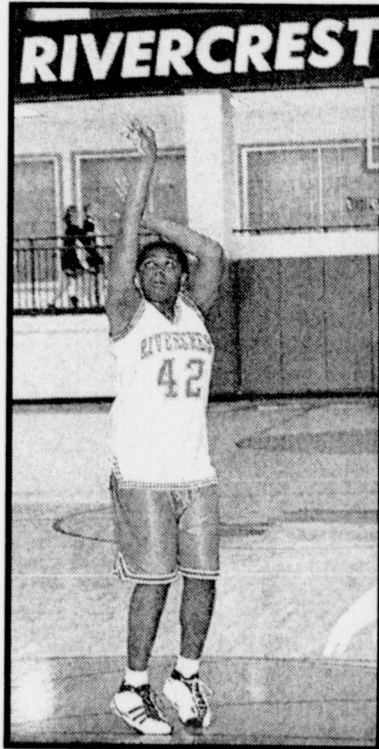

The Rebel Varsity took the floor against a much bigger opponent. The Rebels were hot early and mounted a 16-4 lead in the first quarter. The Rebels were able to maintain a double digit lead throughout the game. Aaron Palmer was hot and hit 4 out of 6 three point attempts, while Josh Cabell had 6 rebounds, Jon Shade and Jordan Edge helped keep Hughes Springs huge 64 post off the boards with constant blocking out and rebounding. Ryan Newton scored 12 points and caused numerous turnovers from his point position on defense. McKenzie Ellis, Calan Wilcox and Josh Weatherall played the wings on a defense that only gave up 40 points for the game. The final score was Rivercrest pounding Hughes Springs 57-40.

The Rebel JV participated in the North Lamar Tournament and finished in 4th place losing to the tournament champions, North Lamar by only 5 points on Friday. "Our JV was the talk of the tournament because of the way we played the larger North Lamar team so tough. We lead for most of the game. Final score North Lamar 40-35 Rebels. The Rebels suffered their first loss of the season. The Rebels advanced to play North Lamar by defeating Chisum 9th grade with a score of 50-28. All the team members got playing time as they built a huge lead in the first half. McKenzie Ellis, Troy Morris and Jake Needham were scoring on a regular basis, while Clinton Vandever and Adam Horn out rebounded the Mustangs. Brad Rollen and Chris Cannon were very active inside as well. Dustin Perry showed his "in your face" defense and Jonathan Ridens showed his normal "hard-nosed hustle".

The Rivercrest Varsity improved their record 2-1 with a win over Savoy at Savoy's Homecoming on Friday night. The Rebels were sluggish in the first half but came out hot in the third quarter scoring 21 points as Zach Perry hit two treys and the Rebel defense held Savoy to only 10 points. Calan Wilcox led the scoring with 16 points, Ryan Newton and Zach Perry had 14 each, Josh Cabell added 8, Freshman, Aaron Palmer had 5 and Jordan Edge added 2. "I am proud of the fact that we went on the road and beat Savoy at their Homecoming. It was our first road game of the season and the first time some of these young guys played a varsity game in another gym. I was proud that the guys responded at half time to our adjustments and hustled so hard in the third quarter. For the week, the high school boys won 4 out of 6 games."

No place to hide: drug abuse in rural America

The Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University has recently released the results of study on drug abuse in rural American communities. This study, funded by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, is shocking and rattling the rafters of rural American. For example, the study finds that 8th graders living in rural American communities are 34% more likely than their urban counterparts to smoke marijuana; 83% more likely to use crack cocaine; and 104% more likely to have used amphetamines within the last month.

The study also reports that drugs are as readily available in rural areas as in large urban cities. Besides striking fear in rural Americas and painting a pretty bleak picture of the fate of our youth, what does this information portend for our future? To answer that, let's backtrack into history 45 years.

In the mid 1950's, illegal drug problem was not yet on society's radar screen. In the 1950's all anyone knew about illicit drugs like marijuana was that Jazz Drummer/bandleader Gene Krupa and actor Robert Mitchum smoked it, got caught and the media damned them for it. Cocaine? That was a word in a line from the popular Cole Porter hit "I Get a Kick Out of You." As for heroin, that was a drug of horror used only by the most degenerate and despairing individuals. Frank Sinatra's character in the movie "Man With a Golden Arm" teaches us that. Most Americans tended to view drug addiction as an affliction of the urban poor or an evil obsession of a handful of musicians and actors, too far left of center to worry about. In short, Americans were completely naive to what drug addiction was. And we were most certainly clueless about the role illicit drugs would play in the course of our precious country's future.

Moving forward 10 years, to 1965, the country was in the post mourning years of JFK's assassination. The first onslaught of the English rock 'n' roll music invasion with the Beatles and Rolling Stones hit our shores and took American youth by storm while President Lyndon Baynes Johnson was grappling with the escalating Viet Nam War. LSD was finding its way from the experimentation laboratories of the Hoffman LeRouche Drug Company to the streets of San Francisco.

It was also at this time the first indications of increased heroin abuse in urban ghettos caught the attention of President Johnson's White House staff. The increased use of heroin, considered small by today's numbers, was enough concern for Johnson to convince congress to enact the Drug Rehabilitation Act and ask for an annual appropriation of $ 15 million. At the time no one in government at the Federal, State or Local level had any idea that in just over 20 years time heroin abuse in the U.S. would escalate to the point where it would cost tax payers over $50 million annually to treat the problem. Society's radar screen was beeping. Unfortunately not enough of us noticed.

In the mid 60's adult Americans still tended to view drug addiction as a problem inherent to the underprivileged. By the end of the decade, however, America's views on drugs began changing. Drugs, in particular, marijuana, hashish, LSD, cocaine and other hallucinogens became socially acceptable on a large scale during the Flower Power era. And while this was alarming to many parents of this period, most of us thought of mid-sized cities and rural America as drug-free oases that would insulate our kids from these pro-drug influences. The truth was that drugs did not respect geographic boundaries; they broke out of the big city limits and began to swarm into the heartland of mid-sized cities, rural towns and farm communities. Hindsight is 20/20, and in looking back it is easy to see our nation's failure to fully recognize and act effectively to stop the drug problem then. However, if we look closer we will see that this failure was driven in no small measure by the assumption of the masses that it was someone else's problem, not our problem. And it was this assumption that allowed drugs the time they needed to seep into every neighborhood in every city and class across America without prejudice.

As we begin the 21st Century in America the message is loud and clear: There is no place to hide from the problem of substance abuse and addiction.
