New Staff At Wheeler & Fort Elliott

Fort Elliott C.I.S.D. and Wheeler I.S.D. started classes Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Fort Elliott has four new members on their staff and Wheeler has added ten.

Fort Elliott's new teachers are Eric Bates, Lacey Sullivan, Alexis Zybach and Tori Coulter.

Eric Bates will be teaching math, grades 7 thru 12. He graduated from Amarillo High School. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in physics from Austin Peay State University in Tennessee. Eric also attended Texas Tech where he taught physics and astronomy labs.

Before becoming a teacher he operated a bookstore in Lubbock and owned a landscaping company in Arizona. Eric was an emergency teacher for a school that did not have a math teacher. That experience changed his plans for the future. He decided to become a certified math and physics teacher. This will be his tenth year as a teacher.

Teaching Pre-K this year will be Lacey Sullivan. "I'm excited to teach Pre-K in Fort Elliott. My husband Matt Sullivan and I currently live in Higgins, where I grew up and graduated High School in 2002. I am blessed to be a bonus mom to Keegan and Kennedee Sullivan who both attend Wheeler ISD. I also have a fur baby named Harley," she wrote.

Mrs. Sullivan graduated college from Northwestern Oklahoma State University with a Bachelors degree in Early Childhood Education. This will be her fifteenth year in education, having taught

City-Wide Garage Sale Set Sept. 12

The Wheeler Chamber of Commerce has re-scheduled the annual City-Wide Garage Sale for Saturday, September 12, 2020. The event is normally in the Spring.

Here is your chance to get rid of those no longer used or needed items that clutter up your storage shed, garage, attic, yard and home.

Join your fellow local citizens, gather up all your no longer needed items, place them in your yard, garage or bring them downtown for the sale. Spaces will be available around the square in a "first come, first serve" basis. Extra money always come in handy.

The cost is $10 per family/location advertised on the City-Wide Garage Sale Map, which is handed out the morning of the sale.

The picture on the front page came to my attention after the front page and the rest of the paper was too far along to re-do. It needed to be front page; therefore the banner picture. The full black and

For an untold amount of time, or at least for millennia, humans have been communicating via writing. The requisite tool for such is something that enables marks to be made, whether a stick with which to scribble in the dirt, or a rock that serves as a crude form of chisel to etch something in stone. Though it would seem we are moving away from paper and pen, and that they are destined to become artifacts that will be viewable in museums at a future date, driven to extinction by the advent of portable computers, tablets, and smartphones (not to mention who knows what else, yet to be developed), for the time being, paper and pen remains an effective and contemporary means of communication. Related, but far less utilized, a pencil is an alternative to the pen, and I have found myself gravitating more and more to this low-tech method over the past year or so, and now wish to expound on the virtue of the pencil.

I used to write with simple click-style ball point pen. I loved its simplicity, low cost, and ubiquity – they were Happy August everyone! I don't know about you but I feel like a baked potato and I'm just about done! I do know that we have an awesome place you might check out. Wheeler Public Library has some great things going on: #1 Great books #2 Great personnel #3 Wonderful children's atmosphere #4 Fax, copies and computer #5 Places to study. We also have a puzzle that we are encouraging folks to come in anytime and help put together. One 40" by 60" section is finished and now we are starting on the second of the 4 sections. It is really amazing and if you would like to see it come in and we will be proud to show you!

This is a reminder that we need you to return the books you have checked out from our library. There are folks looking to read the ones you have tucked away someplace in your home, vehicle or business. Please pull an all out search and bring those back where others can have a chance to read them.

Also, I want to say a BIG Thank You to Ruth Irvine for all the help she gives us on logging in books on the computer. We have finished all the Fictional Books and are working on the Christian Books and it takes lots of time and patience which she has an abundance of. I will say every once in awhile her wheels get logged down when she runs across a book that seems to draw her interest, but we all do! Thank you Ruth don't know what we would do without your help and big smile!

 easy to find at places like career fairs and hotels, though remarkably difficult to find in retail stores. They were also practical, and multi-functional – in a pinch the pen could be disassembled and the tube could double as a drinking straw. And for the duration during which I used them, they served me quite well, provided I didn't lose them, which I did disappointingly often. Several years back, I switched to a higher-tech version of ballpoint pen. It was the kind that has gel inserted in the top of the ink tube, to help dispense the ink. I found that the physical act of writing required less effort with this nicer pen, due to the reduced level of friction between the ball and the paper, as compared to the more crude ballpoint pen. Writing became a pleasurable act, and my handwriting dramatically improved when I used this pen. I recognize that I am speaking in past tense as though I no longer use such a pen, though I do. I just find myself using it less and less. I haven't upgraded to a nicer, costlier model, or found a pen more effective. Rather, within the past six or so months, I have taken a backward step in terms of technology, and have been using a pencil more than I ever have since the time I began using ink pens as a child. The pen remains preferable for certain applications, but I have found that I prefer the pencil for many things.

One of the things I love about the pencil is its simplicity. It will not fail (ink pens can quit writing sometimes, and although often they can be revived, sometimes they cannot), or at least if the pencil does fail it is repairable. A pencil can be broken in half and within a few seconds be usable again. Not so for the ink pen. About the only thing a pencil requires is a sharpener of some sort, which is an admirable invention in and of itself – one can fit a sharpener in a pocket, or, in the absence of a sharpener, a knife would work in its place; or, in the absence of a knife (I shall refrain from digressing on the immense folly of being found without a pencil sharpener or a knife), one can lay the pencil down at an angle and rub it on paper, wood, stone, etc., honing the tip while rotating the pencil until a desirable point is achieved. I should point out that I used to enjoy mechanical pencils, but like all things mechanical and with moving parts, it is subject to breaking and/or failure, and I have never come across a mechanical pencil mechanic to remedy the problems I've encountered with mechanical pencils.

Since I am extolling the virtues of the pencil, I would be remiss if I didn't mention the pencil's eraser. It is a sort of add-on; a non-essential supplement to the pencil, and yet the pencil would look incomplete without one. It is helpful for the inevitable mistakes that will be made, though sometimes I simply scratch out my errors as I would with an ink pen, despite having the ability with the eraser to almost fully-remove it. I suppose laziness gets the best of me more than I would care to admit. It is worth pointing out that some pencils (a carpenter's pencil comes to mind) are bereft of erasers. Carpenters perhaps are more precise than the rest of us, but for we who fail to "measure twice, cut once", the eraser is a nice way to cap a pencil.

Yes, the old #2 pencil is the instrument I feel drawn to of late. The look, the scent of the wood, the sound of the graphite scratching the paper, and the feel of writing with graphite as opposed to ink – all of these factor in to the pencil's appeal. I prefer the round version rather than the traditional hexagonal ones, but I am satisfied by either. And although I did not intend to make an argument for the pencil, I feel as though I did plead on the pencil's behalf. However, to avoid giving this piece the heavy feel of an argument, I shall end with a joke, one that is easy to envision as being based on reality. For as Mark Twain said, "Humor is the good-natured side of the truth."

During the Space Race between the United States and the Soviet Union, the U.S. government charged NASA with the task of developing a pen that could remain functional and write in the zero-gravity conditions found in outer space, and NASA spent $5 million dollars developing such a pen, which was brought to space with great fanfare. The Soviets brought a pencil.

"And what do you think is the best thing about being 104?" the reporter asked...

She simply replied, "No peer pressure."

Break in history, school starts in Wheeler this week. For me it will be very different. I will be online. If everyone wore masks and distanced, I would be in class with everyone, but we think it is not safe. Most people here think masks are crazy. I really hope they are right and no one gets sick. I'm glad they will let me do school online until this is over. I do not want to be close to anyone if they won't wear a mask. I want to take care of my dad. Some people just don't get it.

I am excited that my cousin, Seth, is going to Kelton! Have a great year, Seth!

It is very dry. The creek is dry. I have to check water for my cows everyday. I will be glad when it rains and it is cooler.

Good luck at school, everyone! Have fun and be safe! That's it!

Our 2020 Mustangs are in "two-a-days" getting ready for the 2020 football season; their first and only scrimmage this year is Friday, August 21 at Munday.

The 3rd Annual Golf Tournament for the Mona Jennings Freeman Memorial Scholarship was this past weekend August 8th, 2020. The weather was quite nice, a little windy for a golfer's preference but you could not tell it by the team scores.

Once again, the tournament was a huge success. This tournament was our best turn out yet, only lacking 5 times from being completely full. There were 19 teams in the morning flight, and 16 teams in the afternoon flight. Thank you to our many family and friends who helped with registration, organization, and being there for our every need. We could not do it without all the love and support, and we are forever grateful.

Alongside the tournament entry fees was a Silent Auction, Mo Memorial T-shirt sales, Hole-Sponsorships, and the 50/50 Raffle. The Mo Memorial will be offering scholarships to the following schools in the spring: White Deer, Pampa, Borger, Canadian, Highland Park, Shamrock and Wheeler. These are the schools where Mona taught, played golf or attended. We look forward to giving back to the future students in these communities.

The first year we gave (10) $1,400 scholarships to the seniors of 2018-2019. Last year we were able to give (14) $1,200 scholarships to the seniors of 2019-2020. We cannot wait to see how many we get to give to the 2020-2021 seniors.

None of this would have been possible without the golfers, helpers, hole sponsors and donors. Thank you to all the teams who entered, and we look forward to seeing ya'll next year!
