Reese shines at Top Flight '94

T-1A team dominates, T-37 Ops finishes first

Reese T-37, T-38 and T-1A aircrews excelled at Top Flight '94, Air Education and Training Command's annual flying and maintenance competition, capturing three first-place and one second-place awards.

Reese's T-1A Jayhawk teams dominated their phase of the event, winning honors for the best operations team as well as best maintenance team.

Reese's T-37 flyers also shined, earning first place in the T-37 operations competition. The T-1A flyers just missed another first place in the arrival competition at Tyndall AFB, Fla., Aug. 25. Just .01 seconds separated Reese's Jayhawk team from the first-place finisher, an F-15E from Luke AFB, Ariz. Each aircrew was assigned a Thursday arrival time at Tyndall; the objective for teams was to prepare and execute a flight plan that would put the aircraft on target at the exact specified time.

Top Flight '94 was held throughout the past several weeks at various AETC bases and culminated with the arrival competition and award ceremony at Tyndall, Aug. 25. The first phase of Top Flight, a short-notice evaluation of both maintenance and flight teams was held at various bases in July.

Pilot training teams flew predetermined flight profiles with flight examiners accom-

General Fogleman to become chief of staff

The president has nominated Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman to be the next Air Force chief of staff replacing Gen. Merrill A. McPeak who retires in October.

General Fogleman, 52, is currently commander in chief of the U.S. Transportation Command, and commander of Air Mobility Command at Scott AFB, Ill.

In a prepared statement accepting the nomination, Fogleman thanked the president, secretary of defense and chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for their support and confidence.

"These are challenging times for the Air Force as we institute sweeping changes to the way we organize, train and equip the force to help meet the nation's defense needs," General Fogleman said. "I look forward to contributing, with the leaders of the other services, the very best we can offer America."

The general has been in his current position since August 1992. He is a 1963 Air Force (Continued on page 4)

Helmets: Whether on motorcycle or bicycle they help save thousands of lives

by Chuck Gerrior

Reese Ground Safety Manager

As we continue making progress in our thinking about safety, we become smarter about preventing injuries.

For example, most of us approaching 40 years old or older did not wear seat belts when we were kids. They were not available and their value was not known. Now most of us use seat belts routinely and insist our children use them from the beginning.

The result of this change in thinking is dramatic —the number of "seat belt saves" increases every year and deaths due to car accidents continue to decrease.

Now it is time to make another change to your safety awareness which can save your life and the life of your child.

Simply put: always wear a helmet when you ride a bicycle. The value of a helmet when riding a motorcycle is well known and, as a result, is mandatory in most states. With this knowledge, we should not allow ourselves or our children to ride bicycles without helmets.

More than 1,200 deaths were attributed to biking accidents, last year; and additional 500,000 biking injuries were treated in emergency rooms. Seventy-five percent of these deaths involved head injuries.

In addition, many accidents which did not cause death did cause permanent brain damage. Two-thirds of these accidents happened to children.

Wearing a helmet would prevent 95 percent of the deaths and tremendously reduce other injuries.

Knowing that we can prevent a great deal of the injuries, what is your excuse for not wearing a helmet? Cost should not be a factor; a certified protective helmet can be purchased for about $30.

Think how much you would pay to bring back to life someone who had died as a result of not wearing a bicycle helmet. "Inconvenient to use," "bothersome" — the same excuses for not wearing seat belts are often heard for not wearing bicycle helmets, and the same answers apply. Use the helmet from the start and use it regularly. It will become a habit.

Survivor Benefit Plan protects your family

by Col. Robert Meyers

AETC Director of Personnel

As members of the profession of arms, military members earn significant retirement benefits and entitlements through their careers. These benefits aren't limited to retired pay, medical care, commissary and exchange privileges, but include many other valuable benefits and entitlements.

Oftentimes, we don't hear about these additional entitlements until we are nearing retirement or separation. One of the most important entitlements is the Survivor Benefit Plan.

All retirement-eligible personnel may participate and it is financially advantageous to the retiree.

One of the saddest family situations we see all too often is an Air Force spouse left in financial hardship when his or her military retiree spouse dies.

Retired pay stops upon the death of the military member. The only way to ensure the family continues to receive a portion of that retired pay is to participate in the SBP program. According to the Department of Defense Statistical Report, 58 percent of all service military retirees, 62 percent of all Air Force retirees and 77 percent of all AETC retirees enrolled in SBP in fiscal year 1993.

Our retirees' participation in SBP clearly reflects their understanding of the importance of providing protection for their families.

Because SBP is heavily subsidized by the government, it is difficult, if not impossible, for life insurance companies to offer as great a value as SBP for a similar annuity program.

Some retirees pass up SBP because at first, it seems too complex, and they are unaware of how favorably SBP stacks up to other options.

SBP has some very attractive features to consider:

- Nearly 40 percent of the cost of the program is government subsidized
- Unlike a life insurance policy, it does not require you to provide insurability with a health exam
- There are no age limitations
- SBP premiums are nontaxable
- Surviving spouse's SBP monthly annuity is for life; children's until age 18 or 23 if full-time student
- Survivor's SBP annuity includes regular cost-of-living adjustments

The decision on whether to participate in SBP is the single most important decision we will have to make at retirement. Don't pass it up. (AETC News Service)

CHAMPUS covers pap tests, mammograms

Frequency of covered exams increases with risk factor

By Elva Whitehad
Health Benefits Advisor

Among the preventive-care services CHAMPUS covers are pap tests and mammograms.

Pap tests may be done as a way of screening women periodically for signs of disease. They may also be performed as a diagnostic device when a patient shows signs of disease or malignancy or a pre-malignant condition.

CHAMPUS covers one screening pap test per year for three consecutive years for women 18 years old and older, or for women under 18 who are or have been sexually active.

If the findings for the three consecutive yearly pap tests are normal, then CHAMPUS will cost-share one screening pap test every two years thereafter. If a woman is at high risk of developing cervical cancer CHAMPUS will help pay for more frequent screening pap tests when such tests are documented as medically necessary.

Diagnostic pap tests are covered when the patient has had: previous cancer of the cervix, uterus or vagina; a previous abnormal pap test; irritation or inflammation of the cervix; abnormal vaginal bleeding or discharge; intrauterine exposure to diethylstilbestol; as part of a prenatal lab workup for a new maternity patient; and as part of the care for a woman who is undergoing estrogen replacement therapy.

X-ray mammography is a procedure performed for the evaluation and detection of breast disease.

CHAMPUS covers mammography as a routine screening procedure for women who have no sign or symptoms of breast disease, as follows: once every five years for women 35 to 39 years old; every 24 months for women 40 to 49 years old (but one procedure per calendar year will be covered if a woman in this age group is considered to be at high risk for developing breast cancer); and once per calendar year for women 50 years old and older.

CHAMPUS shares the cost of mammography done for diagnostic reasons for: breast mass found on physical examination; spontaneous nipple discharge; redness of the skin of the breast; nipple erosion; tumor or nodule under the armpit; previous history of a diagnosed breast cancer; previous abnormal mammography; or, fibrocystic disease.

These services as well as many other obstetrics/gynecology services are available at Rees's medical facility.

Old forecasting system replaced by improved Nexrad/Doppler radar

by SrA. Jason Plowman
Reese Radar Manager

The base weather station lost an old friend this week, but the new kid in town works even better.

The old friend is the standard radar system which has been in use at Reese for 30 years.

The radar tower, located next to the 64th Logistics Squadron, was disassembled this week, officially ending three decades of weather service here.

It has been replaced by a Nexrad/Doppler radar system that is much more effective.

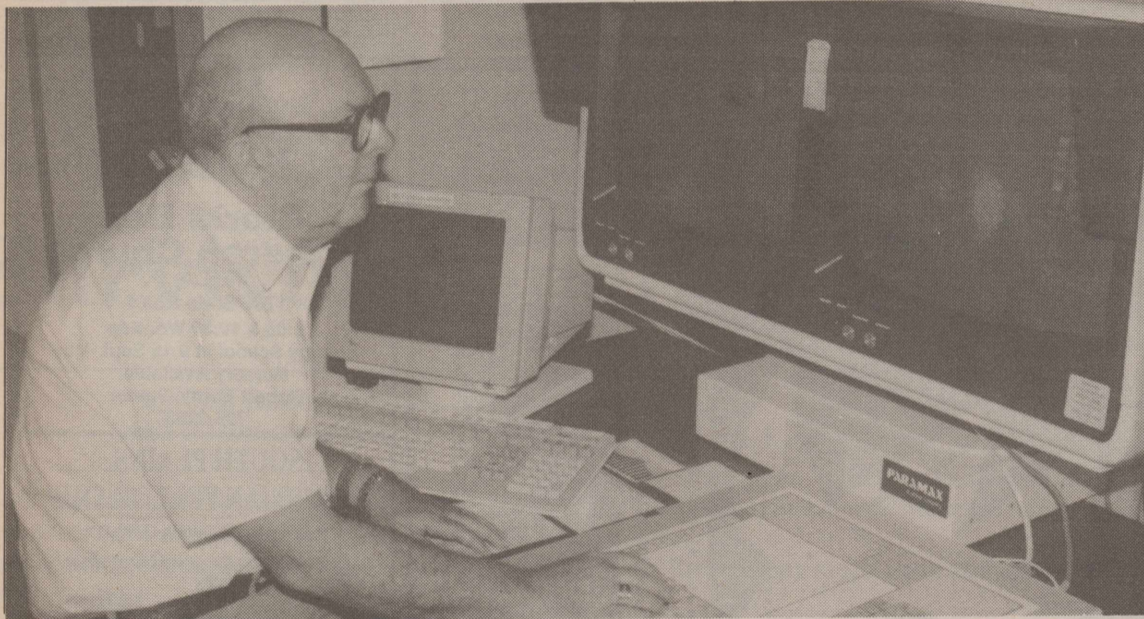

The Nexrad/Doppler system combines radar responses with advanced computer processing to provide atmospheric data with extreme accuracy and resolution.

The old system could only detect precipitation. The new system can estimate the levels of precipitation, determine wind speeds, detect hail and spot rotations inside a storm which could give the base as much as a one-hour advance warning of a developing tornado.

The use of the Nexrad/Doppler radar system also enables the Department of Defense and National Weather Service to operate off the same system.

The radar dome is located at Lubbock International Airport and is shared by Reese and Lubbock weather officials.

General Fogleman to head AF

Academy graduate and a 1971 graduate of Duke University where he received a master's degree in military history and political science.

General Fogleman has held numerous flying jobs, including instructor pilot, combat fighter pilot in Southeast Asia, and F-15 aircraft demonstration pilot for international air-shows.

Over the past 10 years, General Fogleman has commanded a wing, air division and a numbered air force. He also taught history at the Air Force Academy and served on the Air Staff as director of Air Force programs. In May, General Fogleman was honored by AMC's enlisted members who presented him the Order of the Sword. The airmen credited the general with having pushed through a number of initiatives, including dorm renovations that will lead to airmen having single rooms, upgrading airman leadership schools, and creating authorized positions for enlisted aviators within the new flight system.

General Fogleman is from Lewistown, Pa. (AFNS)

General Fogleman's replacement nominated

Gen. Robert Rutherford has been nominated by the president to replace Gen. Ronald Fogleman as head of United States Transportation Command and Air Mobility Command.

General Rutherford, who has been in the Air Force 33 years, is currently commander, Pacific Air Forces; air component commander for United States Pacific Command, Hickam AFB, Hawaii.

General Rutherford is no stranger to airlift operations. He was Military Airlift Command's vice commander in chief from May 1991 to May 1992 and has flown various transport aircraft. (AFNS)

Roadside Rescues

Car Crisis During A Health Emergency

(NAPS)—If you've ever had to take a loved one to the hospital in the middle of the night and locked the keys in the car, then you won't be surprised at the popularity of a program that helps drivers in similar situations.

Since it began more than four years ago, a roadside assistance plan has helped a number of drivers who experienced a car crisis in an emergency.

A medical emergency is no time for a car crisis. An "800" number helps those who experience car trouble and the service has generated many grateful letters.

The plan, aptly called Roadside Assistance, was developed by Oldsmobile. With it, Oldsmobile owners can call a toll-free number for free and quick help if they lock their keys in the car or encounter other roadside breakdowns.

ed. In a remarkably short time, a locksmith arrived and got the door opened.

One rescued driver wrote of an incident where she had to take her mother to the hospital emergency room. While helping her mother out of the car, the nurse closed the door. The car was running with the driver's purse inside, and the doors locked.

"Your office was most understanding. Thank you very much for providing this service," the driver added.

The woman called the Roadside Assistance "800" emergency number and received the help she need-

Many letters to Oldsmobile describe other roadside emergencies handled in an efficient and friendly way by the voice at the other end of the "800" number. It's a number that many feel puts drivers on the road to safety, convenience and good service.

Parents Who Care

New organization focuses on family issues

by Kathy Klochkoff
Roundup Correspondent

"Parents Who Care" is a new base organization that was created in May by a group of parents whose children attend the Reese Child Development Center or Youth Center. As concerned parents, they perceived a lack of parental involvement and leadership in the children's programs.

The group's stated purpose is to enhance their children's daily lives. The main goal they have set is to increase parental involvement with the children's activities and afford parents greater input in the centers' programming.

"By increasing parental involvement, we will make parents aware and care what their children are doing day-by-day," said SSgt. Robin Michaels, the group's secretary/recorder. "The child development center is not about babysitting."

One of the issues they have confronted was the problem of the child development center being open and available for wing recalls.

Sergeant Michaels was happy to report that the problem was addressed with the staff of the center and a positive solution was developed. The center is now open for recalls.

At the present time, Parents Who Care is planning a network sitter program. This program will publish a directory of sitters who are recommended and approved by parents. The directory will provide the name, age, address, phone number, mode of transportation, time availability and name of the referencing parent of each recommended sitter.

Another project in process is the Squadron Adopt a Room program. According to Sergeant Michaels, participating squadrons could adopt a room in the child development center.

She suggested that children from the adopted room tour the workplace with a member of the squadron, showing them what mom and dad or other adults do when they go to work at Reese.

Additionally, members of the squadron could volunteer to visit their adopted room once a week to read a story or play a game. The possibilities are limited only by imagination and require just a small amount of time and caring. The Squadron Adopt a Room program would also provide childless personnel an opportunity to have positive contact and fun with the children of Reese.

Sergeant Michaels feels the benefits of being a part of Parents Who Care are many. Parents may find it provides a sense of belonging and community spirit. Parents Who Care sets up an automatic support network, she said, while supplying a vehicle to air and solve issues that concern our parents. The children learn that they are special and the adults around them have active interest in their daily lives.

Furthermore, the child development center and youth center providers have their jobs made a little easier and are provided with an instrument for more meaningful dialog with the parents. As Sergeant Michaels said, "It was my child's provider who saw her take her first step and then took the time to sit with me and tell me all about it."

She said the organization's concept has enormous benefits for the whole base. "Parents can do their jobs more effectively and meet mission requirements when they know the quality of their children's care is very good and they are well taken care of."

The most important need of Parents Who Care is parent involvement.

The group meets the second Tuesday of every month at 4 p.m. in the Reese Chapel. Contact Sergeant Michaels at 6506 for additional information.

SITES gives preview of DoD installations

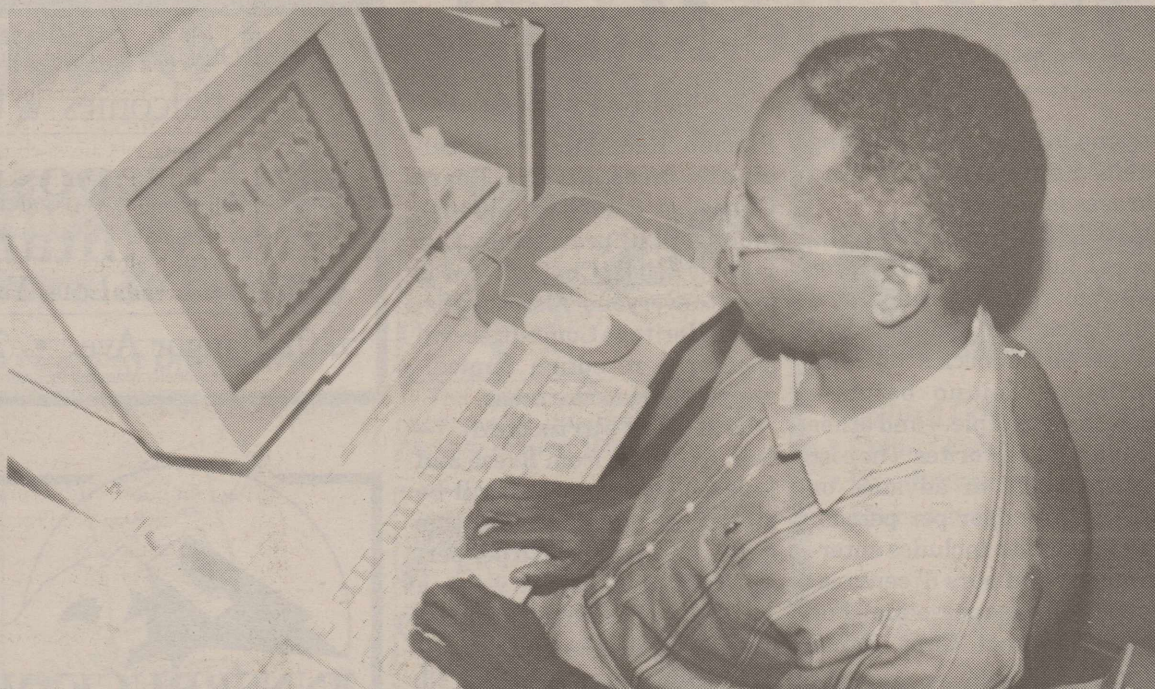

Reese people moving to other bases may now get their immediate relocation questions answered by a single-source data base at the Reese Family Support Center.

The Department of Defense unveiled SITES, the Standard Installation Topic Exchange Service, earlier this year. The service combines the four service relocation systems into one data base serving over 300 installations worldwide. The data base is loaded onto a compact disk; copies go to every family support center and are updated quarterly, said George Ferguson, Reese relocation assistance manager.

The new service's main role is helping families get quick, accurate answers needed in planning their moves.

According to Anne Tarzier, DoD's relocation program manager, "The SITES data base is geared to primary information—things you need to know before you get there."

The data base holds eight

George Ferguson, Reese relocation assistance manager, updates the SITES file at the Reese Family Support Center. People with or considering an assignment can get information on activities and facilities at any DoD installation through the SITES program.

categories of information on all military installations. Service members can check on general housing availability, federal and local employment opportunities, educational needs, health care facilities, information on the civilian community and a variety of other support services.

Trazier noted that newly assigned service members traditionally receive welcome packets from their sponsors. The packets contain maps, photos, booklets and flyers that tell families what is available at their new stations. While these packets are useful once the family arrives, she said, the packet may overload those starting their move planning.

"SITES does not want to give you 10,000 pieces of information that you don't have any use for," she said. "It's more likely to target the 10 pieces of information you need on the day you begin your relocation planning."

That information may determine the service member's assignment.

"If you have a choice of two installations and you have a child with specific needs, you might want to choose an installation that would offer more," Tarzier said.

Through SITES, the relocation assistance staff can access the data base, download the material needed and produce a custom pamphlet that provides requested information.

For more information about SITES or other relocation programs contact Ferguson or Cheryl Ortiz at 6034.

Plain Language Guides On Insurance Offered Free

(NAPS)—The word underwriting may be familiar. So is the term surrender charges. But if you were asked to accurately define them, you might have a hard time.

To make the language of insurance a bit clearer, the Wholesale Insurance Network (WIN) has created and is distributing a series of plain language guides on insurance. WIN is a firm that provides a toll-free telephone and fax service so consumers can compare the costs of insurance policies they want to purchase.

The plain language guides cover Permanent Cash Value Life Insurance, Survivorship Life Insurance, Term Insurance, and Knowing How Much Life Insurance You Need.

The guides are available by calling 800-808-5810. That number will also give insurance shoppers who know the type of policy they want, and the face amount of the coverage, quotes that allow them to compare the cost of low-load policies offered by companies in the WIN network. Consumers who prefer can fax their request to 1-800-424-0909.

medical history, family history, smoking status, driving record, alcohol or drug use, hazardous sports or hobbies, foreign travel and residency. All these factors determine actual premium costs.

You incur "surrender charges" if you cancel or make a loan against most traditional whole life and universal life policies. A surrender charge is actually a penalty an insurance company imposes to discourage early cancellations or early loans. WIN's policies don't use surrender charges, so you aren't penalized.

64th LS sweeps past 64th MSSQ for tennis title

The 64th Logistics Squadron ended the 64th Mission Support Squadron's attempt to repeat as the intramural tennis champions, as the team won both singles matches to capture the base championship August 23.

LS's SSgt. Paul Chaplar defeated Phil Thierry (6-4, 6-0) while teammate A1C Mike Garduno defeated MSS's SSgt. Doug Arnold (7-6, 6-1).

"Mike broke the strings on his racquet and had to borrow Doug's second racquet," said Sergeant Chaplar. "In the second set, Garduno broke the strings on his opponents racquet and had to borrow mine. Mike had to win the match because we didn't have another racquet."

A loss by Airman Garduno would have forced a double match to decide the title.

Intramural golf standings

The 64th Mission Support Squadron finished the intramural golf regular season on top the National League with 47 points and the highest points overall August 23.

SSgt. Lee Peterson was one-under-par in MSS's 6-0 victory over the 64th Communications Squadron to edge the stiff competition in the league. The must-win victory gave the team one of the two playoff spots in the NL.

MSS is scheduled to play the 64th Medical Group-B in Tuesday's semi-final playoff round. MDG-B slid into the American League's second playoff spot with a victory over CS by forfeit. The forfeit gave the team 29 points to edge the 64th Service Squadron by two points.

The 35th Flying Training Squadron finished the season one point behind MSS, as it defeated MDG-A 6-0 to take the second playoff slot in the NL.

The team is scheduled to play the American League champions, the 52nd FTS, who defeated the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron 6-0. Both teams finished the regular season with 46 points.

The 64th Operations Support Squadron missed the playoff spot in the NL by falling one point shy of the 35th FTS with 45 points.
