General Fogleman stresses truth

New chief of staff brings his Air Force vision to the troops

by SSgt. Miconna Boaldin
Air Force News Service

KELLY AFB, Texas — Within a sea of green BDUs, a blue-clad general approached the stage as the crowd anxiously awaited to hear what the new chief had to say. And he gave the crowd his pledge.

"My pledge to you is I will tell the truth; I will tell the truth," said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman to a crowd of more than 3,500 gathered in a hangar for chief's call.

"My wife, Miss Jane, and I have been in this business for 31 years. A long time ago we stopped serving because of the positions that might become available — we just like being around first-class people.

"We have reached that point in life that who you serve with is more important than where you serve or what job title you hold," General Fogleman said.

"I have no great goal in life other than to go raise hogs in Tennessee.

"There is no benefit for me to go up on the (Capitol) Hill and do anything except tell the truth, and not only do I owe it to you but there is just no gain from anything else. So you need to help me tell the truth."

The general was introduced by Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr., Air Education and Training Command commander, who said, "He has got the right perspective for our Air Force in 1994 and the years ahead. He is focused on mission and he is focused on people...he knows the right relationship between the two."

As he got up on stage and looked out of the hangar General Fogleman saw a giant C-5 and said, "All around the world that big T-tail with the American flag on it shows that this country cares."

The new chief, who also visited nearby Randolph AFB and Wilford Hall Medical Center on Nov. 15, said he wanted to talk to as many folks as he could in the total force team, not because what he had to say was going to be so special since many had already read the words he was going to use, but to show that the words people read are coming not from his staff, but from him.

"I thought that the best way to do that was to come out and see you face to face and give you the opportunity to ask some questions and give me some feedback," General Fogleman said.

He said he wasn't going to slam on the brakes and change direction for the Air Force because he felt by and large the Air Force was moving in the right direction. "I had some advice from my Navy friends that told me a saying in the Navy nautical circles that when you assume the watch and you stand on the bridge, you should not trim the sails for at least 10 minutes.

"The idea here is that you have the opportunity to figure out where you're going before you decide to change direction,

"He (General Fogleman) has the right perspective for our Air Force in 1994 and the years ahead. He is focused on mission and he is focused on people...he knows the right relationship between the two."

Military leaders send Thanksgiving messages

by President Bill Clinton

It is our great fortune to live in a country full of promise and prosperity—a country that guarantees freedom for all of its people. Throughout our history, we have set aside a day to celebrate the many blessings we enjoy as individuals and as citizens of the United States.

I am honored on this Thanksgiving Day to salute the many women and men in uniform whose honorable service to our country enables us to protect these precious liberties.

Still only a few generations removed from our nation's founders, we continue to blaze a trail toward stability and justice. This legacy is sustained by the devotion and sacrifice of our Armed Forces. The unique relationship between our service men and women and the civilian leadership of our nation has produced a highly professional force that is capable of meeting the needs of our citizens. It is this tradition of excellence that has enabled Americans to enjoy 218 years of freedom and security.

Our challenge now is to provide assistance and encouragement that are equitable and just and that seek to alleviate human suffering. Our responsibility is to nurture the process of peace and the acceptance of human rights. I am confident that the members of the United States Armed Forces will continue to promote these ideals both at home and around the world. You are the great defenders of America, and your daily efforts help to promote the peace and stability that allow freedom to flourish.

On this Thanksgiving holiday, Hillary and I join all Americans in giving thanks for our many blessings. We extend our deepest gratitude to the men and women of the United States Armed Forces who make the freedoms of our nation possible. Best wishes for a wonderful Thanksgiving.

by Sheila E. Widnall
Secretary of the Air Force and Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman
Air Force chief of staff

More than 350 years ago, the Pilgrims celebrated the bounty of their first harvest in the new world. So began our annual tradition of Thanksgiving, a festival blending national pride, civil, and religious observances. It's also a holiday we associate with being at home, with families and friends.

This Thanksgiving, we know that many of you will not be able to celebrate this way. We currently have more than 17,000 Air Force men and women on temporary duty supporting contingencies around the world. Others are separated from their immediate or extended families while permanently assigned at locations in the states and overseas.

For those who can celebrate this holiday with your families, we hope your day is filled with fine food, fellowship and pleasant memories that will last for many years to come. Our hearts go out to those who cannot be home. We wish you a swift reunion with your loved ones.

To all Air Force people, at home and abroad, thank you for your service and sacrifice for our nation. We hope you have a happy Thanksgiving.

by Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr.
AETC commander

Thanksgiving is a time for family reunions, enjoying food and gathering with friends. Tradition has it that our Thanksgiving has its roots in the Pilgrims' first celebration in 1621.

It was a day when they joined with the local Native Americans in giving thanks for a bountiful corn crop and for their survival through a rough, bitter winter.

But historians tell us that mankind has had some form of thanksgiving since the earliest days of recorded history. And when you stop to think about it, there is always much in our lives for which we can be thankful.

That applies whether we're surviving in a strange, forbidding land or just going about our daily lives.

Yet the pace of that life can sometimes get away from us. We tend to forget the wealth of riches that we enjoy in this great land. We even take some of our largest blessings for granted — such as our freedom to live and speak out in a country that's unhampered by constraints to everyday life. That freedom is still not enjoyed globally.

Just as we enjoy our freedom in America, we also enjoy other personal liberties that are special and unique to our country.

That's what this day of Thanksgiving is all about.

As we celebrate across AETC and across our great nation, let's not forget the heritage that brought us our American way of life, nor the responsibility that's ours to preserve it for the future.

by Col. Roger Brady
64th FTW commander

Thanksgiving is one of my favorite holidays. It is uniquely American, and it has historically reflected our acknowledgement of a power beyond ourselves whose providence has made our lives better.

All of us at Reese have many blessings to be grateful for this Thanksgiving. We have the privilege of being part of the world's best Air Force serving the greatest nation on earth.

Every day we can go to work knowing what we do makes a difference. Reese graduates are involved daily in trouble spots around the globe and many of our support community are involved in these efforts as well.

We are blessed with strong Air Force senior leaders during a time in which the military services are undergoing unprecedented change. Reese is a part of that change, pioneering a new era in joint training.

During this Thanksgiving holiday, many of us will remain in Lubbock while some folks travel to other locations. For those of you who will be traveling, plan your trip in advance. Ensure your vehicle is in good shape. Monitor travel conditions and avoid driving after any consumption of alcohol.

For those of you who are staying in Lubbock, I encourage you to share your blessings with those in our family who are unable to be with loved ones this Thanksgiving.

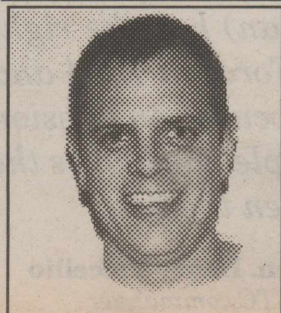

And to those who will man their posts so that others can enjoy this holiday with family, I extend a heart-felt thank you!

The Brady family is grateful for the opportunity to serve the Reese community. We wish you a safe and happy Thanksgiving and look forward to seeing you all next Monday.

Chief of staff says AF downsizing nears end

otherwise you might wind up going in circles and I'm not interested in going in circles," he said.

The general discussed his philosophy since assuming his new position. General Fogleman said that external changes such as the end of the Cold War and internal changes as in downsizing of the force are all coming to an end.

"The internal change has been very painful but necessary. I feel I owe my predecessor, General (Merrill A.) McPeak, a great debt. We all do, I believe, owe a debt of gratitude for the internal restructuring that he did in building an objective Air Force," General Fogleman said, "in de-layering us and getting us in a position to survive in the late-1990s and into the 21st century. We are past that now."

He now wants to move forward and deal with operations and personnel tempo. "We need to remind ourselves that what we do is not just another job but that we are truly members of a profession, a profession of arms," he said.

He quoted Winston Churchill, who said that reservists were twice the citizen. "I know that what I am saying is not equally applicable to all, but the fact of the matter is that this is an all-volunteer organization, it is an organization and profession that is based on the premise of service above self."

General Fogleman said that through his travels the people he has met are willing to go just about anywhere and do anything for this great nation as long as four things were observed.

"One, they think what they are doing is important and worthwhile; two, that what they are doing is appreciated; and three, that they have some hope for some kind of recognition for the work that they do," he said. "But most importantly, that their families are taken care of while they are out there doing it."

Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman, Air Force chief of staff, talks about the future of the Air Force during one of his early base visits.

"If we meet these conditions, generally our folks are more than happy to volunteer to come forward to be involved in humanitarian efforts, come to the aid of allies, and do what ever is called for."

The general discussed lengths of TDYs not to exceed 120 days; the $2.7 billion for quality of life; the modernization, timing and phasing of aircraft and equipment; air superiority; the promotion system; pencil whipping of OPRs and EPRs and, most importantly, teamwork through leadership.

General Fogleman said a leader is someone who makes things happen.

He reiterated his pass/fail philosophy on what it takes to be a leader: never rule through fear, never lose your cool, have integrity, and build a team with zero tolerance of any type of harassment.

"Zero tolerance because it is the right thing to do, it is the law of the land, and no one can work in a climate where they are threatened," General Fogleman said.

Asked about the Base Realignment and Closure process, General Fogleman assured the audience that the process will judge the bases on the appearance of the individual installation with the criteria that has been put forward. He called it a "squeaky-clean process."

General Fogleman reaffirmed that photos are to be removed from all officer files by January 1995.

He gave three reasons: First, he feels it is usually used in decisions as a negative indicator. Second, constant uniform changes. Third, black and white photographs generate hazardous material through the development process.

He added that photos may still be required for some special jobs and that would be part of the application process.

When asked about United States troops being put under the control of United Nations commanders, General Fogleman said he didn't agree with it and that a recently issued presidential directive won't allow this to occur anymore.

He said the United States will continue to support the United Nations but the troops will always have a United States chain of command.

In discussing reduction in force, Fogleman said that the requirement for VSI/SSB no longer exists and that there will not be an early retirement for staff sergeants.

"Over the last four or five years that we have come down, we have been living off the fat of the land," he explained, saying that it was hard to tell those on Capitol Hill that you couldn't find spare parts with all the base closures.

"So these congressman are poised to ask very hard questions of the chiefs and we're going to be under tremendous pressure by the administration to say one thing and by the Hill to say another."

"My pledge to you is I will tell the truth; I will tell the truth," General Fogleman said.

B-1B passes Congressional readiness tests

Air Force bombers complete round-the-clock assessment

ROSWELL, N.M. (AFNS)—The last B-1B to fly at Roswell as part of the Congressionally mandated Operational Readiness Assessment landed Nov. 18, giving the 28th Bomb Wing a cumulative mission-capable rate of 85 percent. The flight marked the end of 14 days of 24-hour-a-day flying operations at Roswell for the B-1B unit deployed here from Ellsworth AFB, S.D.

"We flew 109 of 109 scheduled sorties," said Lt. Col. Thomas Owskey, 28th Bomb Wing (Deployed) commander. "It just doesn't get any better than that." Owskey flew the last Roswell mission.

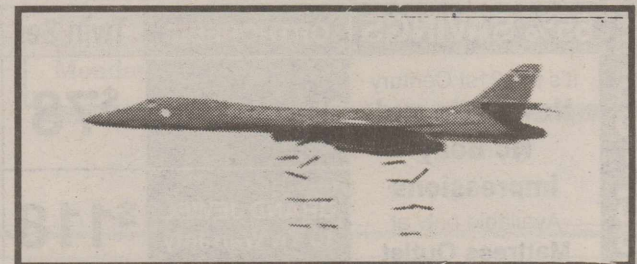

"We've proven we can pack up, go anywhere in the world and put jets in the air and bombs on target," he said, "without sacrificing any of our high-tech capability."

The 700-person operation came here to complete the final hurdle of the six-month test—flying a two-week wartime schedule from an austere location. The ORA began June 1 and will end Nov. 30. The Roswell phase started Nov. 4.

The ORA was designed to evaluate the unit's ability to achieve and sustain an overall mission capable rate of 75 percent. Mission-capable rate is the percentage of time an aircraft is partially or fully capable of performing at least one wartime mission.

Congress directed the test when considering the defense budget for fiscal 1994. Concerns arose over proposed spending levels for B-1B programs and upgrades, due to low mission capable rates for the aircraft. The Air Force responded that low B-1B mission capable rates—when compared with other bombers—were because of shortages in spare parts and manning levels due to underfunding.

Congress directed the Air Force to conduct the test and set the 75 percent goal to resolve the issue. The Air Force then called on Ellsworth's 28th Bomb Wing, its lead unit in converting the bomber to conventional use, to fly out the test plan.

Reese and Lubbock - a Loyal Partnership

We in Lubbock and the South Plains area appreciate the model relationship which exists with the Reese Air Force Base community. This relationship which has endured for years because of the many valuable friendships made, is among the best base-host community cooperation efforts.

Reese and Lubbock people are amazingly similar. Both are inherently outgoing, friendly and industrious. Their tastes, likes and dislikes parallel in many ways. Many Lubbock area natives are in the Air Force. Many others make their homes in West Texas while stationed here, and many return to live in Lubbock after they separate from the Air Force.

Reese workers — officers, enlisted men and women, civilian employees and contractors — will earn combined salaries of more than $80 million this year. Most of this payroll will be spent in Lubbock and the surrounding area. Air Force people with their stable income can afford quality goods and services.

You can increase your chances of winning Reese customers by advertising in The ROUNDUP, the base's weekly — and only — newspaper, published by Chandelle Publications in Lubbock.

Through The ROUNDUP, Reese people and their families find out what's happening on base, in Lubbock and in the Air Force.

You not only increase your chances of tipping the profit scales in your favor by placing ads in the base paper, but you also help out the military.

The number and depth of articles depend on the size of the paper.

Your advertising, then helps your business while it helps keep Reese people informed.

Senior leaders get EO training

BOLLING AFB, Wash. (AFNS) — Senior Air Force leaders learned strategies to identify and combat discrimination and harassment during a two-day workshop here Nov. 1-2.

The Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute at Patrick AFB, Fla., conducted the workshop for Secretary of the Air Force Sheila E. Widnall and 25 military and civilian staff members, said Air Force officials.

Secretary Widnall requested the training in response to a March 3 memorandum from Defense Secretary William Perry. Secretary Perry directed all Department of Defense personnel, including senior executive service members and new O-7s, to attend equal opportunity training as part of a plan to solve discrimination and harassment problems in DOD.

The workshop covered topics such as preventing sexual harassment, identifying and combating factors which contribute to racism and sexism, and the relationship between power bases and discrimination.

DEOMI will hold a second workshop May 11-12 for senior leaders at Langley AFB, Va., officials said.

In his March memo, Secretary Perry also announced:

□ The creation of the office of deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, which will be the focal point for military and civilian programs.

□ Restructure of the EO counsel with the deputy secretary of defense in charge of the counsel and service secretaries as counsel members.

Secretary Perry also tasked the under secretary of defense for personnel and readiness to lead a study of the officer "pipeline" and, if necessary, recommend ways to improve the flow of minority and female officers from recruitment through the general and flag officer ranks.

Additionally, Secretary Perry asked the service secretaries to support efforts to get more women, minorities and people with disabilities in management positions.

Savings Bonds interest rate up

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The semiannual interest rate for Series EE Savings Bonds has increased to 5.92 percent, according to Treasury Department officials. The rate will remain in effect through April 30, 1995.

The rate on May 1 was 4.7 percent. The Savings Bonds semiannual rate is 85 percent of the previous six months' average market rate on marketable Treasury securities with five years remaining to maturity—in the case, 6.96 percent. The rate is announced each Nov. 1 and May 1.

Series EE Bonds purchased since Nov. 1, 1982, and held five years or longer, earn the average of semiannual rates during the holding period or the minimum rate in effect at the time of purchase, whichever is higher. Bonds issued between Nov. 1, 1982, and Oct. 31, 1986, have a minimum rate of 7.5 percent through their 10-year original maturity. Bonds issued from Nov. 1, 1986, through February 1993 have a minimum rate of 6 percent through their 12-year original maturity. Bonds issued since March 1993 have a minimum rate of 4 percent. When held five years or longer, these bonds will receive the average rate if higher than 4 percent. Minimum rates can change when the bond reaches original maturity and enters an extended maturity period.

Series EE Bonds issued before November 1982, all Series E Bonds issued since November 1954, and Saving Notes are now receiving market-based rates or their current guaranteed rate, whichever is higher, Treasury Department said.

Col. Terry Weimer, 64th Support Group Commander, prepares to pass command of the 64th Security Police Squadron from Maj. James Peck to Capt. Jennifer Hansell Perry, Nov. 17.

Captain Perry assumes command of 64th Security Police Squadron

Capt. Jennifer Hansell Perry assumed command of the 64th Security Police Squadron here Nov. 17.

The major selectee replaced Maj. James Peck, who is reassigned to Europe.

Captain Perry's previous assignment was as the operations officer for the 37th Security Police Squadron, Lackland

AFB, Texas.

Prior to her assignment at Lackland, the captain spent most of her career in Strategic Air Command. She served at Whiteman AFB, Mo.; F.E. Warren AFB, Wyo.; and Offutt AFB, Neb. At Offutt, she served as a protocol officer on the command staff.

Captain Perry is a graduate of Southwest Texas State University. She was commissioned through Officer Training School in 1983.

The captain is the reigning Air Force and armed forces singles and double women's tennis champion.

She is married to Brady Perry. The couple has two children, Ryan and Jessica.

Reese trains NASA pilots

Community notes

Reese EWC seeks members

The Reese Enlisted Wives Club is conducting a membership drive. The club has several special events planned for the upcoming year. The next EWC meeting is scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. in Reese Manor. For more information call Christy Miller, 885-4775.

Cannon hosts Christmas Bazaar

A Christmas bazaar will be held at Cannon AFB, N.M. Dec 3 and 4. More than 150 vendors are expected to participate in the bazaar. The event is open to the public. Proceeds support youth activities at Cannon. For more information call Pat Grah, (505) 784-2747.

Tri-Care enrollment set

All active-duty personnel at Reese should be enrolled into Tri-Care Prime by Sept. 30, 1995. The enrollment is mandatory for active-duty members. CHAMPUS-eligible family members may choose from one of the three Tri-Care options.

64th Medical Group officials encourage early enrollment in the Tri-Care program. For additional information contact Capt. Anna Kramm, 6487.

64th MDG closes today, Friday

The 64th Medical Group will be closed today and Friday in observance of Thanksgiving and the wing goal day. In addition, the obstetrics/gynecology clinic will be closed Dec. 2 for renovation. Active-duty members are reminded that sick call is at 7:30 a.m., Monday through Friday. For more information, call Robert Gregorio, 3569.

Security Police open firing range

The base firing range will be open for private weapons firing from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Dec. 3. Reservations are required. Call SSgt. Jacob Robinson, 3848, for additional information.

Family strengths class set

A Building Family Strengths class is set for Monday at the Reese Family Support Center. There will be two sessions. The first session is from 9 to 10:30 a.m. The second session is from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Contact Cheryl Dyer at 3305 to register.

NAF help wanted

The 64th Services Squadron is in need of extra nonappropriated fund workers through the end of this calendar year. Applicants must be at least 18 years old. For more information contact the human resources office at 6435.

Frame shop holiday gift idea

The Reese Skills Development Center can help find that perfect Christmas gift.

The center has a variety of holiday gift ideas ranging from ready-to-finish furniture to frames for that family portrait.

Contact the center staff at 3141 for details.

Dental update required

The Reese Dental Clinic reminds active-duty members they must update military dental records if they have been treated by a civilian dentist since their last military dental exam.

OWC takes book, jewelry orders

The Reese Officers Wives Club is accepting orders

Chris Franks has her face painted by Mindy Mooney during a recent carnival at the youth center. The center is among several Reese organizations holding special events in observance of Military Family Week.

Reese observes Military Family Week

Thanksgiving dinner at the Caprock Cafe is among the activities planned as Reese continues its observance of Military Family Week.

All active-duty members and their families are invited to eat a traditional Thanksgiving dinner at the Caprock Cafe from 11 to 2 p.m. today. The surcharge will be waived for the holiday meal.

Military Family Week began Monday and ends

Sunday. Throughout the week, base facilities have held special events or offered special discounts on services as part of the observance. The discounts continue through Sunday at many 64th Services Squadron facilities.

Among week's events was a family potluck dinner at the youth center and an open house at the child development center.

for military scrapbooks and jewelry. To ensure delivery by Christmas, orders must be placed by Nov. 30. Call 794-2079 for information. All proceeds benefit the OWC charitable programs.

Ballet troupe to perform Nutcracker

The Nutcracker Ballet will be performed in the base theater Dec. 9 and 10. Sponsored by the Reese Officers Wives Club, the ballet will be performed by Dancer's Studio. The performances begin at 2 p.m. each day. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children under 13 years old. For ticket information, call 885-2241 or 793-9133.

Christmas tree sale set

The 64th Security Police Squadron will begin its annual Christmas tree sale today. Trees will be on sale daily in the fenced area behind the squadron parking lot. For more information, call SSgt. Jacob Robinson at 3848.

Commissary help needed

The Reese Commissary is looking for vendor stocker help. The position involves working for the food broker, ordering and stocking products in the commissary. For additional information, contact TSgt. Charles McCully or Rudy Lietz at 3425.

Cookies for airmen

Anyone interested in supporting the Cookies for Airmen program should bring cookies to any of three Reese locations.

Cookies may be dropped off at the family support center, 64th Support Group commander's office or 103 Andrews in Reese Village. Donations will be accepted on Dec. 15 and 16.

The program will provide cookies for airmen living in the Reese dormitories. The cookies will be delivered on Dec. 17. For more information, contact Diane Weimer, 885-4743, or Carolyn Jones, 885-1839.

Bakery offers breakfast items

The Reese Commissary Bakery will offer fresh baked breads and rolls from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., Tuesday through Friday.

Health plans offered

The 1994 Federal Employees Health Benefits Program open season to purchase or modify health insurance continues through Dec. 12. A Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative will be in Bldg. 920 at 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday to brief changes on the health plan. For details, call Shirl Francis at 3975.

SPS lists found items

The 64th Security Police Squadron has several items that have been turned in at the lost and found.

These include: two watches, two bicycles, one compact disc carrying case, two car stereos, one portable AM/FM compact disc and cassette player and one pair of sunglasses.

Newcomers classes set

A mandatory newcomers class is conducted by Reese Social Actions every third Tuesday from 9 to 11 a.m. in Bldg. 230, room 312.

Native dancers

A member of the Llano Estacado Native Americans performs a traditional tribal dance at the Reese Club. The demonstration was part of Reese's observance of Native American Month.

Child development center program provides some with meal assistance

Some children enrolled in the Reese Child Development Center program may be eligible for free meals.

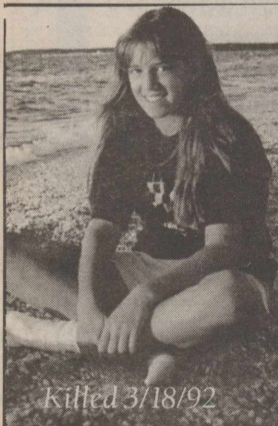

According to 64th Services Squadron officials, certain lower-income families are eligible for the free meals at the center. The meals are available as part of a Department of Agriculture program.

Those interested in applying for the meal assistance, must fill out a child nutrition program application at the center.

The application requires information such as family size, income and current assistance.

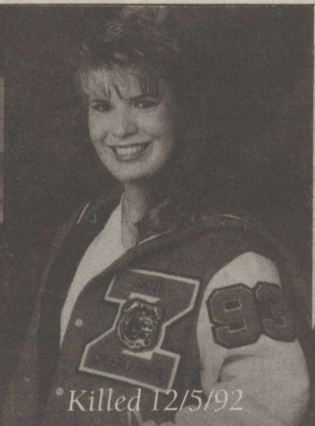

For more information on the nutrition program or other child development center programs, call 3317.

AF athletes of year

Captain. Buonauguri wins triathlon, Captain. Lewis wins riding, fencing; duo advances to Armed Forces level

LACKLAND AFB, Texas (AFNS) — A security police officer instructor here is the Air Force's 1994 Male Athlete of the Year.

Capt. Michael P. Buonaugurio, 343rd Training Squadron, now competes at the Armed Forces level.

Capt. Teresa R. Lewis, assigned to Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., is the Air Force's Female Athlete of the Year and also advances to the Armed Forces level.

Buonaugurio placed first in the Triathlon Federation Midwest Division and second place in the Military Division at the 1993 Ironman World Championship held in Kona, Hawaii. He also placed first in the Military Division, first in his age group, and seventh overall in the National Military Long Course Bike Championship, Hill Country, San Antonio. Buonaugurio was elected to the Triathlon Federation All-American Team for the third consecutive year.

Lewis, a research biomedical engineer, is the only military member of the United States Women's Modern Pentathlon Team. In 1994, she was one of three women selected to represent the United States in the Pan American Championships in Calgary, Canada. She won a bronze medal in the women's individual event, a gold medal in riding and fencing, and a silver medal in swimming.

In the U.S. Olympic Festival held in St. Louis, she won a bronze in the team and relay events, a gold in riding, and a silver in fencing and swimming.

Both athletes will be recognized by the Washington D.C. "Touchdown Club" at its 60th annual awards banquet in January.

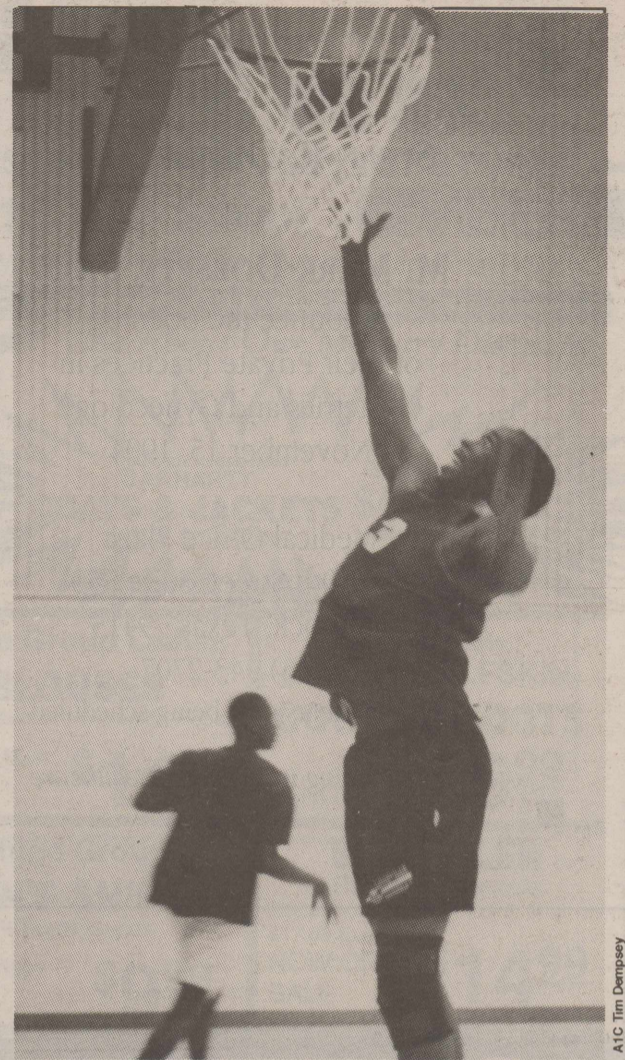

Reese varsity drops opener to JUCO team

The men's varsity basketball team opened its season with a 105-79 loss to perennial junior college power Howard College in the McDonalds Classic at South Plains College Friday.

SSgt. Glenn Stanton, 64th Medical Group, lead Team Reese with 20 points.

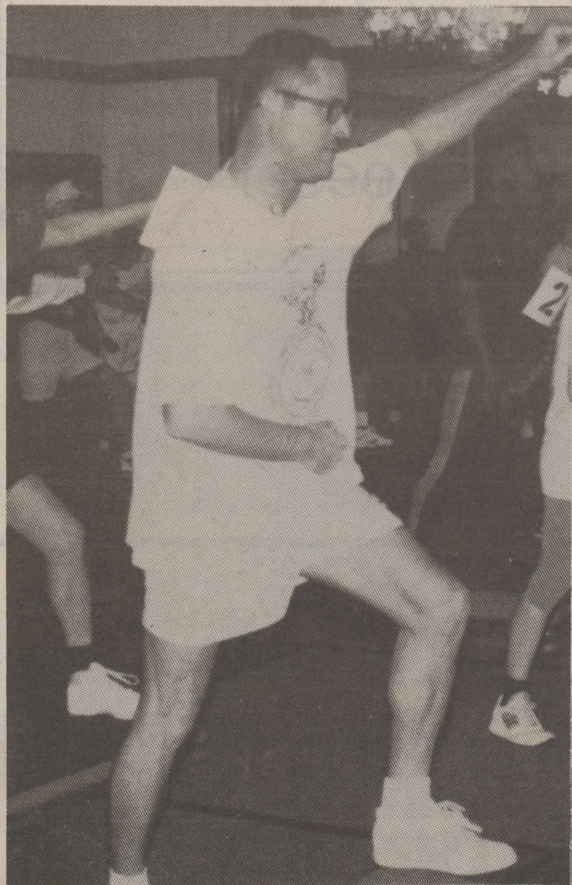

In Saturday's game, Team Reese fell to South Plains College, 99-65. The team's next tournament is Dec. 2-4 at Lackland AFB, TX.

Sports update

Stepping out

TSgt. Jim Franks, 64th Security Police Squadron, does step aerobics for the Pumpin Hearts Aerobathon Nov. 10. The event raised more than $3,400 to go toward the holiday food fund and the Enlisted Wives Club scholarship program.

Hill AFB invitational ski meet

The 1995 Hill Air Force Base invitational ski meet is scheduled for Feb. 26 through Mar. 3. The meet is a permissive TDY and individuals must bear all expenses. For more information call Jake Trevino at ext. 3207.

Fitness center renovation

Phase one of the fitness center renovation is underway. The gym floor is closed until Nov. 27 for resurfacing. Additional work phases include complete renovation and expansion of the ladies' locker room; recarpeting and tiling of the men's locker room; recarpeting of the weight room, exercise room, halls and lobby areas; resurfacing of the racquetball courts and repainting of the entire facility.

Please bear with us as we work to improve your facility. For more information call ext. 3207.
