Camp Blue Yonder

Reese volunteers key to program for area children

Bolstered by more than 25 volunteers, Camp Blue Yonder opened this week, playing host to 37 girls from the Lubbock community.

"We've had a great start," said 1st Lt. James Chitty, Camp Blue Yonder project officer. "The volunteers have really come through this week and I expect even more support for the boy's camp."

Camp Blue Yonder is split into two sessions. The first session, which began Monday, is for girls. It ends today. The second session is for boys and will run from Monday through Aug. 12.

According to Lieutenant Chitty, Camp Blue Yonder is a non-profit summer camp for underprivileged Lubbock area children, from 8-11 years old.

"All children attending the camp are selected by local charity organizations through the Volunteer Center of Lubbock. Children come from agencies such as the Lubbock Boys Club, Parkway Neighborhood Center, Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Lubbock, Guadalupe Neighborhood Center, Young Men's and Women's Christian Associations and others," said Lieutenant Chitty.

During the camp, children will visit several base agencies and use wing facilities such as the bowling center, Caprock Cafe, picnic grounds and swimming pools.

Some of the scheduled off-base activities include visits to the Science Spectrum/Omni Max theater, Discovery Zone, Joyland Amusement Park, Putt-Putt Golf and Games, Texas Water Rampage and Frito-Lay plant.

The lieutenant noted that Camp Blue Yonder is totally dependent on funding from donations. All donations are used to directly offset camp expenses.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the second session of Camp Blue Yonder should contact Lieutenant Chitty at 6323.

From my perspective

by Col. Roger Brady
64th FTW Commander

Too often we are asked to do surveys and don't ever see the results of our efforts.

Remember the Organizational Culture and Leadership survey we asked you to fill out back in April? In keeping with our quest for quality, I would like to thank you for your tremendous support and participation in the survey. We have received the overall base results and I would like to share them with you.

The 50-question, computer-based survey looked at six major categories: work environment, job satisfaction, AETC quality, mission, communication, and leadership.

I am happy to see that leadership was at the top of our results. I believe our commanders are top notch, and I am pleased that the survey corroborated it. One of the highest-rated statements was, "My supervisor gives me freedom to work with a minimum amount of supervision and direction." The survey also indicated that you know your unit's mission and what is expected from your jobs. You are proud of your jobs, but you showed a concern that you want to do your jobs better. That's essential to continuous improvement.

While all of the ratings were relatively high, ranging from 5.22 to 5.48 on a 0-7 scale, your responses revealed some areas we need to improve. Specifically, you expressed concern about how worthwhile the meetings are that you attend, the credibility of quality performance measures and duplication of effort in the workplace. These are all "quality issues" and can be fixed—some by your supervisors and others by you! You need to give the same feedback to your supervisors and commanders that you expressed in the survey.

It takes every one of us to make the 64 FTW a more effective organization and to make Reese a better place to live and work. I appreciate your feedback on the survey. Now let's address the areas that need improvement in our individual units.

Over the next few weeks you will be participating in a Unit Self-Assessment. This is a difficult but rewarding task. I ask you to take it very seriously.

A candid assessment of our units will help us be more organized, work more efficiently and be more productive. Use this effort to identify again those areas, good and bad, that you identified on the survey.

The quality journey is one that has benefits for all of us. As we improve we will work smarter, not harder, we'll be more productive and we'll be safer—I appreciate your support.

Energy

Computers were created to save human energy, but, misuse can cost us all big bucks!

by Capt. Frank Rossi
64th CS Commander

Most people probably think of the microcomputer as energy efficient. For the most part, this is true. But as I quickly learned, microcomputers consume a great deal of electricity per year, and a significant amount of what's consumed is wasted.

But what can we do to be a part of the growing conservation effort?

Let's first look at proper conservation techniques, then more energy-efficient computers.

Why was there a need to look at energy conservation measures as well as more energy-efficient small computers?

The 1980s were years of rapid growth in purchases of microcomputer and associated equipment by federal agencies.

By the end of the 1980s, over 1,000,000 units were purchased and in use. Today, that number has increased significantly as the federal government now buys between 5 and 10 percent of all microcomputers sold. This growth has been accompanied by a corresponding increase in the amount of building energy required for computer equipment. Thus, the need was born.

How much electricity does a microcomputer use? A typical microcomputer and monitor uses 150 watts of power and 646 kilowatts of electricity per year. This costs the government approximately $40 per year in direct utility costs and also increases cooling costs.

A 15-watt microcomputer and monitor running all the time would consume 1,300 kilowatts per year and cost about $80 to operate.

Now how can we save energy? Energy consumption of a typical microcomputer can be reduced by more than 75 percent by simply turning the machine off during non-work hours instead of leaving it on.

Unfortunately, about one-third of the nation's microcomputers are left running at night and on the weekends, and research indicates that microcomputers are actively used only a fraction of a typical workday.

Further, simply turning computer equipment off at night can have a dramatic impact on an office's yearly energy consumption.

For example, one personal computer, monitor and one-half of a shared laser printer operated year-round consume almost 1,700 kilowatts. The same microcomputer operated only during normal duty hours uses about 400 kilowatts per year, a direct energy savings of $77 per year. If 5,000 users turned off their computer equipment at night, it would save taxpayers $385,000 each year. Multiplied by the full number of users and the savings could be in the hundreds of millions of dollars per year.

For shorter absences, users should turn off the monitor. This will reduce the unit's power consumption about 50 percent and does not require a reboot. And contrary to what people may perceive, screen savers do not save energy. They are designed to save phosphorus and prolong the usefulness of the monitors.

To further compliment savings, President Clinton issued Executive Order 12845 on April 21, 1993, which now requires all federal agency acquisitions of microcomputers, monitors, and printers to meet the Environmental Protection Agency's Energy Star Computers Program requirements for energy efficiency.

Put in quantifiable terms, this will save the equivalent of enough electricity to power Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine each year and save taxpayers up to $2 billion.

Stated simply, saving energy saves dollars. Buying energy efficient computers saves more dollars. And we all need to conserve as much energy as possible.

Are you doing your part?

From your perspective

"A Careline column provides one of many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call. You can call the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273. If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone. Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you."

Appreciation dinner was great

I was over at the dining hall for the Airman Appreciation Night dinner. I just want to thank everyone who helped provide this dinner. It's really great when we get something special like this done for us. Thanks!

Thanks for all your positive comments regarding this outstanding program. This team effort between commanders, first sergeants, 64th Services Squadron and the food services contractor was truly a success. Our next Airman Appreciation Night will be Sept. 14, so get your reservations in early.

Fatigue, distractions become deadly when mixed with highway driving

by Chuck Gerrior
Ground Safety Manager

Each year needless deaths and injuries occur on the highways and byways across this state and nation by drivers who fall asleep at the wheel.

Earlier this summer, two airmen from Keesler AFB, Miss., were killed when their vehicle left the road, became airborne and literally wrapped itself around a tree.

It is believed that fatigue could have been the primary cause of the accident. Drugs or alcohol were not involved.

This type of auto mishap usually occurs when a vehicle operator, during a 3 - 5 second period of drowsiness, either crosses a centerline into oncoming traffic or runs off the roadway into a ditch. This all happens without the vehicle operator knowing where they are until it is too late.

Several things can contribute to this type of vehicle mishap:

- Physical or mental fatigue
 - Soothing music or road sounds
 - Overheated interior
 - Consumption of alcohol
- Steps to control sleepiness at the wheel:
- Do not drive more than two hours at a time. Every two hours or 100 miles get out of your vehicle and walk around.

□ Do not consume alcohol before driving. Remember that alcohol is a depressant and will make you sleepy.

□ Listen to a talk show or news to keep your mind active and stay away from soft and soothing music.

□ Drinking coffee at rest stops will help.

The last thing to remember is that 500 miles of driving is the same as working a full eight hours. Driving a motor vehicle is serious work.

Don't push yourself or your vehicle!

FACTS ON FITNESS

Keep Fit While Traveling
by Greg Lynn
Head Athletic Trainer
Cincinnati Reds

(NAPS)—Whether traveling for business purposes or vacation pleasures, keeping in shape is easier than you might think. Just remember that your workout each day should include three basic types of exercises: (1) flexibility exercises that you perform before and after each workout.

(2) endurance exercises that may include cycling, running, and swimming, and (3) strength exercises, such as pullups, pushups and exercises with weights.

Remember, too, that just because you're away from home doesn't mean you'll be on vacation from minor injuries. However, the usual sprains and strains that often result from overexertion need not prevent exercise. Using health supports such as those made by Futuro provide muscle and joint support which relieves soreness and promotes healing. They also work to help prevent injury.

64th MDG to activate temporary clinic

The temporary relocation of Reese medical services to a field clinic, originally scheduled for late July, has been rescheduled for Wednesday through Aug. 14. The field clinic will be set up in the Mathis Recreation Center.

According to TSgt. Theresa Faulk, NCO in charge of Medical Readiness, 64th Medical Group, the temporary relocation was delayed because a part for the new generator system being installed at the 64th MDG facility did not arrive in time.

Medical officials state that most services will be available at the temporary clinic. All services will be on a walk-in basis.

"The clinic will operate much the same as our extended hours program," said 1st Lt. Cuvier Lipscomb, 64th MDG resource manager. "Routine

Mathis Recreation Center will be from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday through Aug. 12 and from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. Aug. 13 and 14.

In addition, flying personnel will be able to receive urgent medical care at the 35th Flying Training Squadron during normal duty hours. Family members of flying personnel will be seen at the Mathis Recreation Center.

A key to the relocation's success, stress medical officials, is that only people who have an urgent medical problem use the clinic.

The 64th MDG pharmacy

□ Emergency services (911) will continue full operation.

□ Medical records, lab results and /or x-rays for downtown or civilian appointments should be obtained prior to close of business Tuesday.

□ Routine allergy immunization service will not be available. However, required immunizations for school students will be available at the clinic.

□ Active-duty members needing emergency dental care should report to the clinic.

For additional information about services available during the relocation, contact Sergeant Faulk at 6111 or 6110.

Enlisted to induct General Viccellio

Order of the Sword nominee becomes command's first

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr., commander of Air Education and Training Command, has accepted an invitation for induction into the Order of the Sword.

The command's enlisted members extended the invitation July 11 after Viccellio's nomination by CMSgt. Art Haney, commandant of the Air Force Senior NCO Academy.

The induction ceremony will take place Oct. 1 at Lackland AFB, Texas. At that time, the general will become the first AETC inductee.

The Order of the Sword is the highest honor enlisted members can bestow on an individual.

The honor dates back to the 12th century and exists today so NCOs can recognize those who significantly contribute to the welfare and prestige of the enlisted force.

Reese Federal Credit Union Awards Scholarships

Reese Federal Credit Union recently awarded $500.00 academic Scholarships to two worthy students for their pursuit of higher education.

Melissa Bartz, daughter of Michael and Theresa Bartz, a graduate of Monterey High School, Melissa plans to attend Texas Tech University and Major in Electrical Engineering.

Ronnie DeForrest, son of Al and Paula DeForrest, a graduate of Lubbock High School, Ronnie plans to attend Texas Tech University and Major in Business.

These two fine students were chosen from many outstanding applicants by a committee of three individuals. Each application was judged on the basis of recommendation letters, awards and honors, grade point average and service work.

Congratulations and Best Wishes to this year's scholarship recipients.

Tricare: General Anderson outlines merits of health care system

by 2nd Lt. Pat Ryder
81st Training Wing Public Affairs

KEESLER AFB, Miss. (AFNS) — As nominee to become the next surgeon general of the Air Force, Maj. Gen. (Dr.) Edgar Anderson Jr. inherits the responsibility for launching Tricare, the Department of Defense's new health care system.

Tricare is a managed health care system designed to make high-quality medical care readily available in a cost-efficient manner. Those three elements — sustained high quality, improved access and lower cost — are the most important advantages of Tricare over the system it replaces, said Anderson during a visit to Keesler in June.

"On a grand scale, the most significant thing Tricare will do is improve access (to health care), which is the biggest shortfall in our system," said the current commander of Wilford Hall Medical Center, Lackland AFB, Texas.

"People enrolled in Tricare will be guaranteed an appointment, either in the direct care system or in our contractor network. We guarantee them we're going to take care of them, one way or another, in our network."

Tricare will also improve fiscal practices by taking advantage of the enormous amount of competition available in the marketplace -- "something CHAMPUS is simply unable to do," said Anderson, who is selected to replace retiring Lt. Gen. (Dr.) Alexander Sloan as surgeon general of the Air Force.

"Each CHAMPUS encounter is sort of individual," he explained. "But what we're going to do is augment what the direct care system can provide with major wrap-around contracts.

"It's important to keep in mind those contractors work for the military; specifically, the medical facility or the facility commander," he said. "The facilities will be the hubs of Tricare and the contracts will be the spokes."

This arrangement will also improve the quality of the care provided, the general said. Because health care will be contracted, providers will have to meet quality standards written into the contracts.

Initially, Tricare will be available only to active-duty people, dependents and CHAMPUS-eligible retirees, according to Anderson.

"We're working as hard as we can to get what's called

'Medicare subvention,' he said. "This would allow us to take care of those people over 65 we've been taking care of all along."

Medicare subvention is an imperative, he added, because it means money will be provided on a per capita basis to care for people over 65 who aren't eligible for CHAMPUS.

providers from a list of preferred providers at a little higher cost.

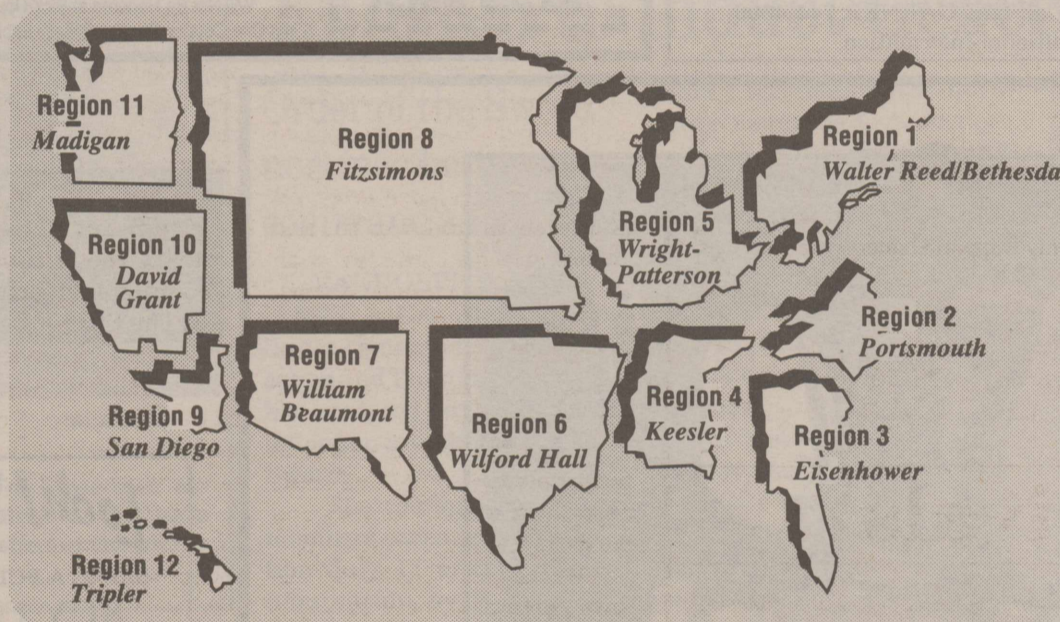

Tricare Standard — The most costly plan, allows the most freedom of choice in selecting health care providers.

"The standard CHAMPUS benefit as we know it today will persist," the general said. "If you're more concerned about widespread choice, absolutely

"We need those unique, high-intensity patients to train our wonderful, young practitioners."

Although Tricare also covers health care in Army and Navy medical facilities, Anderson said he doesn't foresee this leading to a joint-service health organization. "Tricare is a tri-service operation, but I don't anticipate nor do

Tricare regional chart

The Tricare "reorganization" plan divides the United States into 12 Military health service regions with a designated lead agent in each. Lead agents work with military medical treatment facilities in their region to develop a tri-service, regional health service plan. Reese is in Region 6.

"We really, really want to take care of them," the general said. "We need that segment of the population for training and, in my opinion, because we made a commitment to take care of them long-term. Nobody, but nobody in the Air Force has plans to back away from them."

Nobody is taking CHAMPUS away either, General Anderson said, noting these three opportunities for people in CHAMPUS to enroll in Tricare:

Tricare Prime — Provides maximum quality care at the lowest price, but decreases the choices of providers.

Tricare Extra — Allows choices of selecting your provider, whether he's part of our network or not, then you'll have the opportunity to stick with standard CHAMPUS under Tricare."

Treatment of so-called "high-cost" patients will also continue under the new health care system, according to General Anderson. "In a world where more and more patients are turned away from health plans because of the severity and intensity of their illness, and the costs incurred in treating them, the Air Force medical service wants them all.

"Big 'for-profit' firms don't want to enroll high-cost patients. They want to send them someplace else," he said. "We don't want to do that. We can treat them better and cheaper, and we've proved that again and again."

In addition to the caring aspect, the general said the Air Force needs such patients for "the lifeblood of military medicine, our training programs."

I think it would be advisable to have a 'purple-suit' or defense health agency.

"Specialization of care for individual branches of service is still needed because of the different missions each service provides. In my judgment, the way we're doing it now is just about right."

The general said he does support joint training in the medical field, because of the opportunities it presents for sharing knowledge and cutting costs.

As he prepares to undertake his first major mission as the Air Force's top medical officer, Anderson said the key to making Tricare work is improving the focus of health care on the customer, externally and internally.

"We've got to provide the best possible service for the customer who needs our care," he said. "We've got to make sure our practitioners, the internal customers, are fully armed, and in an environment that makes them want to come to work, makes them know they're taking care of the most precious resource in the Air Force — people."

(Courtesy AETC News Service)

"On a grand scale, the most significant thing Tricare will do is improve access (to health care), which is the biggest shortfall in our system."

Did you know?

Did you know that the only authorized spokespersons for Reese are the wing commander and the public affairs officer? Anyone requesting release of information about an accident or incident at Reese should be referred to 64th FTW Public Affairs at 3410.

T-1A crewchief Doug McDavid, Lockheed, gives preflight signals to the Reese's T-1A Top Flight aircrew during the T-1A competition here July 28.

Reese teams end short-notice phase of Top Flight '94

Reese maintenance and flight teams completed the short-notice phase of Top Flight '94 by hosting the T-1A competition last week.

The T-37 and T-38 teams competed earlier in the month.

All Reese Top Flight aircrews will compete in the arrival competition Aug. 25-26 at Tyndall AFB, Fla.

The overall Top Flight results will be announced at an awards ceremony at Tyndall.

AF sets officer early release program

The Air Force has closed the voluntary officer early release program for fiscal 1994 and established criteria for the fiscal 1995 program, say military personnel officials.

The early release program is offered in addition to, and should not be confused with other force reduction programs.

This program allows officers relief from active-duty service commitments to leave the Air Force early.

All applications are subject to approval by AFMPC officials based on the best interests and needs of the Air Force.

The fiscal 1995 program allows certain officers to separate or retire before they complete their active-duty service commitments. Eligible officers include lieutenant colonel and below.

Individuals excluded from the program include all pilots, navigators and weapons controllers. All Aviation Continuation Pay bonus non-takers can apply for waivers as an exception to policy, but if they have enough retainability to fill a rated position, the request may be denied.

Significant waiver changes between the fiscal 1994 and 1995 programs include:

□ The waiver for advanced flying training, undergraduate flying training, weapons systems officer and air weapons controller service commitments is eliminated. Officers not selected for promotion may request waivers and will be considered on a case-by-case basis.

□ The new program allows for applications, which require more than the maximum waiver established for permanent change-of-station moves, professional military education, and other education, to be considered on a case-by-case basis.

□ Promotion active-duty service commitments are fully waivable for separation; however, for retirement purposes, majors and lieutenant colonels must serve six months and two years in grade, respectively.

People applying for the program must request a separation date between Oct. 1, 1994, and Sept. 29, 1995, or a retirement date between Oct. 1, 1994, and Sept. 1, 1995. Officers with a previously approved date of separation may request an earlier date under this program, but it can not be before Oct. 1. Once an application is submitted to a military personnel flight it may not be withdrawn.

Full details concerning the officer early release program can be obtained by contacting the Reese separations unit at 3420. (AFNS)

Honored guard

SrA. John Fox, 64th Logistics Squadron, receives a plaque from Col. Roger Brady, 64th FTW commander, in recognition of being selected as the top member of the Reese Honor Guard for the past quarter. The award was presented during a recent Enlisted Call at the Simler Theater.

AETC clubs launch membership promotion

Two club patrons will drive home new automobiles

The 64th Services Squadron is participating in a command-wide promotion that could earn a club member here a new car.

The promotion, which includes all Air Education and Training Command installations, will reach over 48,000 military club members.

Two AETC club members, one from an officers' club and one from an enlisted club, will each win an automobile in the "Super 4-Wheels Grand Prize" drawing.

Various parties and events, using the theme "4 Members Only," are planned during the four-month promotion.

Prizes will be awarded at monthly drawings of sales receipts from club purchases.

Reese members are also eligible for local grand prize drawings for a television and compact disc player.

The promotion, the first of its kind in AETC, is aimed at increasing current membership participation by enhancing programs in officers and enlisted clubs.

Services officials hope to increase sales and membership as a by-product of the promotion.

A "4 Members Only" membership party will be held Aug. 12 at the Reese Club.

All club members are invited to join the party.

Free food for members and their families begins at 6 p.m. Music will be provided by a disc jockey from 7 to 11 p.m.

Community notes

Parents Who Care meet

There will be a meeting of Parents Who Care at the base chapel Tuesday at 4 p.m. Topics to be discussed include: network sitter program, squadron adopt-a-room program and other special functions.

Dispose of trash properly

Reese Village residents are reminded that all trash must be placed inside dumpsters. The contractor will not pick up trash placed outside the dumpsters.

Housing office extends hours

The Reese Housing Office is now open from 7:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m., Monday through Friday. The office remains open throughout the lunch hour. Call 3913 for additional information.

OWC slates fashion show

The Reese Officers Wives Club will hold a dinner and fashion show Aug. 18. The event begins at 6:30 p.m. and includes a special welcoming of Diane Weimer to Reese. For reservations, call 885-1914 or 885-4898 by Aug. 15.

ERAU registration ends today

Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University will be registering for the Master of Aeronautical Science master degree program today.

The courses that will be offered include Research Methods and Statistics, Air Carrier Operations, Human Resource Management, and Graduate Research Project. Call 6391 or 3634 for more information.

Job workshop scheduled

The Fort Sam Houston Job Assistance Center will present a one-day job assistance workshop at 8 a.m. Aug. 22 at the Texas National Guard Center, 2901 4th Street, Lubbock.

For more information, call Pamela Appell at 3079 or 3310.

Preschool registration set

The Reese Child Development Center will conduct preschool registration through Aug. 26 for 3- and 4-year-olds. Call 3541 for details.

Special education service available

Frenship students are eligible for special education assistance through Metro County Special Services. Contact each school office for details.

Cpl. Lee Guerra, Texas Department of Public Safety officer assigned in Lubbock, talks with Reese people about job opportunities as a Texas state trooper.

The visit by Corporal Guerra is just one of a variety of special Transition Assistance Program projects that help people leaving the military.

Transition Assistance Program helps members, families leaving military

The Transition Assistance Program helps people leaving the military prepare for civilian life.

The following questions and answers outline the program.

What is TAP and who is eligible?

TAP stands for Transition Assistance Program. It's a service available to transitioning servicemembers, Department of Defense civilians effected by a reduction in force or base closure and their families to cover issues ranging from financial planning to employment assistance.

What can TAP do for me?

TAP manager Genevieve Normand and TAP specialist Pam Appell can assist you with:

□ Orientation on and scheduled usage of the Computer Resource Center which includes a variety of high-tech programs that provide access to and information about the federal, state and private sector job markets.

□ One-on-one career and pre-separation guidance, counseling on the effects of career change on members and their families, linkage with other programs and services and job referral.

□ Schedule participation in 4-day TAP workshop, 6 months or less from date of separation.

□ Checking out related books and tapes from Resource Library and providing free pamphlets.

□ Schedule participation in various workshops related to job readiness and transition.

□ Information on regional job fairs, local labor market, vocational and educational resources and self-employment.

How and when can I make use of these services?

Services are available at the Reese Family Support Center from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. by calling 3310 or 3079 for an appointment.

64th SPS claims crown

Tourney underdogs power past IM field

by A1C Tim Dempsey
Roundup Sports Editor

"I don't know what hit our players."

These were the joyful words from SSgt. Curt Montez, 64th Security Police Squadron coach, as his team defeated the 35th Flying Training Squadron-A, 14-4, for the intramural softball championship Monday.

"We were too relaxed in the first game," said Sergeant Montez. "I think we were a little nervous. We started playing together in the second game."

The 35th FTS -A forced the "if necessary" game for the title by taking the first game, 16-6.

"We played exceptionally well today," said Capt. Scott Sauter, coach of the 35th FTS-A, after playing three games Monday. "The bats were alive and the fielding was sound in the first two games, but we didn't get the same results in the last game."

"You can see what can happen with a lack of offense against a productive team like the SPS," added the captain.

SPS shut down the 35th

A1C Tim Dempsey

SSgt. Rich Owens, 64th SPS, puts the tag on Lt. (USN) Jim Fleming during during championship softball action Monday night.

FTS-A's offense in the second game by holding them scoreless in every inning except the third.

After shutting the 35th FTS-

A out in the top of the 5th inning, 2nd Lt. Mark DiCarlo, SPS, singled to start a seven run rally. Sgt. L.D. Harper homered to score DiCarlo and another run to break a 4-4 deadlock.

SMSGt. Byron Hicks led the SPS's defense by allowing only two hits in the 6th inning. The offense closed the game by scoring three runs to secure the victory.

"They all did good," Sergeant Montez explained about his players' performance. "If I tried to single them all out for great plays, I'd have to mention every player's name."

The 64th Communications Squadron finished the season in third place after making it to the semi-final round by defeating the 64th Medical Group, 11-10, July 27.

The team's dream of an intramural championship fell shy Monday when they lost to the 35th FTS-A, 16-6.

TSgt. Mike Harrison, 35th FTS-A, goes high for the ball during Monday's championship game. The 64th SPS won the game and the IM title.

APARTMENT GUIDE

There are more than half a million styles and sizes of camping tents.

Birds called arctic terns travel 22,000 miles a year, from the Arctic Circle to the Antarctic Circle and back.

The term terra cotta is Italian for "cooked earth."
