Reese impresses QAFA team

by 2nd Lt. Chris Almgren
Public Affairs

"You ought to be very, very proud of what you've done," said Maj. Gen. Nicholas Kehoe, 19th Air Force commander at the Quality Air Force Assessment outbrief last Friday.

"What makes it even sweeter is that you've done this at a time when you've had great distractions," he said.

The general's comments echoed the findings of the QAFA team, which repeatedly lauded the wing for its impressive performance throughout the 12-day assessment.

The QAFA team praised the base for its standards and personal appearance and singled out the energy efficiency and environmental protection programs as examples of the wing's commitment to quality.

In addition, the team cited four Reese flights for "superb" mission accomplishment.

They are the: 64th Operations Group Intelligence Flight, 64th Support Group Civil Engineer Environmental Flight, 64th Support Group Civil Engineer Operations Flight, and the 64th Logistics Squadron's Supervision and Operations.

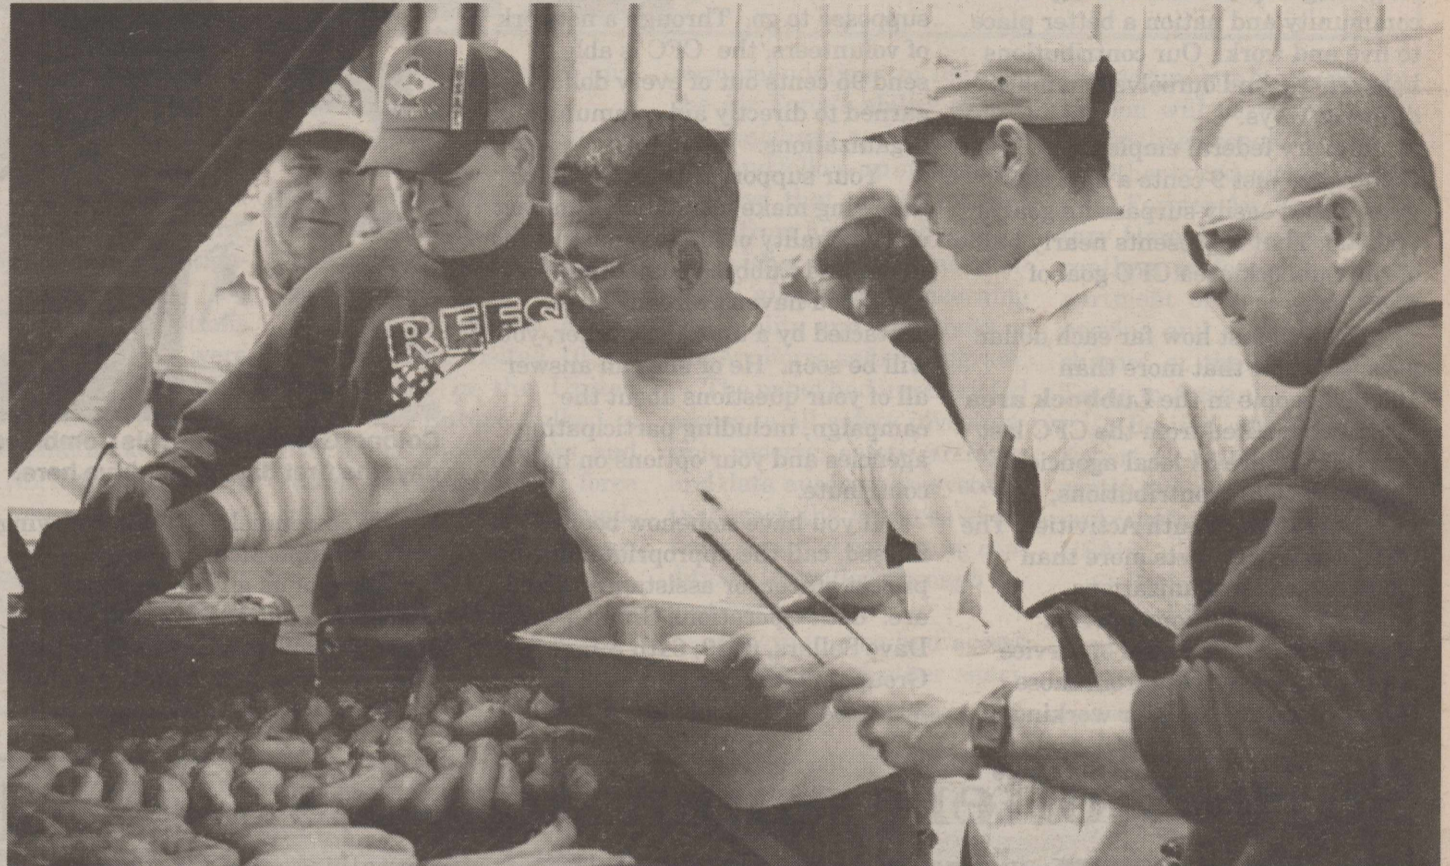

The team also noted the Quality Air Force improvement efforts of the 64th Services Squadron's Youth Support Flight.

Col. Randy Gelwix, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, saluted the wing for its top-notch performance.

"Reese has made another journey, and I can honestly say, we're no longer just a team—we're a family," he said.

Several individuals were recognized by Col. Gelwix and the QAFA team for exceptional quality performance.

Mission Support Squadron, installed mailboxes and initiated in-dorm mail distribution, significantly enhancing dormitory living.

Stephen Jones, 64th Civil Engineer Squadron, initiated a comprehensive base and family housing recycling contract.

John Kain, 64th CES, helped Reese reduce its energy use by 23.9 percent in 1994 and 33.2 percent in 1995 exceeding all command goals.

Capt. Nicholas Kangas, 64th Operations Group, developed a program effectively honing Fluid Maneuvering skills for instructor pilots without fighter experience.

Capt. David Cool, 54th Flying Training Squadron, developed a bank of Emergency Procedures Quizzes (EPQ) distributed via the LAN which eased the workload for flight Unit Standardization Evaluation Monitors and standardized student testing.

Capt. John Melloy and Master Sgt. Larry R. Holden, 35th Flying Training Squadron, developed a computer database program which provided up-to-date IP currency requirements to squadron supervisors via the LAN, and daily information updates.

Capt. Andrew Berry, 35th FTS, created a user-friendly, computer-generated template for the Student Activity Record form to document training.

Capt. Daniel Nugteren, 52nd Flying Training Squadron, created a comprehensive guide standardizing T-1A communication procedures and allowing Navy students to better understand differences in Air Force terminology.

Master Sgt. Patricia Cook, 64th MSS, established a program to sponsor all information management personnel arriving at Reese.

Combined Federal Campaign

Each dollar donated helps improve our community, nation

by Col. Randy Gelwix
64th FTW Commander

Some people say a dollar doesn't go very far anymore. They're wrong.

Every dollar contributed to the Combined Federal Campaign goes a long, long way toward making our community and nation a better place to live and work. Our contributions help others, and ourselves, in many different ways.

If every federal employee at Reese gave just 9 cents a day, the wing would easily surpass its goal of $65,000. That represents nearly half of the Lubbock area CFC goal of $135,000.

To show just how far each dollar goes, consider that more than 100,000 people in the Lubbock area directly benefited from the CFC last year. There are 51 local agencies eligible for CFC contributions, including Reese Youth Activities. The CFC booklet also lists more than 1,000 national organizations.

Your contributions provide support for a wide range of service organizations ranging from those that provide day care for working parents who can't afford it ... to research to wipe out cancer and heart disease.

Contributions to the CFC can be made by check or by payroll deduction. You can specify one or more agencies or donate to the general fund.

And your money goes where it is supposed to go. Through a network of volunteers, the CFC is able to send 95 cents out of every dollar earned to directly aid community organizations.

Your support of the CFC helps this wing make a significant impact on the quality of life we share in the Reese and Lubbock community.

If you haven't already been contacted by a unit key worker, you will be soon. He or she can answer all of your questions about the campaign, including participating agencies and your options on how to contribute.

If you have somehow been missed, call the appropriate unit project officer for assistance. They are: 64th Operations Group — Capt. Dave Sellars, 6049; 64th Support Group — 1st Lt. Antoine Banks, 3377; 64th Medical Group — SSgt.

Colonel Gelwix fills out his Combined Federal Campaign pledge form Wednesday, the first day of the drive here. The wing goal is $65,000.

Uwe Woestendiek — 3711; and wing staff — Ralph Monson, 3843.

Many of us give to various charities, a place of worship, and other organizations throughout the year. We're able to do this because our quality of life allows us to help support those less fortunate than we are.

I ask all of you to consider your good fortunes and help others by contributing to the CFC. You'll feel great knowing that your donation will help someone in need.

Survey offers opportunities

by Gen. Billy Boles
AETC Commander

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AETCNS) — Everyone in AETC has a stake

in our mission and everyone should have a say in how we do that mission. That's feedback.

Accurate and timely feedback is one of the most important tools we use in the Quality Air Force Program because it provides guidelines for improvement within an organization. One of the top priorities of this command is to ensure that everyone has the opportunity to provide feedback.

The Leadership Survey, currently in the field and available for everyone's use, is your opportunity to make your views known. The survey is voluntary but we hope everyone — airman, NCO, officer and civilian — participates.

This survey does two things. First, it allows you to voice your opinion on your work environment, job satisfaction, mission, communication, AETC quality and leadership. Second, it highlights areas that need improvement.

Professionals not only know their business but also know what their customers want. Feedback provides the information needed to take even better care of customers, present and future. That's the kind of service we want in AETC.

The Leadership Survey is your opportunity to be heard. Please take time to use it. Let's make this command even better.

Panel finds safety program sound

by Master Sgt. Gary Pomeroy
Air Force News Service

WASHINGTON — The Air Force safety program is sound, according to the head of an independent panel that spent two months reviewing the organization, staffing and investigative procedures for the Air Force's Aircraft Mishap Prevention Program.

And though there are areas that need improvement, overall "It's a valued program that works," said retired Navy Vice Adm. Donald D. Engen, a one-time member of the National Transportation Safety Board and former administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration.

The panel recently delivered its findings to Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman. Several of the panel's recommendations are currently under review.

One of two major conclusions the four-member panel drew centered on the importance of ensuring the integrity of board findings and the inaccurate perceptions that can result if people believe reports have been tampered with in chains of command.

"It is the strongly held view of the panel that the integrity of the process depends upon the independence of the (safety investigation board)," read a statement issued by the panel.

Though a survey conducted by the panel of 600 former safety investigation board members indicated a 95 percent approval rate for the function of the safety organization, 9 percent of the respondents "perceived" that board end products did not always reflect board findings.

Engen cited the "erosion of peoples' confidence" in the independence of some investigations.

"Some people's perceptions were (that other) people were trying to put pressures on the board to do certain things," he said. "Does that make the system bad? No, it doesn't. It just says that you need to look at that."

The other major conclusion was that the Air Force organizational structure of the safety effort in both the prevention

"The bottom line is that our safety program is strong; it's serving us well."

Gen. Ronald Fogleman
Chief of Staff

and the investigation of mishaps is appropriate.

In acknowledging "room for improvement," Fogleman issued a statement that read: "The bottom line is that our safety program is strong; it's serving us well."

During the review, Engen and his panel visited 10 Air Force bases in the United States and Europe, talked to five major commanders and staffs, six numbered air force staffs, various wing and squadron commanders, and Air Force safety officials.

Fogleman directed the panel to examine any safety-related area which could yield recommendations to improve the Air Force's ability to prevent mishaps and to investigate and follow-up on mishaps in ways that would prevent them from happening again.

Another reason was published allegations concerning the quality and objectivity of the Air Force safety program.

The panel had unrestricted access to all safety investigation reports, safety archives and data automation systems that track the progress of actions aimed at correcting conditions identified through investigations.

The group also had access to classified and other sensitive documents but such information will be "sanitized" in its finalized report.

Other board members were:

□ Former Air Force Secretary Hans Mark, who is currently a professor in the department of aerospace engineering and engineering mechanics at the University of Texas in Austin.

□ Retired Air Force Gen. Robert C. Oaks, who is currently vice president of safety and regulatory compliance for USAir.

□ Retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Joel T. Hall, former Air Force director of aerospace safety.

Fiscal Year - 1996 defense bill to improve quality of life

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The drawdown does not mean military quality of life should also be "drawed-down," said House National Security Committee Chairman Floyd Spense (R-S.C.) in statements relating to quality of life and the formula for retiree Cost of Living Allowance.

"The basic contract between America and those who serve is in danger of being broken," said Spense.

"Today's well-educated and highly motivated military personnel and their families are being asked to do more with less. They deserve a decent standard of living," he said.

Those shortfalls in military quality of life have been well documented in congressional hearing records. For example,

Secretary of Defense William Perry has consistently identified quality of life improvements as one of his top priorities. Perry has asked lawmakers for help.

Congress is expected to take action on the bill today, said Capitol Hill officials.

H.R. 1530 would give the military a 2.4 percent pay raise and enhanced housing benefits in 1996. The House-passed budget resolution also adds funds to be used to leverage private capital to build military housing in public-private partnerships.

The House also approved legislation for military retiree COLA.

Since the 1993 reconciliation process, the payment date of military retiree COLAs has lagged six months behind that of federal civilian retirement. Civilian COLAs are effective in April, military in October.

To correct this inequity, the committee approved, additional mandatory spending to fix what is a mandatory spending problem.

The impact of this proposal is to increase mandatory spending by $1.805 billion.

Bruce Ulrich, 64th CES, replaced two forms used in the construction process with an automated program requiring minimal input from engineers.

Stephen Jones, 64th CES, effectively utilized a graphic database to identify buildings with asbestos and lead based paint, allowing better pre-planning of construction work and significantly reducing project changes due to unforeseen environmental issues.

George Winkler, 64th CES, developed an operator training program, ensuring well-documented and thorough training prior to certification.

William Smith, 64th CES, was recognized for his excellent supervision and general operations at Westwind, the wing's auxiliary training field.

Roy Napper, 64th CES, established a comprehensive Fire Officer I Training and Certification Program.

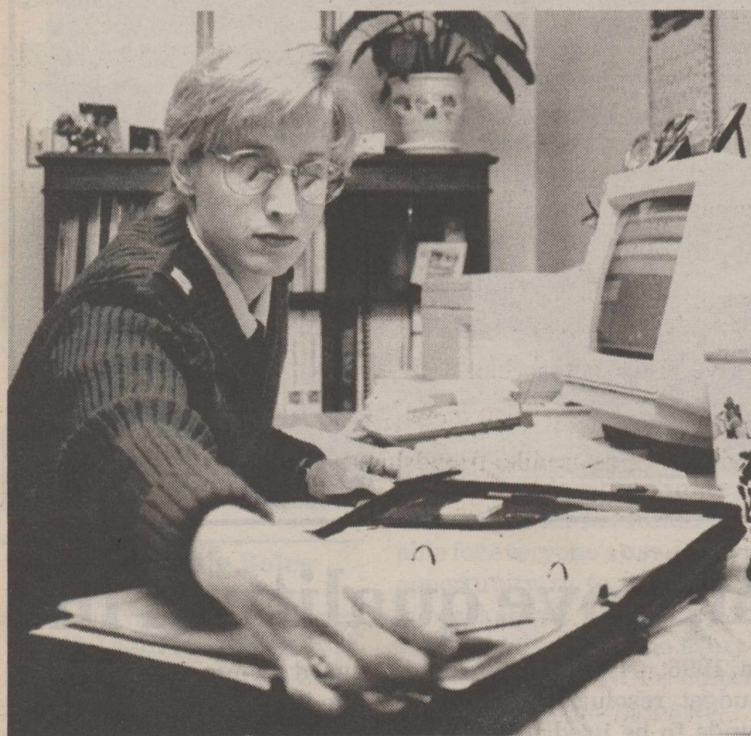

Capt. Michael Holland,

52nd FTS, developed a superior gradebook checking guide.

In presenting wing coins to the honorees, Colonel Gelwix stressed that these individuals represented the exceptional efforts of the entire wing.

"Thanks for really making a difference," he said.

64th MDG adds staff dietitian

New dietitian -- Captain Carlton

Capt. Debi Carlton is the 64th Medical Group's new dietitian.

Reese is one of only four bases in the United States to participate in the Dietitian Pilot Test program.

This study will determine if dietitians can save Air Force medical dollars and propel the Air Force community into the prevention arena.

Carlton comes from Wilford Hall Medical Center where she spent three years specializing in pediatric and outpatient nutrition.

In January 1996 she will begin a lipid protocol study which involves an intensive dietary regime designed to wean patients from cholesterol lowering medication and control blood cholesterol through diet, exercise, and education.

Carlton will also work with Behavioral Medicine in teaching the nationally renowned LEARN program. LEARN stands for lifestyle, education, attitude, relationships and nutrition.

Those who are interested in losing weight while learning behavioral changes should plan to attend this class. It will begin Wednesday and will meet for 10 consecutive weeks. Interested persons may call ext. 3739 to sign up.

In addition, individual dietary counseling is available with a referral from a provider. For further information regarding any of these services, call 885-6153.

TriCare questions, answers

by 1st Lt. Ward Hinger

What is the TriCare Service Center and what kind of services will it provide?

The TriCare Service Center will be the focal point for all TriCare implementation and benefit questions.

The TriCare Service Center will provide the following services: personal assistance to beneficiaries seeking information about the TriCare Prime, TriCare Extra and TriCare Standard programs; beneficiary enrollment; access to care: referrals for care; assist beneficiaries with claim problems; and continuity of care services.

When will the TriCare Service Center open?

The TriCare Service Center will have its grand opening Thursday at 12:30 p.m.

Where will the TriCare Service Center be located?

The TriCare Service Center will be located in the 64th Medical Group, Bldg 1300, Rm #342, across the hall from Physical Therapy.

As the Nov. 1 implementation of TriCare approaches, pay close attention to the Roundup, Commander's Access Channel, and personnel mail for information on TriCare Seminars and the enrollment process.

The specifics of each program will be provided in mid-October.

Any questions about TriCare should be referred to the Director of TriCare 1st Lt. Ward Hinger at 6487.

With U.S. Savings Bonds, the more you give, the more you receive.

Every day, we pass a little of ourselves on to the next generation. When it's best to go fishing, which bait to use, how to cast, what makes a keeper. The knowledge that we give stays with them forever. And we hope we've made their lives a little richer for the learning.

Giving U.S. Savings Bonds also passes an important lesson on to the future generation. Bonds can teach our children how to save, how interest grows and how a small investment can help make their dreams come true.

Buying U.S. Savings Bonds contributes to a solid and secure America for generations to come. What a great way for you to say, "I believe in your future!"

Bonds are as easy to buy as they are to give. Buy them at half their face value through your local bank. U.S. Savings Bonds are like friendships — the longer they're kept, the more they're worth.

So share the tradition of U.S. Savings Bonds. They're the gift that gives back more than you've given.

While Reese sleeps

by Senior Airman Tim Dempsey
Staff writer

If you think retreat signals the end of the duty day for everyone here, think again.

There are plenty of nightcrawlers performing all kinds of duties at night.

From protecting the base to maintaining the aircraft, the 64th Operations Group, the 64th Support Group and the 64th Medical Group have military and/or civilians working around the clock.

The 64th OG has the weather flight, base operations and Lockheed Martin Logistics Management working nights. The air maintenance units for each aircraft, engine test cell, fuel shop avionics, maintenance operations center and quality control make up the night flights for LMLM.

Working nights for the 64th SPTG are billeting, fire department, energy monitoring control system, pavement and equipment, sewer plant, logistics computer room, forward assets support training, law enforcement, K-9 flight, systems flight and base operators. Also, Allied Management of Texas refuels the aircraft.

The 64th MDG has the primary care and emergency ambulance response working.

Community notes

Fair holds Military Day

Reese military personnel and their families will be admitted free at the Annual Panhandle South Plains Fair on Saturday.

According to fair officials, a valid active-duty military identification card is required for admission of the family.

Activities scheduled for Military Day include rabbit judging in the morning and a mule show in the afternoon. The carnival midway opens at 1 p.m. Recording artist Pam Tillis will perform concerts at 7 and 9 p.m. today. Advance tickets are required for the Tillis concert.

The fairgrounds is located between 4th Street and Broadway off Avenue A. Parking on and around the fairgrounds costs $2. The fair ends Sunday.

FSC offers two classes

The Reese Family Support Center is offering two special classes in October and November.

The Very Quick Job Search -- It's not easy finding a job. But research has proven that by using the right methods, most people can reduce the time it takes to find one. This class is designed to cover the basics of looking for work. The class will be taught on Thursday and again on Nov. 2.

Taking Charge of Change -- This class is specifically designed to help people cope with the stressors associated with upheavals like lifestyle or career change. Whether you are related to a person distressed by a life-altering change, this class will give you a specific, detailed, proven method to allow you to take charge of your change to a better life. This class will be taught on Oct. 24 and again on Nov. 30.

All four classes will be held in the Reese Family Support Center. Each class runs from 8 a.m. to noon. Call 3305 to register.

Reese needs school mentors

We have all heard of someone who never quite made it in school - and regretted it for the rest of his or her life. Students similarly "at risk" of not quite making it exist in almost every school. Most just need a little extra support from a friend or mentor.

ing skills and self esteem. Mentors are asked to spend one hour a week interacting with their student in the academic setting of the school.

We are going to start out the 1995/96 Mentor Program with an orientation at Frenship Intermediate School on Thursday at 1:30 p.m. At this time new mentors will meet their students and past mentors will be reacquainted with the student they had last year.

Lemon Lot opens here

As a means of organizing the selling of used cars and to provide better service for Reese people, the 64th Services Squadron equipment rental office now manages a Lemon Lot at the southwest corner of the Reese Exchange parking lot.

Car owners may rent space by the week or by the month for up to three cars at a time. The fee per vehicle is $2.50 a week or $10 a month. Vehicles must have current Reese registration. Space is limited and will be assigned on a first-come, first-serve basis.

To reserve parking slots at the Lemon Lot, contact the equipment rental office staff at 3141.

Teams challenge greens for Reese Fall Open title

More than 44 teams hit the greens for the Reese Fall Open here Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament was divided into four flights according to players' handicaps.

The team scores for the tournament were derived by combining the total shots of each player after 18 holes. The teams were composed of two players.

Greg Reynolds shot 7-under par 72 and partner Mike Whitworth was 2-under as the team captured first place with 135 strokes in the Championship Flight. Bob Samay and Don Neff finished one stroke down for second. Bruce Caldwell and Steve La Montaque took third place with 140 strokes. Charlie Longbotham and J. Kimberly claimed fourth place six strokes behind Reynolds and Whitworth.

Mike Grey shot 2-over and Jan Purselley shot 3-under to capture first place in the First Flight with 143 strokes. John Waltrap and Andy Garcia tied with Newsom and Mankin with 146 strokes but captured second place. Rodney Phillips and Steve Lester finished one stroke behind the tie for fourth place.

Only four strokes separated first place from fourth place in the Second Flight. Jackie Veazey and Jack Applegate took first place with 148 strokes. They were followed by Rudy and Joe Ramirez with 149 strokes. Danny Crump and Keaton took third place three strokes behind the winners. Byron Hicks and Dana Tretheway came in fourth place at 152.

In the Third Flight, Dennis Dodd and Ryan Brown captured first place with 158 strokes. Carl Hudgeons and Will Ashmore were three strokes down to finish in second place. Buddy Hampton and Mark Hamilton tied Dusty Earl and Mike Croom with 162 strokes. However, Hampton and Hamilton took third place in a sudden death.

The pro shop awarded a gift certificate to every team that placed.

Arts Alliance Creates Festival for Children

Lubbock's "youngest" event takes flight on Saturday, Sept. 30, as the Lubbock Arts Alliance, Inc. stages its first CHILDREN'S FEST O' FUN at Texas Tech's 19th Street & Indiana Avenue entrance from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Basing plans for the Children's Fest o' Fun on the belief that the arts hold a unique promise for educating children as we stand at the threshold of the 21st century, the Arts Alliance has created the one-day event to complement its annual Lubbock Arts Festival, and to provide a joyful educational experience for children and their families.

As one of the programs of the Lubbock Arts Alliance, the Children's Fest o' Fun has as its mission the development of alliances that promote awareness of, appreciation for, and involvement in the arts; reinforcement of the arts as an essential element in life-long learning; and, enhancement of the quality of life for children and families throughout the South Plains / Eastern New Mexico region.

The event will be free to Lubbock residents and visitors.

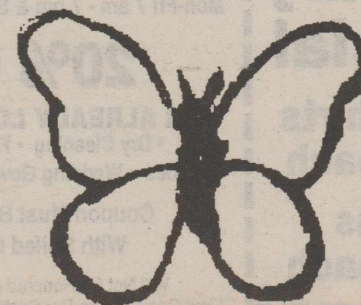

Children's Fest o' Fun Co-Chairmen Carol Jean Bartlett and LeRoy Montoya and a steering committee of community volunteers and educators have been working through the summer to finalize details for the celebration.

Early plans call for creative activities that center on a child's most important work - play.

Entertainment, food, games and experiences will additionally celebrate the imaginative abilities of children.

For more information, contact the Lubbock Arts Alliance at 744-ARTS.

The Lubbock Arts Alliance, Inc. is an independent corporation dedicated to sponsoring and funding arts and cultural activities for Lubbock and the South Plains region.
