

Triple ace addresses JSUPT Class 96-05 graduation

Nineteen Joint Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training students will receive their pilot wings today during a ceremony at 9:30 a.m. in the Simler Theater.

Retired Brig. Gen. Robin Olds, rated a triple ace, will be the guest speaker.

The son of an Army Air Corps major general, Olds attended the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in June 1943.

Olds shot down a total of 17 enemy aircraft during World War II and the Vietnam War.

Olds was wingman on the first jet acrobatic team in the Air Force and won second place in the Thompson Trophy Race jet division at Cleveland in 1946.

He participated in the first one-day, dawn-to-dusk, transcontinental round-trip flight in June 1946. The flight was from March Field, Calif., to Washington D.C.

The general's duty assignments in England, Germany, Libya, Thailand, and the United States included positions as squadron, base, group and wing commander; staff assignments in a numbered Air Force, Headquarters U.S. Air Force, and the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He graduated from National War College in 1963.

Returning from overseas in December 1967, Olds served as the commandant of cadets at the U.S. Air Force Academy through January 1971.

He assumed the position of director of aerospace safety in the Air Force Inspection and Safety Center at Norton Air Force Base, Calif., in February 1971.

All base personnel are invited to attend graduation.

Air Force leaders send Memorial Day messages

Dr. Sheila Widnall
Secretary of the Air Force
Gen. Ronald Fogleman
Air Force Chief of Staff and
CMSAF David Campanale

"Each year in late May, we remember and honor fellow citizens who have laid down their lives in the name of freedom. On Monday, we pay tribute to the men and women in uniform who made the ultimate sacrifice, from the American Civil War to the skies over Bosnia.

"You share a bond with those who have gone before — an oath you took to defend America against all enemies, foreign and domestic. That oath is an offer of yourselves to guarantee the well-being and success of our country. It's a commitment to our nation, and a promise to its people.

"Today, the extraordinary work done by each of you serving in the Air Force continues to play a critical role in the course of human events. Around the globe, American forces are the most visible forms of courage, trust, and cooperation on the planet. Over the past year, you have acted decisively to curb war, to feed starving people, and to further the spread of liberty into nations which had never before enjoyed its blessings.

"As you well know, freedom is not free. Freedom costs the soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines who pledge their lives to maintain it. On this Memorial Day, we pay homage to the memory of those who have made the supreme sacrifice, and we salute the commitment and dedication of those who carry forth their legacy, proudly bearing the standard of freedom into the 21st century."

Gen. Billy Boles
AETC commander

Memorial Day is a day of remembrance and a time to reflect upon what others have done for us. It's a day to pay tribute and say "thank you" to those many patriots who have given their lives in order that we might live and enjoy the blessings of freedom.

They knew the cost of freedom would be high. But knowing that, they were willing to pay the price for the good of the nation. They embodied the spirit of service above self, core values on which our Air Force stands today. The hundreds of thousands who laid down their lives did so to preserve our many freedoms.

Memorial Day reminds us that freedom never comes without a price. Let's reaffirm our devotion to this land of liberty, and remember that future generations of Americans depend on us today to ensure their security tomorrow.

Col. Randy Gelwix
64th FTW commander

Memorial Day will be celebrated Monday. This is a time for us to reflect on our fellow Americans who gave their lives, the supreme sacrifice, in the defense of our great nation.

Memorial Day is also the first three-day weekend of the summer and signals the beginning of "101 critical days of summer." This is a very exciting time of year for everyone, our children are out of school and plans begin for a fun-filled summer with vacations and many outdoor activities.

While this is a fun time of year, it is also a time when there is a high potential for a tragic accident to ruin our summer fun. History proves the better we prepare for summer activities, the less chance we have of an accident ending our fun.

I ask each commander, supervisor, and individual to make this our safest Memorial Day weekend and summer ever. This can only be done by proper planning, moderation in activities, taking care of each other, and most importantly not drinking and driving!

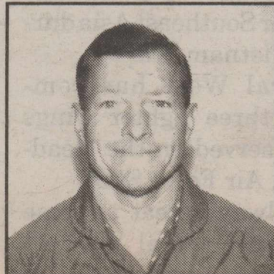

Together we can all have a super weekend and great fun-filled summer.

Space-available travel to increase during summer

WASHINGTON—Air Force Air Mobility Command officials said they expect an increase in space-available travel this summer. These requests are in addition to the annual summer move season.

Summer is traditionally a busy space-available travel season. In addition to the many vacationers taking advantage of flights, family members attending college are authorized space-available flights to join their parents in overseas assignments. However, Air Force officials said they believe this year could be even busier because of new travel categories authorized last year.

"This summer is also our first opportunity to see the impact of DoD's decision to extend unaccompanied space-available travel to command-sponsored family members," said Air Force Maj. Gregory V. White, chief of the command's international passenger operations.

DoD's policy change also affects family members traveling in the United States. They may now accompany sponsors on emergency leave. Another change allows one family member to travel with a sponsor during permissive temporary duty for house hunting.

Air Force Lt. Col. James Zupan, the command's passenger and traffic management chief, said the new travel eligibility policy change will not affect how the command runs the space-available travel program. All eligible passengers compete for seats based on travel category, date and time of sign up, he said.

Space-A opportunities happen only when there is space on an aircraft left over after all official passengers and cargo requirements are met, said White. "The Department of Defense does not allow flights to be scheduled solely for space-available travel purposes."

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS)—According to many real estate experts, it's still a buyer's market. But hopeful home sellers can help themselves by developing these spring sales strategies.

- Look at your property with a "buyer's eye." Fix-up, paint-up, spruce-up areas that may help buyers fall in love at first sight. Aside from major work that may be needed, like an interior or exterior paint job, pay attention to details. How about a new, more attractive front door, or some trendy, oversized address numerals? Jazz up your home's "curb appeal" with a tidy bed of mixed spring flowers.

- Do prospective buyers—and yourself—a favor by locking in a low loan rate through a program such as Countrywide's Lock N' Sell™. Mortgage rates today are at near historic lows, but they can fluctuate rapidly. With Lock N' Sell, your buyer's rate is locked in for a period of 45 days—longer once a sales contract is signed. If rates go down, the buyer gets the lower rate. That simple assurance can give you an edge over other sellers in the event rates start to rise.

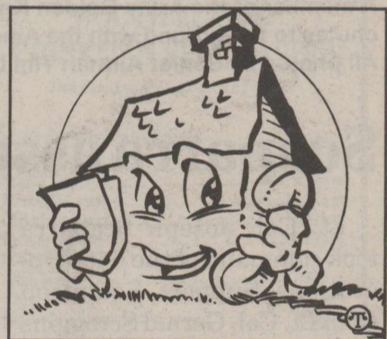

- Prepare a flyer for real estate agents or potential buyers pointing out your home's special qualities—including the locked-in low rate. Note the home's proximity to schools, shopping and civic areas, and if you give directions over the phone, choose the most scenic route.

- Determine your commitment to moving. Patience is a virtue and anxious sellers tend to make deeper concessions in price and other aspects of a sale.

Air show draws more than 65,000 spectators

More than 65,000 people attended the Reese Air Show '96 Saturday and Sunday.

The two-day event was designated as Community Appreciation Days and was the final air show at Reese.

"My thanks to everyone who helped make the Reese Air Show a success," said Col. Randy Gelwix, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. "It took a tremendous effort from everyone to show the surrounding communities what we do, not only here at Reese and the Air Force, but in the U.S. military."

On Saturday, the air show featured demonstrations by the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds and the U.S. Army Golden Knights parachute jump team.

There were also demonstrations by several other military and civilian aircraft. Many more were on static display including a C-17, the latest transport aircraft in the Air Force's inventory.

"Coordination efforts were underway long before the first flight or the first peek inside a static display took place," said Lt. Col. Mark Edwards, air show coordinator. "Everyone worked hard to make the show a success."

As a reward for the long hours of hard work, Col. Gelwix declared June 3 as "Air Show Appreciation day" and authorized all military and civilian personnel the day off.

After completing his remote tour, Scaparra was assigned in July 1989 to Headquarters, Pacific Air Forces Inspector General as the chief, close air support inspection branch, Hickam AFB, Hawaii, and he maintained his instructor qualification in the A-10 and OA-10 aircraft.

In July 1991, Scaparra was assigned to United States Commander in Chief Pacific Command at Camp Smith, Hawaii, serving as joint air operations staff officer, air operations division.

After completing his staff tour at USCINCPAC, Scaparra was assigned in August 1994 to Reese's 54th Flying Training Squadron as a T-38 instructor pilot. He then moved to the 64th OSS to his present position.

Scaparra is a command pilot with approximately 2,700 flying hours in the A-10, OA-10, OV-10 and T-38 aircraft.
