Retirement party fetes Tommie Brown

A retirement party was given to honor Tommie Brown Wednesday, June 29 beginning at 5 p.m. and lingering into the evening hours. She retired June 30 from her longtime career with the United States Postal Service.

Mrs. Brown, a mail route carrier, delivered mail for Plains area folks for the past 27 years. She says her plans are "to enjoy her family and be ready for any trips that might be planned by any of the bunch."

Friends and those who would visit daily with her while she made her route say they will miss her dearly, "especially Jan and Melvin", but she promises to come in often. Close contacts say, "Tommie is the kind of person that if you are feeling blue or tired, she will make you forget it and you will be laughing immediately" and they all would like to wish her well, thanking her for making their day more pleasant with her timely humor and smile.

Party colors used were mauve and blue. Marguerite Adams prepared the party table using a cutwork cloth, Melba Fitzgerald provided the centerpiece; Ruth Taylor painted a windmill scene on a cue can and friends gave her a gift of money.

"Faye's Punch" was made by Irene Jones, Faye Bearden and Rebecca Forbus. Napkins used were selected by Joan Warren and Charlotte Kennedy. Pat McNabb and Dolores Davis were in charge of a registry book and banners. Linda Powell made a rose corsage for the honoree. All others attending the celebration contributed with cookies, hors d'oeuvres, dips and chips.

A gag gift, "a hog jowl", was presented to Mrs. Brown by one of her friends, stating it was for "when times get rough".

Special guests were family members, Jim, Jimmy, Jamie, Justin, Jessica and Traci. Tamra and Kerri were not able to attend. Also attending were Helen Beal and Bill and Marguerite Adams.

Bullock to look into family violence

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock has named a special Senate committee to look into possible changes in the way Texas handles family violence under criminal and civil laws.

"You don't have to look to California, you don't have to leave Texas to see painful reason to re-assess the protection we afford abused spouses and children in our own state," Bullock said, in appointing Sen. Mike Moncrief of Fort Worth to chair an interim committee on domestic violence.

"I worry that victims of domestic violence can fall through the cracks in the justice system," Bullock said. "We have got to see if there are holes that should be closed in our laws, including the new stalking law."

Double ring ceremony unites Stacie Carmichael & Kieth Earnest

Stacie Kay Carmichael of Sweetwater and James Keith Earnest exchanged wedding vows here in First Baptist Church Saturday, June 4 at 7 p.m. Officiating the double ring ceremony was Bill Wright.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Carmichael of Sweetwater and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Earnest. Grandparents of the bride are Clark and Jo Hitt of Crowell and Claude and June Carmichael of Brownwood. The groom is the grandson of F.L. Earnest of Brownfield and the late Alice Earnest and Nadine Clanahan and the late Leon Clanahan.

The ceremony was performed before a setting of arch and tree candelabrum entwined with English ivy. Candle votives with ivy, ribbon and baby's breath completed the church decorations. Lighted candles with greenery graced the organ and piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length white gown of satin, with a fitted bodice embellished with clear sequins, pearls and lace. The train was styled with the same pattern.

For "something old" and "something borrowed," the bride carried her grandmother Hitt's handkerchief. "Something new" was her gown and pearl earrings given to her by the groom. "Something blue" was her garter and the groom's first Bible.

She slipped a penny in her shoe which was coined in the year of her birth. It was given to her by her grandmother Carmichael.

The groom was attired in a black tuxedo, with white vest and tie.

Attendants included Kim Shryack of Lamesa, who served as Maid of Honor and Shauna Richardson of Lubbock. They each wore a magenta pink dress and carried bouquets of fresh magenta pink roses and carnations, accented with fresh baby's breath and greenery.

Flower girl, Nicole Matysek of Crowell, wore a floral print dress with a white collar, trimmed in a dainty lace. She carried a white basket trimmed in flowers and ribbon.

The best man was the brother of the groom, Michael Earnest. Groomsman was Brad McWhirter. Ushers were Andy Carmichael of Sweetwater, brother of the bride; Blake McWhirter and Steve Crutcher. Landon Earnest, nephew of the groom, served as ring-bearer. They were all dressed in black tuxedos with black vests and ties.

Cynthia Blair was pianist/organist. Melba Crutcher sang "Love of the Lasting Kind," and Steve Crutcher sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the lighting of the unity candle. Jennifer Earnest, sister of the groom, read scripture from 1 Cor. 13:4-8, 13.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. The bride's cake was an Italian cream, three-tiered off-white cake with cascading flowers. Fresh greenery and gardenias surrounded the bottom of the cake. The groom's cake was Kahlva fudge with lattice work on the sides and topped with light and dark chocolate curls.

The couple is at home in Plains.

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:

The recent acquittal of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and the judicial defeat of Michigan's and Washington's assisted suicide laws have once again stirred the national debate on end-of-life issues. Wherever you are on this issue - whether you have a decided position or whether you search to find a comfort zone - I believe you need to understand the Hospice philosophy of care for the terminally ill. Hospice centers on providing support and expertise to terminally ill persons and their families to live out their natural life in comfort at home.

The expertise that hospice brings to end-of-life issues includes specialized state-of-the-art management of the symptoms and pain that terminal illness can bring. If death is our fear, dying need not be. Hospice care addresses the physical, emotional, social, and spiritual issues of the terminally ill and their caregivers. Hospice care is comprehensive and builds on the combined skills and wishes of the patient, their caregivers, and their physician who work with the Hospice team. This team includes hospice nurses, nurse aides, social workers, chaplains, volunteers, music therapists, dieticians, pharmacists and other health care professionals.

In the span of the last two decades, the world hospice movement has been focused here in the United States where the Hospice model of care for the terminally ill has grown into a network of 2,000 providers. Hospice cared for 275,000 Americans in 1993 with Medicare, Medicaid and virtually all private insurers recognizing Hospice as a desirable part of an effective and cost-managed health plan.

Death is a difficult topic for most of us. Death either in the guise of our own mortality or the grief that comes when a loved one dies, can be one of life's most difficult experiences. But death is also the natural end of all life. Death is something we should try to understand, to talk through and to make our wishes known. Hospice provides community education, support and counseling for issues related to death, dying, grief and bereavement.

Dr. Kevorkian has become the champion of the assisted suicide movement for the stand he has taken, for the assistance he has offered, and his desire to make such assistance more readily available. Hospice champions the issue of quality of life for the terminally ill by addressing their symptoms and meeting their needs, one person at a time. We will debate the assisted suicide issue for some time to come and Hospice will continue to serve 50,000 terminally ill persons every day by echoing and delivering a philosophy care and support during life that carries us through our grief and through our death. The terminally ill face the reality of knowing life is particularly short - precious time to complete the work and love of their lifetime. Hospice patients teach us this every day.

Brush Management

What is brush? Most people think of mesquite, shinoak and other noxious weeds. Some brush is good for the land. Depending on the desired results. Most livestock producers want only grass in a pasture. Hunters and wildlife enthusiasts want to see stands of brush mixed with open areas, because they provide habitat for antelope, deer, quail and other wildlife.

"Brush management can be achieved in several ways," says Mark Lewis, Soil Conservationist for Yoakum County, "by applying mechanical, chemical, or prescribed burning methods. These methods can reduce brush to restore natural plant community balance and patterned treatments to meet specific needs of the land and objectives of the land user.

Mechanical control is achieved by using root plowing, dozing, or chaining. This is recommended for areas that have a high percentage of woody species and thick topgrowth.

"There are many types of chemical herbicides that can be used to control certain types of grasses and woody plants. These methods are widely used. However, special precautions must be followed because some of these chemicals control forbs and woody species that are beneficial to wildlife. For best results, they should only be used at certain times of the year," says Mark.

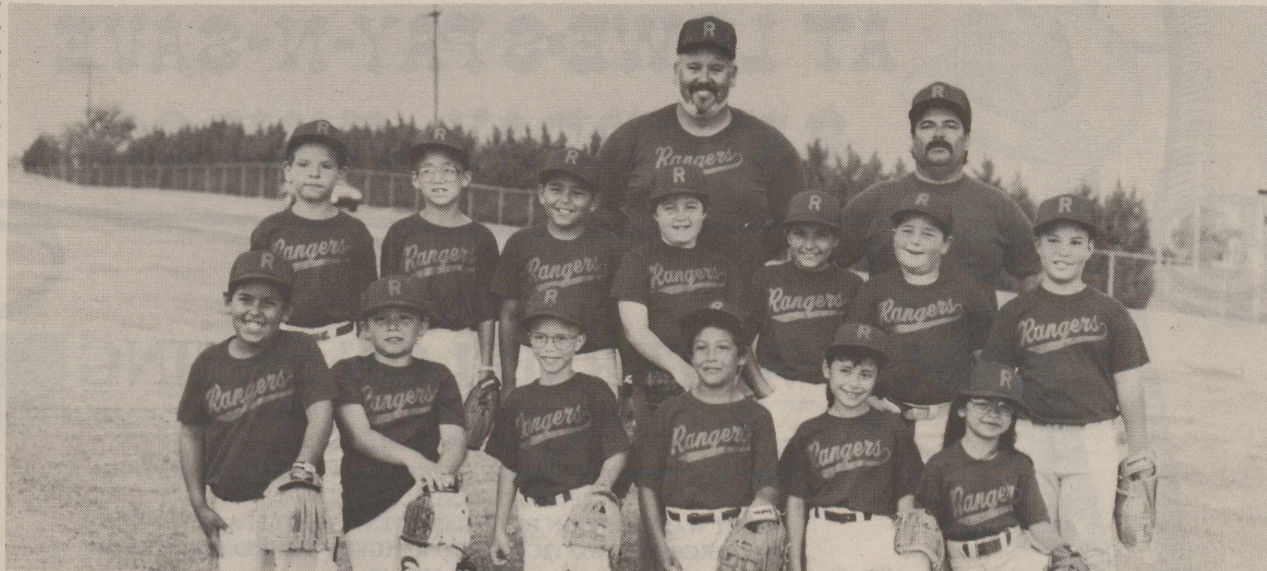

Prescribed burning is another method of control, in which fire is used to burn off an area that is infested with brush. This is the most effective, but if not done correctly, can be the most dangerous.

These methods can be used separately, or together to achieve the desired results.

Deferred Grazing is needed after brush control has been applied. Anywhere from three months to a full growing season is needed to establish the proper cover. Life lengths of various brush control methods vary widely, therefore maintenance is critical to the effectiveness of the practice.

Brush Management should be based on sound and wise planning practices that will control erosion, brush, and achieve the desired quality of plant life.
