City clean-up set next week

A Citywide Clean-Up has been set for June 5-10 and local residents will be able to bring items to the Citizens Convenience Center at half-price for those dates.

The Clarendon City Council approved the clean-up during their May 11 meeting, and to take advantage of the half-price dumping, citizens will have to show their city water bill.

Items accepted at the center include garbage, debris, tires, and yard waste. Items not accepted include shingles, construction waste, electronics, paint, and batteries.

City Hall is also requesting volunteers to assist residents who are without means to haul off debris. City crews will pick up items at curbside for senior citizens and disabled residents. Call City Hall for more information at 874-3438.

Seliger wraps up 85th Legislature

State Sen. Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) says he fought for the priorities of District 31 during the 140 days of the 85th Legislature, which wrapped up Monday.

Seliger authored Senate Bill 463, a bill that extends the option of Individual Graduation Committees for students who passed all of their courses, but failed to pass up to two state-mandated tests.

The state budget for the next biennium reduces spending by $200 million and is well under population growth times inflation. It also includes $350 million to ensure continued health care for retired teachers.

Food bank to offer sign-up assistance

The High Plains Food Bank will be offering sign-up assistance next Friday, June 9, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Clarendon Housing Authority office at 103 E. Fourth.

This assistance is available for those interested in applying for food stamps, TANF, CHIP/Children's Medicaid, Adult Medicaid & women's health care, and long term care.

City cancels Allsup's alcohol variance hearing

A public hearing for an alcohol variance request by Allsup's Convenience Stores was canceled during last Thursday's city council meeting.

Mayor Sandy Skelton made the announcement that he was canceling the hearing because recently discovered case law made Allsup's variance request unnecessary.

The store is in contract to buy property directly across from Brock Stadium, but according to city ordinance, alcohol cannot be sold on a property within 300 feet of a public school. The city therefore believed that Allsup's would have to request a variance from that rule.

Last Thursday afternoon, City Administrator David Dockery learned about a 1970 court case which determined that a football stadium is "not a public school within the meaning of the statute," Dockery forwarded that information to the city's attorney, who in turn determined that Allsup's does not need to apply for a variance.

Clarendon School Superintendent Mike Norrell was attending Thursday's city meeting and raised the question of whether or not the school's functional living center was within the 300 feet rule. He and Dockery then actually left the meeting to go measure and came back in agreement that the distance to the center is 366 feet.

City officials say the Allsup's project can now go forward, and the city will not return the company's variance request fee.

Dockery said Tuesday that the school district had submitted the case law to its attorney and that they school does not intend to litigate the issue.

In other city news, aldermen heard from Ashlee Wortham regarding the condition of Burkhead Street in front of her residence in the 400 block. Wortham said rains leave her street in terrible shape and that her car has actually high-centered in the ruts.

City Administrator David Dockery and Public Works Director John Molder admitted that Burkhead is a problem due to the amount of water it carries. The city cannot pave the street at the current time due to funds not being available and the upcoming USDA-funded project to lay new water lines in that part of town.

City officials did agree to try to put some more base material on the street and overlay it with millings as they become available to temporarily try to improve the road.

The council also approved a motion to declare certain equipment as surplus so that it can be sold, and aldermen received the annual report of the Clarendon Housing Authority as presented by Tammy Christopher.

Clarendon High School recognized several outstanding students during graduation exercises last Friday. Cire Jauregui was named Salutatorian for the Class of 2017, Hannah Howard was the Valedictorian, Jensen Hatley was named the Best Girl Athlete, and Bryce Grahn received the Fighting Heart Award and the Knorrp Cup Award.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Jones is required to pay $488 in court costs, $501.36 in restitution, a $250 fine, and successfully complete 100 hours of community service. If Jones violates probation, he could face up to two years in the State Jail Division of the TDCJ.

Adam Harl Vorheis was also placed on probation for a period of two years for the state jail felony offense of burglary of a building. Vorheis pleaded guilty and was placed on deferred adjudication for the offense.

Vorheis, 20 from Clarendon, was arrested in Donley County for the offense that took place on May 7, 2017, by Hill. Vorheis pleaded to an information filed by the State on May 22, 2017.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Vorheis is required to pay $488.00 in court costs, $501.36 in restitution, a $250 fine, and successfully complete 100 hours of community service. If Vorheis violates probation, he could face up to two years in the State Jail Division of the TDCJ.

In another case heard last Tuesday, John Mark Dillinger, 32 from Martinez, Geo., was convicted for the class A misdemeanor offense of unlawful use of a criminal instrument and sentenced to 180 days in the Donley County Jail for the offense that took place on January 7, 2017.

County to refurbish windows on historic courthouse

Donley County Judge John Howard said windows on the 1890 Courthouse will soon be refurbished as county commissioners work to maintain the historic building.

The windows were one item on the county's May 8 agenda. Commissioners took no action on a proposal for the work at that time. Another, more economical proposal, will allow the county to perform the needed repairs, Howard said. Two third-story windows, which present a maintenance and safety risk, will be removed, rebuilt, and reinstalled at a cost of about $700 each, the judge said.

The county also is contacting expert architects and stone masons about spalling of the sandstone around the base of the courthouse. The issue of pieces of that stone flaking off was not addressed during the 2003 restoration of the building, and county officials are trying to determine the best course of action to fix that problem.

In other county business on May 8, commissioners accepted a proposal that would essentially privatize commissary and telephone services for inmates in the Donley County Jail. Howard said the move with ease some administrative work on the sheriff's office and not cost the county anything.

The purchase of new computers for the county/district clerk were approved with funds coming from the technology fund.

A bid on tax delinquent property at Howardwick was approved as presented.

Budget worksheets were also distributed to elected officials and department heads with a return deadline of June 12.

Grant project to create online tool to assist in rural economic development

COLLEGE STATION – An online modeling tool to assist with identifying potential economic development opportunities in rural communities will be developed as part of a collaborative effort led by Texas A&M AgriLife, Iowa State University and Michigan State University.

By analyzing federal employment and payroll statistics or “big data” the research team will more accurately identify detailed opportunities and thresholds of potential business creation in rural communities, said Dr. Craig Carpenter, the principal investigator on the project, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service economist in College Station.

“We are looking at socioeconomic, geographic and industrial factors that influence business success within a region,” Carpenter said. “Anyone will be able to pull up a national map of counties that will have information to assist in determining which industries are threatened or have a chance to expand within their county.”

Carpenter is joined by Dr. Rebekka Dudensing, AgriLife Extension economist in College Station; Dr. Linda Niehm, sociologist, Iowa State University; and Dr. Scott Lovridge, agricultural economist, Michigan State University.

The project is funded by one of 47 grants totaling $17.5 million recently awarded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture National Institute of Food and Agriculture. The funding is made possible through NIFA’s Agriculture and Food Research Initiative program, authorized by the 2014 Farm Bill.

“A number of factors are involved in achieving economic success in rural communities,” said NIFA Director Sonny Ramaswamy. “These NIFA investments will help us understand the social and behavioral factors that inform decision-making in agriculture, which can help rural communities thrive.”

Carpenter said the tool will be developed using a set of algorithms and by drawing information from the Texas Federal Statistical Research Data Center and other sources of data including other restricted-access datasets.

“The first year of the project, we will be interviewing community leaders to see what’s important to their local economy,” Carpenter said. “We will also be interviewing Extension specialists, entrepreneurs and others as part of this data-gathering effort.”

“We are also looking at information that is not publicly available to develop these opportunity maps.”

The project objectives are to evaluate demand and supply thresholds for various industries in the U.S.; evaluate local geographic, socioeconomic and industrial; create and implement an Extension rural community-opportunity matching program to identify potentially successful opportunities in pilot communities in Texas, Michigan and Iowa, then extend the program nationally, potentially through eXtension, the national collaborative program for Extension professionals.

The tool will assist in economic development by identifying which industries are under-represented in a county. For example, it would determine if a certain community could support another grocery store or a barbershop? If not, why?

Carpenter said the project will use data sets previously unexplored in economic development activity.

“This gives individuals access to results from big data,” Carpenter said. “More and more we are working with big data and trying find out how to better leverage this access into digestible output while still protecting the individual business from which the data derives. This project is the first to use these large data sets to investigate which businesses are in a particular community. We hope to publish numerous industry-specific research journal articles from these studies and help our rural communities as a result.”

Don't fall for the prize scams

Hi, gang! I hope you took time to remember our service personnel Monday, whether stationed stateside or deployed to another part of the world, our military personnel make sacrifices during their service. Some have made the ultimate sacrifice. In fact, since the country's founding, more than one million service members have lost their lives during a conflict. Let's continue to honor those fallen troops who died in service of the nation, and our fallen law enforcement who also died.

"Watch Out for Prize Scams," by Kristin Keckeisen, AARP. There are plenty of reputable contests and sweepstakes out there (including some from AARP). But there are also a lot of bad players looking to bilk you out of your money. How it Works: You're told you've won a prize but you have to pay a fee to collect your winnings; You have to wire money to a well-known company to insure delivery of the prize; You have to deposit a check they have sent you;

Your notice was mailed by bulk rate; or You have to attend a sales meeting to win.

What You Should Know: You can't win a contest you didn't enter. Don't believe claims that you were automatically entered. What You Should Do: Be vigilant. The Federal Trade Commission recommends looking up a contest or promoter in a search engine with the words "scam" or "complaint".

Warn others. If you think you've been targeted by a prize scam, report it at www.ftc.gov/complaint and share on the Fraud Watch Network scam-tracking map. When it comes to fraud, vigilance is our number one weapon. You have the power to protect yourself and your loved ones from scams. Please share this alert with friends and family.

Fraud Watch Network P.S. Spotted a scam? Tell us about it. Our scam-tracking map gives you information about the latest scams tar-getting people in your state. You'll also find first-hand accounts from scam-sporters who are sharing their experiences so you know how to protect yourself and your family.

"Student loan scam gets a F from the FTC" by Alesha Hernandez, FTC

The costs of student loans and fees can be overwhelming. You might see online ads that promise to help lower your payments or get your loans forgiven. But be wary of companies that make those promises, and never pay an upfront fee. Today, the FTC announced it had filed charges against Strategic Student Solutions, Student Relief Center, and related companies for lying to consumers about providing student loan debt relief and charging illegal upfront fees.

by bob watson

According to the FTC's complaint, Strategic Student Solutions promised consumers loan forgiveness or payment reduction and credit repair services, but they didn't deliver. They told consumers that their monthly fees would be put toward their student loans. They also charged consumers illegal upfront fees of up to $1,200. Consumers found out later that they had not been enrolled in forgiveness or repayment programs, that none of their payments had been put towards their student loans, and their credit had not been repaired. In fact, consumers often ended up farther behind on their payments than when they first signed up for the companies' services.

If you have paid money to Strategic Student Solutions or Student Relief Center, contact your loan servicer immediately. Depending on the type of loans you have, you may want to discuss a repayment plan or other options for your situation.

Remember, you do not have to pay for help with your student loans. Never pay an upfront fee for the promise of debt relief. Learn how to spot a debt relief scheme.

To report a student loan debt relief scam, file a complaint with the FTC at ftc.gov/complaint; the CFPB at consumerfinance.gov/complaint and your state's Attorney General's office.

"I'd like a scam-free vacation" by Rosario Méndez, FTC.

Summer is around the corner, and I'm dreaming about my next vacation! There are so many places to visit, and a lot of travel deals to consider. My budget and time are limited, so I have to choose carefully. I simply can't afford losing out to a travel scam. I want a good trip at a fair price, so I only deal with travel businesses I trust - whether it's a travel agency or a travel website. I also do research and ask myself some key questions: Are the cancellations and refund policies clear? Can I get a copy of these policies in writing? Can I pay with credit card? Credit cards give more protection than paying with cash or check. Do I know the total price of the hotel stay per night, including any "resort fees" or other mandatory charges? Knowing the total price is the only way to compare hotels, so I ask if the price includes all the fees.

Can I trust that review? If a reviewer is being paid to review a hotel or something else, they should disclose that, but not all do. I look at different websites for reviews, that way I can evaluate comments from different sources. Also good to know: If you receive a "robocall" saying you won a "free" vacation, that's a scam. Just hang up and report the caller to the FTC. For more tips on having a scam-free vacation, including tips on travel, timeshares and renting properties, check out ftc.gov/travelscams.

McQueen visits the Mulkey

Last Friday, when I woke up, Lightning McQueen pulled into my driveway. It was a Chevy Camaro with stickers with the number 95 and eyeballs in the windshield so that it looked like Lightning McQueen. That's the character from all the Cars movies.

the cub reporter
by Benjamin Estlack

The reason John Morrow borrows the red Camaro is for the new Cars movie - Cars 3 - that is coming out this summer. When the drive-in shows the Cars movies, they always line up some of the Cars characters outside the Sandell. Thanks, John, for bringing the car by my house!

The next day, was the Mulkey Block Party. Lightning McQueen was in the car show, and John also brought a school bus that is also a character from the new Cars movie.

There were also other things that were fun at the block party. That includes the movies that were showing in the theatre, the games that some booths had, and also the inflatable slide that the Whistle-Stop brought. We also at a certain we showed a short documentary about the Mulkey - what it used to be and what is planned for it - by Nikki and Dusty Green, who are on the show "Two for the Road."

I'm really ready for the Mulkey to be fixed so we can start showing more movies in it!

WHISTLE STOP LEGENDS
Whistle-Stop owners Jordan & Kimberly salute this week's legend...
CLARA CARHART
Clara Hannah Sully was born April 29, 1843, in Bytown near Ottawa, Canada, to English parents James and Laura Sully.
Growing up she showed an interest in books and decided early on to be a teacher. She began to teach after graduation and moved with her family to Davenport, Iowa, in 1861. She taught for six years and introduced musical instruction in every grade in every school of that city.
She married Rev. Lewis H. Carhart in 1871, eventually followed him to Texas where her popularity helped him build large congregations in Dallas and Sherman. In 1878, when Rev. Carhart established his Christian Colony, he named it Clarendon in her honor and she is credited with ban the sale of alcohol in Donley County at that time.
Mrs. Carhart returned to the east coast, divorced Lewis, and was a leader in the temperance movement at the turn of the century. She died in 1913.
The Whistle-Stop and the community salute the memory of Clara Carhart and her influence in the settlement of the town that still bears her name - Clarendon. Thank you, Mrs. Carhart!

CISD named May Student Servant Leaders

Clarendon CISD named its Student Servant Leaders for May last week.

The leadership is rooted in the service of others. To be a servant leader is to think of others first, commit unselfish acts of kindness, and be a positive influence. Furthermore, anyone and everyone can be a servant leader, and if we have a campus, school, community, nation, and world of those that respect others and sacrifice their time, efforts, and treasures for others, then we all benefit.

The following students have been positive role models, peer tutors, and respectful to teachers, other adults, and classmates. They have helped their teachers with classroom chores, been kind to new students and shown them the way, reminded others to be respectful in the way the spoke to teachers and staff, and have represented CCISD well in many different activities throughout the year and their careers. Many times, our student servant leaders work quietly behind the scenes, but that is what makes them leaders... doing good works for others when no one is watching.

May's student servant leaders are:

Elementary: Kindergarten, Karli Jones; 1st grade, Kennedy Halsey; 2nd grade, Marelli Mercado; 3rd grade, Madi Benson; 4th grade, John Weatherston; and 5th grade, Courtney Conkin.

Junior High: 6th grade, Jace Cottrell; 7th grade, Kamie Duncan; and Antonio Fernandez; and 8th grade, Hadley Dale.

High School: 9th grade, Kenny Overstreet; 10th grade, Preston Elam; 11th grade, Kade Hunsaker; and 12th grade, Chance Lockhart.

"These students make our school and community a better place because of how they choose to treat other people." Superintendent Mike Norrell said. "We are very honored to have these students attend Clarendon CISD and are very pleased to recognize them for serving others. On behalf of everyone at CCISD, have a safe, restful, and fun summer. Please continue to help us recognize the servant leader traits in our students even when they are not at school for the next few months."

Clarendon Elementary servant leaders for May are Kennedy Halsey, 1st; John Weatherston, 4th; Madi Benson, 3rd; Karli Jones, Kindergarten; Marelli Mercado, 2nd; and Courtney Conkin, 5th.

Clarendon Junior High servant leaders for May are Antonio Fernandez, 7th; Hadley Dale, 8th; Jace Cottrell, 6th; and Kami Duncan, 7th.

Drugs in the News
 New Multiple Sclerosis Drug Shows Promise
 In a recent study of patients with relapsing multiple sclerosis, ozanimod was linked to a decrease in yearly relapse rates. Ozanimod is a sphingosine 1-phosphate 1 (S1PR1) and 5 (S1PR5) receptor modulator. It binds specifically to S1PR1 receptors to block the flow of activated white blood cells, which decreases inflammation. Ozanimod also binds with S1PR5 receptors to help prevent nerve damage. Researchers of the study observed over 1,000 people with relapsing multiple sclerosis for 12 months. When compared to the standard drug treatment, ozanimod showed a larger decrease in relapses. Side effects of this drug may include headaches.
 Multiple sclerosis is a condition where the immune system attacks the covering of the nerves. It is likely caused by either a genetic disorder, viruses, or the environment. Relapses occur when there is a sudden increase in symptoms. Symptoms of relapsing multiple sclerosis may include dizziness, numbness, vision problems, and stiff muscles.

Obituaries

Hommel

Memorial services for Laura Hommel were held at 2:00 p.m. Monday, May 29, 2017, in the First Baptist Church in Clarendon with Rev. Lance Wood officiating.

Hommel

Private family burial was in Citizens Cemetery in Clarendon with arrangements by Robertson Funeral Directors of Clarendon.

Laura Lea Hommel, 46 of Clarendon, received God's ultimate healing on May 26, 2017, after losing her brave battle with cancer. Laura had a way of reminding others to laugh, love one another, smile... make the best of and love what we have in whatever situation. Laura never met a stranger. She was a generous and loving friend.

Laura Lea Stowe was born on March 21, 1971, to Terry and Marsha Stowe. Laura graduated from House High School in House, New Mexico, and received her college degree from West Texas A&M University in Canyon. Being very competitive she loved sports and played basketball, volleyball and track, was active in FFA and 4-H, was a New Mexico state 4-H officer. She met Chauncey Eugene Hommel II (Chad) while attending Clarendon College on a livestock judging scholarship. Chad and Laura married July 25, 1992. They are blessed with two children. Chauncey Eugene Hommel III (Tres) and Hannah Lea Hommel. They are active members of First Baptist Church of Clarendon.

Always having a heart for children, especially those with special challenges she began her teaching career in McLean in 1993. Chad and Laura were relocated to Clarendon by the help of an EF 4 tornado in 1995, and she had continued her Special Education teaching career at Clarendon Independent School District for 17 years at the Functional Living Center, up until a few weeks ago. She was instrumental in helping find funding for the Donley Activities Center.

Hommel was named "Woman of the Year" by the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce for 2005 and was honored as a Distinguished Alumni of Clarendon College last fall. The school building in which she taught in Clarendon was recently renamed, "Laura's Legacy Center". What wonderful, caring communities are in this area that have showed such great love and support to Laura and her family, especially during these last three years.

Laura is survived by her parents, Terry and Marsha Stowe of House, New Mexico; husband Chad Hommel; children Tres and wife Ashley Hommel, and Hannah Hommel all of Clarendon; a brother Terrill and wife Shana and girls Kyeli and Jordyn of House, New Mexico; and maternal grandmother Mayme Runyan now of Clovis. She is also survived by her in-laws Gene and Kathy Hommel of Clarendon and many uncles, aunts, cousins, nieces and nephews.

Laura preceded in death by her paternal grandparents Deal and Ruby Stowe of Portales, New Mexico and her maternal grandfather Bruce Runyan of House, New Mexico.

In lieu of flowers, family request memorials be sent to the Donley County Activity Center, PO Box 661, Clarendon, TX 79226.

Legislature approves overhaul of school ratings

By Aliyya Swaby, The Texas Tribune

Texas House and Senate education leaders came to a compromise on how to tweak a plan for grading schools and districts, which the House and Senate each passed without dissent Sunday evening.

The Senate voted 31-0 and the House voted 140-0 to approve a conference committee report on House Bill 22, editing a plan lawmakers approved in 2015 to start giving Texas schools grades of A-F.

The two chambers had struggled to see eye-to-eye on how much weight to give students' standardized test scores when grading a school or district, and on how much flexibility educators should have in determining how they are assessed. On Saturday, members from both chambers spent hours hashing out the differences.

Educators and advocates on both sides Sunday expressed concern that such major changes were made so late in the process, when it was too late for public input. The House is expected to vote on the compromise Sunday evening.

In 2015, the Legislature first decided to switch to an A-F system of grading schools and districts to replace the current pass/fail system. Educators statewide protested against the original plan, which they said relied too heavily on standardized tests and did not give an accurate sense of how schools were performing.

"You know that most of the schools and the districts in your [legislative] districts were not happy with the implementation" when A-F was first rolled out, said Rep. Diego Bernal, D-San Antonio, in the House late Sunday. The final version of this legislation rewards schools for their progress, while also highlighting where they need work, he said.

The House and Senate came to a compromise that has more "balance," state Sen. Larry Taylor, R-Friendswood, the bill's sponsor that on chamber, told the Senate Sunday evening.

Taylor originally wanted an accountability system with more weight on standardized tests and less flexibility on how to grade schools. Rep. Dan Huberty, R-Houston, who authored the bill, wanted less weight on standardized tests and local choice on which exams to use to judge schools.

In the compromise version of the bill, schools and districts would be graded in three categories: student achievement, student progress and closing the gaps. Elementary and middle schools would be assessed in each of those categories by how well students are doing on the standardized state exam. High school grades would be based on the standardized state test, as well as factors such as high school graduation rates, and rates of students taking advanced courses.

Schools doing well could petition state education Commissioner Mike Morath to build their own accountability system that would account for at most half of the overall grade.

"Our local districts have some input into this accountability system," Taylor said. "The best way to get things done is to have the people you're working with develop their own goals."

Under the final version of HB 22, districts will get their first grades in August 2018, and individual schools in August 2019. The Senate had originally opposed any delay of implementation to 2019, and the House had wanted to delay all grades to 2019.

State Sen. José Menéndez, D-San Antonio, said he approved so much of the changes that he would consider changing his position on the A-F rating system overall. "I've never been a big fan of A-F, but based on what I've seen here, I may have to re-evaluate my position," he said.

But educators and advocates on both sides were concerned that HB 22 had changed so drastically without public input.

"Giving the public virtually no time to review or weigh in on this last-minute proposal is troubling," said Courtney Boswell, executive director of Texas Aspires, which supported the original A-F system and has been skeptical of proposed changes. "We are unsure how this system has come together in order to be meaningful for students, parents, educators, and communities. Texas students deserve a measured approach to fixing our accountability system instead of hastily passing an unvetted system that may create unintended consequences."

Alief ISD Superintendent HD Chambers, who was involved in creating the original bill, said many superintendents are asking: "Why, at the last second, did this change happen?"

He supports the negotiated version's flexibility for some campuses and districts in determining how they are graded. "You're giving campuses and districts the chance to be innovative, within whatever the parameters are going to be. At least it's a step in that direction," he said.

But he said the compromise version of the bill still relies on standardized state test scores, instead of alternative measures, and gives Morath too much power to approve future changes to the system.

FSA nomination period begins June 15

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced Tuesday that the nomination period for local Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees begins on Thursday, June 15, 2017.

"County committees allow farmers and ranchers to make important decisions about how federal farm programs are administered locally to best serve their needs," said Acting FSA Administrator Chris Beyersheim. "We strongly encourage all eligible producers to visit their local FSA office today to find out how to get involved in their county's election. There's an increasing need for representation from underserved producers, which includes beginning, women and other minority farmers and ranchers."

County committees are made up of farmers and ranchers elected by other producers in their communities to guide the delivery of farm programs at the local level. Committee members play a critical role in the day-to-day operations of FSA. Committees consist of three to 11 members and meet once a month or as needed to make important decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs, county office employment and other agricultural issues. Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are over 7,700 farmer and ranchers serving on FSA county committees.

Farmers and ranchers may nominate themselves or others. Organizations, including those representing beginning, women and minority producers, may also nominate candidates to better serve their communities. To be eligible to serve on an FSA county committee, a person must participate or cooperate in an agency administered program, and reside in the local administrative area where the election is being held.

After the nomination period, candidates will encourage the eligible producers in their local administrative area to vote. FSA will mail election ballots to eligible voters beginning Nov. 6, 2017. Ballots will be due back to the local county office either via mail or in person by Dec. 4, 2017. Newly-elected committee members and alternates will take office on Jan. 1, 2018.

To become a candidate, an eligible individual must sign an FSA-669A nomination form. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at www.fsa.usda.gov/elections. All nomination forms for the 2017 election must be postmarked or received in the local FSA office by Aug. 1, 2017.
