Mother and Son 'Artists Of Month'

A mother and son, June and Terry Keltz are "Artists of the Month" with paintings on display in the foyer of the Cititzens State Bank

Mrs. Keltz is a native West Texas and the granddaughter of A.L. Barton, pioneer rancher and foreman of the "F" Ranch in Motley, Brisco, Floyd, and Hall Counties under Charles Goodnight.

Her paintings are a culmination of her love for the West. She says, "I have only to look out my studio window to see a bow-legged cowboy wearing a sweatsoaked hat with a dip of Skoal in his mouth. Windmills, sagebrush, bear grass, and wild flowers are subject matter outside my door.

Her painting performances have won many honors and awards, the most recent being a purchase award given by the South Plains Art Association of Plainview. Her paintings hang in homes and businesses throughout Texas and seven other states. One of her western scenes is exhibited in the Roy Rogers Museum in Apple Valley, California.

June has studied under such noted instructors as Lonnie Mason, Paul Wylie, Glenna Goodachre, Connie Martin, Ben Konis, and Jan Herring. She spent one summer in Taos, New Mexico, with the Texas Tech Art Department where she studied under Dr. Clarence Kincaid, Paul Hanna, and Juanita Tittle Pollard.

Her son Terry holds a bachelor of science degree in biological science and art from Wayland Baptist College. He is a medical technologist by profession and manages a medical laboratory and x-ray department in Plainview.

Born and raised in the rough foothill country of Motley County, Terry's early years were spent in and around the farming and ranching country near Matador. It was here where he spent either a good quarter horse or a Moline tractor that he began to appreciate the simple beauty found in every square mile of that part of the country. "A person can look in any direction and find a scene worthy of framing," he Terry's artistic interest is limited to the geographical area just off the caprock. His interest is in anything in view which portrays the West, particularly the weathered face of an old pioneer cowboy or Navajo Indian.

Because of his love for the West, its people, places and nostalgia, Terry devotes his talent to capturing the beauty of such through the media of oil, acrylic, water color, pen and ink, and bronze sculp-

Mini Mall Celebrates Seventh Anniversary

This Fourth of July weekend, the Knox City Mini Mall will be celebrating its seventh anniversary and during this time the businesses of the two sisters Dessie Egenbacher and Romain Stubbs, have expanded to the extent that the women's two shops, The Lady Bug Shoppe, owned and operated by Mrs. Egenbacher, and The Art Stall and Frame Shop, owned and operated by Mrs. Stubbs and her husband Jack, now occupy the entire building which orginally housed five

The women's brother, Bobby Day, Lubbock realtor, conceived the idea of housing several shops under one roof, and the sisters decided to "give it a try." This was the beginning of the Knox City Mini Mall seven years ago.

According to the sisters, business continues to skyrocket and in addition to their two businesses, Mrs. Egenbacher is now opening a children's shop. Children's clothing has been stocked by the Mini Mall for sometime; however, she is now taking the space formerly occupied by The Styling Stall and converting it to the children's shop. In addition to clothing for every size youngster, from the tiniest babe to size fourteen, she also will be stocking novelty items.

The Lady Bug Shoppe has more than tripled in size since the Mini Mall's beginning

Romain and Jack, who custom design and make any type frame, have a wide selection of art supplies, macrame, and hobby crafts. Mrs. Stubbs has the American Handicrafts franchise along with Merribee Needlecrafts. She sponsors classes in oils, tole painting, decoupage, and macrame at various time of the year, and almost always, some type of class is underway at The Art Stall. Lots of wicker and brass items are also in stock for a complete selection of gift ideas. Both shops have more than doubled in size

DPS Estimates Holiday Deaths

AUSTIN - The Department of Public Safety today estimated that as many as 44 persons may die in Texas traffic accidents during the upcoming July 4th weekend unless drivers exercise extreme caution.

"Texas is well on its way to yet another record year for traffic fatalities," Adams said. "We can put a stop to this dangerous trend if more motorists will slow down. refrain from drinking and use the most readily-available safety precaution -- seat belts.

STREAMSIN DESERT PLACES By OZELLE STEPHENS

"Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and you shall find rest unto your souls.' (Matthew 11:28-29).

We have been learning about how God cared for all his creations, even the animals and birds as well as man. He is asking all to come unto Him to find the rest that this tired, weary world is hungry for.

Rest in God is not only an experience we receive by faith in the sacrificial work of Jesus on the cross but also it is a condition of living. It is a definite way of life that can be applied to all phases of our personalities and under all circumstances of our daily lives. Resting in the Lord is really having faith in the Lord, confident that he will work things out, that he will take care of us that, sin, from fear, from disease, from all the things that satan brought upon man. If we are abiding in God's rest we find that he is with us every hour of every day. He does not grow weaker or older. Every thing we need is provided by God's love. His glorious Rest is yours for the taking. He also said, "For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.'

Program To Curb Health Care Abuse

LACKLAND AFB, Tex. -Fraudulent use and abuse of the military health care system, estimated at $60 million a year, is so widespread that the Department of Defense (DoD) has started a new program to curb abuse -- a program that affects everyone entitled to military health care.

This month DoD started enrolling all military retirees, survivors, active duty members and eligible family members who reside in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS).

Every active duty military person, as well as retirees and survivors must enroll in DEERS to receive medical care.

The old method of presenting a military identification card to obtain service at a military health facility is on the way out. In the future, DEERS' nationwide computer linkup will determine who is eligible to be treated, and it will not recognize the standard identification card. For now, however, the ID card will still work since the new DEERS system will not DoD's toughest problem is informing military retirees and survivors, especially those who are not presently receiving government checks, but who are eligible for military health care.

"They have to know that if they are going to continue to use military health facilities, such as base or post hospitals, they must enroll in DEERS. And the time for them to enroll is this summer," according to Bob MacNaughton, DEERS spokesman for the three-state area, at Lackland AFB, near San Antonio.

In September, military health facilities in the three-state area will begin checking names with the DEERS computer link. Those who do not show up on the computer tape will not be denied care at first, MacNaughton explained, but they will be informed that they must enroll.

But the method of enrolling differs according to the categories of those eligible for care.

Active duty members of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marines automatically will be enrolled in DEERS. Although they will not have to enroll, they will have to enroll their spouses and their children.

Retired members of the military who are receiving government checks will also be enrolled automatically, since the services have current records indicating their status eligibility. But they must take steps to enroll family members.

All survivors (widow and widowers of active duty or retired service members) must enroll themselves.

establishing family relationships to sponsors, such as birth certificates and marriage licenses, will be needed. The process will be similar to applying for an ID card, MacNaughton said, but applicants will not receive a new card. An important difference, he noted, is that children under 10, who are not required to have an ID card, must be

In all cases documentation enrolled in DEERS.

In late June, retirees will be mailed application forms and instructions for enrolling their families. Enrollment can be accomplished through the mail with no requirement for the retiree to report to a military installation. The same is true for survivors who are receiving checks.

But most survivors, and some retirees, will not get packets because DoD does not have their current addresses. They should contact the military to have the packets mailed to them, MacNaughton said, if they haven't received one by mid-July Retired Air Force members, for example, should contact the DEERS office or the Retirement Services Office at the Air Force Base nearest them, he said.

Active duty service men and women will enroll their families through normal personnel channels at their commands. Their commanders will tell them how to enroll and where to report. Single service members with no family members to support will not have to do anything, according to MacNaughton.

The Defense Department has been phasing in the DEERS system since November of 1979. Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas make up the sixth phase of the massive enrollment effort.

Based on Defense Audit Service and General Accounting Office reports, DoD estimates that the misuse of the health care program annually costs the government as much as $20 million at military hospitals and $40 million in CHAMPUS, the Civilian Health and Medical Program for the uniformed Services.

Much of this abuse occurs when persons who were once eligible fail to return their identification cards to military authorities when their eligibility ends and then continue to receive medical care and other benefits to which they are not entitled. Fraud occurs when someone uses an identification card that has been altered or obtained illegally.

Under the DEERS system people seeking medical services from a military facility will be checked through a telephone computer link in the same fashion credit cards companies validate accounts. CHAMPUS will also use the system to confirm an individual's entitlement to reimbursement for services rendered by non-military medical facilities. This is the system which uses civilian insurance companies to pay portions of health care by military beneficiaries from civilian Inflation - Fighting FOOD IDEAS
