Supplies from 1950s...

Emergency group plans to inventory stored MASH unit

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

A newly appointed Local Emergency Planning Committee for Scurry County is planning to uncrate medical supplies and equipment that have been stored here since the 1950s to determine if a MASH unit can be constructed "just in case."

Dr. Robert B. Pierce, a committee member, and chairman W.E. (Bill) Moore had Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell open the shed that stores the apparently extensive supplies in the city barn compound last week.

Pierce looked over the boxes of surgical equipment, operating tables, waterproof blankets, oxygen bottles, cots, compresses, a generator, lights and other supplies and said that it was probably all still in good condition. "This Army stuff is nothing but building within the next few weeks."

Local PCA merges

The Snyder branch of Sweetwater Production Credit Association, formerly part of a 14-county group, has now merged with Texas PCA based in San Angelo, part of a three-way merger effective in January.

The joining of the three PCAs is expected to result in a stronger capital base, the elimination of duplicate services and lower interest rates.

Along with Sweetwater Production Credit, which entailed six counties, the three-county Marfa PCA has merged with Texas PCA. In all, 23 counties now comprise Texas PCA.

In January, the interest rates for Texas PCA dropped to 10.05 percent. This compares to the old rate charged by Sweetwater PCA of 12.2 percent.

Charlie Bell, manager for the local PCA office, said customers here will likely notice no difference except for the projected benefits of a stronger capital base.

"We won't even be changing our sign," he noted.

Ken Smith of San Angelo will be president of the Texas PCA. The association has $53 million in assets. See PCA, page 13A

WTC total finalized at 1,117

The official count for the spring semester at Western Texas College was completed Friday with student enrollment now set at 1,117.

This is slightly under the fall enrollment at the college and approximately 100 students fewer than counted last spring. This past fall, WTC enrolled 1,165 and, last spring, the student number was 1,230.

This term, the college has 527 fulltime and 590 part-time students.

By far the majority of WTC's enrollment involves on-campus students. The off-campus enrollment totals some 118 students taking courses at three extension centers in Haskell, Crosbyton and Sweetwater.

When comparing this spring to last year, college officials noted the head count was down by 109, but the number of fulltime students decreased by only 52.

This resulted in approximately the same number of semester hours being taken on campus. This spring, the figure is 9,859 as compared to 10,479 last year.

A college-level course normally involves three semester hours, indicating the student meets three times weekly for one hour of instruction.

College officials reported also the spring semester's total of contact hours, which reflects the time students will actually be in class for the semester. For academic courses, the spring count is 177,056 and for vocational-technical courses, the count is 56,336.

Last spring, WTC had 182,896 academic contact hours and 61,984 for vo-tech.

Renovation at airport 'on hold' temporarily

Workers involved in the paving project at Winston Field are to finish paving around the T-hangers this week and then put the project in abeyance until mid-April.

Don McCrary of the San Antonio engineering firm that is overseeing the $1.8 million project said he is pleased with the leveling, re-paving, extension and installation of lights on the runway.

The project should take another two to three months when the Price Construction crew from Big Spring returns, the engineer said.

In the interim, he said, Bain, McCrary, Bain will do design work for the rest of the job, including re-paving the taxiway and east-west runway.

The airport will have all new pavement on the east "or" "operating" side when the project is completed, he said.

Vets pitch in for Boys Club

Members of three veterans' organizations have joined forces to take up the old tile in the Scurry County Boys Club gymnasium and raise money for its replacement.

More than a dozen worked from 7 p.m. to midnight Thursday to remove the tile in the 4,800-square-foot room in the club building at 1500 28th St.

Earlier, the Vietnam Veterans Association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion had raised $2,500 to have the floor re-tiled, along with the Boys and Girls Little Dribblers and the local Tae Kwan Do Club.

Boys Club executive director Jack McGlaun said the floor, installed in 1966, had to be replaced because the building "had been flooded four times" and the old tiles generally were breaking and coming loose.

Those who took part in the Thursday night project were John Pilgrim, Bob Cole, Tom Seaborn, Rene Garza, Oscar Garza, Lacy Edwards, Chester Clark, George Kiker, Kino Severa, Sharon Severa, David Adams, Hugh Harvel and H.L. McCormack. Adams, Harvel and McCormack are from the American Legion, and the others are all of the Vietnam Veterans Association.

GETTING IT DONE — Vietnam veterans and American Legion members got a fast start in tearing up the old tiles in the Boys Club gymnasium Thursday night. The groups have already raised enough money to have the floor re-tiled. (SDN Staff Photo)

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's more fashionable to say we're moving in cycles rather than we're running around in circles."

Jack Denman wants to sing in the choir at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

However, the retired Sun Gas executive, still has to sit in the audience with his wife. The minister, Miller Robinson, explained, "The choir sits behind the pulpit, and we want Denman where we can see him."

It was Robinson who asked Denman why he regularly fell asleep while Robinson preached. Explained Denman, "No need to be offended. Would I fall asleep if I didn't trust you?"

When Gary Hart got back in the race for president, wags across the country got in a bunch of cheap shots about the candidate and his affection for the female gender.

It's interesting that on the last day of the first month of the new year, we can still remember one resolution—finding something positive even about the most difficult of situations.

We've searched and we've searched and finally concluded that Hart may be as qualified as any to be president. At least he has experience in domestic affairs.

Some have called the Democratic presidential contenders "The Seven Dwarfs. We don't know who's who in the lineup, but Hart certainly isn't Bashful.

We agree with Senator Kennedy. The media should concentrate more on issues and less on the personal lives of politicians.

Behavior outside the halls of Congress ought to be forgotten like so much water under the bridge. Right, Teddy?

Japan retains auto export limit, Reagan toughens stance

By The Associated Press
 Japanese officials have decided to limit passenger car exports to the United States for the eighth consecutive year amid signs of a hardening trade stance by the Reagan administration.

Japan said Friday it would keep the limit of 2.3 million cars in the fiscal year beginning April 1 to avoid fanning protectionist sentiment in Washington.

The decision was made in spite of some pressure within the Japanese government to scrap the restraints because the rise in the value of the Japanese yen had already cut deeply into export sales.

The Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association announced Friday that Japan's exports declined 6.1 percent in calendar year 1987 to 2.2 million autos.

Meanwhile, President Reagan revoked duty-free privileges enjoyed by South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore, and the administration drafted plans to slap $105 million in sanctions on Brazilian products.

Trade preferences for the Asian nations will be removed on Jan. 2, 1989. The preferences, designed for emerging nations, were no longer necessary in the case of the four nations, officials said.

The sanctions against Brazil are in retaliation for that country's refusal to permit imports of U.S.-made computer software.

JUDGE BUD ARNOT

Judge Arnot appears here

Judge Bud Arnot, associate justice of the 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland, was in Snyder Friday to meet voters and discuss campaign issues.

Arnot has just completed his first year on the appellate court bench, having been appointed in December 1986 to succeed the retiring Associate Justice Raleigh Brown. He is running in the Democratic primary, seeking to serve the two years remaining on Brown's unexpired term. His present appointment is through Dec. 31, 1988.

Arnot said he enjoyed his service on the appellate court and definitely plans to run for a full, six-year term in 1990. "I didn't go into it looking at it as a place to retire," he said. "It has taken a lot of hard work to prove I could do the job, but hard work is not something I've ever shied away from."

Arnot attended Washington and Lee University before receiving a business degree from the University of Texas in 1972. He graduated from Baylor University Law School in 1975.

While in law school, he worked as a summer intern in the Taylor County district attorney's office, by far the largest prosecutor's office in the 11th judicial district.

After graduation, he joined the Abilene law firm of Wagstaff, Harrell, Alvin, Stubbman, Seamster & Longacre and later became a partner.

In 1982, he became one of the founding partners of a new firm, Glandon, Scarborough, Baker, Choate, & Arnot.

Oil pipeline memo is focus of probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Problems are mounting for a beleaguered Attorney General Edwin Meese III, who has been under criminal investigation for nearly nine months in a probe that appears likely to continue through much of President Reagan's last year in office.

The latest revelation regarding Meese: A 1985 memo sent to him by his longtime friend E. Robert Wallach citing a plan to pay off a top Israeli official to support a proposed $1 billion Iraq oil pipeline project.

Independent counsel James C. McKay, who launched an investigation of Meese last May 11 and who has expanded it into several other areas, is focusing on the memo.

The New York Times, citing unidentified sources, reported in Saturday's editions that Meese played a crucial role in advancing the pipeline project. The newspaper also said that Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres wrote a handwritten letter to Meese in mid-1985, when Peres was prime minister, to express his government's support for the pipeline. The pipeline was never built.

According to Saturday's Los Angeles Times — which disclosed the existence of the memo Friday — unidentified sources said Peres also pledged that if Israel did attack the pipeline, the Israeli government would use future U.S. aid to pay for repairs.

The newspaper said Friday that some sources identified Peres as the official targeted for the bribe plan, and reported today that two people familiar with the project say the memo may have outlined plans to use Peres to funnel political donations to the Labor Party in Israel.

Yossi Gal, a spokesman for the Israeli Embassy in Washington, called the memo "a wild fantasy that is not even worthy of comment."

But he went further when speaking to the Los Angeles Times: "No money or anything of value whatsoever has ever been offered or given to Mr. Peres or to the Labor Party by anybody involved in this project."

The Peres letter to Meese was considered unusual because the head of another government normally would communicate with the secretary of state, not the attorney general, the New York Times report said.

Wallach met twice with Peres in 1985 to discuss the pipeline project, The Washington Post reported in today's editions, quoting unidentified sources. The Times said Peres discussed the matter in Washington with Robert C. McFarlane, then the national security adviser.

Meese's lawyers denied that the attorney general had done anything wrong and declined to discuss whether Meese had read the Wallach memo when it was sent to him. They refused even to confirm the memo's existence.

The Foreign Corrupt Practices Act bars U.S. citizens from bribing foreign officials.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said President Reagan "has full confidence in Ed Meese."

WTC staffers accept committee positions

Four Western Texas College faculty members have been named to committees helping formulate the new Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP).

Faculty members are Elaine Anderson, Dr. Edward Barkowsky, Gerald Corkran and Dr. Mary Hood. Mrs. Anderson is associate professor of mathematics. Dr. Barkowsky is chairman of the Communications and Letters Division and professor of English. Corkran is director of WTC's Developmental Reading Center and an associate professor. Dr. Hood is Director of Testing and professor of psychology.

Mrs. Anderson and Dr. Barkowsky are serving on a regional committee which will review content objectives of the TASP. The committee held its meeting Jan. 20 and is to meet again in May, then in August or September, and will hold its final meeting in November.

Corkran is serving on the Test Development Advisory Committee of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. This committee will be involved in determining the content of the TASP tests.

Dr. Hood is on the Tests and Measurements Committee which will work to determine such matters as how and where TASP tests will be administered, who will administer them, what the cost will be to students taking the tests and other related matters.

The administration of the TASP tests will begin in the spring of 1989. The tests are designed to assess the level of basic skills of students entering Texas colleges or universities and to assist students who need to develop fundamental skills. The process for test development is comprehensive and involves thousands of Texas educators and students over a period of more than a year.

The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board and the Texas Education Agency have contracted with National Evaluation Systems, Inc. of Amherst, Mass. to develop and administer the tests.

Stacy dam signs now in place

BIG SPRING--A public observation point overlooking the Stacy dam construction is now open to the public.

Signs directing drivers to the site have been erected at two points off FM 2134 in Concho County by the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation. From that point over a distance of about 3 1/2 miles the Colorado River Municipal Water District, builder of the project, has erected signs on the dirt roads leading to the point.

Ample parking space, together with a sign with highlight facts on the reservoir, has been provided. Viewers can see the scope of the work from a high point overlooking the bluff on the southeast side of the Colorado River. The construction stretches about two miles to the northeast from that point.

One of the turn-off signs on FM 2134 is immediately south of the juncture with FM 1929, about 20 miles southeast of Ballinger. The other is midway between the Colorado River Crossing and the FM 1929 intersection.

Veterans told of fraud case

A veteran who sells a home with a GI loan should be sure that the loan is paid in full or a Release of Liability is obtained from the VA, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

If this is not done, the veteran remains liable for repayment of the loan and may be victimized by a type of fraud called equity skimming. In the typical equity skimming case, the buyer rents the property and pockets the money rather than applying it to the loan. It is often not until after the mortgage lender forecloses on the property that the veteran discovers his liability.

"The fact that the veteran decided the property doesn't release him from liability under the loan and doesn't necessarily make the purchaser liable for repayment of the mortgage," Dever added. "A veteran thinking of selling a home and allowing the buyer to take over the payments on the GI loan should give consideration to making the obtaining of a Release of Liability from the VA a condition of the sale. The veteran begins by writing the VA regional office that guaranteed the loan and requesting the necessary forms for the liability release."

Veterans who need information about VA benefits and regulations may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration Building. The office is open each weekday.

9 officers relieved of duty

HOUSTON (AP) — Nine Houston police officers were relieved of duty with pay pending completion of a grand jury investigation into allegations they lied in court and falsified evidence to obtain convictions. All formerly were plainclothes patrol officers assigned to a tactical response unit in southeast Houston, officials said. Investigators with the Houston police department's internal affairs division recommended the action to Police Chief Lee Brown after reviewing allegations against members of the now-disbanded unit. Brown was said to be out of town and unavailable for comment.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. WM95, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800)527-9700, ext. WM95.

Houston Police Department spokesman Dan Turner, however, said Brown had concluded there is "sufficient evidence that there is now a need to take additional measures to protect the integrity of the department as well as that of the public."

Turner would not identify the nine officers pending the outcome of the investigation.

The action on Friday came just a few hours after two of the officers appeared briefly before a Harris County grand jury.

A confidential informant, who claimed to have made drug purchases for members of the unit in 1986 and 1987, told The Houston Post he informed IAD about the misdeeds of officers in the unit last October because he "started feeling unappreciated."

The informant claimed officers assigned to the unit routinely wrote false offense reports, claiming to have bought drugs from reputed dealers when they had not. He said the officers also lied in court when asked about the informant's involvement in the cases.

"They used to hide me from the district attorney and the defense attorney," the informant said. "I lied to DAs, but I lied because (the officers) told me what to tell them."

Construction delay okayed

BIG SPRING—The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service has agreed to delay costly construction to alter habitat for the Concho water snake.

Instead of beginning work on a series of rock ramps April 1 to accommodate the snake, The Colorado River Municipal Water District, builder of the Stacy reservoir, will continue studies and report them by Nov. 15.

"It is our belief and hope that 1988 will further convince the Fish and Wildlife Service that the snake does live in a wider habitat than once thought," said O. H. Ivie, general manager of CRMWD. Our hope is that 1988 data will be such that we can petition the service to de-classify the snake and remove it from the endangered species list."

If this is the case, the district could realize savings of up to $2,500,000 over requirements spelled out when the district was granted a 404 environmental permit to proceed. The price tag then was pegged at $3,700,000 or more. Principal changes to habitat was a series of rock ramps from minimum to maximum lake elevation in both the reservoir and its tributaries in the speculation snakes could take refuge in them.

Friday was the last day of the grand jury's term, and Lindeman said Friday's testimony will be turned over to a new grand jury next month. He characterized the investigation as being about half finished.

The unit was disbanded and the officers were reassigned to desk duty after IAD began investigations the latest allegations. Brown had ordered an audit of all tactical response units in an effort to ensure any wrongdoing had not spread.

The informant told The Post the officers would sit around after drug busts and reach an agreement on what they would include in reports.

The 31-year-old informant, who kept his own records on more than 100 busts he helped the unit make, said he told IAD investigators about 65 cases in which he said officers had falsified information.

"I gave them more than they need," he said. "They have verified most of the stuff."

The informant said he also was the person who tipped IAD about the activities of a former member of the tactical unit who was arrested Dec. 18 as he allegedly took part in the robbery of an undercover officer he thought was a drug dealer.

Consultant replaces ballet director

DALLAS (AP) — The debt-ridden Dallas Ballet, formerly operated by a man who managed the Joffrey and San Francisco ballets, now has a high-powered financial consultant at the helm.

Dallas Ballet executive director Philip Semark was replaced Friday by Jack C. Page, owner of a Dallas business consulting firm and former executive with Booz, Allen & Hamilton Inc., ballet officials announced Friday.

"He (Semark) did not resign," said ballet board president Karl Zavitkovsky. "He asked that his contract not be renewed. We made the decision we would bring somebody else in."

Semark's two-year contract with the ballet ends Feb. 29, Zavitkovsky said. But an unsigned letter that Semark submitted to the board Thursday says his contract expires June 30. Zavitkovsky said the expiration date is "still subject to negotiation."

The Dallas Ballet last week canceled its 1987-88 season and suspended operations because of a $1.8 million shortfall. Page will hold the management position until March 15, the ballet's deadline for devising a plan to raise $400,000.

The changes were announced while Semark was attending a New York conference.

"People in the business community have said they'd like to support the ballet, but did not have confidence in the ballet's management," Page said.

After a brief catnap...

Tigers punish Pecos, 69-39

By BILL McCLELLAN
 Snyder's Tigers took a...ahem...catnap...in the third quarter here Friday but it was the only break they allowed all evening long as Coach Larry Scott's bunch manhandled Pecos, 69-39.

Despite celebrating a little early, the Tigers chalked their 19th victory in only 25 games this season. More importantly, they held on to second place in District 2-4A ball with a 10-1 record, headed into next Tuesday's expected showdown with Big Spring.

"It's going to be tough," said Coach Scott. "They feel like they have to have the win to finish in second place and we feel like we have to have the win to finish in second place. I'd like to encourage everyone to come to Big Spring and yell for us or to go to the high school (in Snyder) and cheer for our girl's teams. They are important games for both of us."

Big Spring's boys will go into the game with an 8-2 mark - third in the district.

Here Friday, Snyder opened well against the Eagles. The hosts were in front 13-3 after the first quarter. The score was 29 to 11 at intermission and the Tigers expanded the margin to 20 points, 33-13, early in the third period. But easy success worked against the home team.

"We just got too relaxed after halftime," said Scott. "We had eight turnovers in the third quarter."

Pecos took advantage of Snyder's mental letdown to go on a 19-9 scoring burst which extended through the rest of the third period and into the fourth. With 5:35 left in the game, Eric Bradley canned a short jumper that pulled Pecos within 10 points, 42-32.

And then, the Tigers woke up, claws ready. The defense got bolder and picked off several Eagle passes. Offensively, Terry Garza and Lewis Wesley found the range. Everything worked. It worked well, and it worked quickly.

Garza got the scoreboard flickering with a 3-point bomb and a 2-point 10-to-12 footer. Wesley did his part with a bucket and a pair of free throws. His freebies from the line came with 2:43 remaining and gave Snyder a 56-35 lead. The Tigers put in 7 more points before Pecos finally tallied again, giving the hosts a 21-3 run in four minutes and 22 seconds.

"Everything worked there in the fourth quarter," said Coach Scott. "Terry got a couple of long baskets for us and we made some layups and Terry had that easy slam. Lewis played well. Really, everybody played well. It was just that period in the third quarter where we had a let down. If you take away the third quarter we had a real solid game."

Garza got eight of his game-high 18 points in the heart of the rally, including a slam-dunk which turned into a three-point play. Tracy Braziel shared game-high honors with 18 points while Wesley notched 12, Trey Tippens 9 and Anthony Wortham 8.

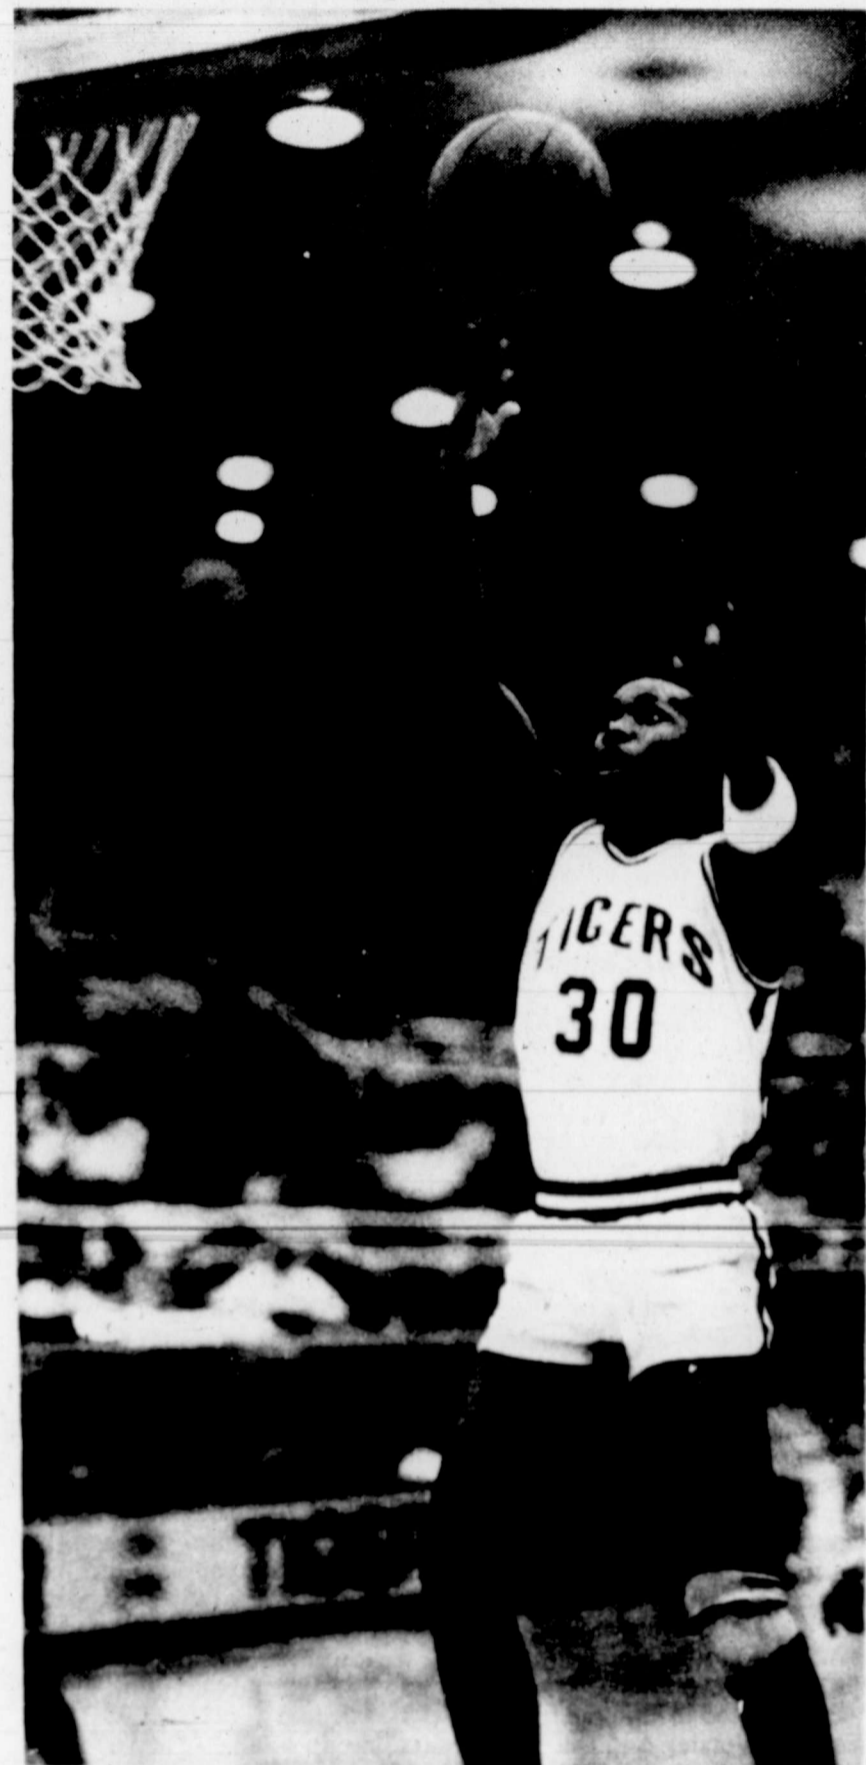

Billy Ray Smith tossed in 14 to lead Pecos, which fell to 6-17 and 1-10 with the loss. The Eagles have been struggling this season since losing three starters.

Thurman Williams added 8 for the visitors.

Snyder's tenacious defense held Eagle shooters to a poor 25 percent from the field, 12 of 48. The Tigers also outrebounded the Eagles 46 to 21. It was a team effort on the boards with Garza yanking down 11, Wortham scrambling for 10 and Tippens and Braziel grabbing 9 each.

Ten assists were dished out with Anthony Wortham's 4 leading. Snyder also stole 12 balls. Braziel strolled away with 4; Wesley with 3.

Tuesday's game is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. horn in Big Spring.

ALL ALONE—Snyder's Lewis Wesley scores a quick bucket off the fast break during frantic fourth-quarter action at Scurry County Coliseum. The Tigers led Pecos 42-32 with less than six minutes to play but outscored the visitors 27 to 7 the rest of the way for a 69-39 victory. (SDN Staff Photo)

Boston bans Hawks, 117-107; Mavericks, Milwaukee win

by The Associated Press
 Pat Riley and the Los Angeles Lakers, who used a homecourt advantage to beat the Boston Celtics in six games last year, are looking ahead to the NBA finals again.

After a 117-107 victory on Friday night over the Atlanta Hawks, a potential rival in the championship series, Riley had one eye on the standings.

"We wanted to pick up a game and go five games up on them (the Hawks) and four up on Boston," Riley said. "I think this year it's critical to get the homecourt advantage."

James Worthy scored 29 points and Byron Scott had 11 of his 19 points in the third quarter for the Lakers, who converted five of six 3-point attempts, including three by Michael Cooper. Los Angeles held Dominique Wilkins to 19 points, nearly 10 under his average.

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 94, Indiana 89, Detroit 125, Boston 108; Chicago 120, New Jersey 93; Dallas 117, Seattle 109; Milwaukee 97, Los Angeles Clippers 88; Portland 128, Phoenix 119, and Golden State 102, Utah 100.

Pistons 125, Celtics 108
 An NBA-record crowd of 61,983 - breaking the previous mark by more than 9,000 - saw Adrian Dantley score 22 points and Joe Dumars 20 against Boston.

The Celtics, who got 25 points from Larry Bird and 20 from Kevin McHale, rallied from a 62-56 halftime deficit to take a 71-70 lead midway through the third quarter.

But the Pistons, on three straight baskets by Dumars, regained the lead with a 10-0 spurt and held it the rest of the way.

Bucks 97, Clippers 88
 Paul Pressey scored 20 points and the Milwaukee Bucks took control with a 13-4 spurt at the start of the second half to beat Los Angeles.

The Clippers, who got 21 points from Quintin Dailey and a franchise record 10 blocked shots from Benoit Benjamin, got no closer than seven points in the final period.

Bulls 120, Nets 93
 Michael Jordan scored 32 points and set team records for steals in a game and a quarter as Chicago kept New Jersey Nets winless on the road.

Mavericks 117, Sonics 109
 Dallas won its seventh straight game behind Mark Aguirre's 29 points, eight of them during a decisive 12-2 fourth-quarter run against Seattle.

The Mavericks took control midway through the final quarter, stretching a three-point lead to 99-86. Aguirre had a 3-point shot and a three-point play during the spurt.

Shots bounce away as Lady Tigers fall

PECOS—It wasn't the first time Snyder's Lady Tigers have had trouble adjusting their sights this season but none was more crucial.

Snyder went cold from the field here Friday, dropped a slim halftime lead, and fell to Pecos' Lady Eagles 51-33 in a District 2-4A contest. Pecos walked away with second place honors in the district - at least temporarily.

And Snyder, now third, will have to butgun ninth-ranked and highly-touted Big Spring on Tuesday to climb back into the playoff hunt.

"If we don't get that one, it's all over," said Coach Housden.

The Lady Tigers trailed 8-6 after the first eight minutes here Friday but got 16 second-quarter points to earn a 22-18 edge going into intermission.

Set for Super Bowl XXII...

'Super' foes find incentive from past losses

SAN DIEGO (AP) - For NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, any potholes created by the strike were filled by the Denver Broncos and Washington Redskins on the road to the Super Bowl.

For the Broncos and Redskins, that journey will have been a wasted trip if they aren't there to receive the Vince Lombardi Trophy from Rozelle as NFL champions after Sunday's game (6:18 p.m. EST kickoff).

"I expected to be brooding for a year," Rozelle said Friday at his annual State of the NFL address which "traditionally" closes the pre-Super Bowl hype. "Thanks to the players and coaches, it didn't last long. We had competitive games, and I don't have a negative feeling about the strike that I thought I would. These games have been tremendous entertainment and have contributed to ending the strike bitterness."

While Rozelle gave the teams high praise for salvaging what could have been a lost season, the commissioner's nemesis, Al Davis, provided the motto for the week.

"Just win, baby" - Davis' slogan - is the stock answer from both sides as they look ahead to the NFL championship game.

"Al Davis knew what he was talking about," Broncos linebacker Jim Ryan said of the Raiders' owner whose advice to his team rarely goes beyond those three words. "Making it here just doesn't make it. If you don't win, it's like a lost season."

That's how the Broncos felt last January after a 39-20 Super Bowl loss to the New York Giants. It's how the Redskins felt in 1984, when they were routed 38-9 by Davis' bunch.

"What sticks in your mind is the plane ride home after," Clint Didier said of that demoralizing defeat to the Raiders. "We have enough guys who remember how bad that felt."

"In reality, what is this but another game? But it's for all the marbles. It's our third Super Bowl and we've experienced each side of it. The winning is as high as you can get, the losing as low."

Both teams have used recent Super Bowl defeat as a motivating factor. The Broncos were hurting from February until they beat Cleveland in the AFC Championship game to earn a return visit. The Redskins have been ticked off for four years.

"We've had only one thing on our minds since that game," Denver running back Sammy Winder said of the 1987 Super Bowl. "This team has been looking to prove ourselves, that we are champions."

"This year, it's like we've learned not to waste energy on the whole week. Instead, it's been that we're excited but we know how to handle it and make sure we direct it to playing in the game."

"We need a good focus, tunnel vision," defensive end Rulon Jones said. "For the whole year, we did what we had to get back here. Now, we have to make the right ending."

Just how can the Broncos do that? Most likely, with John Elway's passing to the Three Amigos - Vance Johnson, Mark Jackson and Ricky Nattiel - and an aggressive, albeit undersized, defense that specializes in takeaways.

"They're very opportunistic," Washington wide receiver Gary Clark said. "They might give you some yards, but they don't give you the big play. Then they force the big turnover."

Clark is one of the few small Redskins. Washington has a decided edge in poundage, particularly in the trenches - the Hogs on the offensive line average 20 pounds per man more than Denver's defensive front.

"We'll need to control the ball," said Doug Williams, who seemed unperturbed by the hundreds of questions about his being the first black quarterback to start in a Super Bowl. "If we can keep it away from John Elway with our running game and mix in the pass, we'll be in good shape."

Both teams are in relatively good shape physically. Johnson missed the AFC title game with a ruptured artery in his groin and won't start Sunday. But he'll play.

"This is one Amigo who will be there," Johnson promised.

Five birdies give Beck two-shot lead in Phoenix

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - Chip Beck says the time for victory is coming soon.

"If I keep getting there, eventually I'll win," said the man who has been so close so often but has yet to score his first professional victory.

It's not a prospect that gladdens the hearts of his rivals on the PGA Tour.

"Everybody knows what a great player he is. When he finally wins one, he might win five," Fred Couples said.

Beck, making the most of his opportunities, scored five birdies on putts of three feet or less in an 8-under-par 63 that gave him a two-shot lead at the halfway point of the $650,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

"I am not burdened by the failures of the past," Beck said Friday after compiling a 129 total, 13 under par for 36 holes on the TPC course.

"I am moving in the right direction. I look forward to the challenge of the next two days," Beck said.

With two rounds to go in the chase for a $17,000 first prize, the chief challengers are Davis Love III, Couples and South African David Frost.

Love, the first-round leader, slipped to a 68 and was at 131. Couples' 65 put him at 132. Frost was next at 133 after a 66.

The group at 134 included Hal Sutton, Gil Morgan and Jeff Sluman. Morgan and Sutton each had a 66 and Sluman shot 67.

Beck, 31, winner of more than $1.2 million in career, is listed with seven runner-up finishes, one of which was in the 1986 U.S. Open.

"I've been in the position where I really felt I was going to win. A lot of times I beat myself. That's the most disappointing thing."

"I can recall as vividly as yesterday tournaments I should have won. But I didn't have the level of skill I needed at the time."

"I kept getting there and kept getting knocked down because I didn't have the mechanical skills I needed."

"I have tried to assess my game and grow from it. I think I have."

"I've had a lot of adversity."

WTSU coach is booted out

CANYON, Texas (AP) - West Texas State football Coach Bill Kelly said little surprises him after 16 years of coaching, including his own firing.

WTSU Athletic Director Bruce Grimes on Friday announced that Kelly had been relieved of his duties, citing philosophical differences.

Kelly, in three seasons as coach of the Buffaloes, posted an 18-13-1 record. Both Kelly and Grimes hinted at recruiting and loyalty differences as reasons for the action.

"Coach Kelly's won-loss record speaks for itself," Grimes said in a news conference. "However, major philosophical differences between Coach Kelly and the university are such that an effective and compatible working relationship is no longer possible."

"I feel like that I have done the job that I was hired to do," Kelly said. "We won football games. We won a championship. Our grade point average has increased. Our kids go to class... we are not violating NCAA or Lone Star Conference rules. For me to say I do or don't have an attitude problem you'll have to ask the university."

UIL alignment alterations

AUSTIN (AP) - The University Interscholastic League on Friday announced corrections to district re-alignments released earlier in the week for the 1988-89 and 1989-90 school years.

UIL officials said the changes were to correct inadvertent mistakes and had no relation to happiness of any schools with the districts into which they were placed originally. Those concerns must be resolved through an appeals process, officials said.

Here are the new makeups of any districts in which any corrections were made in the list that the UIL released Friday:

LADY TIGERS FALTER

(continued from page 6A) "We came out in the second quarter and had a good scoring quarter. And, we didn't play poor defense in the second half. We just couldn't hit anything. We only made two buckets in the third quarter," pointed out Coach Housden. "They played a 3-2 zone that collapsed down inside on our post people and we weren't hitting from outside."

Pecos outscored the Tigers 16-4 in the third period and 17-7 in the fourth.

Housden said the 18-point final margin was not an indication of how close the game was, but noted the loss was still depressing.

"They did a lot of their scoring in the last minute and a half. We were trying to hit 3-pointers and they weren't falling. Pecos was able to rebound and score some points on the fast break. That was it, except for a long ride," he panned.

SMU students protest professor's dismissal

DALLAS (AP) — Some Southern Methodist University students complained that racial factors played a factor in a decision not to retain one of eight black faculty members at the school after his contract expires next year.

But Dedman College Dean Hal Williams said Friday the decision had nothing to do with race. The contract of Alphine Jefferson, assistant professor of history, is not being renewed because he is disorganized and failed to publish a book, Williams said.

"This really is not that big of a deal," Williams said. "This is the time of year when we are reviewing all of our faculty members who are under contract. Some will be asked to stay, others will not have their contracts renewed. This is just one of those many cases."

Jefferson, 37, said he was told earlier this month that his contract would not be renewed because he was "extremely disorganized" and did not show evidence of "active, serious progress on scholarship" by publishing historical research.

Downing to speak at senior center

Delbert Downing, local representative to the Silver Haired Legislature (SHL), will speak at 11:30 Wednesday morning in the Senior Citizens Center. Downing has announced that he will seek re-election to the SHL in May.

In addition to announcing his bid for re-election, Downing will tell senior citizens about a plan to fund the SHL. If each Texan 60 or older would contribute one dollar to a SHL fund, there would be sufficient money to pay for the operation of the SHL permanently, it has been calculated.

SHL representatives receive no pay for their work in the body and at present pay all their own expenses for travel to and from Austin for meetings, their expenses in Austin and incidental expenses such as postage for correspondence regarding SHL business.

Senior citizens who have birthdays in February will be special guests at the McDonald's birthday party starting at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the center. "Hoss" Clayton's band will present a musical program in the center starting at 11 Tuesday morning and the Robert Allen band will provide music for country and western dancing from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday.

Residents of the Ira community are invited to be special guests in the center on Monday. Monday is also game day and bingo will start at 10:30 a.m.

Nadine Handley, a Girl Scout leader, will be talking to senior citizens about giving volunteer time to Girl Scout work on Thursday morning. Her program is to begin at 11:30 a.m.

Senior citizens in the swim-nastics group are reminded that they will be meeting at the Western Texas College swimming pool at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays during the spring semester.

The Kitchen Band will make a guest appearance at Fort Wood in Colorado City on Saturday. Band members will check with the center office about times for departure and return.

Million-dollar fine assessed

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A man described as the leader of a gang that brought in cocaine from Miami and distributed it throughout the Southwest was sentenced to life in prison without parole and fined $1 million.

U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth assessed the life sentence and fine on Friday based on Audelio Arzola Amaya's conviction last month of running a continuing criminal enterprise.

Five other men convicted on Dec. 18 with Arzola after a three-week trial were sentenced to prison terms ranging from seven to 15 years.

The six men appeared for sentencing in Hudspeth's courtroom amid tight security. The courtroom was packed with lawyers, relatives of the defendants and reporters.

Arzola, like the others, spoke to Hudspeth before sentencing. "I know everything I have been accused of, they're not true. I have made many mistakes but not a lot of what was being said here," Arzola said. He spoke in Spanish while a court interpreter translated.

New regulations would limit clinics on abortion advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — New regulations designed to deny federal funds to family-planning organizations that advocate abortions are being issued next week in the face of certain legal challenge.

One of the groups planning to file suit to block implementation of the new rules charged that they would require family planning clinics to engage in "mandatory malpractice" by dictating what advice doctors may give.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen announced Friday that the final regulations will be published Tuesday in the Federal Register and could become effective March 3. The rules are essentially the same ones put out for public comment last Sept. 1 on orders from President Reagan.

Opponents maintain the rules misinterpret what Congress intended when it created the Title X family program.

The $140 million Title X program helps support approximately 4,000 family-planning clinics through grants to 89 groups. Bowen said the program serves an estimated 4.3 million women, more than 85 percent of them low-income and about a third of them adolescents.

At issue is whether counselors at family planning clinics receive ing those federal funds can volunteer to their clients that abortion is an option and refer them to an abortion clinic.

Bowen said the rules would require family planning programs to maintain separate physical facilities and financial accounts for any abortion activities they engage in. The programs would be prohibited from "encouraging, promoting or advocating abortion as a method of family planning."

"These regulations will ensure that Title X funds are spent for services that Congress always intended they support — preventive family planning and infertility services, not abortion," Bowen said.

"The ... program was intended to reduce the incidence of abortion, not to help women obtain abortions," he said. "When a clinic diagnoses a woman as pregnant, she will be referred for the prenatal care and social services she needs for a healthy pregnancy. To accept or not accept this referral is the individual's choice."

Planned Parenthood issued a statement saying it "cannot and will not adhere to these new regulations because they run counter to our fundamental principles, endanger the health of our patients and are in essence a call for mandatory malpractice because they dictate what can and cannot be said in the privacy of a doctor's office."

"They are an outrageous intrusion into the doctor-patient relationship and a gross violation of freedom of speech," said the statement.

Jody Frisch, a spokeswoman for the organization, said Planned Parenthood will file suit to block implementation as soon as the new rules are formally published. Also planning to file suits against the regulations are the National Family Planning and Reproductive Health Association and the New York City branch of the American Civil Liberties Union.

In a related matter, a federal appeals court ruled Friday that Planned Parenthood can proceed with its lawsuit challenging a Reagan administration policy barring family planning funds to private foreign organizations that perform or promote abortions.

The organization said the ruling overturned a district court dismissal of the suit in September.

That lawsuit sought to declare unconstitutional requirements by the U.S. Agency for International Development that foreign private health agencies certify, in return for U.S. grants, that they do not perform or actively promote abortion as a method of family planning.

the best," he said, referring specifically to surgeon's tools. "This looks like a complete MASH unit."

Moore, area superintendent for SACROC here, said he will select a metal building, possibly on Chevron property, for the crates to be opened and inventoried.

The committee is preparing for any type of community emergency, such as tornado damage to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, but is particularly concerned about preparing for hazardous chemical spills, Moore said.

Under the provisions of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986, county officials appointed the 11-member group last July.

In addition to Pierce and Moore, members are Willie Davis of the Snyder Daily News, Vick Chambers of the City of Snyder, Jimmy Suarez of the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Jerry Richardson of Halliburton, McDowell, Joe Cheyne of the Scurry County Sheriff's Office, Lawton Taylor of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Perry Westmoreland of Snyder EMS Ambulance Service and Bob Clifton of KSNV Radio.

assets and $14.5 million net worth with a capital-to-asset ratio of 27 percent.

The Texas PCA has more than $47 million in loans outstanding to more than 585 farmers and ranchers in an estimated 37 West Texas counties.

As savings increase from the consolidation, Smith predicted interest rates would continue to fall.

The merger was approved by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Austin in December following votes by member-borrowers earlier that month.

National AIDS survey finds widespread misinformation

ATLANTA (AP) — A new survey has found widespread misinformation about AIDS, with 26 percent of the respondents thinking they likely would get the disease from giving blood and 36 percent believing they could get AIDS by eating at a restaurant where the cook has it.

"There continues to be a great deal of uncertainty about the causes of AIDS," the National Center for Health Statistics said in a report distributed this week by its parent agency, the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control.

"For the most part, the lowest levels of general knowledge are found among adults 50 years of age and over," NCHS researchers said.

That confirms the self-assessment of that age group, 54 percent of whom said they knew little or nothing about the deadly disease.

Overall, 63 percent said they knew "some" or "a lot."

The report details responses to a survey conducted among 3,097 Americans over 18 in September.

Knowledge of the existence of acquired immune deficiency syndrome was more than 99 percent. However, the survey found some respondents who said they never had heard of the disease which has, according to the latest CDC count, struck more than 51,000 Americans and killed more than 28,000.

Eighty-six percent of the respondents knew that there is no known cure for AIDS, 78 percent knew that anyone with the virus can transmit it through sexual intercourse, and 73 percent knew that an infected pregnant woman can infect her baby.

Each of those responses was 3 to 4 points higher than a survey conducted in August.

"There are signs that the U.S. public's knowledge about AIDS increased slightly," the NCHS said. "There were small but significant increases ... in the proportions of adults answering (some questions) correctly."

Ninety-four percent of the respondents said it was "very likely" that a person will get AIDS through sex with an infected person, and 93 percent said it was "very likely" that a person would get it through sharing drug needles with an infected person. Those are "the two chief modes of transmission."

But "the level of misinformation about (other) modes of transmission, particularly from casual contact, continues to be high," the NCHS reported.

Twenty-four percent said it was somewhat or very likely that someone would contract AIDS from donating blood. That is a misconception the American Red Cross and other agencies have fought hard to defeat, pointing out that sterile equipment is used in blood donations and that a donor comes in contact only with his own blood.

Thirty-six percent of the respondents thought it very or somewhat likely that a person would get AIDS from eating at a restaurant where the cook had AIDS, 18 percent believed working near an AIDS patient is a threat, and 69 percent said kissing with saliva exchanged is likely to transmit the disease.

AIDS experts say the disease is not spread through casual contact, and while transmission during "French kissing" is theoretically possible, it never has been reported.

Thirty-five percent in the survey said the disease is likely to be transmitted by mosquitoes or other insects, another assertion AIDS experts dispute.

In a more personal question, 7 percent said they have known a person with AIDS.

Drug smugglers move their operation into West Texas

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — Pecos County sheriff's deputies are used to watching private airplanes fly over the mesas and mountains toward Mexico, knowing many of the planes return loaded with drugs.

They're seeing more planes these days, as smugglers bring in cocaine and marijuana, using the rural flatlands and backroads of the Southwest for airstrips.

"We're definitely seeing an increase — especially in cocaine — in drugs being transited through Mexico," said Jerry Padalino, tactical coordinator for Operation Alliance. The 1½-year-old task force coordinates information and undercover work among local, state and federal authorities in the border states of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Deputy Lynn Holland says smugglers have an ideal landing spot in his territory of northern Pecos County, where the foothills of the Davis Mountains end and the flatlands begin.

"They can fly low enough through these hills and mesas and avoid the radar," said Holland, who two years ago caught a smuggler landing a plane on an isolated ranch road.

The size of the state is part of the problem drug agents face. At 4,776 square miles, Pecos County is bigger than Delaware and Rhode Island combined. The sheriff has 13 deputies to patrol it.

Smugglers don't need conventional airstrips to land on the vast flatlands of the Southwest.

"The thing about West Texas is on a moonlit night, you can land on any highway or farm-to-market road," said Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter.

Smugglers also bring drugs across the border in cars and trucks, and some even wade across the Rio Grande, authorities say.

Federal authorities say drug traffic is increasing along the U.S.-Mexican border due to greater demand, in addition to law enforcement pressure on smugglers in south Florida.

"There's definitely more use of cocaine, and there's some movement into this area from Florida," said Ernest Perez, agent-in-charge with the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration in El Paso.

Jack Flynn, assistant director of U.S. Customs in El Paso, agrees that smuggling across the Mexican border appears to be rising, but adds that generalizations about drug operations shifting from Florida may be overstated.

"I think everybody believes that's the case, but I'm not sure the basis for it has been proven statistically," he said.

Nevertheless, drug seizures along the border have risen dramatically.

Authorities seized 18,744 pounds of cocaine along the U.S.-Mexican border in fiscal 1987, up from 3,975 pounds in 1986, according to Operation Alliance. Marijuana seizures during the same period rose from 132,900 pounds to 298,082 pounds.

In 1987, more than half the marijuana seizures and about 40 percent of the cocaine seizures, were made along the Texas border.

On Sept. 14, 1987, Customs inspectors at an international bridge east of El Paso found 3,589 pounds of rock cocaine in a tractor-trailer, the largest overland cocaine seizure in Customs history.

Smugglers using exotic weapons, infrared night-vision devices and sophisticated radios manage to get two-thirds of their shipments across the border undetected, authorities say.

"Narcotics smugglers are very well organized and have a lot of money," Padalino said. "In many cases, I think the narcotics smugglers are better-equipped than the U.S. government."

Officials concede they need better radar to spot planes flying low over the border, and they are beginning to fill the need.

Customs, in cooperation with Operation Alliance, recently sent aloft a permanent, radar-equipped helium balloon over the desert of Fort Huachuca, Ariz., the first of six balloon radar stations.

Correction...

In Friday's article related to the Cogdell Memorial Hospital board meeting, it was incorrectly stated that the facility's net loss for 1987 was $1.9 million. The correct figure is $1.19 million.

Thefts include welding unit

The sheriff's office is investigating the theft of a large amount of welding equipment and supplies which had been stored at Camp Springs 12 miles east of Snyder. Reporting the theft was Scott Bavouset of 3006 41st St.

He told officers Friday that the equipment, including a 180-amp Miller welding machine, was taken some time last week.

Other missing items include two heads from the welder, a welding hood, two rolls of barbed wire, 80 wire stays, two green T-posts and a Toro lawn mower.

Police reported that a chrome step bumper was stolen from a pickup belonging to Wedge Turner in an incident discovered at 8:12 a.m. at 2608 28th St.

Debbie Cawthron of 2608 Ave. U at 5:24 p.m. Friday reported the theft of a black 20-inch Murray bicycle with spoked wheels and knobby tires.

Firemen douse fire in barrel

Firemen at 8:30 p.m. Friday were called to Towle Park to put out a fire in a restroom trash barrel.

A spokesman said the fire had melted the plastic barrel and that they worked primarily to clear smoke out of the building.

He said the cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Assault said investigated

A 24-year-old woman was treated for two hours and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital Saturday morning following a reported 7:15 a.m. assault at a home in the 2600 Block of Ave. J.

Police were holding a 30-year-old man for questioning, but he had not been arrested, they said. The woman reportedly had been beaten with fists.

Arrests noted from Friday

Police arrested a 17-year-old male for evading arrest and public intoxication at 11:40 p.m. Friday in the 3400 Block of Ave. D.

Two males, 15 and 16 years of age, were taken into custody for public intoxication at 1:38 a.m. Saturday in the 2100 Block of Ave. T.

A county deputy answered a report of cars driving with their lights off about eight miles west of Snyder near FM 1607 at 9:21 p.m. Friday and subsequently discovered "several minors" with a keg of beer.

The deputy confiscated the beer keg and said the minors would be reported to juvenile authorities.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

John Leftwich of Snyder has been an avid hunter since the age of six when he killed his first quail on his uncle's farm in Scurry County. Born and reared in Snyder, he also raises game birds and at present has about 50 Pharaoh quail which he keeps in pens located at his residence southeast of Snyder. He also has a limited number of other birds.

Leftwich turned to raising game birds after ending a career as a federal law enforcement agent—a stint that brought him in contact with such famous personalities as Lyndon Johnson.

For the present, however, he says the birds are his main vocation. Quail hunting season extends from November through February and so far Leftwich has been on three hunts. He usually hunts more than that, but due to the dry weather and the thick broom weeds he said he decided to call it quits early this season.

Leftwich, who hunts in the Snyder area, said the dry weather is hard on the hunting dogs.

He said quail hunting can be a big business because local farmers and ranchers often lease their land to hunters. Some also double lease their land which means that leases are sold to both quail and turkey and deer hunters, Leftwich explained.

As is often the case, when the land has been double leased, quail hunters have to wait until the deer and turkey hunters are through before they can go in, he said.

Leftwich hunts with from two, three or four dogs. "The weather determines how long you hunt with your dogs," he said. At one time he said that he would hunt straight on through the entire day without taking a break, but now he stops for lunch for both himself and his dogs. "They need something to eat and drink just like people do," he said.

He said hunting all-day is particularly harmful to a "hard running dog."

The avid hunter chooses from three basic breeds when he needs a hunting dog: English Pointers, Brittany Spaniels and Setters. He explained that Pointers cover more territory and Spaniels can retrieve the birds.

He has one English Pointer named Tex which he is very partial to. The dogs live in pens located near Leftwich's home and during hunting season they travel in their own specially made trailer.

Weather conditions can make life tough for hunters as Leftwich can attest to. He said it is hard to hunt in dry weather. One of the problems is that it is hard to see the dogs. But the icy, cold weather like what Snyder experienced earlier this month is very hard on the bird population.

He explained that the 1977-78 hunting season was a good year until a hard freeze came and stayed around long enough to kill off a large percentage of the bird population.

Leftwich, who trains his hunting dogs himself, said that all hunting dogs "have a built in quality which he tries to enhance and control."

He uses the Pharaohs he raises himself to help train his dogs. Several years ago he served a brief stint as a professional trainer.

When Leftwich is through with the game birds he raises he lets them loose in the wild. He has also raised Bobwhite quail and Gambles. "I once thought of raising birds for profit but that required a bigger operation than I had at the time so nothing ever came of it," he said.

Leftwich said he gets excellent results with the Pharaohs. In one of the pens he presently has, there exists a cross between a Gamble and a Bobwhite which he said happened quite by accident. The bird has a Bobwhite head and the tail and the wings of a Gamble. In past years, Leftwich said he has seen crosses between blues and Bobwhites.

Over the years he has also raised Mallard ducks which he also set free when they were grown.

"I killed so many as a kid that I felt I owed them something," he said.

Leftwich said he has found only one source for the Blue quail eggs and that is as far away as Kentucky.

He has raised as many as 100 Blues but he said the wild Blues cannot be penned up because it harms them.

When his quail are eight weeks old he said he begins to leave them outside the pen so they can get used to the outdoor conditions. Once he turned about 75 young, mature birds loose and they proceeded to form about four or five coveys.

He also recently turned 15 Gambles loose and said he had heard that they were doing well.

He has about 20 Gambles left, but no Blues.

Leftwich explained that a quail's natural instinct is to run in a flock. They become like a colony together, roosting and feeding together and calling to each other if they get separated.

When the weather was cold and icy he said the coveys would fight each other for the feed he left out for them to eat. He also uses an automatic waterer, but he said he never could see any evidence that the birds had drunk any of the extra water he left out for them during the freeze.

Leftwich also has 40 Guineas on hand. He started out with four.

To raise his birds, Leftwich first acquires the eggs and then he incubates them. Bobwhites need 23 days while Pharaohs take 16 days to incubate.

When they hatch they are fed a chick starter which contains at least 28 percent protein. He has to be careful and not feed them anything that has medication in it. When they reach adulthood he feeds them milo or millet. He said corn is too big for them to swallow. They also forage broomweed seeds.

He said Bobwhites have to be almost a year old before they can start reproducing. The proper amount of light and warmth is the trick to getting birds to lay eggs Leftwich said.

Quails don't fly that much, unless they are disturbed, and

TIPS FOR PRUNING LANDSCAPE PLANTS

Fall and winter months are a good time to prune most landscape plants. Proper pruning procedures are important to keep plants healthy and attractive.

Be selective when pruning and only prune those plants that need it, always using sharp tools for a clean cut.

It's a good idea to treat all cuts or wounds over two inches in diameter with a good tree dressing to prevent cracking and checking. These cracks provide excellent places for borer eggs and disease organisms.

Since pruning cuts made in mid-branch induce lateral growth, prevent branching by cutting back to a major limb, twig or bud. For more compact growth, cut back terminal shoots, removing about one-half the current growth to induce lateral growth.

Do not destroy a plant's natural form and beauty when pruning. Trim — but never butcher.

For multi-stemmed shrubs such as quince, nandina and pomegranate, think in terms of thinning out rather than shearing the total plant. Remove some canes or stems at ground level, and cut some stems in mid-branch to make the plant more dense.

If shrubs like quince, nandina and spirea have been neglected for several years, it's best to remove about one-third of the oldest canes at ground level. This completely renews the plant every three years, the flowering wood is kept nearer the ground, and the plant seldom becomes tall and leggy.

Don't prune hydrangeas during the winter because their flower buds are already established for next season's bloom. The best time to prune is immediately after their prime bloom in early summer.

Prune bush-type roses in late February or early March, just prior to spring growth. Prune spring flowering shrubs and climbing roses after flowering.

Hollies and other berrying plants such as pyracantha may be pruned now. However, these plants produce berries on two-year-old wood, so removing new growth eliminates future berries.

Col. T.E. Lawrence, "Lawrence of Arabia," occupied Damascus Oct. 1, 1918. Lawrence led insurgent Arab forces during the fighting against Turkey in World War I. Using Arab recruits, he scored remarkable successes in the desert fighting, including disruption of Turkish rail communications in Sinai.

they don't migrate. Doves, though, are migratory birds.

Leftwich is a graduate of Snyder High School and his wife, Shirley, is the director of the Scurry County Museum located on the campus of Western Texas College.

For several years they lived and worked elsewhere in Texas, but moved back to Snyder in 1981.

In February of 1943, after a brief stint at McMurry College in Abilene, Leftwich joined the Marine Corps but was discharged nine months later "without prejudice" when they discovered that he had been hiding poor vision problems.

He later joined the Army and saw action during World War II, serving with the Rangers until they were disbanded in March of 1945.

At one point he had seen 112 days of combat "without getting a scratch," but his luck ran out and he was wounded three times. Complications set in when he contracted hepatitis and he was hospitalized for several months.

He later returned to McMurry to obtain a degree.

He graduated in 1949 and, while going to school, worked for the Abilene Police Department. He originally wanted to be a wildlife game officer for the U.S. government, but opted for a career with the Alcohol Tax Unit. He stipulated he wanted to only work in Texas and, ultimately, he was hired to work out of Tyler for seven years.

During those years his basic duties included looking for illegal stills. "It was a lot of fun in those days because Tyler at that time was dry. Longview had the only legal liquor."

"We saw a lot of action until the counties started going wet," he said.

Leftwich also worked with the Customs Division on gun control which he said really began to get strict after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas.

While working for the Alcohol Tax Unit, Leftwich said he and other agents often had to work with the Secret Service. He remembers helping to protect George Wallace, President Lyndon B. Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird. He got to know Johnson and often got himself in trouble with his superiors because Johnson would call on him to go off somewhere.

"LBJ was something else," Leftwich said.

He transferred to the office of the Inspector General in the 1970s and became mainly involved with investigating the illegal use of food stamps.

Throughout his career, Leftwich worked undercover a great deal and often was called upon to make undercover drug buys. It was during one of these undercover operations which went awry that Leftwich was hurt when he fell down a flight of stairs and a suspect—a very large suspect, he remembers—landed on top of him. He ruptured three discs in his back and that effectively ended his government law enforcement career. He tried for six years to be able to get back to work, but was never able to get a doctor's okay. Finally, he gave in and accepted his disability.

He and his wife moved back to Snyder and he became involved with hunting and raising game birds. "I started out trying to do too much, but I soon learned that my back wouldn't let me lift heavy things. So I have had to learn to be careful and to accept my limitations."

Italy invaded Ethiopia in 1935.

LENDING MONEY TO FRIENDS CAN BE RISKY
Lending money to friends and relatives, including grown children, can be a little risky — financially and emotionally.

The money doesn't cause the problem, but the fact that a loan changes the nature of a personal relationship can lead to difficulties. A financial transaction can turn a personal relationship into a debtor-creditor relationship.

Obviously, not every loan between friends and relatives turns sour. And there are some things you can do to make sure it doesn't.

One way is to consider the loan a gift. This means you shouldn't lend money to relatives or friends that you can't afford to give them outright. If you're repaid, it's a pleasant surprise. If not, you won't have hard feelings.

The other approach is to handle the loan in a very business-like manner by putting the loan terms in writing, including the interest rate and terms of repayment. Unfortunately, family members seeking a loan may misconstrue this common sense approach for lack of trust.

That's why the least complicated way to establish a business-like arrangement with a relative or friend is to cosign the borrower's bank loan.

But if you agree to cosign, make sure you're involved in the loan negotiations, since you still have to pay off if the borrower fails to pay.

Remember that in case of default, the borrower may feel he or she has to pay off other loans before yours because you are a friend.

A loan between friends or relatives need not be a problem if all parties remember that it's a business transaction and should be treated as such.

So near and yet so far

By James Jacoby

This interesting play problem is from the English magazine International Popular Bridge Monthly. The bidding has been changed, with the two-diamond response temporizing and negative. The four-club and five-diamond bids by South are cue-bids, and North's five hearts shows values other than the ace. (He would surely have cue-bid the heart ace after South had bid four clubs.) Not finding heart strength useful, South settles for a small slam.

But with the opening heart lead, the K-Q of hearts immediately become winners, provided they can be enjoyed. The play theme is not new — declarer should sacrifice an occasional extra trick to increase the chance of making the slam. Willy Nilly would play the hand like a fish out of water, trumping the opening lead with a low spade, then playing A-K of spades with a groan at the failure of the spade 10 to appear, and eventually losing two diamonds and considerable aplomb.

At trick one, declarer should ruff with an honor. Noting the fall of the spade eight on the first trump play, he should continue with a low spade to dummy's six. East would make a trump trick, but declarer would reach dummy to take two heart tricks. This is right even when the eight does not fall, since South can reach dummy as well when 10-8-x of spades was originally with West. Only if East holds 10-8-x will this play cost one more trick.

From 1980 to 1985, the volume of Latin American exports grew by 4.1 percent, a rate greater than the 2.3 percent growth in worldwide exports, according to the Inter-American Development Bank. However, the difference was almost totally offset by the steep fall in Latin America's export prices. Thus, the value of Latin America's exports declined by 6.2 percent annually while the value of global exports fell only 3 percent.

FEATURED THIS WEEK
VOYAGER. By Jeana Yeager and Dick Rutan.

The first full account of the daring and pioneering aeronautical adventure is written by the man and woman who made it happen. They tell their own stories and how their six-year dream of Voyager was fulfilled — the designing, the building, and the triumphal nine-day flight of the first plane in history to circumnavigate the globe nonstop, without refueling.

We follow them through the years of grueling effort, of alternating setbacks and successes; through the struggle to raise funds to keep the project alive without government support; through the building and testing of Voyager; to the ultimate completion of their great adventure.

A fantastic story of two extraordinary spirits, and of a classic American against-all-odds achievement.

How to become a mensch

NEW YORK (AP) — "Raising Your Child To Be a Mensch" (Atheneum) is written by a rabbi but you don't have to be Jewish to get the point of this book.

The term mensch, says author Neil Kurshan, rabbi of the Huntington Jewish Center in Huntington, N.Y., literally means a "person" or "man." However, he explains, "it represents a moral ideal for all people, men and women alike. Kindness and decency transcend gender. A mensch brings a sense of responsibility to every undertaking and treats everyone fairly and justly.

"Menschlichkeit is the opposite of cruelty, pettiness, and self-centeredness. It means being sensitive to other people's needs and seeking out ways to help them. It is acquired by living close to family and extending one's sense of obligation beyond the family to the broader community."

"I have an inexhaustible number of Catholic married nieces and nephews I'm going to give this book to," says John Cardinal O'Connor of New York, "so that I can look forward to dozens of grandniece and grandnephew mensches."

Recipe Box

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor

The most elegant meal I enjoyed last fall was not in a fancy restaurant but in the parking lot of a university football stadium. For tailgate gourmets this recipe has it all: It's satisfying, easy to transport and serve — and fancy enough to be memorable without being hard to prepare.

SAUSAGES IN BRIOCHE
 1 package active dry yeast
 1/2 cup warm water (110 degrees to 115 degrees)

1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup margarine or butter
 1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 3 cups all-purpose flour
 2 beaten eggs
 8 links Italian sausage (about 2 pounds)
 3 tablespoons prepared mustard
 2 slices cheddar, mozzarella or Swiss cheese
 1 egg white
 1 tablespoon water

Soften yeast in warm water. In a saucepan heat milk, margarine, sugar and salt until warm (115 degrees to 120 degrees) and margarine is almost melted, stirring constantly. Turn into a large mixing bowl. Stir in 1 cup of the flour; beat well. Add yeast and eggs; stir until smooth. Stir in remaining flour. Scrape down sides of bowl; cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

Meanwhile, split sausage links lengthwise. Place cut side down on a rack in a shallow baking pan. Bake, uncovered, in 350-degree oven 25 to 30 minutes or until done. Drain on paper towels. Let cool about 30 minutes or until nearly room temperature. Spread cut sides of sausages with mustard. Cut cheese into eight 5-by 3/4-inch strips. Place 1 strip on the cut side of 8 of the sausage halves.

Top with remaining sausage halves, forming 8 stacks.

Remove dough from refrigerator. Punch down. Transfer to lightly floured surface. Divide into 8 equal portions; flatten each into an 8-by 5-inch oval. Place 1 sausage link on each oval. Wrap dough around sausages, pressing edges to seal. Place seam side down on a greased shallow baking pan. Stir together egg white and water. Brush some egg white mixture on top of each dough and sausage. Cover and let rise until nearly double (30 to 40 minutes). Bake in a 375-degree oven 15 to 18 minutes or until golden. Remove to wire rack; cool. Wrap tightly and refrigerate. Makes 8 servings.

Nathan Hale was hanged in New York by the British for being a spy on Sept. 22, 1776. Under Gen. George Washington's direct orders, Hale had disguised himself as a Dutch schoolmaster and made his way into New York, only to be captured by the British. His last words before dying have become immortal. They were: "I only regret I have but one life to lose for my country."

Light helps chase wintertime blues

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Winter is a predictable time of year — a time of holidays, celebration and snowfall. For many people, it is also a time of depression.

As the days grow shorter, the moods turn blue. The "wintertime blues" are often resolved in springtime, with the return of extended daylight.

This phenomenon, known as "seasonal affective disorder," or SAD, is now recognized by the American Psychiatric Association as a psychiatric syndrome.

"SAD can last from fall until mid-spring, depending on the weather," said Dr. James Gaddy, a research psychologist at Thomas Jefferson University. "Studies show that SAD often results in substantial loss of productivity or difficulties in interpersonal relationships. In extreme cases, it can be severely incapacitating."

Seasonal affective disorder is characterized by withdrawal, social isolation, depression, a craving for carbohydrates, weight gain, a tendency to sleep longer, a loss of energy and decreased sexual drive.

Phototherapy, or exposure to bright light, has been shown to reverse the effects of SAD. At Jefferson, the majority of people treated last year have responded favorably to therapy, said Dr. Karl Dogramji, director of the Sleep Disorders Center.

Special fluorescent lights can be rented or purchased for use in the home or while working.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Wife's Pride in Appearance Sparks Jealousy in Husband

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office as a secretary. I enjoy dressing in the latest styles. I am 40, and my clothes are in good taste and appropriate for a woman my age. I also wear makeup — but it's subtle and never conspicuous. I keep my hair attractively styled, too. I take pride in always looking well-dressed and well-groomed. I think people who always look their best feel better about themselves.

My problem: My husband, who is 44, feels differently. He thinks a woman dresses stylishly because she wants to attract attention, hoping that men will look at her and ask her out! Abby, he is wrong in my case. I want to look my best for myself. I am not trying to entice men to notice me and ask me out. I want people to think I look nice, but I do not want men to lust after me.

Abby, I work from 8 to 5 and never go anywhere else without him, except for marketing and to shop for clothes. He even gets angry if I wear a little perfume. What do you make of this situation, and why does he act this way?

CONFUSED IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR CONFUSED: Your husband is pathetically insecure and his accusations are insulting. He would prefer that you were so plain you blended into the woodwork. He feels that he might lose you because he himself is nothing special. The problem is his — not yours.

DEAR ABBY: I went with a guy for two years. We broke up last October. Last week I found out that he got married. Even though we have not spoken since our breakup, I still care for him, and I want to wish him happiness.

Would it be proper to send him and his wife a wedding card? How about a gift? I want to appear as sincere as possible. I do not know his address, but I could send it to his parents' home and they could forward it to him.

Maybe I shouldn't do anything at all. However, I feel a bit guilty in knowing that he is married and not acknowledging the fact.

What would you do?

HIS EX-LOVE

DEAR EX: If I still "cared" for an "ex-love," I would not send him a card or gift unless he and his wife had sent me a wedding announcement, Christmas card or some kind of friendly greeting that bore their address.

DEAR ABBY: You casually mention that one can get rid of bad breath by brushing one's tongue as well as one's teeth. You didn't stress the point enough! Abby, I suffered with bad breath for 40 years — and went to 21 doctors for the problem, thinking my foul breath was caused by either my teeth or my stomach. It was neither. It was an accumulation of particles on my tongue!

It is unbelievable that so few doctors are aware that this nasty little problem can be solved by a simple solution. All of the well-advertised mouthwashes and breath mints to mask bad breath are temporary and therefore practically useless.

Please print this to let you millions of readers know how important it is to routinely brush the top of one's tongue as far back as can be reached with a medium-soft toothbrush. Sign me...

ABE IN CHICAGO

Wedding bells? Wedding bills! Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling included).

DEAR ABBY: "Afraid to Fantasize in Chickasha, Okla." said that somewhere in the Bible it said that thinking lustful thoughts was just as sinful as doing the deed, so why not go ahead and do the deed?

The "somewhere" is in Matthew 5:28, where Jesus is quoted as saying, "I tell you that any man who looks at a woman to lust after her has already committed adultery with her in his heart."

Abby, you said you had put that question to many theologians but never received a satisfactory explanation. May I try?

Jesus said both acts are sinful, but he did not say that they were equally wrong. For example, no one would say that the urge to strike one's wife (which is sinful) is equally grievous as beating her. Obviously to follow through on a wrongful impulse is a far greater sin than the initial thought.

The essence of Christ's advice: "Nip it in the bud!"

DAVID M. LYLES, DALLAS

DEAR DAVID: Since the thought is the mother of the deed, I suppose one could say, "Don't dwell on evil thoughts — chase them immediately from your mind, lest they lead to doing the sinful deed." But fantasizing can (and does) offer pleasure, and hurts no one — unless those fantasies are acted upon.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that is nothing serious, but it's frustrating.

My wife never throws anything away. She saves everything! As a result, our attic is overloaded. I have told her repeatedly that we must get the attic straightened up. She says it doesn't bother her — meanwhile, every year it gets more cluttered. I have suggested many times that I would be glad to do the job myself, but that doesn't meet with her approval because she's afraid I might throw away something she wants to save.

We are getting on in years, and if we don't clean out this attic while we are still able to do it, our children will be stuck with the job, and I don't think that would be fair to the kids.

I am sure there are others who have had the same problem. Any suggestions?

NAME WITHHELD TO PROTECT THE WIFE

DEAR NO NAME: I'm not as concerned about the "kids" as I am about you. You don't say what has been stored in the attic, but old magazines and newspapers could be flammable. Old clothes, shoes and blankets would be a welcome gift for the homeless. Drop them off at your Salvation Army or local mission.

Now that the holidays are over, lay down the law. If your wife refuses to assist in cleaning out the attic, which could be a potential fire hazard, tell her you will have it inspected by the local fire department. Then do it.

DEAR ABBY: As the parent of a young teen-age girl, I have discovered, while discussing problems with other parents, a most effective solution to the "slamming-door syndrome."

At our house, when our daughter dramatically slams her bedroom door, we perform a "door-ectomy." This is a simple, reversible procedure. Use a screwdriver and a hammer to remove the pins from the offending child's door. Present the door to the child in a quiet ceremony. Reverse the procedure in two weeks.

A number of our friends have tried this method with a 100 percent cure rate. The lesson is that unacceptable behavior results in a logical consequence: loss of a teenager's most treasured commodity — privacy.

SOUTHERN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Thanks for sharing. It sounds like an open-and-shut case — or a grand slam.

Abby's favorite family recipes are included in her new cookbooklet. For your copy, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Abby's Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Body found said to be Odessa man

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Investigators have identified charred human remains found in a trash Dumpster as a missing Odessa man, but would not speculate about how the man died.

Police have identified the body as 84-year-old Jack Doherty of Odessa, whose remains were discovered Jan. 19 in a large trash container. The body was so badly burned that the victim was not recognizable, and police were unable to use dental records to identify him because the burned man had no teeth.

The victim was tentatively identified as Doherty after police in Odessa and Lubbock compared the victim's description with that of Doherty, who was reported missing Jan. 7 in Odessa. Lubbock police Sgt. Randy McGuire said detectives still have work to do before being able to positively determine what led to Doherty's death.

"We have found out a few things but we really can't say anything right now until we're absolutely certain how things happened," McGuire said Thursday.

Justice of the Peace Bill Ross said he is still withholding a ruling on the cause of death.

Investigators had theorized that the victim may have been living in the Dumpster and set a fire inside it to stay warm. The autopsy indicated that the man might have died after being overcome by carbon monoxide fumes, authorities said.

Major British study contradicts U.S. findings about aspirin, heart attacks

LONDON (AP) — A six-year study of more than 5,000 British doctors published Friday found no evidence that men who take aspirin daily can reduce their risk of heart attacks.

The research appears to directly contradict a study of 22,000 U.S. doctors reported this week that suggests aspirin taken every other day can cut the risk of heart attack by 47 percent.

"In contrast, the unpromising results of the trial in the United Kingdom suggest that prophylactic (protective) aspirin had no effect," said the researchers at Oxford University's Radcliffe Infirmary.

The researchers pointed out, however, that the U.S. study found about three times as many non-fatal heart attacks as the British study, "so the positive result from the United States carries more weight than the null result from the United Kingdom."

Child welfare worker no billed in connection with baby's death

HOUSTON (AP) — A Harris County grand jury refused to indict a social worker accused of ignoring a telephone call about an abused infant later found dead.

The decision, issued Thursday by the grand jury, cleared Harriett Bell of criminal charges in the case.

Ms. Bell, who was suspended from her job over the incident, testified she was out of the Children's Protective Services office when the call reportedly came in on the afternoon of Oct. 3, 1987. Two other women also supported Ms. Bell's statements.

Prosecutors alleged Ms. Bell, a part-time CPS worker for five years, ignored the call from Pasadena nurse Mary Anne Bailey. Ms. Bailey had become concerned after seeing the child, Darrell McFadden, in a Pasadena video store.

The telephone call which Ms. Bailey made was not recorded, which is standard practice, because wires connecting a recording device to the CPS telephone had been disconnected, said Prosecutor Marie Munier.

The wires apparently had been tampered with before the call was made.

For that reason, the collective results might indicate the benefit to middle-aged men of taking aspirin daily might be to reduce the risk of non-fatal heart attacks by about one-third, the Oxford team said.

"At present, neither the United States nor the United Kingdom trial results suggest any reduction whatever in overall vascular mortality (deaths from strokes and heart attacks taken together), and both suggest some increase in the number of strokes," the researchers wrote in the British Medical Journal.

The U.S. study, one of the largest ever carried out, involved 22,071 male physicians. Of the 11,034 who took aspirin every other day, 104 had heart attacks. The other 11,037 doctors took a placebo, 189 had heart attacks.

The British study involved 5,139 doctors over a six-year period from 1978. Among the 3,429 who took aspirin daily, 148 died from heart attack or stroke.

Among the 1,710 who did not take aspirin, 79 died of heart attack or stroke.

"Although the death rate among doctors in the British study who took aspirin was 10 percent lower than among those who did not, it mainly involved diseases other than heart attack or stroke and was not statistically significant," the article said.

Moreover, there was no significant difference in the incidence of nonfatal heart attacks and stroke between the groups. In fact, the research team said, disabling strokes were slightly more common among those who took aspirin.

"Our study, however, does not provide a final balance of the exact benefits and hazards of prophylactic aspirin among apparently healthy people, possibly because no material effect existed or possibly because the total numbers of such events were small and hence unduly subject to chance," the researchers said.

LULAC announces lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Hispanic groups Friday announced a federal lawsuit against Secretary of State Jack Rains over alleged violations of federal law in the way the state is conducting the Super Tuesday primary election. Primary election financing rules developed by Rains should have been submitted to the Department of Justice for preclearance under the Voting Rights Act, attorney Judith Sanders-Castro of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, told a news conference.

Federal preclearance of changes in the voting process is required to ensure minority rights are not violated. MALDEF announced it is filing the lawsuit against the state and Rains on behalf of the League of United Latin-American Citizens.

"Our most precious freedom in this country is the right to vote. We stand ready to use every means at our disposal to fight for the laws of this country," said Jose Garcia De Lara, state LULAC director.

Ms. Sanders-Castro also said it was wrong for Rains to allow Republican presidential candidates to remain on the ballot after apparently forged signatures were found on their ballot petitions.

In allowing them to remain on the ballot, the secretary of state made a change affecting voting that also should have been submitted to the Department of Justice, she said.

Randy Erben, assistant secretary of state, said the state has complied with the law. State law does not allow the secretary of state to remove candidates from the ballot after they have been certified by the party, he said.

The election rules do not affect voting but simply establish guidelines for administration and financing, he said. No previous secretary of state in Texas has received preclearance for such rules, which are developed every two years, he said.

The complaint to be filed at federal court asks that the rules not be implemented until they are precleared.

Children help pay for memorial for Christa McAuliffe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan paid tribute to the "courage, vision and determination" of the seven Challenger crew members and a plaque honoring teacher-astronaut Christa McAuliffe was unveiled during ceremonies marking the second anniversary of the space shuttle explosion.

"I hope no other ships blow up," wrote Cyndi Lowden of Audubon, N.J., in one of the 2,000 letters to be put inside the hollow plaque honoring McAuliffe. Quarter and dime contributions totaling $2,500 from school children across the country helped pay for the plaque, unveiled Thursday at the national headquarters of the American Federation of Teachers.

Reagan, recalling the Jan. 28, 1986, explosion, said, "Now as then, we join the families of those gallant space shuttle explorers in mourning them and in saluting their courage, vision, and determination."

McAuliffe and six other astronauts died in the explosion shortly after liftoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Reagan made the statements in a proclamation declaring Thursday as National Challenger Day, in recognition of the Challenger Center for Space Science Education formed by families of the Challenger crew members.

The center, supported by private donations, has established headquarters in Washington and is planning regional sites.

"The goals of the center are the goals of all Americans," Reagan said. "Let our nation's continued mission in the exploration of space pay tribute to the center and to the families, and let it forever salute Challenger's crew and its quest."

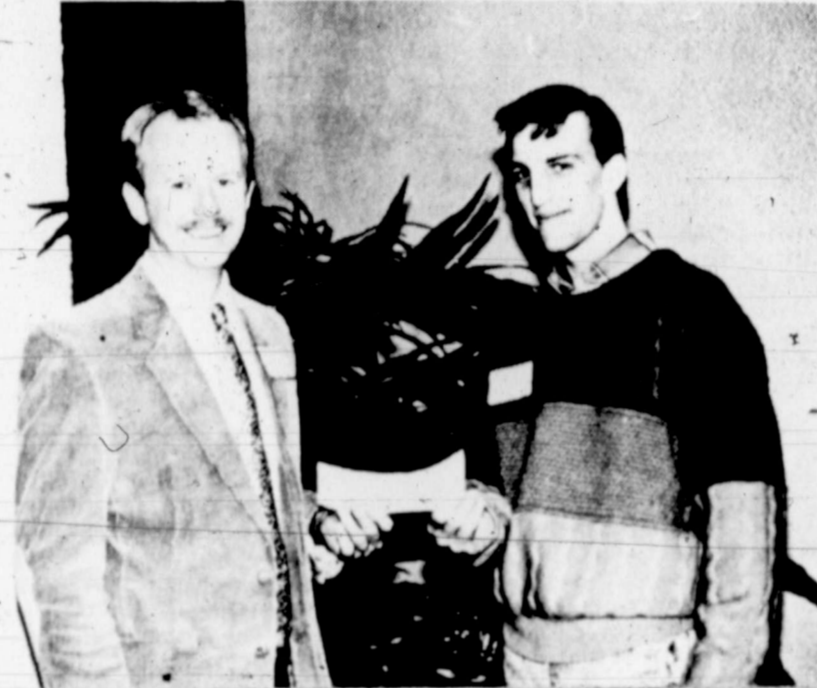

Fifteen-year-old Nikos Pavlides, a Voorhees, N.J., high school student, and 14-year-olds Ako Robinson of Somerdale, N.J., and Anthony DiBattista of Cherry Hill, N.J., got the idea for the McAuliffe memorial after seeing the Challenger explosion on television.

The boys contacted the AFT, a 600,000-member national teachers union, where officials offered to help. In 1986, the boys were invited to address teachers at the AFT's annual convention, to enlist their aid.

The bas-relief plaque bearing McAuliffe's likeness was fashioned by Philadelphia artist Eugene Daub.

FBI field offices questioned orders for domestic spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Friday denied any knowledge of FBI surveillance of opponents of the administration's Central America policies, and said President Reagan was concerned about the practice.

Reagan has asked FBI Director William S. Sessions for a report, said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. Fitzwater said Reagan "is concerned because there should be no investigation of Americans for their political beliefs." Asked if Reagan had been aware of the surveillance, Fitzwater said, "No one in the White House or NSC (National Security Council) had any involvement, connection or knowledge...."

Agency documents show that FBI field offices directed by headquarters to investigate opponents of the administration's policies questioned the extent to which they could monitor "seemingly legitimate political activity."

The questions arose during an FBI domestic surveillance campaign that began in 1981 and eventually expanded to focus on hundreds of individuals and organizations opposed to U.S. intervention in Central America, according to the agency records.

FBI headquarters in July 1984 repeated its instructions to the field offices, adding the proviso that "it is imperative that these investigations are closely supervised and monitored to ensure our investigations do not infringe upon the rights of these individuals or groups."

But a month later, the Denver office sent a message to the FBI director saying, "Denver concurs with New Orleans that in spite of attempts by the bureau to clarify guidelines and goals for this investigation, the field is still not sure of how much seemingly legitimate political activity can be monitored."

The FBI documents were released this week by the Center for Constitutional Rights, a New York-based civil rights and civil liberties organization which obtained about 1,300 pages from FBI files under the Freedom of Information Act.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III said Thursday that he will review the operation in response to allegations that the targets were harassed and their constitutional rights violated.

Your Birthday

Feb. 1, 1988

Jan. 31, 1988

Through a unique alliance, an opportunity will develop in the year ahead that will have profitable potential. Be sure the contracts and legal agreements are securely tied down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In the early part of the day things may come to you without your having to expend too much effort. This condition, however, will fade in the afternoon. Major changes are ahead for Aquarians in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH, 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who knows you are a soft touch might try to take advantage of your generous nature today. You'll realize you're being had, yet you'll still ante up.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You must be tactful and diplomatic in expressing your views today. If you don't, you may come off looking so opinionated that others will put little stock in what you have to say.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If your expectations are grander than your contributions today, you might end up being disappointed with what you receive for your efforts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your material affairs should live up to your expectations today, but you might not get equally high marks where your human relationships are concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's to your benefit to make a good impression on people with whom you'll be involved. Be nice without putting on airs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others will be interested in what you have to promote today, but you could lose the sale if you oversell. Make your presentation brief, but effective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You won't be considered stingy or insensitive if you turn down a loan to a friend today that you can't afford to make in the first place. Be realistic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order for a joint venture to succeed today, both parties must be in total agreement concerning the primary objective. Discard defeat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you schedule your fun activities today in front of responsibilities to which you should be attending, it is not likely the latter will be accomplished.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take any risks today with things of which you are not the sole owner. If something goes wrong, you could be held responsible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid situations today where you place yourself in the middle hoping to appease two dissident factions. This tactic could lead to disaster.

Two important, unrelated interests could dominate much of your time in the year ahead. In order to develop both of them properly, they should be treated separately.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep competitive involvements in proper perspective today, especially if you are playing some type of game. Do it solely for the fun, not for ego gratification. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Some views about which you feel strongly may offend your companions today. If you see they are being received unfavorably, it's best to back off.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best not to make a large request of a friend today, even though he/she is indebted to you for past favors. This person will resent being put on the spot.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Objectives that are important to you today may not be of equal significance to your associates. Don't put too much strain on a present alliance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The bonds between you and someone with whom you're closely involved are rather fragile at this time. Don't work at cross purposes today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful that you are not drawn into a sticky situation today that directly concerns two of your friends, but not you. It could spoil your day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Attempting to wrap up an important agreement in a hurry today could turn out to be a grave mistake. You may make concessions that you'll later regret.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When conversing with friends today, don't give more importance to subjects that are solely of interest to you. Your listeners will tune you out if you do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your budget has its limitations. If you're too loose with your resources at this time, you may not have money for necessities when you'll later need it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, you may want to do certain things that are objectionable to other family members. You could start a ruckus if you are overly insistent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually when you have to deal with disagreeable individuals you handle matters rather well, but today, if you have to contend with someone unpleasant, you might overreact.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be a trifle cynical about proposals made to you today by people in the business world. Their pitches could be better than the products.

Knowledge aids oil search

HOUSTON (AP) — The computers and high technology now used to search for oil and gas would have been a mystery to Anthony Lucas, who relied largely on a hunch to drill the famed 1901 Spindletop gusher.

"There was almost no science at Spindletop," says Dave Kingston, a retired Standard Oil of New Jersey geologist. "Today, it's just the reverse. We want to know all we can (about a prospect) before we drill."

Using stunning advances in geology, geochemistry and other disciplines, oilmen now analyze a broad range of information in searching for unbound storehouses of Earth's most crucial commodity.

"There's no way to relate today to what we had in the past," says Houston oilman Michel Halbouty. "The technology has changed every day of every year that the industry has been alive."

Central to nearly all the developments has been the increasing use of computers to sift, store and massage massive amounts of data.

Among other things, computers can generate three-dimensional views of prospective drill sites based on information from rock samples, previous drilling and other sources, creating hypothetical composite pictures of what lies below grassy, forested or desert surfaces.

"In the past, the same process has been done with pencil and paper," said Richard D. Bowden, spokesman for Energy Software

Inc. of Midland. "It's like comparing the Wright Brothers to the Concorde — it's the same kind of advance."

Advances in seismic technology have also aided the search for oil, says Don Bennett, divisional vice president of exploration and production technology division of Texaco Inc.

By measuring the movement of seismic shock waves through the Earth, scientists can derive clues as to whether the waves are traveling through rock, sand, or possibly, unbound oil formations.

Since 1968, when plate tectonics — the theory that Earth's surface is composed of massive shifting rock plates — became widely accepted, dramatic advances in geology have been made.

"What plate tectonics does, instead of just hunt and peck here and there, you now have a unifying theory about how these plates were formed," said Manik Talwani, director of the Geotechnology Research Institute in Houston. "It helps you very much in your guessing about which might be good oil provinces."

In addition, developments in the complicated science of geochemistry have provided clues to locating oil through testing sample rocks in the laboratory, as have improvements in sensing equipment lowered down drill holes to conduct electrical and other analyses.

Patrick Shannon, another retired Standard Oil of New Jersey geologist, now runs his own consulting firm specializing in analyzing LANDSAT satellite photos of Earth for telltale signs of oil and gas deposits.

MediaNews president predicts industry growth in 1990s

DALLAS (AP) — Texas newspapers will see increasing profits and growth through the next decade as their advertising becomes easier and more effective than other forms of media, a newspaper owner said Friday.

William Dean Singleton, president of MediaNews Group Inc. of Dallas, whose company owns more than 50 newspapers in nine states, said newspapers will become more popular among national advertisers as competition cuts market penetration for television stations and direct mail businesses face higher postal rates.

"I have a firm conviction that newspapers are probably the best business to be in for the next generation than any business in America," Singleton told about 200 members of the Texas Press Association at the group's midwinter convention.

"And I have a further firm conviction that they are going to be the leading communications industry into the '90s and into the next century," Singleton said.

Singleton, a virtual unknown before he acquired the Dallas Times Herald in 1986, has in less than two years become a well-known figure in media circles.

Last year his company acquired the Houston Post and the Denver Post.

Singleton said group newspaper advertising linked by satellite will grow in the next decade as its cost goes down and smaller papers sign on or form groups to tie into the systems.

But he said the days are numbered for publishers who charge higher rates for national advertising than for local retail ads, and whose advertising policies are set in stone.

Reagan withholds judgment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is endorsing a proposal by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for a six-month cooling-off period on the troubled West Bank and Gaza, but is not adopting his call for a Mideast peace conference.

"We are still formulating our thoughts on this," a senior U.S. official told reporters Thursday after Mubarak outlined his ideas to President Reagan at the White House.

Among them is an international peace conference and a moratorium on Jewish settlements in the occupied territories. "We have to be in touch with the several parties," said the official, who demanded anonymity.

For seven weeks, Israeli forces and Palestinian Arabs have clashed in the territories that were held by Jordan and Egypt until they lost the 1967 Mideast war to Israel. Most of the inhabitants are Palestinians.

Mubarak's proposal for a cooling-off period drew a positive response. "We think that's a very sensible idea," the official said.

But he stressed the United States would back a peace conference only if it were designed to "launch negotiations" between Israel and the Arabs. "The question of Palestinian representation is — remains — one of the tough ones," he said. "It hasn't been solved."

The leaders exchanged toasts Thursday night at a lavish state dinner given by Reagan and his wife, Nancy, for Mubarak and his wife, Suzanne.

SPORTS MEDICINE CENTER OF THE SOUTHWEST OPENS DOORS FOR INJURED ATHLETES

January 1988 marked the opening of the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest. This new facility offers a comprehensive treatment program for competitive athletes as well as general sports enthusiasts. With state-of-the-art diagnostic and rehabilitation equipment, the center is designed to care for any sports related condition. 3800 square feet of space houses the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest, making it the largest facility specifically for sports medicine in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Merac (by Universal) computer diagnostic equipment provides analysis of injuries and predicts weaknesses in athletes on an individual basis. Data for each athlete may be stored on a computer diskette for future comparison. Progression of the rehabilitation process may be fully outlined on a computer printout for convenient record keeping. Eagle (by Cybex) weight training equipment provides conditioning and muscle toning for virtually every part of the human body. This equipment, along with the highly qualified staff, can help athletes get back to their game as quickly and safely as possible.

A wide variety of services are available through the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest. Some of these include: pre-season and pre-employment physical exams, body composition and mechanics assessments, sport specific screenings, injury and fitness clinics, back school, physical therapy, diet and nutrition counseling, work hardening, and a variety of others.

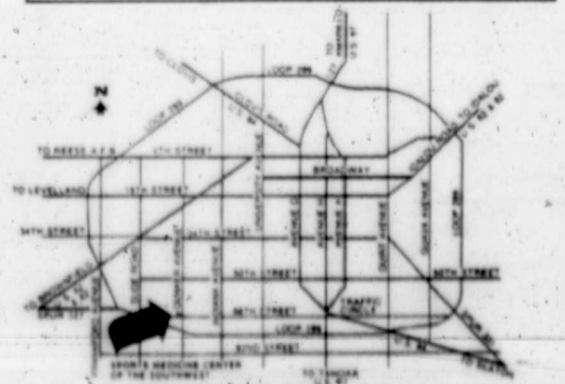

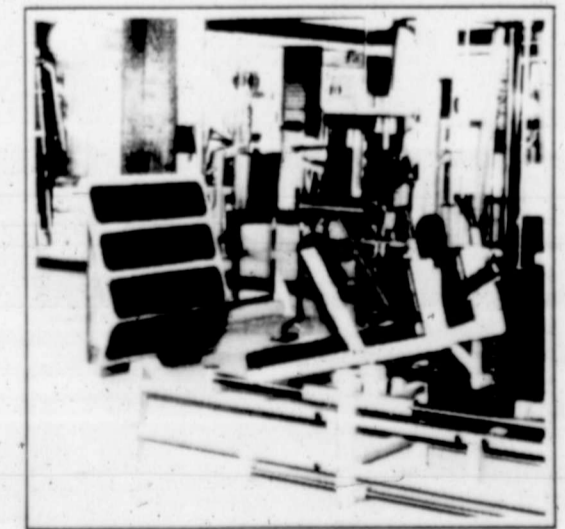

The Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest is operated under the direction of a team of physician specialists in areas such as: Orthopedics, Internal Medicine, Cardiology, Family Practice, Dermatology, Gynecology, Otolaryngology, Podiatry, Dentistry, Ophthalmology, and Orthotics to name a few. An advisory board consisting of athletic trainers from across the region offers guidance for the program as well. The entire team is in tune with the special needs of athletes and their determination and desire to excel. They understand the frustration an injury can impose on an athlete, but more important, this team has the know-how to put the athlete back in condition as quickly as possible.

Cardiac patients may benefit from the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest also. Both rehabilitative and preventative treatment schedules can be designed for individual patient needs. Patient progress can be monitored by trained cardiologists on staff to ensure a safe and proper workout.

The technical expertise of the staff of the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest also extends to job related injuries. Treatment programs can be specifically designed to aid in an employee's safe and timely return to work after an accident. Computerized diagnostic equipment can precisely measure the degree of severity of an occupational injury. The equipment records movement capabilities so accurately that it cannot be duplicated unless an injury actually exists.

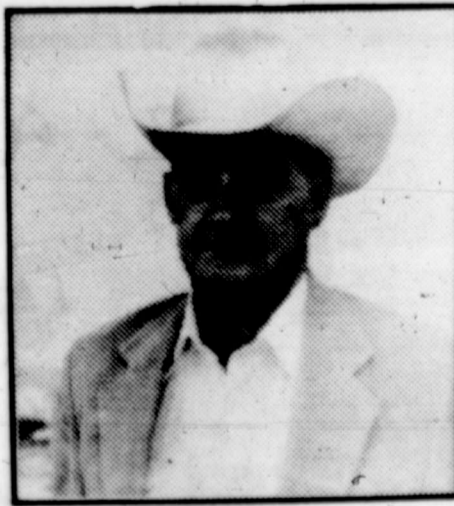

Each Saturday, from 9AM to 11AM, the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest will open its doors for an injury screening clinic. No appointment is necessary for this session and any athlete may attend for a nominal fee. Attendees are entitled to injury assessment and initial treatment by our staff physician.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the Sports Medicine Center of the Southwest at 792-7112, ext. 292. Outside Lubbock, call 1-800-942-5111. Physician referrals are available at any time by calling 792-7112, ext. 132. 6602 South Quaker Avenue

"I was hoping you might help me wash the car later this afternoon."

"What!! Don't you realize it is now 4:55? Do you realize what is going to happen at 5 this afternoon—now only five minutes away and, as we speak, counting?"

"Oh yes. I forgot. The football game."

"No dear. You have it wrong. Football games, as you call them, are what high school players play. This is the Super Bowl. Let me say it again more clearly. The SUPER BOWL."

"Boring. Help me wash the car and you can watch the second half when we get back."

"I think I'm not getting through. In my own quiet little way I have arranged my entire weekend so that, at 5 o'clock this Sunday afternoon, I will be sitting in that chair THERE in front of that television THERE. I had visions that you, as my wife, might perhaps want to assist me in watching the game. To be nearby if I require something, thereby allowing me viewing time virtually unmarred by interruptions."

"We're a little sure of ourself today, aren't we? What has you so wired?"

"It is the Super Bowl. A chance to view the last great struggle of winter. The last televised football game that counts. The last afternoon of guaranteed entertainment until next fall."

"But..."

"And there's a second side. Realize that the Super Bowl is also the final Sunday afternoon of sloth. The end of our winter's peace."

"I'm not following."

"Because, after this Sunday, the coffee break will be over and it will be back on our heads. The only thing to entice us from yardwork or gloomy thoughts will be golf tournaments and re-runs of Charlie Chan movies. Football will no longer be an excuse and men across this country will have to do something."

"I think that's a great idea."

"But a horrible one, too. The reality is you have to do it cold turkey. Since September, we've had this to look forward to each and every Sunday afternoon. Brent and Irv. John Madden and his old buddy Pat. Good guys, every one. But after them, who will we have? I'll tell you who. Chris Schienkel doing championship bowling. It's not the same."

"Aren't you being a little too weird?"

"Not at all. Sunday afternoons must be the most horrible time of the week. That awful limbo period when you've had your Saturday night and your Sunday morning. Now, it's only a downhill slide to a terrible, dusky death. The grim and ultimate reality of a Monday morning."

"Are you finished?"

"Not quite. Didn't Sundays ever strike you that way? Don't you always have that uneasy feeling that you should be doing something? I hate it. That's why they invented Sunday afternoon football. To relieve those feelings of guilt. You can either go out and bust your hump on Sunday afternoon and feel good about it or you can sit and watch professional football. And you can feel good about that because you know it's God's excuse. It is what men are supposed to be doing."

"Are you finished now?"

"As a matter of fact I am. Now, the game's about to start."

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

"If you want to know what it's like to have your skin crawl with goosebumps," said my friend, D.K. Lowe, an 11-year veteran with the Dallas Police Department, "ride in a funeral procession for an officer murdered in the line of duty; and there are 80 squad cars in front of you and 80 squad cars behind you, and all along the way, people have pulled over on the side of the road, and they are out of their cars giving you the thumbs up."

My friend, who has a chest full of commendations for her years of service, was reduced to tears by the emotions induced by a situation in which a fellow officer and friend (whom I met, last summer, while riding patrol with her), was shot in the face at close range as he knelt on the pavement, begging for his life, while onlookers shouted, "Kill him! Kill him!" to the deranged man who held the gun.

There are those who would like to make this a racial issue. I choose not to. I met many fine black officers while I visited the department, and many fine black citizens on the street who, I am sure, are just as outraged by this tragic incident. There are those who would like to dwell on the negatives involved here, charges of police brutality by the Dallas City Council, unrest within the black community, and so on. Again, I choose not to. I choose, instead, to point out the tremendous community outpouring of support by the people of Dallas for their police force: the 2,000 people who marched in support of the officers, the 4,000 people who attended the officer's funeral, the thousands upon thousands who drove with their headlights on the day of the officer's funeral, the hundreds and hundreds who gave the funeral procession the "thumbs up" sign.

Lastly, there are those who would claim that such violence is a big city problem, that this has nothing to do with Snyder, that we don't have that kind of crime, or that kind of attitude, here.

If you hold that opinion, take off your rose-colored glasses and grow up. The only difference between Dallas and Snyder is population number. They have more people, that's all. More people means a higher concentration of crime, it does not mean a different kind of crime.

Right here in Snyder, we have hustlers and pimps, drug dealers and robbers, rapists and murderers. Does that surprise you? If it does, did it ever occur to you WHY you are surprised? Could it be that our law enforcement officers do such a good job of, literally, SHIELDING the rest of us from that element of the population that we are PROTECTED? We are sheltered. We go about our lives and don't think about it much until we feel threatened, then who do we call?

The Dallas officer who was shot simply pulled over a young man for a routine traffic violation: he didn't have an inspection sticker or insurance for his vehicle. It was while this officer was ticketing the young man that a bystander, a street transient, became abusive, assaulted the officer, and managed to get hold of the officer's own weapon.

Every time one of our law enforcement officers puts on his or her uniform, they become automatic targets for cop-killers. Every time a DPS trooper pulls over a speeder, he knows he could be confronting a dangerous criminal on the run. They risk their lives so that we don't have to.

And what do they get in return? Overwork, underpay, and complaints from you and me. We complain because Aunt Lily got a speeding ticket and the officer was rude to her. (We don't know how Aunt Lily behaved.) We complain because our son was arrested for vandalism by an officer we know, as if all friends of law enforcement officers should automatically be exempt from the law.

We don't allow law enforcement officers to be people; we expect them to be demi-gods who never get in a bad mood or lose their tempers. And we blame them all for the mistakes of one bad egg, though we never blame all teachers for one inept teacher, or all doctors for one careless doctor.

I don't see why it should take the senseless killing of one 25-year-old officer to move a community to show its support of its officers. Let's do something about it now. Starting today, I urge all of you reading this column to give the "thumbs up" signal to every officer you see on the street or in town; the patrolman parked in the school zone (protecting our children), the sheriff's deputy on his way out of town, a DPS trooper in a shady spot, a city cop taking a coffee break. Do it whenever you think of it. Do it clearly, where he can see. Do it with a smile.

Let's not wait for a funeral procession.

Improved agricultural conditions helped reverse a year-long downward trend in local bank deposits, it was reported Sunday.

For the first time in a full year, deposits at four reporting financial institutions showed a gain. At year-end, total deposits at three banks and one savings and loan in Snyder were $207.8 million. Total loans at the four financial institutions were $120 million.

The Texas Water Commission has pointed out what it says are six "deficiencies" in the city's sewage treatment plant and has asked for a timetable of corrective measures, it was reported Sunday.

City Engineer Don Osborn said the plant, south of the city off Ave. E, was constructed in 1953 from Army surplus materials and is among the city's three top-priority construction projects.

It was reported Sunday that five Scurry County gins were counting almost 60,000 bales of cotton ginned with many still noting modules on the yard awaiting processing. The exact count was 59,584 and this total is expected to rise past 65,000.

Results were reported Monday from the annual premium sale for the Scurry County Junior Livestock Show, which earned $59,655 for its young competitors this year.

The highest "purchase" was for the grand champion steer, entered by Terry Stephens. It earned a $1,600 bid from the Championship Club.

Western Texas College trustees—faced with a massive re-roofing project for campus buildings which could have cost almost $500,000—opted Monday for a roofing plan which will see the five worst roofs replaced and all others at least repaired.

The option approved by the board will cost some $304,000, an amount the board indicated it could fund for the first year with the option of additional roof replacements to be considered in the years ahead.

After more than three months of searching and negotiations, the Western Texas College board approved Monday the purchase of a new 271-acre college farm.

The land bought Monday was purchased for $350 per acre at a total cost of $94,850. It was noted these funds will come from the college's reserve monies, part of which is derived from interest income.

The land is located some 6½ miles southwest of the city and was purchased from the heirs of the Carl Voss Jr. estate.

City councilmen Tuesday night heard a proposal for a group called Snyder Cablevision Associates to take over SCAT TV Cable Co. here—a move that would add 12 new basic service channels and increase the monthly base rate from $11.24 to $16.95.

Dale Mathis of Colorado City, regional manager of Landmark Cablevision Associates, met with the council in a 7 p.m. work session to outline his proposal.

The 12-month cycle for Scurry County unemployment estimates has been completed with the December report indicating the jobless figure here dropped a full percentage point during the month, ending the year at 5.8 percent.

Rather than an increase in more jobs, however, the loss of more than 100 persons "actively seeking jobs" is linked to the unemployment decline, it was reported Wednesday.

A price increase for Cogdell Memorial Hospital was approved Thursday by the board, a change administrative officials say will both bring Cogdell in line with area facilities of similar size and "shift financial responsibility" for the hospital's operation.

The change will see a private room at Cogdell go from $140 per day to $170 and a semi-private room from $125 to $160.

At the same meeting, a newly proposed plan for weekend emergency medical service at Cogdell Memorial Hospital's ER was unveiled—a plan which would see a local physician assume the responsibility.

Supporters of the Texas Department of Corrections unit gathered Thursday night at TU Electric for the contract-signing to turn over the necessary land to the TDC. Those at the signing included Ernie Armstrong, Roy Baze, Joe Fowler, David Cotton, Jim Palmer, John Gayle, David Kattes, Jack Denman, Jack Smartt, Miller Robinson, Rod Waller, Wedge Turner, Cy Miller, Eddie Johnson, Bill Parker, Troy Williamson, M.L. # SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

Scurry and surrounding counties, by a great majority, passed the amendment for more prisons to be built in Texas. That did not mean it had to be in Snyder, though.

There are other places that would like to have a prison, where the inmates should be treated with honesty, courtesy and respect, as they allow themselves to be, no better and no worse than outsiders.

But after knowing of the morally shaky foundation plan of the one here in Snyder, how could we ever have full confidence in our bankers or civic leaders anymore if they built it!

If Edmund Burke was right when he said, "Our antagonist is our helper," then CBS news anchor Dan Rather may be the best assistant George Bush ever had. My reference, of course, is to Rather's unprofessional badgering of the vice president before a live nationwide audience Monday night, January 25.

As a former newspaper editor myself, I have conducted interviews in which the other person sometimes tried to manipulate the discussion to avoid discussing certain topics or in which the person tried to control the interview in other ways. And, in order to secure cooperation, I have sometimes had to threaten to walk away from the interview.

However, Dan Rather gave the whole profession of journalism a black eye when he persisted in asking questions of Bush and then interrupted him when he tried to answer. Not even a college sophomore news intern

Chicken pox affects children

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 13 and just caught chicken pox. What is this disease? How long should it last?

DEAR READER: Chicken pox, a highly contagious disease of children, is caused by a herpes-like virus called varicella zoster virus. VZV primarily infects the skin, where it produces itchy blisters that eventually scab over.

Most children with chicken pox are sick for one to two weeks. Once the blisters stop breaking out, the patient is no longer infectious and can return to normal activity. Thereafter, immunity to chicken pox is permanent.

Occasionally, severe cases of VZV can progress to bacterial skin infection, pneumonia, blood poisoning, inflammation of the brain (encephalitis) or hepatitis. Chicken pox can be a serious disease in adults (because of complications), but in children and adolescents, it is usually limited and benign. Scratching the blisters and scabs can produce deeper infection and scarring, so use calamine lotion or other anti-itch compounds to relieve symptoms.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I became diabetic four years ago. I developed a terrible odor in my vagina, so bad that my husband wants nothing to do with me. My internist and gynecologist both say it's from the diabetes, but douches and suppositories don't help. I'm an emotional wreck and don't know what to do.

DEAR READER: Diabetics are very prone to infections. The disease commonly is associated with skin inflammation, pneumonia and vaginal infections, such as candida. Treatment is difficult until the diabetes is brought under control by diet, pills or insulin. Once the blood sugar has been lowered, therapy with antibiotics or anti-fungal preparations is usually effective.

I suspect that your problem was caused by a vaginal infection. You should have bacterial and fungus cultures obtained from your lower reproductive tract. Once the offending microorganism has been identified by the lab, treatment can be tailor-made to suit your needs. If your gynecologist has been unable to relieve your symptoms, ask for a second gynecologist's opinion. Sometimes a new perspective will lead to a cure.

Herbs can be risky business

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Herbal preparations are becoming increasingly popular, as people attempt to self-medicate a variety of human ailments. Unfortunately, these people are often not aware of the side effects and potentially fatal adverse reactions that can occur with such substances.

Herbal medicines are not regulated by the Food and Drug Administration; hence, there is no standard of purity or of dose. In addition, since folk remedies are usually prepared at home, a lack of consistency makes for enormous variations in herbal concentration, sometimes producing a toxic product. For example, deadly nightshade (Atropa belladonna) contains atropine, one milligram of which is useful in treating certain cardiac and gastrointestinal conditions. However, a single berry from a deadly nightshade plant contains a lethal amount of atropine.

Ginseng, a common natural remedy for respiratory and intestinal disorders, contains more than 15 active ingredients that can cause hypertension, affect sugar metabolism and exert a female-hormone effect. When taken in large quantities, ginseng has been shown to produce diarrhea, nervousness, insomnia, rash, depression and amenorrhea (cessation of menstrual periods).

Other teas — made from senna, goldenseal and chamomile — can cause severe allergic reactions, asthma, hives, low blood pressure and seizures.

Black cherry contains volatile oils and resins that suppress coughing. The compound used to be added as a flavoring agent to cough syrups. However, the wilted leaves of black cherry also contain glycosides that release cyanide. Although early American farmers learned to clear black cherry from their grazing fields — because cattle would die of cyanide poisoning — some modern consumers mistakenly still use black cherry with serious results: abdominal pain, vomiting, lethargy and convulsions.

Pokeweed has been touted for years as a treatment for arthritis. In fact, pokeweed root and berries do contain alkaloids that have narcotic-like pain-relieving actions. However, high doses can cause vomiting, diarrhea, respiratory paralysis and convulsions. Adults have died after eating as few as 10 berries.

Chemical compounds in Russian comfrey have been linked to liver enlargement, liver failure, intestinal bleeding and (in animals) liver cancer. Jamaicans and Mexicans who drink a tea called gordolobo yerba have suffered fulminant liver disease. Because the effects of herbal preparations may take weeks or months to develop, patients often fail to recognize the cause-and-effect relationship between the herbs and illness, so they continue to drink the teas, thereby increasing the likelihood of serious, toxic reactions.

Sassafras is another plant that, when brewed as a tea, can cause both acute and long-term damage to the body. Diarrhea may be the first symptom of overdose; this is followed by a form of narcotic poisoning, seen as respiratory paralysis and liver and kidney degeneration. On the basis of animal studies, sassafras has been classed as a potential carcinogen, meaning that it can possibly cause cancer in humans.

Lobelia, commonly known as Indian tobacco, has been used as a tobacco substitute. In large doses, it causes the symptoms of nicotine poisoning, the SLUDE syndrome: salivation, lacrimation (tearing), urination, defecation and emesis (vomiting).

Aside from allergic reactions, some herbal preparations should not be used in the presence of certain diseases. For instance, oil from the juniper tree (a kidney stimulant) can increase kidney inflammation. Another diuretic weed, horsetail, can cause thiamine deficiency, thereby triggering a severe brain disorder (Wernick's encephalopathy) in alcoholics who may already have borderline amounts of thiamine in their systems.

Finally, herbs may be contaminated with environmental toxins, such as lead from automobile gasoline and steroids that are added to "improve effectiveness."

Plants contain powerful pharmacological ingredients. More than 20 percent of commercially prepared drugs originate from vegetation. Patients should approach "yesterday's remedies" with respect and caution.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Uncertainty shrouds facility

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Electricity to over 360,000 customers of a power company in New Hampshire will stay on, but 2,000 of its employees were getting no paychecks Friday after the main owner of the Seabrook nuclear power plant filed for bankruptcy reorganization.

Public Service Co. of New Hampshire on Thursday became the fourth largest U.S. company to file under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Act and the first major investor-owned utility to seek such protection since the Depression.

The filing came two days after the state Supreme Court denied the company an emergency rate increase by upholding a 1979 law against charging ratepayers for power plants in advance of commercial operation.

At a news conference, utility president Robert Harrison said Public Service took the action because there was "a very high probability" that creditors would seek to force the utility into involuntary bankruptcy as early as today.

Paychecks Friday for 2,000 of Public Service's 2,600 employees will be delayed a week by a temporary freeze on assets, but electrical service to the company's 365,000 customers will continue without interruption, Harrison said.

The company has a 36 percent stake in the plant which was completed a year and a half ago but has been unable to surmount evacuation-planning obstacles to a commercial operating license.

Harrison said Public Service will continue to push the rate plan it had proposed before the filing. It calls for a 15 percent increase followed by a 3-year rate freeze, with later increases tied to the cost of living.

Seabrook critics and some company projections had predicted the plant would double or even triple rates, which already are well above the national average.

One prominent critic, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, reiterated that warning Thursday, saying Public Service's action spared New Hampshire consumers from paying rates that would have been "the most expensive in the country."

Public Service, which lists $3 billion in assets, including $2.1 billion sunk into Seabrook, had to borrow hundreds of millions of dollars to finish the $5.2 billion plant and struggled for months to stay out of bankruptcy court.

Since October it has defaulted on unsecured bond issues totaling more than $700 million and faces lawsuits from three banks representing creditors seeking to take control of the utility's property.

Under Chapter 11, a company is freed from the threat of creditor lawsuits until it can develop a plan to put its finances in order. The court must approve management activities and a majority of creditors must approve the ultimate reorganization plan.

Manchester lawyer Robert Backus, a longtime Seabrook foe, called the Chapter 11 filing "recognition that the Seabrook plant is and was an economic disaster."

Harrison, however, said Public Service will seek to continue paying its share of the cost of carrying Seabrook, and he pledged to forge ahead with efforts to license the plant.

Republican Gov. John Sununu, a longtime Seabrook supporter, called the development regrettable, but expressed hope that means can be found "to protect both the ratepayers of New Hampshire and the state's energy supply."

Public Service becomes the second Seabrook owner to seek bankruptcy protection. Last summer, Eastern Maine Electric Cooperative, which holds a tiny share of the plant, sought Chapter 11 protection to try to get out of its Seabrook contract.

Public Service skirted bankruptcy in 1984 and had to halt Seabrook construction for three months until the state Supreme Court let it borrow $425 million, the largest utility financing deal in U.S. history.

But the unique circumstances that forced Public Service into reorganization are unlikely to spark investors to dump utility bonds, said Daniel Scott of the investment firm L.F. Rothschild & Co.

CBS may think that Rather is earning the $3 million annual salary that he takes home, but Walter Cronkite he is not. I'd suggest that they put Rather on a $3.35 per hour retainer and send him back to Sam Houston State University for some refresher courses in basic journalistic ethics. Then they can use him as a foreign correspondent from Pakistan. Anywhere but as the evening news anchor.

I for one will refuse to watch CBS Evening News until Dan Rather is removed as the anchor. Anyone who agrees with me should write a letter to the Chief Executive Officer, Columbia Broadcasting System, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019. Stan Paregien 2811 Ave. Y Snyder, TX 79549

To the editor,

I recently spent five days at Cogdell Hospital in the O.B. ward where my little girl was born.

I would just like to say thank-you to the staff for the professional and competent care that I received while I was a patient there.

Everyone was so congenial and went out of their way to make me as comfortable as possible.

I would also like to compliment the custodian for being so efficient and considerate. Not only was my room kept immaculate, but done at my convenience.

Any hospital would benefit from having this staff.

Thank you again for the special care. Neva Howell 3007 El Paso Snyder, TX 79549

To the editor,

Well I guess I would qualify as a "Poor, Ignorant Tax Payer of Scurry County." I know one thing, I can get you proof on the tax part of it.

I want to ask the people of Scurry County four questions and let them answer them.

—1. It is my understanding that the Cogdell Hospital is partly supported by county tax money. I also understand that the hospital has been losing money the last few years. If so, why did the Scurry County commissioners court, the hospital board of trustees and I will also include Mr. Miller, want to give the TDC a 28% discount just so they could raise my taxes? Was this a mistake?

—2. I would also like to know why the commissioners court, the Cogdell Hospital board of trustees and I will still include Mr. Miller, built the new hospital wing. It's my understanding that the old wing has been empty and the new one half-empty since it was built. Was this a mistake?

—3. Why did the commissioners court and the board of trustees of Cogdell Hospital keep Mr. Miller in charge of the hospital for 25 years when the hospital was losing money. Was this a mistake?

—4. Now that Mr. Miller is gone, the commissioners court and the board of trustees of Cogdell Hospital have gone up to Lubbock to get someone else to run the hospital. Is this a mistake?

I am beginning to think the commissioners court and the board of trustees of the hospital and I will also include Mr. Miller, is just like the engineer — they don't make mistakes, they just miscalculate.

U.S., Russia want to keep nuclear club very exclusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union don't agree about much, but they do agree that the world's nuclear club should remain exclusive.

Despite their efforts, it's an enormous problem.

A task force sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace warned this month that "time is fast running out to avert nuclear arming in South Asia."

The report called for initiatives by India, Pakistan and outside states to slow nuclear proliferation in the region, and it urged President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to address the issue at their summit meeting in Moscow, probably in June.

The known members of the nuclear club are the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China. There is a growing probability that Israel, India and Pakistan also have the capacity to produce nuclear weapons.

South Africa, Argentina and Brazil also may be knocking on the door, or slipping quietly into the club without making an announcement. There have been rumors of a North Korean program. Questions have been raised about Libya. Israel's bombing of an Iraqi reactor in 1981 may have stopped — or only delayed — a weapons program in Baghdad.

The United States and the Soviet Union signed a non-proliferation treaty in 1968. In all, 131 countries ratified or agreed to abide by the treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

The agreement called for a sharing of peaceful technology, a halt to the arms race and "the discontinuance of all test explosions of nuclear weapons for all time."

Today, some technology is shared, the arms race has not stopped and, of course, nuclear weapons are still being tested.

Milton Hoenig of the Nuclear Control Institute of Washington, a group studying the spread of nuclear weapons, estimates that 20 tests were conducted last year by the Big Five — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China.

On another front, Japanese

Prime Minister Noburu Takeshita's visit here this month left unresolved a brewing controversy over an agreement with the Reagan administration that loosens restrictions on plutonium recovered from spent reactor fuel.

It also allows 1,000 pounds of the toxic and weapons-usable material to be flown each month to Japan — to the consternation of some members of Congress and non-proliferation specialists.

President Reagan and Takeshita reiterated their commitment to the accord, but opponents are trying to force a vote in Congress to defeat it.

Paul Leventhal, president of the Nuclear Control Institute, considers the agreement an ominous sign of the "bottom-line problem" — an inability to control plutonium over the long term.

The former Senate staffer and journalist stresses that once plutonium is separated from spent fuel it lasts forever; it does not decay into a harmless form.

Man wanted for questioning in string of Indiana slayings

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A man wanted for questioning in connection with a string of three slayings in the Indianapolis area was apprehended as he stepped off a bus in this Texas Panhandle city, authorities said.

The 22-year-old man was arrested Thursday at the Trailways bus terminal here following a tip from Indiana authorities, police said.

Officers from the Amarillo-Potter-Randall Special Crimes Unit and the Organized Crime Unit arrested the man without incident. Amarillo police received a call that the man would be arriving in town on the bus, according to Special Crimes Unit coordinator Lt. Jimmy Stevens.

Stevens said the man was arraigned Friday, and he will also be offered an opportunity to waive extradition. If he waives extradition, Indiana authorities will take him back as soon as they can get to Amarillo. Should he decline to waive extradition, formal extradition procedures would be required.

Indiana State Police spokesman Lt. Ken Hollingsworth said the Marion County man had been wanted on two murders in Indianapolis and a third in nearby Hendricks County.

Indianapolis police spokeswoman Barbara Sinclair said the string of deaths began in the pre-dawn hours Tuesday, when city police received a call about a man, later identified as Steven J. Wentland, 19, of Indianapolis, being run over by a car and then stabbed on the city's south side.

Panamanian ruler flew smuggler's jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega borrowed a corporate jet from an American drug smuggler to fly to Washington for a 1983 meeting with President Reagan, Senate investigators were told.

The drug trafficker, Steven Michael Kalish, testified Thursday that he used bribes, kickbacks and other favors to make Noriega a "full-scale co-conspirator" in an elaborate scheme to launder profits from Colombian marijuana and cocaine deals through Panamanian banks.

Kalish is now serving an eight-year prison term. He told the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee that he chose Panama as a safe haven for illegal drug profits in 1983 because of its strict bank secrecy laws, and quickly found Noriega to be an eager business partner.

Their conspiracy was sealed when Kalish met Noriega at his Panama City home in September 1983 and left a briefcase stuffed with $300,000 in cash, Kalish said. He said he made it clear to Noriega that he wanted to invest "extremely large amounts" of drug profits in Panama.

Noriega accepted the bribe with a smile, he testified, and later told Kalish at a party that "he would do whatever he could for me."

In the ensuing months, Kalish said, he helped Noriega buy an executive helicopter and a Boeing 727 aircraft. "Noriega later agreed to use to plane for our money-laundering operations," he said.

Kalish said he also loaned Noriega his sumptuously outfitted Lear jet — bought with illicit drug proceeds — for a flight to Washington to confer with Reagan in November 1983.

Noriega told Kalish that Reagan wanted Noriega's help in the U.S. campaign against "communists in Nicaragua" and wanted him to open secret Panamanian bank accounts for examination by U.S. authorities looking for money laundering violations, Kalish said.

Kalish said Noriega did not give his reaction to the Nicaragua request, but assured him that "he'd never open up the bank accounts in Panama."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the committee chairman, said Kalish provided the first sworn testimony publicly confirming allegations of Noriega's deep involvement in drug smuggling and official corruption by Panamanian military rulers.

Noriega has consistently denied the allegations, which he claims are part of a U.S. government campaign to discredit him. After a period of early support, the Reagan administration is now pressuring Noriega to step down voluntarily and permit free elections leading to full democracy in Panama.

After civil unrest erupted in Panama last June, when the U.S. Embassy was attacked, the administration froze most of the $26 million in foreign aid to Panama. Last month, Congress cut off virtually all economic and military assistance to Panama, eliminated its U.S. sugar export quotas and moved to deny approval of international development bank loans to Panama.

Kalish, 35, a high school dropout from Houston who became the mastermind of a multimillion-dollar drug operation, has served 43 months of an eight-year prison term on earlier drug-related charges.

Board to consider auto rate question

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance will decide automobile insurance rates on Monday, although consumer groups contend their interests have not been fairly represented.

A coalition including Consumers Union, Gray Panthers, Public Citizen, American Association of Retired Persons and Texas Consumer Association unsuccessfully asked the board to postpone a Thursday rate hearing.

The groups said their rights are being violated because Gov. Bill Clements has not appointed anyone as public insurance counsel to represent consumers. That position was created by the 1987 Legislature, which also removed the attorney general's authority to take part in such rate cases.

"Auto rates are too important a matter for the public citizens of Texas for us to proceed without fully complying with the law. To do so would be a breach of faith with the consumers," Annette LoVoi of the Texas Consumer Association told the board.

The board, which earlier acknowledged the consumer groups as parties in the rate case, unanimously voted against postponing the hearing.

At the Thursday hearing, the board staff recommended a $68 million, or 2 percent, average statewide rate increase. The insurance industry has recommended a $344 million, or 10 percent, average statewide increase. The issue is expected to be resolved Monday.

Board members said the panel has been fair to consumers in the past, and that consumers are not unfairly affected by the absence of a public counsel.

Civil rights bill said passed by the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four-year battle to win Senate passage of a sweeping civil rights bill culminated in a decisive bipartisan victory tempered for some supporters by an amendment putting new limits on abortion rights.

"This is a big day for civil rights in the United States of America," Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said Thursday after the Senate voted 75-14 to pass the Civil Rights Restoration Act.

"While the Danforth (abortion) amendment was a disappointing setback, there was an overwhelming bipartisan rejection of the Reagan administration's attempts to weaken the four major civil rights bills," said Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

The restoration act is intended to overturn a 1984 Supreme Court ruling that scaled back the scope of federal civil rights laws barring discrimination by recipients of federal funds.

The civil rights conference of 200 member groups was the major force behind the act, which says that if any part of an institution receives federal money, the entire institution is prohibited from discriminating against women, minorities, the aged and the disabled.

The act had been buried in the Senate by filibusters and other obstructionist tactics since it was first introduced in 1984.

That was the year the Supreme Court ruled in the case of Grove City (Pa.) College that federal anti-discrimination rules applied only to specific programs or activities receiving federal aid and not to entire institutions.

The decision shocked the civil rights community and galvanized lawmakers who said congressional intent had always been to provide broad rather than piecemeal protection against discrimination.

Conservatives argued to the end that the restoration act would be an instrument of government intrusion going far beyond previous application of civil rights laws.

Just before the vote, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, read a veto threat from President Reagan saying that the restoration act, even with the abortion amendment, was unacceptable.
