

Radon gas 'story' has Snyder angle

A paid advertisement placed in Tuesday's Snyder Daily News, followed by a television report on Abilene's KTXS Channel 12, has prompted a number of local inquiries. The ad requested 100 volunteers to have their homes tested for Radon gas. The ad described Radon as "a radioactive, odorless, colorless and tasteless gas that can only be detected through See GAS, page 9

Iran wants to cut oil exports

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran today threw its weight behind a proposed cut in oil exports as a group of OPEC leaders met to consider the plan. Analysts said the proposal, if implemented, would push oil prices higher. The president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Rilwanu Lukman, who also is oil minister of Nigeria, said before entering the meeting he was hopeful that all OPEC countries would endorse the plan, which he called "a good beginning." The proposal was put to an OPEC ministerial committee Tuesday night by a group of seven independent oil-producing nations, including Mexico and China. The plan calls for members of both groups to reduce oil exports by 5 percent for two months, beginning May 1. It would mean reducing exports by a total of about 800,000 barrels a day. The idea is to take enough oil off the world market to force prices up to at least OPEC's target level of $18 a barrel.

OPEC oil currently is selling for between $14 and $16 a barrel and last month was slightly lower than that. The six OPEC ministers meeting today were to hold another session later in the day with the seven outside producers. All 13 OPEC members then were to convene Thursday to consider See OPEC, page 9

Cogdell to lose longtime member on hospital board

Rex Robinson, who has served Cogdell Memorial Hospital as a board member since January of 1975, submitted a letter of resignation from the appointed board Tuesday. Tuesday afternoon, he said, "I wouldn't have done it if the board hadn't been going so good." He said he was also very optimistic about the future of the hospital under the administrative guidance of St. Mary of the Plains Hospital. In his letter, he noted he believes changes implemented by St. Mary officials "will be instrumental" in the facility's long range viability. No specific reason for his resignation was cited in the letter submitted to hospital board president Dan Cotton. Robinson was reappointed for a new board term effective this past January. Cotton informed other hospital board members of Robinson's action at the regular April meeting of the board Tuesday. See ROBINSON, page 9

ER doc search renewed

Members of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board learned Tuesday that a Breckenridge-based firm will provide weekend physician coverage in the local emergency room through the last weekend in May, but that hospital officials are still searching for a permanent replacement to provide the service. Administrator Tom Hochwalt said Wednesday morning that he has been in contact with two other firms which offer such services. Plans to have the Breckenridge firm assume the role fulltime have now changed, however.

At Tuesday's meeting, the board authorized him to continue his search. In addition, they approved using West Texas Emergency Services Inc. based in Breckenridge for the weekend ER coverage through May 28-29. The action came at the regular April meeting of the hospital board, a session moved from its regular date because of the scheduled hospital auxiliary banquet this Thursday. The meeting was to include a report related to an organizational restructuring at the local facility. Hochwalt noted, however, that all details related to this are not complete and indicated he would have the report ready for the board's next meeting.

The board also used time Tuesday to conduct a questionnaire of itself—a "governing board self-evaluation" related to the accreditation visit slated May 9-10 by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations. Equipment purchases were approved also, to include a new lighting system in the radiology-OB hallways estimated to cost some $760; an infant immobilizer in radiology, estimated at some $1,050; and a desk and two typewriters, estimated to cost some $1,500. Hochwalt had requested also a telemetry monitoring unit for the hospital's third floor area, and he learned at Tuesday's meeting See HOSPITAL, page 9

Q. — Did the pre-enrollment in the Snyder schools show student numbers will be up or down next year?

A. — While elementary student numbers varied somewhat by campus, no significant increase or decline in enrollment was indicated districtwide. School officials say the initial indication was that West, Stanfield and Central would be approximately the same, Northeast would be slightly down and North and East Elementaries would be slightly up.

Bond list supporters upped by 130 names

Support for the city's May 7 revenue bond issue for water and sewer system improvements continued to gain momentum with more than 130 more names added to the steering committee. Martin Brooks, chairman of the board of West Texas State Bank and chairman of the Snyder Committee for Economic Opportunity, said more than 230 residents have endorsed the May 7 bond election. Two issues are on the ballot and call for issuance of bonds of $1.375 million each. One is for water system improvements and the second revenue bond calls for sewer system expansion. Both issues involve providing utility services to the new TDC unit to be constructed northeast of Snyder. Brooks said both bond issues will be retired from revenue generated from the sale of city utility services. Absentee balloting in the city bond election is underway at city hall and will continue through Tuesday. New committee members announced by Brooks and committee treasurer Delbert Downing are Jeff Lowrance, Johnny Greenfield, Rick Hall, Ray Peveler, Foy Westmoreland, Bill Stephens, Leon Autry, Gene Best, Dennis Chisum, Eddie D. The feller on Deep Creek says, "Times and language change. They used to say that money talks—now it just goes without saying."

There are lots of frustrations in this life—and one of the greatest is man's inability to hit the golf ball with confidence and consistency.

Golfers learn early that the biggest obstacle to a good round of golf is the golfer himself. No matter what the competition is doing, a golfer is his own worst enemy.

A freshman high school golfer came home from practice one day. His interested dad asked his score.

"Shot a 136," said the youngster. "What went wrong?" inquired the dad. "Couldn't putt," said the kid.

David Holt of Fluid Transports was on a trip recently and observed a posted notice inside a service station on Interstate 20.

Obviously, the station's owner had not been watching those slick TV commercials that repeatedly tell the customer that he is number one just because he is the customer.

The operator of the service station had this opposite message displayed in a prominent location:

"This ain't Burger King, so don't think you can have it your way. It's my way, or no way at all."

Holt said the service station operator appeared capable of enforcing the rule, so rather than telling him how many gallons he wanted, he asked how many he could have.

That's what we call a "independent" businessman.

The most truthful sign was in a nearby coffee shop. It read: "The guy who advises to always tell your wife the truth sells doghouses on the side."

deal.
The four-spade bid by East was ambitious for sure, but he felt that with both West and North passing, there was a fair chance that West held enough fillers to give him a shot at 10 tricks. And he certainly had the play leverage of that eight-card suit. Finally, when you start the bidding at a really high level, your opponents sometimes make a bidding mistake. That's what happened. Normal defense against four spades would hold East to eight tricks — down two. But South feared that a double would be misconstrued, so he bid five hearts. Everybody passed, and West led the ace of diamonds. That swallowed partner's king, but East was able to ruff the diamond continuation. It looks easy now to cash the spade ace to set the contract, since obviously West would have led a singleton spade, but East wanted it all. If he played ace and a spade, declarer could ruff with the jack or queen and then play his heart ace, dropping East's king to escape for down one. So East led the queen of spades, retaining the ace. South of course had to follow, and West ruffed. Now East got another diamond ruff with the king of hearts to set the hand two tricks.

A chance for down two

No one questions that it is a fine idea to set a contract when you're a defender. Nor would anyone contradict that it's good to take as many tricks as possible. Sometimes the defenders play to maximize the number of undertricks in a mite daring, as in today's

Girl will celebrate two birthdays

DALLAS (AP) — Shields and Debra Jones said their daughter Kiersten will have two birthday parties every year — one for the day she was born, and one for the day she got a new heart.
Eight-month old Kiersten went home to Flower Mound, a Dallas suburb, Tuesday less than two weeks after she became the first child to receive a heart transplant in a Dallas-area hospital, the Dallas Morning News reported.
Shields Jones said he made his daughter a promise late one night this month in Children Medical Center's intensive care unit. If she survived to receive a heart transplant — the only hope for the girl, whose heart was deteriorating daily — he'd give her a second birthday party each year.

"I feel like my little girl has been given back to me," Mrs. Jones said.

TV-like eyeglasses to be developed

BALTIMORE (AP) — Scientists announced plans today to develop eyeglasses with tiny color TV screens instead of lenses that may help an estimated 2.5 million people whose vision can't be improved by conventional treatment.

The device will not restore sight to the blind, or improve nearsightedness, farsightedness or astigmatism, but will enhance what vision is left in people who suffer from degenerative eye disease, researchers at Johns Hopkins' Wilmer Eye Institute said Tuesday.

Wilmer and NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories will spend $5 million in the next five years to develop and manufacture the system, said Robert Massof, a Hopkins ophthalmology professor working on the project.

The device would resemble wrap-around sunglasses with small lenses at the upper outer corners, connected by optical fibers to a battery-powered computer at the waist, Massof said.

The lenses would capture the field of vision, and images would be conveyed to miniature solid-state television cameras in the waist pack, he said. The images are processed by the computer and displayed on the television screens where the lenses would be.

The result would be a clearer and more defined vision than can be produced by conventional eye treatment.

"The same world will be on TV screens," Massof said. "For a long time the only thing that's been done for people with low vision is provide them with a magnifier. With the technology (available), we (believed) we could do more than simply enlarge it."

NASA scientists will adapt the technology for the glasses, while researchers at Wilmer will determine what the system has to do to alter a patient's vision, Massof said.

"The breakthrough is the technology that made this all possible," he said. "We are not creating new components for this."

About 11 million Americans have vision defects that cannot be corrected. The glasses could benefit about 2.5 million people who suffer from severe, disabling impairment, or low vision, said Dr. Arnall Patz, director of the eye institute.

The system will be adapted from technology used by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to guide vehicles, Massof said. NASA uses a black and white version of the system, he said.

Contributions will be given to the needy

DALLAS (AP) — The $243,000 windfall a Dallas radio station received after an on-the-air solicitation will be distributed to area charities that help the homeless, hungry and abused, according to the man who started the solicitation drive.

"We just found things that made us say, 'Ooh, that's wonderful.' Now the fun part comes and we just start distributing funds," disc jockey Ron Chapman said Tuesday. It was Chapman who asked listeners several weeks ago to send in $20 without telling them why.

The Salvation Army intends to use its share to build a medical clinic at the Carr P. Collins Center.

"This is an answered prayer. It really is," said Maj. Frank Gordon, area coordinator for the Salvation Army services in greater Dallas.
The East Dallas Community School, a school for about 40 underprivileged students with a waiting list of 300, will receive $14,900 to build and equip two new classrooms.

Chapman said the donors will be told by letter how the money will be spent and if the donors disagree, their money will be sent back.
The station was deluged by suggestions from various people and organizations who had ideas on how to spend the money.

Hundreds wanted to help station officials figure out what to do with the money, and hundreds more wanted some of the money for themselves.

All kinds of suggestions were considered. Organ-transplant

Within four days, the station had received $243,120 that it didn't know what to do with.

BIG SPRING — Chalk one up for Aaron Allen.

The Big Spring left-handed pitcher managed to find the strike zone often enough to keep Snyder under control here Tuesday afternoon, and came up with the winning basehit himself to launch the Steers to an 8-6 victory.

Allen's key single came in the bottom of the sixth inning with the score tied 6-6 and Lee Fletcher on the mound for Snyder. Designated hitter Mike Calvio was first-up, and he became Fletcher's fifth strikeout victim. Undaunted, Felix Rodriguez and Mike Hilario battled Fletcher at the plate and drew walks as the Snyder right-hander issued only his second and third free passes of the game.

Allen was up next, and as he had twice before, singled up the middle. The ball bounced past charging outfielder Tracy Braziel and rolled to the fence, allowing Rodriguez and Hilario to score.

It was all the Steers got in the inning but it was all they would need. An alert throw from short stop Brad Gartman to catcher Tracy Odom got Allen's courtesy runner out at home when Matt Burrow hit into a fielder's choice. Eric Kinman then socked a fly ball to first baseman David Martinez to end the inning.

Thoughts of a Snyder comeback attempt left quickly. A couple of ground balls and a strikeout had the Steers celebrating their fourth district win in a row.

The loss was Snyder's fourth straight, leaving the team at 4-7 in District 2-4A play and 10-12-1 for the season. The Tigers will look to break the losing skid Saturday when they bus to Fort Stockton for a 1 p.m. ballgame.

On the mound, Allen had struggled early, peppering six walks among the first 11 batters he faced. Five of Snyder's six runs were scored by runners who reached base via the walk. When he wasn't walking runners, he was striking them out. Unofficially, he had 12 strikeouts and issued nine walks and five hits.

Fletcher struck out five batters and walked just three. Like Allen, Fletcher paid for the free passes. All three accounted for runs. Big Spring managed 10 hits and was helped along by a trio of Tiger errors.

Snyder took a 1-0 lead in the game when Allen walked Randy Morris, Gartman, Martinez and Scott Lanier to overbook the bases. He got out of the inning without further problems, however, leaving the bases stacked.

Big Spring went in front during the bottom of the inning. Felix Rodriguez singled and Hilario reached on an error. Allen then drove Rodriguez home with his first single of the day.

Fletcher struck out Burrow but Kinman followed with another single, pushing in two more Big Spring runs.

Snyder went right back to work in the second inning. Morris sandwiched a single between walks by Odom and Gartman to load the bases again. Echols then doubled, scoring all three runners for a 4-3 lead.

The Steers tied the score in the bottom of the second when Allen nailed a two-out single to send Rodriguez scampering to home plate. They went in front again in the third when Jason Phillips slapped a two-out double to score Chris Crowover, who had walked. Calvio hit a fly ball which was misjudged by in center field, allowing Phillips to score. Big Spring led 6-4.

Snyder got the runs back one at a time. In the fourth, Echols drew a two-out walk and scored on Martinez's double to left center field. In the fifth, Lanier walked, moved to second on a Willie Garcia single, to third on a misguided pickoff attempt, and raced home on a wild pitch.

Loses to eventual champ...

Winter advances past first round

BROWNWOOD — Snyder's Kevin Winter fell in the quarter-finals of the Region 1 Tennis Tournament which concluded with a strong District 2-4A showing here Tuesday.

Winter lost 6-2, 6-0 to eventual singles champion Kevin Hansen of Hereford.

The Snyder High School junior had defeated Vernon's Brent Schatte, 6-2, 6-2 in the first round. "Kevin came along strong at the end of the year to finish runner-up in our district and qualify for region," said coach Charlie Chrane. "He played some good tennis and saw some real good tennis. I think the experience will be good for him. He's seen the level of play and now he has an idea of what it takes."

Hansen defeated Shawn Cobb of Crowley in the finals, 7-6, 6-3.

Boy's singles was the only division which did not advance a player from District 2-4A. San Angelo Lake View sent its doubles teams of James Young and Chyen Nguyen and Janda and Manda Lopez to state as regional champions. Young and Nguyen defeated Canyon's Scott Brewer and Kevin Foster, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5. Third were David Carrasco and Arlando Garcia of Monahans.

The Lopez sisters topped Sweetwater's Kim Kriedel and Beth Bartlett in the finals of girl's doubles, 6-0, 6-1. Both teams will advance.

Also, Sweetwater's Debbie Marlett took runner-up in girl's singles after losing in the finals to Michelle King of Canyon, 6-3, 6-2. She will also advance to state. Andrews' Mindy Kniffen was third and will serve as the alternate.

Wylie's Corn inks agreement to play for WTC Lady Dusters

High-leaping Tracy Corn is the latest talent signed by Coach Kelly Chadwick to play basketball for Western Texas College next season.

Corn, a 5-9 post from Wylie, was all-district, all-area and all-region as a senior for the Lady Bulldogs. She averaged 14.5 points, 10 rebounds and five assists a game.

"Tracy is a great athlete. She has real good leaping ability and we'll play her as a post, even though she is just 5-9," said Coach Chadwick. "She lacks ballhandling skills which would keep her from moving outside at this point, but I think her quickness can offset her size and she's a good shooter around the basket.

"She played in a winning program and that always helps. I think Tracy can come in and make a good contribution as a freshman. We're real pleased to sign her," he added.

A three-year starter at Wylie, Corn earned honorable mention all-district as a sophomore, and was first-team all-district and all-area as a junior and a senior. She also participated in track for three years.

"I've had some family attend Western Texas and they liked it a lot," said Corn. "I like the players and I was impressed with Coach Chadwick."

Among the family that attended Western was former WTC basketball player Victor Spencer, a cousin from Lamesa.

Cloud seeding will resume

As the state's senior weather modification project and perhaps the oldest continuous experiment in the nation, the Colorado River Municipal Water District's cloud seeding program will resume May 1.

This will mark the 18th consecutive year that the district has seeded clouds over a target area covering the watersheds for its reservoirs, Lakes J. B. Thomas and E. V. Spence.

Dwindling lake supplies in the midst of a severe drought induced CRMWD to take up experimental cloud seeding in 1971. Starting in 1974, the district became a part—in 1979 the Texas base—for the federally funded HIPLEC (High Plains Experimental Project) which was terminated after 1984.

For the past two years CRMWD has worked with the Southwest Cooperative project based in San Angelo, while carrying on its own seeding operations. Most of the time, the Texas Department of Water Resources has participated in the studies, but this is not certain for this season.

For the first time in many years, the district will contract the actual seeding instead of using its own aircraft and pilot. Also, jets on the Aztec plane based in Big Spring will be fed by silver iodide generators within the plane instead of from flares under wingtips. The object of this is to get faster and denser application of the crystals into thunderhead clouds in hopes of stimulating precipitation. Moisture droplets tend to form around the silver iodide crystals, thus starting the rain chain.

Results of this year, as in previous ones, will be given independent scientific evaluation.

The four largest and most constant municipal customers of the Colorado River Municipal Water District for the first time this season topped the 50 million gallon mark Thursday.

Odessa, Midland, Big Spring and Snyder received 50,257,000 gallons from the district. Midland only receives a portion of its water from the district. Thursday also was a peak day for Odessa at 26,726,000 gallons. Projected to the end of the month, municipal deliveries should show a six to 10 percent gain over April 1987.

Sailors bodies found

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Navy salvage workers who boarded the USS Bonfish as the abandoned submarine drifted in the Atlantic have found the bodies of the three men missing after explosions and fire rocked the ship, a Navy chaplain said today.

A Navy salvage crew boarded the submarine Tuesday but had to pump out toxic gases swirling through the hull before they could enter the ship, which had been adrift since Sunday.

Navy officials found the bodies of Petty Officer 3rd Class Marshall T. Lindgren of Pisgah Forest, N.C., Lt. Ray Everts, 30, of Naoma, W. Va., and Petty Officer 1st Class Robert W. Bordon Jr., 39, of Willis, Texas, according to Lt. Michael Langston, chaplain at the Asheville Naval Reserve Center in Asheville, N.C.

Langston said he was told to notify Lindgren's mother and brother in nearby Pisgah Forest. "She's pretty distraught," he said of Mrs. Lindgren.

Everts' sister, Cynthia Williams, said the Navy had sent someone to their house this morning to announce that Everts' body had been found. The Navy gave no further details, said Williams, of Naoma.

"We'd really rather not say anything yet," said Williams.

Adm. Carlisle A.H. Trost, chief of naval operations, said Tuesday in Washington that the three men were on watch in the sub's control room and may have died at their posts as they made sure everyone got clear.

Another sailor said, however, that the three men were newly assigned to the ship and may have gotten lost in the smoke and gas that swirled through the hull after the Sunday blast.

"Avery thought maybe they got confused and got turned around in the smoke," Alice Causey, mother of Petty Officer 1st class Avery Causey, said Tuesday.

Causey said he himself was blinded by the smoke and was only able to escape because a wave washing over the ship guided him to an open hatch.

"Even though the emergency lights were on, he couldn't see them... None of the drills they do could have prepared them for what happened," said Mrs. Causey, who is from Jacksonville, Fla.

Causey, 30, was one of 89 of the Bonfish's 92 crewmen evacuated Sunday after explosions and fire filled the vessel with smoke and toxic gases. Three of 22 injured crewmen remain hospitalized.

The Bonfish's captain, Cmdr. Mike Wilson, praised the heroism of his crew. "It was a very harrowing experience we went through out there," he said upon arrival Tuesday in Charleston, S.C., his ship's home port.

Wilson would not comment further because an investigation of the fire is pending, said Lt. Cmdr. John Tull, public affairs officer at the Charleston Naval Base.

The Navy said the first explosion hit the Bonfish on Sunday afternoon as it was running at periscope depth, engaged in training exercises with surface vessels 160 miles off Florida.

Missile duty puts him to sleep

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am on active military duty in a missile silo. My problem is that I get drowsy and nod off for several seconds at a time. This is not great for national security. I'm 25, male, rarely eat breakfast, eat light lunches, average seven hours sleep a night and drink moderately. What can you suggest?

DEAR READER: Staying awake and alert during mundane and tedious times is sometimes difficult for anyone, even when national security is at stake. To a degree, my answer to your question depends on the type of work you do, your personality and your health.

From what little I know of the subject, working in a missile silo must involve a fair amount of repetitive activity with a high boredom coefficient. You may be nodding off on duty because your brain is not challenged and has become numbed by rote. In addition, perhaps you have the type of personality that tunes out ritualistic tasks. You may need something more challenging than missile work, such as jump school or combat duty.

Finally, is your health good? Are you getting enough exercise? How "moderate" is your drinking? What's moderate to you may not be to me. I think that your best bet is to talk to your unit's medical officer. He will know your pattern and may already be familiar with men who have had similar problems. You should have an examination. In addition, he may know some tricks of the trade — other than reassignment — to keep you awake.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, SLEEP-WAKE DISORDERS. Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What value do the skins of fruits have? Do their nutritional values outweigh the dangers of pesticides or contamination?

DEAR READER: Some dietitians believe that the skins of some fruit contain high concentrations of vitamins and minerals. However, I have not read any scientific studies that prove or disprove this view.

Unquestionably, the coverings of fruits do supply a good source of fiber that is healthful. If you thoroughly wash fresh fruit before you eat it, you will get rid of any superficial contamination, such as pesticides. In this way, you'll be able to enjoy the whole fruit and you may pick up an additional nutritional advantage in the bargain.

Some do-it-yourselfers are using particleboard, also known as chipboard and flakeboard, but don't know how to paint it. The experts at the Wagner company suggest applying a paste-type wood filler first for a smooth finish, then a coat of clear shellac to seal in the waxes contained in the board. For exterior applications, a pigmented oil-base or alkyd primer should be applied before painting.

Meese calls for drug tests for everyone who is arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III says everyone who is arrested should be tested for drugs and then should be subject to follow-up tests before trial.

"I would like to see the day where every person arrested is subjected to a urine test" to determine suitability for pre-trial release, Meese told mayors and police chiefs Tuesday at the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

He said once defendants are back on the street, they should be subject to random drug testing to dissuade them from committing crimes while awaiting trial. Meese added he would like to see mandatory drug testing results taken into account in sentencing by judges.

Meese later told a reporter a proposal embracing such an approach is "a part of our user accountability being developed at the present time" by the National Drug Policy Board, a Cabinet-level panel which Meese chairs.

If the proposal is adopted, it would take legislation to implement the plan, said Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten.

Meese also said mandatory drug tests ought to be administered to users in drug treatment programs "to make them accountable."

Meese said such approaches are part of the Reagan administration's philosophy of "recognizing that the user is not a victim as some would suggest but rather that the user is a vital participant in drug trafficking."

Meese claimed that the proposals don't present constitutional problems, but didn't elaborate. Civil liberties groups vehemently disagree, saying that under the Constitution defendants are supposed to be presumed innocent until proven guilty.
