Tax base decline less drastic for '88

Compared to 40 percent losses two years ago

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

have now been mailed to Scurry County taxing entities—figures which reflect an improved picture from initial projections given out in mid-May, in particular for Snyder ISD.

With the current figures, the school has seen its projected tax base decline go from a possible 15 percent drop related to oil values to 6.2 percent.

Likewise, Scurry County and the Western Texas College district have seen a predicted 13 percent loss go to the current estimate of from 8.5 to 8.9 percent.

The tax base totals for Snyder-based entities range from a high of just over $1 billion for the college district to some $258 million for the city.

In 1984, the county enjoyed a tax base of some $2.5 billion.

While still not necessarily a hopeful picture, the latest tax value figures are considerably improved from the past two years.

Due to significant declines in the price of oil coupled with the steady loss of oil reserves here, an approximate 40 percent drop in the county's mineral values was reported in 1987.

The initial projections of up to a 15 percent loss in oil values here were proposed to taxing entity representatives May 18 by the valuation firm Thomas Y. Pickett of Dallas.

The improved estimates now established are a result of "better information," according to Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler of the Scurry County Appraisal

District. "We ask for figures early to give the entities some idea of just received better information and now have a better handle on the values," he said.

All values on the 1988 tax roll are still subject to the appraisal district's board of review sessions, Peveler noted, which allows property owners to contest value estimates.

These review sessions are traditionally held in July.

While all Snyder-based taxing entities and the Ira school district will absorb a tax base decline, taxpayers for Hermleigh ISD will actually see their tax base increase due to the addition of oil properties in the district. For the current tax roll, it is estimated Hermleigh's tax value will increase 20 percent.

The following lists the tax base figures provided by the district. Last year's total is included along with the percentage difference.

Snyder taxes may increase 15 cents for combined rate

Along with tax base estimates for local taxing entities, the Scurry County Appraisal District has also computed the "effective tax rate" for each for the coming budget year.

The effective tax rate is the figure the entity would have to charge this year to raise the same amount of taxes as it required last year.

When the tax base declines, as it has again this year for all Snyder-based taxing entities, the effective tax rate correspondingly increases.

For Snyder-based taxing entities, the new values indicate a combined increase in the "effective tax rate" of approximately 15 cents per $100 valuation. The actual figure is 14.7 cents.

Put another way, if each taxing entity here assessed the same amount of taxes as each did last year, property owners would see their combined tax bill from the city, county, college and school district go up almost 15 cents per $100 valuation.

Using the example of property valued at $50,000, this combined tax bill would increase $75.

Such an increase—which is only an estimate since tax rates by individual entities will not be set until mid to late summer—would include a 9½ cent increase for Snyder ISD; a 2.7 cent increase for Scurry County; a 1½ cent increase at Western Texas College; and a less than 1 cent increase at the city.

The effective tax rate projected for Snyder ISD is now approximately $1.02 per $100 valuation; 32 cents for Scurry County; 17 cents for the college district; and 30 cents for the city. The combined effective tax rate for all four is $1.82. The actual tax rate charged by all four last year was a combined $1.67.

For the two rural school districts, the appraisal district estimates an effective tax rate for Ira ISD at near 90½ cents per $100 valuation. See RATES, page 3A

Management team for Snyder prison said near complete

As the bid-letting draws near for actual construction of the 1,000-man Texas Department of Corrections prison unit, the management team which will oversee this work is being named.

The area construction manager for both the Amarillo and Snyder project will be TDC staffer Larry Fickel.

Both construction sites will also have a project administrator, who will be in charge of the day-to-day operations.

For the Snyder prison, the project manager will be David J. Ritter, an employee with HCB Contractors of Dallas, the firm named general contractor for the TDC construction.

Effective the end of this month, Ritter will establish a fulltime residence in Snyder for the duration of the project. The prison's construction is expected to be completed by May of next year.

Fickel, as manager for both prison sites, will reside in Amarillo and commute to Snyder.

Also recently named is TDC staffer Ed Wood, who will be the mechanical inspector for both the Amarillo and Snyder prisons. Wood will also reside in Amarillo and commute locally.

Fickel said two inspectors are still to be named, a general inspector and an electrical inspector.

Two openings slated Sunday at museums

Twin openings are slated Sunday from 1 until 4 p.m. for new exhibits at both the Scurry County Museum and the Diamond M Museum.

At the county museum, located on the campus of Western Texas College, wedding dresses from years past will be featured as part of a "June bride" exhibit.

These will include wedding dresses donated by local women as well as a wedding dress on loan from Texas Tech which dates to 1882.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A man who confesses to small faults usually hopes you think there are no big ones."

One day each year in Snyder, golf is played the way it should be—for fun.

Saturday, Mobil's Bert Robbins was chairman for the annual blind bogey scholarship tournament sponsored by the local chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

Each year, fellows in the oilpatch dust off stored sticks or borrow clubs from friends to participate. Scores are not important since all prizes are awarded on a chance basis.

Tommy Galyean of Arrow Construction rarely plays golf anymore but noted that he once played every day. "I used to play all the time—about five years in fact."

"When did you give up the game?"

"Must be at least 15 years since I played," Galyean added.

"How come?"

"The neighbor I borrowed my golf clubs from moved out of town, and he took his clubs with him."

The older a husband gets, the less comments he gets from home about the time spent on the golf course. Golfing is a time-consuming sport with a full 18 holes requiring about 3½-4 hours.

One tournament participant was a young fellow who has been married less than a year. He's an avid golfer, and during his single days would play seven days a week, if possible.

The new bride intended to be understanding, but now has put her foot down.

"This season will be different," she says. "Before he comes to bed, he's going to have to take off his spikes."

Cutoff due at WTC for summer term

Monday at noon is the final time to register for both day and evening summer classes at Western Texas College.

An enrollment of up to 900 students is expected this year. There were approximately 800 students enrolled as classes began last Wednesday.

College officials credit the increase to higher enrollment at extension center classes scheduled at Haskell, Sweetwater Crosbyton, Rotan and Spur. On-campus enrollment is expected to be approximately the same.

Grads bare soul for school

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Arlington Heights High School officials were unable to learn the bare truth about who streaked through the school halls and couldn't bar the offenders from attending their commencement exercises.

"At this time, we have not identified the students involved in the incident," a spokeswoman for the Fort Worth school district told the Dallas Morning News. "If you can't identify them, you don't have anyone to punish."

About 25 boys, clad only in athletic supporters and masks, streaked through the school about 1 p.m. Thursday, said the spokeswoman, who asked that her name not be used.

Several of the boys had painted their bodies with "Seniors '88." One young man had a numeral 8 on each buttock, witnesses said.

"It was viewed very seriously, because it disrupted the school day, which is always a concern, and it disrupted a school day when many students were taking final examinations," she said.

The last school day for seniors was Wednesday, and other students finished Thursday.

Although the teen-agers were not in danger of being denied their diplomas, school district officials had considered barring them from graduation ceremonies Friday on the Texas Christian University campus.

Deaf-mute might have been plane crash victim

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A mysterious deaf-mute boy found wandering in a Mexican border city repeatedly draws pictures of a plane crash, leading authorities to believe he may have survived one.

"From the way he keeps drawing the same pictures, and has his clothes packed, I think he is desperate to find his way back home," said Leticia Cota, a social worker in Juarez, Mexico, where the boy was found Nov. 7.

The boy, who communicates only with pictures and gestures, was found by the side of a highway, according to an El Paso child welfare report filed this week. He is believed to be 7 or 8 years old.

The Center for Missing and Exploited Children in Washington sought the help of the FBI in El Paso this week to find the boy's identity. FBI spokesman Terry Kincaid said Friday.

"We're making every effort to identify the boy through whatever means possible," Kincaid said. "The FBI will cross-check the boy's footprints with records in the U.S. and in Mexico sometime within the next week."

Mexican social workers, who contacted their El Paso counterparts last month, said they believe the boy is from the United States and may be a plane crash survivor.

The boy repeatedly draws pictures of a crashed airplane, with people in it that he describes as his father, mother, younger sister and himself — and with "28D", "28" written under the airplane.

The boy is 4 feet 6, has dark blond to light brown hair and a slightly freckled white complexion.

Social workers said that through drawings and other communication, the boy has revealed background details that indicate: —His father was missing four fingers on his right hand and had a mustache.

—The family lived in a place that had knee-deep snow, heavy rainfall, mountains and trees.

—His mother was pregnant when the plane crashed.

—He prefers hamburgers and sandwiches over Mexican food and is a video game whiz.

—At least two leads are being pursued, said Luis Torre, a caseworker for the Texas Department of Human Services in El Paso.

"Law officials think he resembles a boy from Illinois who was reported missing about three years ago, or a boy from a military family who lived in Alaska," Torre said.

Guadalupe De La Vega, the Juarez woman who found the boy, said he "went wild with joy" when he saw a U.S. soldier three months ago, leading social workers to believe he may be familiar with the military.

During a Friday interview with

McIntire named to Dean's List

LEVELLAND — Melissa McIntire of Snyder is among 346 students named to the Dean's Honor List for the spring 1988 semester at South Plains College.

To be selected for the Dean's Honor List, students must maintain a minimum 3.25 GPA while carrying at least 12 semester hours.

Cota and an El Paso Times reporter, the boy drew a pitched-roof house with an airplane over it and wrote the letters "SEMF, JESEL, DAVS, EMI."

He used sign language, gestures and simple words to indicate the house was his. Cota noted that pitched-roof houses are common in the United States but not in Mexico.

The boy pointed to scars on his left knee, stomach and back, and back to the airplane-crash drawing. He pointed to a drawing of himself walking away from the crash while the figures believed to be his parents and sister lay dead.

Using gestures and sounds, he indicated something had been stuck in his lower chest after the crash, that he cried, and that the object was later removed.

The age of the boy's scars led doctors to believe that if they had been caused by an airplane crash, it would have been two to three years ago.

Cota said the boy is an excellent swimmer and diver.

CIA: producing documents would disclose sources

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA says Oliver L. North and three Iran-Contra co-defendants should not be shown spy agency documents they requested, because they include information known only to the president and a handful of other officials. Even at the CIA, only the director of the agency and his deputy have knowledge of all the secret programs in the requested documents, CIA General Counsel Russell J. Bruemmer said Friday. In a declaration filed with U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, Bruemmer said, "Even the existence of certain of the information ... cannot even be confirmed or acknowledged ... without causing extreme damage to the national security of the United States." Bruemmer said CIA officials cannot recall a request in any previous court case that sought a greater compilation of sensitive information. "To my knowledge, very few persons in the United States Government other than the president hold the security clearances necessary to review all the documents" sought by the defense, he told the court.

The counsel said the information would reveal sources and methods used by the United States to acquire intelligence and conduct covert operations. The people providing information to the CIA, the technical collection methods, and cooperative arrangements with foreign intelligence services cannot be compromised without gravely damaging the nation, the statement said. The Persian Gulf basin is the source of half of the world's oil, according to National Geographic.

Gas truck explosion causes evacuation of 300 persons

LAMESA, Texas (AP) — Winds gusting to 40 mph whipped flames from a gasoline tanker truck explosion and caused the evacuation of nearly 300 people as firefighters spent two hours bringing the blaze under control. Firefighters from Lamesa, Brownfield, Wellman, Seminole and Big Spring were able to douse the blaze by Friday afternoon, Lamesa Fire Chief Perry Land said units continued monitoring the scene early Saturday. About 50 businesses, fast food restaurants and even the Dawson County Senior Citizen Center were evacuated in a 25-block area. A small number of residences east of the area also were evacuated.

The fire began as Gene Everheart of Everheart Oil Co. was unloading about 5,800 gallons of unleaded gasoline Friday from a transport truck into a storage tank. Everheart said the running engine of his truck apparently ignited vapors from the gasoline. "All I could think of was to get everyone out of the office," said Everheart, 39. He said he got his secretary out of the office, then ran down the street and "didn't look back for two blocks." Flames leapt into the air, leaving a smoky trail that could be seen for miles while firefighters worked to prevent its spread to nearby gasoline tanks owned by Everheart and by Franks Oil Co. Officials said some of those tanks contained as much as 9,000 gallons of fuel. Propane gas tanks and four grain elevators on the south end of the lot also concerned firefighters. But Land said the northerly winds helped emergency workers by carrying the flames south across the lot. "We had solid flames 20 to 30 feet high in the area," Police Chief Fred Stansbury told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "This whole area was engulfed in smoke." Two warehouse buildings, an office building and two trucks were destroyed in the explosions and fire, officials said. Everheart said the flames scorched the top of a radio antenna which the office used to communicate with its drivers. Everheart was treated and released from Medical Arts Hospital for back and chest pains and hyperventilation. His father, 60-year-old H.B. Everheart, also was taken to the hospital as a precautionary measure for a heart problem.

First Success Seminar to get underway Thursday

Western Texas College will hold the first of its Success Seminars at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday.

The Success Seminar offers students the opportunity to pre-register for the fall semester. Students who pre-register will be billed in August for tuition, fees, and housing charges.

All students who will be entering WTC as full-time freshmen for the first time in the fall semester must attend one of the summer Success Seminars. Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services, said.

Students planning to attend are to inform the Admissions Office by calling 573-8511. Parents are encouraged to attend the seminar along with the student and they are invited to join the students for a complimentary lunch starting at 11 a.m. in the Student Center cafeteria.

There is no charge for attending the seminar. Students who do not have an ACT or SAT score on file at WTC will take the ASSET test and there is a $5 fee for that test.

Additional Success Seminars are planned on July 14 and August 2 and reservations for those sessions are now being accepted. For more information call the Admission Office.

Free glaucoma tests offered

The Sheets Eye Foundation will be conducting free glaucoma tests Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center.

Glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness in the United States. There are no symptoms and only with the finding of increased intra-ocular pressure is the diagnosis made. The high pressure in the eye causes damage to the optic nerve. This damage causes changes in the peripheral or side vision known as "visual field defects."

The central vision is not affected until very late in the disease, so the patient may look, see and feel completely normal until it is too late.

The key to preventing blindness or visual loss is to seek periodic testing like the one being offered Tuesday.

Glaucoma is not curable, but may be controlled with lifelong therapy. The primary treatment is medical, using eye drops, and only late in the disease, if eye drops fail to control the pressure, is surgery performed.

Ira church slates VBS

The Ira Church of God will have its annual Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon. Children aged four and five and those in the first through sixth grades are invited to attend.

The theme is "The Wonder-faire."

Requests for its booklets containing the Declaration of Independence and U.S. Constitution reached 999,752 copies by the first of this year, says Phillips Petroleum. Schools received 287,827 copies. Other copies of the booklet, produced in cooperation with the Constitution Bicentennial Commission, went to elected officials in Washington.

Dukakis resumes campaign; Jackson marathon ongoing

By Denise Cabrera
Associated Press Writer
Democrat Michael Dukakis was returning to the presidential campaign trail in New Jersey today, saying he was "very, very relieved" at the results of his wife Kitty's emergency surgery.

For Republican George Bush, vice presidential duties took precedence over campaign activities as he welcomed President Reagan back from the superpower summit, praising him for a job "well done," and visited ailing Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Meanwhile, Jesse Jackson campaigned nonstop in California, Montana and New Mexico, three of four states to hold season-ending primaries Tuesday.

Dukakis had canceled campaign plans Thursday and Friday, including a final debate with Jackson, to be at a Boston hospital while his wife underwent a five-hour operation to repair two ruptured discs in her neck that doctors said were pressing on her spinal column.

"I talked to Kitty in the recovery room and she said she wanted an ice cream and a massage," said Dukakis following the surgery.

"I'm prepared to provide both."

Dukakis said he was "very, very relieved" at the apparent success of the surgery and that doctors said his wife faces an "excellent" prognosis.

"She certainly is not going to be able to do any serious campaigning for a while," Dukakis added.

The Democratic front-runner was to spend most of today visiting his wife and then fly to Cherry Hill in New Jersey, the fourth state to hold its primary Tuesday, for a picnic and other activities Sunday. He planned to return later Sunday to California for the final days of the presidential primary season to vie for the 314 delegates at stake there.

Bush led the estimated 3,000 people gathered at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington in a campaign-style welcome Friday for Reagan's return from an 11,000-mile trip highlighted by the signing and exchange of the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces treaty with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"Welcome home and well done," said Bush, the all-but-certain GOP nominee.

Bush praised Reagan for raising the issue of human rights "in the heart of the Soviet system."

"This week, an American president strode the hard ground of Red Square, and reminded the world... what a bracing thing freedom is..." Bush added.

It takes about seven gallons of oil to make the rubber compound in one of today's modern passenger tires.

Nicaragua says its captured two spies from Honduras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua said it captured two Honduran soldiers inside Nicaraguan territory and accused them of spying in the latest incident of tension between the two countries.

A Defense Ministry statement said two Honduran army troops carrying M-16 rifles were caught near the town of Teotecacinte in northern Nuevo Segovia province, more than a mile inside Nicaragua.

The statement identified the two as Gilberto Moncada Miranda and Gustavo Adolfo Caliz Gamero of Honduras' 6th Infantry Battalion, based in Aguas Calientes, Honduras.

It said the soldiers "were found doing intelligence work in our territory" and called the incident an "open violation of national security."

There was no immediate comment from the Honduran government.

The incident followed an exchange of accusations between Nicaragua and Honduras earlier in the week over fighting between Sandinista troops and U.S.-supported Nicaraguan rebels based in Honduras.

On Wednesday, the Sandinista government denied Honduran claims that its soldiers crossed into Honduras to attack a border post.

The Honduran armed forces had said a number of Sandinista troops were killed in the fighting, and Honduran Foreign Minister Carlos Lopez protested the incident.

Nicaragua said an army patrol was attacked inside Nicaragua by a group of Contra rebels based in Honduras and that a Sandinista army soldier was captured and taken to a post six miles inside Honduras.

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto protested the "crude manipulation of the facts" to Lopez and accused Honduras of trying "to create an incident between Honduras and Nicaragua."

China is slightly larger than the United States but it has only 155 miles of first-class highways, according to National Geographic.

"Rights" offerings Have limited time

One of the advantages shareholders of common stocks have is owning a proportional share of that company and having a voice in corporate direction. That share can be insignificantly small or it can be large enough to affect company policy. In either case, shareholders are generally allowed a vote for each share of common stock they own.

If you are a shareholder, whenever an issue arises that requires a shareholder vote, you will be mailed a proxy entitling you to either cast your vote in person at the shareholders' meeting or to vote your proxy by mail, allowing a designated director to represent you.

Often a company wants to raise more operating capital by issuing additional shares of common stock or other securities. In order that its stockholders may continue their proportionate ownership, the company may give them the opportunity to buy shares of the new securities before they are offered to the public. The paper evidencing this is called a "right".

The stockholder can, with these rights and some additional money, buy a specified number of shares, usually below the current market price. For example, if a stock is selling for $100 a share in the open market but the rights holders is offered five rights, then theoretically each right is worth $4 since the holder could buy the stock and immediately resell it at a profit of about $20 ($20 divided by five rights equals $4 per right). Actually the mathematical procedure is a bit more complicated, but this illustrates for your purposes why rights have a market value.

In most cases, rights can either be exercised by the holder, as in the example above, or transferred to another owner.

There is, of course, a specified time in which this can be done. That period is normally about 30 days or less and is clearly stated on the rights card the stockholder receives. If the stockholder neither sells nor exercises his rights before that specified date, the rights simply expire and become worthless.

If you should receive a rights offering, read it, understand it and then decide what action you wish to take. If you decide your rights by purchasing additional securities, read the instructions on the card. Generally, the information on the card must be completed and attached to a check or money order, which is mailed to an agent named in your information package. Most brokerage firms will handle the transaction for you, and there is usually no cost to you since the company pays for the service.

Another choice is to transfer rights to someone else. There is an appropriate place on your rights card for this information along with full instructions. The new owner can then decide to either exercise or sell.

Your final choice is to sell your rights, depending on the terms of the offering. You can do this either through your broker or the designated agent named on your card. Regardless of your choice, keep in mind the expiration date and the mail time involved in getting these rights to the required location.

All rights offerings are similar in procedure but often have quite different terms of execution. Therefore, it's important to read your offering immediately. If you don't understand it or want additional information or explanation, contact either the named agent or your broker. Above all, don't let time slip away and see your rights expire and become worthless.

Boa constrictor disappears for three days; reappears

GADSDEN, Ala. (AP) — Leonard, a 7-foot-long boa constrictor who disappeared from his job as a night watchman at a car lot, mysteriously returned three days later, his owner says. "We don't know how he got here or where he came from, but we're happy he's back," said Reggie Roberts. "We're going to have to tighten our security. We're going to get two guard snakes, one to watch the other." Leonard was reported missing Monday from T.R. Roberts Motors, where it was kept in a glass showcase during business hours. At night, the snake was freed to roam the locked office as a "guard snake." "Beware! Guard Snake on Duty," reads a sign on the office door. Leonard went off duty Monday, apparently after a vandal broke a window. Roberts believes either the vandal stole the snake or the reptile escaped through the window. Roberts posted a $100 reward — no questions asked — for Leonard's safe return, and The Gadsden Times ran a front-page story on the snake's disappearance. The snake mysteriously reappeared Thursday afternoon at the door to Roberts' office, perhaps because he was hungry and missed his old job, Roberts said. "We're just tickled to have him back," he said. The St. Clair River bridge from Port Huron, Mich., to Point Edward, Ontario, was dedicated in 1938.

No response to needs of players, says Porter

DALLAS (AP) - Nobody responds to the needs of players, graduating Baylor University offensive tackle Joel Porter told the nation's coaches and athletic directors during the 12th annual meeting of the College Football Association.

"So far, the only listener is the student-athlete. He's listening to all the rules," said Porter, an all-Southwest Conference performer who was drafted by the Chicago Bears in the 10th round of this year's NFL college draft.

Porter won agreement from participants on a CFA panel that student athletes need more financial aid than they are getting.

"I believe the NCAA needs to allow allowances," Porter said. "Student-athletes need money and help because they don't have the time to work like other students."

Athletes can't enjoy the same privileges of college life enjoyed by other students, he added.

He made it at Baylor because his parents gave him a car and spending money, Porter said.

"One of my roommates had to borrow everything to make it," Porter said. "He wasn't a moocher. His parents just couldn't help him. The NCAA should at least let players get paid for their ticket allotments. Believe me, you earn those tickets."

If a football player doesn't need his tickets, "give him the money for them. They need to be compensated for the work they perform," Porter said.

Weight room open at school

The weight room at the Snyder High School Fieldhouse will be open each weekday through the summer for the general student body.

Students may use the weight room on a voluntary basis from 9 a.m. until noon and from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The facility will be open to male and female students enrolled in Snyder public schools.

North Carolina Coach Mack Brown agreed with Porter.

"There is a lot of resentment by some of the players because they know how much money they are making the schools, yet there are so many restrictions they really can't live like the other students on campus," Brown said.

"The NCAA rules are so complicated you can't keep up with them. We scare our players to death by telling them no to everything. We need to start making some decisions on the best interests of the student-athletes. We need to start making rules that are in a common sense mold," Brown said.

Brown said the modern athletes have a lot of pressures on them, but added that he believes drug testing will help them resist that temptation.

Detroit reaches NBA finals after defeating Celtics 95-90

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The Detroit Pistons, the new champions of the NBA's Eastern Conference, now want to become destiny's darlings.

The Pistons, behind Vinnie Johnson's 24 points and a bruising defense, beat the Boston Celtics 95-90 for the title before a Silverdome crowd of 38,912 Friday night to win the series in six games.

Now the Pistons advance to the NBA championship series for the first time since moving to Detroit 31 years ago. The last time the team was in the finals was 1956 when it played in Fort Wayne, Ind.

"All the hard minutes and hours of training for the last seven years, now all the hard work has paid off," said Detroit's Isiah Thomas. "The Celtics took us to the limit. They gave us everything that we could have asked for."

Adrian Dantley scored 22 points for Detroit and James Edwards, another sub, added 15. Thomas finished with 10 points.

Getting past the Celtics was a major hurdle for the Pistons. The Celtics eliminated Detroit in seven games a year ago.

Boston has played in the finals the past four years and has won 16 titles, the latest in 1984 and 1986. The Fort Wayne Pistons played Syracuse in 1955 and Philadelphia in the 1956 finals and lost both times.

This Pistons team is determined to ride its momentum to victory this time.

"We learned how to win last year," Detroit's Bill Laimbeer

'TD' gets his request...

Dorsett traded to Broncos

DENVER (AP) - Tony Dorsett, who wanted out of Dallas after losing his starting job to Herschel Walker, is reunited with his former offensive coordinator.

TONY DORSETT

Denver head coach Dan Reeves following a trade to the Broncos.

Dorsett, the fourth-leading rusher in NFL history, was traded by the Cowboys to the Broncos on Friday for a conditional fifth-round draft choice in 1989. The Broncos could wind up paying as high as a first-round choice, depending on Dorsett's playing time and performance for Denver this fall.

"He's going to help us tremendously," Broncos quarterback John Elway said. "We're going to try to feature him and give him the football and let him run with it. We need a big-play back."

Reeves said he was "excited" about the deal. "I think Tony can help us," said Reeves, who served as offensive coordinator with the Cowboys from 1977-80. "If I didn't think so, we wouldn't have gone after him. I think he'll fit in very well with what we do on offense."

Reeves said if the 34-year-old Dorsett can stay healthy, he would have a good chance to start for Denver, but said the Broncos won't change their offense to accommodate him.

He wouldn't speculate on how many carries Dorsett might have per game, but said, "Every time he touches the ball, the defense is going to hold their breath. Speed is something that scares people. It's going to make a difference."

Reeves said Dorsett "hasn't lost a lot," but he admitted if Dorsett plays more than two years for Denver, "it will be a plus."

Dorsett was due to arrive in Denver on Sunday night. The Broncos scheduled a news conference for him Monday morning.

Although Dorsett was unavailable for comment Friday, he had said earlier as negotiations progressed that he was eager to make a "fresh start" and that going to Denver would be "just a new chapter in Tony Dorsett's football career."

Witt Stewart, Dorsett's agent, said his client was ecstatic upon being informed that the deal was consummated.

"I just talked to him and he said he's got so much nervous energy he was going to lift weights, to throw some iron around," Stewart said.

The trade had been expected for nearly a week. Last weekend, Dorsett helped facilitate the deal by agreeing to forfeit about $2.4 million in deferred payments.

Dorsett had sought a trade since Walker was made a full-time starter late last season. Walker was signed in 1986, and the two shared the tailback spot for most of 1986 and into last season.

Dorsett will enter his 12th professional season this fall. He is fourth on the NFL's all-time rushing list with 12,036 yards and is just 84 yards behind No. 3 Franco Harris and 276 yards shy of No. 2 Jim Brown.

Last season, he ran for 456 yards on 130 carries and caught 19 passes for 177 yards, scoring two touchdowns. He played in 12 games last season, starting six, and was held out of two.

Although slowed by knee and ankle injuries in 1986, he still led the Cowboys in rushing for the 10th consecutive season.

A remarkably durable former, the 5-foot-11, 189-pound Dorsett had missed only three games in nine years prior to the 1986 season.

Western Texas signs all-district golfer from Memphis High School

Jerry Whitten, four-year all-district golfer for Memphis, Texas, has signed with Western Texas College.

Whitten was a member of the Memphis High School team which won district the past four years. Memphis was state runner-up in 1986 and 1987 when Whitten was a sophomore and a junior. Individually, he was third district medalist as a freshman, medalist as a sophomore, and runner-up medalist as a junior and senior. He was also third regional medalist as a junior and senior.

His junior year, he was district runner-up to Darrell Cofer, a current member of the WTC Westerners, also from Memphis.

"I've watched Jerry for about three years. He's a very impressive player, a very smart player," said WTC Coach Dave Foster. "He has improved tremendously over the past two years. In time, he can be an outstanding player. He's fundamentally strong. All of his basics are good.

"Every school in our conference was recruiting him. We're pleased he decided to come to WTC," Foster added.

An all-around athlete, Whitten also played football four years in high school, serving as co-captain as a senior.

'Rookie' leads Kemper Open

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) - Playing in his favorite type of weather and with an accommodating wind at his back, Jim Hallet reached a plateau he'd never before experienced in his brief professional career.

Hallet birdied four straight holes late in the round Friday en route to a 6-under-par 65 that gave him a one-stroke lead over defending champion Tom Kite and Morris Hatafsky after 36 holes of the $800,000 Kemper

Open.

Hallet, who joined the tour last fall, finished the second round at 9-under-par 133 at the Tournament Players Club at Avenel. He was 5-under with five holes left, but birdied Nos. 5 through 8 to find himself atop the leader board at the halfway point of a PGA tournament for the first time in his life.

Mark Brooks shot a 67 to finish the second round at 135. Four players, including John Mahafney and 1985 Kemper champion Bill Glasson, were three strokes back at 136.

Hallet, whose best finish was 13th at last month's Byron Nelson Classic, didn't miss a fairway or green. He also got an added boost from the swirling winds and cool temperatures that dipped into the 50s.

"We've had so many days that were hot, and I kind of enjoy overcast days," he said. "And the wind, well, it seemed to change direction, staying at my back, as I went along. I had a lot of downwind holes."

Hallet, who didn't have a bogey, said he enjoyed his unaccustomed view from the top.

"I'd rather be in the lead than eight or nine strokes behind," he said. "It gives me a stroke to play with."

Kite birdied five of the final eight holes to remain in contention for the $144,000 top prize.

"I made some bad swings on the first nine holes and ended up making bogeys," Kite said. "But all of a sudden I started hitting some shots close. With a little less patience, I could have turned this into a 72 or 73, so it was a very pleasing round."

Bob Gilder and Tom Armour shot 65s to join Mike Reid at 137 and Webb Heintzelman, the first round co-leader with Howard Twitty, was among a group of six players at 138.

Twitty was 7 under after 32 holes. But he had a bogey on No. 15, a double-bogey on No. 16 and another bogey on No. 17 in a round of 73 that left him at 139.

Keith Clearwater and Bobby Clampett, who were one shot off the lead after the opening round, missed the cut. Clearwater shot a 79 to finish at 146 and Clampett had an 81 to close at 148.

Seventy-eight players made the cut, which was at 2-over-par 144.

Ten walks lead to 9-3 win...

Rangers stroll past Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) - Texas won the game in a walk.

In fact, Friday night's baseball game with the White Sox featured 15 walks, 10 to Rangers batters, as Texas breezed to a 9-3 victory.

Ruben Sierra broke out of a 1-10 slump with a three-run double, another double and a single to lead the Rangers' 12-hit attack.

Sierra said that when he came to bat in the second inning with the bases loaded, he knew Chicago pitcher Dave LaPoint had to throw him a strike.

"He was wild. He was walking too many people. I knew he had to throw me a fastball for a strike," said Sierra, who sent the pitch into left field for a bases-clearing double.

"That was a big two-out hit," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine. "It was a good game for Ruben. He stayed with a changeup and got a single in the first inning. That would have been a ground-out all season for him."

Valentine was impressed with his batters' patience to wait for strikes and get walks.

"There was some good hitting and some good eye-balling. Our batters were looking for strikes," said Valentine.

Texas had more pitchers than Chicago had hits. The White Sox could beg only three hits off Ray Hayward, 4-2, and three relievers, Jose Cecena, Dale Mohorcic and Mitch Williams.

Hayward gave up two runs and two hits in six innings. In the third, the rookie left-hander walked four straight batters and gave up a double, a balk and a wild pitch, but escaped with only two runners scoring.

"After the walks, I said to myself, 'I'm only to go throw strikes,' and I got (Greg Walker) to ground out," said Hayward. "I was real fortunate. What helped me was we got an early lead and they (Chicago) got down a little bit."

The loss was No. 14 for the White Sox in their last 17 games. Chicago was beaten 10-2 Thursday night by Texas.

"You have a game like that, you just have to put it behind you," said manager Jim Fregosi of the White Sox, whose staff has allowed 28 runs in the past three games, all losses.

After the game, the White Sox dipped into the minors for pitching help. They brought up pitchers Joel Davis and Steve Rosenberg from Vancouver and sent down pitcher John Davis and first baseman-outfielder Russ Morman to the AAA farm club.

The Rangers' scoring began in the first with Pete O'Brien's RBI single.

LaPoint, 4-5, walked the bases loaded in the second with no outs. Chicago turned a double play on Bob Brower's grounder, without a run scoring, but the next batter, Scott Fletcher, walked to load the bases again and set the stage for Sierra's double to left that chased LaPoint and gave the Rangers a 4-0 lead.

Chicago scored twice in the third on a wild pitch by Hayward with the bases loaded and then a balk on the next pitch by the Texas lefty.

Pete Incaviglia tripled to lead off the fifth and scored on O'Brien's sacrifice fly. Later in the inning, Mike Stanley's sacrifice fly brought home Larry Parrish to send Texas in front 6-2.

Texas scored three runs in the seventh, including two on Fletcher's bases-loaded single.

Chicago's Ivan Calderon hit his 12th homer to left in the eighth off Mahorcic. It was the only home run of the night and the first for Chicago at Comiskey Park since May 15 and in almost 71 innings of play.

Reform advocates put back on Soviet ballot

MOSCOW (AP) — In a clear defeat for Soviet Communist Party conservatives, the Moscow party hierarchy has put reform advocates back on the ballot for the crucial national party conference starting June 28.

The delegate battle has been the talk of Moscow for days as the state-run media and even political street protests, highly unusual for the Soviet Union, brought the internal party battle over reform into the open.

The national party conference, scheduled to open June 28, will be the first since 1941.

Lower-level party organizations in the capital had not submitted the names of the reform advocates as candidates for the 19th Party Conference.

However, Tass reported the Moscow party bureau sidestepped those decisions Friday.

The conference could bolster the reforms backed by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev by approving a document published a week ago that outlines radical changes to remove remnants of Stalinism from Soviet politics and law. But reforms could be jeopardized if conservatives are predominant among delegates.

The official news agency said Gorbachev took part in the Moscow committee meeting but did not say whether he spoke in favor of the restored candidacies.

It also did not say whether those whose names were restored had subsequently been elected as delegates, but the Moscow party committee would be unlikely to buck a decision made by its supreme executive body, the Moscow party bureau.

Sociologist Tatyana Zaslavskaya, a leading proponent of perestroika — Gorbachev's program of economic and social restructuring — had earlier assailed conservatives for maneuvering to block the election of reformers as conference delegates. "The most pronounced advocates of perestroika were not selected," she told a news conference.

Ms. Zaslavskaya had failed to receive enough votes to stand as a candidate for one of the 319 delegate spots to be filled from Moscow. But the Moscow party bureau ordered her name to be put before the Moscow party committee as a delegate candidate, Tass said.

Other prominent perestroika advocates whose names were restored to the ballot included movie director Elem Klimov, economist Nikolai Shmelev, playwright Mikhail Shatrov and Moscow News editor Yegor Yakovlev.

Vitaly Korotich, editor of the weekly Ogonyok, had said this week that Friday's meeting might revise some delegate selections to include reformers like himself taken off the slate in pre-conference maneuvering.

Tass said Friday night that Korotich was elected as a conference delegate from the regional party committee in the Ukrainian Black Sea port city of Kherson.

Zaslavskaya, Korotich, economist Abel Aganbegyan, historian Yuri Afanasyev and writer Fyodor Burlatsky were among popular reformers voted in as party delegates from their place of work, but axed at the next level, the equivalent of precincts.

Dissident Andrei D. Sakharov told a news conference this week that Gorbachev should be given time and trust to continue his pioneering reforms.

Albert "Snuffy" Canon has recently been elected the president of the area 200 member Midwest Texas Firemen and Fire

He has been attending the semi-annual conventions of the organization for the past four or five years, and four years ago he said he decided to "run for the chair."

In order to become president, Canon said he first had to be elected fourth vice-president and then each year work his way up through the ranks until he was named president this year.

Basically, Canon said the job offices are "honorary positions," but even so members of the organization still have to be elected to the office in question.

As he held the various degrees of the vice-presidency, Canon said that basically he helped preside at the meetings which are held in April and October. Seventeen towns are located in the district of which Snyder is a member and the meetings rotate between the towns, he explained. He said that Snyder is the largest city in its district.

According to Canon, both volunteer and paid firemen can belong to the organization. He is a volunteer fireman who first "got the bug" in 1976 when a friend invited him to accompany him to a fire.

"I went to the motel fire and from then on I was hooked," Canon said. "The biggest thrill for me is being able to help somebody. You can't save everything but you can save some."

Canon, who is also a trained emergency medical technician (EMT), said that often people will thank the fireman for pulling them out of wrecked vehicles.

In addition to his firefighting duties, Canon also works for the local ambulance service as an EMT.

He said he answers the fire and ambulance calls between 5 p.m. and 6 a.m. and on weekends—not while he is on the job at Southern Electric, a position he has held since November of 1980.

"For the past five or six years everyone in the fire department has a pager. Before that, we were notified of calls by radio," Canon explained.

Firemen attend meetings twice a month, on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. A training session which lasts from 1½-2 hours is conducted prior to each meeting.

Canon, who is a certified volunteer fireman, is currently working on his intermediate training. Training sessions for firemen are conducted in Midland, Andrews, Abilene and Lubbock. Texas A&M also has from two to three training school's for firemen sponsored by the State Fireman's Association.

"Training is an ongoing process," Canon said. "We can never get enough training. Even an ordinary house fire can be dangerous due to the chemical makeup of the carpets for instance."

Canon said he remembers the Dunnam Mattress Co. fire as the biggest fire he has fought since joining the department. It was 17 degrees outside when they received the call and before they were through the temperature had dropped to minus nine degrees plus the weather had turned to sleet. "We go in any kind of weather and stay until it is over."

Canon is a native of Aransas Pass, but he has called Snyder home since he moved here in March of 1966 when his father was transferred here by Sun Pipeline.

He and his wife Retha have a daughter, Allison, who is three years old.

Care needed in poison prevention

NEW YORK (AP) — Of the estimated 10,000 poisonings each day in the United States, some seven of every 10 incidents involve children under the age of 5 and almost all are accidental exposures, according to national statistics.

The data, supplied by the American Association of Poison Control Centers (AAPCC), reveals that poisoning incidents are responsible for one of every 10 emergency department visits. They account for a comparable percentage of ambulance responses and for some 4 percent of all hospital admissions.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 poisoning victims — children and adults — die each year.

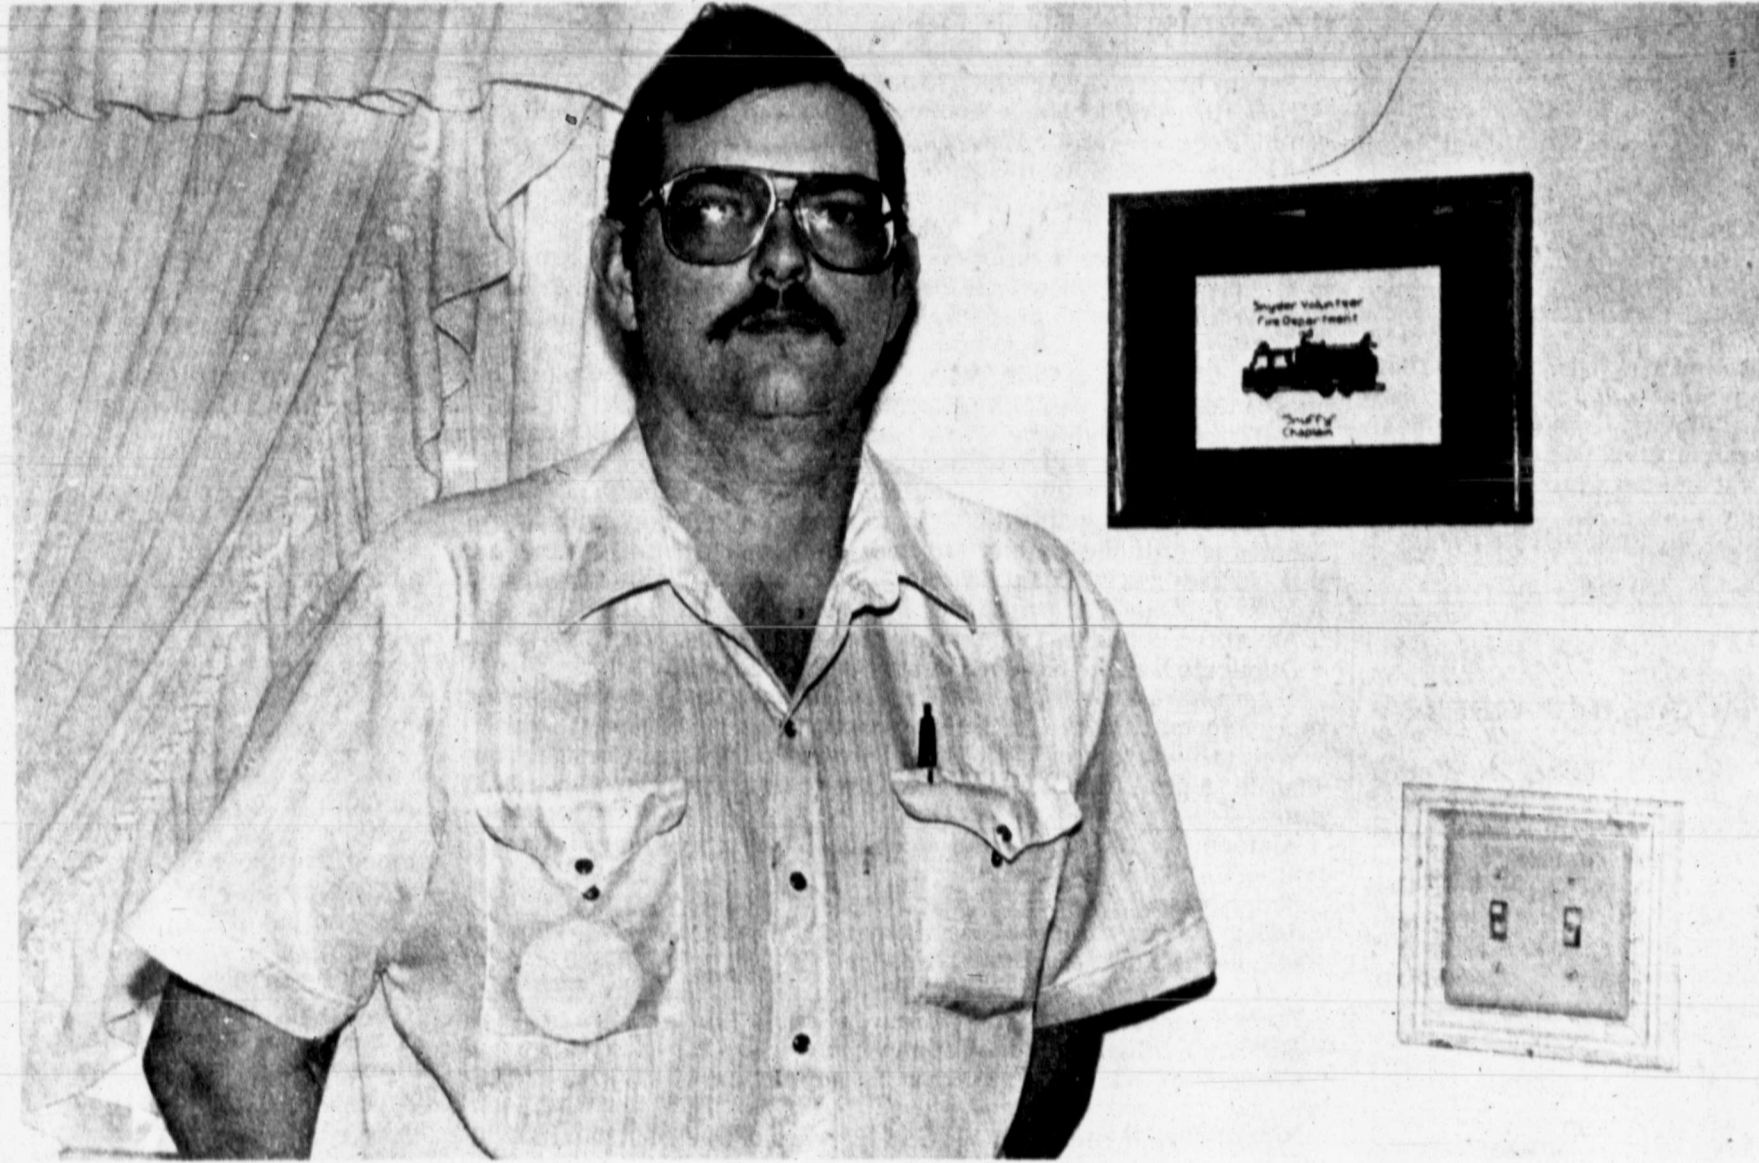

Since many household poisonings occur when parents are away from home, AAPCC recommends that sitters and children be instructed on how to avoid or react to poisonings. Some guidelines stressed for baby sitters include:

- Always take children with you when answering phones or doors, and never leave them alone in a room.

- Never leave open bottles of medicine or cleaners within a child's reach.

- Call the poison control center immediately if a child is suspected of being exposed to a possibly toxic substance.

- Be aware that household items such as deodorants, hairspray, paint, perfume, shoe polish, insecticides and vitamins are potentially poisonous for a child.

OZONE DEPLETION
 Our chemical age is a mixed blessing. Scientists now report that certain man-made chemicals are depleting the ozone layer in the earth's stratosphere - ozone which filters out ultraviolet rays that can cause skin cancer. It is now more urgent that adults and especially children, have their exposed face, neck, arms and legs coated with a sunscreen before playing outdoors in the sun. Sunbathing, which increases the risk of skin cancer, should definitely be discouraged.

Treasured Barbary apes live pampered lives on Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR (AP) — For 25 years, Sgt. Alfred Holmes fed, nursed and guarded the famous Barbary apes which scramble among the upper crevices of the rock of Gibraltar.

Legend has it that when these tailless monkeys leave Gibraltar, so will the British. And since the British take their legends very seriously, the animals enjoy the same tender loving care as any of the 1,915 British soldiers on the rock.

Britain has ruled the colony on the southern tip of Spain since 1713, consistently rejecting Spain's claim to sovereignty, and the apes have become an adjunct to imperial statecraft.

When their population fell to seven during World War II, British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill ordered them augmented with Barbary apes captured in Morocco.

Holmes, 57, has taken orphaned baby apes home to his wife and sick apes to the British naval hospital. With eye signals and barely perceptible head movements, he has disciplined the unruly and chided the greedy for ruining their teeth and waistlines on candy.

For the past 18 months since he retired as Keeper of the Apes, the former soldier has been unable to visit his wards, saying the wrench has been too painful.

"They are the treasures of Gibraltar," Holmes says of the animals he came to love as brothers and sisters. "This is the greatest treasure we have."

The Barbary apes are probably Gibraltar's best known tourist attraction and thousands of visitors a year line up to be photographed feeding them banana chunks.

Since 1913, they have been the responsibility of the British army, which appoints one non-commissioned officer from the locally recruited Gibraltar Regiment as Keeper of the Apes.

The apes, now numbering 67, divide themselves into a wild pack at the top of the 1,380-foot limestone rock and a tamer pack, accustomed to posing and primping for pictures adjacent to a drop-off point for the cable car.

They roam their well-defined territories at will, but gather punctually at meal time. They are fed at government expense, both for their own health and to discourage them from raiding the homes below. Holmes said the apes soon learned that an imperceptible movement of his head meant they were to stop gobbling the candy or fruit offered by tourists.

"They got used to looking at my own face and my movements and that way they knew what I meant," he said.

Each ape is named at birth, he said, many in honor of brigadiers, colonels, government officials and their wives.

"They have medical treatment at the Royal Naval Hospital, exactly the same as the soldiers ... We have the same medical officers, surgeons. They use exactly the same medicines as they have through the Royal Navy."

The ape population is at its highest in more than a century, says Dr. Clive Finlayson, a biologist working for the government's Tourist Office. There's no further sign of the flu-like illness which killed three apes last summer and brought an army veterinarian out specially from Britain.

"The last time there were 60-odd apes on the rock was 1885," said Finlayson, who is preparing a report on how to develop the upper rock as a nature reserve.

"At the time ... they were very much a problem," he said. "They used to roam the Admiralty Gardens and take a lot of figs."

Finlayson said many of the apes were shot, and in 1923 the government ordered the last six — all female — eliminated. The order was rescinded, he said, and males later had to be imported from Morocco to build up the stock.

The Moors are popularly believed to have found apes on the rock when they invaded it in A.D. 711, but Finlayson says there is no fossil evidence to prove it.

He believes British soldiers with time on their hands imported the apes from Morocco — then known as Barbary — in the 18th century.

Minister serves at interfaith wedding rites

BEACHWOOD, Ohio (AP) — The Rev. Vivian Epstein doesn't want to preach or lead a congregation — just to perform marriages for couples of different faiths.

Mrs. Epstein, who is Jewish, took the unusual step after her Jewish son and his Roman Catholic fiancée couldn't find a rabbi and a priest who would jointly officiate at their wedding. They ended up with two ministers.

"The wedding was beautiful. The setting was magnificent. The service left a lot to be desired," she said. "I vowed that no one should have to go through that. It just didn't apply to them. It was nothing personal."

She said a couple shouldn't have to forsake the traditions of their faith in order to get married. "I just feel that we're all children of God and if two people love each other they shouldn't have to struggle to get married," she said.

Mrs. Epstein, 59, studied with a non-denominational minister, was ordained and licensed in Ohio to perform marriages. She performed her first marriage in 1981 and did 11 weddings that year.

She officiated at about two dozen weddings a year since then, and already has 19 scheduled this year, including three on the same day.

Most of the weddings she's performed have involved Jewish-Catholic couples and many are done jointly with a priest. She has also officiated at weddings for other interfaith couples, and for Catholics who couldn't be married by their church because a previous marriage had not been annulled by church officials.

"They can have a secular or religious (ceremony), depending on what they want. A lot of times they come to me and they say, 'We want a ceremony that will offend nobody.' So I tell them, 'How about a ceremony that will blend together, so you don't have to worry about offending, but blending.' And that's usually what we do," she said.

Mrs. Epstein said attitudes toward interfaith marriages have eased since she began performing them, especially among parents of the couples.

Summer warnings given to avoid swimmer's ear

NEW YORK (AP) — With the arrival of warm weather, swimmers are urged to be aware of possible damage to their ears.

"If you are aware of the dangers and take some simple cautionary steps, most likely you can avoid the problems swimmer's ear can cause," says Dr. Walter A. Petryshyn, medical director of the Deafness Research Foundation based here.

"Water that remains in the external ear canal, the tunnel just beyond the visible part of the ear, can result in a potentially dangerous ear infection," he notes. "If untreated, swimmer's ear, technically called otitis externa, can spread inward, possibly causing a middle-ear infection."

Petryshyn said three factors interact to cause swimmer's ear: warmth, moisture and the presence of infectious organisms such as bacteria or fungi.

Among the steps he advises for protecting against the problem are:

— Dry the ear canals when water enters, particularly after swimming and diving. Tilt each ear toward the ground and let the water run out. Do not use a cotton-tipped applicator or the twisted point of a cloth or towel. This will only irritate the ear.

— Divers should use preventive measures such as ear drops with alcohol to dry the canal, and a solution of a teaspoon of boric acid in a cupful of warm water or a few drops of white vinegar to restore acidity. This should not be done in case of a perforated eardrum, which requires professional attention.

— Premolded earplugs are not watertight seals and should only be used as an aid. Don't place total reliance on them.

Symptoms of swimmer's ear vary from mild to severe. Mild cases involve moderate pain which, in most instances, is made worse by touching or manipulating the outer ear. Other symptoms are a low-grade fever with a mild discharge.

"In more severe cases," Petryshyn said, "the pain is intense, with the ear canal swelling shut and obstructing hearing. The side of the head and face throb."

He emphasized that once swimmer's ear occurs, it should be treated by a physician.

SPRAY DATES SET FOR PECAN TREES
From observations made throughout Scurry County, the control sprays for the Pecan Nut Casebearer should be applied from June 6-10.

The adult pecan nut casebearer is a gray moth about 1/4-inch long. These moths fly at night and spend the day in concealment. The casebearer moth deposits from 50 to 150 eggs on the tips of developing nutlets. These eggs are barely visible by the naked eye and are greenish white when first laid.

The first generation larvae hatch in four or five days and migrate below to feed on buds. Nut penetration follows a day or two of this outside activity. This is the critical stage of control.

When young worms are working over a cluster of pecans, they deposit waste material in pellets around the entrance holes. When this frass is observed, control becomes difficult. Chemical sprays will not penetrate the nut to kill burrowing worms. Complete clusters can be destroyed by one developing casebearer larvae.

Insecticides recommended for casebearer control include Zolone, Guthion, Malathion and Sevin. Homeowners may want to include a fungicide such as Benomyl for rosette control and NZN should be added for growth and control of rosette.

A good mixture for the homeowner would be four tablespoons of Zolone, three tablespoons of Benomyl and six teaspoons of NZN for three gallons of water.

The most important part of this mixture of course is the insecticide for the control of the pecan nut casebearer, the other ingredients can be added at the discretion of the homeowner.

This year's spray schedule is later than the past few years, but it is critical to treat this pest at the right time. Early or late treatment will not control the pest.

You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods as long as you don't increase your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire."

It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patents pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles from food that you have just eaten. Then, the trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Pills Go To Work!"

The fat-magnet pills alone, "automatically" help reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat, with no exercising. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals. However, you can lose weight "faster" if you choose to follow the fat-magnet diet plan along with the pills.

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with record sales and glowing reports of weight loss. It's a "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose a large or small amount of weight, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills and diet plan (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer) by mail or phone order only by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. Shipwrecked coconuts

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — This winter playground of the wealthy is famous for its towering palm trees, but it once was a barren offshore sand spit with no vegetation.

Then, in 1878, a Spanish ship loaded with coconuts and wine went aground and broke up. The coconuts that floated ashore took root, sprouted and grew into royal palm trees that transformed the landscape.

Attracted by the palms, climate and isolated beaches, a few wealthy Northern families built winter homes here at the turn of the century. Now, Palm Beach has luxury hotels, expensive shops and restaurants and still attracts the rich and famous.

PARENTS, SCHOOLS, AND THE LAW. By David Schimmel.

David Schimmel has provided an important and much needed service to our educational system and the children it serves. It has become imperative that parents become more knowledgeable about, and involved in, their children's education.

Students and parents have acquired many rights, but their effective implementation will depend on careful negotiation with authorities rather than an approach that is antagonistic and confrontational.

This book will enable those who are responsible for the education of our children to carry out their charge with greater enthusiasm and effectiveness; this can only serve to improve the American educational system.

Out of doors air conditioning

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A cooling system which can lower the outside temperature by as much as 30 degrees is available in this desert city, reports Energy User News.

The system enables hotels, bars and restaurants to attract customers to outdoor patios usually deserted in the summer.

It uses a flash evaporative process in which regular tap water is pumped to 600 pounds per square inch through high pressure piping mounted on the eaves of a building adjacent to the area being cooled, the journal explains.

As the water is pushed through the nozzles of the pipe it is broken into a mist of minute droplets which quickly evaporate in low humidity air at temperatures above 90 degrees. Because heat rises, the cooled air is forced to the ground.

However, if humidity is above 50 percent the mist cannot flash evaporate, and the system will not function properly.

There's no measuring, no mixing, and no rising when you use refrigerated breadsticks. What's more, they're a terrific timesaver for many kinds of bread besides breadsticks. Here's how you can use them to have the gooey decadence of homemade cinnamon rolls in minutes.

CINNAMON-ORANGE ROLLS

- 1 package (8) refrigerated breadsticks
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter, melted
- 4 teaspoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 cup raisins or chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup sifted powdered sugar

- 1/2 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
 - 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
 - 2 to 3 teaspoons orange juice
- Unroll breadsticks; place on a piece of waxed paper. Slightly flatten breadsticks. Brush with margarine. Combine sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over dough. Press raisins or walnuts into dough. Roll up each piece jellyroll style. Seal and place in greased 8- by 1 1/2-inch round baking pan. Bake in a 350-degree oven 25 minutes or until golden. Transfer to a wire rack.

Combine powdered sugar, orange peel, vanilla and enough orange juice to make drizzling consistency. Drizzle over rolls. Serve warm. Makes 8 rolls.

Nutrition information per roll: 139 cal., 3 g pro., 29 g carbo., 4 g fat, 250 mg sodium.

CHOOSING FROZEN DINNERS FOR NUTRITION

Over 177 new frozen dinners and entrees were marketed last year, giving shoppers an even greater choice among ethnic cuisines, "light" meals, dinner "classics," — and nutritional value.

balanced diet, but only if you know what they do and do not offer nutritionally.

Actually, frozen meals have improved in recent years, as manufacturers have tried to respond to the nutrition concerns of the buying public.

Nutrition researchers at Tufts University recently evaluated 451 dinners and entrees for nutritional value and rated 44 of them as highly recommended and another 55 as falling only slightly short of rigorous standards for fat, sodium, calories and protein.

Just two years ago the Tufts researchers assessed 350 frozen dinners and could recommend only 34 of them.

Consumers need to read package labels for the following indicators of nutritional value in frozen meals and entrees: —No more than 300 calories per serving. If it's a single serving entree or individual dinner, counting calories won't be difficult. But if the package contains multiple servings you'll have to exercise your own portion-control to stay in the limits.

—No more than 30 percent of calories should come from fat. Americans have been urged to reduce their fat intake to this level to help reduce the risk of heart disease. A 300-calorie product should have 11 grams of fat or less to meet this requirement.

—No more than 1,000 calories per serving. While 300 to about a third of the amount you should be getting in a day. If you sprinkle salt on your food at the table, you'll be adding more sodium.

—About a third of the U.S. Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) for protein, or about 15 grams.

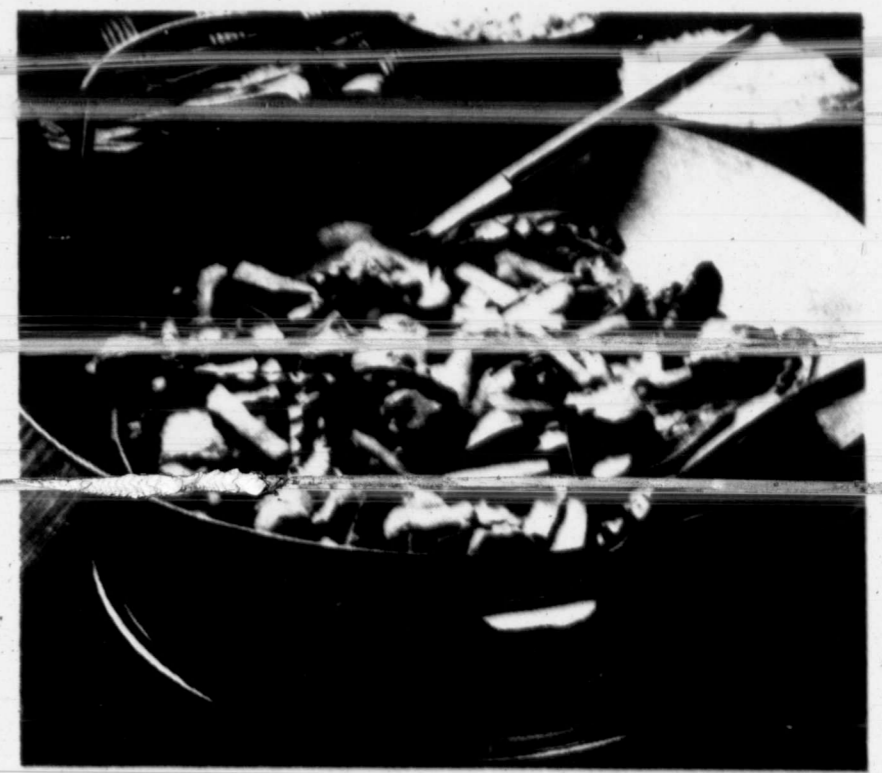

—A net weight of about 9 ounces or more to provide you with enough bulk to feel full.

Even when a frozen meal or entree fits these guidelines, it will still probably be low in one or more essential vitamins or minerals.

To make a balanced meal out of a frozen dinner or entree, add raw or cooked vegetables, fruit or a salad.

These foods will provide vitamins A and C, plus some fiber, without adding a lot of extra calories.

Few frozen meals provide enough calcium to reduce the risk of osteoporosis. So drinking a glass of skim milk with the meal or getting at least two servings of dairy products a day is important.

ORANGE CHICKEN WITH JICAMA — Add new taste to stir-fry with jicama, a vegetable that looks like a turnip and adds crunchy texture to many main dishes. (AP Photo)

Stir-fry is enhanced by crispy Mexican jicama

Chili peppers, tortillas and many other Mexican foods have become mainstream American in the past few years. Now meet the jicama, a vegetable from south of the border. It looks like a large turnip with brown skin. The white interior has a crunchy texture and mild flavor. Use jicama raw or cook it briefly to retain the texture.

ORANGE CHICKEN WITH JICAMA

- 2 whole medium chicken breasts (about 1 1/2 pounds), skinned, boned and split lengthwise
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 medium jicama (about 10 ounces), peeled and cut into thin strips (1 and 3/4 cups)
- One 6-ounce package frozen pea pods, thawed
- Hot cooked rice

Cut chicken into 1-inch pieces; set aside. Combine soy sauce and cornstarch; stir in orange peel and orange juice. Set aside. Heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in a wok or large skillet over high heat. Add jicama and pea pods; stir-fry 1 minute. Remove vegetables from wok. Add remaining oil. Add half the chicken to hot wok; stir-fry 2 minutes. Remove from wok. Add remaining chicken; stir-fry 2 minutes. Return all chicken to wok. Stir orange juice mixture; stir into chicken. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir in jicama and pea pods. Cover; cook 1 minute more. Serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 434 cal., 41 g pro., 41 g carbo., 11 g fat, 97 mg chol., 960 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 46 percent vit. C, 21 percent thiamine, 13 percent riboflavin, 87 percent niacin, 19 percent iron, 35 percent phosphorus.

Spaghetti for stress

NEW YORK (AP) — The high-carbohydrate meals people eat for performance may also help exercisers keep their calm under stress, reports the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

It says Auburn University athletes on high-carbohydrate diets displayed less aggressive behavior on psychological tests than the low-carbohydrate exercisers.

well. Against three no-trump it would have been obvious for the defenders to take two diamond tricks to go with the club ace. At spades, even with the diamond lead, it is hard to see how the defense can take more than a diamond trick and the club ace. But follow the play.

On the opening lead of the diamond two, declarer played the jack from the dummy and East won the queen. With hardly a thought, East immediately returned a low diamond. Believing that West was clever enough to underlead his ace at trick one, declarer ruffed. He knocked out the ace of clubs and was forced to ruff again when West led a third diamond to East's ace. He now played three rounds of trumps and ran the clubs. Eventually West ruffed in and had to give up to all the high red cards in dummy, but declarer had been held to 10 tricks, resulting in a good tournament score for the defenders.

A sure trick disappears

By James Jacoby

Tournament players know that four spades making five is a better result than three no-trump making four. Although the difference is trivial to rubber-bridge players, they should appreciate a clever defensive play that takes a trick away from declarer.

The bidding by South showed six clubs and five spades, with reasonable extra strength. North decided to play four spades rather than three no-trump in case South needed to ruff club losers. That was not the best decision, but it should have worked out

Bentsen proposes exemption idea for oil companies

HOUSTON (AP) — An anti-trust exemption for oil companies is being proposed by U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who says it will help the ailing industry work together to find better ways to extract oil from American fields.

Bentsen, speaking at a meeting Thursday of The Houston Club, said the United States now is 40 percent dependent on foreign oil. That, he told the businessmen's group, is a higher percentage than in 1973-74 when the Mideast oil embargo triggered long lines at the nation's gasoline pumps.

"We have 300 billion barrels of oil in the ground in the United States," Bentsen said. "If we can improve the recoverable reserves, which are now at 28 billion barrels, if we can increase it by 10 percent of the known oil — the 300 billion barrels — let's give an exemption from anti-trust for oil companies to work together in research on enhanced recovery."

"One of the things we ought to do is a joint effort between business and academia and government — to have some research," he said. "Let's do it on behalf of recovery."

Bentsen is seeking a fourth six-year term in November, and his speech Thursday included references to his Texas roots, his optimism about the state, his experience in the Senate and his access to top government officials because of his post as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

He also promised he would continue to push for repeal of the windfall profits tax on oil companies. The tax repeal was part of a trade bill vetoed last month by President Reagan, who objected to a provision that would require companies to inform workers 60 days before a plant was closed.

"If there ever was a misnamed tax, that's one," he said, contending oil companies spend $100 million a year on paperwork because of the tax while the government spends $10 million annually doing the accounting.

"It's a disincentive to production and has to be repealed," he said. "If I don't get it done this time, I'll hang it on something else."

He acknowledged, however, that efforts beginning next week to override the Reagan veto of the trade bill would be difficult.

"The odds are against us and I know that," Bentsen said. "If we don't succeed at that, that won't mean we will quit."

He said the thrust of the bill was to ensure any country with full access to American markets grant American companies equal access to their markets.

"A trade bill won't resolve it all, but it will help," he said.

He also said he has urged the comptroller of the currency and other top government banking regulators to give troubled Texas banks and savings and loan institutions a fair shake.

"What I want from you — no better, no worse — I want you to treat us like you treat the New York banks," he said, paraphrasing his conversations. "When you make loans to Third World countries, and don't take action, when you give them some tolerance — you ought to give us some tolerance and time to work it out."

Bentsen said Texas historically has rebounded from difficulties and he sees signs the state's economy is improving.

"I'll tell you this," he said. "I'd rather have a mortgage on an empty building in Houston than a piece of a loan from Poland. We'll come back and we're coming back."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Woman Fears Ex-Boyfriend Is Abusing His Daughters

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I had a boyfriend who has a teen-age daughter and a 5-year-old daughter. I have reason to believe he is sexually abusing them. The very thought of it turns my stomach and sickens me so much I just had to get away from him.

When we first started going together I liked him a lot — we had so much in common — but since I've had these suspicions about him, I don't want anything to do with him.

He keeps calling and asking to see me, but I keep making excuses. The last time he called, he wanted to know if I was mad at him. I told him no, I wasn't — which is true. I am just sick at heart and confused.

Should I confront him and clear the air, or just forget about him and look for a man who doesn't have daughters?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Confronting him will not necessarily clear the air. What if he denies your accusations?

If your suspicions are based on strong evidence, this man should be reported to your local child protective agency. The people there will know how to approach and question him — and his daughters. Your first concern should be the girls. If your suspicions are correct, they and their sick father will require therapy. Please send me your name and address, and I will gladly intervene for you.

DEAR ABBY: As information desk receptionists in a large medical center, our hearts go out daily to people who arrive here only to learn that their friends and loved ones are not in this hospital but in another one — sometimes miles away. (Even in smaller cities where there are only two hospitals, this happens.)

People are understandably upset when they learn that someone has been hospitalized, but they could save themselves a lot of time if they would carefully listen to the name of the hospital and if possible write it down. Then before they go there to visit, they should phone to confirm that the person is still a patient. (In many cases, the patient has already been released.)

We told our boss that there should be some way to let folks know that a simple phone call could save a lot of time and hassle, and she said, "Good idea; write to Dear Abby." So here's our letter. We hope you'll think it's worth sharing.

BIDDY STOUGH, FOR ALL RECEPTIONISTS, BAYSHORE MEDICAL CENTER, PASADENA, TEXAS

DEAR BIDDY: It is, Readers, before you head for the hospital, pick up a phone.

CONFIDENTIAL TO 'I' IN WILLIAMSPORT, PA.: No one said it better than George Bernard Shaw: "The great secret is not having bad manners or any other particular sort of manners, but having the same manners for all human souls."

DEAR ABBY: Our 18-year-old son was killed in an accident this year. We feel fortunate to have had this fine boy to love for 18 years, and because we have so many wonderful memories, we are better able to adjust to our loss.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and have engaged a photographer to take pictures. My problem is that I am blind in my right eye. I have no control over the movement — the eye "floats."

AUGUST BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Tell the photographer about your problem. It's possible for him to shoot the picture at an angle that will not show your "floating eye."

Since his death, I have been thinking about a moral issue. We adopted "Charles" as an infant, and perhaps his biological mother has been hoping that one day she will find him. Should we contact the agency that placed Charles for adoption and let them know that he is gone so they can advise his birth mother? Or would it be kinder to let her keep hoping that one day she will find him? If she desired it, we would gladly meet with her and share our memories of this lovely boy. We know she gave him up only out of love. She knew she couldn't take care of him, and wanted him to have a better life.

If our positions were reversed, I think I'd rather know that he was gone than to keep looking for him, for the rest of my life. Perhaps his biological mother never thinks about him, and all this wondering is totally unnecessary.

Please guide me, Abby. I would like to resolve this, one way or the other.

CHARLES' MOM

DEAR MOM: My mail tells me that most mothers who have given up their infants for adoption never stop "wondering" how they are, where they are, and what they look like. They also pray for the day they will see "their" child again.

Yes, do advise the agency of Charles' death — so it may inform his biological mother. And bless you for your generosity in offering to meet with her to share your memories.

DEAR ABBY: I am 25 years old, single and eight and a half months pregnant. I never considered abortion from the word "go," but I have been seriously considering giving this child up for adoption. I have many personal reasons for my decision — all of which I believe are in the child's best interest.

My distress lies in having to defend my decision. I am college educated, make over $30,000 a year, and love children, so my friends and colleagues feel I'm an ideal candidate for single parenthood.

No matter in which condition I return to work, parent or not, I have no intention of discussing this topic with these nosy, factless people. On the other hand, I do have to maintain a friendly and professional relationship with them.

Abby, how does one politely say, "Mind your own business?"

SEALED LIPS

DEAR SEALED: Try this: "I appreciate your interest, but it's a personal matter that I choose not to discuss." Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am a talented knitter who has knitted many beautiful sweaters for myself and others — as gifts. I spend a great deal of time creating these original pieces of "art" — which is what they are. (No two are alike.) Therefore, I find it extremely irritating when someone compliments me on my sweaters saying, "It looks just as nice as anything you could buy in a store!" Or, worse yet, "It doesn't look homemade."

I know these people mean well, but please set them straight, Abby.

OAK PARK KNITTER

DEAR KNITTER: Although machine-made sweaters may be flawless, one that is hand-knit is far more valuable. One cannot place a price tag on an original piece of art. When an artist gives his or her time and talent, the recipient receives the ultimate compliment.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." Jobless rate in Texas falls in April DALLAS (AP) — Continued improvement in the service and manufacturing sectors of the economy has pushed the Texas unemployment rate down from 7.5 percent in April to 7.2 percent in May, the Labor Department reported today.

The decline in the jobless rate is the third consecutive monthly decrease, signaling a state trend of economic growth, officials say.

Gov. Bill Clements said the unemployment rate is an indication of ongoing recovery in the Texas economy. It is the lowest unemployment rate since January 1986, when the rate was 6.5 percent, according to a statement from the governor's office.

"The economic climate in Texas is becoming brighter and brighter. Our economic development plans are working, and our economy continues to move forward, picking up speed," Clements said.

A year ago, the May unemployment rate was 8.6 percent.

"This is obviously giving us some real slow, but solid improvement in the labor force picture," said Nick Santangelo, southwest regional chief of economic analysis for the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics in Dallas.

Santangelo said growth in business and health services and manufacturing of durable goods, such as electronic parts for the defense industry, has added 70,000 jobs since April 1987.

But Santangelo said growth in these sectors is somewhat offset by weaknesses in construction and finance, insurance and real estate sectors.

In addition, a prime indicator of economic rejuvenation — the growth of trade-related jobs — has not increased substantially, he said.

Only 3,500 jobs have been added to the 1.6 million wholesale and retail jobs over the past year, a "modest" increase, Santangelo said.

"That's where we see the first signs of solid growth. It hasn't shown us that we have gathered the momentum to a solid recovery that would suggest we're home free," he said.

The 0.3 percent decline in the unemployment rate, represents a reduction in the ranks of the jobless from 628,000 in April to 602,000 in May. Last month, 7.77 million Texans were employed, an increase of nearly 50,000 from April.

That is the highest employment ever in Texas, according to the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas at Austin, Clements said.

"Several years ago, the Texas economy was on the beach, but today, we're not only back in the game, we're on a fast break," Clements said.

More Texans have jobs than at any time in the history of our state. More and more opportunities are emerging for our people. This is wonderful and encouraging news.

Regan says his book was misunderstood

DALLAS (AP) — Donald Regan, the acerbic former White House chief of staff, said the move from the cocooned boardroom to the political backroom is a rough change that few businessmen should try.

But Regan had only good things to say Thursday about his former boss, President Reagan. "I think Ronald Regan will likely go down as one of our most underrated presidents."

Later, he told reporters that he has not spoken with Regan since his controversial book, "The Record: From Wall Street to Washington," was released.

The book describes first lady Nancy Regan's role in forcing Regan out of office, her consultation with an astrologer to schedule events for Regan and Regan's perception that the president is hesitant to make decisions.

Speaking in an international conference of bond dealers,

he said politics is not for everyone.

Research on fish reported

BALTIMORE (AP) — A genetically altered carp that grows 20 percent faster than natural carp could reduce fish prices and boost fishing industry revenues, a researcher says.

However, a critic of genetic engineering warned that havoc could result if altered carp escape into lakes and streams and upset nature's balance.

Two researchers from Johns Hopkins University here and one from Auburn University in Alabama injected the genes of rainbow trout into carp eggs to create a fish that grows one-fifth faster than other carp and consumes more food.

"The potential of doing this in other fish could mean billions of dollars worldwide. If you can get organisms to grow faster and improve efficiency it will bring down the price to the consumer," said one of the researchers, Johns Hopkins biology department Chairman Dennis Powers.

The technique could eventually be applied to catfish farming, a multimillion-dollar-a-year industry for the South, Powers said. In addition, if continuing tests on the altered carp succeed, genetic manipulation could increase fish production in winter months, when fish grow more slowly.

But genetic engineering critic Jeremy Rikin said that if the carp escapes into nature, "that could dramatically change and disrupt marine life."

If the altered genes are transmitted to other generations "they could overtake the environment," said Rikin, a Washington-based lobbyist who is president of the Foundation for Economic Trends.

Powers, however, said that because the fish never substantially more food than normal carp they would likely starve if released into the environment rather than being raised as a fish farm.

Powers also said he and his colleagues have to study whether the altered gene can be passed on to future generations of carp.

Powers, Johns Hopkins molecular biologist Thomas Chen and Auburn University geneticist Rex Dunham have asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture for permission to release the carp in to small experimental ponds at Auburn to see how the fish fare outdoors.

The fish would be isolated in the holding ponds, and would not be allowed to escape into lakes and streams in the preliminary study, Powers said.

Rikin said there were not enough assurances the carp would not escape, and is postponing USDA to deny the application.

Spelling Bee winner says hard work paid off for her

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Spelling Bee winner Ragoshree Ramachandran says she's not sure what profession she'll pursue, but she already knows that hard work pays off.

"Study as much as you can, and don't stop after the eighth grade because it's what comes later that counts," is her advice to other would-be champions.

The 13-year-old from Fair Oaks, Calif., outlasted runner-up Victor C. Wang of Camarillo, Calif., in a grueling 45-minute, one-on-one finale Thursday.

Her winning word in the first annual contest, sponsored by Scripps Howard newspapers, was "religulous," an adjective used to describe the couples, or pairs of lines, in some poems.

As the judges noted their hearts that she had won and the hundreds of spectators in the hotel ballroom applauded and cheered, she stepped back from the microphone and a smile spread across her face.

"Anything I go into would involve writing, even if it's math or science," the eighth-grader said later.

Ragoshree, who was born in India and whose parents are both statistics professors, said she had studied spelling for at least two hours daily since January, helped by her mother, father and younger sister.

Victor, a 14-year-old from Camarillo, Calif., stumbled when he misspelled "stertorous," replacing the first "o" with a "u." The word is an adjective used to describe harsh, snoring sounds.

For a while, neither child had much luck as they were asked to spell a series of words that both proved unable to pin down. After Victor misspelled "balmacaan," a loose overcoat, and a bee of ficial spelled it correctly, the eighth-grader drew laughter from an equally perplexed audience by asking, "Who makes up these words?"

No decision yet on speaker probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee is moving cautiously toward a non-political decision on whether to launch an investigation into allegations that Speaker Jim Wright violated the chamber's standards of conduct.

Wright, D-Texas, is publicly pressing for a quick resolution of the matter — and insisting he'll be cleared. But the leaders of the panel of six Democrats and six Republicans said they were most interested in being thorough.

Committee chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said after a 10-hour closed-door session Thursday that the panel had not decided if a preliminary inquiry into the charges against Wright was warranted.

"The members of the committee had a thorough discussion of the issue and we have come to no resolve," he said. Another meeting was scheduled for next Thursday, he said.

Rep. John Myers of Indiana, the panel's senior Republican member, said there were "a lot of issues and it takes time to do it thoroughly."

The committee has a strict policy of silence until it completes action on any case. Thursday's meeting was its first on the Wright case.

Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., filed a complaint last week accusing his political enemy Wright of sexual harassment. House rules require the ethics committee to examine any complaint filed by a member, and Gingrich has requested that an investigation be launched to handle the speaker's case.

Gingrich's complaint cited published reports that Wright received unusually high royalties for his book, that was written by a Texas associate who did nearly $800,000 in business with Wright's company.

It also pointed to actions by Wright on behalf of Texas oilmen with whom he had a financial relationship.

In one case, Wright lobbied for Texas Big Game Commission Chairman Arwan Sudduth concerning an oil well in Sudduth's Big Game was taking from Sudduth as a result of the Commission's actions in the region, Wright's spokeswoman says.

Wright has insisted his actions were what any congressman would do on behalf of his constituents, and that he had no financial interest.

"I've said all along I have no fear of apprehension about them looking into these charges," he said. Charging them up quickly was important, he said, because "if we let the matter slide the reputation of the House as an institution" as well as his own might suffer.

By Donny Brown

Yuppiedom, itself a term endangered by over-use, has now invented another catchy phrase to describe a portion of its lifestyle.

The word is "cocooning," which is just cutesy enough to catch on. Not to mention its double sound of hard consonants—"Ka-Koon"—which makes it fun to say.

"Cocooning," the smart guys tell us, is "the term applied to those high-income young professionals who relish spending their free time in the comfort of their home."

Such a statement has snobbery lathered all over it. And is just pompous enough, admittedly in a friendly sort of way, to be poked at until all of the hot air escapes.

However, let us not be too hasty with our negativeness.

A key ingredient to cocooning, it seems, is the personalized bathroom. Not just any old bathroom—where, as Bob Dylan once wrote, "even the president of the United States sometimes must be naked"—but a bonafide personal retreat from the outside world.

In other words, a bathroom which includes a jacuzzi or a spa or a steam room or a whirlpool or a private sound system or a wet bar or its own fireplace or any combination of the above. All to accommodate one to two folks, hopefully with honorable intentions toward the other.

Heck. As far as we're concerned, just show us where to sign up.

What person doesn't have extreme personal affection for his own bathroom? In the house where we grew up, it—as in one and only one—was shared by a complete set of parents and as many as two older sisters. Not to mention assorted visiting older sisters and their horde of husbands and children.

The house was also of the age where a bathroom was not, despite our mother's best efforts, a luxurious retreat. It was more like a tiny room added at the back during a period when indoor plumbing alone was enough to qualify it as a luxury.

In point of fact, its linoleum floor, bathtub (no shower), bare pipes beneath the sink and gas water heater gurgling in the corner made it as accommodating a place as we have ever experienced.

It offered, and we can only think of one appropriate word, peace.

By the nature of being human, the bathroom is the only room in the house where you are guaranteed no one will barge in on you.

Even newlyweds, who otherwise step all over the privacy rights of their newly espoused, find it difficult to break this rule.

A home is supposed to be your private retreat. But, anyone with a spouse and kids knows this theory is shot full of privacy-invading holes on a regular basis.

But the bathroom is the inner sanctum's inner sanctum. The last and best, hide-out spot of this world—its quietness amplified by a soft and pleasant white noise buzz created by the porcelain surface of toilet, sink, tub and tile.

The Yuppies, those most pleasure-loving of free spenders, are now finding this out with a vengeance. To lesser or greater degrees, we expect the rest of the world will follow.

In fact, don't be surprised if your kids pass on to their kids a whole new meaning to a phrase most of us use daily. They may still say, "I gotta go to the bathroom," but we suspect their options when they get there will be a whole lot broader.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

It's not often that I steal large chunks of somebody else's material for one of my columns, but this was such a great idea, I couldn't pass it up. It has to do with traveling and vacations and stuff like that, something most of us are giving thought to this time of year. In fact, this is the first year in memory that we are planning a trip that does not involve hauling children to grandparent's houses in distant cities. We even plan to eat in restaurants and stay in motels instead of mooching off of family, can you imagine?

Steve Crowley, the Money Editor on "Good Morning America," did a piece the other morning on how to enjoy your trip without getting ripped off. I decided to add a few things to it, gleaned from my own cynical big-city upbringing and suspicious frame of mind I've developed from hanging around cops.

Basically, your trip begins before you leave home. A few weeks ago, I did a column on rural burglaries. One thing I didn't mention is that high-priced security systems don't do you a heck of a lot of good when you live in the country, because The Law can't get there in five minutes, like it can in town. Therefore, it behooves you, whether you live in town or in the country, to get a family member or friend to house-sit while you are away, especially if you are going to be gone for a couple of weeks. That way, your plants and lawn get watered, your pets get fed, and burglars drive on down the road looking for an empty house to break into.

Also, if you don't have one already, get you a safety deposit box, and use it to store your important papers and your valuables. I once watched a house burn to the ground. Its hysterical owner begged fire fighters to dig through the rubble to retrieve her "fire-proof" box which contained her marriage license and so forth. They found the box all right, and it was fire-proof, too. But when they opened it up, ASHES poured out. The heat had burned up all the papers inside. Get a bank box. Use it. It only costs a few dollars a year and gives you peace of mind that can't be priced.

While you're at it, leave all those expensive pieces of jewelry behind, in the bank box. Now, since most of my jewelry is made of plastic or wood, that's not a problem for me, but some of you may have trinkets left over from the Good Ole Days when oil was $25 or $30 a barrel. You don't need the aggravation of keeping up with them on a trip, and if you must have that necklace, then have a duplicate made in cubic zirconium or other artificial stones and take that on the trip.

We who've spent our lives in a small town where "everybody knows everybody" get complacent. We never lock our homes, we leave the keys in the car and our handbags in the supermarket shopping cart. Then we go off on a trip and forget that it's a Big, Bad World out there.

First, never, NEVER carry large amounts of cash on a trip. Never. Remember the eighty-twenty rule. Take 80 percent of your trip funds in traveler's checks. Then, that 20 percent? Spread it around. Carry some of it in his wallet, some in her billfold, and some in the overnight case, and so on. NEVER put all your trip cash in one spot. Don't even do that with your traveler's check receipts.

If you're traveling by car, store those expensive cameras in the trunk when you're not using them. Not the front seat. A determined thief would think nothing of chunking a brick through your car window and hauling off thousands of dollar's worth of video equipment.

Beware of confidence artists. They usually work in pairs. One will divert your attention in a crowd by bumping into you or spilling a bunch of stuff at your feet while the other makes off with your luggage. NEVER take your eyes off your luggage at an airport or bus station or wherever. If you are checking your luggage, baggage insurance costs only pennies and could protect you from disaster.

While staying at a hotel or motel, make use of the vault. It's there for your protection. Check credit cards you don't need, jewelry, and so on. NEVER leave that stuff behind in your room.

The thing about trips is that we are supposed to be relaxing, but there is a certain amount of strain from negotiating unfamiliar traffic or handling too much luggage or driving for too many hours in a day. We get tired and off-guard. In a crowded, tourist resort area, that's all a tight needs.

WHEN KIDS EAT CEREAL

With just a little planning and preparation, though, and by developing a few safety habits (like always buckling our seat belts), we can come back from vacation the way we're supposed to — rested, rejuvenated, and ready to go.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY May 29

Scholarships were reported Sunday for 56 Snyder High School seniors. Some 157 SHS seniors received their diplomas Friday in ceremonies at the Scurry County Coliseum.

MONDAY May 30

Vernest Tippens won a city council seat by a wide margin in the runoff race involving single member district 1, the only council district with a greater than 50 percent total for minority residents, it was reported Monday.

The 56-year-old custodial staffer at WTC polled 72 votes to 36 for Walter E. Cox, 58, a self-employed businessman and owner of Cox's Laundry.

Tippens, one of eight plaintiffs instigating the voting rights lawsuit here in October of 1985 which eventually prompted the switch to a single member district form of council membership, will represent the first black ever elected to a city council position.

John Fagin, a former Snyder mayor, was elected to the Western Texas College board of trustees in the first-ever runoff election for a college vote, it was reported Monday.

Fagin, 57, a petroleum engineering consultant, received 184 votes. Bob O'Day, 53, a physical education instructor at Central Elementary and partner in D&B Auto Sales, received 168.

As the first long weekend of summer is celebrated by water sports enthusiasts, the water level at Lake J.B. Thomas was reported Monday as slightly higher than it was at this time last year.

On the Memorial Day weekend of 1987, the lake was 2,233 ft. above sea level. One year later, it is 2 ft. higher.

TUESDAY May 31

Officers of the State Parks and Wildlife Department and the Colorado River Municipal Water District Tuesday morning were considering efforts to recover the body of Hilario Silva, a 37-year-old Big Spring man who apparently drowned on the north side of Lake J.B. Thomas about 3 p.m. Monday.

Reports indicate a boat in which he and two companions were riding capsized in high winds and rough water.

Scurry County commissioners Tuesday appointed Western Texas College faculty member Jim Palmer to fill Rex Robinson's unexpired term on the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Managers.

Palmer, head of the WTC social sciences division, will serve about 1½ years in place of Robinson, who recently resigned after 13 years on the hospital board.

An increase of more than 100 persons said working was responsible for an unemployment estimate for Scurry County in the 5 percent range during April, according to the latest figures released by the Texas Employment Commission.

The exact percentage reported

Tuesday was 5.7 percent, the lowest recorded for all of 1988. During March, the figure was 6.4 percent.

Administrators for Western Texas College were directed Tuesday to effect deeper cuts in the proposed 1988-89 budget and to essentially keep the college tax bite for the coming year "within the effective tax rate."

Put another way, college officials are proposing to keep the local taxes required in the 1988-89 budget at the same level as last year, approximately $1.6 million, but a declining tax base will mean an increase in the actual tax rate.

The budget as proposed Tuesday is in the range of last year's total of some $5.4 million.

WEDNESDAY June 1

An increase of more than 100 students at Western Texas College extension centers is expected to increase the total enrollment for the WTC summer term this year.

When enrollment ended last summer, approximately 800 students were counted. This year, 800 were noted following the first day of registration Tuesday. Wednesday marked the first day of classes.

A decision by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday in Austin will apparently cut short the prison sentence of a Scurry County man whose probation was revoked in January of 1987 in connection with a shooting death here in 1980.

The court upheld a legal contention filed by Donnie Durst.

FRIDAY June 3

Officers recovered the body of 38-year-old Hilario "Lalo" Silva from Lake J.B. Thomas Friday morning after Scurry County deputies, searching the lake shore in an airplane, saw it floating about 400 yards from the north shore.

Silva, whose boat capsized on Monday Memorial Day, officially becomes the lake's 28th drowning victim.

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Snyder "Go-Getters" Special Olympics team competed in Austin and brought home a total of 27 medals.

American Business Women's Association gave scholarships to Tracie Guyer, Brenda Row, Mandi Turnbo and Camelia Crawford.

A record blood drive provided 128 units of blood. Previous drives had averaged around 50 to 60 pints.

Laura Greene, 4-year-old daughter of Jack and Charlotte Green, was named a runner-up in the 17th annual M.I. Hummel Figurine Look-A-Like Contest. She was selected from some 1,000 contestants entered from across the U.S. and Canada.

Kentucky Fried Chicken received the White Glove award for outstanding levels of cleanliness, customer service and product quality.

Brenda Kay Covey, daughter of Fred and Fern Beard, received a doctor of medicine degree from the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio.

Jerry Lee Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard H. Jones, received his degree in pharmacy from the Texas School of Pharmacy.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to express a sincere thank businesses that have sponsored one of the many girls softball teams this season and in seasons past. Their willingness to give their hard-earned money to support a summer activity for our youth is certainly appreciated, not only by our local United Girls Softball League, but also by the parents and relatives of the girls who play.

I would encourage these merchants and workers to attend some of the games between the team they have sponsored and opposing teams. It certainly is more entertaining than the re-run nonsense on television at present. Get out on a warm summer evening at the ball park. Eat a hot dog or chili pie and enjoy your friends and neighbors.

More importantly, get behind a team and enjoy the competition. It will give some of the coffee shop crowd something to discuss other than politics or the prison. Again, thank you Snyder, for to "our girls"!

Take the hint about bathing

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I need an answer to resolve a domestic battle. How often should the average respectable citizen bathe? If a person is relatively inactive, perspires relatively little, does not become soiled, uses deodorant and changes clothes every day, is there any hygienic reason that person should be criticized?

DEAR READER: The question of appropriate bathing intervals is less a medical issue than a personal one. People do not "need" to bathe, in the sense that they have to eat and sleep. Washing feels good and makes us more socially acceptable. However, you can bathe as infrequently as you wish. When you are ready for a bath or shower, I am sure those friends and family around you will be more than happy to let you know.

Any criticism you are getting perhaps should alert you that you ought to bathe more frequently. When it comes to washing, cleanliness is not necessarily next to godliness — but in some cases, it can appear to be.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Whenever I get nervous or laugh, my neck gets really red, then breaks into hives. People ask me what's the matter, which just makes it worse. Would hypnosis help?

DEAR READER: Emotionally-induced release of histamine into the skin. Since this reaction is mediated by the brain, hypnosis or biofeedback might help you overcome this troublesome condition. On the other hand, so might antihistamines or medicines called beta-blockers, which interfere with the cascade of nerve impulses reaching the skin's blood vessels at times of tension. See your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My niece's baby is on a soy formula and, to me, he seems very small for his age. Is this adequate nutrition? His family is rabidly vegetarian.

DEAR READER: A baby's growth is often determined more by genetic factors than by diet. Commercial soy-formula preparations contain a balance of nutrients that is suitable for most infants. Nonetheless, your niece should certainly check with the pediatrician, because any youngster who appears not to be growing normally should have an examination and a dietary assessment.

What is cholesterol and how can it be controlled? For more information, write for Dr. Gott's new Health Report, UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Doctors need change of image

One of the intriguing characteristics of the medical profession is our inability to agree on certain basic issues. More specifically, doctors — who are taught to be independent — have difficulty achieving a consensus about how to solve problems. We are trained in the art of diagnosis, but once agreed on a diagnosis, we seem to argue and fret about what to do. In large part, this divergence of opinion is based on the way we view disease: The diagnosis of cancer, for example, has not really altered in 50 years but the treatment is constantly changing, sometimes on a month-to-month basis.

Unfortunately, we are often at odds with each other about one of our most fundamental functions: our relation to our patients and to the public. Doctors are well aware that our image is suffering and that public perceptions of us are less than complimentary. However, we have yet to agree on how to handle this situation.

In a particularly well-written editorial that appeared in the American Journal of Medicine, James Webster, M.D., of the Northwestern University Medical School listed four generally accepted reasons why doctors are viewed with disdain.

First, he said, "physicians' incomes have risen dramatically and disproportionately.... The average physician's income is now in six figures, whereas the average American's income is only slightly more than $20,000 per year." The implication is that doctors make too much money.

I think that this is like comparing apples to oranges. Most non-medical professionals have enjoyed dramatic rises in incomes. Plumbers, carpenters, lawyers and dentists are earning handsomely, and most of them make a great deal more than $20,000 a year. I don't begrudge the electrician who rewires my house a fair wage — providing he does a satisfactory job. Furthermore, M.D.s are required to complete four additional years of schooling after college, followed by a minimum of four more years of low-paying, grueling apprenticeship as residents, before they can be independent. Few, if any, occupations demand such a lengthy commitment. Most doctors earn every dollar they make. In my experience, the public is less incensed about doctors who earn comfortable livings than about doctors who flaunt their wealth.

Second, says Webster, "physicians are held accountable for the great rise in health care costs, (although) physician fees make up only a relatively small portion of these costs."

Super power summit makes only ripple in Soviets' lives

YAROSLAVL, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The day President Reagan left the Soviet Union, Yuri Gaspov also took a trip. The railway worker rode the 7:15 a.m. train to Moscow to get a sofa, because he said there was nothing worth buying in Yaroslavl.

In state food stores, another day began with no meat on sale. In Yaroslavl's center, the pipes that supply hot water to apartment houses and shops had been turned off for days, reportedly so the mains could be repaired. Foreign tourists at the Hotel Yaroslavl took icy showers, or none at all.

A food store in the Dzerzhinsky neighborhood had only one fresh vegetable for sale — cucumbers at $1.30 a pound. When a downtown kiosk on Freedom Street began selling vanilla ice cream, a line of hundreds of people formed within 10 minutes.

"We have nothing here, no meat, not even sausage," said Alexander Dusan, a violinist with the city's symphony orchestra.

During the summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev, some Moscow stores sold Danish hams and other delicacies that are usually unavailable. Thousands of workers were dragged into performing a crash urban facelift.

That was the stage, but Yaroslavl lay far behind the scenes. In this ancient Russian city 160 miles northeast of the Soviet capital, Gorbachev's campaign for more consumer abundance has borne meager fruit to date.

"In the past three years, there have been no changes in the way people live," said a government worker in this city of 600,000 people situated on the upper reaches of the Volga River. "The only real accomplishments I see are in foreign policy, and the way the Soviet Union is perceived abroad."

When celebrated poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko in a recent article wanted to name a city where the food situation was a nightmare, he picked Yaroslavl.

Local librarian A. Malygina wrote in a letter published in the Pravda newspaper Friday that she was ashamed to hear what Soviets from other cities call her hometown — "Yaroslavl the suffering" or "the hungry."

The scanty variety of food is so critical that every Friday, buses with license plates marked "YA" for Yaroslavl arrive in northern Moscow, where passengers fan out to state food stores to load up on sausage, butter, macaroni and other foodstuffs.

Founded around the year 1010, Yaroslavl may not be typical of cities in the country's richer agricultural regions, but it graphically shows how much of the Soviet Union has problems feeding itself and assuring a better life for its residents.

Osipov, a broad-shouldered, mustachioed Siberian who moved to Yaroslavl for its milder climate, has been waiting for two years to buy a car, but supplies are insufficient.

He has had his name for four years on a waiting list to obtain a bigger apartment for himself, his wife and two children, but has no notion of when he may get one.

Only 5 percent of the Yaroslavl region's active population works in agriculture. The fickle climate wipes out at least one harvest every three years, according to agricultural editors on the local newspaper, Severny Rabochy (Northern Worker).

"Our region was in a disastrous state last year because of a cold winter and wet, short summer," the local Communist Party chief, Igor A. Tolstoukhov, said in an interview. "We unquestionably need to produce more meat, more milk."

The 49-year-old party boss is the top authority in a region with 1.4 million people that covers an area the size of the Netherlands. He said he thought Yevtushenko had exaggerated.

"Our people have a healthy, balanced diet," he said.

The lack of locally grown vegetables lures enterprising farmers to Yaroslavl from as far away as the southern republic of Georgia and the city of Grozny near the Caspian Sea.

They fly northward with boxes of tomatoes to sell in stalls at Yaroslavl's open air market. The price: $4.50 a pound. Women from the western Ukraine sell baked sunflower and pumpkin seeds.

Yaroslavl, which is studded with ancient onion-domed churches, is an important industrial center that produces tires, petrochemicals and diesel engines.

Leonid A. Chesnokov, editor in chief of Severny Rabochy, said complaints had been mounting recently about the quality of the diesel engines produced. In December, workers at the plant staged a demonstration to protest "black Saturdays" — days where they were called in to work to make up for lags in output.

Chesnokov said the paper receives about 30,000 letters a year from readers who want to see "major economic problems solved" and greater efficiency and productivity in the workplace.

However, the newspaper itself showed some of the problems that the local press is having in adapting to the new conditions of Gorbachev's "glasnost" campaign.

On Tuesday, Severny Rabochy printed on its front page a two-day-old Tass dispatch about Reagan's arrival in Moscow on Sunday. Another page one story announced the ratification of the intermediate-range missile treaty, four days after the fact.

Treasurer encourages funds to be put into treasury

AUSTIN (AP) — State Treasurer Ann Richards Thursday encouraged the State Bar of Texas to put its funds in the Texas Treasury.

The move would serve "to insure that those funds are safe, are earning the maximum return on investment, and to ensure that a proper audit trail exists on the expenditure of those funds," said Ms. Richards.

Ms. Richards sent a letter to Chief Justice Tom Phillips of the Supreme Court suggesting the change.

The Supreme Court oversees the budget of the State Bar, which is financed by attorneys' dues. The court has expressed concern about portions of the budget, including liquor expenditures and expense accounts. The Legislature last year set up a trust company within the Treasury that allows the Treasury to manage the funds of agencies such as the bar, which is semi-autonomous. The trust company operates much as a bank trust department that manages funds of its clients.

"By using the Treasury's trust company, the bar will avoid any suggestion that funds are not being properly safeguarded," Ms. Richards said.

West Germany's lower house of parliament, the Bundestag, voted in 1979 to abolish the statute of limitations for murder to continue prosecuting Nazi war criminals.

Lien program support may continue

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas House member vows to revive the controversial Medicaid lien program although the state senator who sponsored the measure is calling for its repeal and says he's sure of its demise.

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, told a special panel Thursday that he would urge the 1989 Legislature to strike down the 1987 provision allowing the state to sell some deceased people's homes to recoup costs incurred by the state in paying for nursing home care for the elderly.

The plan, approved as part of a comprehensive Department of Human Services bill last year, has drawn criticism from senior citizen groups and lawmakers who said they did not realize that the "estate recovery" portion was in the bill.

"There is no doubt that the votes are there today to repeal the measure," Edwards said Thursday.

The Republican Party came into existence in 1854 at a convention in Jackson, Mich.

Violations threatening funding by Medicare

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Officials investigating two possible life-threatening violations at a West Texas hospital say they also considered revoking the facility's Medicare funding when a similar violation was uncovered two years ago.

Thursday, officials announced that two violations occurred when a patient died after being treated and released several times in the same day.

In an April 1986 case, Medicare examiners notified Medical Center Hospital officials of possible termination after an inspection of a patient complaint to the state health department about the hospital's nursing services.

The hospital retained its Medicare accreditation in 1988 after requesting and passing a second inspection.

A review of emergency room procedure at the hospital in Odessa uncovered two life-threatening violations, said Nance Kerrigan, director of health facility licensure with the Texas Department of Health.

A May 26 letter from the Texas Department of Health warned hospital officials of the possible Medicare termination.

If that ruling is formalized, the hospital has 23 days to request and pass an inspection by examiners, Kerrigan said.

If it fails to correct the violations, the 376-bed, county-owned facility could lose its Medicare funding from the Health Care Financing Administration, she said.

FDA panel probes concerns about variable dose method

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is asking an advisory committee to consider concerns raised by some doctors who suspect that variable-dose birth control pills can cause non-cancerous ovarian cysts.

The concerns center on "multiphasic" birth control pills, which provide different doses during the typical 21-day cycle. "Monophasic" prescriptions, which deliver the same dosage level each day, have not been linked to the cysts and studies suggest they may actually decrease the chances of such problems developing.

Senator reimburses state for LD calls

DALLAS (AP) — Hundreds of personal and political long-distance telephone calls were mistakenly charged to the state by staff members of a state senator, who says he has paid for the calls.

The state has been reimbursed $2,246.69 for the calls that State Sen. Richard Anderson said were inadvertently charged to taxpayers by his staff members.

Anderson, a Marshall Democrat who is up for reelection in November, said his staff discovered 650 questionable calls during an audit of 9,600 state-paid telephone calls from April 1987 through this year.

Former and current members of his staff made the calls from his Senate offices in Austin and in his district, or they charged the calls to his state-issued telephone credit card, he said.

"If there was any doubt as to whether calls were for other than state business, I instructed them to make the assumption that the state should be reimbursed," Anderson said in a letter to Senate Secretary Betty King.

"This has been done in order to avoid even the appearance of any impropriety," he added.

The Dallas Morning News reported last week that Anderson's office charged taxpayers for more than 300 long-distance calls totaling more than $1,000 to his campaign consultants, the agency handling his campaign and the campaign offices of four Democratic presidential candidates.

On the agenda for the FDA's fertility and maternal health drugs advisory committee Friday was whether "it is possible to determine at the present time if monophasic and multiphasic formulations of oral contraceptives have different associations with the occurrence of functional ovarian cysts."

The panel also was asked whether it is willing to express a preference between the two types of pills.

Concern that the multiphasics could be contributing to cysts has bubbled to the surface since a Los Angeles gynecologist noticed a rash of the growths on his patients a little over two years ago.

"This absolutely blew my mind," Dr. James C. Caillouette said in a recent interview. "I thought something awful was happening to me. Every time I went into an examining room, I had a patient with ovarian cyst."

Eventually, he concluded there must be a connection between the outbreak of cysts and the new birth control pills he had been prescribing for them.

Sold by three of the six major U.S. pharmaceutical companies that make birth control pills, the multiphasic pills went on the market in 1984. They were not new chemical formulations, but rather new combinations of existing drugs in various strengths.

Caillouette said introduction of the pills was accompanied by an aggressive marketing program. By 1987, he said, nine of every 10 new birth control prescriptions were for multiphasics.

The rationale given by drug companies for developing the multiphasic pills was to minimize any side-effects by providing the lowest total dosage possible consistent with effective birth control.

But Caillouette, who presented his views to the FDA Friday, says he believes the decision was driven by business considerations.

He says the companies' patents on the single-dose pills were about to expire and that less expensive, generic versions were about to become available. He believes the companies were looking for products just different enough to win new patents so they could push sales of those "new" products rather than compete with the cheaper generics.

Representatives for the three companies — Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., Wyeth

Laboratories Inc. and Syntex Corp. — all denied in separate telephone interviews any improprieties and said they were cooperating with FDA-ordered reviews.

Studies involving thousands of women have led experts to conclude that taking birth control pills actually reduces the chances of a woman developing ovarian cysts.

That is why Caillouette was so surprised when it dawned on him in early 1986 that each of seven patients who had developed cysts during the previous four months had been taking multiphasic pills.

When he put them back on single-dosage birth control pills, he said, "the cysts went away and I thought, 'This is what is supposed to happen.' But something is going on with these phasic pills."

Caillouette, who also is a professor at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, presented seven case studies during a West Coast medical meeting "and following my presentation, physicians got up from the audience and presented an additional 11 cases."

He published his findings in a medical journal last summer and began getting still more calls and letters from other physicians and patients having similar experiences.

Caillouette said he now knows of 68 cases in which there is a potential link between multiphasic pills and functional cysts.

More than 160 people perished in 1944 when a fire broke out in the main tent of the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus in Hartford, Conn.

Former senator questioned by oil royalty defendants

AUSTIN (AP)—An attorney in a multimillion-dollar royalty fight says former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough's recollections of a 1934 court judgment in the case are suspect.

Yarborough was an assistant state attorney general in 1934, when he agreed to a court judgment in a lease dispute in Pecos County's rich Yates Field. The same 3.97-acre tract is involved in the present lawsuit, in which Yarborough testified for the second day Thursday.

Yarborough has testified that he wouldn't have agreed to the 1934 judgment validating the lease by Fred Turner Jr. of Midland to another man had he known Turner had an unrevealed interest in the lease. Yarborough said Turner's transaction was an "underhanded deal."

"Senator, it wasn't an underhanded deal," said Cecil Munn, a member of the Fort Worth law firm whose predecessor was involved in the transaction. Munn said Yarborough was jumping to conclusions.

Munn also said he hoped Yarborough's memory isn't tarnished by accusations after he dies, as Munn says his clients' predecessors' reputations have been.

"It would be hard to beat what they've done to me already," Yarborough said, drawing a laugh from the courtroom crowd.

During his questioning of Yarborough, Munn said many discussions in the 1934 case were not written down. He produced correspondence between himself and Yarborough in the current case that Yarborough did not recall until presented with the letters.

"It's difficult to go back 50 years and rely on nothing but memory," Munn said.

Munn also questioned Yarborough's relationship with Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, who instigated the current lawsuit. Mauro worked for Yarborough in 1972, and Yarborough testified he was at a Mauro fundraiser last December.

Munn told Yarborough that Mauro "says you taught him a lot." Yarborough replied, "That was purely politics," to which Munn said, "That's what this is too, senator."

Yarborough responded, "I thoroughly disagree."

Munn said, "You taught Garry Mauro. Now you're here testifying for Garry Mauro," Munn said. Yarborough noted he was testifying under a subpoena.

Under a Texas Supreme Court ruling reaffirmed in 1932, the state as owner of mineral rights gets half of bonuses, rentals and royalties from oil and gas leases. The purchaser of surface rights to state land also gets half in return for acting as the state's agent and to compensate for damage to soil.

Mauro said documents introduced by the state have clearly shown state policy followed the ruling when the 1934 judgment was made. He said officials would not have agreed to Turner's transaction because it gave Turner substantially more profits than the state received.

According to the state, the tract has produced $161 million worth of oil and gas since 1934, but only $10 million of that has gone to the state. Texas puts such money in its public school trust fund.

The 1934 case validating Turner's lease to another man resulted in an unusually large bonus payment to the state, in addition to royalty payments, Yarborough said.

But the state and Yarborough said it was wrong for Turner to get back his interest in the oil lease when it was assigned to a company he owned stock in, and thus profit more than the state.

Munn introduced a letter indicating that Turner assigned his share of the royalty to the company when he got the stock. In addition, Munn said, the lease owner had the right to assign the lease.

Yarborough said although the royalty was Turner's to dispose of as he pleased, "he couldn't get back out of that more than the royalty was worth without sharing it with the state." Yarborough also said the lease could not properly be assigned to the surface owner.

In the injunction hearing, the state is asking that oil royalties be suspended to lease owners whose predecessors are alleged to have defrauded the state until a trial in the case is concluded.

Algerian independence was proclaimed by France in 1962.

Three banks closed

By The Associated Press

A slumping economy and over-extended lending contributed to the failures of three more Texas banks Thursday.

The failures Thursday of Guaranty Bank of Dallas, Williamston Bank N.A. of Houston and River Plaza National Bank of Fort Worth edged the state's 1988 bank-failure tally to 32.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was named receiver of the three banks, FDIC spokesman Bill Olcheski said.

All three were assumed by other banks and opened Friday with depositors of the failed institutions automatically becoming depositors of the assuming banks, Olcheski said.

Guaranty Bank was declared insolvent by Texas Banking Commissioner Kenneth Littlefield, while Williamston Bank and River Plaza were declared insolvent by Robert J. Herrmann, deputy controller of the currency.

"It's basically the same problem — they've had a number of bad real estate loans," Steve Scurlock, deputy state banking commissioner, said of Guaranty. "Just the fact that they were aggressively lending in the early '80s along with a lot of other people eventually caught up with them."

Guaranty had about $81.8 million in assets and will be acquired by the Red Oak State Bank of Red Oak, which will assume about $73.7 million in 10,200 deposit accounts and buy the bank's assets for $34.9 million, he said.

Littlefield said Guaranty's loan losses stemmed primarily from poor underwriting standards and a lack of internal controls. In addition, a loan to a member of the board of directors was identified as a loss.

New future set for area

LONDON (AP) — A 120-acre slice of London — filled with railroad yards, scruffy shops and low-quality apartment blocks — will be redeveloped in what one organization calls the largest inner-city regeneration project in Europe.

Britain's state-owned railroad on Thursday said $11 billion would be spent to develop the huge and largely derelict area around King's Cross and St. Pancras train stations.

British Rail called it the largest urban redevelopment project in Europe.

The redevelopment of the site by the specially formed London Regeneration Consortium will begin in 1990 and last 10 years, British Rail said.

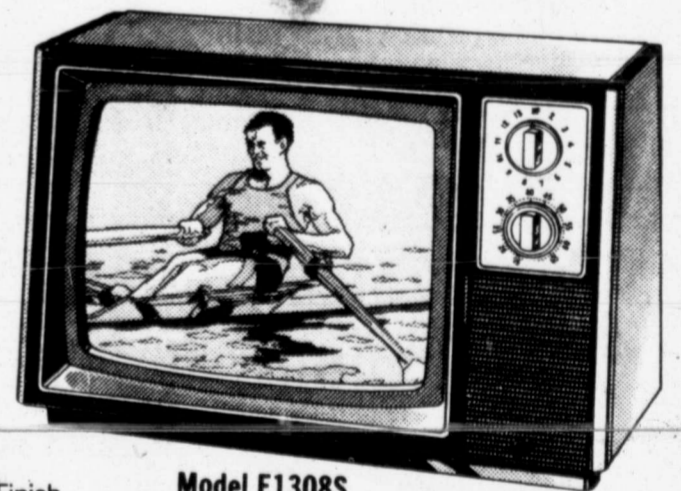

The area will be developed to provide new offices, homes, shops, business premises and leisure facilities.
