

Jackson backers push for ticket spot

It's Jesse Jackson day at state convention

HOUSTON (AP) — It's Jesse Jackson day at the Texas Democratic Convention and the candidate's backers are not being shy about what they want for the only remaining challenger to apparent presidential nominee Michael Dukakis.

"If the party is going to win you put together the winning combination, and the winning combination would be Jackson, Dukakis or Dukakis-Jackson," said state Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston and a top Texas campaigner for Jackson. Jackson is scheduled to speak to the convention tonight at its opening session. He also planned to meet with black delegates and gay delegates in afternoon sessions.

Sixty-four delegates to the Democratic National Convention at Atlanta are up for grabs here, based on delegate sign-ins at the opening session. Texas will send 212 delegates to Atlanta next month for the national convention.

A majority of that delegation was selected at the March 8 primary when Dukakis won 43 delegates, Jackson took 42, U.S. Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee got 25 and U.S. Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri got nine.

Texas also has 29 Democratic "superdelegates" selected from among party and elected officials.

Edwards said the Democrats need Jackson.

"We don't need to see another Mondale-Ferraro fiasco where we reach out and grab somebody way out in left field and then fall flat on our face," he said, referring to the 1984 Walter Mondale-Geraldine Ferraro ticket that got buried in the general election.

"Democrats across the board, rich ones, poor ones, white ones, brown ones, green, yellow and black are realizing that if the Democrats are going to win you win with the winning combination. Dukakis-Jackson or Jackson-Dukakis is the winning combination," Edwards said.

Saturday will be Dukakis day, with the Massachusetts governor scheduled to speak to the convention after he attends the San Antonio funeral of political activist Willie Velasquez, who died Wednesday.

While Jackson supporters were pushing their candidate, some Gore backers planned to abandon their man after the state convention. The Tennessee senator upset his Texas backers with his Thursday endorsement of Dukakis.

Soft landing

MOSCOW (AP) — A spacecraft carrying two Soviets and a Bulgarian cosmonaut made a soft landing today in Soviet Central Asia, the Tass news agency said.

The official news agency said the craft landed about 124 miles southeast of Dzhezkazgan, a city in Kazakhstan about 1,100 miles southeast of Moscow.

It said the crew was in good condition after their 10-day mission.

Rowdy fans

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Drunken English soccer fans sang "God Save the Queen" as they smashed bars and fought German pub patrons early today. In Britain, the government proposed a crackdown on soccer hooliganism.

Several people, including three police officers, were slightly injured in the clashes when about 60 English troublemakers smashed windows and furniture and overturned a car in Frankfurt's "Apple Wine" district and near the city's main train station, police said.

Phones out

Southwestern Bell Telephone officials reported at noon Friday that a major cable cut in the east part of Snyder had likely interrupted phone service for from 300 to 1,000 customers.

Phone crews were at the site at noon. The work was expected to continue through the afternoon with service expected to be restored by nightfall.

Two break-ins

Police are investigating two burglaries that were discovered Thursday at Kwik Grocery at 701 24th St. and Deep Video Rentals at 201 24th.

Officers said they are not sure if the two break-ins were related.

A front window was broken out of Kwik's grocery and a small amount of cash, magazines and several packages of goods were stolen.

In cases where the Deep Video Rentals case several VCRs and a large number of movies were taken, a very defective set.

FOR THE FOURTH — Chamber of commerce Fourth of July committee members met Thursday afternoon to discuss the wide variety of events that are planned for the celebration this year. Queen con-

Lincoln reunion planned

Activities related to the third Lincoln School Reunion will begin Saturday at the school grounds with registration set from 10 a.m. until noon.

The event was begun in 1986 to commemorate the graduating classes and the history of the school, which served Snyder's black community from 1952 through 1965 and the integration of the public school system.

A highlight of this year's reunion will be the reading of the Lincoln School history by the wife of former principal Daniel Johnson. Returning to Snyder for her second reunion will be Rosetta Johnson, now of Houston.

Other scheduled events will include a noon barbecue Saturday, to be followed by family related activities until 4 p.m., when group photos will be taken in front of the school.

At 4:30 p.m., a memorial will be observed for graduates and teachers.

A reunion banquet is scheduled at 7 p.m. at Willow Park Inn. This will be followed by a breakfast at 9 a.m. Sunday at Willow Park for returning grads.

Evelyn Malone, an organizer of the first reunion who is active in the planning again this year, said this may be the last reunion for the school held on an annual basis.

After this year, she noted it is likely the reunions will be held at scheduled dates still to be determined.

The Lincoln School served the educational needs of local blacks for some 12 years.

Named for Abraham Lincoln, the building was built in 1962 by the Snyder Independent School District.

When it first opened it was used only for grades 1-8. At that time, black students attending high school were still required to go to San Antonio.

In 1966 the Snyder school district expanded instruction at Lincoln School to include grades 9-12. Until it closed after the spring of 1965, the school's athletic teams were notable, particularly in basketball and track, with one state track championship won.

From 1965 to 1970, the school building was used by Snyder ISD. See LINCOLN, page 11.

July 4th plans move into high gear

Planning for the 26th annual Snyder Fourth of July celebration moved into high gear Thursday with a chamber committee meeting in which the fireworks display, queen contest, volleyball and racquetball tournaments and other events were discussed.

There will also be a bicycle-decorating contest and parade, an art show, food and activity booths in Towle Park.

The celebration will run three days, beginning Saturday, July 2, with the 10 a.m. parade.

Committee chairman Kent Horsley said the skyrockets have already arrived for the Monday night, July 4, fireworks show. The display is planned to be bigger than ever this year, he noted.

The Snyder Palette Club will sponsor its 10th annual art show in the Towle Park Barn, with entries to be received by 7 p.m. Friday, July 1. All area artists are invited to show their work. Entry fees are $4 for adults and $1.50 for students.

As for the bike decorating contest, entrants must be at Moffett Field by 9 a.m. on the morning of the parade to be assigned positions in the procession.

Queen contest chairman Norma Miller said a half dozen girls and women have entered the queen's contest, which will culminate with the crowning at 8 p.m. Monday, July 4, on the stage at Towle Park Pond.

Board cuts raises for appraisal staff

In special session Thursday evening, the Scurry County Appraisal District board of directors declined pay increases for staff members and directed some $3,000 in additional cuts for the coming year's operational budget.

The elimination of the proposed pay raises cut some $9,300 out of the total budget now estimated at just over $341,000.

In an earlier budget discussion, Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler had sought increases for his clerks which he said would bring their pay scale into line with other taxing entities.

Action on that request was postponed until the called meeting.

Thursday, board members Doug Flynn and Mairi McFaul suggested accepting the 1989 proposed budget without raises, noting that salary adjustments could be considered again in January.

However, Dwain Williams moved that salaries be frozen with Julius Roemisch seconding the motion. Before a vote could be taken, a second motion was offered by Mickey Sterling that salaries be cut a percent.

There was no second to that motion and the vote to leave salaries status quo was three in favor and two opposed, McFaul and Sterling.

During the meeting, Sterling also introduced a petition signed by various taxpayers protesting any pay increases for the office.

There was lengthy discussion concerning needed cuts at all levels in taxing entities to give relief to local taxpayers.

The board also went through an item by item review of the proposed budget, which was some $13,000 less than last year's before the additional cuts directed by the board.

Thursday, in addition to the $3,000 removed for pay raises, the board made cuts of $2,000 in projected attorney's fees and $1,000 in building maintenance. See DISTRICT, page 11.

County woman named new McMurry trustee

Evelyn McLaughlin Davies, owner of the Diamond M Ranch and a board member of the Diamond M Foundation here, has been named as one of 13 new trustees for McMurry College in Abilene.

Her appointment was announced at the New Mexico and Northwest Texas Annual Conferences of the United Methodist Church held in Abilene.

The college is operated by the two conferences and Mrs. Davies was named as one of six trustees for the Northwest Texas Conference.

Others from this group include Doyle Nash of Abilene, president of Global Boiler Services Inc.

the Rev. Keith Wiseman, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Big Spring, Dudley Arden of Amarillo, a retired postal worker and investor, Geraldine Banks of Stamford, who has established a memorial scholarship at McMurry, and Walker Watkins of Ralls, a retired farmer and cotton gin operator.

Trustees named from the New Mexico Conference include Rev. Dick Clemmer of Albuquerque, Jimmy Din-more of Hobbs, Margaret Allison of Marfa and William Walsh of El Paso.

Also named were two ex officio members and one trustee at See DAVIES, page 11.

Wright accused of exerting pressure on behalf of thrifts

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board says he felt "highly unusual" and heavy handed pressure in late 1986 from then House Majority Leader Jim Wright over the chairman's handling of several Texas thrift institutions, the Fort Worth Star Telegram reported today.

Edwin J. Gray told the newspaper in an interview from Miami, where he is president of Chase Federal bank, that he took extraordinary steps to appease Wright, who had intervened on behalf of Texas businessmen Craig Hall, Thomas Gaubert and Don Dixon.

The former chairman said he was concerned that Wright would use his considerable influence to block emergency legislation intended to recapitalize the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. Gray, appointed to the bank board by President Reagan in May 1983, disagreed with Wright's recent assertions that the Fort Worth Democrat, now House speaker, approached the bank board as a "go-between" for private Texas citizens primarily at Gray's request.

"This was clearly not a go-between messenger function that he was carrying out," Gray said. "Nor was it an information-gathering function."

"There was no doubt in my mind, at the time these telephone conversations took place, that what he said was intended to bring about actions on my part as a regulator," he said.

The House Ethics Committee announced June 10 that it will conduct a preliminary inquiry into allegations that Wright violated House rules on ethics and conflict of interest.

Six allegations will be investigated, the committee said. One involves possible undue influence in dealing with officials of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board on behalf of Texas thrift officials, including Democratic campaign contributors.

No violation of a specific House rule has been alleged in that area.

Wright said June 10 in a statement that he was approached during 1986 by three Texas residents, Hall, Gaubert and Dixon, seeking assistance with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Fraud probe updated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III anticipates indictments within 90 days in the massive Pentagon bribery probe focusing on alleged sale of secret information to defense contractors through their paid consultants.

An unusually detailed search warrant, made public Thursday, says much of the confidential information was improperly funneled to McDonnell Douglas Corp. The warrant was one of 38 served this week on 15 defense contractors, half a dozen Pentagon personnel and consultants.

According to the warrant, information was passed along by former Pentagon official Melvyn Paisley, assistant secretary of the Navy for research, engineering and systems from 1981 to April 1987. Paisley is now a Washington consultant to numerous defense contractors.

McDonnell Douglas did $7.7 billion worth of Pentagon business in fiscal 1987, making it the nation's largest defense contractor. The warrant says McDonnell Douglas received confidential information on several Pentagon programs including the $35 billion Advanced Tactical Aircraft manufacturing competition won by the St. Louis company.

Paisley's consulting office was bugged and his phone there was tapped by federal investigators conducting the corruption probe, according to government sources speaking on condition of anonymity.

Sources said Paisley is a consultant for United Technologies, whose Washington offices also were searched Tuesday by FBI agents. The agents took away all documents in United Technologies's files relating to Paisley, said the sources.

The agents also took documents relating to the 404 and T-406 engines made by Pratt & Whitney, a United Technologies subsidiary. Paisley began working as a United Technologies consultant within a week after he left his Pentagon job last year, according to the sources.

Meese declined to give a direct answer when asked if bribes had been accepted in the Pentagon, saying "that will all come out in the course of the indictments and ultimately in the trials." He said "we are hopeful that indictments will be completed within the next 30 to 90 days."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater described President Reagan as "very concerned" about the revelations after a meeting that included the president, Vice President George Bush, Meese and FBI Director William Sessions.

In other developments: —The New York Times, citing unidentified legal sources at the Justice Department and elsewhere, reported today that the offices of at least three House members had been placed under investigation as part of the probe. The sources would not identify the lawmakers or say whether the House members or their aides were under investigation.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that Rep. Bill Chappell Jr., D-Fla., who oversees the Pentagon budget as chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on defense, was identified by sources as one of those under investigation.

Chappell told the Times that he and other committee members receive no information that would benefit military contractors.

"These are public (budget) figures we're dealing with anyway.... Information on the fact that bids are going out does not come to Congress, as far as I know," Chappell said.

—NBC News reported Thursday that the court-authorized wiretaps lasted 290 days and overheard nearly 4,800 conversations, of which 671 were considered incriminating.

Call-Waiting Phone Service Is Cause of Friendly Static

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is not a terribly serious problem, but I would like an opinion from you, and maybe some of your readers would like to comment.

Several of my friends have the "call waiting" service on their telephones. (I have not.)

Recently, my friend "Joyce" (not her real name) called me. All she said was, "Hello. How are you?" then, before I could even answer her, I heard her "call waiting" signal beep. She immediately said, "Oh, somebody is trying to get me — I'll call you right back." Then she hung up on me.

About 15 minutes later when Joyce called back, I told her I thought she was extremely rude to have cut me off and taken the call from the other party. I said, "Since you called me, you could have put me on 'hold' for two seconds while you told the other party you were talking to someone and would get back to him." I also told her she made me feel like I was second choice — that she was hoping someone more interesting was on the other line.

To my surprise, Joyce wasn't angry with me for telling her off. She agreed with me and apologized.

What are your thoughts on this, Abby?

SECOND CHOICE

DEAR SECOND CHOICE: Congratulations for having the courage to tell Joyce how you felt about her rudeness. And good for Joyce for acknowledging it and having the humility to apologize.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I hope you can help me with. I am a female college student and share a two-bedroom apartment near the college with another girl.

When I moved in (September '87), "Nina" asked if I minded if her boyfriend, "Greg," spent the night here. I said it would be OK — not realizing that Greg would keep bringing more and more of his clothes over, until everything he owns is in this apartment! He's supposed to be living with an "uncle," but that is just a cover-up for Nina's parents. If they knew Greg was living with Nina, they would cut off her money supply. (They pay her rent and all bills.) Greg's parents know about his living arrangement, but they don't care.

I feel that living together before you are married is wrong, and I am very uncomfortable with this situation.

Also, I feel that I am being taken advantage of because Greg has never paid a dime for rent, gas, electricity, telephone — nothing. Those bills are higher because Greg takes showers, uses electricity, etc. Nina and I want to lease this apartment next year because it's cheap and near school, but I don't want Greg living here. I like Nina. How can I tell her without losing her as a friend?

THREE'S A CROWD

DEAR THREE: Tell Nina exactly what you have told me, and if you lose her as a friend, what have you lost? A "friend" who has taken advantage of you and is deceiving her parents. Also, since you feel that living together without marriage is wrong, tell Nina that if she wants to live with Greg, she should include you out.

CONFIDENTIAL TO REGRETFUL IN GEORGIA: Your letter has been destroyed, so please stop worrying.

Treating eczema with cortisone

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son, 7, has severe eczema which the doctor ascribes to allergies to just about everything. He's taken cortisone for six months, which has helped a little, but I'm concerned about the long-term effects. Will he grow out of this?

DEAR READER: Children often outgrow severe eczema at about the time of puberty. The reasons for this are unknown. Cortisone creams will often diminish the acute skin inflammation, peeling and cracking of eczema.

However, I share your concerns about cortisone pills or the long-term use of the creams. Cortisone and other steroid drugs are powerful neutralizers of the body's immune system and can cause devastating side effects in children, including change in appearance, altered development and susceptibility to infection. If your son's eczema is related to allergies, he might be better served by being under the care of a specialist. For example, he could be helped by desensitization injections that are compounded and administered by an allergist. Ask your doctor about this possibility.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on "Skin: Eczema and Psoriasis." Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm female and 55. One minute I feel fine, and the next I feel as if my tongue is 10 times too big and I'm going to choke, although I produce enough saliva. I take Dyazide every other day. Could this be the culprit?

DEAR READER: Any medicine has the potential to cause allergic reactions. Tongue swelling is sometimes a manifestation of such reactions. Therefore, Dyazide — a combination of two diuretics for hypertension and fluid elimination — could be the culprit. Since you require a very small dose (one capsule every two days), I wonder if the medicine could not be changed — or stopped. Explain your symptoms to your doctor and see if he or she would be willing to make an adjustment.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I developed temporal arteritis from a Transderm-Scop patch. My eye doctor was on the ship's doctor said he's seen many people develop problems like mine from the patches. Is this a listed side effect?

DEAR READER: Temporal arteritis is inflammation of the temporal artery, a major blood vessel beneath the skin of the temple. The ailment is thought to be due to an allergic reaction during which the patient becomes sensitive to his or her own arterial tissue. This causes headache and a painful, swollen temporal artery.

Temporal arteritis is not a reported consequence of Transderm-Scop, a dermal delivery system for motion sickness. The drug commonly causes drowsiness, blurred vision and dryness of the mouth; headache is not usual. I do not believe that Transderm-Scop and temporal arteritis are related.

Southern Baptists conclude annual convention Thursday

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Eyeing the modern landscape, Southern Baptists see a host of evils: abortion, drug abuse, homosexuality, materialism, secular humanism, sexual promiscuity, rebellion against authority and the "New Age" movement.

These and other present-day manifestations were declared blights on human life as 32,727 "messengers" from the nation's largest Protestant denomination concluded their annual convention Thursday.

The New Age movement, a relatively recent arrival among the church's list of repudiated trends, was likened to an underlying disorder behind them all.

"The philosophy ... is as old as the Garden of Eden, where Satan perpetrated three of the false beliefs of the New Age movement, promising you will be wise, you will be as gods and you will not die," a convention resolution said.

It said the movement "has become a powerful political, philosophical and economic force in our contemporary culture and is exerting its influence into every facet of American life."

While its aim is to "become a one-world religion," it is "diametrically contrary to both New Testament Christianity and our American heritage," the resolution said.

It said the movement "gives people false hope by its beliefs in reincarnation, (and) in endeavoring to reveal a person's future through astrology, fortune telling and palm reading."

Other purported beliefs of the New Age movement listed by the resolution are that there are "many ways to eternal life, and that all will be saved by secular humanism, which testifies by its own manifesto (that) no deity will save us, we must save ourselves."

The media and entertainment industry "gives the New Age movement widespread acceptance and credibility, helping it find its way into every facet of American life," the resolution said.

It was among a score of resolutions deploring an "erosion of $20 billion pesos have disappeared

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Although 20 billion pesos apparently disappeared in unregistered transactions, officials deny there was any fraud at the Mexican Stock Exchange.

The exchange continued to operate normally Thursday, despite the growing controversy.

Twenty billion pesos is the equivalent of about $8.5 million.

"We have been informed that the money was replaced immediately," said Patricio Ayala, president of the National Securities Commission, which oversees the Bolsa.

Ayala said he didn't know when the money disappeared or who took part in the unregistered trading in which it vanished. But he told the government newspaper El Nacional that brokers and the Bolsa replaced the money jointly about 15 days ago.

Downfall may hurt Cox's kin

DALLAS (AP) — The financial hole that Edwin L. Cox Jr. dug for himself may rock personal and business relationships for him and his prominent father who built one of the largest fortunes in Dallas.

Cox Jr. on Thursday agreed to plead guilty to a federal bank fraud charge and resigned as chairman of the powerful Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, which he served on under two governors.

He is charged with defrauding InterFirst Bank, Dallas in connection with $80 million in loans he received while he was the bank's director from 1984 to 1986. He repaid the money owed in October 1987.

In 1986, Cox Jr. told officers of InterFirst Corp. he could not repay his $80 million loan to the holding company that subsequently merged with Crossroads Financial Republic Bank Corp.

Cox Jr.'s financial problems — due to heavy investing in cattle — stunned colleagues of his father, The Dallas Morning News reported.

The elder Cox had put his permanent imprint on Dallas by donating millions of dollars to the business school at Southern Methodist University, which honored him with a board appointment and by naming the business school after him.

Cox Sr. had built his fortune in oil and real estate and rose to prominence in Sedco Inc., the oil service company founded by Gov. Bill Clements.

When the younger Cox ran aground financially, InterFirst Corp. was stunned.

"The fact that Cox Jr. had lied on his collateral filings just deflated Stewart, as did the fact that his father wouldn't step up to the line to help him out," one former InterFirst official told The Dallas Morning News.

The elder Cox apparently stepped away from the affair, as his own loans to his son soured. The family rift that developed was seen in June 1986 when Cox Sr. sought to foreclose on 9,700 acres of ranch land for payment on $14 million in loans. Cox Jr. deeded the lands over to his father.

Associates say that the decades-long relationship between Stewart and the older Cox, who was a regular Saturday morning tennis match, also remains strained.

State officials including Gov. Clements and former Gov. Mark White rallied to Cox Jr.'s side, praising him for his work while on the parks and wildlife commission for the past 9½ years.

"Ed Cox has given much energy and enthusiasm to his work as chairman," Clements said. "He significantly advanced the protection and enhancement of the state's parks and the development of wildlife resources."

But prosecutors said people should not expect leniency because the debt has been repaid.

U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins said the case should indicate that it would be a mistake for people to expect leniency because the loan has been repaid.

"It is that type of thinking that has contributed to the massive bank fraud which has occurred in North Texas and in many other places in our country," said Collins.

Bruce Genderson, an attorney for Cox, said Cox would enter the guilty plea June 24. A sentencing hearing will be set then.

Cox faces a maximum punishment of five years in prison and $250,000 in fines, Collins said.

Superfine shahtoosh fibers, which can be woven into scarves that cost as much as $20,000, are made from the fleecy underwool from the neck of the wild ibex goat in the Aksai Chin, a militarized zone on the Chinese side of the Himalayas, says National Geographic.

By James Jacoby

There is no adequate explanation for today's auction. Perhaps South feared that his takeout double might elicit a five-diamond jump-bid from partner when four spades would be the best contract. Certainly a takeout double with South's cards is the right call, and North might even bid six hearts and make it. But our story is about the play in four spades.

When West led a diamond, declarer did not need X-ray vision to know that East must hold a nine-card club suit, leaving room for only four cards in the other suits. So declarer won the king of diamonds, played A-K of spades and then continued diamonds. When East failed to ruff the second diamond, his entire distribution was obvious: nine clubs, two spades, and a singleton heart and diamond. Accordingly two more rounds of diamonds were now played, and declarer let go his singleton club. He then played a heart back to his king and led the jack of hearts. When West played low, declarer finessed. One more heart now gave declarer nine tricks. Since he needed only one more trick to make his contract, he played a club from dummy and discarded the fourth heart from his hand. Poor West, down to Q-J-9-8 of spades, had to ruff and play from the Q-J-9 into the declarer's 10-5-4. And to think that West thought he might take four tricks with that Q-J-9-8-6-3 of trumps!

U.S. Army hired Nazi war criminals after World War II

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army hired high-ranking Nazi secret police officers, stormtroopers, propagandists and collaborators after World War II and protected them behind an official cloak of secrecy, according to a harshly critical Justice Department report.

The report says U.S. military intelligence employed the Nazis to provide information and monitor Soviet activity in occupied nations after the war, protecting them from prosecution for war crimes including torturing and murdering civilians.

The report focuses at length on the U.S. Army's Counter-Intelligence Corps' hiring of convicted Nazi war criminal Robert Jan Verbelen, and its continued employment of him even after he admitted having been a member of a Nazi security unit that was declared a criminal organization.

The Justice Department listed 13 individuals, in addition to Verbelen, but did not identify any of the others by name. The information was based on official documents and interviews with former CIC agents, but the department said the information remains classified under U.S. policies to protect the identity of intelligence operatives.

Prepared by the Criminal Division's Office of Special Investigations, the 92-page report said Verbelen was paid by CIC for 10 years, from 1946 to 1957, for intelligence work in Austria even though he was convicted in absentia and sentenced to death for the murders of 101 people in his native Belgium.

The report said Verbelen, now 77 and living in Austria, "manipulated the CIC into protecting him from being brought to justice for his crimes."

"He was able to accomplish this ... as a direct result of the CIC's reliance upon former Nazi and Nazi collaborators in its immediate postwar European operations," the report said.

It said the CIC initially relied on the information Verbelen gave about himself, including the name he gave, Peter Mayer. But in 1950, he informed the agency his name was really Herbert Schwab, describing himself as a devoted Nazi Party member since the mid-1930s and a member of a Nazi security unit that had been declared a criminal organization, the report said.

"Despite this change in identity and life history, the (CIC) made no attempt to verify the information Verbelen supplied about himself, and it continued to employ him," the report said.

Neal Sher, special investigations director who conducted the study at the request of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said the report already has been given to the Belgian and Austrian governments.

The report said the Army intelligence group discovered Verbelen's true identity when the CIA asked for information about him in 1956.

Sher, at a news conference, declined to say how long the CIA had known Verbelen's true identity or to give any other information about CIA involvement with Verbelen.

Sher said Justice Department investigators interviewed Verbelen himself in the summer of 1985 and found him unrepentant. "He thinks he has nothing to be ashamed of," Sher said.

He said the investigation was not related to any modern intelligence-gathering efforts and was not meant to be judgmental. But he said some conclusions "cry out."

No-bid contract award under fire

DALLAS (AP) — Two firms, including Electronic Data Systems, have asked the General Services Administration to void a no-bid contract between the U.S. Postal Service and a new firm headed by Dallas businessman H. Ross Perot, former owner of EDS.

The protests filed by EDS and Planning Research Corp. of McLean, Va., with the GSA Board of Contract Appeals allege that the Postal Service violated standard federal contract bidding procedures when it awarded the $500,000, 90-day contract to Perot Systems Corp. earlier this month, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

Perot and officials of Planning Research Corp. could not be reached for comment Thursday, the newspaper reported. A spokesman for the Postal Service said officials had not seen the complaint and declined to comment.

The complaints were filed under the Brooks Act, which is more than 20 years old. The act gives the GSA review authority over federal data-processing contracts. The GSA board, which has 45 working days to issue a ruling, has the power to revise, revoke or suspend the contract. Its ruling can be appealed to federal court.

The EDS complaint alleges that the Postal Service failed to open the contract to review and bidding and included several unusual provisions in the contract that would favor Perot Systems. The complaint claims the contract does not include a standard clause that would free the Postal Service from contractual obligations should Perot Systems fail to live up to contract terms.

The firm formerly owned by Perot also claims that the contract does not permit the Postal Service to cancel it for at least two years and gives Perot claims to recover certain unrecognized profits should the Postal Service elect to end the pact.

Perot announced June 2 that he had formed Perot Systems, a Washington-based computer services company with several former EDS midlevel executives.

Perot and Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank jointly announced in early June that the new company had received a $500,000 contract to review Postal Service cost-cutting procedures and recommend new ones.

The contract calls for Perot Systems to conduct a study of the Postal Service's performance of transportation, telecommunications, delivery services, revenue protection and transportation equipment duties. The Postal Service would pay Perot Systems the $500,000 for a 90-day study.

The contract allows for Perot to share in any savings derived from the company's recommendations, but the payments would not be made until December 1989, when a non-compete agreement involving General Motors Corp., EDS and Perot expires.

The non-compete clause was an integral part of an $850 million buyout of Perot and three other EDS executives to end Perot's criticism of GM and its chairman, Roger Smith.

Announcement of the formation of Perot Systems and the contract came one day after the expiration of another provision of the buyout that had barred Perot from hiring EDS employees until June 1. At least 19 EDS workers, including eight midlevel managers from around the nation, have resigned to join Perot's new venture since its formation was announced.

Plan to acquire gear for small planes scaled back

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a storm of protests from private pilots and some members of Congress, the government has scaled back its proposed requirement for small planes to be equipped with altitude-tracking equipment.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Thursday it would require small private planes to have altitude-encoding transponders if they fly near 138 airports and in some cases as far as 30 miles from the runway. The devices provide air traffic controllers with altitude information about a specific plane on their radar screen.

Only four months ago, the FAA said it was considering regulations that would ban small planes from all airspace within 40 miles of 254 airports and above 6,000 feet when not flying near an airport.

The regulation announced Thursday requires the devices on small planes within 30 miles of 27 of the nation's busiest airports after July 1989 and within currently restricted airspace — less than 10 miles in some many cases — surrounding 109 other airports after 1990.

Under the rule, small planes would be allowed to fly up to 10,000 feet without the equipment, instead of the 6,000 feet suggested earlier. Currently the altitude-encoding transponders are required above 12,500 feet.

The final rule falls short of what the airlines and commercial pilots had wanted but was seen as a significant victory for private pilots and their powerful lobbying group, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

The February proposal had unleashed a firestorm among the nation's private pilots, who flooded the FAA and congressional offices with more than 80,000 complaint letters. Several congressmen had threatened legislation forcing the FAA to back off.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association called the restrictions an "overzealous" reaction to concern about aerial collisions and urged private plane owners across the country to "join ... in opposing the great airspace grab."

Cox Jr. to enter guilty plea

DALLAS (AP)—Former bank director Edwin L. Cox Jr.'s agreement to plead guilty to a federal bank fraud charge should be a warning that returning funds won't ward off prosecution, a U.S. attorney says.

Thursday, Cox said he was resigning as chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission. He said he had agreed to plead guilty to one count of bank fraud stemming from $80 million in loans he had received from his bank several years ago.

"Those who have access to large sums of borrowed money are going to have to understand that they must obey the same rules and laws as the rest of us. No one is above the law," U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins said.

Cox had repaid $80 million in loans he received while a director of InterFirst Bank Dallas from 1984 to 1986.

Cited in the charge was the loans, plus interest, that Cox repaid to InterFirst in October 1987. Cox "submitted false personal financial information and false information regarding loan collateral," Collins charged in the filing in federal court.

"It is my hope that this case sends a strong message to those who think nothing will happen if they pay the money back," Collins said.

Cox, 41, of Athens, once ran one of the largest cattle-feeding and processing operations in the nation.

"In breaking the law, I have made a serious mistake," Cox said in a prepared statement. "I have hurt my wife and children, our many loyal friends, and employees. I have disappointed those who had the greatest confidence in me. For this, I have no words but I am truly sorry that I have let all these people down."

His attorney, Bruce Genderson, said Cox would enter the plea June 24. A sentencing date will be set then. Maximum punishment upon conviction is five years in prison and $250,000 in fines, Collins said.

Cox said the bank fraud charge stemmed from his position as a borrower and a former director of InterFirst Bank Dallas.

Cox's financial problems became public in July 1986. InterFirst Corp., the parent of InterFirst Bank Dallas, which subsequently merged with RepublicBank to become First RepublicBank, announced that loans made by the bank to Cox were in default.

Cox had resigned as a director of the bank in June 1986. His father, a founding director of InterFirst and for whom the Edwin L. Cox School of Business at Southern Methodist University is named, resigned from the bank holding company's board in August 1986.

InterFirst at the same time announced a $200 million loss for the quarter and said it was preparing to make a provision for loan losses for that quarter of as much as $365 million.

A Wall Street Journal article at that time quoted bank officials as saying a big part of the expected charge was from $80 million in loans, letters of credit and other lines InterFirst's flagship (the Dallas bank) extended to Cox.

Cleanup deemed flawed

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. government's plan for cleaning up soil tainted with pesticides and arsenic at a South Texas airport is one example of the "largely ineffective and inefficient" Superfund program, a congressional study says.

The proposed $1.6 million cleanup of the abandoned Crystal City municipal airport in Zavala County was one of 10 cases examined in the report by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

The Crystal City airport once was home to several crop-dusting planes whose toxic cargo was mixed and loaded there.

The study, to be released next week, labels the so-called Superfund program established in 1980 to clean up the nation's worst chemical wastes as flawed despite the expenditure of more than $5 billion in federal tax dollars.

The 10 cases are representative of hundreds of Superfund cleanups around the country, the study said.

However, David Cohen, chief spokesman for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, disputed the study's findings. "Second-guessing of Superfund and EPA bashing have become a national pastime," he said.

"The report's tone does a disservice to all the thousands of people in the agency who have worked extremely hard to make the program a success."

According to the report, the plan for the Zavala airport soil is to bulldoze it into a pit and cover it with waterproof material.

"I know the people down there feel its a second-class remedy, but it really isn't," said Carl Edlund, chief of the Superfund branch for the EPA's regional office in Dallas.

He said more costly cleanup strategies would have provided little or no added protection.

But the study says that proposal provides little assurance that ground water will be protected or that the hazards posed by the toxics will be permanently abated.

Astro-Graph
By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

June 18, 1988

A secret ambition you've nurtured for a long time has excellent chances of being gratified in the year ahead. Continue to keep it secret until things are well underway.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Let the deed speak for itself today if you go out of your way to be helpful to another. Tooting your own horn won't produce an impressive tune. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Strive to maintain a tight financial reign again today, or else you may spend foolishly on things that aren't essential to your practical needs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Set your sights on victory today and don't do things halfway. If your attitude is not gung-ho, you're apt to perform below your capabilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a possibility you may let erroneous hunches or perceptions override your logic today, especially in matters that have a direct effect upon your career.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful in joint ventures today because if your partner is inept, he/she might fumble the ball where an important opportunity is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Weigh both sides of an issue carefully today before making a major decision. If you don't analyze the alternatives, an error in judgment is likely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Work now for that which offers you an immediate return instead of banking on what you hope tomorrow may bring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A matter that has been left to fend for itself has thus far been running rather smoothly, but this could now change and require serious attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Family members are going to hold you accountable for promises you make today, so don't make hasty commitments just to get them off your back.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to be in an industrious mood today, but if you are not methodical, you may just expend massive amounts of effort and energy on nominal achievements.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Extravagant urges to spend beyond your means could be rather pronounced today. So that you do not have regrets later, you'd be wise to pull in your horns a bit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not consider projects which you leave half-finished today as fait accompli. People depending upon you won't make an equally generous assessment.

Environmentalist: cut may send project back to court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas environmentalist who led a lengthy court fight against construction of Cooper Lake says he's worried a Senate vote to cut $1 million from the project may be a sign backers aren't serious about wildlife concerns.

The $1 million slashed from spending on the reservoir in Northeast Texas was to have been used to acquire land to "mitigate" the loss of acres that will be flooded for the lake's construction.

"What happened is proof they never should have gotten the lake," said Dallas environmentalist Ned Fritz of the Senate vote Wednesday.

The promise by reservoir backers to acquire the mitigating land was a key factor in getting the lake out of federal court, Fritz said Thursday.

The Senate voted to appropriate $21.8 million for construction of Cooper Lake on the South Sulphur River. The House, however, had approved spending $22.8 million.

Dropping the $1 million from the land has "just given someone who wants to put it in court a reason to try," says U.S. Rep. Jim Chapman, a Sulphur Springs Democrat. "Why should we run the risk. It's insane to take a chance over $1 million on a $140 million project.

Chapman said he would make restoring the $1 million the top priority of his office.

"This is a nightmare if you can foresee what the environmentalists might do. These are not idle threats. They've done it before," Chapman said.

The lake has been on the drawing board since 1958, but litigation from May 1971 to July 1984 stalled the project.

The Texas Committee on Natural Resources filed the lawsuit, said Fritz, largely because of concerns that flooding to create the reservoir would destroy the habitat of fish and wildlife.

The office of Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said funds from the $21.8 million could be taken from construction money for the buying the mitigating land.

But Chapman said that could stall construction and prompt a lawsuit from the contractor.

"What are we supposed to tell the contractor — to quit working for a month or three weeks," said Chapman.

He also said it will be increasingly difficult to get Congress to fund the project in the lean budget years ahead.

he funds for Cooper Lake are included in a water and energy spending bill that now goes to a House and Senate conference committee, where differences will be worked out before final passage.

Acquiring the mitigating land will ensure "that something is left for wildlife and human recreation other than just purely a reservoir and lake water. Reservoir and lake water ... it's not natural," Fritz said. "Our forest land and natural heritage is decreasing by the dam and we have to save at least some of our natural heritage in order to have any examples left of what was Northeast Texas."

Officials said the project is now 28 percent complete and through September, $49 million in federal funds will have been allocated. It is scheduled to be completed in September 1992.

Here are some suggestions to keep your chain saw's chain sharp. Sabre Textron says to use a round file of proper size for the pitch of chain and style of cutters and to file the cutter top plane to recommended dimensions for the chain. Also, use a flat file to set the rakers to the proper depth depending on the type of wood being cut.

French woman was wrong; grandson is not mute-boy

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — After a French lead fizzled out, authorities again are attempting to ascertain the identity of a hearing-impaired boy found wandering last year in Mexico.

A French woman who saw pictures of the unidentified boy, nicknamed Sabat, mistook him for her grandson.

The woman, Camille Muller of Le Bourg a Thibouville, France, said she had not heard from her 45-year-old son in months — and that his 13-year-old son strongly resembled pictures of Sabat she saw in a French magazine.

But the FBI tracked down the father and son — both named Philippe Muller — Thursday morning. The elder Muller is a cook at a French restaurant in El Paso; his son just completed sixth grade.

FBI spokesman Terry Kincaid said Thursday that the elder Muller probably learned an important lesson.

"I think he'll stay in a little closer contact with his mother," Kincaid said, chuckling.

After finding the father at about 11 a.m., FBI agents visited the son.

"He seemed to be taking it all in stride," Kincaid said. "I showed him a photograph (of Sabat) and asked him if he resembled it, and he said, 'No, not really.' But there are some similarities."

Kincaid had earlier expressed doubt that the younger Philippe Muller was Sabat, because Sabat is estimated to be 7 or 8 years old. The boy, who is deaf in the right ear and has 25 percent hearing in the left, was found near downtown Juarez last November. Since then, he has stayed at a child welfare center in Ciudad Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

Sabat communicates mainly through drawings and gestures. Some of his pictures have led authorities to believe he survived a small-plane crash that killed his parents and sister.

That belief, coupled with the fact that she hadn't heard from her son or grandson in months, probably prompted Camille Muller to notify the U.S. Embassy in Paris (that the younger Philippe Muller was her grandson, said the boy's mother, Margie Muller).

The biology teacher at El Paso's Ysleta High School said she wasn't surprised Camille Muller made the error.

"I saw the news last night, and they were talking about it and my daughter Pearl and I were laughing and saying it sounds like something Mamie (Camille Muller) would do," Margie Muller said Thursday. "But we just didn't believe it could be her. She showed a picture and it didn't look much like Fillette."

"Knowing her, it sounds like something she would do... I'm just amazed. I can't get over it. But being so far away from (her son) and not knowing his whereabouts, I can see where she would jump on this."
