

Cogdell to hold tax aid, room rates steady.

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Hospital board members Monday considered various options to keep next year's operating losses from further eroding the facility's reserve of cash, ultimately deciding on a proposed increase of 13.1 percent in "ancillary" services while backing away from any budgeted room rate increases in 1989.

Ancillary services include, laboratory, x-ray, respiratory therapy, physical therapy and pharmacy fees.

In addition, the board decision will see Cogdell's ad valorem tax request from the commissioners court remain at the same level as this year, $360,000.

The is some $104,000 less than the supplement given in 1987.

The question of "how much" tax supplement apparently prompted the split vote which approved the budget request. In a 3-1 vote, board member Jackie Smith voted against. He had earlier proposed approaching commissioners for approximately $100,000 more in tax supplement.

Voting for the proposal were

Roy McQueen, who made the motion, Janet Hall and G.A. Parks. Board member Jim Palmer had attended the session but was required to leave before the vote was taken. Dan Cotton, as board president, was not required to vote.

The issues regarding patient charges and tax dollar supplements were the key budget decisions required of the board Monday as administrator Tom Hochwalt profiled 1989's budget estimates for Cogdell.

Tuesday morning, Hochwalt noted the budget as proposed will have a projected loss in operating expenses of some $487,000.

This is within his stated goal—to keep the operating losses in the range of the budgeted amount for equipment depreciation, part of the formula used to figure the net operating loss.

As long as the net loss does not exceed the amount used for depreciation, no reserve monies will be required to help fund the operation, he noted.

At the end of 1988, it is estimated this reserve fund—literally cash on hand—will be some $565,000. To illustrate how critical this reserve amount is, Hochwalt noted that the cash requirements of Cogdell are some $453,000 monthly, indicating the total amount of reserve dollars is just slightly in excess of what it costs to operate the facility for one month.

Regarding the net operating loss, Hochwalt noted he believes the facility has "turned around" the trend of larger deficits, noting that it is expected to decrease by some 43 percent at the end of this year.

The projected net loss for 1988 is some $641,000 as compared to $1.1 million in 1987. The projected loss in 1988 of some $641,000 would be an additional 24 percent reduction of this deficit.

During discussion Monday, the board considered several other options to help offset this deficit, to include from an 8 to 13 percent increase in room rates.

It was noted, however, that the ancillary services actually provide approximately 75 percent of the operational income at Cogdell with room rates comprising the remainder.

TOM HOCHWALT
...simple solution...

To 'break even'...

40 patient count is Cogdell goal

A simple formula to make operations at Cogdell Memorial "break even" in the near future was proposed Tuesday by administrator Tom Hochwalt.

"All we need is 40 patients a day," he said.

Hochwalt's comments followed hospital budget discussions Monday, which indicated a projected net operating loss at Cogdell for 1989 of some $487,000. This marks a turnaround in the growing operational deficit, but is viewed as only the "first step," Hochwalt noted.

"In the long term, Cogdell Hospital cannot survive on 25 to 30 patients a day," the administrator said.

For 1989, an average daily census of patients at Cogdell is projected at 26.

"Rate increases and cost reductions will help reduce our operating losses, but our cash position will continue to deteriorate or at best it will simply stabilize with this level of admissions."

The key to Cogdell's future, he said, is "an increase in patient volume," adding that an average daily census of 40 patients would allow the hospital to "break even."

A further concern, he said, is that the majority of major equipment items at the hospital are fully depreciated. "This is not equipment that we'd like to replace because some technology has come along to make it better. This is equipment that is approaching being worn out," he said.

He estimated some 75 percent of Cogdell's $2.3 million worth of equipment is now fully depreciated.

Rainfall, funnels reported

Rain that sometimes fell in torrents put an end to weeks of broiling weather with a deluge that started before dawn and continued intermittently through most of the day Monday, leaving 4.6 inches at Ira and unofficial reports of as much as 7 inches northeast of Snyder.

Counting almost a half-inch Saturday, Ira had 5 inches of rain for the weekend and Monday. Hermleigh had 2.70 Monday and 3.70 for the three days, and Fluvanna to the north had 1.5 inches.

The gauge at the city water treatment plant on Ave. M caught 2.85 inches from midnight Sunday through Monday.

Reports of funnel clouds spiced the situation as Scurry County deputies checked 2:07 p.m. and 3:10 p.m. sightings by the public of funnels that did not touch the ground between Ira and Vincent and on 37th St. toward Eastridge.

Deputies were unable to sight any funnels in either area, but the National Weather Service in Abilene told one that "the cell could generate some light to moderate funnels that probably would not reach the ground."

A NWS spokesman told the deputy that radar showed some "hook" echoes over Scurry County but that the movement of the storm would tend to keep any funnels from developing into tornadoes.

The only tornado to reach the ground Monday was one 15 miles. See RAIN, page 9.

GULLY-WASHER — Rainwater had run a long ways down the hill east of downtown Ira Monday afternoon, fed partly by continuing intermittent showers and partly by the almost 5 inches of rain that had fallen there by Monday afternoon. The Snyder area forecast for Tuesday night includes a 40 percent chance for additional showers. (SDN Staff Photo)

South Texas said still needing rain

by The Associated Press

Thunderstorms have rolled across the state the past several days, dumping up to 10 inches of rain in some areas, except where it really is needed, in virtually dry South Texas.

Elsewhere, streets flooded, cars stalled, motorists were stranded and some creeks overflowed their banks.

The rain has brought relief to some drought-stricken areas, but farmers and ranchers warn more is needed to mend the several-month-long dry spell.

"It's still very serious in parts of South Texas," said Doyle Warren, Texas A&M Extension Service agent in Weslaco.

"The critical thing is we are running out of feed and we're now burning prickly pear and we need to get stock (tank) water," he said Monday. "A lot of ranchers are going to have to make the decision whether they are going to feed the cattle or turn them over to be sold."

"The drought isn't over in South Texas," Warren said. "Even if we got normal rainfall during the rest of the summer, we'd still be hurting because it takes time to build all those pastures back up."

Parts of West Texas near Midland and Odessa were drenched Monday as flash floods belted the area, flooding streets and stalling cars.

Rain also fell in the Concho Valley, bringing joy to some cotton farmers.

Memorial slated for young crash victims

From Local, Wire Reports

A memorial service for Jonathan David Harr, age 8, and his sister Krista, age 6—killed Sunday along with their paternal grandparents in the crash of a private aircraft—is scheduled Thursday in Lubbock.

They were the children of former Snyder minister David and Melissa Harr, now of El Campo. Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at Christ Lutheran Church, 7800 Indiana Ave.

The memorial service will be combined with rites for their grandparents, William McKay Harr, 64, and his wife Gladys Stelzer Harr, 61, both of Lubbock.

The family requests in lieu of flowers that memorial contributions be to Grace Lutheran Church of Snyder, where David Harr served as pastor until 1986.

Tuesday morning, safety investigators with the National Transportation Safety Board indicated that the single-engine plane in which the four were traveling came apart in the air and crashed about 20 minutes after taking off.

The plane took off from Abilene Municipal Airport Sunday afternoon. The crash occurred shortly after the pilot radioed for directions around severe weather, according to flight controllers.

About once a year, the insurance man comes around and reviews the coverage—just to be sure everything is okay.

It's a nice gesture, but we really had rather not think about such things. Health and life insurance are two things that we'd just as soon pay premiums on and never collect.

On a recent visit, the agent offered a nice folder and suggested placing all those policies in one place. In the event something happens, important papers would be easy to find.

It was about that time that an uncomfortable fact soaked in: Ole what's her name would be a lot better off with me gone than with me here. Maybe I do favor gun control?

That same agent was telling about visiting a cemetery and observing a guy sobbing over a grave. The griet was so strong, that the man felt compelled to offer his assistance.

Hoping to give the mourner relief by letting him talk, the man asked if the deceased were his wife, a child or a friend.

"None you mentioned," the grieving one said. "We never met or exchanged a word."

He then inquired why such emotional trauma.

"It's my wife's first husband," sobbed the man.

Everybody has a different perspective on marriage. Two golfing buddies were needing each other about their salaries.

In Brief

Body is found

ROCKWALL, Texas (AP)—The body of a 10-year-old boy who had been missing for a week has been found under the house where he was last seen, authorities say.

Rockwall Police said the body of Jason Daniel Powell was found about 6 a.m. Monday.

An autopsy was ordered by Justice of the Peace Ron Gist. Police would not speculate on the cause of death.

Man is killed

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The U.S. military attaché to Greece was killed today on the small street where he lived by a car bomb that blew his armor-plated car out the road as he was driving to work, police said.

Navy Capt. William E. Nordem was just 100 yards away from his home when the blast buried his car across the street, lodging it in a steel fence, a police spokesman said on condition of anonymity.

May quit post

AUSTIN, AP—Texas Supreme Court Justice Franklin Spears says he might quit the bench by Sept. 1, a move that would make him the fourth Democrat to leave the high court this year.

Speaker noted for feisty style

AUSTIN, Texas, (AP) — Ann Richards, tapped as the keynote speaker for the Democratic National Convention, is known for using blunt rhetoric tempered with wicked humor to get her point across.

At a recent Democratic Party fundraiser in Houston, one man after another — none of them minorities — came to the podium to speak. Finally it was the turn of Ms. Richards, the Texas state treasurer and potential 1990 gubernatorial candidate.

"Now are there any other white men who haven't spoken yet?" she said sweetly. "God knows we don't want to leave any of you out."

The audience roared with laughter, as Ms. Richards' audiences usually do. And, as usual, her audience got the message.

On Monday, her stump style was praised by Democratic Party chief Paul G. Kirk as he announced her selection as the speaker whose address will open the party's convention next month in Atlanta.

The 54-year-old Ms. Richards, Kirk said at a Washington news conference, "has the ability to tell it like it is."

She will be the second woman in party history to deliver the convention keynote speech. Kirk said Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee apparent, had urged the selection of a woman keynote speaker.

"He was very hopeful that we might make a selection of a woman," the party chief said, "not only because of the importance of the family concerns, the issues of stress and struggle that women are going through in the daily work lives and family lives, but I think it is symbolic of the importance of women to the American family and the realities of all of that."

Ms. Richards, the first woman in 50 years to hold statewide office in Texas, is the divorced mother of four grown children.

In 1976, her first attempt at elected office, Ms. Richards defeated an incumbent Travis County commissioner. In 1982, the state's incumbent treasurer, under indictment for official misconduct, withdrew from a Democratic runoff against her. She won the general election and was re-elected without opposition.

in 1986. After the 1982 election, Ms. Richards moved quickly to change operations in the state treasury. She also made staff changes, boosting the number of women and minorities on the job in the 170-employee agency. She now claims the agency payroll has an ethnic and sex balance reflecting the state's general population.

Ms. Richards said Monday that women's issues are "the same issues that affect all other human beings" — but with a twist.

"The difference is the role, sociologically, that women have played. That is we are the caretakers, the nurturers," she says. "It usually falls to us when any time hard times and bad times hit."

It's a message often repeated by Ms. Richards. If you can make a household work, she says, you can succeed in government.

"Most homemakers don't know what enormous skills they have. Putting three meals on the table each day is a pretty big job in itself, much less doing the laundry and car pooling," she once told a reporter.

Her professional success has come despite personal challenges. In 1980, after being confronted by family members, she sought treatment for alcoholism. She says she has not had a drink since then, and she has been active in helping others battle alcoholism.

Shortly after her treatment, she and husband David Richards separated, and in 1984 the two obtained what they both said was an amicable divorce.

Richards, a lawyer, was on hand Monday when his ex-wife talked to reporters about being selected to give the keynote speech. She acknowledged him as someone who "played a very large role in my life, politically and personally."

Beyond the convention and helping to put a Democrat in the White House, Ms. Richards' most immediate goal is the 1990 Texas gubernatorial race. She has not formally declared her intentions, but sent out her first exploratory fund-raising letter Monday.

Ms. Richards said she is not certain what effect her half-hour in the political spotlight in Atlanta will have on her gubernatorial race.

"I suppose if I'm good it will help," she said Monday. "And if I'm bad it won't."

As for any jitters about opening the convention, Ms. Richards recalled being sick to her stomach from nervousness at the first dance she attended. Since then, the butterflies have rarely gotten to her, even when she's at the podium ready to address a big crowd.

"I really recovered," she said. "It was the borrowed dress that took the brunt of the impact."

Dear Abby

For This Lover of Company, More Is Definitely Merrier

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Whatever happened to old-fashioned hospitality? Nowadays people are writing to you asking how to discourage drop-in company.

Abby, not all folks feel imposed upon if friends drop in. I am one of them. I love company! Please don't tell me I'm the only person in the world who feels this way.

LOVES COMPANY IN BEND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from a 28-year-old mother of four who tacked a poster on her door with "rules" to keep visitors away.

Well, I'm a 38-year-old mother of six, and I'm amazed that anyone would want that much privacy. We're newcomers who live in the country, and I'm stuck out here with six kids, two dogs and three cats. I'm so hungry for company, I'm ready to go out on the road and flag down some strangers.

Please print my "poster" in the paper for all to read:

— You may smoke inside, outside, on the roof or anywhere you wish. Just don't burn the house down.

— If you're hungry, help yourself to anything you can find. And if you can't find anything, ask one of the kids. They'll fix you a peanut butter and brown sugar sandwich.

— If you're here around at mealtime, grab a chair and join us.

— If you want to stay overnight, bring a sleeping bag, and we'll move some clutter from the corner to make room for you.

— Bring your kids. We have so many, a few more won't make any difference.

— We can't lend you any money, but go ahead and ask anyway. It will make us feel good to know we appear that prosperous.

— Tell us your troubles and we'll tell you ours. One of our kids can play the violin for background music, and we can all cry together.

— If you can stand us, we can stand you, so drop in anytime and stay as long as you like. We're people who like people. MIDGE IN WATSONVILLE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: All those letters in your column lately about people who resent being told by total strangers to smile rang a bell with me.

I, too, have been told to smile when I was quite content with my natural expression. In addition to being ordered to smile on command, I have been criticized for not talking enough to please certain people.

I am quite capable of talking when I have something of importance to say, so I hope you print this, Abby, for those clods who say, "My, but you're quiet!"

ONE OF THE QUIET ONES

DEAR ONE: Quiet people are frequently shy, so drawing attention to them because they are "quiet" only amplifies their embarrassment. One wouldn't presume to ask a non-stop talker why he talks so much, so why ask a quiet person why he's so quiet?

DEAR ABBY: I noticed that item in your column about the nurses who made ribald comments about one of the male patients who had a prosthesis (penile implant).

I have had a prosthesis for seven years, and one thing the nurses may not know is that it really works. Sign me...

Sen. Lugar's advice: always tell the truth

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this election year, candidates for the Republican and Democratic presidential nominations are being flooded with advice.

Advice on how best to run and win.

Advice on what to do and say.

Advice on what not to do and say.

Advice on what to do if the previous advice proves effective and a prospective president becomes president in fact.

One advice giver — Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind. — has put his advice in more formal form than usual, enclosing it in the 269 pages of a hardcover book.

The book "Letters To The Next President," published by Simon and Schuster, deals with the foreign policy challenges and opportunities the next chief executive will face and is based in large part on Lugar's two years' service as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in 1985 and 1986.

In the book, as in his chairmanship, Lugar pursues restoration of a bipartisan foreign policy based on a drive to extend democracy throughout the world.

He also thinks it important that in an often duplicitous world, the president of the United States tell the truth.

Because he wrote before George Bush and Michael Dukakis clinched the Republican and Democratic presidential nominations, Lugar's advice is general and not tailored to any particular candidate.

But he warns all candidates to resist the temptation to "express extreme views on foreign policy that may capture temporary political allegiances but may also undermine longstanding policy objectives and cause general dismay."

Lugar maintains that whoever wins the 1988 presidential sweepstakes must have as a primary goal ending the foreign policy war between the White House and Congress.

"In the past few years, we have suffered through too many partisan impasses in foreign policy, too much finger pointing, and too little assumption of responsibility," Lugar said.

"These letters are in part a signal from one senator that enough is enough."

Lugar dismisses the notion that the 435 members of the House of Representatives and the 100 members of the Senate seek collective status as 535 secretaries of state, endlessly interfering with the building of an effective foreign policy.

"Relatively few members spend the time and the energy required to articulate comments on the myriad of daily international events," Lugar said.

At the same time, Lugar believes Congress has a constitutional duty to be involved in the formulation and execution of foreign policy. He appealed to the next president to reach out to congressional leaders often.

"You have to work with Congress," Lugar advises the next president. "It will be exasperating but essential if you want to succeed."

One man arrested in case of burning body

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Authorities expected Mexican officials to deport a man accused of burning a body near his home in New Mexico before he fled through El Paso into Mexico.

Juarez Police spokesman Fernando Motta Allen said Sammy Chavez, 27, of Mesilla, N.M., was arrested in downtown Ciudad Juarez, Mexico Monday and placed in preventive detention.

Mexican authorities usually forego extradition formalities and deport a suspect as an undesirable alien, delivering him to U.S. authorities, officials said.

In New Mexico, Dona Ana County sheriff's investigators late Monday said they were seeking arrest warrants charging Chavez with strong-armed robbery, armed robbery and kidnapping. He also is wanted for questioning about the burned body.

Dona Ana County Undersheriff N.R. Chavez said the incident began Monday morning in Mesilla when a firefighter spotted smoke, approached a man standing next to a burning trailer and saw the body. He went to radio for help, but the man took his radio and keys, Chavez said.

The man then fled in his pickup truck. The truck was found minutes later stuck by the side of an irrigation canal, the unidentified charred body in the back, the undersheriff said.

The man then went to a nearby house and took a car at gunpoint, the officer said. The gunman drove south.

He later abandoned that car, took another at gunpoint, got rid of that car and took another vehicle at gunpoint in Chamberino, N.M., this time taking a teen-age boy as hostage, the undersheriff said.

"He was changing vehicles so fast on us, it was hard to keep up," Undersheriff Chavez said. Officers said the teen-ager escaped when the kidnapper stopped for gas in Canutillo, Texas, about 10 miles north of downtown El Paso.

The man then drove south on U.S. 85 into downtown El Paso, where he sped by bridge police and into Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, about 50 miles from Mesilla, authorities said.

U.S. Border Patrol and U.S. Customs officers hastily set up a roadblock at the Stanton Street bridge across the Rio Grande, but the man didn't stop for it.

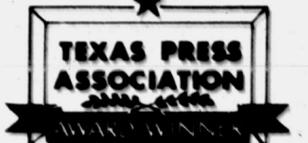

"The truck was coming fast and when he saw the roadblock, he just went around it," said Claudia Torres, a Pinkerton security guard on duty at the bridge. "All the agents were just looking, and no one did anything. They thought he was going to stop."

"He went up the curb and drove on the sidewalk," Torres said. "I and another security guard got out of the way because we thought he was going to run into the station."

"When the truck passed us, she (the other guard) pulled out her gun and shot one time."

No one was hurt in the spree, officers said.

The burning victim was taken to Albuquerque for autopsy, he said. Authorities said late Monday they had determined that the victim was a man.

Arthritis affects family relationships.

ATLANTA (AP) — In addition to the pain and suffering rheumatoid arthritis (RA) causes, it can also dramatically affect the family structure, according to the Arthritis Foundation.
 The foundation says the divorce rate for people with RA is 70 percent above the rate for the general population. In addition, 59 percent of the people with RA are unemployed, and 85 percent have had to change their leisure-time activities.
 Arthritis can have a devastating impact, physically, emotionally and economically, the foundation points out, adding that, "Anyone who thinks of arthritis as a minor problem should learn the facts about the condition."

ABWA meets for aerobics talk, demo

Aerobics information was featured at the June 23 meeting of the Scurry Charter Chapter of American Business Women's Association. Faye Layne offered the invocation and led the Pledge of Allegiance with 20 members present.
 Barbara Scrivner, program chairman, introduced Rhonda Ward of The Aerobic Center. She reminded the group that exercise is good for all ages. It helps to circulate the blood, taking oxygen and nutrients to all parts of the body more efficiently.
 Ward pointed out that a 15 minute warm-up and cool-down is important to avoid strain and injury. A group of students including Kim Koeing, Gale Koeing, Lana Gallaway, Mary Alice Sands and Hope Heaton demonstrated warm ups, stretching and floor exercises.
 The Aerobic Center offers classes for low, medium and high level aerobics. Three classes meet Monday, Wednesday, Friday and one class is held on Tuesday and Thursday. Three times a week is $20 per month and two sessions a week are $15 monthly.
 Layne informed the group that Sept. 17 is the National ABWA birthday.
 Carlena Darrioulat and Kathy Landes reported about the WTC scholarship given to Martha Gutierrez.
 New members installed by Layne are Margaret Grant sponsored by Scrivner and Pat Wittie sponsored by Pat Fayer.
 Layne offered the benediction.

Grill up a batch of world-class burgers

By NANCY BYAL
 Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor

Whatever you are hungry for — Italian, French, Greek or Mexican — you can have it, burger-style, right in your own backyard. Start with ground meat, add cheese and appropriate spices for an authentic tasting burger with the flavor you favor.

For each flavor, in a medium bowl place 1 1/2 pounds ground beef. Add the seasonings and mix lightly with your hands until just combined. Shape the meat into 1/4-inch-thick patties. Place the cheese in the center of half the patties. Cover the cheese with the remaining patties, press edges together to seal.

To cook, grill on an uncovered grill directly over medium-hot coals, for 13 to 14 minutes, turning once. Or, place on the unheated rack of a broiler pan and broil 3 to 4 inches from the heat about 13 minutes, turning once.

FRENCH
 Seasonings: 1 1/2 teaspoons onion powder; 1 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed; 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder; 1/4 teaspoon salt, and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.
 Cheese: 2 ounces Brie or Camembert, sliced into 4 pieces.

GREEK
 Seasonings: 1 1/2 teaspoons onion powder; 1 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed; 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder, and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.
 Cheese: 2 ounces feta cheese, crumbled and sprinkled with juice from 4 thin lemon slices.

ITALIAN
 Seasonings: 1 1/4 teaspoons Italian seasoning; 3/4 teaspoon garlic powder; 1/2 teaspoon onion powder, and 1/4 teaspoon salt.
 Cheese: 2 ounces mozzarella cheese, sliced into 4 pieces.

MEXICAN
 Seasonings: 1 tablespoon chili powder; 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin; 1/2 teaspoon onion powder; 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder, and 1/4 teaspoon salt.
 Cheese: 2 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, sliced into 4 pieces.

Opening lead ♥ A

Take charge if you're sure

By James Jacoby

Here is a tip from George Rosenkrantz, author of "Tips for Tops." If you are defending and know how to beat the contract, take charge and stop partner, in the clearest way possible, from making an error.

In today's deal, you are West and lead your singleton ace of hearts against four spades. On this card your partner plays the deuce, a discouraging card, but perhaps a card suggesting that your side's source of tricks may be in the club suit. So you switch now to the three of clubs. That play is a success. Declarer plays low from dummy, and East wins the club jack. He next plays the club ace. Is there something for you to do now? If left to his own devices, partner will quite possibly try to cash another club trick for your side. Maybe that will work. But there is certainly a possibility that declarer will ruff a third club, and you yourself know for certain that you can beat the contract absolutely if partner will right now play back a heart for you to ruff.

To wake up your partner to the necessity of returning a heart, you should play the king of clubs under his ace. This play should be a clear signal that your opening lead was indeed a singleton, and partner should now return a heart without fail to set the contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Phoenix Books.

KO's Spinks in 1st round... Tyson's done in 1:31

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - The fight with Michael Spinks was over with frightening ease. Mike Tyson's fight with his detractors goes on.

Tyson, casting aside his personal problems, needed only 91 seconds to dispose of Spinks on Monday night and retain his undisputed heavyweight championship in a bout that helped cement his stature as the top fighter of his time.

Afterward, he alternated between the ecstasy of a win and the bitterness of a man who feels he has been wronged, blasting reporters who had questioned whether the personal turmoil in his life would affect his performance in the ring.

"After this fight I wasn't really appreciative of what you reporters did to me," Tyson said after ending boxing's richest fight ever by putting Spinks down twice in the first round.

"You try to embarrass me, you try to embarrass my family, you try to disgrace us."

Tyson, who turns 22 on Thursday, then hinted of retirement.

"As far as I know, this may be my last fight," he said.

If it was his last fight - and few believe it will be considering the tens of millions of dollars he still stands to earn - Tyson certainly went out with a bang.

With Spinks choosing a risky course of standing and trying to trade punches with the heavyweight champion, Tyson knocked the challenger down a minute into the fight, then finished him with a left-right combination that left Spinks sprawled on his back beneath the ropes, unable to get up.

"When I came into the ring and looked at him, I saw the fear and I knew it would be a first-round knockout," Tyson said.

Tyson landed only eight punches in the brief fight, but from the time the first left hook found its intended mark in Spinks' chin, the fight was as good as over. Spinks threw 10 punches, landing just two.

"The first punch I threw, he wobbled a bit," said Tyson.

"Right there, I knew I had him."

Spinks, who had never been knocked down, much less hit, in a professional career that spanned 11 years, tried to make it a fight. He went to Tyson and tried to throw an overhand right, but the champion responded with a right of his own that crashed into Spinks' left temple.

Tyson followed with a three-punch combination that sent Spinks backward into the ropes. Spinks bounced off the ropes and crossed part of the ring where Tyson met him and landed a left to the head and a right to the chest that put the challenger down.

"I said I would come to fight," Spinks said. "I thought I would take my shot when I could and I tried."

Spinks was up at the count of manager and confidant Butch Lewis rushed into the ring and put his arm around his fighter while the Tyson corner erupted in jubilation.

The spectacular title defense - his seventh since becoming the youngest heavyweight champion ever at the age of 20, also was his first-round knockout victim while scoring his 31st knockout in 35 fights.

Spinks, who earned $13.5 million for his part in boxing's richest bout ever, appeared relaxed coming into the ring after a half-hour delay caused when Spinks had to have his gloves rewrapped in the dressing room.

The 31-year-old Spinks, who lost for the first time in 29 fights, said he would be ready for a rematch if offered and, unlike Tyson, didn't hint of retirement.

Tyson, a 4-1 favorite going into the fight, had been beset by reports of managerial and personal problems while training for his $20-million payday.

But once inside the ring, he cast aside the turmoil and the instincts of a fighter who had been groomed to be the heavyweight champion of the world from the age of 12 took over.

'The first punch I threw he wobbled a bit... Right there, I knew I had him.'

three and, after taking the mandatory eight-count, went right back to Tyson. It was a mistake that proved fatal to his chances.

As Spinks tried to throw a right hand, Tyson crashed a short right uppercut that put Spinks down, this time for the count.

Spinks tried briefly to get up, but collapsed back on his back as referee Frank Capuccino counted the fighter out. Spinks' longtime quickest and one of shortest heavyweight title fights in history.

"There's no fighter like me," Tyson said. "I can beat any fighter in the world."

At rain-swept Wimbledon...

Lendl survives Woodforde

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Get into a fifth set with Ivan Lendl at Wimbledon, and start saying your prayers.

The world's top-ranked player may not have enjoyed the ultimate success in the famed Grand Slam tournament in six tries, but when it comes to a battle of attrition, he's a survivor.

Mark Woodforde, a red-haired Australian, became Lendl's latest five-set victim, cracking under pressure after almost five hours to go down 7-5, 6-7, 6-7, 7-5, 10-8 on Monday.

Woodforde got closer than most to beating Lendl at his own game when he reached match point in the 14th game of the final set. But the Australian blew his chance and was made to pay as the tournament's top seed reached the quarterfinals for the fifth time in six years.

Lendl, who survived a five-setter in his previous match, said mental strength was the key on Monday.

"That's what pulls me through. Otherwise, I wouldn't still be here," the 28-year-old Czechoslovak said.

Once again, Lendl is still here, batting on in his quest for a first Wimbledon title. But the name of his quarterfinal opponent won't be known until today. That's because the fourth-round match on Centre Court between American Tim Mayotte and Henri Leconte of France was called off due to early-evening rain, with Mayotte leading 6-4, 7-6.

That match was to be completed today, after the first of the women's quarterfinals between American Chris Evert and Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia. Steffi Graf, the top-seeded woman, was next up against unseeded Pascale Paradis of France.

The other women's quarterfinal matched Americans Pam Shriver and Zina Garrison.

Another unfinished fourth-round match opened the program on Court No. 1. Defending champion Martina Navratilova of the U.S., aiming to win a record ninth Wimbledon singles title, trailed 4-2 in the first set against Larissa Savchenko of the Soviet Union.

Draft doesn't look to help Mavs, who get 46th and 49th selections

DALLAS (AP) - For the Dallas Mavericks, there have been more suspenseful NBA drafts than today's selection.

Their first pick in the college draft was No. 46, late in the second round of a three-round draft.

It marks the first time since they entered the league in 1980 that the Mavericks had no first-round selection.

Mavericks officials considered it a slim draft anyway and last week traded away the 20th pick of the first round to the Miami Heat, one of two teams that will enter the league next season.

That leaves questions as to what kind of players may be available by the time it's the Mavericks' turn to pick.

"Who that player will be we don't know," Sund said. "We've always taken the approach that the biggest part of sports drafts is guesswork, and the teams that do the best make the most educated guesses."

"We're picking the 46th and 49th picks, and with that many places in line it's totally impossible to guess who we would be selecting," he said. "We would probably go with what we would consider the best player and not necessary a particular position."

Rumors of a trade involving Mavericks forward Mark Aguirre have rumbled since the Mavericks ended their season with a seventh-game loss to the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference finals. But team officials aren't talking. "Mark Aguirre has been a discussion predominantly for the media. We have said very little about our trade talks," Mavericks vice president Rick Sund said Monday.

3 shooting deaths linked to religious dispute

HOUSTON (AP) — Police believe a religious dispute spanning two countries may be the cause of the execution-style shooting deaths of a man, his 8-year-old daughter and his brother.

The three were fatally shot in two separate shootings Monday. Police have not yet made any arrests in the slayings.

Duane Chynoweth and his daughter Jennifer were found shot to death in a pickup truck parked outside a vacant house, Houston police spokesman Dan Turner said. The shootings occurred shortly after 4 p.m.

Duane Chynoweth was shot several times in the head, while the girl was shot once in the face, Turner said.

The father apparently was delivering an appliance to the vacant house, and police were trying to determine who called him about making the delivery.

At around the same time, Duane's brother, Mark Chynoweth, was found shot to death at a business about 10 miles away he said.

Turner did not have the ages of the two men.

A neighbor of the Chynoweth family said Lillian, Mark Chynoweth's wife, explained the cult connection after the killing.

"Apparently, Lillian told my wife they tried to break away from a cult, and there was a death list, the man, who did not want his name used, told the Houston Chronicle.

Turner said he could not confirm reports that the Chynoweth brothers were ex-followers of the late Ervil LeBaron, a polygamist cult leader whose current followers operate from Mexico.

In Irving, Eddie Marston, 32, identified by the Chronicle as a former LeBaron follower and one of Ervil's stepsons, was shot to death shortly after 4 p.m. Irving police Officer Richard Gilmette said Marston was found shot in the head and upper body.

Turner said Duane Chynoweth was a polygamist, but he did not know how many wives he had. He did not have any other information about Mark Chynoweth.

"We are trying to put it all together, but it looks like it's going to be a religious cult deal," Turner said. "We're trying to figure it all out now."

"This (dispute) thing started in Salt Lake (City), went to Mexico and ended up in Houston," Turner said.

LeBaron's Church of the Lamb of God split into several groups after his death in 1981. LeBaron died of a heart attack at Utah State Prison after being convicted of ordering the 1977 murder of rival Rulon Allred in Murray, Utah.

In October 1987, polygamist leader Daniel Ben Jordan was shot several times while camping in a canyon near Mayfield, Utah. Officials said it was not a hunting accident.

Jordan, who had been leading a church in Bennett, Colo., had been LeBaron's right-hand man for decades. He was charged with, but never tried for, the death of LeBaron's brother Joel, who rivaled Ervil LeBaron's leadership.

A similar leader, Leo P. Evoniuk, never returned from a business meeting on May 27, 1987, near Santa Cruz, Calif. Foul play is suspected in his disappearance.

Another former LeBaron follower who has disappeared is Arturo LeBaron, Ervil's son. There were reports from former LeBaron followers that he was killed in a gunfight in Mexico about five years ago.

Ervil LeBaron and some of his ex-followers were said to have each claimed to be the "One Mighty and Strong," a man many polygamist groups believe will someday come to reform the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the Mormon Church. Ervil was said to have passed the title to his son Arturo.

Securities analysts tagged in scam

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest insider trading case since the Ivan Boesky scandal has jolted Wall Street and implicated a trainee at a big brokerage and a Hong Kong businessman who allegedly reaped $19 million in illicit profits.

A Securities and Exchange Commission civil complaint filed Monday accused Stephen Wang Jr., a junior analyst in a training program at Morgan Stanley & Co., of giving secrets about impending corporate takeovers to Fred C. Lee, a client with homes in Hong Kong and McLean, Va., a swank Washington suburb.

"From at least July 1987 through at least April 1988, Lee placed long-distance telephone calls from McLean, Va., Hong Kong and elsewhere to Wang at his home and office in New York," read the SEC complaint filed in federal court here. "During these telephone calls, Wang improperly disclosed to Lee the material, non-public information."

Lee paid Wang at least $200,000 for the information, authorities said.

Thomas C. Newkirk, the SEC's chief litigation counsel, said an investigation was continuing and he did not rule out the possibility that others were involved.

SEC sources speaking on condition of anonymity, also said they expected federal prosecutors to seek criminal indictments against Wang and Lee, the same pattern that emerged in the Boesky case more than two years ago.

The SEC said Lee made $19 million by trading on the tips and shared at least $200,000 of the money with Wang. It demanded the pair return the money plus pay triple that amount in penalties, for a total of $76 million.

The amount is second only to the record $100 million in profit and fines paid in November 1986 by Boesky, who was at the center of a massive scandal in which Wall Streeters illegally used confidential corporate information to profit in stock transactions.

Boesky, a speculator who implicated other Wall Street professionals, was banished from the securities business for life and is serving a three-year federal prison term.

Morgan Stanley, which was an adviser in the proposed takeovers listed in Monday's complaint, said it suspended Wang last Friday after the SEC subpoenaed him.

The firm also said it had been cooperating with the SEC for some time in its probe and was considering separate but unspecified legal action against Wang and Lee.

The New York Times today quoted unidentified sources as saying that Morgan Stanley's compliance department had picked up suspicious trading in Lee's account as early as last year.

Newkirk said the SEC began the investigation in April but the probe did not break until Friday, when Lee admitted details of his arrangement with Wang to commission officials interviewing Lee in Hong Kong.

Morgan Stanley officials said Wang lived in New York but his whereabouts were unclear. Wang's lawyer, former SEC regional commissioner Ira L. Sorkin, declined to comment.

$2 million in drug kingpin's items targeted for auction

HOUSTON (AP) — An emerald necklace with the gems in the shape of marijuana leaves and a gold cocaine spoon are among items to be sold at an auction this week of property seized from a convicted Florida drug dealer.

About $2 million worth of jewelry and other goods seized by federal authorities will go on the block at trendy Hart Galleries, which is more accustomed to handling auctions of antiques and art objects of Houston blue bloods.

Most of the jewelry doesn't highlight the former owner's profession and gallery owner Jerry Hart is expecting some 500 bidders for the auction, scheduled for Wednesday.

"I doubt anyone ever seized jewelry of this quality in this amount," J. Keith Gary, U.S. Marshal for the Eastern District of Texas, said Monday of the nearly 200 items that once belonged to Bruce Emery "Pee Wee" Griffin. Gary described Griffin as a Florida drug dealer who used a ranch in Aubrey — north of Dallas — to launder drug money.

Griffin, convicted of marijuana possession, is now on parole from prison.

The items on display at Hart Galleries, which earlier this year handled the bankruptcy auction of former Texas Gov. John Connally, offer a glimpse of the wealth amassed by people like Griffin, who told authorities he was making $20 million to $25 million a year.

Included are such things as gold-plated and monogrammed tape measures and a gold toothpick that slides out of its own gold holder.

A showpiece item is an 18-karat gold ring emblazoned with a 9.49-carat emerald-cut diamond surrounded by 56 other diamonds. The ring is estimated to be worth some $130,000.

"You've got to understand this man had just a tremendous amount of money and he could buy whatever he saw," Hart said. "It appears he was very selective about what he purchased. He bought nothing but investment quality stones and diamonds."

Other jewelry includes gold dice with diamonds marking the spots, loose diamonds and emeralds — many of them authenticated with certificates from the Gemological Institute of America — and dozens of gold rings, chains and bracelets, some carrying Griffin's initials "BEG" or the name "Bruce" spelled out in diamonds.

Money raised from the auction will go into the federal fund to combat dealers of illegal drugs, Gary said.

Federal agents who raided Griffin's DKG Ranch also found nine gold bars worth $1.6 million in the trunk of a Mercedes parked there. All but two of the bars have been sold to a smelter in Amarillo with the proceeds also being returned to the government, he said.

Also in the auction are $500 and $1000 denomination bills and rare currency of smaller denominations.

"Because some guy got caught dealing coke doesn't mean anything to me," said Ernest Klein, a Houston collector who was among dozens of people getting their first look at the items Monday. He wants a $500 bill.

Golden Terrace sign hit by car

A 1976 Lincoln two-door driven by Beatrice Lewis of 2212 28th St. hit a brick sign owned by Golden Terrace Village at 2:26 p.m. Monday in the 2000 Block of 37th St.

Police said a wrecker was called to remove bricks from the car. There was no immediate estimate on damages to the sign.

Police work fighting dogs

Three policemen responded to a report of two pit bulldogs fighting at 3:07 p.m. Monday in the 600 Block of 33rd St. and impounded one of the animals after they were separated.

They said a charge of harboring a vicious animal would be filed against the owner of the dog that was impounded.

Teen is arrested

A 14-year-old boy was arrested for assault at 10:13 p.m. Monday in the 500 Block of 34th St. after officers responded to a report of a juvenile boy beating his girlfriend.

He was released into the custody of his parents after the incident was reported to juvenile authorities.

Rain douses oil field fire

Rainfall Monday morning extinguished a tank battery fire 12 miles southeast of Snyder before firemen could arrive.

The call came in at 8:17 a.m., and fire trucks turned back before reaching the scene when a subsequent call reported that the rain had put out the fire.

A department spokesman said lightning associated with the rainstorm started the fire.

Area farmers hope recent rains mean healthy crops

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — With harvest two months away, area growers hope recent crucial rains will mean they'll be taking healthy crops to a market where prices have risen due to a drought scorching much of the Farm Belt.

The croplands of the South Plains and Panhandle were sprinkled Monday and over the weekend, providing rainfall just when things were beginning to dry out, said county agents. Most of the area received 1-2 inches of rain Sunday and Monday, said the National Weather Service.

"We were approaching the critical stage for cotton moisture," said NWS meteorological technician Jerry English on Monday. "We got the rain we need at just the right time."

But in the Midwest and Tennessee Valley, suffering the nation's worst drought since the Dust Bowl, fields of corn, grain and soybeans are disaster areas due to lack of rainfall and high temperatures.

Shriveled crops have caused commodity prices to jump sharply, which is good news to farmers with healthy crops.

"The way these commodity prices have gone up on corn and soybeans, if you're going to have something to sell, it looks pretty promising right now," said Bob Benson, Hale County Extension Agent.

Although county extension agents said anything could happen between now and the fall harvest, the corn and soybean crops are thriving at the same pace as prices.

In the past month, corn prices have doubled from $1.70-$1.85 in May to $3.52½ a bushel, for July delivery, at Monday's closing on the Chicago Board of Trade. Soybeans closed at $10.59 a bushel for July delivery. Wheat prices, which hit $4 a bushel Monday, are up about $1 from last year's level.

"If that dry weather continues (in drought regions) so that their crops are expected to be reduced, particularly in the feed grains... that would mean substantial improvement for prices for farmers here if they do make a good crop," said Kary Mathis, head of Texas Tech University's agricultural economics department.

The healthy progress of the sugar beet and feed corn crops in Deaf Smith County has sparked keen interest in agricultural marketing firms, said county agent Dennis Newton, with marketing representatives calling frequently to check conditions.

"It's a shame that somebody else has to suffer before someone else makes a crop," said Benson. "A few years ago we were in a drought and the Midwest was laughing off with good prices. But that's just the cold, hard facts of farming."

One group of Panhandle farmers wasn't able to capitalize on higher, drought-driven prices.

With harvesting about 80 percent completed, wheat yields are down by almost half on dryland crops due to disease and dry conditions in the early spring.

"If we'd have had the yields of the last four years, our farmers really could have paid off some debt," said Newton. "We had a situation where prices were up, but the crop's just not that good."

Gorbachev calls for reforms in legislature, farm changes

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev called today for sweeping changes in the Soviet Union, including creation of a legislature with real power and a president with duties akin to those of many Western heads of state.

In outlining his new policies, he also proposed that farmers be made masters of their own land to improve the availability of food.

It was not immediately clear what the legislative proposals would mean for the post of Communist Party general secretary, the job that makes Gorbachev the most powerful man in the Soviet Union.

Gorbachev spoke of a president of the Supreme Soviet who would chair the defense council and nominate the premier, or leader of the government.

Addressing his party's first general conference in nearly a half-century, Gorbachev said people should be guaranteed the right to privacy ostensibly granted by the 1977 constitution, but served notice the party would not brook organized challenges to its authority.

In a 3½-hour speech opening the conference, Gorbachev also told the 5,000 delegates that reform of state-set wholesale and retail prices "is absolutely necessary," despite widespread concern that the cost of food and consumer goods will increase drastically.

Stopping short of urging the dismantling of the Soviet Union's system of collective farms, the reform-minded Gorbachev proposed "the extensive, countrywide introduction" of a program to permit families to lease farmland from their collective and state farms and till the soil themselves, rather than as part of salaried farm brigades.

Occasionally interrupted by brief applause, Gorbachev told the delegates in the Kremlin's glass and marble Palace of Congresses that his policy of "glasnost," or greater openness, does not mean he will tolerate formation of new political parties that challenge the rule of the Communist Party.

Nor, he said, should glasnost be abused by those trying to redraw political boundaries, an obvious reference to Soviet Armenia's efforts to annex a region belonging to the neighboring republic of Azerbaijan.

Rejecting recent calls for more autonomy from delegates representing the Baltic republics, Gorbachev said, "Any obsession with national isolation can only lead to economic and cultural impoverishment."

Gorbachev called for an overhaul of the nation's legislative system to give the Supreme Soviet and the legislatures of the 15 Soviet republics real power. Now, they generally act as bodies approving decisions of the Communist Party.

The Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament, would become a full-time standing body with fewer than a third of its present 1,500 deputies, and members would be elected — as early as next spring — by a new Congress of Deputies.

The congress would be a new policy-making body similar to the existing Supreme Soviet but expanded to include representatives of various workers' and special interest groups.

Gorbachev's address, broadcast live by Soviet television and radio, is expected to be the basis for discussion by the party delegates, who will meet behind closed doors to consider various resolutions setting party policy.

Delegates have cautioned against expecting great policy changes or shifts in the top party elite at the conference, the party's first since 1941. But they've said the forum would seek to redefine the role in society of the 20 million-member ruling party.

Gorbachev also told delegates that price reform, interpreted as meaning substantial price increases, "is absolutely necessary" despite widespread concern prices for food and other goods will increase drastically.

The Soviet leader endorsed experiments that let families farm their own land to increase production. "We must overcome the estrangement between the farmer and the soil," said Gorbachev, himself the son of a Russian peasant and a former director of Soviet agricultural policy.

On the economy, he defended price increases for consumer goods as necessary to reduce heavy government subsidies. He said fairer pricing is needed to improve the quality of products and achieve "the swiftest possible saturation of the market with food products."

Soviet analysts have said a dramatic improvement in farm production, which has resisted traditional Communist management techniques, offers the best chance for quick and noticeable improvement in the standard of living. Gorbachev has made living standards a key measure of his modernization program.

In the political sphere, Gorbachev said strict demarcation of functions between the party and government organizations are needed to ensure the success of his economic reforms. But he made clear the Communist Party will not surrender its grip on power.

The Soviet leader also used the conference to ask delegates to help him consolidate his program of social and economic reform, known as "perestroika."

He said the party's policy-making Central Committee had defined the main task facing the conference as "how to further the revolutionary restructuring launched in our country and make it irreversible."

One central item on the conference's agenda would limit Communist officials to two five-year terms in one office.

The conference is closed to the foreign press, but the opening session was carried live on Soviet television and radio.

Memorial due for crash victims

"It was an in-flight breakup, which means he came apart in the air," said Armond Edwards, a senior safety investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board. "The left wing failed in flight while he was deviating around the weather, but we don't know yet how severe that weather was."

The victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Jones County Justice of the Peace Tom Isbell after the plane's wreckage was found in a grassy field early Monday. The wreckage was found one mile north of Noodle, 28 miles northwest of Abilene, officials said.

The Harr's plane was traveling to Lubbock, but air traffic controllers at Abilene Municipal Airport lost radio and radar contact with the craft about 10 to 15 minutes later, said Rody Mauldin, air traffic manager.

Mauldin said thunderstorms were reported in the area about the time radio contact was lost, but air traffic supervisor Bruce Blair said there was no rain in Abil

Lloyd Bentsen is back in spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who moved into the congressional forefront over the past three years in the Democratic drive to sharpen the nation's edge in global trade, is once again in the spotlight as Michael Dukakis mulls over his vice presidential options.

A Southwestern conservative, a Protestant in a Washington insider, Bentsen chairs the powerful Senate Finance Committee, a record on defense that is hawkish but not stridently so, what more could likely Democratic nominee Dukakis ask if a balanced ticket is his goal for the fall campaign?

No Democrat has been elected president in this century without carrying Texas, and Bentsen would be a formidable opponent in one of the states all but certain. Republican nominee George Bush calls home.

In fact, the Texas senator knows all about defeating Bush — he lost it in the 1970 senate race. Bentsen, an elegantly tailored, silver-haired patrician, is the son of a wealthy landed family from the Rio Grande Valley.

Friends describe Bentsen's way with a speech as "not incendiary." Actually, his carefully qualified, never overstated commentaries on the nation's foreign trade outlook have been known to draw yawns and glazed eyes.

Managers force major marketing push for Braniff

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff Inc.'s new executive team plans few major changes in the wake of an investor group's weekend takeover, but the managers force a major marketing push to return the airline to profitability by the end of the year.

"We think it has the potential. We think it has the people that can make that possible," chairman William McGee told a Monday news conference.

McGee led several other former Piedmont Airlines managers to Braniff, which was taken over on Saturday for about $111 million by a Paine Webber-led group.

"We are setting out to be sure that this company becomes a profitable venture," McGee said. "To whatever degree we have to move resources around to make that possible, that's what we'll do."

He said the new marketing effort would concentrate on routes where Braniff already is selling a high percentage of its available seats, but doesn't offer enough flights to attract additional business.

Also included are plans to try to attract more business travelers and enhance some in-flight amenities. But McGee refused to offer specifics.

As part of the plan, he said Braniff would continue to expand its hub operations in Kansas City and Orlando, Fla. The airline already this year has doubled its departures at Kansas City, where it competes directly with financially-troubled Eastern Airlines.

"It will involve a repositioning of assets — in this case, resources in terms of equipment and personnel as needs be — to make the company as efficient as it can be," McGee said.

Social worker identifies mysterious boy

TAMPICO, Mexico (AP) — A Mexican woman says her son is the mysterious hearing-impaired boy known as Sabath, the El Paso Times reported today.

Micaela Aguilera de Garcia, 32, of Tampico, said Monday she is making plans for a reunion with her son, the newspaper reported in a copyright story.

"I'm at peace now" — now that I know he's all right," the woman told the El Paso newspaper.

FBI agent Terry Kincaid at El Paso said he had heard reports about the Tampico woman.

"We have reports from Tampico, Mexico, from both a lady who thinks it's her son and from DIF authorities who think the picture of Sabath they were shown is the same boy who they picked up about a year ago," Kincaid said.

"I don't know if she's traveling up here," he said. "There's supposed to be a photograph coming from Tampico of her boy and another one of herself and her mother."

He said the photos will be shown to the boy to see if he recognizes them.

Aguilera's search for her 9-year-old son, nicknamed Chuy, had taken her to crowded cities and remote villages along Mexico's Gulf Coast during the past nine months.

She was arranging transportation to Juarez Monday, where Sabath, found along a highway Nov. 7, has been basking in attention and publicity.

The woman, a housekeeper who lives in a tiny Tampico house with her mother and four of her five children, said that despite her joy at learning Chuy is apparently safe, she is considering giving up the child if that would get him into a specialized school for the deaf.

Mariana Paredes de Aguilera, the boy's grandmother, grasped Sabath's picture and with tears welling in her eyes said, "Oh, that's him. My God, it's him."

Before seeing the photographs, both the grandmother and an aunt had described Chuy to a reporter and a Tampico social worker. The description exactly fit Sabath.

Paredes passed the photo to her daughter, Martha Lorena Aguilera Paredes, 17, the boy's aunt. She also identified the boy.

The boy, who is hearing-impaired, can barely speak and cannot read or write, was nicknamed Sabath because he was found on a Saturday, sabado in Spanish. He has been living in a Juarez shelter for neglected and abandoned children.

Since the story first became public three weeks ago, the mystery of Sabath has enthralled authorities and reporters around the world because of drawings he made that depict a plane crash. Many speculated he was a child from the United States whose parents and sister had died in a plane crash.

The woman said Monday that the 9½-year-old boy has had wanderlust since he was very young.

She said she suspects Chuy became almost totally deaf as a result of a bout with German measles when he was about 6 months old. He is a bright, precocious boy with a history of running away from home, she said.

Citicorp studies new acquisition

DALLAS (AP) — A team of about 20 officers has been sent to Dallas by Citicorp, the nation's largest banking organization, to study a possible acquisition of First Republic Bank Corp., officials of the Dallas-based company say.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that industry sources and a First Republic internal memo indicate that a 20-person team from Citicorp is in Dallas examining First Republic's books and financial condition.

Citicorp officials declined to comment.

The visit was arranged by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which says it is negotiating with a number of parties interested in acquiring First Republic with federal assistance.

First Republic Chairman Albert Casey told company employees in a June 27 memo that several banks have "expressed interest in First Republic Bank to the FDIC. One of those organizations is New York-based Citicorp."

Some First Republic insiders said to their knowledge Citicorp is the first potential acquiring financial institution to take an in-depth look at the bank holding company.

Tickling isn't always fun

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What would you say to a man who tickles his children until they cry?

DEAR READER: I would say that he is somewhat sadistic and ought to pick on someone his own size. Tickling has its place in horseplay, but it quickly can become unpleasant and painful. While I wouldn't necessarily label this excessive activity child abuse, it comes close. It becomes abusive when the children regard it as unpleasant, painful, invasive or simply unwelcome.

I think that the man should develop more appropriate methods of getting close to his children and having fun with them. As a general rule, youngsters cry when they are uncomfortable. This should be the indication to any grownup that the situation has progressed beyond play and that the adult should lay off.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an ex-hairdresser and have pulmonary fibrosis. My doctor feels it is from inhaling hair spray. Do you agree?

DEAR READER: The potential problems of inhaling hair spray seem to be of considerable concern to many readers. However, to my knowledge, no reputable scientific reports have identified any consistent lung abnormalities in people exposed to aerosolized hair spray. Therefore, while, in theory, this compound could cause disease, I cannot give you any practical evidence that this is so.

Pulmonary fibrosis is a chronic ailment marked by extensive scar formation in lung tissue. It is associated with severe emphysema and difficulty breathing. The disease appears with time and has a proven association with air pollution caused by tobacco smoke and industrial exposure, such as coal mining and other dusty occupations. Ask your doctor to give you the specific reasons why he believes hair spray is the basis for your fibrosis.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Living with Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 81369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What do you think of reflexology?

DEAR READER: Reflexology is a method of treating disease by massaging the soles of the feet. It is pure bunkum, sheer medical quackery. Stay away from it unless your shoes are too tight and you need to have your feet rubbed.

Bishops formulate AIDS paper

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops decided to revamp their stand on fighting AIDS to quell a division within the church, but stopped short of condemning a paper that tolerates teaching about condoms.

The National Conference of Bishops concluded Monday by unanimously approving a decision to appoint a committee to draft a new AIDS paper. The updated document would be drawn in closer consultation with the Vatican and acceptable to the entire conference, church leaders said after a closed session at St. John's University.

"The division among ourselves, the teachers, is reflected among the people," said a statement released by Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago, who made the motion for the new paper. "We cannot allow it to continue festering. Our unity must be restored so we can get on with our business."

"The Many Faces of AIDS — A Gospel Approach" was approved by the conference's administrative board and released last December but stirred controversy with the portion about condoms.
