

Sixteen unit expansion set at G-T Village

by DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Officials here with Seniors Citizens Inc. say they are hopeful that bids might be let as early as Sept. 1 for phase two of Golden Terrace Village, which would add 16 more single bedroom housing units ofered to Snyder's elderly population.

An application for funding through the Abilene district office of Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is now awaiting state approval.

Charlie Taylor, office manager for the regional FmHA in Abilene, said his office has essentially approved the project's final plans.

As soon as they are signed locally, these will be forwarded for final consideration by state FmHA officials in Temple.

Price tag for the construction is $248,000.

Through FmHA funding, this could be paid back over a 50 year period with the entire debt retired through rental monies for the units.

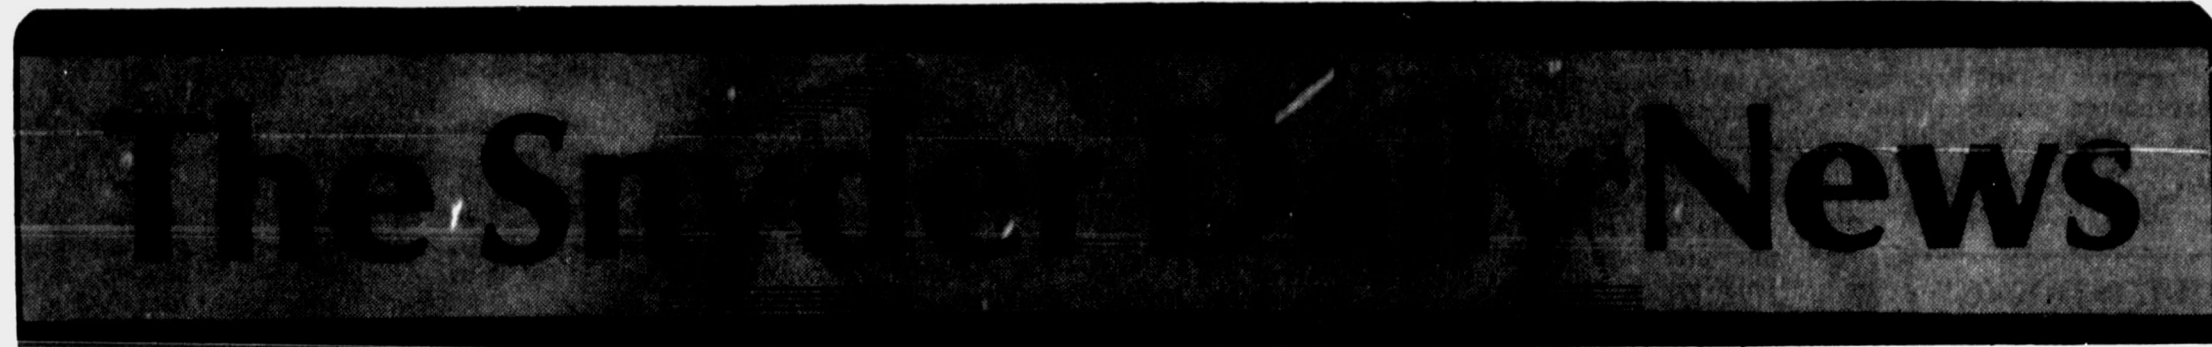

Plans are to build eight more duplexes on the southern half of the Golden Terrace Village tract. This land, comprising some 4 acres, is already owned by Senior Citizens Inc.

These would be in addition to the 24 housing units now offered.

For these units, L.E. (Doc) Griffin, housing project manager, notes there is a current waiting list of 50 names, although he estimated perhaps half of these are likely still "actively interested."

Since the 24-unit complex opened here in July of 1985, Griffin noted there have been only six turnovers.

The 16 additional units would address also what is perceived as the greatest need, one-bedroom apartments.

Jackson's convention role unsettled

ATLANTA (AP) — Democrats assemble this week to give Michael Dukakis a southern-style send-off in his race for the White House and they can only hope that Jesse Jackson, a born scene-stealer, will decide to play a supporting role.

From Monday night's warbling rendition of the Star Spangled Banner by radio personality Garrison Keillor to Thursday night's acceptance speeches by Dukakis and running mate Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic Party has spent many months and many millions on a program to boost its chances of winning the White House.

Massachusetts Gov. Dukakis marches into Dixie on Sunday as the unquestioned nominee of his party. He has more than enough delegates to crush any attempt by Jackson to alter the bare bones platform he decreed, and more than enough clout to make sure the convention ratifies his choice of Texas Sen. Bentsen as running mate.

But it will be up to Jackson, who has the allegiance of roughly one quarter of the convention's 4,210 delegates, to decide how unified and harmonious a front the party presents to the four-night prime time audience.

As Dukakis' last remaining rival for the nomination, he has promised repeatedly to support the Democratic ticket this fall. But he angrily broke off platform negotiations with Dukakis last week after learning of Bentsen's selection from a reporter rather than from the governor himself.

Whatever Jackson decides — whether he contests the platform, tries to challenge Bentsen's spot on the ticket or leaves the Omni to lead the thousands of supporters who say they will be in the streets — New Englander Dukakis' nomination will be spiced with a southern flavor.

House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas will preside as chairman and Texas State Treasurer Ann Richards will deliver the keynote address that is the highlight of Monday night's opening session. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton will place Dukakis' name in nomination on Tuesday night in another bow to a region of the country that Democrats used to win regularly in presidential elections, but now seems largely out of reach.

On the first night, the assembled Democrats also will hear from former President Jimmy Carter, a native Georgian who once served as governor.

Tuesday night's program is expected to begin with the platform and end with a speech by Jackson, with appearances by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and other party leaders in between.

Jackson's forces have prepared several minority planks to the platform, and while a vote on some or all is possible, the differences also may be ironed out in advance. Delegates will see a video presentation about Jackson, to be introduced by his children.

The party picks its nominee on Wednesday, with Dukakis and Jackson the only names entered into nomination.

Bentsen will be picked for vice president on Thursday — with or without a fight by the Jackson forces — and then he and Dukakis will deliver their acceptance speeches.

Party officials say that anyone interested in challenging Bentsen's nomination must submit a petition with between 300 and 600 delegate signatures by Thursday morning. Jackson has more than enough supporters in the hall to accomplish that, if he wants.

County may cut tax rate

Sales tax income cited as reason

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

With an increased estimate on how much the new half-cent county sales tax will bring in during the last half of this year, Scurry County commissioners are now hopeful they will be able to reduce the county's 29.6 cents per $100 valuation property tax for next year.

They had been planning to leave the tax rate unchanged with only about $300,000 to be generated by the sales tax, but an estimate received from the state comptroller's office last week indicated $393,000 will be received.

The commissioners court concluded a week of budget hearings with department heads Friday.

From those talks, preliminary indications are that county employees can expect another year of frozen salaries.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin said he hopes that an improved economy next year will allow raises for 1990.

It is a certainty that the current budget of $3,028,965 will not be increased, Goodwin said.

53rd rodeo to return 'under the stars'

The 53rd go of the annual Scurry County Rodeo will be "back under the stars" this year as the event returns to the rodeo association's outdoor arena on west 30th St.

Three days of rodeo action will begin Thursday with performances nightly at 8 o'clock through Saturday.

Events tied to the rodeo will begin Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. with the West Texas Barrel Racing Association competition.

This will be followed Wednesday by the annual stockholders roping for members of the Scurry County Rodeo Association. It will be at the rodeo grounds beginning at 6 p.m.

Next Saturday morning, a slack team roping will be held also.

Also scheduled again this year is the rodeo parade, being planned by the Scurry County Sheriffs Posse. The parade will be next Saturday beginning at 4 p.m. and will precede the final performance of the rodeo.

Each night following the rodeo performance, a dance will be held at the slab area of the rodeo grounds. Providing the entertainment will be Jody Nix of Big Spring.

This year's event will be affiliated with the Texas Cowboy's Rodeo Association with contestants earning points toward TCRA competition.

The competition book for entrants will open Monday at 8 a.m. and will close at 6 p.m. the same day. The number to call to enter is 573-8952.

Stock for the rodeo will be provided by Smoky Davis of Fulshear.

Events each night at the rodeo will include saddle bronc riding, See RODEO, page 13A

Six entities due certified tax roll

The certified tax roll—which six local taxing entities will use later this summer for tax rate decisions—was completed Friday by Scurry County Appraisal District personnel.

Following a trend begun here in the mid-1980s, a declining Scurry County tax base was again noted, although not as drastic as experienced the past two years.

For the four Snyder-based entities, the percentage decline quoted was Scurry County, minus 10.1 percent; Snyder ISD, minus 11.9 percent; Western Texas College, minus 10.2 percent; and City of Snyder, minus 3.8 percent.

For the two rural school districts, Ira ISD suffered a tax base loss of minus 5.8 percent while Hermleigh ISD, due to scattered oil discoveries, enjoyed a plus 9.3 percent for its taxable value.

In 1985, Scurry County as a taxing entity had a tax base of some $2.5 billion. It is now estimated at approximately $946 million.

The decline is tied to oil values, which in 1985 were estimated at more than $1.9 billion. They are now estimated at $461 million.

The following lists the tax roll for individual entities:

—Scurry County: a total taxable value of $946,560,859 to include approximately $326 million in real estate; $461 million in mineral values; and $159 million in industrial value. Last year at this time, the county's taxable value was $1,053,131,733.

—Snyder ISD: a total taxable value of $827,139,034 which is reduced almost $16 million due to

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The young man who thinks the world owes him a living will soon become the old man who blames the world for his failures."

More than two years ago, members of the Economic Development Committee resolved to maintain close contacts with the Texas Department of Corrections.

Representatives of the Snyder community have personally visited each board member, key staffers and have attended every regular meeting of the TDC board.

Snyder faces have become familiar fixtures at TDC gatherings, and two from Scurry County, Roy Baze and Jack Smartt, were in Gatesville last Monday when the TDC combined a groundbreaking ceremony with a regular board meeting.

Construction has begun on a 2,250-bed maximum security unit named after former TDC Board Chairman Al Hughes. Hughes was chairman of the board when Snyder was selected as the site for a 1,000-bed facility due for construction later this month.

Like the Snyder groundbreaking ceremony, rain moved the event indoors. When the Snyder duo had an opportunity to speak to TDC Director Jim Lynaugh and Deputy Director Andy Collins, both recalled the rains that occurred on the Monday of the Snyder groundbreaking.

Said Lynaugh, "Andy and I are thinking about getting moonlighting jobs as rain-makers."

Early this year it seemed fashionable in Snyder to wear a "cause" button. It was about the time that Snyder city officials were working to eradicate the Asian clams from the city water supply.

As a prank, we manufactured and wore a "Save the Clams" button, but Mayor Troy Williamson retaliated this week with the presentation of our own supply of Snyder clams.

The mayor's proclamation cited vision is turning the clam situation into a high-tech industry—Asian Clam earrings.

We were given the first pair of earrings city engineer Don Osborn made from this unique Scurry County product. The timing was appropriate—we had an anniversary gift to buy this week.

A — TDC gives job assignment priority to existing personnel, so any individuals wishing to transfer to the local unit from another assignment would be considered first. Once these requests are addressed, it is expected all remaining positions would be filled by local applicants.

In Brief

Warsaw Pact

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Leaders of the seven-nation Warsaw Pact ended their summit Saturday by calling for a mutual East-West moratorium on increases in military spending and talks before the end of the year on reducing conventional arms.

The Communist allies also signed a statement expressing concern about the effects of the arms race on the environment.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev departed for Moscow several hours after the meeting, ending a six-day visit to Poland.

80th event

Organized in July of 1908, Union Baptist Church will celebrate its 80th anniversary Sunday.

In addition to the regular morning worship service, special activities will include a 2 p.m. anniversary service which will involve past pastors, members of the congregation and special music.

Lunch will be served on the grounds beginning at noon.

Rodeo banners

The Scurry County Sheriff's Posse is still offering rodeo banners to be displayed in conjunction with the 53rd annual Scurry County Rodeo to begin Thursday and the AJRA National Finals Aug. 9-13.

The prices, depending on flag size, are $10, $18 and $27.50.

To receive a banner, contact 573-7285, 573-2816 or 573-8426.

Parade entries

Float entries for the annual rodeo parade set for 4 p.m. next Saturday are now needed with prize money of $200 for first place, $150 for second and $100 for third offered if a minimum of five floats are entered.

To enter, contact 573-7285, 573-2816 or 573-8426.

The parade will be sponsored by the Scurry County Sheriff's Posse.

Surprised by birth...

Father wants airline baby

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A woman who secretly gave birth in an airliner restroom concealed the pregnancy from her husband after he raised questions about her weight gain while they were having marital problems, a lawyer said.

The husband, Louis Locasto, saw his 3-day-old daughter for the first time on Friday and said he would fight to gain custody of her. Social workers filed court documents seeking to keep the baby for another 10 days.

"We'll make allegations regarding the behavior of the mother that resulted in the need for us to intervene on behalf of the child," said Robert McMillan, head of San Mateo County's Children's Protective Services.

Those allegations, filed in court Friday, are confidential, McMillan said.

Christina Marie Locasto, 24, surrendered to police Thursday and was charged with felony child endangerment for leaving the newborn under the restroom sink. She pleaded innocent and was released after posting $50,000 bail.

Locasto appeared shaken at a news conference Friday. He did not speak, deferring to his lawyer, and Mrs. Locasto did not attend.

"We are going to request in court Monday that the child be released to him as its father, and there are no charges against him" as an unfit parent, said his attorney Vicki Yeley.

Attorneys for Mrs. Locasto say she also wants her daughter back.

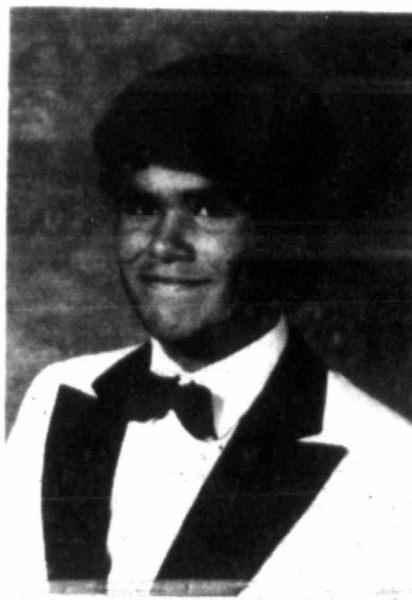

A closed hearing Monday in juvenile court will determine whether to continue the county's temporary custody of the child; a permanent custody hearing will be held later.

Locasto told investigators he did not know his wife was pregnant or had given birth during a flight Wednesday from Newark, N.J., to San Francisco.

Locasto suspected his wife was pregnant but she denied it when he questioned her about the weight she had gained around her waist, Yeley said.

Mrs. Locasto told investigators the couple was having marital problems at the time, but that those problems have since been resolved, Yeley said, adding that Locasto has no reason to doubt the infant is his.

Earlier Friday, the New York City couple visited their baby at Mills Memorial Hospital in San Mateo, about 30 miles south of San Francisco, where the brown-haired, blue-eyed girl was in good condition.

Ambassador calls ouster arbitrary

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Nicaragua's ambassador to the United States, who left Washington just minutes before a State Department deadline for his departure, called his expulsion arbitrary and illegal.

Carlos Tunnermann left Washington on a commercial flight five minutes before the expulsion order took effect at 5:30 p.m. EDT Friday.

About a dozen police officers were at the airline's gate at National Airport to make sure Tunnermann got on the plane. Two police cars followed the jet out to the runway and waited for it to depart.

He spent Friday night in Mexico City and was expected to leave today for Managua.

At an airport news conference here, Tunnermann said his government was right to expel U.S. Ambassador Richard Melton. But he said the Reagan administration, which expelled him in retaliation, had no basis for expelling Nicaraguan diplomats.

"If we expelled Melton we had reasons to do so because Melton was interfering in internal affairs of Nicaragua in the spirit of destabilizing our government," he said.

He said Melton attended meetings where participants discussed replacing the Nicaraguan government.

"My work was absolutely diplomatic. We do not question the decision of the United States, even though it was unjustified, but in the case of Melton we were right," he said.

Nicaragua expelled Melton and seven other U.S. Embassy officials on Monday. A day later, the Reagan administration gave Tunnermann and seven other embassy officials 72 hours to leave the country.

The administration also described the action as retaliatory, but said Tunnermann and the military attache, Maj. Pedro Sampson, had abused their privilege of residence.

Tunnermann called that "a very vague charge."

For Tunnermann, it was an unhappy ending to his 3½-year stay in Washington in the somewhat lonesome role as the Sandinista government's chief defender in Washington.

Tunnermann served both as ambassador to the United States and to the Organization of American States, and he maintained throughout that the United States had no right to expel him, citing guarantees contained in the OAS charter.

Shortly before leaving on his flight to Mexico City, he took a parting shot at the administration, insisting that the U.S. action threatened the independence of the OAS and saying his government would seek recourse through OAS legal channels.

In Mexico, he said the United States should have given the OAS a list of the alleged abuses but did not.

"Today it's Nicaragua, tomorrow, another country," he said. "This is the height of arbitrariness."

Nicaragua's expulsions of U.S. diplomats came the same day the government closed a Roman Catholic radio station and an opposition newspaper and one day after government troops violently suppressed an anti-government demonstration.

U.S. House and Senate condemnation of Sandinista leaders for the crackdown on the opposition has revived the possibility that Congress could approve new military aid for the U.S.-backed rebels known as Contras.

Brown shrimp season opens

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Thousands of trawlers streamed into the Gulf Saturday for the opening of the brown shrimp season, a highly competitive industry that some officials say is becoming harder to stay in.

At least 300 boats from Texas, Louisiana, Florida and Mississippi sailed from Galveston Bay and hundreds more were expected to depart from ports all along the Texas coast.

Shrimp trawling is done at night when brown shrimp move. During the day, trawling sometimes yields only one pound of shrimp for every 10 pounds of fish, but night trawling nets 10 pounds of shrimp to one pound of fish.

In addition, predatory fish are less likely to see shrimp caught in the bag of a net, said Ronnie Hornbeck of Port Bolivar, who has fished for 25 years.

Some boats carry thousands of dollars of fuel, food, extra nets and other gear, for a trawling trip that can last up to two weeks.

Shrimpers pull up to four nets through the water at 3 mph and communicate on citizens band radio, sometimes using codes to help each other find shrimp.

The biggest boats are about 100 feet long and are, in effect, little ships that can trawl right through storms that made earlier boats run for safe harbor.

But officials say the financial risks shrimpers take are growing. Some boat owners face notes of up to $2,500 a month.

Two days slated for commodities

Commodities of milk, flour and butter will be distributed to senior citizens and handicapped persons from 9 until 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday at the Senior Citizens Center, 2603 Ave. M.

Also, these commodities will be given to other eligible residents of Scurry County on Wednesday from 9-11:30 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. M.

Eligibility guidelines for citizens of Scurry County are posted at the Senior Center. There will be no make-up day and all individuals are asked to enter through the north door of the building and to bring paper sacks or boxes to transport commodities.

Lawmen acquitted in "rights" trial

HEMPHILL, Texas (AP) — Three white lawmen accused of beating to death a black jail inmate arrested for drunken driving have been acquitted on charges they violated his civil rights, but face a new trial on murder charges.

The state district court jury's verdicts Friday drew angry reactions from the black community in this East Texas town.

"If there's justice for all in a free society, then it seems like there's justice for whites only in this society," said Will Smith, a preacher from the Church of Christ. "The message is to me that as black folks, we better be careful."

Suspended Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner, 41, and Sabine County deputies James "Bo" Hyde, 35, and Bill Horton, 58, were charged in the death of Loyal Garner Jr., a truck driver who was jailed in Hemphill Christmas night.

The three now face murder charges in Tyler, about 65 miles northwest of here, where Garner died in a hospital two days after he was jailed. Defense attorney Paul Buchanan said he would file pretrial motions today contending the upcoming trial places the men in double jeopardy. That trial is to begin Monday.

In February, an inquest jury in Tyler ruled that Garner died of head injuries. A pathologist testified that Garner suffered severe brain hemorrhaging after apparently being struck on the head at least twice.

Corrine Garner, the victim's wife, said she was disappointed by the verdicts, handed down after 11 hours of deliberations by a jury that included a black woman.

"I guess we'll have to go to Tyler," she said, referring to the murder charges.

Garner's mother, Sarah, said, "I'm not worried. It's not what I'm going to get, I turn it over to God. It's what God's going to get. I'm going to keep on hoping."

Conviction by the district court jury of violating Garner's civil rights could have meant a maximum life sentence for each of the lawmen.

The lawmen refused to talk to reporters Friday, as did the jurors.

Special prosecutor John Hannah said he would take the case to the U.S. Justice Department and urge them to file indictments of conspiracy to violate Garner's civil rights.

Garner, 34, of Florien, La., and two others were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving Christmas night just outside Hemphill. He allegedly was beaten unconscious that night in the county jail.

The lawmen took the stand during the two-week trial and denied they struck the fatal blows.

Prosecutors relied on testimony by Alton Maxie, who was arrested and jailed along with his brother Johnnie Maxie and Garner, that Ladner hit Garner with a night stick on the head at least four times.

"When Ladner hit him, Loyal put his hand over his head."

In Los Angeles...

Crackdown urged on gangs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Los Angeles drug gangs are spreading cocaine and violence in cities nationwide and may become a new form of organized crime unless they are stopped soon, the Los Angeles County district attorney warns.

"This isn't organized crime as we understand that today. But I think it's the genesis of a new form of organized crime involved in drug trafficking," District Attorney Ira Reiner said Friday.

"If we don't stamp it out throughout the country now, while it is still manageable, we can come back 10 years from now and talk about the full-blown problem of organized crime, because that is what it will be," he said.

Reiner was among about 50 law officers from 11 Midwest and Western cities who attended a two-day conference to develop a national strategy to fight the spread of Los Angeles drug gangs.

Members of 25 Los Angeles street gang "sets" or factions have been reported dealing drugs in more than 45 cities, authorities said.

The gangs are spreading to medium-sized cities because of increased pressure from police in Southern California and declining drug prices in that area, where cocaine is abundant.

"It's fair to say that these gangs are trying to take over the retail distribution of cocaine in many parts of the country," said Frank Storey, agent in charge of the Kansas City FBI office.

Authorities say members of two prominent rival drug gangs from Los Angeles, the Crips and the Bloods, have infiltrated cities from Alaska to Washington, D.C., selling cocaine and its powerful derivative, crack.

Last year, 387 people died in gang-related violence in Los Angeles, about half of them innocent bystanders. More than 110 people have died in the city so far this year, including a San Diego State University student who police say was gunned down for wearing a red shirt. Red is the color of the Bloods; the Crips wear blue-colored clothing.

Participants in the seminar discussed development of a national computerized data bank to keep track of the movements of gang-related drug dealers, Storey said.

Larry Kramer, commander of the Los Angeles Police Department, said authorities also agreed to try prosecuting gang members on federal charges more often. "There is, quite frankly, much more certainty of a protracted penalty through the federal system," Kramer said.

Los Angeles County sheriff's Lt. Charles Brantley, who directs a gang-fighting force known as Operation Safe Streets, said he advised fellow law officers to act quickly to crack down on Los Angeles drug-gang members infiltrating their communities.

"Of course, everyone knows that in Los Angeles we've reached the point where we're really fighting a hard battle," Brantley said. "But in some of these cities that only have 50 or 60 gang members, now's the time to stop it."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the National Industrial Recovery Act into law in 1933.

On downed airliner...
Compromise likely

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union and China criticized the United States for downing an Iranian airliner over the Persian Gulf, but the Security Council is likely to consider a compromise that distributes the blame.

Iran failed to get Security Council members to condemn the United States Friday for the July 3 attack that left 290 people dead, and most nations said the urgent priority is to end the 8-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

The Soviet Union said the U.S. Navy must withdraw from the gulf in favor of a U.N. peacekeeping force.

"This tragedy has demonstrated once again that the U.S. naval fleet must leave the gulf without delay," said Valentine V. Lozinskiy, the deputy Soviet representative.

Iran had asked for the Security Council meeting on the shooting down of the Airbus A300 by the U.S. Navy cruiser Vincennes. The 15-nation Security Council adjourned the matter until Monday after debating the gulf disaster for a second day on Friday.

The council president for July, Ambassador Paulo Nogueira-Batista of Brazil, is trying to draft a document that would be acceptable to everyone and save face for Iran.

Poll finds staff unhappy

AUSTIN (AP) — An agency-wide survey in which more than 90 percent of LCRA employees participated, also concluded river authority employees "perceive that LCRA is like a ship without a rudder, having no discernible vision or mission."

Fifty-eight percent of employees doubt management's ability to lead the organization, and 66 percent reported a climate of distrust within the organization.

LCRA General Manager S. David Freeman said the survey findings show a lack of communication between management and employees and reflect the increasingly competitive environment of the utility business and the added pressure that places on utility workers.

"I've worked in organizations at the staff level. It's naive to think that people down the line don't have aggravation and unhappiness," Freeman said.

LCRA board members, who also got copies of the report this week, are scheduled to be briefed by Freeman next week on what steps will be taken to improve employee relations.

Today's Lucky Number is 7544

Iran's presence at the meeting was its first appearance at the council, which it has boycotted since the beginning of the Iran-Iraq war in 1980.

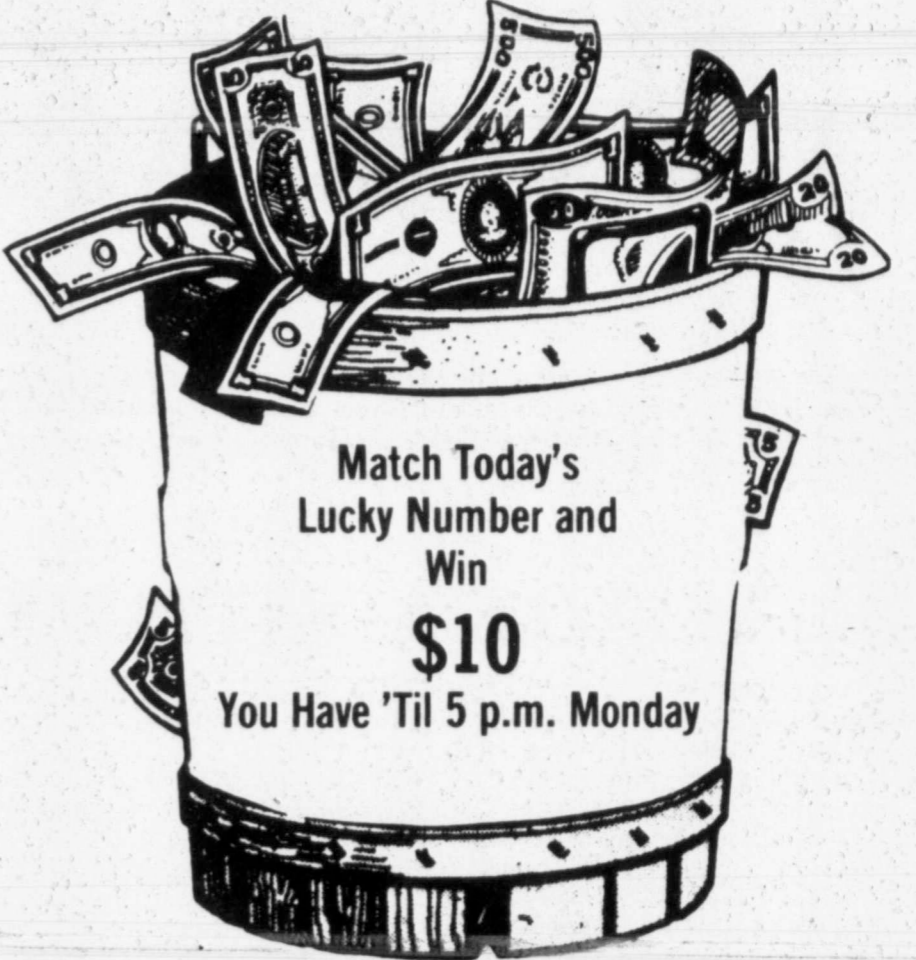

Diplomatic sources said council members feel Iran must achieve something at the meeting or it will continue boycotting the council and continue rejecting a year-old Security Council resolution that demands an immediate cease-fire.

On Thursday, Foreign Minister

Ali-Akbar Velayati of Iran condemned the United States before the council, and Vice President George Bush said the Vincennes acted in self defense when fired on the airliner.

Pentagon officials said the cruiser's officers thought the Airbus A300 was an Iranian F-14 on an attack course.

Thirteen nations spoke Friday, including Britain, China, France, Italy, Japan, West Germany, Yugoslavia, Algeria and Argentina.

Texas Business magazine victim of state economy

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Business magazine, which for 12 years has chronicled the rise and most recently the fall of industries in the state, has itself become a casualty of the slumping economy.

The magazine suspended operations Friday, one week after celebrating its 12th anniversary and unveiling plans for a new look that included better graphics, a new logo and more photography.

All 18 members of the magazine staff have been released and few expect the publication to return to operations, said William G. Smith, executive editor.

"There is a chance some miracle might occur and some investor with deep pockets might come in and resuscitate us. We don't think the likelihood of that is very high, but we're holding out hope," Smith said.

But for now the magazine staff plans to stick around long enough to put out the August issue, which should be out by next week.

Smith said the magazine's predicament reflected what has happened to Texas businesses.

"We were glossing over our own truth. We got high on our own height," Smith said.

But when the bottom fell out on oil prices, it took many of the magazines' advertisers down as well.

"All of a sudden when oil prices went to below $10 a barrel, everybody's confidence went south," he said.

Financial Focus

Socially acceptable stocks and mutual funds

Years ago, an investor was reviewing her portfolio. The purpose of her blue-chip investment was to give a generous income while still offering the opportunity of future growth.

Several stocks were suggested, and one company was in tobacco. The investor rejected any company that sold or promoted tobacco. While the broker viewed the stock from an investment value, she viewed it from a social one. There are many who refuse to invest in companies whose business violates their principles, and their wishes must be respected.

When selecting individual securities, stocks or bonds, this generally offers little problems. The business of a company and its products are available with a minimum of research. If your findings do violate your convictions, don't invest. That's simple enough, but what if you are investing in mutual funds?

Today, mutual funds invest not only for the small, individual investor, but also for major retirement plans, endowment funds, trusts, etc. One mutual fund recently reported that they manage money for more than 8,000 institutional investors. And this is only one mutual fund.

If your retirement dollars are a part of your company's multi-million plan, you probably have little input as to how those funds are invested. If you select a mutual fund, you are placing your confidence in the managers of that fund and giving them total discretion, within the limits set forth in the prospectus.

If they choose a stock that does not meet your approval, your choice is to accept it or to liquidate your fund shares. A mutual fund's portfolio does not in actual practice get a lot of review or criticism from the shareholders.

Most mutual fund shareholders don't care as long as the results are good. If you are one interested in the social or religious implications of your investment but still like the benefits of mutual fund investing, take heart. A recent issue of Changing Times addressed the question of "social funds."

The magazine reviewed five special-purpose funds handling a large part of some $1 billion invested in this manner. No doubt the number will continue to grow if they are successful. A special report by Insight, an advisory letter published in Boston, lists nine of these "socially responsible funds" and two money market funds.

These funds range in size from less than $5 million in assets to a high of more than $180 million in assets. The oldest of these funds was begun in 1981, making it difficult to assay social funds against the fund universal.

What these funds do invest in is very similar—no alcohol, tobacco, nuclear power or gambling. It boils down to a matter of individual conscience. Whereas some look on defense spending as immoral, one fund's largest holdings are in stocks of companies who deal in defense contracting. That's responsible only if you agree with their moral values.

If you have not seen advertising on these funds, it may be because they often direct those advertising dollars to publications that appeal to the largest segment of potential investors.

If interested in knowing more about "socially acceptable" stocks, a call or letter to the Social Investment Forum, 711 Atlantic Ave., Boston, 02111 (617) 423-6655 will put you in contact with the right people.

"Trying to kill treaty..."

Administration is criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief negotiator of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty and the head of the private Arms Control Association say the Reagan administration is trying in its waning months to scuttle the accord.

Gerard C. Smith, the former negotiator, and Spurgeon Keeny Jr., head of the arms control group, leveled the accusations Friday as President Reagan weighed conflicting opinions from his senior advisers on what to do.

The U.S. military joint chiefs of staff urged him to hold to the treaty while William F. Burns Jr., head of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, recommended that he charge Moscow with a "material breach" of the treaty.

The Reagan administration, meanwhile, is awaiting a response from Moscow on a date for a five-year review of the ABM treaty, considered a cornerstone of the arms control process.

At issue is the Soviet phased array radar station at Krasnoyarsk that Reagan has already labeled a violation of the 1972 treaty in two reports to Congress. While the Soviets deny any infraction, even many liberal critics of the administration's arm control policy question the legality of the facility.

The treaty limits U.S. and Soviet defenses against ballistic missiles and stands in the way of Reagan's quest for a space-based defense against Soviet rockets.

Keeny said that although the Soviet installation "is inconsistent with the ABM treaty's provisions, labeling Krasnoyarsk as a material breach would be a gross exaggeration of its military and legal significance and clearly is designed as a last-gasp effort to kill the ABM treaty in the waning days of the administration rather than solve the problem."

Former negotiator Smith said "having been blocked by Congress from killing the treaty through reinterpretation, it appears the administration is trying to find another way to kill the treaty."

A U.S. official speaking on condition of anonymity told The Associated Press that even if Reagan accepted the advice of Burns and other hard liners, it did not mean he would abandon the treaty.

The chiefs recommended that Reagan not charge the Soviets with a material breach because that could lead to an unraveling of the treaty, the official said. "The chiefs are convinced if that happens the Soviets are in a better position to take advantage of a breakout," the official said.

This puts the chiefs at odds with Burns, who takes a harder stance on the treaty than the military but would give the Soviets time to level the facilities before the United States retaliated.

Reagan is not likely to make a decision until a date for review is set with the Soviets. "We're still working on it," the official said.

North Texas judges call halt to lawyer tactics

DALLAS (AP) — Several North Texas judges, objecting to attorneys' behavior, devised a code of manners they hope will restore civility in their courts.

Eleven judges issued a 20-page order this week declaring the problem known as "hardball" lawyering as "so pernicious that it threatens to delay the administration of justice and to place litigation beyond the financial reach of litigants."

The judges decried lawyers' hostility and increasing willingness to insist that a judge settle minor disputes between them.

"With alarming frequency, we find that valuable judicial and attorney time is consumed in resolving unnecessary contention and sharp practices between lawyers," U.S. District Judge Sidney Fitzwater wrote for the court Thursday. "Judges and magistrates of this court are required to devote substantial attention to refereeing abusive litigation tactics that range from benign incivility to outright obstruction."

The code of conduct, an adaptation of Dallas Bar Association's "Guidelines of Professional Courtesy," is backed by sanctions ranging from public scoldings to fines.

The American Bar Association, in its March 1 issue, said the "hardball," "Rambo" or "scorched-earth tactics" are a national trend characterized by "a conviction that it is invariably in your interest to make life miserable for your opponent."

Jessica's nurse ordered to leave the U.S.

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Even being a nurse to Jessica McClure, the young girl rescued from an abandoned well, is not enough to impress the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Despite appeals from such influential friends as the McClures, Mavis Felix-Walton must pack her bags and be out of the United States by July 26. Ms. Felix-Walton is a British citizen who moved to the United States four years ago. She says she is being held responsible for her ex-husband's actions. Her ex-husband Ronny Walton withdrew his petition support for her applications for U.S. citizenship. "I have a lot to offer this community. It just isn't fair. I haven't relied on this state or this country for support," Ms. Felix-Walton told the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Jessica McClure, 2, tumbled into an abandoned well in her babysitter's back yard and spent 58 hours there before her dramatic rescue that captured national and international attention. Ms. Felix-Walton was Jessica's nurse after the toddler was released from Midland Memorial Hospital.

On Monday, Ms. Felix-Walton received a certified letter in the mail from immigration officials ordering her to bring no more than two pieces of luggage to El Paso for immediate deportation at month's end. But she says she should not have to leave. Because of the current nursing shortage, she should be allowed to attain U.S. citizenship, according to her attorney, Paul Douglas of El Paso. Ms. Felix-Walton said she successfully completed a required exam to allow her to work as a registered nurse as well as apply for permanent citizen status. But, Douglas said the INS denied the application stating Ms. Felix-Walton was a "nursing coordinator" and not a "hands-on" professional. The McClure family wrote a letter on her behalf to President Reagan, but learned later Ms. Felix-Walton must reapply for citizenship outside the United States. Ms. Felix-Walton, who is 37, has been undergoing chemotherapy treatment since learning in March she had breast cancer.

"Awful city" rolls out the red carpet

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A Corpus Christi resort manager passed out "Peace in Our Time" T-shirts here Friday to apologize for telling tourists that if they got lost, "something awful (could) happen to you like ending up in Wichita Falls."

Stern Feinberg Jr. said he never meant to insult this city of 100,000 on the North Texas plains when he mailed out a letter addressed to "Texas Road Warriors" asking them to think of the Best Western Sandy Shores when they planned a trip to the Gulf Coast.

"Summer is coming and you will probably want to take an auto trip through Texas," his letter began.

"Here is a nice map prepared by our Texas Best Westerns. Without a good map you might wander aimlessly around the state and something awful happens to you, like ending up in Wichita Falls."

Jim Lonergan, publisher of the Wichita Falls Times Record News, heard about the promotion.

Instead of getting mad, the city and its Board of Commerce and Industry got even. Feinberg was invited to visit the city and Lonergan guaranteed his personal safety. Feinberg and Corpus Christi Mayor Betty Turner took Lonergan up on the offer and spent a day in Wichita Falls. The city about 150 miles northwest of the Dallas-Fort Worth area is an agricultural and oil producing center and home of an Air Force training base. It was devastated in 1979 by a tornado that still rates as the worst such storm in Texas history, and brags about its extreme weather in the theme of its annual summer bicycle marathon, the Hotter 'n Hell One Hundred.

Flanked by civic leaders, Feinberg and Mrs. Turner began their tour at the city's 54-foot-high waterfall. Feinberg accepted souvenirs such as a wind sock, a water bottle from the Hotter 'n Hell One Hundred, a plaque proclaiming him an honorary citizen, and a bushel of Wichita Falls-grown peaches. He retaliated throughout the day with wisecracks.

Play Hamlin again Monday...

All-Stars wreck Rotan, 22-1

ROTAN -- Snyder's All-Stars began tentatively but closed with a show of force to drill Rotan 22-1 in the District II Little League Tournament here Friday evening.

In the day's other game, Anson handed Hamlin its first loss, 17-4.

Snyder and Hamlin will square off in an elimination game at 7 p.m. Monday here with the winner advancing to meet Anson on Tuesday.

The All-Stars drew a couple of walks over the first two innings Friday but both were left stranded. Reagan Key got things going in the third inning however, when he touched Rotan pitcher Fabian Romero for a leadoff single. It was the first of four hits in a three-RBI night for the Snyder center fielder.

Next-up Adrian Sneed walked, as did Jason Pierce. Key scored when Brad Hart hit into an error and Sneed came home on a muffed pop fly hit by Jeremy Alarcon.

Snyder added four more runs in the fourth inning. Jim Pat Griffin opened with a double off the center field wall - one of three doubles to the wall for him - and Curt Rinehart walked. Key then slapped them home with a double of his own, and also scored when Sneed singled. Sneed raced home on a wild pitch to give Snyder a 6-0 lead.

The All-Stars came up with seven runs in the fifth and nine in the sixth. Griffin singled in the fifth and slammed two doubles in the sixth. Key had a single in each inning, and Hart powered a two-run homer in the sixth. Others getting hits over the final two innings included Sneed, Rinehart, Jason Pierce and Jared Graves.

In all, nine Snyder players got hits in the game. Still others reached via walks or errors. The team put together 16 hits for the game, led by Griffin and Key, who managed four apiece.

The Rotan team was kept under control by one-hit pitching from Craig Lang. The Snyder hurler struck out nine players and walked seven. Rotan loaded the bases more than once, but did not get a hit until Jay Carreon's single with two out in the bottom of the third inning.

The All-Stars' win included some solid defensive play, including a fine catch by short stop Pierce, who robbed Matt Mercer of what looked like a sure hit in the fourth inning. Pierce moved quickly to his right and leapt high to glove the ball.

"I thought Craig did a real good job and the kids played good defense behind him," said team manager George Page. "We were more aggressive at the plate tonight and it made a difference. We're glad to have a chance to play Hamlin again on Monday."

Hamlin defeated the All-Stars earlier in the week 6-3.

NO YOU DON'T -- Rotan's Brian Carreon tried to take home on a wild pitch during Friday's game with Snyder but catcher Brad Hart recovered the ball in time to get it to pitcher Craig Lang (above), who made an easy tag on the runner. Snyder popped the hometown club 22-1 and will play Hamlin at 7 p.m. Monday as the Little League Tournament continues. (SDN Staff Photo)

American League roundup...

Morgan bats 2-0 for openers

by The Associated Press
 Roger Clemens made sure Joe Morgan will remember his debut as Boston Red Sox manager.

So did the rest of the Red Sox, who swept Kansas City 3-1 and 7-4 Friday night, making Morgan 2-0 since taking over Thursday from the fired John McNamara.

"Everybody wants to win for the man because nothing is definite," Mike Greenwell said. "We've got to go out and play for him."

Clemens pitched a five-hitter and struck out 16 Royals for the second time this season in the opener. He lowered his earned run average to 2.29 and completely dominated the Royals.

Wade Boggs and Rick Cerone homered in the second game for Boston, which had lost eight of its last 12 games under McNamara.

Elsewhere in the American League, Jimmy Key pitched a two-hitter as Toronto edged Oakland 1-0; California won its seventh straight game, 6-4 over Detroit; Seattle beat Cleveland 8-5; New York took Chicago 5-3; Minnesota defeated Baltimore 4-2; and Milwaukee got its fifth consecutive win, 4-2 over Texas.

Brewers 4, Rangers 2
 At Arlington, Texas, Ted Higuera pitched a five-hitter before needing last-out relief from Dan Plesac and Paul Molitor had three hits in Milwaukee's fifth consecutive win.

Higuera, 7-5, struck out 12 and allowed no walks.

Higuera lost his shutout in the ninth. With two outs and runners on second and third, Scott Fletcher singled to second and Jim Gantner committed a throwing error.

Plesac then replaced Higuera and got Ruben Sierra on a groundout.

Blue Jays 1, Athletics 0
 At Oakland, Key got his fourth straight victory since coming off the disabled list and George Bell drove in the only run.

Key, 6-1, struck out three and walked two in his first shutout and complete game of the year, facing just 21 batters in the final seven innings.

He beat Oakland ace Dave Stewart, 12-8, who allowed 10 hits in his eighth complete game.

Bell drove in the game's only run with a single in the third inning and he also threw out a runner at the plate.

Angels 6, Tigers 4
 California built a 6-0 lead and held on. Jack Howell hit a three-run homer in the first inning for the Angels.

Mike Witt, 7-9, survived the Tigers' comeback to go 7 1-3 innings, allowing eight hits. Brian Harvey finished for his 10th save.

Detroit starter Doyle Alexander lasted just 1 1-3 innings.

Leonard resigns as boxing adviser

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -- Sugar Ray Leonard's resignation as an adviser to the U.S. Olympic boxing program plunged the team into further chaos as the final fights for spots on the squad began.

Leonard quit Friday, taking a shot at new head coach Tom Coulter and complaining that his ideas on amateur boxing had fallen on deaf ears.

"My advice has been to a sound-proof wall," said Leonard, a gold medalist in the 1976 Olympics. "This is my first love - amateur boxing - but my expertise was never used."

The resignation came a day after three candidates for the team were disqualified for drug use and Coulter was appointed head coach to take the place of Ken Adams, suspended for allegedly assaulting a team staffer.

Fighters in 11 weight classes were to meet Saturday in the Olympic box-offs at Caesars Palace, the final selection process for the team that will represent the United States in Seoul. The 165-pound champion Anthony Hembrick was declared winner by a walkover and qualified for the Olympic team.

Leonard claimed that Adams, of the U.S. Army, should have been replaced by Army coach Hank Johnson.

"He has five champions here," Leonard said of Johnson, five of whose boxers won titles at the Olympic trials last week in Concord, Calif.

Some of the boxers agreed. "We need to have a military coach," said super heavyweight Robert Salters, who is stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C. "I'm crossing my fingers they name Hank Johnson."

Salters said, however, that he (see LEONARD, page 7A)

Third round postponed...

Rain swamps British Open

LYTHAM, England (AP) - Heavy rain flooded at least four greens and forced postponement of the third round of the British Open on Saturday.

Tournament organizers said it was possible the entire third and fourth rounds would be played Sunday, but no official word was released.

Scores shot early Saturday were thrown out.

The last time the open finished with a 36-hole final day was in 1961, when the tournament ended on Saturday.

Since the open went to a Sunday finish in 1980, it never has had more than the scheduled 18 holes played the final day. And, in its first 116 editions, golf's oldest tournament never has finished on a Monday.

Half the field of 71 golfers was on the course when rains, which started just after dawn, picked up.

A downpour about 2½ hours after the first starters, Payne Stewart and Gordon Brand Jr., teed off flooded greens at the ninth, 10th, 11th and 12th holes, and play was suspended at 7:20 a.m. EDT.

Officials waited an hour and 25 minutes before announcing that play had been washed out.

By that time, standing water, ankle deep in some spots, had flooded the 11th and 12th fairways, and the ninth and 11th greens looked like small lakes.

All of the worst-hit holes are in the northwest corner of the Royal Lytham and St. Annes course, and that's the lowest ground on the layout.

Those golfers out early found wet but very playable conditions.

The greens were soft, the winds that howled the first two days were down and scores were dropping.

Hubert Green of the United States took advantage of those conditions to birdie five of the first seven holes, dropping his overnight 5-over par to even-par. Then the rains came.

"The greens to where I played were not that bad," said Green, who was stopped on the eighth hole. "I got a run going."

That phenomenal start to the round was washed away with the rain.

"It can't be helped," Green said. "It's what the game of golf is all about."

Nick Price of South Africa, who hasn't won a tournament in Europe, Africa or the United States since 1985, took a one-shot lead over Seve Ballesteros on Friday.

Defending champion Nick Faldo of England and former Masters winner Craig Stadler of the U.S. were tied for third at 2-under 140, Stadler shooting 3-under and Faldo 2-under for the day.

Next was American Andy Bean, who birdied five of the last nine holes for a 1-under 70-141.

NCAA drops plans to check SMU track

DALLAS (AP) - The NCAA dropped plans for a preliminary investigation into Southern Methodist's basketball and track and field programs, and it also eased off on penalties announced last year for major football violations, the school announced Friday.

SMU said the NCAA granted a request that the Mustangs be allowed to hire four assistant football coaches on June 1, 1989 - one month earlier than stipulated when the NCAA slapped the school last year with the "death penalty." The NCAA also will allow the school to use 15 "recruited walk-ons" - players who were recruited but are receiving academic aid, rather than athletic scholarships.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions suspended SMU's football programs for rules violations in February 1987. The penalties included shutting down the SMU football season in 1987 and allowing the Mustangs only seven games, all on the road, in 1988, with a reduced number of scholarships available. SMU decided on its own to sit out the 1988 football season entirely and return with a full roster and schedule in 1989.

"The committee wishes to express its appreciation for the university's demonstrated commitment to establish full compliance with NCAA regulations," David Berst, NCAA director of enforcement, said in a statement released by SMU.

Berst had left for a weekend trip and could not be reached, his family said Friday.

The NCAA said in February that it was studying possible basketball and track and field irregularities that were turned up during a seven-month study of SMU athletics by a private investigator the school hired.

At the time, Athletic Director Doug Single said the NCAA was conducting interviews to determine if an official investigation was necessary.

Oilers sign 3 veterans

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers starting offensive tackle Dean Steinkuhler was among three veterans who signed their 1988 contracts Friday, the NFL club announced.

The Oilers, who open preseason camp at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos on Tuesday, also announced the signing of four 1988 draft choices.

Steinkuhler, who started 13 games for the Oilers last season, was joined by defensive end William Fuller and cornerback Audrey McMillian among the veteran signees.

Draft choices signing were fifth round picks Cris Dishman, cornerback, Purdue and Chris Verhulst, tight end, Chico State; ninth round pick David Spradlin, linebacker, Texas Christian and 12th round choice John Brantley, linebacker, Georgia.

Mauldin cage camp set for July 25 start

The Tony Mauldin Girls' Basketball Camp will get underway July 25 at Western Texas College.

Hours for the camp, which will continue through July 29, will be 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily. Participants will be taught fundamentals and full-court drills.

Fee is $65 per camper. A second camper from the same family may attend for $55. Campers will bring a sack lunch or may go with a parent for the noon meal.

Registration is due by July 18 and students are to register by writing Mauldin at 3203 Irving, Snyder, Texas 79549. A $20 deposit is to accompany the registration. The remaining fee will be paid as the camp begins.

Several awards will be given, including one for the MVP.

Mauldin is the men's basketball coach and physical education instructor at WTC.

High school grads tune up for annual all-star contests

HOUSTON (AP) - The state's top high school football and basketball players will play their final games as schoolboys at the Texas High School Coaching Association Coaching School, which begins this week at the Astrodome complex.

Eight of the nine Southwest Conference head coaches will attend the week-long annual convention, billed as the largest group of its kind in the world.

Featured speakers include Texas Tech football coach Spike Dykes, track coaches Clyde Hart of Baylor and Tom Tellez of Houston and Rice basketball coach Scott Thompson.

The All-Star teams, comprised of players who have completed their high school eligibility, arrive Thursday to begin workouts.

The All-Star basketball game, featuring high-scoring Elmer Bennett of Houston Bellaire for the South and the North's Cedric Mason of Lamesa, will be played July 25 in Hofheinz Pavilion.

The All-Star football game will be July 26 in the Astrodome.

Jim Streety, who has led New Braunfels to the state playoffs seven of the last 11 years, will coach the South football All-Stars.

The North will be coached by Odessa Permian's Gary Gaines, who has a career record of 57-29-5 as a head coach.

The Panthers lost to state champion Plano in last season's Class 5A semifinals.

Baylor-bound Steve Needham, who led Plano to the state title, will direct the North and Houston Lee's Peter Gardere, who will attend the University of Texas, will quarterback the South.

Gardere, a second team Class 5A all-state pick, passed for 5,754 yards in his career at Lee. His

2,482 yards in one season ranks second on the all-time state class 5A list.

Willie Mack Garza of Refugio, a future Longhorn teammate of Gardere, was a high-scoring, high-yardage running back in high school but he will play cornerback and wide receiver for the South All-Stars.

Needham played linebacker for the Wildcats as a junior but scored 190 points as a senior and earned third team all-state honors.

Duane Hunt, who has led Borger to the Class 4A playoffs seven of the last eight years, will coach the North basketball All-Stars.

The South will be directed by Jacksonville's John Alexander, who has a career record of 434-248.

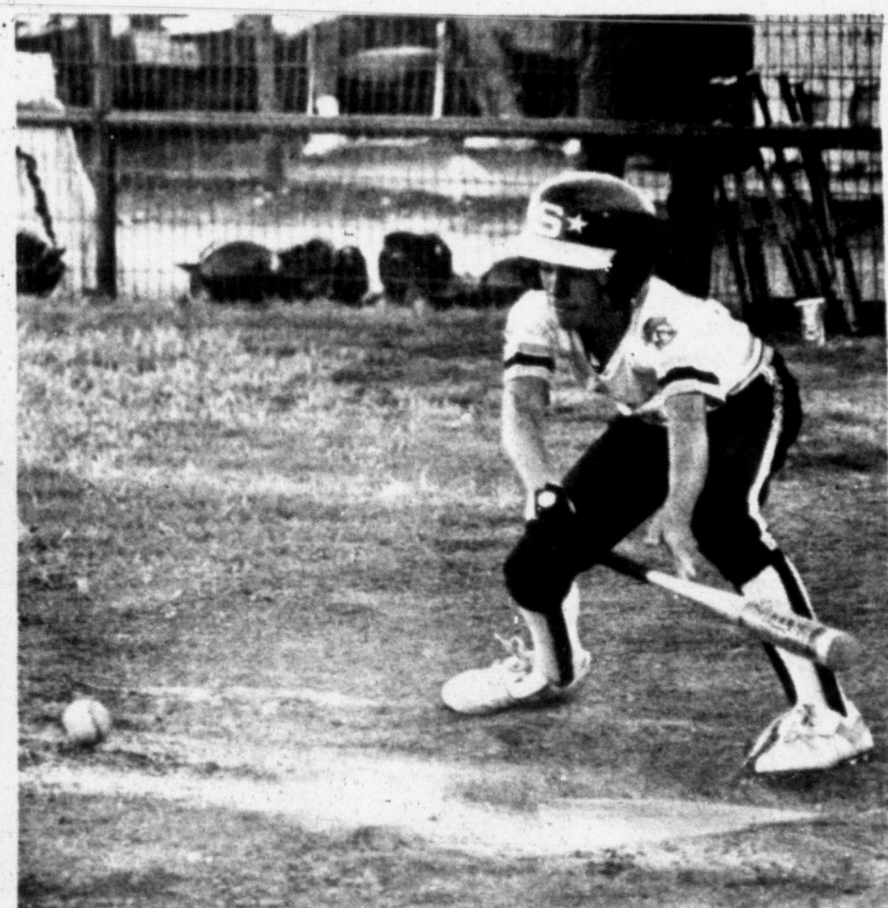

Bennett, who will attend Notre Dame, scored 2,930 career points at Bellaire and ranks as the all-time Class 5A scoring leader. He scored 1,100 points last season and averaged 36.2 points per game.

Port Arthur Lincoln's Brian Sallier, who will attend Oklahoma, will team with Bennett on the South squad. Sallier, a three-year all-district selection, averaged 17.6 points last season.

Mason, who signed with Western Texas College, averaged 27.5 points for Lamesa last season. He'll be joined on the North squad by Ohio State-bound Eric Brazier, who averaged 21.7 points for Arlington Sam Houston last season and Fort Worth Dunbar's Derrick Daniels, who averaged 14.6 points.

ALL-STAR EFFORT - Snyder's All-Stars defeated Rotan in tournament play Friday. Above at left, Curt Rinehart waits for a throw that came too late to keep Temple Daniel from taking third base. Daniel eventually scored, but it was Rotan's only run in a 22-1 loss.

Nine Snyder players contributed to the All-Stars' 16 hits in the game, including Reagan Key, at right, who executes a successful bunt. (SDN Staff Photos)

Leonard also said he was upset at criticism aimed at his recruitment of fighters on the team for the pro game and for selling T-shirts at the trials. Leonard is known to be considering a comeback fight, but that apparently played no part in his decision to resign.

Coulter said he was confident the continuing controversies will not affect the fighters, who will begin 12 weeks of training for the Olympics on July 24.

As convention nears...

Dukakis, Jackson talk unity

by The Associated Press
Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson edged away from the brink of a Democratic convention quarrel as words of discord were replaced by talk of reconciliation. Jackson said he harbored no "acrimony and hostility."

With his "Rainbow Express" bus caravan rolling toward Atlanta, the convention city, Jackson toned down talk of a challenge to Dukakis' choice of a running mate, Lloyd Bentsen. Jackson said Friday it was "a moot question" but added, "I have not encouraged or discouraged anyone about what they should do on Thursday" — the night convention delegates will ratify a running mate for Dukakis.

Dukakis, meanwhile, said he wants Jackson to be a player in Democratic affairs. "I want him involved, I want his staff people involved," the Massachusetts governor said in Boston.

Dukakis, the certain Democratic presidential nominee, and Jackson, the runner-up in the Democratic primaries, agreed to have their top aides meet in Atlanta Saturday to discuss differences.

While Jackson arrives in Atlanta Saturday, Dukakis has put off his arrival until Sunday, the eve of the convention's opening. Dukakis planned a quick stop in Washington Sunday afternoon to pick up Bentsen, a senator from Texas, before the two headed on to Atlanta.

George Bush, certain to win the Republican nomination to face Dukakis in the general election, was heading to Wyoming Saturday for a 4½-day fishing trip with his pal and political mentor, James A. Baker III, who is expected to give up his job as Treasury secretary to run the Bush campaign.

Bush does not plan to let the Democrats have the limelight exclusively next week. The vice president will come out of seclusion Wednesday and hit the campaign trail, competing for attention on the final two days of the Democratic convention.

Differences between Jackson and Dukakis have dominated the Democrats' pre-convention picture since Dukakis announced Tuesday that Bentsen would be his running mate. Jackson and his supporters were infuriated that they learned of Bentsen's selection from reporters and not from Dukakis.

However, with the convention fast approaching, the words of anger were losing their edge on Friday.

"We simply cannot win without each other," Jackson said at a news conference in Louisville, Ky. "We can only win with each other. It is in our distinct advantage to find common ground."

Jackson, whose staff had broken off negotiations with Dukakis' aides, called the governor on the telephone, saying later the two have no "acrimony and hostility" but only policy matters to resolve.

While Jackson said a convention challenge to Bentsen's nomination was a moot issue, his staff was getting conflicting advice on that very point.

Many Jackson supporters were calling the campaign offices in Atlanta with demands for him to fight for a spot on the ticket, aides said.

One of his closest advisers, former Carter administration official Bert Lance, said that would be a mistake.

"It would appear to be divisive," he said, adding that Jackson should embrace the Dukakis-Bentsen ticket after the Wednesday night presidential vote.

Another Jackson confidant, former DNC Chairman John White, agreed with Lance. "I hope not," he said when asked if he thought Jackson would go for the second spot.

Dukakis said he doesn't need former President Jimmy Carter to mediate his differences with Jackson, as Jackson had suggested. Carter agreed with Dukakis.

"The compatibility between Jackson and Dukakis and their followers is so overwhelming that the differences are relatively insignificant," Carter said. Dukakis insisted that Democrats are unified despite Jackson's complaints about platform issues and Jackson supporters' unhappiness about the selection of Bentsen as running mate.

"I can't remember a time when we've (the Democrats) been more together," he said.

People-sniffing dogs on border

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service plans to deploy people-sniffing dogs at El Paso's international bridges during the next few weeks in a crackdown against smugglers of illegal aliens.

Summertime, when temperatures exceed 100 degrees and lines at the bridges become long, is the right time to start the program, Ken Pasquarell, INS deputy district director, said Friday.

"People are locked in the trunk of a car, many times, on the other side — say in Juarez," Pasquarell said. "Then they're driven to the bridge, through the traffic, and then unlocked on the other side. Many times we'll find them in not very good physical condition."

Last year, 18 Mexican men suffocated inside a sealed boxcar left in the desert sun for several hours. Temperatures rose to an estimated 130 degrees inside the car, which was locked from the outside. No one has been known to suffocate in a car trunk recently, the INS doesn't want it to happen now, Pasquarell said. The INS plans to borrow two dogs and their handlers from the Border Patrol for brief periods during the next few weeks to sniff cars while they are clearing U.S. Customs, Pasquarell said.

The dogs "will be taken around the vehicle to see if anyone is secreted in the trunk or a false compartment," he said.

The Border Patrol has three drug- and people-sniffing dogs that work various highway checkpoints in the vast El Paso sector. The sector operates checkpoints near Deming, N.M.; between Las Cruces and Alamogordo, N.M.; near Guadalupe Mountains National Park, Texas; and at Sierra Blanca, Texas. The dogs rotate among those checkpoints.

The two dogs that will be used — Itar the Belgian shepherd and Rudy the Belgian malanoise — are trained to sniff out both drugs and people, but the INS will concentrate on finding aliens hidden in vehicles, Pasquarell said. INS inspectors will target vehicles by using secret "profiles" of smugglers.

Horsemen want tax on racing reduced

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas horsemen say that despite voter-approval of pari-mutuel wagering there may be no major racetrack facilities built because investors are scared off by the state's take of the betting handle.

"There is no great stampede of investors wanting to build tracks," said David Straus Sr., a member of the only known San Antonio group pursuing plans to put up a major track in Bexar County.

The problem lies in the five percent state tax levied on the wagering "handle" by the Texas Racing Act of 1987, Straus told the San Antonio Express-News on Friday.

The total take-out from the betting handle is 18 percent — five percent to the tracks to plow back into purses, five percent to the state in taxes and eight percent to the tracks for operating expenses, including repayment of loans.

What horsemen want to do is reduce the state tax to one or two percent and increase the other two categories. They also want to be able to bet on races televised live from other tracks.

Horsemen are expected to crusade for a reduction in the state tax when the state Legislature convenes in January.

Without these adjustments, it just isn't sound business to build a track, Straus claims. "In other sports like baseball and football, the stadiums are built by the city or state, but race tracks are built by private investment," he said.

Class 2 tracks, such as Bandera Downs and La Bahia Downs, and Class 3 tracks, such as county fair tracks, already in place probably can live with the racing bill as it now stands, since they don't have to build from the ground up, Straus said.

Greyhound tracks are cheaper to build and maintain, so they probably can operate under the 6 percent state tax on wagering.

The business side of horse racing is just now becoming obvious, said Straus. "This is new for everybody. Nobody knew what they were getting into and now that potential investors in tracks are having feasibility studies done, they're learning the facts of life."

Straus said that it will be difficult to retire loans of $50 million to $70 million required to build a track, and nearly impossible to attract quality horses with the purse allowance written into the Texas Racing Act.

Soviets to inspect missile facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet military teams set out today to inspect missile facilities in Oklahoma, Texas and Alabama in their second round of inspections under the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty.

Under the procedures outlined in the treaty, the Soviets announced which sites they would visit minutes before they departed.

The first team of 10 Soviet inspectors, accompanied by 10 escorts from the U.S. sites, announced where they wanted to go at 4 a.m. EDT, were in a bus by 5 a.m. and en route to Fort Sill, Okla., before 6 a.m., said Cmdr. Kendall Pease, spokesman for the On-Site Inspection Agency set up under the treaty.

The treaty was signed in December by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their Washington summit.

Contacted on his car telephone en route to Washington's Dulles Airport with a second team traveling to Longhorn Army Depot in Marshall, Texas, Pease said the operations was "moving like clockwork."

He said two other teams picked separate facilities at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala. Those teams also were en route after making their site selection known at 6 a.m., Pease said.

"We're ready and we're making it work," he said.

The 40 Soviet inspectors had arrived in Washington Thursday aboard an Aeroflot plane and were flying to the sites in Air Force C141 aircraft. They were to return to Washington within 24 hours after the inspections for a flight back to Moscow.

The Soviets were to verify the number of missiles and related components to be destroyed under the treaty. The elimination of 6,000 Soviet missiles under U.S. scrutiny is to begin Aug. 1 at five sites in the Soviet Union, but U.S. officials have not yet informed Soviet authorities when they will begin destroying about 2,000 U.S. weapons.

The Soviet teams had between four and 48 hours after their arrival to notify U.S. authorities which of five locations they intended to inspect, and Pease said they met that deadline with the selection of Fort Sill.

Five Soviet teams arrived on the West Coast at the beginning of this month to inspect INF sites there, and 23 Soviets have been in Magna, Utah, since July 2 preparing a permanent inspection station at the Hercules Plant No. 1 where U.S. missiles were produced.

The Soviet side is to inspect 26 sites in the United States and Europe, and 12 U.S. teams are to visit 133 sites within the current 60-day "baseline inspection" period authorized in the treaty, Pease said. He said 40 Soviet sites have already been visited by U.S. teams.

At Redstone, one Soviet group is visiting a launch repair facility and the other a missile storage area, Pease said.

The treaty calls for the elimination of all intermediate-range missiles within three years.

FEATURED ARTIST—Former Snyder resident Pamela Gilbreth Watkins recently had this sculpture displayed in the state capitol as a finalist in the official Texas State Artist Contest. Her studio is located in Buffalo Gap.

Former resident has art work featured

Former Snyder resident Pamela Gilbreth Watkins was a recent finalist in the official Texas State Artist contest.

The works exhibited in the Lieutenant Governor's reception room in the state capitol included a life-sized cowboy sculpture entitled "The Stars at Night."

It depicts a cowboy lying on his bedroll looking up at the starry sky. It is intended as a tribute to Bob Wills' famous song, "Deep in the Heart of Texas," as well as a salute to all Texas Cowboys.

Pamela's work will be part of an exhibit at the Scurry County Museum during the White Buffalo Days Celebration in October.

She will exhibit sculptures, photographs, and more featuring a buffalo motif. With her husband, Doug, she owns Rendezvous Bronze Works in Buffalo Gap.

She specializes in the dynamic design techniques of bronze sculpture and is especially noted for her striking combinations of realism and abstraction.

She received the Distinguished

Student Award at Tarleton State University and was named outstanding art student at Western Texas College.

Felony arrest noted Friday

A felony arrest for marijuana possession was reported by police Friday.

Officers arrested Shirley Ann Ballard, age 34, at 705 16th St. at 8:10 a.m.

Other city arrests Friday included a 36-year-old white male charged with DWI at 12:21 a.m. Saturday. He was arrested at the intersection of 37th St. and Brick Plant Rd.

At 2:31 a.m. Saturday, a 31-year-old Spanish male was charged with public intoxication. He was arrested at 23rd St. and Ave. K.

Police investigated also a reported auto break-in Friday at 9:39 p.m.

64 persons hurt in Iowa twister

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — National Guardsmen today patrolled Council Bluffs, Iowa, after tornadoes ripped through two Missouri River communities, injuring at least 64 people, damaging more than 100 homes and flipping railroad cars.

"It's an absolute miracle no one is dead," Council Bluffs City Councilman Stanley Grote said Friday after thunderstorms packing tornadoes and wind gusts up to 92 mph slammed into Omaha and its neighbor across the river.

Trees up to 48 inches in diameter snapped in Council Bluffs and others as tall as 100 feet were uprooted at an Omaha golf course. The twisters also downed power lines, started fires and overturned rail cars in a two-mile stretch in Council Bluffs.

Omaha Public Power District and Iowa Power and Light said an estimated 100,000 residences were without power. Authorities said crews worked through the night and "still had a long way to go" before restoring all power.

Council Bluffs Mayor Tom Hanafan ordered an overnight curfew to forestall looting and Guardsmen patrolled the streets. More than 2 inches of rain caused street flooding in parts of Omaha and hail was reported throughout the area.

In the worst two-mile stretch in Council Bluffs, the tops of hundreds of trees were sawed off by a twister, sidewalks were uplifted and roofs were blown off houses.

There were at least three sightings of tornadoes in the area Friday afternoon, the National Weather Service said today.

An Omaha man was in serious condition today with neck and possible internal injuries after a tree fell on a car he was in.

Heater-treater fire reported

Two units of the Snyder Fire Department were dispatched to a reported heater-treater fire at 2:44 p.m. Friday, but the blaze had burned itself before the fire trucks arrived.

The oil field unit was said located some six miles southwest of the city.

Mailbox theft worked by SO

Sheriff's office deputies say they questioned a suspect late Friday regarding the reported theft of a mailbox from the former site of American Southwest Brine.

No charges had been filed in connection with the case as of Saturday morning.

Guilty plea has probation

A 17-year-old Snyder youth has pleaded guilty in a May 22 burglary case and has been given a five-year probated sentence.

Johnny Edward Adams of 1902 Coleman Ave., No. 4, pleaded guilty in a break-in at Hillside Monument Co. in which two gasoline-powered weed-cutters and other equipment were stolen.

As convention nears...

Dukakis, Jackson talk unity

by The Associated Press
Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson edged away from the brink of a Democratic convention quarrel as words of discord were replaced by talk of reconciliation. Jackson said he harbored no "acrimony and hostility."

With his "Rainbow Express" bus caravan rolling toward Atlanta, the convention city, Jackson toned down talk of a challenge to Dukakis' choice of a running mate, Lloyd Bentsen. Jackson said Friday it was "a moot question" but added, "I have not encouraged or discouraged anyone about what they should do on Thursday" — the night convention delegates will ratify a running mate for Dukakis.

Dukakis, meanwhile, said he wants Jackson to be a player in Democratic affairs. "I want him involved, I want his staff people involved," the Massachusetts governor said in Boston.

Dukakis, the certain Democratic presidential nominee, and Jackson, the runner-up in the Democratic primaries, agreed to have their top aides meet in Atlanta Saturday to discuss differences. While Jackson arrives in Atlanta Saturday, Dukakis has put off his arrival until Sunday, the eve of the convention's opening. Dukakis planned a quick stop in Washington Sunday afternoon to pick up Bentsen, a senator from Texas, before the two headed on to Atlanta.

George Bush, certain to win the Republican nomination to face Dukakis in the general election, was heading to Wyoming Saturday for a 4½-day fishing trip with his pal and political mentor, James A. Baker III, who is expected to give up his job as Treasury secretary to run the Bush campaign.

Bush does not plan to let the Democrats have the limelight exclusively next week. The vice president will come out of seclusion Wednesday and hit the campaign trail, competing for attention on the final two days of the Democratic convention.

Differences between Jackson and Dukakis have dominated the Democrats' pre-convention picture since Dukakis announced Tuesday that Bentsen would be his running mate. Jackson and his supporters were infuriated that they learned of Bentsen's selection from reporters and not from Dukakis.

However, with the convention fast approaching, the words of anger were losing their edge on Friday.

"We simply cannot win without each other," Jackson said at a news conference in Louisville, Ky. "We can only win with each other. It is in our distinct advantage to find common ground."

Jackson, whose staff had broken off negotiations with Dukakis' aides, called the governor on the telephone, saying later the two have no "acrimony and hostility" but only policy matters to resolve.

While Jackson said a convention challenge to Bentsen's nomination was a moot issue, his staff was getting conflicting advice on that very point.

Many Jackson supporters were calling the campaign offices in Atlanta with demands for him to fight for a spot on the ticket, aides said.

One of his closest advisers, former Carter administration official Bert Lance, said that would be a mistake.

"It would appear to be divisive," he said, adding that Jackson should embrace the Dukakis-Bentsen ticket after the Wednesday night presidential vote.

Another Jackson confidant, former DNC Chairman John White, agreed with Lance. "I hope not," he said when asked if he thought Jackson would go for the second spot.

Dukakis said he doesn't need former President Jimmy Carter to mediate his differences with Jackson, as Jackson had suggested. Carter agreed with Dukakis.

"The compatibility between Jackson and Dukakis and their followers is so overwhelming that the differences are relatively insignificant," Carter said. Dukakis insisted that Democrats are unified despite Jackson's complaints about platform issues and Jackson supporters' unhappiness about the selection of Bentsen as running mate.

"I can't remember a time when we've (the Democrats) been more together," he said.

People-sniffing dogs on border

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service plans to deploy people-sniffing dogs at El Paso's international bridges during the next few weeks in a crackdown against smugglers of illegal aliens.

Summertime, when temperatures exceed 100 degrees and lines at the bridges become long, is the right time to start the program, Ken Pasquarell, INS deputy district director, said Friday.

"People are locked in the trunk of a car, many times, on the other side — say in Juarez," Pasquarell said. "Then they're driven to the bridge, through the traffic, and then unlocked on the other side. Many times we'll find them in not very good physical condition."

Last year, 18 Mexican men suffocated inside a sealed boxcar left in the desert sun for several hours. Temperatures rose to an estimated 130 degrees inside the car, which was locked from the outside. No one has been known to suffocate in a car trunk recently, the INS doesn't want it to happen now, Pasquarell said.

The INS plans to borrow two dogs and their handlers from the Border Patrol for brief periods during the next few weeks to sniff cars while they are clearing U.S. Customs, Pasquarell said.

The dogs "will be taken around the vehicle to see if anyone is secreted in the trunk or a false compartment," he said.

The Border Patrol has three drug- and people-sniffing dogs that work various highway checkpoints in the vast El Paso sector. The sector operates checkpoints near Deming, N.M.; between Las Cruces and Alamogordo, N.M.; near Guadalupe Mountains National Park, Texas; and at Sierra Blanca, Texas. The dogs rotate among those checkpoints.

The two dogs that will be used — Itar the Belgian shepherd and Rudy the Belgian malanoise — are trained to sniff out both drugs and people, but the INS will concentrate on finding aliens hidden in vehicles, Pasquarell said. INS inspectors will target vehicles by using secret "profiles" of smugglers.

Horsemen want tax on racing reduced

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas horsemen say that despite voter approval of pari-mutuel wagering there may be no major racetrack facilities built because investors are scared off by the state's take of the betting handle.

"There is no great stampede of investors wanting to build tracks," said David Straus Sr., a member of the only known San Antonio group pursuing plans to put up a major track in Bexar County.

The problem lies in the five percent state tax levied on the wagering "handle" by the Texas Racing Act of 1987, Straus told the San Antonio Express-News on Friday.

The total take-out from the betting handle is 18 percent — five percent to the tracks to plow back into purses, five percent to the state in taxes and eight percent to the tracks for operating expenses, including repayment of loans.

What horsemen want to do is reduce the state tax to one or two percent and increase the other two categories. They also want to be able to bet on races televised live from other tracks.

Horsemen are expected to crusade for a reduction in the state tax when the state Legislature convenes in January.

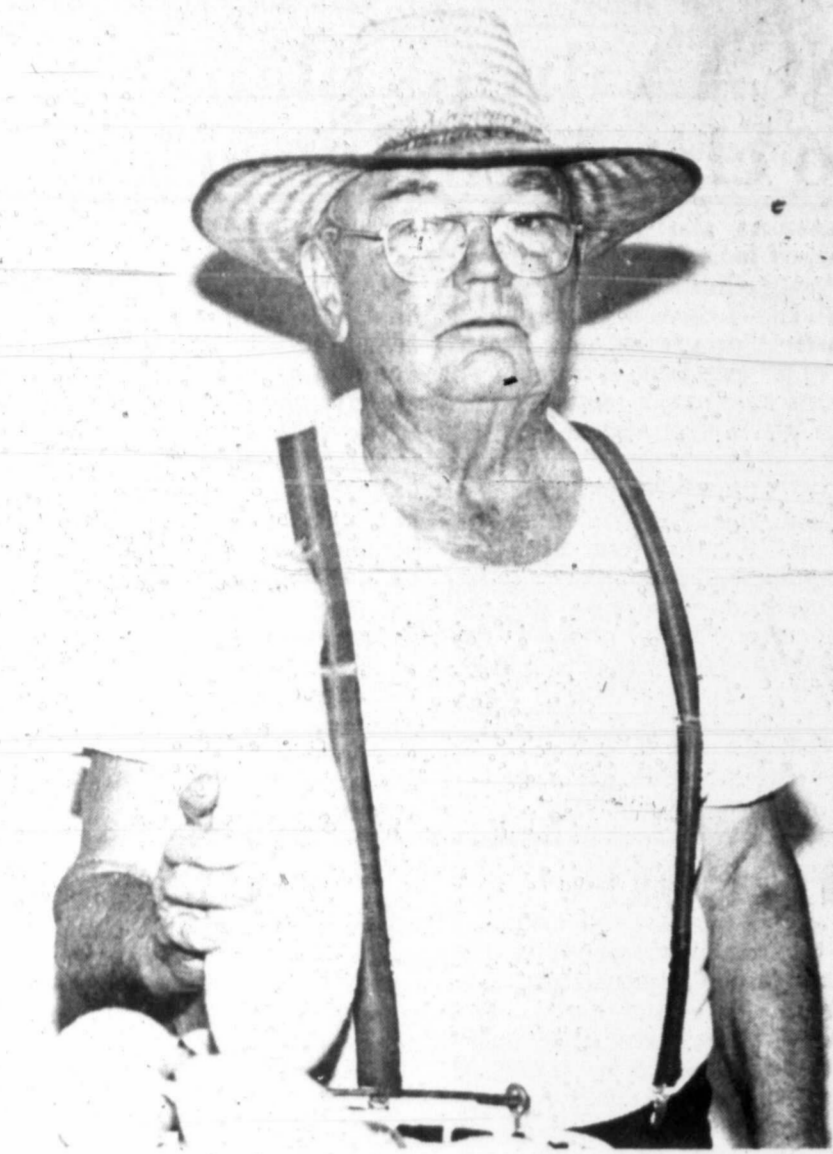

Without these adjustments, it just isn't sound business to build a track, Straus claims. "In other sports like baseball and football, the stadiums are built by the city or state, but race tracks are built by private investment," he said.

Class 2 tracks, such as Bandera Downs and La Bahia Downs, and Class 3 tracks, such as county fair tracks, already in place probably can live with the racing bill as it now stands, since they don't have to build from the ground up, Straus said.

Greyhound tracks are cheaper to build and maintain, so they probably can operate under the 6 percent state tax on wagering.

The business side of horse racing is just now becoming obvious, said Straus. "This is new for everybody. Nobody knew what they were getting into and now that potential investors in tracks are having feasibility studies done, they're learning the facts of life."

Straus said that it will be difficult to retire loans of $50 million to $70 million required to build a track, and nearly impossible to attract quality horses with the purse allowance written into the Texas Racing Act.

Soviets to inspect missile facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet military teams set out today to inspect missile facilities in Oklahoma, Texas and Alabama in their second round of inspections under the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty.

Under the procedures outlined in the treaty, the Soviets announced which sites they would visit minutes before they departed.

The first team of 10 Soviet inspectors, accompanied by 10 escorts from the U.S. sites, announced where they wanted to go at 4 a.m. EDT, were in a bus by 5 a.m. and en route to Fort Sill, Okla., before 6 a.m., said Cmdr. Kendall Pease, spokesman for the On-Site Inspection Agency set up under the treaty.

The treaty was signed in December by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their Washington summit.

Contacted on his car telephone en route to Washington's Dulles Airport with a second team traveling to Longhorn Army Depot in Marshall, Texas, Pease said the operations was "moving like clockwork."

He said two other teams picked separate facilities at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala. Those teams also were en route after making their site selection known at 6 a.m., Pease said.

"We're ready and we're making it work," he said.

The 40 Soviet inspectors had arrived in Washington Thursday aboard an Aeroflot plane and were flying to the sites in Air Force C141 aircraft. They were to return to Washington within 24 hours after the inspections for a flight back to Moscow.

The Soviets were to verify the number of missiles and related components to be destroyed under the treaty. The elimination of 6,000 Soviet missiles under U.S. scrutiny is to begin Aug. 1 at five sites in the Soviet Union, but U.S. officials have not yet informed Soviet authorities when they will begin destroying about 2,000 U.S. weapons.

The Soviet teams had between four and 48 hours after their arrival to notify U.S. authorities which of five locations they intended to inspect, and Pease said they met that deadline with the selection of Fort Sill.

Five Soviet teams arrived on the West Coast at the beginning of this month to inspect INF sites there, and 23 Soviets have been in Magna, Utah, since July 2 preparing a permanent inspection station at the Hercules Plant No. 1 where U.S. missiles were produced.

The Soviet side is to inspect 26 sites in the United States and Europe, and 12 U.S. teams are to visit 133 sites within the current 60-day "baseline inspection" period authorized in the treaty, Pease said. He said 40 Soviet sites have already been visited by U.S. teams.

At Redstone, one Soviet group is visiting a launch repair facility and the other a missile storage area, Pease said.

The treaty calls for the elimination of all intermediate-range missiles within three years.

FEATURED ARTIST—Former Snyder resident Pamela Gilbreth Watkins recently had this sculpture displayed in the state capitol as a finalist in the official Texas State Artist Contest. Her studio is located in Buffalo Gap.

Former resident has art work featured

Former Snyder resident Pamela Gilbreth Watkins was a recent finalist in the official Texas State Artist contest.

The works exhibited in the Lieutenant Governor's reception room in the state capitol included a life-sized cowboy sculpture entitled "The Stars at Night."

It depicts a cowboy lying on his bedroll looking up at the starry sky. It is intended as a tribute to Bob Wills' famous song, "Deep in the Heart of Texas," as well as a salute to all Texas Cowboys.

Pamela's work will be part of an exhibit at the Scurry County Museum during the White Buffalo Days Celebration in October. She will exhibit sculptures, photographs, and more featuring a buffalo motif. With her husband, Doug, she owns Rendezvous Bronze Works in Buffalo Gap.

She specializes in the dynamic design techniques of bronze sculpture and is especially noted for her striking combinations of realism and abstraction.

She received the Distinguished

Student Award at Tarleton State University and was named outstanding art student at Western Texas College.

Felony arrest noted Friday

A felony arrest for marijuana possession was reported by police Friday.

Officers arrested Shirley Ann Ballard, age 34, at 705 16th St. at 8:10 a.m.

Other city arrests Friday included a 36-year-old white male charged with DWI at 12:21 a.m. Saturday. He was arrested at the intersection of 37th St. and Brick Plant Rd.

At 2:31 a.m. Saturday, a 31-year-old Spanish male was charged with public intoxication. He was arrested at 23rd St. and Ave. K.

Police investigated also a reported auto break-in Friday at 9:39 p.m.

Richard Anderson reported the incident occurred at 510 33rd St.

Obituaries

Wanda Gray

COLORADO CITY—Graveside services are set for 2 p.m. Sunday in the Colorado City Cemetery for Wanda Colleen Gray, 59, who died Friday in Shannon Memorial Hospital in San Antonio.

A resident of Colorado City the past six years, she had previously lived in Snyder for more than 20 years. Her husband, Jimmy Jack Gray, died in 1983.

She was a housewife and a member of the First Christian Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Cynthia Ward of Colorado City; two sons, John Anthony Brown of Germany and Timothy Brown of Colorado City; a brother, Tommy Freeman of Abilene; four grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Opal Whisenant

SWEETWATER—Services are set for 2 p.m. Sunday in the Church and Elm Street Church of Christ for Opal Whisenant, 76, who died Thursday in an Abilene hospital. Burial will follow in the Garden of Memories Cemetery. She was the sister of two Snyder residents, Irene Hudgins and Eva Elliott.

Born in Haskell, she was retired from Sweetwater Electric and Supply where she worked as a bookkeeper. She was a member of the Church of Christ and her husband, William B. Whisenant, preceded her in death.

Survivors include two sons, W. B. Whisenant Jr. of Sweetwater and Don Whisenant of Dallas; two daughters, Mary Gunn of Lipscomb and Sarah Campsey of Elko, Nev.; two brothers, Carter Young of Abilene and Bennie Young of Wilcox, Ariz.; two other sisters, Connie Mayfield of Anson and Mildred Pirkle of Seymour; 13 grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Bodies found

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The bodies of two Sheppard Air Force Base airmen were found in the wreckage of a plane that had been missing since Sunday, authorities said.

The pilot, Sgt. Scott C. Campbell, 33, and passenger Sgt. Rodney E. Reichert, 29, were pronounced dead by Vince Rincon, medical examiner with the Wichita Falls Police Department.

Driving to work can be a "hoar"

CALUMET CITY, Ill. (AP) — The morning drive to work can be a bore, but when a real boar got loose on a south Chicago highway, things picked up.

The large male hog apparently fell off a pig-hauling truck on the Calumet Expressway on Friday morning, police said.

While traffic on the expressway was stalled, police spent about 30 minutes looking for the ponderous porker, he said, and it didn't put up much of a fight.

State police will return the pig if its owner claims it, officials said.

frozen homestead exemptions for those over age 65. The taxable value includes approximately $305 million in real estate; $384 million in mineral values; and $137 million in industrial value. Last year at this time, the school district's taxable value was $939,397,259.

—Western Texas College: a total taxable value of $994,345,977 to include approximately $374 million in real estate; $461 million in mineral values; and $159 million in industrial value. Last year at this time, the college district's taxable value was $1,107,499,480.

—City of Snyder: a total taxable value of $256,616,653 to include near $228 million in real estate; $3.4 million in mineral values; and $25 million in industrial value. Last year at this time, the city's taxable value was $266,763,625.

—Ira ISD: a total taxable value of $102,806,939 to include approximately $14.8 million in real estate; $78 million in mineral values; and $9.7 million in industrial value. Last year at this time, the school district's taxable value was $109,694,367.

—Hermleigh ISD: a total taxable value of $34,634,910 which is reduced some $544,000 due to frozen homestead exemptions for those over age 65. The taxable value includes approximately $22.8 million in real estate; $3.8 million in mineral values; and $8.4 million in industrial value. Last year at this time, the school district's taxable value was $32,161,320.

Rodeo slates 3 performances bareback riding, calf roping, team roping, steer wrestling, barrel racing and bull riding.

In addition, a special "Steer Saddling" has been scheduled for each night of the rodeo with three-man teams from nine Snyder merchants to compete.

The steer saddling will require each team to saddle a steer and ride the animal to a finish line. Three teams will compete nightly.

On Thursday night, the teams will be provided by Snyder National Bank, West Texas State Bank and American State Bank.

On Friday night, the competition will be among Howard Gray Motors, Mal Donelson Chevrolet and Wilson Motors.

The concluding contest Saturday will be between Snyder Farm and Ranch, Canon Supply and Scurry Ag Center.

Officers for the Scurry County Rodeo Association this year are Weldon Beck, president; Eddie Eicke, vice president; Johnny Reed, secretary; L.J. Mueller, area director; and Johnny Vance Voss, Johnny Eickers and Kim Billingsley.

Your Birthday

July 17, 1988

Before entering into new projects in the year ahead, make the ones you are presently involved in pay off. You are much nearer to the finish line that you may realize.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) People you are involved with today will appreciate the fact that you are not one who takes your commitments lightly. What you say you will do, you do. Major changes for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure and state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Personal gains may be acquired today either through your insights or from something that develops with others. Conditions look good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Accepting matters at face value is something that you are not apt to be guilty of today. You'll be equally interested in what is behind the outer structure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Good things can happen for you today without having to expend too much effort. However, don't use this as an excuse to coast. Capitalize on happenings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your friends will hold you in high regard today. In situations in which you are collectively involved, things should work out constructively for all concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Challenges or competitive developments will arouse the more determined attributes of your personality today. When the chips are down, you'll know how to play to win.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You must be concerned with the immediate, but it is also wise to start looking down the road. Plan now for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There could be a shift in conditions today pertaining to a matter that hasn't been moving as well as you would like. The changes should make conditions more manageable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) As of today, better rapport will be established in a relationship that has been a trifle shaky. Both you and the other party will make a concerted effort to bring this about.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your feelings of self-worth will be considerably enhanced today if you do meaningful things that help others. Do what you can to assist.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Companions will find you easy to get along with today, yet you can be serious and responsible if the situation warrants it. Adaptability is your long suit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to arrange activities today that the entire family can participate in. If the youngsters want to include a few select friends, that's okay too.

Your Birthday

July 18, 1988

Hours you devote to social interests in the year ahead will neither be frivolous or wasted. Ambitions can be advanced through your contacts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't take a back seat today if you feel your ideas are better than those of the people you'll be involved with, especially in social matters. Others will appreciate your comments. Major changes are ahead for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today friends are likely to talk to you about things that they are reluctant to openly discuss with others. Treat what they say as privileged information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Social activities that are mental rather than physical could be the ones that you'll find most appealing today. Seek out pals who enjoy stimulating conversations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not be reluctant to speak up today regarding what you want in matters pertaining to career or finances. It's the squeaking wheel that gets the oil.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Analyze any undertaking you may feel is stymied today. Your powers of comprehension are heightened and new light can be shed on observations that were previously faulty.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll gain an associate's confidence today, because you'll prove you're a person who can keep to yourself something she or he has veiled in secrecy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to make amends today regarding a situation where you did not treat another as fairly as you know you should have. Both will feel better when repairs are made.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Act in harmony with your thoughts today, particularly if you get any new ideas on ways to advance your ambitions or career. You're on the right track.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Companions will be impressed today when you have an opportunity to exhibit knowledge pertaining to something of general interest you have recently learned. Share it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There could be an absence of unity in a collective venture early in the day. Don't despair, however, because eventually everyone involved will be aiming for the same objectives.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you have an important matter to resolve with a co-worker, this is a good day to get it ironed out. Discussion will expose proper solutions that will please both parties.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Adjustments can be introduced today that will help strengthen your financial position. They're not likely to be overwhelming, but they'll be better than before.

Dorothy May Martin of Camp Springs says her interest in stamp collecting dates to when she was a little girl growing up in Sweetwater.

"I can be uptight, nervous or mad, but when I start working with my stamp collection I can relax," Mrs. Martin said. "If I feel bad my stamps can help me feel better."

Even as a child she said that collecting stamps always was "soothing and relaxing."

Mrs. Martin can spend hours with her stamp collection. On days when her husband, Anson, goes to the cotton fields in the wee hours of the morning, she said she will get up and start going through her stamp collection rather than try to go back to sleep.

One morning she became so engrossed in her work that noon-time rolled around before she even realized it. Since she was supposed to bring her husband his lunch, she said she hurriedly prepared some food and dashed to the fields.

Normally, she spends about two to three hours a week with her stamp collection.

Several months ago the White Buffalo Stamp Club was organized in Snyder and Mrs. Martin was elected president.

"When I went to the first meeting my husband told me not to get too involved and before I knew it I was elected president," she laughed.

The club was organized several months ago after several stamp collecting enthusiasts discussed the idea among themselves. She said Robert Patterson was one of the first to mention having a club.

The first meeting was held at the home of Lois Bartels, and it drew 10 people.

Mrs. Martin has both used and mint stamps in her collection. Used stamps are those that have actually been sent through the mails and mint stamps are brand new and have never been used.

Of the two kinds, she said she likes her used stamps best of all "because that is what they were made for."

Since the year 1970, Mrs. Martin has a mint stamp for every stamp issued. She received a publication which tells her when a stamp will be issued. She then goes either to the post office in Hermleigh or Ira to purchase her stamps. According to Mrs. Martin, Leona Wiggins, the postmaster in Ira, "caters to stamp collectors."

For her used stamp collection (all U.S. stamps), Mrs. Martin has almost every stamp issued for every year from 1928-1960, but a few are missing.

"Since 1928 was the year I was born I have worked very hard to get all the stamps issued for that year," she explained.

Family members and friends help her with her used stamp collection.

Mrs. Martin's sister also collects stamps and periodically they get together and "play with their stamps," she said. However, her sister collects only mint stamps.

She also has several topical collections of stamps. A topical collection is a group of stamps all sharing the same theme. She has almost all the John F. Kennedy stamps issued since his inauguration which she and her husband attended.

She also has a windmill stamp collection and belongs to a windmill study unit. Eight windmill stamps have been issued thus far.

Mrs. Martin also collects hummingbird stamps, Halley's Comet stamps and first day covers. First day covers are obtained through dealers and consist of an envelope with a particular stamp on it which has been postmarked. Whenever a stamp is issued, a ceremony is always held commemorating the event.

Mrs. Martin also likes to quilt and regularly meets with a group of women at the Hermleigh Community Center to quilt and enjoy fellowship.

Mrs. Martin said her grandmother instilled a love of quilt making in her, but it was her mother-in-law who taught her how to quilt.

She explained that her grandmother had a heart condition and that she showed her how to cut out the blocks for a quilt and how to match the pieces.

"I used to help my grand-

GUTS AND GLORY. By Ben Bradley, Jr.
 Here is the first, full-scale, unauthorized account of the life and career of controversial Marine Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North. "Guts and Glory" is a revelatory, documented, inside look at the man who electrified the Iran-Contra hearings last summer with his disclosures about covert White House operations. A masterwork of investigative journalism, "Guts and Glory" weaves from a multitude of sources the story of one of the most controversial and enigmatic men ever to rise and fall on the stage of American history.

Sherry Dawn Pierce and Gregory Blake Hayes repeated marriage vows at 2:30 p.m. May 15 in the First Baptist Church Chapel. T.O. Upshaw officiated the double-ring ceremony. Parents of the couple are Scott and Barbara Walton of Snyder and Doyle and Jean Hayes of Rotan. Vows were exchanged before an altar centered with a 15-branch brass candelabrum. White wicker planter pedestals filled with white tiger lilies and greenery flanked the altar. Royal blue bows accented with white and royal blue net marked the pews. The bride chose a formal silhouette gown in white satin overlaid with Venise lace. Iridescent sequins and seed pearls highlighted the design. The off-the-shoulder sweetheart neckline was complemented by Victorian puffed sleeves tapering to a fitted point at the hand. A large, white satin bow attached the satin, chapel-length train to the gown at the waist. The train was bordered and applied with scalloped Venise lace. Iridescent sequins and seed pearls embellished the train in diamond-shaped patterns. The bride's headpiece was fashioned with a single row of pearls which came to a point on the forehead. The finger-length veil of illusion net was adorned with small silver leaves and white seed pearls and formed a crown around the bride's head before falling to her shoulders. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white tiger lilies, silver roses, iridescent leaves and greenery. White net and silver picot satin streamers completed the arrangement. Following tradition, the bride carried a small Bible and handkerchief belonging to her grandmother for something old. Something new was her white leather shoes in which she wore pennies minted in the birth years of the couple. Silver baguette earrings were something borrowed and something blue was a garter. Dawn Stoltz, maid of honor, wore a tea-length gown of royal blue satin with a royal blue scalloped lace overlay. The design featured a large satin bow and cummerbund. She wore small, white satin flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet of

Rodney Glass, cousin of the groom. Wedding music was provided by organist Betty Watts. Pianist and vocalist Darrell Collins performed "That's What Love Is All About" and "I Never Thought That I Could Love." A reception followed the ceremony in the garden room of the church. The bride's table was decorated with tiered mirror cubes topped with white candles in clear votive cups accented with clusters of small, silk royal blue flowers and silver roses with silver leaves. The arrangements were tied with royal blue and white curled ribbon. The white, three-tiered hexagon-shaped cake was decorated with small, royal blue flowers and topped with white kissing doves. Almond punch was also served by Arneitha Walton and Marta Hanks. The groom's table was covered in a round, royal blue cloth trimmed in lace. A white wicker basket with royal blue tiger lilies and white gladioli accented with greenery formed the centerpiece. The German chocolate groom's cake was decorated with white icing flowers in the center of royal blue hearts. The cake was topped with a miniature of a bride pulling on a groom's coat tails. The names of the couple were written beneath it. Sabrina Robinson and Gi Gi Robinson, cousins of the groom, served. Shelly Hayes, sister of the groom, registered guests. Bridesmaids Charlotte Kirby, Dee Ann Pierce and Becky Walior, sisters of the bride, were attired in dresses matching the maid of honor. William Robinson served as best man. Groomsmen were David Zajicek, Thomas Smogorzewski and James Wolf. The groom was attired in a formal, white tuxedo with a silver lame' bow tie and cummerbund. ADVERTISING CONTROVERSY
 Advertisements indicating that a lean, trim, cooked 3-ounce portion of beef fits within the dietary guidelines are stating fact. Last week the Center for Science in the Public Interest (CPSI), a Washington-based consumer-interest group, labeled Beef Industry Council ads which contain this statement as misleading. Lean beef is included in dietary guidelines from the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services, the American Heart Association and other national health organizations. The CSPI didn't dispute this fact, but based its criticism on claims that the average serving of beef is more than three ounces and that popular beef products, such as hamburgers, contain large amounts of fat. The dietary guidelines recommend 6-7 ounces of lean meat, poultry, fish or protein alternate each day. If you overeat these or any other foods, it can lead to overweight and obesity. So whether you eat your protein food for the day in the form of six ounces of lean beef for dinner, or two three-ounce servings at two different meals, you're still within the guidelines. It's true that some of our most popular foods are high in fat, often because they're fried Eating lots of chicken fried steak, fried chicken, fried fish, fried hamburgers, fried pies and French fries will put excess fat in your diet. The key to including beef or any meat, poultry and fish in a healthy diet is selecting lean cuts, knowing the recommended serving sizes, balancing them out over the day, and choosing low-fat cooking methods. Consumers can easily find lean cuts in the meat case. Most retailers are now removing all exterior fat or trimming it to less than 1/4 inch. Beef is also being pre-cut into serving sizes for smaller, more convenient packages. Results of a recent national beef market basket survey conducted by meat scientists at Texas A&M showed that over 42% of beef retail cuts had no external fat and the overall fat thickness for steaks and roasts was .14 inch. Consumers are also buying more lean ground beef. Figures on the distribution of ground beef type showed almost 60% of the ground beef in stores is lean or extra lean. Since many retailers clearly label lean cuts and the type of ground beef, consumers can use these as guides to selecting lean beef.

Camp Springs stamp collector is featured

mother piece quilt tops but I don't remember doing any quilting," Mrs. Martin said.

Her grandmother also taught her how to embroider before she was old enough to go to school.

Mrs. Martin also devotes time to other hobbies such as reading, traveling and ball point painting. The material comes in a tube which she uses to paint on materials such as shirts, skirts and she is even painting a tablecloth for her mother.

She also paints pillow cases and is thinking of painting book markers to give to the children who attend children's church.

Mrs. Martin loves to travel and last spring while she was in California she got to visit with Brad Maule whom she has known for years. She keeps a scrapbook on him which she started when he graduated from high school.

Mrs. Martin has nothing but praise for Maule calling him "the same sweet kid he always was."

She has also traveled to Nassau, Canada and the Bahamas.

The Martins have lived in their home in Camp Springs for the past 28 years. They were living elsewhere in the area some years ago, when Mrs. Martin said she spied their present home being built in Roby.

"I came home and told Anson that I had seen our new home in Roby, but at first he didn't pay any attention to me," she said.

But soon the idea took hold and one day she said he told her to put on her pants and boots and come with him. This was on Sunday and she wanted to know how could she go to church dressed like that. But he said he had something to show her and he did—the present site where their home is located. Only then it was covered with sandbars.

"I knew then why I needed my pants and boots," she laughed.

They moved their home to its present location and have been living there ever since. They bought 3½ acres of land because then they had horses and needed the extra room for them.

When it comes to farm work there isn't anything that Mrs. Anson won't try to do. She has cut stalks, driven a tractor, plowed with a chisel rig and hauled water to the fields when herbicide was being applied.

The Martins have been married for 40½ years and have five grown children.

When Mrs. Martin met her husband in the late 1940s, she was a "city girl."

She recalled that they first met after baccalaureate services when she was riding around with some friends. They had their first date on June 4 of that year and were married on Sept. 27, 1947.

After two dates, Anson told his wife-to-be's sister that he was going to marry Dorothy May. Naturally, Dorothy May denied it because at that time she was planning to enroll at Hardin-Simmons University and study to be a doctor.

After more than 40 years of marriage, Mrs. Martin said she never knows what he will say or what he will do saying, "I can't outguess him."

She said it wasn't hard learning to be a farmer's wife, but there were some things she didn't understand at first. Like why Anson was so pleased to see it rain even when that meant he couldn't get out and work in the fields.

She also had to learn that snow in the winter time puts "seasoning" in the ground.

The lessons started early as the Martins were married on a Saturday and by Monday she was already working in the fields.

Since Mrs. Martin has always been an "outdoors girl," she said that learning to be a farmer's wife just seemed natural to her.

Because she concentrated on being out of doors, she said she never learned how to cook before she got married. "I couldn't boil water so my mother-in-law taught me how to cook," she said.

For the first 1½ years of marriage, Mrs. Martin said they lived with her husband's parents. He was one of eight children.

She readily admits to being a nature lover. "My grandfather instilled a love of nature in me. He used to call me Tinsy because I was long legged and skinny. He used to tell me 'observe clouds and beauty but look at the world around you.'"

Her grandfather was a prospector who liked to collect rocks, an interest she inherited as well. "Like my grandfather I see beauty in everything," she said.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art was founded in New York in 1870.

Holt, Bryan united in morning ceremony

Kristi Janette Holt and Scott Edward Bryan were united in marriage at 10 a.m. June 25th in the home of the bride's mother. Don Dawes of Rotan officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Sandra Holt of Snyder and Glen Holt of Rotan. Parents of the groom are Dr. and Mrs. Donald E. Bryan of Rising Star.

The couple repeated their wedding vows before the fireplace. The mantle was decorated with 75 white candles of various sizes accented by greenery and baby's breath. Brushed white wicker baskets of spring flowers and willow stems flanked the hearth.

Vocalists Greg and Derrick Howell of Abilene sang, "Wedding Song," "To Me," and "Wind Beneath My Wings."

Jana Smith of Rotan served as maid of honor. Ben Bryan of Abilene, brother of the groom, served as best man.

A traditional wedding cake decorated with lilies, white roses and willow stems was served by Mrs. Steve Lincom of Abilene. Punch and coffee from a silver service were served by Amy and Amber Ausley of Austin, cousins of the bride.

Kelly Ausley of Houston, cousin of the bride, registered guests.

Brunch was served on the patio which was decorated with an ice sculpture and spring flowers.

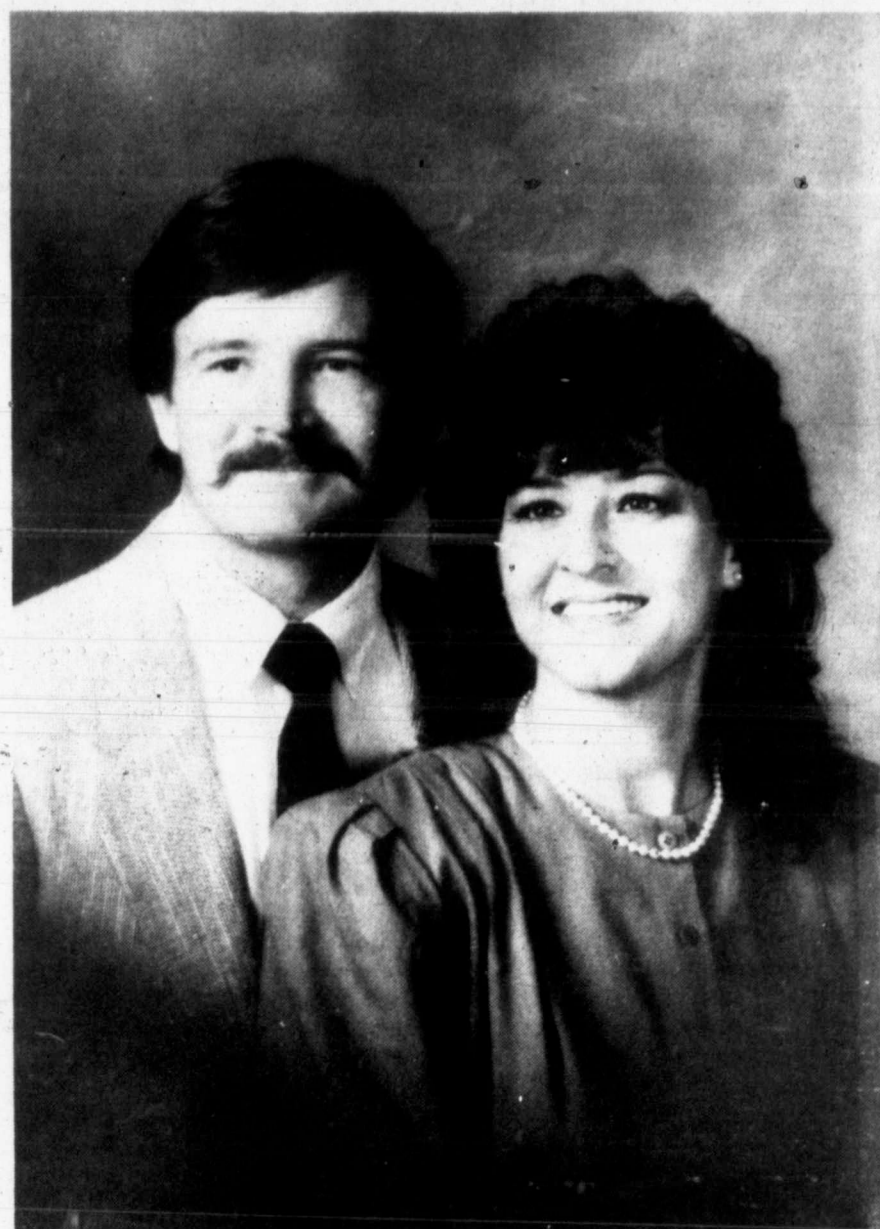

Following a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla., the couple will be at home in Abilene.

The bride is a graduate of Rotan High School and attended Abilene Christian University. She is employed by Oil Transport of Abilene.

The groom also graduated from Rotan High School and received his degree from Abilene Christian University where he is now employed.

Some sheep stations in Australia are bigger than Puerto Rico.

Italy's ancient Etruscans, forerunners of the Romans, combined their love of music and sports with a penchant for brutality that might have included human sacrifice, says National Geographic.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE — Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ethridge of Kermit announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ann Marie of Midland, to Sidney Mack Sullenger of Big Lake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sullenger of Clifton, formerly of Snyder. COOKING OIL

When fresh vegetable oil is used at normal frying temperatures, there is no health hazard. However, if cooking oil is repeatedly heated too much, it becomes "mutagenic" and acquires the ability to change the chromosomes of living cells abnormally, with the potential to cause cancer or birth defects. When we eat fried food away from home, we can never be sure that the cooking oil has not been heated too much and for too long.

After West's three-club pre-empt, North had an easy takeout double — a powerful hand with great playing strength if South had a fit with either major suit. South's jump to four spades showed values to play game, but North had a good enough hand to try for slam. How would you decide what to do? Of course you can see that the spade king and heart king are all declarer needs to make 12 tricks. But what if South held the diamond king rather than the heart king? With a pre-emptive bidder's values usually concentrated in his own suit, it was not likely that West held a missing king of hearts. A heart finesse would therefore fail. North decided that cue-bidding would let him find out what he needed to know. So he bid five clubs, showing a control in clubs and begging South to show anything of possible value for slam purposes.

South was not sure he wanted to play a slam. After all, he had only two working kings, and the club queen and diamond jack didn't look particularly useful. However, he finally decided he would be letting his partner down if he did not at least let him know he had a useful card in hearts. When he cue-bid five hearts, North went right to six spades, and it was all over but the shouting.

Not how many but which

Despite the overwhelming popularity of the Blackwood convention to ask for aces on the way to slam, good judgment in cue-bidding can be more effective. Look at today's deal.

WATERMELON SHERBET
4 cups cubed watermelon
½ cup sugar
½ cup cranberry juice cocktail
1 envelope unflavored gelatin

Place the watermelon cubes in a blender container or food processor bowl. Cover and blend until smooth (should have 3 cups mixture). Stir in sugar. In a medium saucepan soften gelatin in cranberry juice cocktail. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Add gelatin to melon mixture; combine thoroughly. Pour mixture into an 8- by 8- by 2-inch baking pan. Cover; freeze for 2 hours or until firm.

Break up mixture; place in a chilled large mixer bowl. Beat with an electric mixer on high speed until mixture is fluffy. Return to pan. Cover; freeze at least 6 hours. Scoop to serve. Makes 8 servings.

Terri Lynn Holley became the bride of Joe Lee, Jr. at a 7 p.m. ceremony on June 25 at Colonial Hill Baptist Church. The Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of the church, officiated the double-ring vows.

Parents of the couple are Henry and Linda Holley and Joe and Susan Lee.

The setting included stairs climbing to the minister with candles behind him.

Sandra Miller served as candlelighter for the occasion.

Pianist Billie Adams and Phyllis Whitfill on the flute provided musical selections.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a traditional white gown by Michele Piccione in an off-the-shoulder design. The sweetheart neckline was set off by huge, puffed sleeves in a Victorian style. The full skirt swept to a chapel-length train embellished in lace patterns. A chapel-length veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of flowers.

The bride carried a bouquet of white and pink roses accented by baby's breath and greenery with white satin streamers complementing the cascade design.

Michelle Osborn of Lubbock served as maid of honor with Sherri Holley, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid. Their gowns were tea-length, off-the-shoulder designs in pink by Alfred Angelo. Each carried a long-stemmed pink rose.

Best man was Guy Kerrick of Ft. Worth. Groomsman was Dr. Mike Wimmer of Ft. Worth. Ushers were Scott Willis of Holley, cousin of the bride, and Russell Gafford of Snyder.

Susie Scott, sister of the groom, registered guests.

Avis and Emma Willis of Abilene, grandmother and great-aunt of the bride, were honored guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table, covered in pink and white, held the bridal cake, a silver punch bowl, a silver tray of mints, and the bride's bouquet as the centerpiece.

The three-tiered white cake was embellished in pink and blue flowers. The bride and groom miniature topping the confection was the same one used at the wedding of the bride's parents.

Servers were Dana Pennington of Ira, Dawn Mammaro of Crosbyton, and Dora Jean Rumpff of Snyder.

The groom's table was covered in white and blue and held the groom's cake, a brass coffee service and nuts. Servers were Carol Kerrick of Ft. Worth and Veronica Wimmer, also of Ft. Worth.

Following a honeymoon trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple is at home in Snyder.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College as a biology major. She is presently employed as a lifeguard at the college.

The groom was graduated from Snyder High School and Texas Tech with a bachelor of science degree in geology. He is employed with Western Company.

Benefits of exercise

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated 30 to 60 minutes of daily aerobic exercise gives close to maximum benefit in terms of preventing heart attacks, according to the Reebok Aerobic Information Bureau.

It says researchers at the University of Minnesota studied heart attack risk and exercise patterns in 12,138 middle-aged men. In addition, they found that there was little difference in heart disease risk between those who did light exercise and those who exercised strenuously.

Ice cream facts

NEW YORK (AP) — Although Americans spent more than $10 billion for chocolate and chocolate related items last year, vanilla is the leading flavor in ice cream, comprising more than 32 percent of all ice cream sales, according to a study by the American Dairy Board. However, Chocolatier magazine says the same study shows that the runners-up in ice cream sales all contained chocolate in some form: chocolate itself (9 percent); vanilla fudge (4.1 percent), and cookies 'n cream (3.8 percent).

Federal judge offers apology

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An elderly federal judge says he was only expressing the values of his generation when he ordered a female attorney to use her married name in court and threatened her with jail if she refused.

Senior U.S. District Judge Hubert Teitelbaum apologized Thursday to attorney Barbara Wolvovitz for scolding her in court when she refused to go by her husband's last name and later calling her "sweetie" when she asked for a mistrial.

"I have always referred to married women by their married name. This is the way my generation was taught, to express respect to the institution of marriage and the family," Teitelbaum told Ms. Wolvovitz and three other attorneys involved in a race discrimination trial.

"I recognize your right to be addressed in any manner in which you see fit, and I apologize for my comments and the resulting situation," he said.

"Three cheers!" said Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women.

"I think that he did what he had to do, and thank God he did it. I think it's raised everybody's consciousness, and that's fine," she said.

Thomas Hollander, president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, said "It was big of him to apologize." "It's certainly better that he apologized to clear the air. It's better for the lawyers and for the court," he said.

Last Friday Teitelbaum told Ms. Wolvovitz, who is married to University of Pittsburgh law professor Jules Lobel, "From here on, in this courtroom you will use Mrs. Lobel. That's your name."

The judge originally threatened the woman with jail time when she resisted his instruction. When her co-counsel, Jon Pushinsky, protested, Teitelbaum said him in contempt for "officious intermeddling" and gave him a suspended 30-day jail sentence, which he vacated Monday.

Ms. Wolvovitz, 36, who has practiced law for 10 years, and Pushinsky did not want to comment further after the judge's apology, Pushinsky said Thursday.

In his apology, which was officially entered into court records, Teitelbaum said that if Ms. Wolvovitz still wanted to press for a mistrial, he would grant it before the jury returned with a verdict. But he said the parties would be "stuck with that verdict" if they declined his offer.

The attorneys agreed to not seek a mistrial. Hours later, the jury decided against Ms. Wolvovitz's clients.

Dear Abby

Fans of Bald Men Deplore Foolish Efforts to Cover Up

DEAR ABBY: "Losing Mine" wanted to know how women feel about balding or bald men. "Can a man without hair be considered sexy, handsome and a hunk?" he asks.

Here is one woman's view: Baldness is not a "loss" — it's a change. Forget the toupees and transplants. The expense, pain and anxiety over strong winds are worse than any change in appearance.

And whatever you do, don't try to cover your baldness with foot-long wisps of hair parted an inch over one ear and draped around the head as many times as it will go. This looks ridiculous, fools no one, and is the subject of more notice, derision and comment than baldness could ever be. Gentlemen, please accept yourselves as you are — the way millions of bald men and those who love them do.

LAURIE MITCHELL, WICHITA, KAN.

DEAR ABBY: I want to answer "Losing Mine": I've never seen hair on my husband's head except in pictures. He was bald at 31 when I met him and it didn't make one bit of difference to me. If a man needs a hairpiece or a transplant for himself, fine, but if he's doing it for the ladies, he's wasting a lot of money. Any woman who would reject a man because he's bald isn't worth having.

I'm married to a handsome, sexy hunk. And his hair doesn't tickle my nose when he sleeps with his head on my shoulder. To me, he's not really bald. He just has more face to kiss.

WHO NEEDS HAIR IN CHICAGO?

DEAR ABBY: My father, who just turned 50, started losing his hair when he was in the Navy about 30 years ago.

When our family (Mom, Dad and their four kids) went for a portrait sitting 10 years ago, the photographer wanted an outdoor shot, so he had us move to a shady spot so he wouldn't get a glare off Dad's shiny head. Once, when we joked to Dad that we'd read that "a bald head is solar power for a sex machine," Mom blushed.

Dad is a dead ringer for Gavin MacLeod in "The Love Boat." Everyone says so. My 26-year-old brother, whose hairline is also heading north, had a girlfriend tell him she hoped he'd be as handsome as Dad when he gets older. Go ahead and use my name. Everybody in the Carter family has a wonderful sense of humor.

PAM CARTER, ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I can't verify that bald men are better lovers, but my hunch is that a man who has lost his hair — or is losing it fast and isn't preoccupied by the fact — is generally superior in bed.

Bald men who don't resort to trying to hide their baldness have obviously accepted themselves as they are. This is masculine, strong, honest, self-confident and, therefore, sexy!

BALD IS BEAUTIFUL

DEAR ABBY: You said it all when you said, "It's not what's on a man's head; it's what's in it that makes him attractive, sexy and handsome."

I'll tell you what handsome and sexy means to me: It's being kind, thoughtful, clean, honest and gentle.

My guy became my friend first — then my lover. He's everything I've ever admired in a man. I'm as crazy about him as if this were my first love. I'm 74 and he's 75.

IN LOVE IN VENTURA

DEAR ABBY: I nominate Louis Gossett Jr. as the handsomest, sexiest hunk I've ever set eyes on. I think he's bald, but I can't swear to it. I never could see above those gorgeous, penetrating eyes.

Son says rural doctor worked self to death

UNION SPRINGS, Ala. (AP) — Robert X. Williams Jr., the only obstetrician-gynecologist in two poor counties with high infant mortality rates, just "worked himself to death," one of his nurses said after he died while performing surgery.

His son, Robert X. Williams III, a third-year medical student, watched helplessly as Williams suffered a massive heart attack Wednesday at Bullock County Hospital.

"He never turned patients down — no matter what their financial status," Williams said, recalling times when his father received $5 a month from a patient trying to pay off a medical bill.

The elder Williams, 54, had been delivering 60 to 80 babies a month in Bullock and Macon counties, which have some of the nation's highest infant mortality rates, according to the state Department of Public Health.

"I think there were times when, for a period of several weeks, he was on call constantly," said hospital administrator Duane Brookhart, adding that he was amazed at Williams' heavy workload. "I asked him how he was able to keep such a schedule. He would shrug and say, 'You get used to it.'"

Because of Williams' death, obstetrics patients will have to be referred to Montgomery hospitals 40 miles away, Brookhart said. Finding a replacement to serve the two counties will be difficult.

"It's a very medically needy and also a medically risky and underinsured population," he said, adding that most obstetricians prefer to share their practices and workloads with a partner.

"We're a small, rural community. I don't think we can support two obstetricians. And I don't think we're going to find another obstetrician who is willing to work this whole area by himself."

Dr. Henry Johnson, a Montgomery obstetrician who studied under Williams, said he influenced many young black doctors.

"He took care of essentially anyone who came to see him," Johnson said. "I can't remember too many times when he left the area for a vacation or whatever. He was pretty much on call 24 hours a day."

Williams had nearly completed a hysterectomy when he died. St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery used its emergency helicopter to fly Dr. Judi Jehle to Union Springs to complete the surgery, which was done without complications, hospital spokeswoman Cathy Ellis said Thursday.

Williams had planned to leave on a cruise this weekend to celebrate his 32nd anniversary, Ms. Jehle said.

Youngest pilot crosses Atlantic

LE BOURGET, France (AP) — An 11-year-old California boy Thursday became the youngest pilot to cross the Atlantic, landing at the Paris airport where Charles Lindbergh completed a historic solo crossing in 1927.

Christopher Lee Marshall touched down his single-engine plane at Le Bourget airport on a flight from Glasgow, Scotland, where he spent the night.

The boy aviator was greeted by his mother as he stepped from the plane wearing a bright blue flight suit and a baseball cap with a sign reading "Chris Marshall Tour."

"We're finally here. We made it," he said, grinning ear-to-ear but looking tired.

"Mommy missed you so much. Give me a kiss," said his mother, Gail Marshall, who waved an American flag and clutched a stuffed bear intended as a present for her son.

The young aviator from Ocean, Calif., then kissed his mother.

Christopher started his flight in San Diego on July 7. He was accompanied by retired Navy pilot Randy Cunningham, 46, who limited Marshall's flying time to eight-hour stretches.

A champagne and cola reception was held in the hangar of the airport, north of Paris.

Despite the trans-Atlantic venture, which included stops in St. Louis, New York, Montreal, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland, Christopher revealed his youth.

On stepping from the plane, his first words to his mother were: "I have to go to the toilet." He disappeared briefly then returned to pose for photographers.

At one point, Christopher reentered the aircraft to produce his old stuffed bear, from which he has said he is inseparable. Photographers snapped pictures of Christopher with the cuddly animal in its goggles and helmet and bearing a sign with its name "Charles Lindbeargh."

Scurry 4-H horsemen capture district win

The Scurry County 4-H Horse Club members competed in the District 2 4-H show on June 21 and Scurry County was named the high point county for the third consecutive year.

Representing Scurry County in the show were Cade Walton, Shanna Hays, Shawn Hays, Debbie Schwarz, Deana Schwarz, Tommy Henderson and Shauna Stipe.

Principal is not indicted

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Grand jurors declined to indict a Katy elementary school principal accused of knowing that a teacher was fondling students but failing to report it to authorities.

More than a dozen teachers who gathered in a hallway outside the grand jury chambers Thursday cheered the panel's decision not to indict Freddie Kelly.

"This has been a trying experience," Mrs. Kelly, 49, said. "I did what was right."

Almost the entire basis of the grand jury probe was the complaint of the father of a fourth-grade pupil who said he told Mrs. Kelly on Sept. 24 that his daughter had been fondled by Charlou Koenig, 34.

Koenig, 34, now on leave with pay from his job as a Latin teacher at Taylor High School, is charged with four cases of indecency with children. The fondling offenses allegedly happened at West Memorial Elementary where Mrs. Kelly was principal and Koenig worked as cafeteria monitor. Koenig was arrested in May.

Prosecutor Marie Munier, who presented the misdemeanor case to grand jurors but made no recommendation, said the grand jury believed that Mrs. Kelly did not have enough information.

The 4-Hers earned a trip to state based on points accumulated at district. Five from Scurry County will compete at state to be held July 25-30 in Abilene. Local state qualifiers are Shanna Hays, Shawn Hays, Debbie Schwarz, Deana Schwarz and Tommy Henderson.

At the district show, Scurry County won all but one of the high point awards. In the judged events, Shanna Hays was named high point judged horseman. Shawn Hays was named reserve champion judged horseman. Shanna also won the versatility class and will represent District 2 at state.

In the timed events, Michael Jeter from Parmer County was named high point timed

In Gladewater...

Antique mall revitalizes downtown

GLADEWATER, Texas (AP) — The sign on Interstate 20 says "Gladewater — The Antique Capital of East Texas."

Some people in Jefferson or Canton might disagree with Gladewater's self-designation, but anyone who has been downtown in the last 13 months probably would not argue the point.

More than 100 antique dealers have taken over a four-block region of downtown Gladewater, breathing new life into the aging town.

The revitalization can be traced to the efforts of one woman — Beth Bishop.

Beth and her husband, Cecil, got into the auction business 20 years ago in Big Sandy.

"Most people were ashamed of my 'rat hole' furniture in Big Sandy," Mrs. Bishop said. "I came to Gladewater in 1985 and saw it was hurting. I said to myself, 'I am going to do something about this.'"

Gladewater was indeed hurting, but it wasn't always that way.

"I've been here 54 years watching this town," said Hurshel Baker, owner of Keoun Music Company. "When that first oil well came in back in the late '20s to early '30s, people came here from all over the country."

"This was literally the only place in the United States to find work during the Depression," he said. "I remember when there was 26 oil refineries operating in the city limits. I earned 80 cents an hour back then working in the refinery, which wasn't bad money. We felt lucky to have work."

The oil boom continued, more or less, until the early 1980s. Gladewater had, in the past, lived and died by oil.

The oil crunch hit hard, as the once thriving oil town had all but dried up.

"I remember back in 1984, when I was the president of the chamber of commerce," local banker George Meisenheimer said. "We opened 40 businesses and closed 60."

"This whole town was depressed from 1983 to 1986," he said.

The Bishops moved their auction business to Gladewater in October 1985 when the downtown area was about 75 percent vacant.

In 1986, Mrs. Bishop contacted Meisenheimer about renting some of the 13 vacant downtown buildings owned by First State Bank.

An agreement was reached for her to rent the old K. Wolens building for $400 per month. She later purchased the building, as well as others.

Mrs. Bishop then began asking her auction friends and dealers to come to Gladewater to set up shop. She was making them offers they couldn't refuse.

She told them she would pay the rent and utilities on the building, as well as run their booths, charging only a monthly fee for the floor space.

The Gladwater Antique Mall, as it is now called, once housed the town's post office, as well as oil and gas offices and a pool hall in the basement.

The antiques are displayed throughout the two-story building and merchandise is paid for at a centrally located cash register.

Dealers are paid twice a month for the merchandise they sell, and Mrs. Bishop calls them when their inventory gets low.

"The reason this worked so well is the dealers working together," she said. "We have dealers from some towns who wouldn't speak to each other, they come here and work side by side."

The large number of dealers requesting space forced her to open a second mall.

"At one time I was looking after 74 shops," Mrs. Bishop said.

She quickly decided to let some friends in on her good fortune, letting them take some of the burden off her back.

Today there are 15 antique shops and five antique malls operating in Gladewater. Each mall has a waiting list of dealers wanting a piece of the action.

The Saturday night auctions regularly attract 300-400 people.

Meisenheimer said the bank no longer owns any downtown buildings, a feat he credits to low interest rates, and making mortgage payments the same as rent payments.

Recent grand-openings have included an ice cream parlor, two tea rooms, a restaurant and a baking company.

Meisenheimer said the town's biggest need is a motel.

"We get the people here, but they need a place to spend the night," he said.

"I get to buy any tape I want. Right?"
 "You can rent ALMOST any videotape you want. Within reason. You know the drill."
 "Okay. I want 'Texas Chainsaw Massacre.'"
 "We're already bargaining at this point. Am I correct?"
 "No! I want it!"
 "You can't have it."
 "But I've already seen it."
 "Oh really. Where? When?"
 "At this kid's house. His parents let us watch it one afternoon when I was over there."
 "Name the parents, please. I have a warrant for their arrest."
 "You don't believe me, but it's true. And since I've already seen it, why can't I check it out?"
 "The best reason I can think of. Because I have all the money."
 "You always say that."
 "And it's always true. How about a comedy?"
 "Sick, dad."
 "Then let's go look at the westerns."
 "Duh."
 "Then, you tell me. What kind of movie do you want?"

"Okay. Here's the deal. I want either sharks eating people or something with monsters or I want people with chainsaws."
 "How about monsters with chainsaws eating sharks?"
 "Show-me-it."
 "That was a joke. And I'm really sorry you didn't catch it, by the way."
 "Let's look at the horror movies. Hey dad, look at this sucker. Oh gross. Look at the back here. What in the heck happened to those guys?"
 "Put those boxes back on the shelf. Good grief, if I had seen that kind of stuff when I was a kid I wouldn't have slept for a week."
 "What about this one? Look, it's PG-13."
 "Right. PG-13. Does that mean they only take their clothes off after they've cut them up with chainsaws?"
 "Sick, dad."
 "Let me suggest one. How about 'Horror of Dracula' with Christopher Lee as the Count, chased by Peter Cushing as the vampire catcher Van Helsing?"
 "What's it rated?"
 "It isn't."
 "How in the heck did they do that?"

"Back before they had PG, they had G movies. And before G, they had nothing."
 "Oh, I get it. It's one of those old-timey shows. It's probably black and white too."
 "As a matter of fact, it's in color. I saw this movie at a Saturday afternoon matinee. It says here it was released in 1957 by Hammer Films, which used to make a bunch of really scary flicks when I was a kid. Assuming it came to our town within two years after it was released, which was about par, that means I was either nine or 10."
 "I told you it was an old timey show."
 "I remember just the previews scared the peewaddle out of me. There's this part where Dracula picks up the girl and carries her off. The music is booming and he's got this kind of smile on his face, those two white teeth peeking out. Whew!"
 "Dad! I want to see something scarry."
 "This is a great movie. A classic."
 "But dad. You've got to realize. It's different now."
 "The next time I need an eight-year-old to remind me that time's have changed, I'll let you know."
 "Dadddd! Where are you going?"
 "I'll send your mother in to finish this. My back's killing me."

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

One of the questions I get asked most frequently these days goes something like this: "Now that a New York publisher is interested in your books, are you still going to do 'Country Life'?"

This question always baffles me. Of course I'll still do "Country Life." Why the heck wouldn't I? Lately I've been pondering upon why people might think that I would give up this weekly column.

First, they may think that I'll be too busy from now on to do it anymore. Well, let's see now. In the past eight years, I've used my work-time to do publicity for the "Where the Buffalo Roamed" project hosted by the Scurry County Museum, helped put together the Centennial edition of the "Snyder Daily News," written over 100 magazine and newspaper articles regionally and nationally, completed four novels, taught writing at workshops and conferences all over the western half of the state, and given literally dozens of speeches with Linda Scalf on the Noah Project and family violence. Plus 133 "Country Life" columns.

The only difference between the work I've done in the past and what I'll be doing now is that (a) I'll definitely be paid better and (b) I'll have to deliver a book manuscript on deadline. Deadlines don't scare me. Haven't you heard? We compulsive, overachiever Type A's thrive on them.

I think a second reason people wonder if I might consider dropping "Country Life" is the impression that publishing on Madison Avenue is somehow a Bigger Deal than publishing on College Avenue. Not when you put it in perspective. Like I used to teach my high school English classes: writing is a form of communication.

Writers write because they have something to say and have somehow managed to acquire the gifts or skills or whatever to say it. To the freelancer, there's only one way to accomplish that goal, and that is to publish. And the only way to publish is to sell. Dickens knew that. So did Poe and Fitzgerald and even Shakespeare. (Only you had to sell yourself to a patron back then.)

From that perspective, the only difference between Madison Avenue and College Avenue is numbers. "Country Life" may be read by hundreds of subscribers to SDN, whereas one of my articles in, say, "Parents Magazine," may be seen by millions of people through supermarket sales, libraries and the like. And I can tell you that I get just as big a thrill when I get a letter from Route 1, Snyder, as I do when I get one from Iowa or California, because it means that my words touched somebody, somehow...and that, in the long run, is what it's all about.

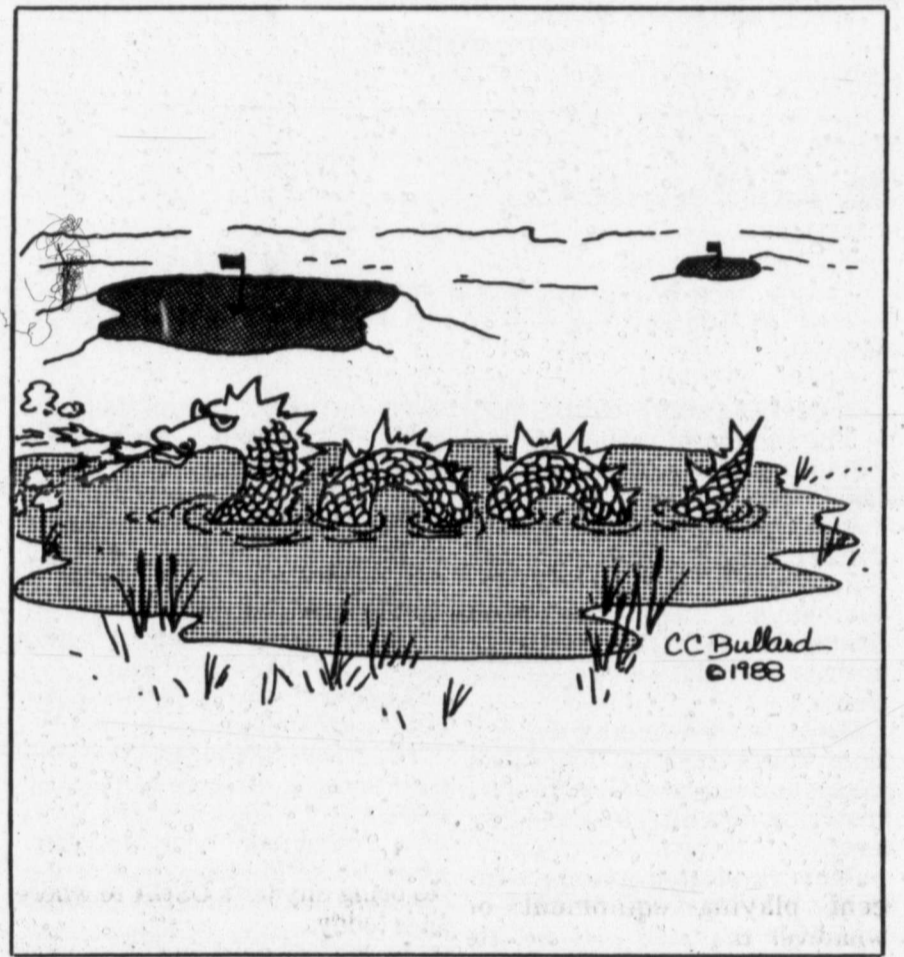

Another reason people might think I'd give up "Country Life" is because it won't be worth my time anymore. After all, the pay from Madison Avenue for one of my articles or book manuscripts is a heck of a lot better than what I get for this column. But I can churn one of these things out in half an hour, if necessary (though I may spend hours on one another time) — whereas it takes several days or even weeks to do an article for a national publication, and several months or even years to do a book.

Writers get paid proportionately for their time, just like anybody else. Granted, some writers get more than others, especially in the world of fiction, but let's face it, fiction is, after all, a form of entertainment, and recognizable names are just as important to bookstores as recognizable faces are to box offices.

I've said it before and I'll say it again: no other form of writing I've ever done has given me the pleasure and satisfaction I receive from doing "Country Life." It never ceases to amaze me the wide range of people — all ages, shapes, sizes and colors — who call or write or just come up to me on the street to comment on my work in this respected newspaper. It reassures me that I've been able to use whatever gifts I've been given to uplift, inspire, educate or entertain another human being. It reminds us both that, no matter how much we may feel like it sometimes, we are not alone.

No matter whether it's Madison Avenue or College Avenue — that's the bottom line.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY July 10

A new plan to encourage prompt payment of medical bills incurred at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, one which eliminates the interest "penalty" for unpaid debt, was profiled Sunday.

Effective immediately, individuals who incur hospital bills at Cogdell will not be charged interest on the unpaid balance. In lieu of these charges, monthly installment payment plans will be established.

Officials with SACROC are hoping to let bids next Friday for one of the largest repair projects ever undertaken in connection with the unitized field's CO2 injection and recovery operations, it was reported Sunday.

The work, estimated in the range of $5 million, will repair pitting caused by corrosion in the two 100 ft. tall "absorber" columns in place at the Sun Gas Plant.

MONDAY July 11

A two-week cycle of rainfall in Scurry County received another boost from showers Sunday and early Monday morning, adding amounts ranging from 1 to 4 inches.

In Snyder, 2.06 inches were noted Monday at 7 a.m., while select locations in the Dunn and Ira areas to the south received 3, 4 and an isolated report of 5 inches of rainfall.

Scurry County commissioners Monday appointed a banker, a rancher and a farmer to the Farm and Ranch Committee of the Veterans Land Board.

Upon the recommendation of County Judge Bobby Goodwin, the court approved the appointments of Snyder National Bank vice president Bruce Kallemeyn, Fluvanna rancher J.D. Patterson and Dunn farmer Jon L. Derouen to the committee.

The three-member board of review for the Scurry County Appraisal District heard arguments related to seven tax appeals Monday as hearings were conducted for real estate and personal property.

Value adjustments made by the board totaled some $10,000, some $8,000 of this related to the value of a residence and another $2,000 to the value of a private aircraft.

City councilmen Monday night voted to table bids on a project to put fencing around three sides of the city landfill. The delay was approved in order to talk with adjacent landowners to determine whether or not a fence is really needed.

TUESDAY July 12

Snyder National Bank officials posted notices of foreclosure on facilities once operated by American Southwest Brine and Chemical Tuesday with plans to auction land and equipment at the site Aug. 2.

The foreclosure sale is to include a 10-acre tract of land plus all improvements on this land. According to the posting, the sale will take place "to the highest bidder for cash."

A reduced operating budget for Western Texas College was approved by trustees Tuesday, a 12-month estimate which includes a $2 per semester hour tuition increase for in-district students and a $4 increase for out-of-district students.

In addition, the approximate $5.3 million budget includes merit pay raises of some $700 per year for 22 faculty members and 18 maintenance and clerical personnel as well as new faculty positions for eight staffers.

Trustees for Western Texas College were told Tuesday that plans have been submitted to make WTC a regional training facility for TDC correctional officers during the coming two-year cycle of new prison construction.

Regarding the regional concept, Mike Thornton, the college's liaison with TDC, noted that currently only four other community colleges, all located in South Texas, offer such training.

THURSDAY July 14

Another sizeable monthly jump in the Snyder sales tax return helped the city continue its year-to-date total at over 12 percent higher than last year.

For sales made during May and reported Wednesday, the 1 percent sales tax was 23 percent higher here, some $57,000 this year compared to more than $46,000 last year. This brought the year-to-date total to almost $428,000.

The oil-related tax roll for Scurry County has been downgraded some $447,000 by the Scurry County Appraisal District, it was reported Thursday, a change called minimal by local appraisal district officials.

It was noted the change represents less than one-tenth of 1 percent of the county's entire oil-based tax roll.

An elementary school principal from Brady, Janice Brown, was hired Thursday as Snyder ISD's new curriculum specialist, a post which includes responsibility as a second appraiser for a portion of the district's elementary school teachers.

The position was vacated with the promotion of Margaret Presswood to assistant principal at Snyder Junior High.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,
 Had Mrs. Betty Brown (Letters to the Editor) been truly interested in the Girls Softball Association, she could have learned the following facts before airing her complaints in the July 10 edition of the Snyder Daily News:

—All-Star coaches, as well as All-Star players, are not appointed; they are elected by the coaches and managers in their division. Ballots are distributed to each coach and manager and they are urged to vote, by secret ballot, for those players, coaches, and manager they feel are best qualified to represent their division at the state tournament.

Coaching at a state tournament is quite different from coaching during regular season and previous tournament experience is an important factor.

—Chaperones are selected because of the interest they have shown during the regular season in their willingness to work for the teams such as keeping score, announcing, providing transportation, assisting with the fund raiser, etc. Serving as a chaperone entails a lot more than "staying in the room with the girls." It is a tremendous responsibility and a lot of plain hard work.

—It is in no way unusual for the "entire coaching staff" from one team to be selected for All-Stars. This has been a common practice during the 10 years I have been associated with girls softball.

—The president Mrs. Brown referred to, Jerry Martin, has devoted literally thousands of hours to the Snyder United Girls Softball Association. The condition of the girls' softball complex is a testimony to Jerry's drive and dedication.

During his term as president, new covered dugouts were constructed, six-foot chain link fences have been installed around both fields, a new equipment building has been acquired, and the participation in the program has increased dramatically. The list of improvements goes on and on. Those of us who have worked with Jerry Martin over the years appreciate all that he has done and have the greatest respect for him.

If Mrs. Brown is interested in learning more about the Girls Softball Association, she can attend the board elections next summer after closing ceremonies. All parents are urged to attend and vote. I don't recall seeing Mrs. Brown at this year's election.

Lavada Cates

To the editor,

I have been involved in the Snyder United Girls Softball Association since 1974. This involvement has been as a parent, coach, manager, and for the last six or seven years as a board member. I haven't had a daughter involved in the league since 1984, so I feel that I am fairly qualified to speak out on the subject brought up in the letter in last Sunday's SDN edition.

I have seen a lot of presidents come and go in the league and I feel all of them have done their very best to promote Snyder Girls Softball, but I think — and I feel that I am speaking for the majority — that Jerry Martin has been the very best thing that has ever happened to our league. There has never been anyone more involved or more dedicated.

He gives his all to softball 365 days of the year. He has single handedly raised more money than anyone else just so a team can stay an extra night at a tournament or so they can have decent playing equipment or whatever the need may be. He has worked all year round with a group of men making our playing fields and dugouts better than all the other towns we have tournaments in and he worked very hard to get our scoreboards donated.

This has not happened by itself. I have seen Jerry agonize over problems in the league because he wants to be nothing but fair about everything and he doesn't want to see anyone hurt.

Every year, the board tries to find better ways of picking All-Stars and All-Star coaches. There is no way that will please everyone, but the way it is done seems to be the fairest way.

The All-Star players and coaches are all picked by the coaches and managers in each division by secret written ballot. Therefore, this year's All-Star coaches and managers were picked by the others in their division, NOT by the board. I feel sure if the players had a vote it would have turned out the same way.

Also, the new board of directors is elected every year after closing ceremonies at the playing field and everyone is allowed to nominate and vote. We encourage it. Yes, last year's vice-president is going to be our new president, but he is not automatically moving up. He was elected by the people who cared enough to stay around for the elections.

I think Ron Baker has proven to be as dedicated and as hard a worker as Jerry. I am looking forward to working with him. We encourage new board members every year, but the reason we end up with many of the same ones is because when we get new people on the board, much of the time they resign after one year when they see how much work is involved.

There are many other dedicated parents who work for the league and we appreciate them very much. We welcome any new suggestions and anyone is welcome to call a board meeting at any time.

Deby Farmer
Rt. 1
Snyder, TX 79549

To the editor,

July 10th, a letter to the editor appeared in the Snyder Daily News. In this letter, a fan of USGA was displeased with the Division II All-Star coaching staffs. She also attacked the president and vice-president of the league.

The fan accused these two men of misusing their offices to promote themselves. I realize this fan has a right to express her opinion on this matter.

The fan is totally wrong in her letter. The All-Star players and coaches are chosen by the entire coaching staffs of all teams that played in Division II. The girls' and coaches' names are put on a ballot and all coaches and managers vote. The girls and coaches with the most votes are the All-Star teams and coaching staffs.

The two men attacked by the letter have both put in many hours of work over several years to bring Snyder's USGA to where it is today.

Instead of accusing these men of wrong doing, we ought to praise God for men like Ron Baker and Jerry Martin and for the effect they have made with the youth of this city.

My daughter played on Ron Baker's team last season where she learned to play the game. Ron's team won the sportsmanship trophy last year and Jerry Martin's team won it this year.

When I didn't have time to coach in years past, men like Jerry and Ron were there for my daughter. I thank God for men like them.

I was given a chance to coach a team in Division II this summer. It was a great experience. By the way, we were undefeated.

Dan Warner

Snyder, TX 79549

To the editor,

As one of the new coaches in Snyder Girls Softball, it has been a privilege to have the opportunity to work with such a great organization. People on the sidelines do not realize the hours that are spent by the board of directors, umpires, coaches and managers just to make sure the girls have an organization they are proud to be associated with.

This year was a very successful one for our team, but only because we had 12 girls who loved softball and worked together as a team. Division II had nine teams this year. Every year, each division has a tournament. We were the first place team, but due to neglect on my part, the retraction did not get to the staff of the Snyder Daily News.

Because of the number of teams in Division II, Snyder is able to send two teams to the All-Star tournament in Midland. Every coach and manager had a part in selecting the 24 girls, four coaches and two managers for All-Stars. We encourage everyone to support these girls and coaches as they represent Snyder in nationals.

Division II had 18 coaches and nine managers who worked together to make the year a successful one for all the girls. Next year, we will continue to work to make Snyder Girls Softball League a proud organization for the girls as it has been in the past. I would like to say "thank you" to 12 wonderful girls who made me very proud to be a coach.

Lie detector to measure brain waves

CHICAGO (AP) — A lie detector that measures brain waves would be more accurate than polygraphs, which measure bodily functions, says its developer.

"It would probably not falsely accuse any innocent people, and it would probably pick up 70 to 90 percent of guilty people," says J. Peter Rosenfeld, a Northwestern University professor of psychology and of neurobiology and physiology. "I think that's better than existing units."

The American Medical Association and the congressional Office of Technology Assessment have said polygraphs are wrong 15 percent to 50 percent of the time.

Rosenfeld's lie detector picks up brain-wave activity through electrodes attached to the scalp, amplifying the signals and feeding them into a computer, which coordinates the information and displays it on a video screen.

Mobil plant expansion will make it world's largest

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — When Mobil Chemical Co. completes its $50 million expansion and modernization of its polyethylene plant here in 18 months, it will be the largest such plant in the world.

The demand for polyethylene, which is used to make everything from plastic bags to kitchenware, is very strong and shows no sign of abating, plant manager Dave Warner said. Companies such as Mobil, Chevron Corp., Dow Chemical Co. and Union Carbide Corp. are eager to fulfill the world's desire for more plastic, Warner said.

The Mobil Chemical plant, located on a 300-acre site, is Mobil Corp.'s only domestic polyethylene plant. Mobil Chemical is a division of Mobil Corp. Overseas, Mobil manufactures polyethylene in Saudi Arabia under a joint venture with a government-owned company, and it has a joint-venture plant with Exxon Corp. in Australia.

Expansion plans in Beaumont call for addition of a sixth polyethylene unit and a third low-pressure reactor, along with modernization of two existing low-pressure reactors to improve efficiency and increase production. Sixty-six new employees will be added to the current total of 350 workers. The project will increase the plant's annual capacity by 70 percent, from 1 billion to 1.7 billion pounds of polyethylene.

The plant already runs 24 hours a day, seven days a week, making 90,000 pounds of polyethylene an hour. That will increase to 150,000 pounds an hour.

Mobil's plastic division uses polyethylene to make garbage bags, sold under the Hefty Bag trademark, along with grocery sacks, dry cleaning bags and plastic film to wrap consumer products such as men's shirts. Mobil uses 20 percent of the polyethylene for its Hefty product line and sells the remaining 80 percent to 300 to 400 other consumer product manufacturers, companies that make everything from plastic dairy bottles to automobile parts to toys.

But the market for polyethylene has not always been good, Warner said. About two to three years ago the market was oversupplied, and companies shut down several older plants. As the economy turned around, demand has increased again to the point that shortages are commonplace and the industry is running at nearly 100 percent capacity. Thus, companies are spending money to modernize and build new plants.

About three years ago, the demand for plastic oil cans caused a surge in polyethylene usage, Warner said. The plastic cans replaced traditional paper cans with metal tops and bottoms. By now, plastic oil cans account for nearly all the oil containers sold.

Warner also said he expects plastic grocery sacks to be a major growth area. They are much cheaper to produce than paper bags, because polyethylene is a cheaper raw material.

Plastic tops for microwaveable frozen food are another new use for polyethylene.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

Is this surgery really necessary?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

One of the most puzzling paradoxes of modern medicine is the tremendous variation in surgical treatment from one community to another. For example, a patient in Boston is twice as likely as a New Haven resident to undergo carotid endarterectomy, an operation to treat stroke by reaming out blocked arteries. On the other hand, New Havenites are twice as likely as Bostonians to undergo coronary-artery bypass grafting. Further, the rates for back surgery and hysterectomies are significantly higher in New Haven than in Boston, while the rate for hip replacements is the reverse. Despite the fact that the populations in the two New England cities are demographically identical, patients in New Haven are more apt to be hospitalized for routine illnesses — such as pneumonia and diabetes — than are similar patients in Boston.

Such wide fluctuations in methods of disease management are not unique to the East Coast; similar discrepancies exist nationwide. The reasons for this are not clear. However, experts suspect that a simple factor may be at work: Doctors have yet to reach a consensus about the treatment of many ailments. This lack of agreement affects more than health; it also translates into health dollars. Per capita Medicare reimbursements in Boston are about double what they are in New Haven.

This raises two questions: (1) Are some communities overusing medical resources? (2) How can patients be expected to decide about a procedure if the doctors themselves cannot agree on what is appropriate?

California hospitals have taken to running newspaper ads that virtually ignore the doctors by attempting to coerce consumers into making medical decisions. "Some surgeons are determined to leave their mark" proclaims a Los Angeles Times ad touting a hospital in Palm Springs. There is a half-page picture of a man's bare chest with a long scar. The ad continues: "A recent study by the Harvard School of Public Health estimates that up to a half of all heart bypass surgeries performed each year are unnecessary. Why? Have some surgeons become so intent on building their professional reputations that they're endangering the well-being of patients in the process? It's a sobering thought."

Indeed it is. Maybe the ad should stop there — but it doesn't; it goes on to emphasize that this hospital can actually save people from surgery, "because these days, the cutting edge of cardiac care isn't always a knife."

In another ad on the next page, a medical center in Rancho Mirage claims to have the state's lowest mortality rate from coronary bypass surgery. Why? because it performs more heart operations than many other hospitals.

Let's analyze this situation. One hospital swears it gives better service because it saves patients from surgery; another institution professes to give better service because it performs so many operations. Confused? So am I, and I bet that the average consumer is, too.

Obviously, people are better off avoiding surgery, when possible. Coronary bypass procedures probably are performed too frequently nationwide. As yet, specialists have been unable to define precisely which patients are appropriate candidates for coronary surgery, but they're working on the problem. I don't believe that newspaper ads are going to solve the issue. Under the guise of educating the public, the hospitals' true motives are patently transparent: to garner patients. The institutions of healing are sticking it to one another, using the newspaper as a shiv. So far, they're being reasonably polite with their literary incisions, but, in the long run, this form of knife-wielding may serve to gut the profession.

Non-surgical doctors, caught in the middle of the rumble, will continue to give appropriate medical care and to refer potential surgical candidates to the proper specialists. The coercion of consumers by hospital centers using the media seems to me to complicate rather than simplify — to drive a wedge between hospitals and physicians, when what we need most right now is increased cooperation and tolerance.

Geographical variation in health care will remain a problem until doctors can agree on universal ways of handling certain serious illnesses. Medical studies will help — as they have with heart attacks, the acute treatment of which is surprisingly consistent in most communities. However, until we reach that therapeutic Walden, we'd better sit on our hands, trust in the best advice we can get from our qualified doctors, and view with amusement the hospitals that seem determined to make money by changing health care into big business.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Homeless take empty house

AUSTIN (AP) — A crowd of "street people" and their supporters marched through an Austin neighborhood to a boarded-up, abandoned house and chanted approval as three of the homeless cut a padlock from its door, pried boards from its windows and moved in.

The demonstration by about 100 was staged to attract attention to the problems of the homeless and to draw support for federal legislation that would help fund renovation and construction of affordable housing.

Similar demonstrations were held Thursday in Fort Worth, Houston and about 70 other U.S. cities.

"We live in a country that is the richest country in the world and we're sitting here homeless," said James Williams, one of the street people occupying the house, which is owned by the University of Texas.

"We're living in bushes. We're living in cars. We're living in vacant buildings ... We don't want shelters. We want homes, and we want homes now," he said.

Armenians press annexation idea

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of Armenians stayed off their jobs and poured into the streets to demand that Moscow reunite their republic with a region in neighboring Azerbaijan inhabited by their countrymen.

"Basically, the entire republic is not working," Khovik Vasilyan, an Armenian activist, said from the Armenian capital of Yerevan.

Activists said more than 150,000 people held a rally Thursday in Yerevan to demand the annexation of Nagorno-Karabakh, a region about the size of Delaware now part of the Azerbaijan.

For the past two months, Nagorno-Karabakh itself has been disrupted by strikes by ethnic Armenians who want to be reunited with the Armenian republic. Armenia followed suit with its strikes on July 4.

About three-fourths of Nagorno-Karabakh's residents are ethnic Armenians, most of them Christians, but the region was assigned to predominantly Moslem Azerbaijan in 1923.

Armenians who rallied in Yerevan urged the southern republic's 10 deputies to the Soviet Union's parliament to press for annexation, Gagik Aghasarian, an Armenian architect who attended the rally, said by telephone.

Armenians believe the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the highest legislative body in the Soviet government, will meet Monday to consider the Nagorno-Karabakh question.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Vadim P. Perilyev said such a meeting was likely but he didn't know when it would occur.

The names of the 10 Armenian deputies were read out at the Yerevan rally so members of the crowd could contact them and "express the wish of the people that Karabakh is annexed to Armenia," Aghasarian said.

In Nagorno-Karabakh, a party worker said in a telephone interview that paramilitary police were deployed in rural areas. Perilyev told reporters the situation was tense in the region.

A resident of Stepanakert, the territorial capital, said the ethnic turmoil has taken a heavy toll.

"Our situation is very bad because the strike is continuing. No one is working," said the resident, a woman who hung up the phone before giving her name.

She said Nagorno-Karabakh residents had to rely on food produced locally. "We aren't receiving food from Azerbaijan or Armenia," she said, but "we get some potatoes from the Stepanakert area."

Rem Ananikyan, deputy chief of Armenia's official news agency, Armenpress, said by telephone from Yerevan that more than 200,000 people attended another rally on Wednesday.
