

200 believed killed by storm...

Gilbert aftermath: search for bodies

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — People using picks or their bare hands dug through rubble where their homes had stood, and the search wore on for the bodies of people who died when a river overran its banks and swept away four buses.

As of Sunday, rescue workers had found the bodies of 20 of the nearly 200 people believed killed the previous day when a flash flood spawned by Hurricane Gilbert caused the normally dry Santa Catarina River to overflow.

The torrent ripped a 40-mile path of destruction through northern Mexico's most populated region, an which Gilbert had dumped about 12 inches of rain in 24 hours after leaving the Gulf of Mexico.

Gilbert, which killed at least 194 people during its week of life, was today a tropical depression that was spreading showers and thunderstorms from Texas to Illinois.

In Mexico, 31 died when the storm slammed into Mexico's Yucatan peninsula Wednesday with winds of up to 200 mph. One woman drowned in floodwaters Sunday in the coastal state of Tamaulipas.

The storm killed 30 people in Haiti, 26 in Jamaica, five in the Dominican Republic and eight in Honduras in its deadly rampage through the Caribbean. Two people were killed in Texas by tornados spawned by the storm and a pilot died in Oklahoma when his plane broke apart in heavy rains.

President Miguel de la Madrid, surveying the destruction in this northern industrial city on Sunday, said Mexico has "a lot to lament."

Parts of two major thoroughfares and hundreds of homes built by the poor in the dry Santa Catarina riverbed were swept away by the raging waters.

Although homes had been evacuated hours before the destruction hit, most residents lost their life's possessions. Oficials said about 30,000 in the region were homeless.

Many residents used picks or bare hands to dig through the rubble that remained where their tiny concrete and tin houses had stood.

Rescue workers continued to search for bodies, and Jose Natividad Gonzalez Paras, Nuevo Leon state secretary, said a "considerable number" of people still were missing.

Journalists saw soldiers uncover the body of one man caught in the mangled remains of an electricity tower.

The man, who appeared about 20 years old, had been covered by clothing, tree branches and mud trapped by the tower, one of several downed lines along the Santa Catarina's bank at the hardest-hit area.

Further downstream, two dozen soldiers used cranes to pull the crushed and overturned body of an intercity passenger bus from the mud and sand of the riverbed.

"They hope to find bodies because they don't know exactly how many people were in the bus or how many were able to save themselves," said rescue coordinator Lt. Col. Vicente Gamez of the 7th Military Zone.

The first bus yanked from the riverbed and hauled away revealed only empty seats.

Rains drop 3-5 inches here

1988 now 'average' rain year

From Local Wire Reports
Snyder received 3.2 inches from almost a constant and slow-falling rain here Saturday and Sunday, while portions of the county received up to 5 1/2 inches.

As of 7 a.m. Sunday, the city had received 1.99 inches and, as of 7 a.m. Monday, another 1.28 inches had fallen, bringing the weekend total to 3.27 inches.

This brought the year-to-date figure to 19.95 inches, which is approximately the amount normally recorded in Scurry County for a 12-month period.

Any rainfall received between now and Dec. 31 will be counted as an above average year for local rainfall.

From the weekend storm system, an offshoot of Hurricane Gilbert, rain gauges near Ira recorded 5 1/2 inches while Dunn had some 5 inches. Lake Thomas recorded 3 inches and the lake level is expected to rise approximately 1 ft as a result, to around 2.236 ft above sea level.

The lake level is approximately the same as it was this past spring. It is still some 22 ft. below the level considered full.

Other county rain totals from the weekend include some 4 1/2 inches near the site of the new state prison, 4 inches near Camp Springs, 3.9 inches near Hemleigh, and 3 inches near Fluvanna.

The majority of Scurry County rainfall recorded in 1988 has fallen since late June.

As of June 25, the official rain total was just over 5 inches of moisture for the year with drought-like conditions threatening the 1988 cotton crop.

The period of rain started with heavy showers here June 27 and, since that time, almost 15 inches of rain has been reported.

An average cotton yield is now expected this fall.

From the weekend, the high temperature here was 78 degrees recorded Sunday afternoon. The low was 68 degrees.

The wet and relatively cool weekend should give way to mostly sunny days and fair night-time skies through Tuesday. The forecast calls for increasing clouds in far West Texas Tuesday along with a slight chance of showers.

The extended forecast Wednesday through Friday for West Texas calls for partly cloudy skies with widely scattered showers in the southeastern part of the region.

Temperatures should be slightly above seasonal normals. For the Snyder area, high readings should be in the mid to upper 80s with overnight lows in the upper 50s to near 60.

Across the state Monday, strong southerly winds raked across Central and North Central Texas as the remnants of Hurricane Gilbert raced rapidly northward across Oklahoma.

A cold front moving into the Texas Panhandle brought northerly winds of 20 to 30 mph.

The greater part of the Lone Star State was dry, except for a small area of showers from northwest of Hondo to just west of Bandera near the Balcones Escarpment.

Skies were partly to mostly cloudy over the eastern half of the region. See RAINY, page 9

Troops fire into crowd

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Troops today fired into crowds of students, Buddhist monks and other peaceful marchers and stopped armed crowds that tried to enter Rangoon to join the venting of outrage against a military coup, witnesses said.

Scattered reports said at least 85 people were killed, soldiers among them, and 65 wounded in clashes that began in and around the capital after headline army commander Gen. Saw Maung ousted civilian President Maung Maung on Sunday.

"Many students are being mowed down. Can't anything be done?" a reporter said by telephone from the scene of one confrontation before breaking down in tears.

On Sunday, Saw Maung abolished key government institutions, imposed a nighttime curfew and banned public gatherings. He said the move was aimed at halting economic and social chaos that has forced the resignation of two Burmese leaders since July as people agitated for an end to 26 years of repressive one-party rule.

In the past month, strikes, demonstrations, looting and lawlessness have paralyzed the economy and pushed the nation to the verge of anarchy.

Battles between troops and protesters were reported today around the main government administrative building, the U.S. Embassy, the central Sule Pagoda and other locations.

"There's a lot of shooting," a diplomat said on condition of anonymity. "It's a bad situation."

Witnesses said corpses were taken away by military trucks while residents dragged some dead and wounded into their houses or placed them onto the seats of three-wheeled taxis for rides to the nearest hospitals.

Residents of buildings near the U.S. Embassy said they saw demonstrators being cut down by military fire. Others saw two monks falling to the ground after being hit by bullets around the Sule Pagoda.

A Western diplomat, contacted by telephone from Tokyo, said soldiers hidden from sight and possibly positioned on rooftops were firing at demonstrators in front of the U.S. Embassy, which may have been struck by bullets.

Although most demonstrators faced the troops without weapons, some carried swords, spears, crossbows and other primitive weapons. There were reports that they were hurling firebombs in some areas.

The Western diplomat said 1,000 demonstrators were moving peacefully around a corner near the U.S. Embassy when troops opened fire, possibly with heavy weapons and automatic rifles.

The diplomat said he could see three young men who had taken refuge behind a tree. Two appeared to be fatally wounded while another, whose shirt was bloodsoaked, seemed in pain. An ambulance later evacuated the three.

Couple hurt in Lubbock

A Snyder man and his wife had been moved out of the intensive care unit and into regular hospital rooms Monday at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital after being struck by a motor vehicle Saturday night in Lubbock.

Injured were Bill Dale Sands, 23, and his wife Mary Alice, 21, of 2600 El Paso.

Reports indicate they were both hurt when struck by a car driven by a 25-year-old Lubbock woman. She was reportedly pulling from the parking lot of the Dallas Nights nightclub in the 5200 Block of 34th St.

The incident occurred around 2 a.m. Sunday.

Police reports indicate the couple was crossing 34th St. on foot when hit.

Homecoming slate for week reported

This Thursday and Friday will mark homecoming activities at Snyder High School.

As part of the week, an open house is scheduled at SHS also. It will be held Tuesday with parents invited at 7:30 p.m. to meet in Worsham Auditorium, then to visit with teachers in their respective classrooms.

Homecoming plans Thursday begin with a homecoming parade. It will start at 6 p.m. in the Kmart parking lot, then head down College Ave. to the downtown square.

At the square, a pep rally will be held. Also Thursday, a bonfire is planned, beginning at 9 p.m. at the Farmers Co-Op Gin on the Roby Highway.

Friday's homecoming game will be against Littlefield and will begin at Tiger Stadium at 8 p.m.

Following the game, all SHS exes are invited to the high school library for a reception hosted by the National Honor Society.

There will also be an after-game dance sponsored by the SHS Student Council in the student center.

Hospital signs sought

Scurry County commissioners took under advisement Monday morning a proposal by the Plainview Home Demonstration Club that more signs be erected to give directions to Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Ada Staton, one of four club members who attended the 10 a.m. meeting as a club activity, told the court that an injured oilfield worker was once brought by a club meeting at Northeast Community Center and the members realized that there is a scarcity of signs to show the way to the hospital.

She said the only sign that they were aware of is on the Colorado City Hwy.

Democrats favored in Utah

By The Associated Press
A former governor, the wife of another, and sons of a former senator and a former governor are on the ballots as 12 states hold elections for their top office in November.

In three of those states — Utah, West Virginia and Indiana — Democrats are favored to retake the governor's mansion from Republicans; in a fourth — North Carolina — a Democrat is giving the GOP incumbent a hard time.

Currently, 27 Democrats and 23 Republicans serve as governors. Nine incumbents — six Republicans and three Democrats — will be on the ballot. Republican Robert Orr of Indiana is barred by law from a third term; Montana Democrat Ted Schwinden and New Hampshire Republican John Sununu are retiring.

If Massachusetts' Michael Dukakis is elected president, Lt.

Former Green Thumb enrollee is now 'sheriff'

Charlie Cox, a retired cowboy and former Green Thumb employee, has assumed duties as "sheriff" of Old Fort Hood Tower Center, reports Wendy Brown, area Green Thumb supervisor.

When Cox is not busy "locking up" the bad guys he takes youngsters on mule rides and shows them the animals at the fort. His knowledge of the Old West has proven to be a valuable asset when he shows tourists around the local attraction, Brown said.

In addition, Cox still finds the time to oil paint and wood carve and he is a crack shot with a bullwhip. He also plays the harmonic and sings at the Old Fort Wood Cafe. "The Green Thumb motto: 'Ability is ageless' is well demonstrated by this fine gentleman," Brown said.

Green Thumb is an equal opportunity affirmative action employer which provides job opportunities and placement to low income persons age 55 years old and older, Brown said.

It is funded by the Department of Labor and is sponsored by the National Farmers Union. While with the program, enrollees work in community service type jobs with non-profit organizations, schools, city, and county agencies in a variety of different duties best suited to the enrollee she said.

While enrolled in Green Thumb, Cox was a van driver for the Double Mountain Coach Transportation Program out of Aspermont. After an enrollee becomes "job ready" they are encouraged and assisted in finding gainful employment in the private sector.

Gov. Evelyn Murphy, also a Democrat, will serve out his term, which expires in 1990. In Nevada, Lt. Gov. Bob Miller will complete the two years remaining in fellow Democrat Dick Bryan's term if Bryan is elected to the U.S. Senate.

Other states electing governors this fall are Delaware, Missouri, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Vermont and Washington.

In Missouri, Democratic state Rep. Betty Hearnese, wife of former Gov. Warren Hearnese, who served in 1965-73, lags behind Republican Gov. John Ashcroft in fund raising and in polls. Ashcroft is seeking his second term.

Democrat Thomas Judge, Montana's governor from 1972-80, is seeking a comeback against former state Sen. Stan Stephens in a race seen as a tossup.

New Hampshire's lineup was determined Tuesday when Rep. Judd Gregg, whose father, Hugh, was governor in 1953-55, ran away with a three-way GOP primary. He faces lawyer Paul McEachern, who nearly beat Sununu two years ago.

And in Indiana, Secretary of State Evan Bayh, 32-year-old son of former Sen. Birch E. Bayh, hopes to capitalize on his famous name in a race against Republican Lt. Gov. John M. Mutz.

Republican Gov. Norm Bangerter's bid for a second term is in danger in Utah, where a weak economy, a record $166 million tax increase, several bank failures and the drought have eroded his popularity.

Industry ad campaign seeks to regain nuclear support

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's troubled atomic power industry has started spending millions of dollars on advertising aimed at rebuilding public support for nuclear energy.

The advertisements make the argument that nuclear power helps reduce dangerous U.S. dependence on foreign oil imports.

Anti-nuclear activists, however, say the ads are misleading because only about 4 percent of U.S. oil consumption goes toward generating electricity. They contend that the industry is belittling or ignoring safety risks involved with nuclear power.

Spearheading the pro-nuclear campaign is the U.S. Council for Energy Awareness, a Washington-based trade association largely supported by the nuclear industry. USCEA's advertising and public relations activities are augmented by other groups, including the Edison Electric Institute, also based in Washington, representing the nation's investor-owned utilities.

Carl Goldstein, a USCEA spokesman, said that about $7 million of the organization's $17 million annual budget goes to advertising.

The ad campaign includes a 15-second spot that ran during the CBS Evening News and Saturday afternoon baseball games on NBC this summer.

The cartoon-style ad depicts a person perched atop oil drums as they speed up and down a roller coaster. Then the person is flung into midair and floats back to earth using a parachute emblazoned with the words

"COAL" and "NUCLEAR."

An announcer intones: "The problem with foreign oil is that price and supply go up and down. To get off this roller coaster, America can use its own coal and nuclear energy. America can count on coal and nuclear energy."

USCEA is striving to convey a similar message — spelled out in greater detail — in advertisements in The Wall Street Journal and magazines including Time, Newsweek, U.S. News & World Report, Reader's Digest, National Geographic, Forbes and Sports Illustrated.

One ad says: "Even though most Americans believe that nuclear energy will continue to play an important role in our nation's energy future, no new nuclear power plants are currently being planned. At present, too many financial, political, licensing and regulatory uncertainties stand in the way of America's further developing its nuclear energy resources."

Criticism of USCEA's advertising campaign has come from the Safe Energy Communication Council, a Washington-based coalition of 13 energy, environmental and public interest groups.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People with whom you'll be involved today might not live up to your expectations. Don't make matters worse by openly criticizing their shortcomings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might be a little too careless with your possessions or resources today for your own good. If you don't respect what you have, don't expect others to.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're pretty good at keeping objectives in focus, but today your vision could be fuzzy and you're not apt to achieve what you set out to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you make a mistake today, rectify it immediately instead of trying to cover it up. What you attempt to hide will be discovered later and it could be embarrassing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you require financial advice today, go to an expert instead of a friend. The counsel your pal may offer could cause additional complications.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you do not find others cooperative today, the problem could be with you. Don't expect people to do your bidding if you only focus on your priorities and ignore theirs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, guard against inclinations to read more into what companions say than is intended. You're a bit too sensitive and your feelings could be hurt needlessly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone who loves you could be deeply upset today if you're overly attentive to someone else. Be careful where you cast your roving glances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not make commitments impulsively today in order to placate someone who is applying pressure. If there is something you would rather not do, be firm and say so.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not apt to have too much success today in getting others to do things for you that you should be doing yourself. Don't annoy them with your requests.

Readers Clash on How to Care For Cats Who Are Old and Sick

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't believe your telling "C.B. in Phoenix" to have Brandy and Spice, his two cats, put to sleep just because they were old and sick.

If they were too much trouble, surely he could find another home for them. Lots of people love animals enough to care for them even when they are old and sick.

If you approve of "putting cats to sleep," how about people? When they get old and sick, maybe you would like to solve the problem by putting them to sleep, too.

I thought you were an animal lover, Abby. I was very disappointed in your answer.

OHIO FARM GIRL

DEAR FARM GIRL: Sorry I disappointed you. Please read on:

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to respond to "C.B. in Phoenix," who faced the dilemma about what to do with Brandy and Spice, the two cats who became old and sick. Find a new home for them? Or put them to sleep?

First, cats have a strong sense of place. Having lived for so long with you, they would very probably be disoriented and unhappy if they were moved into a strange environment at their age.

Second, if you, who loves them, can't cope with their illness, what makes you think someone else can? If someone does impulsively take them, then finds the task of caring for them impossible — what then? (I have learned from sad experience that there are a lot of people who simply put old cats out, even though the cats have lost what ability they had to fend for themselves.)

The thought of "putting them to sleep" may be painful, but having done it once, I would not hesitate to do it again. Our big cat, Riley, was not only old, he was dying of leukemia. We cared for him lovingly, but when his pain became too intense, we took him to the vet who had cared for him for years. I held Riley in my arms so he would not be upset or frightened (never mind how hard I was crying at the time) while the doctor gently administered the fatal injection.

Riley laid his little head against my hand, and slowly stopped breathing. There was not a twitch or quiver. He was neither hurt nor frightened.

Of course, we missed our old friend for a long time, but I felt good about having spared him a painful, lingering death. I hope when my time comes, it will be as easy.

NORA IN LITTLE ROCK

DEAR ABBY: All right, here is my pet peeve. And I am sure others will say it is also theirs:

Why don't people who are sick stay home instead of going to work and giving everybody else their cold, their flu, or whatever they have that "seems to be going around"?

A co-worker dragged herself to work when she was feeling lousy with some undisclosed sickness, and you guessed it — she gave whatever it was she had to the rest of us. Please print this, Abby, but please don't use my name. I need this job, and she is my superior.

OUT FOR A WEEK

DEAR OUT: Thanks for a helpful letter. This also applies to parents who send their children to school with colds, coughs and various other minor ailments. Folks, give your co-workers and children a break. If you (or they) are not feeling well — there's no place like home.

***

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage is included).

Education important new survey reveals

A recent survey conducted at 44 community and technical colleges in Texas, including Western Texas College, shows that job placement rates for graduates of institutes have increased despite the state's economic condition.

Jim Reed, director of Student Information Systems, and the TEX-SIS student followup systems, says this is just one of the trends found in the survey which supports the belief that education will become even more important to employees of the future.

WTC was one of the original six subcontractors who designed the TEX-SIS system and participates in the surveys annually.

Over 20,000 former students and employees annually take part in the surveys conducted by Reed's Student and Information Systems. Included is information on salaries and placements, labor market trends and student demographics.

Students who complete two-year occupational associate degrees can expect higher starting salaries, Reed continued. Persons who complete one-year occupational certificates reported an annual salary of $13,512; for completers of two-year occupational associate degrees, the salary was $18,048.

In addition to associate degrees, WTC offers one-year certificates for students in

Study paints grim picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study of juveniles in youth correctional facilities gives a grim picture of the home lives of those youngsters who commit crimes before adulthood.

The study found that nearly three out of four of the juveniles come from broken homes and were under the influence of drugs or alcohol when they committed their offense.

The study by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics also found that nearly 60 percent of the 18,226 juveniles in the long-term, state-operated institutions during 1987 had used drugs regularly, once a week or more for at least a month.

automobile mechanics, cosmetology, diesel mechanics, golf course and landscape technology, vocational nursing and welding. Information about the certificate programs can be obtained from the college catalog.

Students who complete community and junior college programs also help contribute to the economic development of the region, Reed points out. The study found that 90 percent of the occupational students say within Texas to practice their skills.

"Employment opportunities of the future will require much higher skill levels," said Reed. "This trend signals the beginning of an era in which employees must have postsecondary training to be successful in the workplace."

"Even in our current economic times, students who complete occupational programs at community colleges are very successful in finding good jobs in their fields of study," Reed said. "Students without postsecondary education will find it increasingly difficult to secure and hold the types of jobs that have a future."

Visualizing the defense

Defense is probably the hardest part of the game to master because there are so many different ways of taking tricks, and so many of a defender's decisions are based upon the ability to imagine what cards and distribution declarer is concealing. Still, deals frequently occur in which you can picture an easy way to defeat the contract even before the dummy comes down. Today's deal is an example.

West bravely made a one-spade overcall. The double by North was a special call announcing support for the other suits. When East jumped-raised spades, South bid clubs more from an unwillingness to let the opponents play spades than anything else. But North had the values to go on to game.

To West it hardly seemed like a routine hand, in which the defenders would take whatever tricks were coming to them in spades and then wait to see what developed in the other suits. Instead, it might be easy to grab the first three tricks. So out came the ace of diamonds. Then West led the deuce of spades to his partner's ace. If there was any doubt that the diamond ace was a singleton, the suit-preference lead of the spade two rightly convinced East that the contract could be quickly set with a diamond back. And that's what he returned.

Probe continues into possible crash cause

DALLAS (AP) — Federal investigators say the meticulous job of determining what caused the crash of Delta Flight 1141 still could take months as they scrutinize virtually every piece of the plane's flight control surfaces.

"We're going to have to take all these things apart and see if there are any 'witness marks' — bends, nicks, cracks and other possible problems that could lead to some sort of failure," said Bernard Loeb, deputy director of the National Transportation Safety Board's bureau of accident investigation.

The Dallas Morning News reported investigators in Washington are examining engines, fuel pumps, fuel lines and fuel-air adjusters on the Boeing 727 that crashed at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Aug. 31, killing 14 people.

Officials close to the investigation suggest that a combination of problems may explain the crash, the newspaper reported.

Rudolf Kapustin, an aviation consultant and former NTSB investigator who led the probe into the 1985 Delta Flight 191 crash, warned that placing too much emphasis on one theory is counterproductive in the early stages of an investigation.

"The fact is that nobody — including the guys working on it — has the slightest clue at this point," Kapustin said.

Golden Fleece award bestowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire says that an agency that spent $68,160 so workers could learn about mass transit at Disney World is the winner of his latest Golden Fleece award.

"This is an idea Dopey would have loved, but it's likely to make taxpayers feel like Grumpy," Proxmire, D-Wis., said in a statement.

One question troubling investigators involves the plane's flaps. Investigators say an improper flap setting could have prompted pilot Larry Davis to put the plane in a nose-high attitude, increasing lift and perhaps disrupting the airflow to at least one engine.

Wing flaps on the trailing edge and slats on the leading edge, usually are extended from the wings to provide even more lift on takeoff. But interviews with the three-man flight crew who survived the crash failed to establish the position of control surfaces.

If control surfaces, such as the flaps, are not in proper takeoff positions, a device called the Takeoff Warning System should sound at the moment power is increased for takeoff. The cockpit voice recorder picked up no such alarm.

Some pilots, however, argue that even if Delta Flight 1141's flaps were left in the up position, that alone might not account for the crash if the crew realized the problem in time.

Wranglers cop WJCAC win

Odessa College shot a trim 135 over the final nine holes here Saturday to slip past Midland and win the first Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf tournament of the season.

Midland's one-under-par 279 gave the Chaps a six-stroke lead after 18 holes but Odessa made it up in the final nine. The Wranglers turned in a 420, to win the 27-hole event by two strokes.

Western Texas College, lifted by Lance Jones' 103, finished third overall with a 443. New Mexico Military Institute was fourth at 444 while defending conference champion New Mexico Junior College has a 445 for fifth.

The win gave Odessa 5 conference points. Midland picked up 4, WTC 3, NMMI 2 and NMJC 1.

Medalist was Midland's Gordon McGarva, who defeated Jones on the first playoff hole after both had shot 103s. McGarva shot 69-34, Jones 68-35.

"As far as our scoring, it is getting better," said Western Texas College coach Dave Foster. "The thing that hurt us in this tournament was two of our sophomores did not play very well. And, we played the last nine holes very inconsistent as a team."

Western shot a 295 over the first 18 and held third place by six strokes. A 148 over the final nine saved third place, but by only a stroke over NMMI.

"The weather was a big factor but we all played in it. The rain did not stop all day," said Foster. "I thought Lance did a real good job. He had a good tournament."

Jones, a sophomore from Andrews, didn't get enough support from his teammates. Memphis, Texas sophomore Darrell Cofer shot a 112 while David Turrentine, a freshman from Grand Prairie, turned in a 113. Sophomores Mark Burgen from Andrews and Gary Schoen from Hamilton carded a 116 and a 117 while Borger freshman Jeff Baker shot a 126.

Next action for WTC will be Sept. 21-22 at Pecan Valley Golf Course for the Fort Worth Recreational. Western took runner-up honors at the tournament last year, with Jones winning medalist.

Ladies whip Panthers; play Maidens Tuesday

Snyder's Lady Tigers didn't let up here Saturday afternoon and marched to a key, 15-12, 15-12 victory over Fort Stockton.

The win broke a two-match losing string for the Lady Tigers, who were 0-2 in District 4-4A volleyball action heading into the match.

Snyder now prepares for Tuesday's opponent, Lake View. The teams will play in San Angelo at 7:30 p.m. A junior varsity match is set for 6:30 p.m.

"We needed to win this game," said Coach Patty Grimmer. "We've got to stay up and stay ready for every game. We can't let down. We're going to have to do it ourselves. We can't rely on somebody else."

Serving for points for Snyder were Rhonda Echols 8, Holly Fuller 7, Sandra Morin 5, Angie Brewster 4 and Teena Braziel and Kathy Armstrong, 3 apiece.

"We played with intensity. We never let up and we kept giving them good offense," said Grimmer, whose Tigers are 11-8 overall now and 1-2 in district play. "They were hitting to us just as much as we were hitting to them but we were able to pick up their hits and use them to our advantage."

Fort Stockton fell to 6-7 and 2-1 with the loss.

Snyder junior varsity lost its match with Fort Stockton, 16-14, 15-4.

Jets 45, Oilers 3

Wesley Walker caught three touchdown passes to lead the Jets to their largest margin of victory ever in a game marred by 190 yards in penalties, including nine personal fouls.

"I was thinking, 'You aren't going to come in here and push us around,'" said Jets rookie cornerback James Hasty, who was involved in some early pushing and shoving.

Tony Zendejas kicked a 30-yard field goal to give the Oilers a 3-0 lead after a Walker fumble, but Ken O'Brien gave the Jets the lead for good with an eight-yard touchdown pass to Kurt Sohn and Freeman McNeil scored on an eight-yard run for a 14-3 lead.

SHS leads Andrews before rains come

ANDREWS -- Saturday's rains put a halt to what might have been a runaway victory here as Snyder Tigers were leading Andrews 7-1 before the first District 4-4A team tennis match of the season was called off.

Snyder was ahead in four other matches when the courts were cleared and play finally stopped.

Under league rules, the dual match is not complete unless at least 10 matches have been played. Instead, it will be postponed until the end of the season and probably will not be played unless it has a bearing on the playoffs. If played, Snyder will keep its 7-1 lead and all unfinished matches will pick up where they left off.

Snyder has little time to dwell on the first action of the season. Competition resumes Tuesday, when the Tigers entertain a tough San Angelo Lake View team. Play should get underway about 4 p.m. at the junior high courts.

Coach Charlie Chrane said Lake View has one of the district's top teams.

"I think Monahans is the district favorite. Lake View, Big Spring, us and Sweetwater are all within one or two matches of each other," noted the coach. "I expect a real close match with Lake View. We'll have to play well."

Lake View's first outing, set for Saturday against Pecos, was also rained out.

Phantom safety, miscues lift Giants past Cowboys, 12-10

IRVING, Texas (AP) - New York linebacker Harry Carson thought about waving to Tom Landry as he ran by the Dallas Cowboys' bench with a game-saving interception.

In Sunday's bizarre 12-10 NFL victory by the New York Giants over the Dallas Cowboys that included a "phantom" safety, it would have been considered perfectly normal behavior.

On the game's opening kickoff, the Cowboys surrendered a safety that shouldn't have counted, then lost by that margin.

Darryl Clack muffed the ball at the 1 and tried to run it out when he picked it up in the end zone. Mark Collins tackled him, and referee Pat Haggerty ruled it a safety.

In the second half, replay official Armen Terzian ruled that Haggerty made the wrong call although the damage had been done.

"I'm taking the blame for it, because I was remiss in not reviewing that play," Terzian said. "The rule states that if the return man muffs the ball and it goes into the end zone, he must recover the ball but has no responsibility to take it out."

New York Coach Bill Parcells said Carson's interception on the Giants' 2-yard line and 66-yard return to the Dallas 32 with 7:51 remaining and New York clinging to its two-point lead was the big play of the game.

"Carson's interception couldn't have come at a more opportune time," Parcells said. "I thought he played the best game he ever played, and that interception proved it."

Carson said: "I just kind of saw the ball floating and reacted to it. There was nobody out in front of me, and going down that sideline I wanted to wave to Tom Landry. I thought that would be a little fancy and I'd better not do that."

The scored was 5-3 at the half, and the Giants built a 12-3 lead when Phil Simms hit Lionel Manuel with a 9-yard scoring toss in the third period.

Pelluer's 27-yard scoring pass to Herschel Walker cut the margin to 12-10, but Carson's interception ended the Cowboys scoring threat in the fourth quarter.

Landry said Pelluer is still his quarterback despite the damaging fourth period interceptions.

"I still have to go with him," Landry said. "He's just a young quarterback trying to make it in the NFL."

Pelluer said Carson "made a really good play. I just have to make better decisions when I'm in that situation. It's hard to come up empty like that. There's nothing I can say that will change things."

"It seems it's always the plays at the end that hurt us."

The victory tied the Giants with Washington for the lead in the NFC East with 2-1 records. Dallas dropped to 1-2.

The Cowboys may have lost more than the game. Running back Herschel Walker strained a calf and won't practice next week. Dallas doctors said he should be ready to play against Atlanta next Sunday.

Casey Stengel not only managed the New York Yankees in 10 World Series, he also had a batting average of .393 in three classics playing for the Giants and Dodgers.

Vice president and senate posts...

Bentsen walks fine line as he campaigns

DALLAS (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen waved his hand and his three-helicopter entourage climbed into the sky, black against the setting sun.

On the ground, his staff waved back and the national press corps shuffled away. For that evening, vice presidential candidate Bentsen had become Texas Sen. Bentsen campaigning for re-election.

Nearly everywhere he goes in his vice presidential campaign travels, Bentsen makes time to slip away — sometimes by helicopter or private plane — to tend to his Senate campaign.

He campaigns publicly for the vice presidency. For the Senate election, he is relying on a strong organization, millions of dollars in advertising and a reputation built over three terms.

Bentsen, asked once by reporters if his dual campaigns weren't confusing to the voters of Texas, said the answer was simple. "Vote twice for Bentsen," he said.

Vice presidential campaign manager Joseph O'Neill said this awkward system is the result of Bentsen's effort to comply fully with federal election laws which have never been tested in regard to Texas' unusual provision for dual campaigns.

"This is virgin territory," O'Neill said.

"We're working very hard to see that we follow not only the letter of the law but the spirit of the law," Bentsen said in an interview.

"I leave it up to the lawyers and accountants to be damn sure we comply," Bentsen said. "Then I don't worry about it. I go ahead and campaign."

As Michael Dukakis' running mate, Bentsen receives public funding for his vice presidential campaign. For his Senate race, the sky is the limit in fund-raising, and he's spending his millions in the state on organization and television.

One of the reasons that Bentsen is carefully dividing the two campaigns is that Bentsen's Republican Senate opponent, Rep. Beau Boulter, asked the Federal Election Commission to step in and block what he contended was an unfair advantage.

The FEC declined to act, and so did the federal courts, but the case caused Bentsen enough political grief that he bought television time in Texas to explain his reasoning to the voters.

Resigning from the Senate seat, Bentsen said, would automatically hand a six-year term to his opponent. If he ran, won, and then resigned, the voters would get to select a new senator in a special election.

Boulter has tried to ridicule the dual candidacies with his own television spot, featuring old-time cowboys trying to ride two horses at one time. So far, the polls consistently show Bentsen ahead of Boulter by a 2-to-1 margin, but Republicans say their effort has helped keep Bentsen pinned down.

Bentsen has been forced to keep separate his Senate campaign, and the $8 million it plans to raise — including putting its Austin headquarters in a building separate from the Democratic Party and the presidential campaign.

"If Bentsen were not on the ticket, we probably would have had joint operations," said O'Neill. "We now don't have that (advantage) ... to avoid even the appearance of overlap." Since his selection as the vice presidential candidate in July, Bentsen has not made a single public appearance billed as a Senate candidate.

Although legally O'Neill said there was no question Bentsen could do a Senate campaign trip, if he did, "He would be perceived as a vice presidential candidate." That might give the Republicans "an excuse to make a charge that had no foundation," he said.

"We don't expect him to do any Senate campaigning," O'Neill said.

Bentsen's campaigns guard against at least any overt cross-pollination, although the division isn't airtight. Bentsen's top national campaign aides often tag along to Senate events, and O'Neill, Bentsen's former top aide in the Senate, regularly consults with the Senate campaign as they set up the schedule.

The schedule given to the national press coyly puts those Senate fund-raisers in the category of "private meetings."

Boulter makes no secret about the fact he wants to tie his campaign as closely as possible to George Bush's, to ride Bush's coattails and help Bush win Texas.

Boulter sent out a fund-raising letter saying that, while voters cannot legally give directly to Bush, they can "help win Texas for Bush and Boulter, and defeat Lloyd Bentsen by giving urgently needed dollars to my campaign for the U.S. Senate."

Jack Devore, spokesman for Bentsen's Senate campaign, says Boulter's actions illustrate the "very fine point" being pressed by the Republicans.

Bush and Dukakis lighten schedules

By The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis heads South today, while Republican George Bush makes a day trip to Pennsylvania as the two candidates open a week of relatively light campaigning so they can get ready for their crucial first televised debate.

While Bush's only public appearance Sunday was to go to church in Washington, his surrogates were attacking Dukakis, with one, GOP Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia, calling the Democratic presidential nominee "nuts."

Bush today was to meet with Philadelphia's Roman Catholic Archbishop Anthony Bevilacqua and retired Cardinal John Krol during a campaign swing through Pennsylvania that was bringing him back to Washington early in the afternoon.

Dukakis was flying to Little Rock, Ark., to deliver a speech before heading on to Houston. He planned to return to Boston on Tuesday after a stop in Bowling Green, Ky.

The Massachusetts governor spent last week outlining his views on foreign policy and defense issues, both of which are considered to be political weaknesses for him.

In a speech Sunday to the California Republican Convention, Gingrich accused Dukakis of being a "left-winger" who opposes weapons systems supported by Bush.

"It's not that Dukakis isn't a patriot. It's that Dukakis is nuts," Gingrich said. "His value system has no relation to reality."

Dukakis spokesman Mark Gearan responded by saying, "Americans are increasingly tiring of Gingrich's one-liners."

"His attempt with innuendo and lies and misrepresentation of the governor's position is typical of his nasty approach," Gearan said.

Bush and Dukakis both have lightened their calendars in preparation for their face-to-face meeting next Sunday night in Winston-Salem, N.C., the first of two televised debates between the presidential candidates.

Both candidates commented on the weekend's military coup in Haiti, with Bush saying "It's too early to say what happened." But he added, "We want democracy for Haiti, for the whole of the Caribbean and for the whole of Central America."

Dukakis issued a statement calling for the United States to recall its ambassador from Haiti for consultations while refusing to recognize the country's military government.

"The people of Haiti have suffered far too long under successive repressive regimes," the Dukakis statement said.

The Republican vice president, speaking to reporters after attending Sunday church services, said, "I think I've done the homework" for the debate.

"It's like a ball game, getting up for it, mentally up and physically up," Bush said.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, who lost to Bush in the race for the GOP presidential nomination, said the debate next week could cause a shift in the political landscape.

"The stakes are high. This is hard ball," Dole said in an appearance in Ohio on Sunday. "I don't worry about George Bush. The big difference is he knows what he's talking about. Now, maybe Dukakis can memorize enough to get through the debate, but he'll forget it right afterwards."

However, Dukakis was not without his defenders.

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, took the Republicans to task for their criticism of Dukakis' veto of Massachusetts legislation that would have required teachers to lead classes in the Pledge of Allegiance.

"There is no greater phony issue that's been raised in this campaign," Mitchell said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley." "In America, the pledge means something because we say it freely. ... We are not forced to do so."

Gilbert scoots to Illinois

By The Associated Press

Hurricane Gilbert's remnants swept from Texas to Illinois today, bringing heavy rains and swelling rivers after spawning 41 tornadoes and a deluge that killed three people, including a pilot whose plane broke apart in a storm.

The tropical depression that last week was the strongest hurricane ever recorded in the Western Hemisphere spread showers and thunderstorms along a northeastern line.

"It picked up speed to about 45 to 50 mph early today, said Dan McCarthy, of the National Weather Service.

"It's scooting," said McCarthy, of the Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

Meanwhile, workers in Monterey, Mexico, searched for the bodies of up to 200 people swept away when a river swollen by hurricane rains poured over its banks and overturned four buses. Ninety-eight people were confirmed dead in the aftermath of Gilbert outside the United States.

Late Sunday, the storm moved into Wichita Falls, Texas, bringing rain and high winds, McCarthy said. An area west of Wichita Falls was deluged with 4 1/2 inches of rain, he said, and some roads in Ozona, in west Texas, were under water. The mass of moisture extended to Chicago, McCarthy said.

In Oklahoma, a 50-year-old pilot from Santa Fe, N.M., was killed late Saturday when his plane broke apart while flying near Muskogee, northeast of Oklahoma City, in heavy rains brought by Gilbert, authorities said. Eight inches of rain fell in western Oklahoma since Saturday, the weather service said early today.

Although the brunt of the hurricane missed the U.S. Gulf Coast, residents and businesses in Texas spent Sunday clearing debris scattered by at least 41 tornadoes whipped up by the storm.

The Rio Grande River rose 30 feet Saturday night in southwest Texas. The rains were expected to raise the river to 12 feet above flood stage, the weather service said.

"We'll take one day at a time. We'll clean up and eventually we'll get our own house put up if we get some money to buy lumber and tin," said Deborah Dickens, whose mother-in-law, Emily Dickens, was killed.

West's worst fire season in 30 years said far from over

By The Associated Press

The long-awaited autumn weather and snow is helping cool a record fire season in the northern Rockies, but officials say the worst is yet to come in hotter areas such as California.

Wildfires have burned over 4.1 million acres of forest and brush this summer in the West and Alaska, the worst fire season in 30 years, according to the Boise Interagency Fire Center, which coordinates the firefighting.

If hot, dry weather persists in California and southern Oregon, where the peak fire season is just starting, more than 5 million acres may burn this year, a survey of firefighting officials shows.

California has "critical drought conditions over most of the state," says Karen Terrill, a spokeswoman for the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

Conditions rival those of last year, when about 800,000 acres of California timber and brush burned in the state's worst fire season since the 1920s, she said.

A fire near Sacramento last week burned more than 52 square miles, destroying 97 homes and forcing thousands to evacuate. Firefighters said that fire was nearly contained by Wednesday, but two other blazes in northern California this weekend burned 15 homes and forced hundreds of people to evacuate.

Nine homes burned to the ground 15 miles west of Vacaville, southwest of Sacramento, and six were destroyed 20 miles east of Redding, officials said.

In the northern Rockies, the autumn chill has taken some fury out of the area's worst recorded fire season in history. Fires have charred nearly 1.5 million acres in Yellowstone National Park and adjacent national forests in Montana, Wyoming and Idaho.

Up to 6 inches of snow fell last week in parts of Yellowstone and rain averaged about a quarter-inch in the park. Forecasters expected the same amount of snow this weekend but most of the park got only a dusting. But temperatures remained low, limiting fire activity, officials said.

"That doesn't put fires out, but it makes them stay put in one place until we can get a line around them," said Lynn Young, of the federal Regional Incident Coordination Organization in Missoula, Mont.

The force fighting Yellowstone's fires has dropped to 6,700 from a peak of about 9,500 firefighters and support workers earlier this month, Young said.

"I would say that, perhaps, with luck, we are past the peak in the Yellowstone area. But we've still got a ways to go," said Arnold Hartigan, a spokesman at the Boise center.

Twenty-one fires covering nearly 2 million acres still burn in six states, Hartigan said. Some of the Yellowstone firefighters have been diverted to a 257,000-acre blaze in west-central Montana.

Here is a breakdown of states hit hardest by fire this year:

—Alaska: Nearly 2.2 million acres of sparsely populated land burned, in the state's worst fire season since 1977, the Bureau of Land Management said.

—Wyoming: Five major fires still out of control have charred more than 1.2 million acres, Hartigan said.

—Montana: The forest fire season usually slows down by now, but five major fires remain uncontained. More than 606,000 acres has burned, much of it in forests just north of Yellowstone, Young said.

—Idaho: Six major fires covering nearly 200,000 acres remain uncontained, Hartigan said.

—California: Six major fires have burned nearly 63,000 acres and the peak fire season is just warming up, officials said.

—Washington: One major fire has burned more than 53,000 acres in and around the Wenatchee National Forest.

—Oregon: One major fire has burned about 5,000 acres of the Willamette National Forest.

Gilbert's leftovers perfect for W. Texas hill country

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — For many Texas ranchers, Hurricane Gilbert was just what the banker might have ordered.

The hurricane looked for a time as if it might storm its way into the Hill Country and leave a trail of flooding and wind-damaged property.

Instead, the storm broke up mostly into a series of gentle fall rains that officials say will boost agricultural prospects in the southwestern part of the state.

"It was just about what we wanted — perfect — so far," said Don Mathis, the director of a Farmers Home Administration district that governs federal agricultural lending in 26 counties in the Hill Country and West Texas.

"Most of the territory already has gotten from 2½ to 5 inches of rain," Mathis said Sunday. "If a lot of these people hadn't gotten rain, they would have had to sell off a lot of their basic herd and practically start all over."

Until Gilbert came to ranchers' rescue, Mathis said, a drought situation "was getting critical."

Mathis said he will attend a

Supreme Court candidates receive large contributions

AUSTIN (AP) — Amid widespread criticism of state law that allows judicial candidates to accept unlimited contributions from lawyers who may appear before them, more than $3 million from competing interests in the courtroom has been contributed to candidates for six seats on the Texas Supreme Court.

Business interests have spent more than $1 million to elect a conservative majority to the state's highest civil appeals court, while lawyers specializing in injury cases have funneled more than $2 million to maintain the status quo, The Dallas Morning News reported in its Sunday editions.

Never before have six seats on the nine-member court been up for grabs on the Texas Supreme Court in the General Election.

The newspaper's analysis of contributions of $500 or more showed that five Supreme Court candidates have received more than $300,000 directly from medical, insurance and corporate interests and more than $700,000 from law firms who defend liability cases.

The survey included reports filed with the secretary of state, as required by law, covering the period from Jan. 1, 1987, through June 30, 1988.

The contributions, reported raised through June 30, exceed the total spent by the same groups on all Supreme Court candidates through the entire 1986 race. Only two seats were contested in that race, the Morning News reported Sunday.

The five judicial candidates that are clear choices of business groups are Chief Justice Tom Phillips, Nathan Hecht and Paul Murphy, all Republicans; and Jack Hightower and Justice Raul Gonzalez, both Democrats.

Democrat Ted Robertson faces Republican candidate Phillips in the chief justice race.

Races for associate justice positions pit Democratic incumbent William Kilgarlin against Hecht; Republican incumbent Barbara Culver against Hightower; Democratic incumbent Gonzalez against Republican Dallas Appeals Court Judge Charles Ben Howell; and Democrat Lloyd Doggett against Murphy for a seat no incumbent is seeking.

Candidates for the sixth race were selected after the July 15 filing deadline for campaign-finance reports. The next filing deadline is in October.

Traditionally, non-lawyer business interests are not big givers in Supreme court contests, but they are spending in record amounts this year, said Kim Ross, a Texas Medical Association lobbyist.

"The medical liability laws enacted in 1977 have been systematically dismantled," said Ross. "So as a direct consequence of that, we have had to focus a disproportionate amount of our concerns and our activities on this nine-member legislature."

The medical association's political action committee has donated $114,000 thus far to the five business-favored Supreme Court candidates. Dentists have given at least $23,000, hospital interests contributed at least $12,000 and the insurance industry tossed in more than $22,500 to the same five candidates, the News study showed.

John Hildreth, executive director of Common Cause in Texas, said the large sums from both trial lawyers and business groups who might eventually appear before the same judges underscores the need for limits on campaign contributions.

"If we're going to address the question of public confidence in the judiciary, we have to address it from all sides," said Hildreth. "That's why we need to limit the amounts anyone can give to these judicial campaigns and, to go even further, to free these candidates from special-interest money by providing partial public financing."

According to the analysis of major contributions, 97 percent of Robertson's money came from lawyers, compared with 46 percent of Phillips' total. In the other races, money from lawyers constituted 96 percent of Kilgarlin's total, compared with 43 percent for Hecht; 93 percent of Doggett's contributions, compared with 44 percent for Murphy; and 56 percent of Hightower's contributions, compared with 47 percent for Ms. Culver.

In other findings, the newspaper reported:

— Ms. Culver, one of three Republicans whom Gov. Bill Clements appointed to fill vacancies on the high court, has been virtually shut out of contributions by doctors and hospital interests. In May, Ms. Culver voted to strike down a law limiting medical malpractice awards.

— Phillips has received more major contributions than any other candidate from oil and gas interests — $74,318. An analysis shows that nearly three-quarters of the total came from past financial supporters of Clements who actively backs Phillip's campaign.

— Robertson led the field in major contributions from a single source — $58,500 from lawyers with the Houston law firm of Abraham, Watkins, Nichols, Ballard, Onstad & Friend.

Jackson paid more than Cosby

NEW YORK (AP) — He's bad, and he makes a lot of money at it: Michael Jackson is the world's highest-paid entertainer with total projected earnings of $97 million for 1987 and 1988, Forbes magazine says.

Jackson, who ranked ninth on last year's Forbes list of the 40 best-paid celebrities, moonwalked his way past Bill Cosby to No. 1 by raking in an estimated $60 million this year, the magazine said in its Oct. 3 edition.

The 30-year-old entertainer made approximately $40 million from his recent worldwide tour, with the rest from sales of his album "Bad," his autobiography, "Moonwalk," Pepsi endorsements and other music publishing, the magazine said.

Cosby, who had a 1986-87 income of $84 million, was No. 2 on the current list with $92 million in earnings for 1987 and 1988, Forbes says.

Various remedies can help neuritis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had sphenopalatine neuritis on the right side of my face since 1967. Several ENTs are suggesting severing the nerves. Is there another remedy?

DEAR READER: Neuritis is marked by malfunction of a specific nerve or set of nerves, causing numbness, weakness and (sometimes) pain. This malfunction can be the result of injury, compression of the nerve (by tissue that pinches), poor circulation to the nerve, nutritional deficiencies and infection.

If you have a chronic pain syndrome and the doctors have ruled out a treatable cause for your symptoms, a nerve-severing operation may be your best hope.

However, before consenting to surgery, you should ask the doctors about the possibility of temporarily numbing the nerve with an injection of anesthetic. The sphenopalatine nerve lies close to the cheek bones on either side of the face. By injecting the area around the nerve, a surgeon may be able to give you some relief. If so, then a nerve operation might benefit you. If not, severing the nerve will probably not relieve your pain. For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Living with Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During the winter I have so much electricity in my body I get shocked, regardless of what I touch. I've tried rubber-soled shoes, but no luck.

DEAR READER: Actually, static electricity is not in your body, it's on your body. When humidity is low and you walk across carpeting, the action of your shoes brushing against the material causes the formation of a static charge. When you touch an object of opposite charge (or ground), the static electricity on your skin jumps to the object, causing a spark. This is completely harmless and poses no health hazard whatsoever.

Because rubber tends to increase the buildup of static electricity, rubber-soled shoes make for bigger and better sparks. (Remember when, as a child, you rubbed balloons on the carpet, then they stuck to the wall? This was static electricity.) Your best bet to avoid this unwelcome stimulation is to increase the humidity in your house during the winter months.

Humidifiers will help. They will also protect your furniture from becoming unglued, your piano from getting out of tune and the paint on your walls from cracking. All these phenomena are caused by excessive dryness.

Network fights stereotypes

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — American Indians who have spent years being educated in English-dominated schools have lost their cultural identity and tribal languages. Now a Tribal Network says Indians have to regain their roots if they are going to shoot down discrimination and derogatory stereotypes.

"Members of tribes do not know their culture or history," Frank McLemore, 43, of Dallas, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "We were penalized for speaking our own language."

McLemore, a Cherokee and program manager for the federal government in Dallas, was among the 30 members of the Tribal American Network of Fort Worth-Dallas who attended the organization's 10th annual conference in Arlington this weekend.

McLemore said a cultural illiteracy among American Indians has led to an identity crisis among many Indians, as well as high levels of poverty, suicide and alcohol- and drug-addiction.

"We have a double-pronged challenge," McLemore said. "We have to work with our own people, and we have to work with other people."

Businessmen are taking sides

HOUSTON (AP) — Many major corporations in the Houston area faced with a choice between Vice President George Bush and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen have solved the dilemma by supporting both, political insiders say.

Both Bush, the GOP presidential nominee, and Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, have Houston ties.

Bush was in the oil business in Houston for many years and represented Houston's 7th Congressional District for two terms. Bentsen is a former Houston insurance executive and three-term Texas senator who heads the powerful Finance Committee.

"The Houston business community is torn and therefore they are giving to both," political consultant George Strong told the Houston Chronicle.

The benefits of supporting both parties, Strong said, are "first, you help someone you know personally get elected, and No. 2, you get access to them."

Two months ago, Texas Commerce Bancshares Chairman Ben Love said the political choice "will produce probably more ulcers than the plunge to $10 per barrel in the price of oil."

But as the Nov. 8 election nears, many are starting to publicly voice their support and money to the candidates.

During both the Democratic and Republican national convention, Enron Corp. underwrote social events. This week, the energy corporation's president is helping to host a Democratic fund-raising event while the company chairman is heading a Republican gathering.

At Enron, president John Seidl is supporting the Democratic ticket of Michael Dukakis and Bentsen while chairman Kenneth Lay is giving his support to Bush and Dan Quayle.

Seidl is listed as a host of a $1,000-a-person Democratic Party fund-raiser scheduled for tonight with Dukakis and Bentsen as the featured speakers.

Lay is keeping himself busy this week as Harris County chairman for Thursday's $1,000-a-person Republican fund-raiser featuring President Reagan and Bush.

Like Enron, many energy corporations, law firms, banks, investors and important individuals in Houston are split, according to political insiders.

Like Seidl and Lay, other Houston businessmen have started taking sides.

Oilman George Mitchell, a Bush acquaintance for 30 years who donated money to the Dukakis candidacy before Bentsen was picked, said two months ago that he might make his decision at the last minute. He's also listed as a supporter of the Democratic function.

New dictionary may save language

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A group of linguists is working to save the language of the Alabama Indian tribe, which had no books, no grammar, no records and no dictionary.

Heather Hardy, an associate professor of English at the University of North Texas, is leading the effort concerning the East Texas tribe.

After receiving a newspaper clipping in 1980 about an Alabama tribe member who was using note cards to create a dictionary of her native language, Ms. Hardy decided to contact the woman.

"I knew not much had been done on the Alabama," she told the Dallas Times Herald. "When you've got languages in your own back yard that have hardly been described at all and are dying out, that takes priority."

The Alabama live with the Coushatta tribe on a joint reservation nestled in the Big Thicket National Preserve, 70 miles northeast of Houston.

Ms. Hardy drove to the reservation and found Cora Sylestine, a former teacher. The two women struck a bargain: Ms. Sylestine would guide Ms. Hardy through the thickets of her native language if Ms. Hardy would help her create the dictionary of her dreams.

First, Ms. Hardy had to create a system of writing to record the spoken language. And the Alabama grammar had to be deciphered before its words could be broken down for a dictionary.

Ms. Hardy said the process has been laborious, done on weekends and school breaks, financed mostly with small grants and personal funds.

Beginning Sept. 1, a team working on the project, which includes University of North Texas linguist Timothy Montler, will be financed for two years by a $161,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and UNT.

Disappearance shocks girl's family

STAMFORD, Texas (AP) — Stan and Candy Clayton expected a tiny West Texas town like Stamford would be a safer environment for their three children than their home in San Diego, Calif. So, six years ago, the Claytons moved.

But now, they've learned that even a West Texas town with fewer than 10,000 residents cannot guarantee safety. Two weeks ago, the Claytons' 7-year-old daughter, Cortney, apparently was abducted as she walked a block away to get a soft drink.

"We cannot seem to get it out of our minds that the reason we left San Diego was because of child abductions—and violence," Clayton told the Wichita Falls Times Record News. "We moved to Texas to get away from violence and fear of things like this."

Clayton said he gave his daughter 50 cents to get a soft drink at a neighborhood grocery store. The clerk, who knew her, rang up the sale at 8:47 p.m. A motorist saw her walking toward home at 8:53 p.m. But police said when one of the girl's older brothers looked for her at the store at 8:55 p.m., she was gone.

"We don't have any enemies or know anyone who would want to do this," Clayton said. "We have never had any problems with anyone, nothing to even suspect, but we are hoping through newspapers and television that someone who has seen something will come forward."

Officials from the Jones County Sheriff's Department and the Stamford Police Department believe the girl may have been abducted by a "suspicious-looking suspect" seen outside the store minutes before Cortney Clayton's disappearance. Police are circulating a drawing of the suspect done from witnesses' descriptions.

Meanwhile, some 200 to 300 volunteers have organized a door-to-door search through the community, stores have posted flyers with Cortney's picture and game wardens in six neighboring counties have been searching by air and land.

Rewards for information are offered by the family, friends and law enforcement agencies, officials said.

The Claytons describe Cortney as a vibrant, happy tomboyish girl who likes to ride bicycles, loves baseball, T-ball and rock-n-roll music from the '50s and '60s.

Couple married in 'Bonanza' country

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — Sometimes, love reins, especially when a couple in their finest Western duds exchanges marriage vows while sitting atop their horses in "Bonanza" country.

Carol Clifford, 47, and B.D. Lapham, 46, said they decided to tie the knot on horseback Saturday evening in this town near Ben Cartwright's Ponderosa ranch on the old "Bonanza" TV series because of their love of horses.

With more than 150 guests watching from hay bales, the couple said their "I do's" in front of a hitching post. But before they could kiss, the crowd's clapping spooked the horses, causing them to gallop up a hill. The couple later walked back in with the horses.
