

Singh release pleases U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that U.S. pleasure at the release of an Indian hostage in Beirut was "tempered by the knowledge that nine innocent Americans are among those still held hostage in Lebanon."

Mithleshwar Singh, a Beirut university professor who is a legal resident of the United States, was turned over to the U.S. ambassador to Syria in Damascus today after being freed in Lebanon on Monday.

Bob Hall, a White House press duty officer, said President Reagan "has been kept aware of events" during the night.

In a prepared statement read to reporters, Hall said, "We are pleased at the announcement that Mr. Singh has been freed by his captors."

"We are obviously happy for him, his family and friends. Our pleasure at his release is tempered by the knowledge that nine innocent Americans are among those still held hostage in Lebanon," the statement read.

Singh, in a brief session with reporters at the Syrian Foreign Ministry in Damascus today, said the three American educators who were abducted with him were the only other hostages he saw in his captivity.

American diplomats who took custody of Singh were hoping the freed hostage could give them information about the nine Americans still held in Lebanon.

"We are anxious to talk to him and learn if he has any information to share with us about the welfare of the hostages who remain," State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said on Monday.

Nine Americans and eight other Westerners, including Terry Waite, an emissary of the Anglican church in England, are believed living in captivity in Lebanon.

Public opinion cited...

No-smoking no-voted

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

Saying that there has been a recent groundswell of public opinion against a municipal no-smoking ordinance, city councilmen Monday night rejected the ordinance on second reading, to the applause of many of the 60 people present.

No-smoking proponent Betty Benson indicated, however, that she and other supporters of the ordinance may seek a referendum on the issue, putting it to a popular vote.

Mayor Troy Williamson noted that state law would require a petition with 260 names, or 25 percent of the number of voters who took part in the last general election, for a referendum.

The council's action came after an extensive discussion among council members and representatives of opposing viewpoints in the audience, with Councilwoman Vernest Tippens finally making the motion "to have no smoking ordinance" and Councilman Ralph Williamson seconding.

Councilmen Paul Zeck and John Johnson were absent, and Councilmen Joe Coronado and Jack Greene Jr. voted for the motion, making it unanimous.

Greene and Coronado had already stated their opposition during the discussion, citing what they said would be problems with enforcement. They had also expressed concern about the effects on businesses in relatively small buildings, which would have been too small, according to the ordinance, to designate smoking areas.

The speakers in the audience did not identify themselves upon taking the floor, but several said a no-smoking ordinance would be an infringement on individual rights.

The floor discussion took on a spontaneity, with Mrs. Benson at one point saying, "If it was put to a test, two-thirds of the people would be for it," whereupon another audience member responded, "You're wrong! You're way wrong!"

Opponents and proponents continued their argument outside on the west side of city hall after the council decision.

Other action in the two-hour meeting included passage on first reading of an ordinance that changes speed limits on Hwys. 350 and 208 and U.S. 180 inside the city limits, mostly either up or down by five mph.

On 350, or College Ave., for example, the speed limit will be 55 from the southern city limits to Cogdell Blvd., 50 from Cogdell Blvd. to 533 feet south of 47th St., 45 from there to 42nd St., 40 from 42nd to 32nd Sts., 35 from 32nd to the Deep Creek Bridge and 30 from the bridge to U.S. 180.

Assault by vehicle reported among October indictments

Five indictments were handed down Monday by the October session of the Scurry County grand jury including one charge of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle.

Jesse Lopez Castillo, 31, of Midland was indicted on the felony charge in connection with a Sept. 13 incident which occurred here at U.S. Hwy. 84 and Huffman Ave.

He is charged with intentionally ramming his 1980 Chevrolet pickup into a second vehicle.

An argument between Castillo and his wife reportedly sparked the incident. After the spouse exited the pickup driven by her husband, she was given a ride by a woman driver who was passing by, officials say.

Castillo then reportedly pursued this vehicle, striking it twice and possibly three times in the rear with the front of his pickup.

His bond was set at $7,500.

A 19-year-old suspect, Ruben Castaneda of Snyder, was indicted for the Sept. 26 burglary of Los Dos Amigos Imports at 612 East Highway.

He had not been arrested as of 10 a.m. Tuesday. Local officials listed his address as 2304 Ave. M.

In addition to Castaneda, two juvenile boys were charged Saturday by police in connection with the break-in. An estimated $3,000 in cassette tapes, VCR tapes, television sets, speakers and clothing were recovered with the arrest of the two teenagers, police say.

FINANCIAL AWARD — The City of Snyder's annual comprehensive financial report has again been awarded a "certificate of achievement" from the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA). Monday, the certificate was presented to Jeanne Johnson, city secretary, by Mayor Troy Williamson. (SDN Staff Photo)

City financial report earns national honor

For the second straight year, the City of Snyder's annual comprehensive financial report has been awarded a "certificate of achievement" from the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA).

This certificate reflects the highest form of recognition in the area of governmental accounting and financial reporting.

In addition, the Chicago based GFOA presented Jeanne Johnson, city secretary and, in this capacity, director of finance, with its award of financial reporting achievement.

To receive the honor, the city's annual report was judged by an impartial panel which determines if the document demonstrates a "constructive spirit of full disclosure" written in such a way to "motivate potential persons and user groups to read (the report)."

The GFOA is a non-profit professional association which serves 11,500 government finance professionals.

The city's financial report is produced in conjunction with the annual outside auditor of city finances conducted by the firm of Anderson and West, CPAs.

Jack Denman likes the bright lights in Las Vegas. In addition to people watching, Jack even takes bus-line tours of tourist attractions in the area.

Some of his coffee shop friends didn't even know they had guided tours in Las Vegas.

Denman did admit to spending some time in a hotel casino where he says you can earn an advanced degree in human psychology. Denman claims he was just watching people, but we suspect he was gawking like the typical small-town West Texan.

He noticed he was being approached by a lovely young lady. He couldn't help but notice her attractive features.

As she passed, she winked at him or it may have been a twitch in her eye. A few steps past, she turned and handed him a note which read, "I'll do anything for $200."

Denman couldn't resist. "You're not kidding are you?

"I really mean it," she said as those silky eyebrows rose a trifle.

Denman couldn't contain his smile any longer. He beamed at his good luck. "How soon can you paint my house?" he said.

Dave Harlin told his Texan coffee shop crowd that football would be better off if coaches would allow the quarterback to call the plays.

"That's especially true in college ball," explained Harlin. "The quarterback has a four-year scholarship and the coach has a one-year contract."

First Baptist minister Ken Branam told Don Farmer at the funeral home about a successful counseling session—well, almost successful.

Branam felt good as the couple left his office. Feeling good, he followed them to the door and watched as they walked to their car.

Then he heard the husband say, "Now that we're back on speaking terms, Shuf up!"

Cleared of rape charge...

Trooper's colleagues suspect he is guilty

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — When he retired from the State Police last December, Lt. Robert L. Beadle was a 23-year veteran with expertise in child abuse cases.

Four months later, he found himself on the other side of the fence, charged with raping two girls, one 11 years old, the other 13.

Two juries acquitted Beadle in August and September, but the verdicts haven't ended his personal trial.

Beadle, 52, says being accused of the very crime he dedicated part of his life to solving will always haunt him.

"The only way I'm going to clear my name is to go out and catch the guy who committed these crimes, and I've already started my investigation," he said in an interview Friday at his home in this northern Michigan city.

State police investigators say that although the case is closed, they still have serious questions about Beadle, who also has faced two indecent exposure charges in the past year.

"I still believe he's the culprit," Detective Lt. Richard N. Coleman said at State Police headquarters in Lansing.

Beadle became a suspect in the rapes last November after he was involved in a car accident. Troopers investigating the accident, who worked with him in Traverse City, found a composite sketch of the rape suspect in his car and thought it odd because the rapes occurred 200 miles to the southeast in Lapeer County.

Beadle said the sketch was given to him by the commander of a state police post in Caro, who asked Beadle to be on the lookout for the suspect while visiting relatives in Lapeer County. His claim was upheld at trial.

The troopers also noticed a resemblance between the sketch and Beadle, and asked him to be photographed for a photo lineup. Both girls independently identified Beadle as their assailant from the lineup.

"When I retired, I thought I was cleared," Beadle said. "I was shocked when they called me up a few months later and said they had two three-count warrants waiting for me."

"You can't imagine the humiliation of having to go down to the same police post where I had gone in as an expert in police report writing and now going in to be (finger)printed and mugged with everybody staring at me, saying, 'How could you do such a horrible thing to two little girls?'"

Beadle claims the other individuals in the photo lineups looked nothing like the description the girls gave of their assailant after the rapes in October 1986 and April 1987.

Police deny that, but concede Beadle's photo was the only one that appeared in both lineups.

Besides the victims' identification, there was little else to connect Beadle to the crimes. Several witnesses, most of them relatives, testified that Beadle was at home on the weekends of the attacks.

Proper etiquette for infertility clinic

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have one in vitro baby and have started the process to become pregnant with our second. Recently, I went to the in vitro clinic to have some blood work done and took my son. The women in the waiting room were surprised at his arrival, but I have a pretty good sense of humor and said, "Yep, this is what you get!" They laughed and asked a lot of questions. But the receptionist raked me over the coals, saying it was insensitive and inappropriate of me to bring a baby to an infertility clinic. What do you think?

DEAR READER: I think you should ask this question of the doctor who directs the clinic.

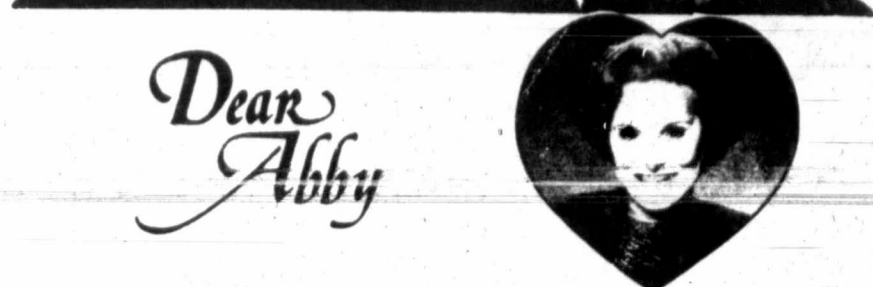

I can understand why some women, who have infertility problems, could be upset being face-to-face with a bouncing baby boy. Infertility is a difficult burden to bear and some women might view your behavior as insensitive.

On the other hand, I believe that your actions were entirely natural and normal. You appropriately injected some humor and humanness into a situation that was probably glum and scary. When someone is facing a tense and unfamiliar technical situation, it's often a relief to see that another person has successfully gone through the process. I am certain that many of the women in the waiting room were pleased to see living "proof" that in vitro fertilization works, and I'm sure that their questions to you relieved much of their apprehension.

When our son was a two-pound "preemie" in a new-born intensive care unit, we were not daunted by seeing mothers and older children who had survived the ordeal. They gave us hope and courage. Later, when we took Benjamin — by then a strapping and healthy 8-year-old — back to the unit for a visit, we were able to give encouragement to the parents of new babies who were there. The circle was completed. It was a comfortable feeling.

Ask the fertility clinic director about whether your child's presence in the waiting room was a positive experience for the other women. I think that the receptionist reacted too quickly. However, I wouldn't presume to criticize whatever policy that particular clinic has. Check it out before your next visit.

Woman Learns the Hard Way Not to Drink and Then Drive

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a self-supporting single parent and recently was out on a date with a "fun" guy. He handled his beer just fine. I left him at 1 a.m. to drive home, knowing I'd had enough wine to necessitate caution while driving. I was concentrating on being a careful driver when a light started to flash behind me. I pulled over, and the lady officer gave me the field test, read me my rights, took my driver's license and handcuffed my hands behind my back. I remember telling her that I was a professional and asking if I had to go through all that. She said I did.

I was driven to the police station in the police car. The officers were very courteous. I was given a Breathalyzer test. My rating was .13 — the legal limit is .10. I was fingerprinted and ticketed for DWI. There were no prior traffic violations.

I was not allowed to leave unless someone picked me up. (I didn't want to tell anybody.) I said I'd stay the night, but the officer strongly discouraged it, so I called a friend to pick me up at the police station at 3 a.m. (It was terrible having to call my children and explain why I needed my friend's phone number.)

While I waited, I was locked in a cell like a common criminal. When I arrived home, it was time to go to work. I was required to report my arrest! It was humiliating to tell my administrator.

I chose to retain an attorney for $1,000 to walk me through the legal process. I was completely without my driver's license for 30 days, and I was allowed to drive only to and from work for the next 60 days. Because the alcohol content was below .15 and there was no previous record, I was given special consideration such as the work permit, and the mandatory time in jail was counted as the time I waited in jail for my ride home. I was lucky.

My car insurance more than doubled for three years, and it will be seven years before I qualify for the less expensive rates. This experience is going to cost me at least $4,000, which I can ill afford. The inconvenience for myself and my children is difficult to handle. I've had to impose on friends for rides and favors. My parents are disgusted with me and I don't blame them. The mental stress is hard to handle.

I hope you print this, Abby. Maybe other people will learn from it.

PAYING THE PRICE IN PHOENIX

DEAR PAYING: Thanks for a letter that just might cause a few people to realize that if they have had "a few" drinks, they should not drive.

Sadly, statistics show that many die tragically and needlessly because the person behind the wheel had "a few."

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to you hoping it will cause others to stop and think.

My mother-in-law is terminally ill. Many relatives and friends call us to see how she is doing and to express their concern, which we greatly appreciate. The problem: They call either very late at night or too early in the morning, and when the phone rings at those hours, we come flying out of bed with our hearts pounding, thinking it's her nurse telling us that she has passed away.

We are home most evenings and weekends, so it's not as though we are hard to reach. We realize there must be many other people in the same situation who would also greatly appreciate your addressing this issue, so if you will kindly print this letter, we would all be very grateful.

STRESSED OUT IN ST. PAUL

DEAR STRESSED: Here's your letter. I hope well-meaning friends and relatives (yours and others in the same situation) will read and heed this.

Teenager kills his stepfather

HOUSTON (AP) — A 13-year-old boy shot and killed his stepfather as the man attempted to break into his estranged wife's home, marking the second such fatal shooting in Houston within a week, authorities said.

Homicide Sgt. James Yarbrough said the boy shot Lee Andrew Burns, 29, once in the head about 4:40 a.m. Monday. His 32-year-old mother also shot the man, but authorities believed it was the boy's shot that killed Burns.

The shooting was the second of its kind since Wednesday, when an 11-year-old boy and his mother shot and killed an intruder in their East Harris County home.

Police found Burns' body lying halfway through a window of his estranged wife's home. He had a large butcher knife and a pair of pliers in his pants pockets.

"The kid was scared," Yarbrough said of the 13-year-old. "He was not only in fear for himself but also for his mom, his grandmother and his sister. He seems to be mentally in good shape."

were led and continued. Declarer ruffed and led a low spade, hoping to stop the defenders from making their trumps separately. West won the 10 and played a diamond. South withstood the temptation to play the queen from dummy. Instead he won the ace but then erred by leading dummy's heart eight. East put on the 10 and South's jack forced West's king. Later the ace dropped the queen and the nine was a winner, but the heart two lost to West's seven. So declarer had to lose a club, four spade tricks and two heart tricks. He would have saved a trick in hearts if he had led a small heart from dummy rather than the eight. The play will go as before, but when the ace is subsequently played, dropping the queen, declarer can play a heart to the eight-spot and hold his losers in the suit to only one. Down one doubled will be a good score, since East-West can make a non-vulnerable no-trump game.

Relaxation, founding day featured at club

Dr. Nelson Brice spoke to members of the Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women's Association on stress and relaxation techniques at the club's September dinner meeting held at The Texan Restaurant.

He stated that stress is our greatest enemy and pointed out that infants are under stress even before birth. The human mind can control tension, working somewhat like a computer as it constantly sorts, deletes, and preserves information.

Brice noted stress-producers such as criticism, working conditions, listening to untruths people tell, financial problems, life's tragedies. He encouraged self-acceptance, stating that our hearts need to relax. Unhappy, tired and lonely feelings are a result of not enough relaxation.

Brice said, "Learn to control your mind." He noted various methods used include hypnosis, meditation, and exercise.

Dr. Brice received a master's degree in biology and chemistry in 1960 and finished his medical training in 1968. He and his wife, Nancy, have been Snyder residents some 13 years. They have two sons, Alex, a junior at Baylor University, and Alfred, a Snyder High School senior.

President Penny Cochran presided at the business session, leading in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Pam Dortch offered the invocation and also introduced Dr. Brice.

Penny Cochran gave the vocational speech. She is employed at the Human Resource Center where she has worked over seven years full-time and almost three years part-time. Her duties include typing, filing, ordering, and answering the phone. She attends child-care meetings in Abilene once or twice a week.

Dortch gave an orientation of ABWA. Founded Sept. 22, 1949 by Hilary A. Bufton Jr. for working women, the national headquarters are in Kansas City, Mo. The local chapter was founded Sept. 22, 1983. Table decor and a birthday cake carried out the "birthday" theme for the club.

Mae Cole gave correspondence reports and plans for the White Buffalo Day food booth were finalized.

Those receiving birthday gifts were Stella Bailey and Dortch. Cochran ended the meeting with the benediction.

"Jones, you really bring a sense of humor to this company. I only wish it weren't all on your expense reports!"

DENNIS THE MENACE

"IF YOU'RE LOOKIN' FOR ME, I'M RIGHT HERE."

Andersen sings joyful praise as Saints outshine Cowboys

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Usually, Morten Andersen trots onto the field, does his thing, and heads back to the sidelines. This time, after he had beaten the Dallas Cowboys with a last-second field goal, Andersen lost control.

"Elation. Pure joy," Andersen said after his 49-yard kick gave the New Orleans Saints a 20-17 victory over the Dallas Cowboys as time expired Monday night.

His actions spoke clearly for him. He ran. He jumped. He punched his fists into the air. He boogied briefly on the sidelines with Saints owner Tom Benson.

The Saints are 4-1 and tied with the Rams and the 49ers for the lead in the NFC West.

After trailing 14-0 in the second quarter, Dallas came back to tie at 17 with 29 seconds left in the game on a 39-yard field goal by Roger Ruzek.

Mel Gray returned the ensuing kickoff 39 yards to the Saints' 42-yard line, and two Bobby Hebert passes fell incomplete, leaving

"I didn't believe we'd get it down there close enough. I was thinking overtime," Andersen said.

On third down, Hebert told fleet wide receiver Brett Perriman to adjust a route they had run on second down. Perriman gathered in the pass at the Dallas 32 and went out of bounds with two seconds left.

Andersen said he was totally confident going onto the field and knew the kick was good as soon as he hit it. "You can usually tell," he said. "I felt like it was going to be long enough."

"I don't know how I felt. I blanked out for about three minutes. I didn't know what to do. I just started jumping and running. High fives. Low fives. Head butts. I was just working off all that energy I had left."

Andersen, a native of Denmark, is the most accurate kicker in NFL history, having made 80 percent of his field goal attempts over a career now in its seventh season.

"That was probably my biggest one," he said.

The Saints opened a 14-0 lead on two touchdown passes by Hebert, a 7-yarder to Lonzell Hill in the first quarter and a 17-yarder to Perriman in the second quarter.

The Cowboys came back to tie it at 14 on touchdown passes from Steve Pelluer to Kelvin Martin. Pelluer hit Martin for a 13-yard score in the second quarter and a 14-yarder in the third.

Andersen put the Saints back on top briefly with a 27-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Ruzek, who earlier hit the upright in missing from 39 yards, kicked one true from the same distance with 29 seconds left, tying the game at 17 and setting the stage for Andersen.

"I was pleased with the way we came back," said Pelluer, who passed for 271 yards and ran for 54.

Herschel Walker had 124 yards rushing on 26 carries and caught four passes for 23 yards.

Martin, who had eight catches for 95 yards, including the two touchdowns, said the Cowboys will profit from the loss.

"We're young, and we'll get better. We lost tonight, but we can go out and win some," he said.

Hebert's passing was almost all of the Saints' offense. He threw for 273 yards, and the running game picked up only 65.

AMERICAN, NATIONAL LEAGUE PLAYOFFS BEGIN THIS EVENING

Bo-Sox need wins at home to outlast A's in AL series

BOSTON (AP) - The big numbers favor Oakland. The Athletics won more games, beat Boston more often and hit a lot more home runs.

But the Red Sox are the slight favorites. The main reason? The best-of-7 American League playoffs start at Fenway Park.

"If we have any advantage, it's having those first two games in Boston," Manager Joe Morgan said.

For the Red Sox, anything would be better than opening the series in Oakland. Boston lost all six games at the Oakland Coliseum this year and has won only once in the last 15 games there.

"People are making a great deal out of our not being able to win a game in Oakland this year, but I'll repeat what I said out there on our last trip," Morgan said. "I said 'when' - that's 'when,' not 'if' - we return, the odds will be in our favor because we're better than one out of 14."

Boston went 53-28 at home, including an AL record 24-game winning streak, and 36-45 on the road. Oakland was 55-27 at home.

But cozy Fenway Park must seem like a nice home to Oakland. The Athletics hit 156 homers, second to Toronto in the AL.

Jose Canseco hit 42 homers and Mark McGwire hit 32. The Red Sox, who hit 124, were led by Mike Greenwell with 22 and Dwight Evans with 21. At 36, Evans is the only major league player to hit 20 homers in each of the last eight seasons.

To compensate for the power gap, Boston hits singles and doubles. The Red Sox batted .283 to lead the league, 20 points higher than Oakland. Wade Boggs hit .366 for his fourth consecutive batting championship and Greenwell hit .325.

But despite the offensive differences, the result was nearly the same. Boston scored 813 runs and Oakland 800.

Oakland's pitching is better overall than Boston's, but the Red Sox have Roger Clemens and Bruce Hurst, starters who can dominate. The A's team ERA was 3.44 while Boston's was 3.92.

In the playoff opener, Oakland's Dave Stewart, 21-12, will pitch against Hurst, 18-6. Hurst is 13-2 at Fenway this year and 25-6 over the last two seasons. Clemens, 18-12 with a league-leading 291 strikeouts, will pitch in Game 2 against Storm Davis, 16-7. When the series moves to Oakland for Game 3 on Saturday, Bob Welch, 17-9, will oppose Mike Boddicker, 13-15, including 7-3 with Boston after his July 29 trade from Baltimore.

Mets have Dodger number but maybe not Hershiser's

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Orel Hershiser, who hasn't allowed a run since August, may need another shutout if he is to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to victory over the New York Mets tonight in Game 1 of the National League playoffs.

The reason is his mound opponent, New York's Dwight Gooden, who has a 4-0 lifetime record at Dodger Stadium. That statistic, coupled with the Mets' 10-1 record this season against the Dodgers, means Hershiser probably will have to pitch extremely well if Los Angeles is to take the lead in the best-of-seven series.

"I'll be carrying the burden of 24 players and the Dodgers' fans," Hershiser said Monday after a brief workout. "My intensity won't change. I've got to execute the pitches and hope for some good breaks."

Hershiser finished the regular season with 59 consecutive scoreless innings to break former Dodger Don Drysdale's 20-year-old mark of 58.

It's a record right up there with Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak and Lou Gehrig's 2,130 consecutive games.

"The streak doesn't have any bearing now, it doesn't even carry into the playoffs," Hershiser said.

"Today is just another game. I want to reduce it to its simplest form. I'll look at (catcher Mike) Scioscia's fingers and try and execute the pitches."

Hershiser finished the season 23-8 with a 2.26 earned-run average. He had 178 strikeouts in 267 innings and pitched eight shutouts.

"He's had one of the finest years ever," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "I never thought anyone could beat Don Drysdale's record. Orel has been something special and he has kept us out of tailspins all season. If he is not the Cy Young Award winner in the National League, I will see to it personally that the guys who are voting will be under investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

Gooden, whose only career loss to the Dodgers was in New York, feels very comfortable in Dodger Stadium.

"The mound is great," he said. "It's a nice and high mound, and that helps you get over the top with your breaking ball. It seems like you're right on top of the hitter here."

The Dodgers announced Monday that Tudor will pitch Game 3 Friday at Shea Stadium against Ron Darling.

Wednesday's matchup will see David Cone, 20-3, oppose rookie Tim Lincecum, 12-6.

Ranger year disappointing

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Between the lowly Rangers and quality teams in the American League West lies a plain as big as Texas and pitcher Charlie Hough says he can't take another year like this one.

"This is the most frustrating season since I've been here," said Hough. "I'd expect us to make a lot of changes. We certainly won't go into next year with things as they are now."

The Rangers compiled their worst record since 1973, the year after they fled Washington, when they finished the season at 70-91.

The only club the Rangers beat in a season series was last-place Seattle - 7-6. They finished sixth, 33½ games behind the Oakland Athletics in the AL West.

Hough did have some optimism about the Rangers.

"This is the best club we've had, but for whatever reasons, it hasn't jelled," he said.

The Rangers, instead of jelling:

- Lost 31 one-run games.
- Scored 186 fewer runs than in 1987.
- Were shut out or scored one run in 30 games.
- Batted .217 in September.

Rangers designated hitters hit less than .200, an AL record, with 13 homers and 48 RBI. Last year, the designated hitters hit .262 with 30 homers and 100 RBI.

If that weren't enough:

- The bullpen failed in 18 save situations.
- They lost five games in which they led by five or more runs.
- They lost 33 games in which they lead.
- And they permitted nine grand slams, tying the major-league record.

Pete Incaviglia batted .249, 22 points lower than last year, with 22 homers and 54 RBI, five fewer homers and 26 fewer RBI than 1987.

The Rangers, amazingly, drew 1,581,901 home fans, third-best in team history and a drop of only 181,152 from last year.

"The fans deserve much better," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "Well, maybe another time. They didn't get what they deserved this year."

"It's been a very disappointing year," said General Manager Tom Grieve. "We didn't score as many runs as we did last year. That's probably a good place to start."

"The bullpen certainly has room for improvement but, no matter what the bullpen did, they would have had to compensate for the fact that, with few exceptions, not many of our hitters had the kinds of offensive years they're capable of."

Astros search for a manager

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros are looking for a new manager to replace Hal Lanier and a few good men to help him win.

Lanier and three of his coaches were fired Sunday, and General Manager Bill Wood promised to make other personnel changes following the Astros' second straight September fizzle.

Early speculation has centered around Astros first base coach Matt Galante.

Thousands welcome shuttle astronauts home to Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston literally rolled out the red carpet for the returning Discovery astronauts as nearly 5,000 flag-waving well-wishers greeted the five shuttle crewmen home after their successful mission.

"We were privileged to go around the earth about 64 times since we left you," Commander Rick Hauck said at ceremonies Monday night at Houston's Ellington Field.

"We saw some beautiful sites and we've lived in a wonderful machine and it was wonderful to come back to Edwards Air Force Base (Calif.). But it's even more wonderful to come back home."

The astronauts arrived at 8:20 p.m. CDT after a three-hour flight on NASA jets from Edwards, where they safely landed Discovery earlier in the day. After hugging their children, whom they had not seen in a week, they walked along a red carpet down a path lined with American flags as the crowd cheered, waving their own U.S. and Texas flags.

Then they climbed a stairway to a blue drape-clad stage backed by a large red, white and blue sign which proclaimed: "NASA & Houston, Back On Top To Stay."

Mission Specialist Mike Lounge said ceremonies earlier in the day attended by Vice President George Bush at Edwards Air Force Base were special because it was the welcome home from the nation.

"But this is more special because we're coming home to our friends, our co-workers and the people who made it happen," Lounge said. "The most challenging part of this flight was trying to live up to what you deserve and I hope we've done that."

"Back in the dark days after the Challenger accident, folks in Houston never lost faith in NASA and folks at NASA never lost faith in Houston," Mission Specialist Dave Hilmers said. "Let's go back to work tomorrow and make this adventure happen again and again and again."

Hauck paid tribute to his colleagues aboard the ill-fated Challenger.

"We will never forget them and always will remember the sacrifices they made," he said. "In these 2½ years, this team ... backed by the American people, has come back stronger than ever."

The welcome home was much different from the return to Houston shuttle astronauts had become accustomed to. In flights before the Challenger accident, the return had become so routine that only a handful of family members and friends were on hand to greet them.

Monday's event, however, was intended to show the support of the Houston-area communities for the space program, organizers said.

"We know the Discovery crew was launched from Florida and landed in California but there's only one place that you came back home — and that's here in Houston. And you've made us very, very proud," Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire said. "We know there are people all over this people who want to welcome you back, but we want to welcome you back as neighbors."

A high school band and flag-waving troupe entertained the crowd in the hours before the astronauts arrived at the same field where a week ago they left for Florida and the launch of Discovery.

"It's a great day," said Nancy Bowen of Houston. "We've had a lot of sadness here the last couple of years. But I wanted the whole country to know how we feel here in Houston. It's pride."

"This is much like the first flight's return," said Gerry Griffin, former director of the Johnson Space Center and now president of the Greater Houston Chamber of Commerce, one of the organizers of Monday airport event.

"There's an extremely high intensity level here and it is like a new beginning. This is a good opportunity to reflect on what

NIH board recommends human experiment with altered cells

WASHINGTON (AP) — In what could be a major step toward gene therapy, a federal advisory board recommended that researchers be allowed for the first time to inject genetically altered cells into human patients.

"If this protocol were to work, I'd expect that within six to 12 months there could be a proposal to do a gene therapy experiment," said Dr. William J. Gartland, the executive secretary of the Recombinant DNA Advisory Committee to the National Institutes of Health.

The goal of gene therapy — a much more controversial matter — is to treat a genetic disease by replacing a defective or missing gene that causes an inherited illness. The proposed experiment would not be gene therapy but would use many of the same techniques.

The advisory committee on Monday voted 16-5 in favor of the proposal to inject genetically altered cells into patients to determine how well a certain form of cancer therapy is working. A so-called marker gene would be put into a patient's cells in the lab and then placed back inside the patient. The experiment would not attempt to fight the cancer, but would track the genetically altered cells carrying the altered genes, Gartland said.

they've accomplished and also to focus on Houston."

Tommy and Molly Lowe, of Houston, brought their two small children to the airfield and waited nearly four hours for the astronauts.

"It's worth it," Mrs. Lowe said. "We've watched it from the start to finish. We were on pins and needles. But this is just a part of American pride."

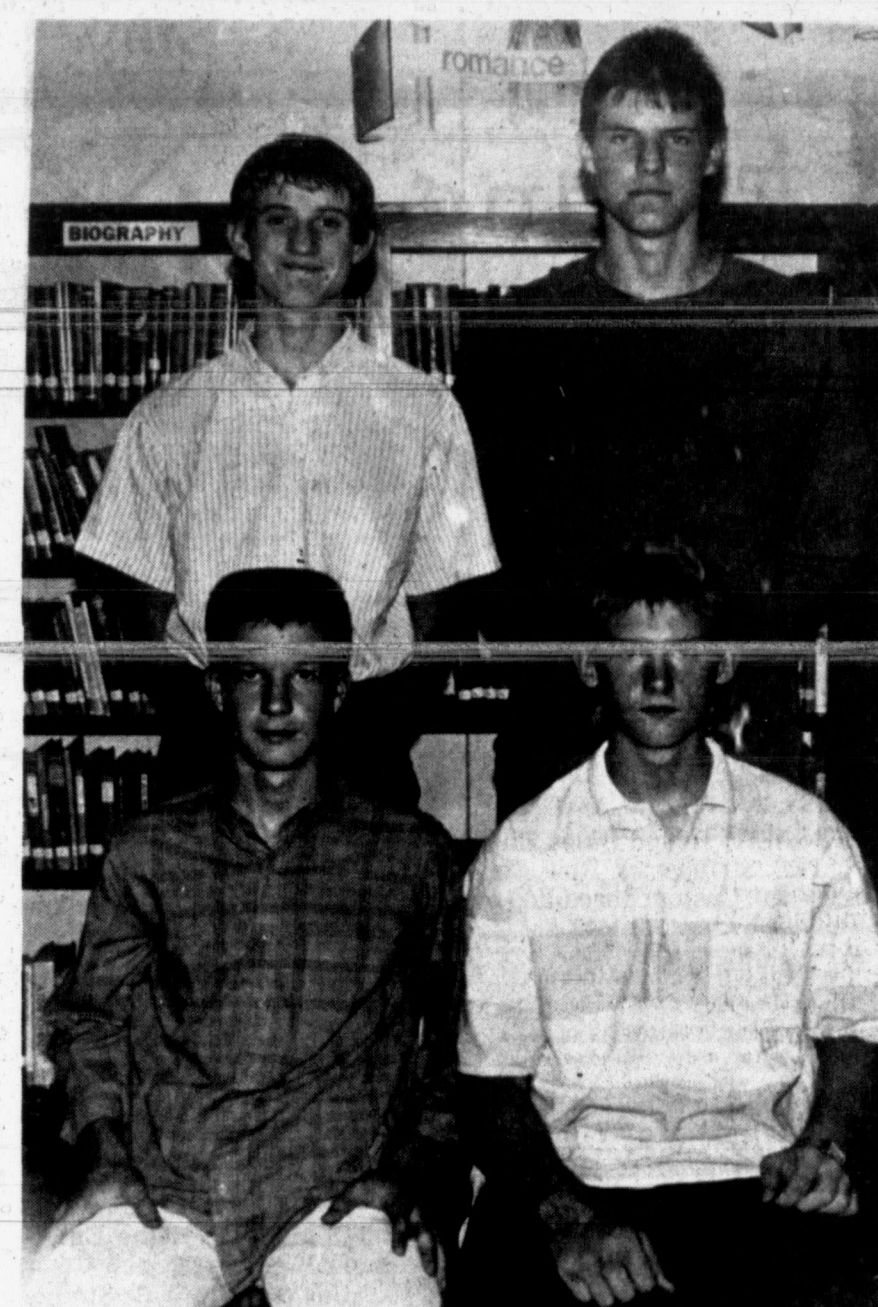

The experiment would be limited to 10 patients, and those patients would have life expectancies of only about 90 days due to the advancement of their cancer, he said.

NIH Director Dr. James B. Wyngaarden and the Food and Drug Administration still must approve the proposal before it is carried out.

Due to the split in the vote, a decision from Wyngaarden "will probably take a couple of months," Gartland said. "The NIH director will probably want to know why those five people voted against it."

The main concern for those who opposed the experiment, he said, was "what they're using is a virus to 'infect' the patients' cells and put the marker in the patients' cells. The concern is that the virus" itself could make the patients sick, even though the virus' ability to be infectious would be removed before it is placed in the cell.

"The people who submitted the protocol feel it is not dangerous and that they've completed enough of the safety testing to say that," Gartland said. "There are some people on the committee who have some reservations about it, but these are very terminally ill patients with cancer, so it's probably a safe procedure in these circumstances."

Bess Myerson case to trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A year after she stood on the courthouse steps and proclaimed her innocence in a divorce-fixing scandal involving her boyfriend and a judge, former Miss America Bess Myerson is getting her day in court.

Opening arguments were to begin today in the federal trial of Miss Myerson, 64, who was Miss America 1945 and the city's cultural affairs commissioner before the scandal known as the "Bess Mess" forced her resignation.

"For a long time, I have been the target of ugly accusations and false rumors," Miss Myerson said outside Manhattan's federal courthouse after her arraignment last October. "I now look forward to having my day in court and am totally confident that I will be vindicated here."

Police start arresting anti-abortion activists

ATLANTA (AP) — Police began arresting anti-abortion activists in front of an Atlanta clinic today, moments after the opening round of what protesters say will be a four-day "Siege of Atlanta" got under way.

About 800 demonstrators arrived at a midtown abortion facility about 10:40 a.m., many of them crawling up the street toward the small brick building. When some of them tried to go beyond a temporary fence installed outside the clinic, police began dragging the protesters away toward a waiting bus.

About 30 were arrested in about 15 minutes.

About a mile away, another protest began at another clinic but there were no immediate arrests. About 60 demonstrators also crawled to the building, where they were surrounded by about 40 police officers.

Earlier, city officials had braced for the expected demonstrations by arresting the protest leader, and filing suit against others, claiming they were engaged in a criminal conspiracy.

About 800 demonstrators, some of whom attended a pre-dawn Mass, assembled this morning at a motel on the edge of town. Protest leaders distributed plastic bags to collect the identification of those who planned to be arrested, so that authorities could not determine their names.

That approach was used during a series of anti-abortion demonstrations in Atlanta this summer. Then, hundreds were arrested over several weeks and many refused to give their names to authorities, in solidarity, they said, with anonymous victims of abortion.

Operation Rescue, a New York-based anti-abortion group, has vowed to send hundreds of demonstrators to blockade the city's seven clinics that perform abortions this week. Abortion rights groups have trained about 300 volunteers to escort women through the demonstrators. The volunteers plan to use black umbrellas, emblazoned with "choice" in large blue letters, to shield the faces of women seeking to enter targeted clinics.

The pro-choice groups held their own church rally Monday night but have said they won't stage counterdemonstrations because that would make things more difficult for patients.

Before this morning's protests began, police were already watching the clinics and metal barricades were up around at least one clinic that was a frequent target of demonstrators this summer.

Randall Terry, Operation Rescue's leader, was arrested Monday, charged with conspiracy to commit a crime and jailed, said police Sgt. Dorothy Smith. Terry was on the scene as the demonstrators gathered this morning, after an unidentified person posted his $75,000 bond.

"This is clearly preventive detention," Terry said earlier in a statement. "They want to stop us from attempting to save the lives of endangered babies in Atlanta."

The city on Friday filed a lawsuit asking a Fulton County Superior Court to declare Operation Rescue leaders and others a public nuisance and issue a permanent injunction against the demonstration. A hearing on the lawsuit was set for this afternoon.

Terry, McMonagle and five other Operation Rescue leaders were named as defendants, as well as "Baby Jane Doe" and "Baby John Doe," the names used by dozens of demonstrators arrested this summer.

The lawsuit seeks a $500-a-person fine for each violation of the injunction. It claims that Operation Rescue and its members constitute a continuing criminal enterprise, violating the state's Racketeer Influenced, Corrupt Organizations Act.

Speakers at Monday night's Operation Rescue rally at suburban St. Jude the Apostle Roman Catholic church said the protests were dictated by their Christian beliefs.

Joseph Foreman, another defendant in the lawsuit, drew cheers from the crowd as he instructed would-be demonstrators to crawl on their hands and knees if police officers approach.

A smaller but equally enthusiastic crowd of about 200 abortion rights advocates gathered at downtown Central Presbyterian Church heard the anti-abortionists labeled as immoral and un-American.

"I accuse the leaders of Operation Rescue of being un-American because they seek to force their views on the women of this nation," said Molly Yard, president of the National Organization of Women.

FILMETER

What's new in movies and video
Robert DiMatteo

By Robert DiMatteo

In Movie Theaters

DEAD RINGERS (R) David Cronenberg's "The Fly" was a breakthrough film — Kafka for the schlock trade. His new one is a thinking man's psychological thriller, with the expected horrific overtones. Suggestive, with moments of creepy wit, the movie nevertheless fails to satisfy.

The picture recounts the actual case of identical-twin gynecologists (both played by Jeremy Irons) who use their occupational privilege to prey on women patients. Often impersonating each other, the brothers — one a timid scholar, the other a ladies' man — eventually succumb to drug problems and merge personalities with disastrous results.

The subject must have appealed to the director as a blackly comic treatment of the old saw about the lasciviousness of male gynecologists. Unfortunately, some viewers (especially women) may find the film's gleefully perverse concentration on grisly examinations, surgery and weird gynecological devices rather difficult to take.

Despite his matinee idol reputation, Jeremy Irons — looking pale and thin — seems the wrong actor to draw us into this tale of sex and death. Perhaps he is overly subtle in differentiating between the two brothers (audience members could be heard whispering, "Which brother is he supposed to be now?"). Or perhaps the problem is that Irons has become a rather prissy actor — enunciating like Boris Karloff and offering a vampirish presence in both roles.

Playing a famous movie star who is duped by the twins, Genevieve Bujold doesn't help things, either. Looking like she hasn't slept in weeks, Bujold speaks her dialogue in a breathy drone, sounding dubbed. GRADE: ★★½

GORILLAS IN THE MIST (PG-13) Sigourney Weaver — that lanky, freshly scrubbed beauty blessed with some of Kate Hepburn's spunk — gets her first full-scale role in this film about the late Dian Fossey. An anthropologist whose study of gorillas in Rwanda helped to rescue the animals from extinction, Fossey met an untimely death — the victim of a still-unsolved murder.

Directed by Michael Apted ("Coal Miner's Daughter"), the movie is best when it concentrates on Fossey's interaction with the gorillas. As Weaver plays her, Fossey is openly enraptured by the animals — imitating their movements and sounds, lost in a primeval reverie. (Some of the gorillas aren't gorillas, though: Credit the special effects and makeup department.)

Too much of the movie is about other things, including Fossey's aborted love affair with a National Geographic photographer (Bryan Brown). It's like leftovers from "Out of Africa" — a valiant white heroine flanked by a noble African manservant/guide, juggling her work and a dashing white adventurer-lover.

Toward the end, the movie turns downright screwy: Fossey flips out when her favorite gorilla is killed by poachers. Short on a sense of the actual research Fossey did, and forced to leave her demise clouded in mystery, the movie ends up nearly as evasive as it is evocative. But the wrapping, fierce Weaver keeps one watching through the clichés. GRADE: ★★½

New Home Video

BATTERIES NOT INCLUDED (PG) MCA Home, $89.95. An attempt to craft a contemporary urban variant of the "elves and the shoemaker" fairy tale, with sweet little spaceship-shaped extraterrestrials in place of the elves. On this has been grafted the whimsical view of senior citizens familiar from "Cocoon," plus a fillip of social consciousness about urban redevelopment.

This formulaic mixture never jells. Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy star as a sweet old couple lunging to keep their Manhattan luncheonette from the clutches of a Donald Trump-like investor. Alas, even the great Tandy is upstaged by whizzing space-ships. GRADE: ★½

THE MILAGRO BEANFIELD WAR (R) MCA, $89.95. Director Robert Redford sank a lot of time, money and love into this adaptation of John Nichols' book about a New Mexican Chicano farm community's struggle to resist a vast development project. The cast is quirky (including Christopher Walken, Melanie Griffith, Sonia Braga and Ruben Blades), and there are charming touches of folk humor and "magic realism." But, overall, the movie is tepid and small-scale. GRADE: ★★

(Film grading: ★★★★★ — great, ★★★★ — good, ★★★ — fair, ★ — poor).

Report: oil futures test new two-year lows

NEW YORK (AP) — Fresh threats of a possible price war among OPEC nations have pushed oil futures lower in a test of price levels not seen in more than two years.

The November contract of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude skidded 31 cents to settle at $13.06 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange on Monday. The move follows a 55-cent plunge in the previous session.

Crude prices — which had not closed that low since August 1986 — over the past five weeks have slumped by about $2 a barrel.

Experts say consumers probably will not benefit significantly unless crude holds at those depressed levels for an extended period.

On the New York Merc, wholesale unleaded gasoline prices fell .25 cent to settle at 41.98 cents a gallon. Heating oil fell .95 cent to end the day at 37.78 cents a gallon.

Prices moved slightly higher in early trading today, but Richard Redoglia, a trader with Merrill Lynch Energy Futures, said the advance was due to technical factors and that market "fundamentals are bearish."

November West Texas Intermediate picked up 16 cents a barrel, rising to $13.24, while gasoline rose 0.42 cent to 42.40 cents a gallon and heating oil was up 0.47 cent to 38.25 cents a gallon.

Monday's slide in crude intensified after Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer and the world's biggest exporter, issued a sharply worded statement that analysts said was intended to pressure other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to curb their output levels or face continued, sharp declines in prices.

Saudi Arabia said it believes returning to prescribed production levels "is the best way for restoring full stability" to turbulent oil markets, but it will not "freeze" its own production while others continue to violate their ceilings.

Analysts said the Saudis are intent on boosting their output to drive prices lower and make other oil producers suffer narrower profit margins.

OPEC nations are pumping an estimated 3 million barrels a day beyond their 17.5-million-barrel daily quota.

"There's a certain strategy within the Saudi camp that they will demonstrate that you can't win by overproducing," said Bob Baker, senior energy analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

Indeed, the Saudis threatened that other OPEC members "will now feel the harm of deterioration" that overproduction has on the market.

The statement said certain unidentified OPEC members had "perhaps forgotten the benefits of when they abided by (the cartel's) December 1986 (pricing and production) agreement, which helped send oil prices at least briefly to levels around $20 a barrel."

The Saudis claim to have lost as much as $1.9 billion over the years from repeatedly lowering their own output to bolster OPEC. With substantial resources, the Saudis can tolerate lower oil prices more easily than other nations.

Ira PTA will host workshop

The workshop will be held at the Ira Baptist Church. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and a business meeting will follow at 10 a.m.

After this, a workshop on attention deficit disorders will follow. Glenn Hunsucker, author of a book on attention deficit disorders, will be the speaker.

Lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m. with luncheon speaker the Rev. Ken Branam. The workshop will end at 2 p.m. and babysitting will be provided.
