

Dukakis fights back at Bush's lead

By The Associated Press
Michael Dukakis promised to erase the nation's $150 billion trade deficit in four years as the Democratic nominee waged his uphill fight for the presidency. Republican front-runner George Bush claimed the underdog label in his battle with the notion that the race for the White House is over.

Dukakis portrayed the election as a choice between a candidate for the wealthy and a nominee who is committed to working class Americans as he took his case to voters in Michigan.

The Democratic nominee received an enthusiastic response Tuesday in Kalamazoo when he told the crowd, "George Bush cares about the people on Easy Street. I care about the people on Main Street. He's on their side. I'm on your side."

Dukakis also accused the Republican administration of failing to halt the growing trade deficit and doing nothing to solve the problems that led to the 1987 stock market crash, which occurred one year ago today.

The vice president, who traveled to Fulton, Mo., site of former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's famed "Iron Curtain" speech, focused on U.S.-Soviet relations in his address at Westminster College.

But in opening remarks to the students and comments to reporters, Bush sought to convince listeners he doesn't have the presidential election in hand. "The worst thing to do would be to show a complacency I don't feel or an overconfidence that I do not feel," said the GOP nominee, who led by 17 points over in this week's NBC News-Wall Street Journal poll.

A Dukakis aide, however, said a new Harris poll put the gap at about nine percentage points. Barbara Winkour, a spokeswoman for Louis Harris & Associates in New York, said Harris would be releasing a poll today, but declined to comment Tuesday on its results.

Two other surveys found Bush leads of about that size. In the first poll of 1,002 registered voters surveyed Saturday through Monday, Bush led 49-39 percent. The second poll of 1,201 likely voters Friday through Monday gave the GOP ticket a 49-40 percent lead.

Both were ongoing tracking polls — in which the newest day's result is added and the last day's is dropped — done by KRC Communications Research in Cambridge, Mass.

Punishment pending...

Perjury case ends with guilty verdict

A 132nd District Court jury deliberated for 1½ hours Tuesday afternoon before finding former Snyderite Jimmy Trevino guilty of aggravated perjury in connection with his testimony in his aggravated assault trial here last year.

The jury, which was out from 4:24 p.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, returned Wednesday morning for the punishment phase of the trial but was dismissed when Lubbock defense attorney James Brennan opted to have District Judge Gene Dulaney set punishment.

Preparations were being made to begin the punishment phase near midday, with possible sentencing for the third-degree felony ranging from two to 10 years' imprisonment.

Trevino, 26, now of Lubbock, received a five-year sentence in his February 1987 trial for shooting into an Ave. Q residence following a dispute with two Snyder men on Nov. 29, 1986.

That sentence is currently under appeal.

The case is being prosecuted by District Attorney Ernie Armstrong.

Four due approval for chamber posts

The nomination period has passed and four new directors for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce board are expected to be approved by the full board at the November meeting.

Chamber president David Kattes told directors Tuesday that no additional nominations for the four posts had been received from the membership.

Those nominated by a chamber committee included Eddie Williams of ABC Rent-All, Joe Sentell, a local insurance representative, Cindy Banta of Suits Us and Fran Farmer of Olney Savings.

The four will begin their three-year term in January.

Directors were updated on the nomination process at the regular October meeting of the chamber. A quorum of directors for the 12-member board failed to appear Tuesday and no official action was taken.

Directors attending the meeting included Kattes, who presided, Herbie Figueredo, Gary Landes, Harley Bynum and Barbara Williamson.

The board also heard a report from Jack Smartt, governmental affairs committee chairman, regarding the need for bills in the upcoming state legislation to address problems with workman's compensation insurance.

Smartt urged support for such measures as shifting monetary compensation decisions from trial juries to an appointed board and altering the method of payment of such awards from a "lump sum" to a payment spread over several years.

In other reports, the group was told:

—An appearance by the Lubbock Symphony is tentatively scheduled here during the first week in December as part of the annual Cultural Affairs Committee Christmas program. A joint concert with a community choir is planned.

—The recent White Buffalo Days auction earned enough income to place this year's celebration "in the black overall."

ABSENTEE BEGINS — County Clerk Jenna Vee Miller, left, and absentee voting clerk Donna Griffin Tuesday afternoon had voting machines set up and voter registration rolls out for the opening of absentee voting on the third floor of the courthouse for the Nov. 8 election. The ballot begins Wednesday and will continue through Nov. 4. (SDN Staff Photo)

Amendments buried

AUSTIN (AP) — Buried on the Nov. 8 ballot beneath national, state and local races are three proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution, the offspring of a fiery legislative session dominated by staggering deficits and tax increases.

Not surprisingly, the amendments deal with protecting money, saving money and investing money.

Proposition 1 would require that all the money Texas is reimbursed by the federal government for highway projects be used to pay for those projects.

Proposition 2 would establish a so-called "Rainy Day Fund" where state revenue would be set aside and saved for appropriation in years when tax revenues fall short of meeting expenses.

Proposition 3 would set up a "Growth Fund" and allow trustees of the state's two education funds and two state-employee pension funds more investment flexibility, including investment in the growth fund.

Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis support all three propositions. No organized opposition to the amendments has surfaced. See BALLOT, page 9.

Proposal to protect highway fund

Editor's Note: This begins the first in a series of three articles related to constitutional amendments to be decided by Texas voters Nov. 8.)

Proposed constitutional amendment No. 1 on the Nov. 8 ballot would dedicate Texas' federal highway funds to state highway purposes — a measure that its sponsors say is needed because of the legislature's temperament to use them for other purposes during tight financial times.

The $900 million annually that the state has been getting as reimbursement of state highway dedicated fund, would be specifically earmarked for acquiring right of way and building, maintaining and policing highways.

An analysis by the Texas

Legislative Council in Austin of proposed amendment No. 1 noted that sources in the federal government said federal law is open to interpretation as to what the reimbursements may be used for.

Proponents argue that not dedicating the money "would cripple the process of planning transportation projects, which

Mayor heads TML region

Snyder Mayor Troy Williamson has been elected president of the Texas Municipal League's Region III which serves municipalities in a 22-county region.

He was named to head the group at a regional meeting held Monday in Lubbock.

Named as first vice president, a post which entails president-elect status, was Jim Solomon, mayor of Tahoka, and as second vice president, B.C. (Peck) McMinn, mayor of Lubbock.

The other officer for Region III, known as the Caprock TML Region, is secretary-treasurer Bill Nelson, mayor of Ozona.

Williamson has been an officer for TML the past three years.

Chamber seeks more hunting lease listings

The effort begun by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce to list potential hunting leases in Scurry County has prompted substantially more inquiries from hunters than it has listings from local land owners.

As a result, officials are again inviting individuals with rural land to contact the chamber if they are willing to lease either seasonal or "day" hunting rights.

As of Tuesday, it was noted, the chamber has received 35 inquiries from hunters but has listed only seven potential sites in the county. These sites range from several hundred to several thousand acres, they note.

Dove season is now underway in the county and will end Nov. 9.

While archery season for white-tailed deer has been underway since Oct. 1, the general hunting season for this game animal opens here Nov. 5 and will continue through Jan. 1.

The county also has a large influx of hunters for the quail season, and this will open Oct. 29 to continue into Feb. 26.

Other hunting seasons which affect Scurry County include:

—Mule deer, which opened for archery Oct. 1-30 and will open for general hunting Nov. 19-Dec. 4.

—Turkey, which opened for archery Oct. 1-30 and will open for general hunting Nov. 5-Jan. 1.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The young ad-just their hair to the styles, and the older gents adjust their styles to the hair."

A congresswoman on the tube recently was citing businesses which had taken the lead in providing child-care or day center for working mothers.

It would have to be somebody in congress, somebody who doesn't live in the real world, to come up with such a kooky proposal. Mandatory child-care provided by business would just about be the final straw in breaking the backs of already over-regulated small businesses.

If you think Congress isn't out of touch, one might consider a recent flap that happened to employees of the House folding room.

The employees recently had to work 70 hours per week, but Congress doesn't have to pay overtime because that body exempts itself from the Fair Labor Practices Act.

After the flap, a House subcommittee met to look into rights of the workers. One elected representative even suggested that the panel fire employees who complained to the Washington media rather than going through official channels.

While most employees are protected by rules that bar arbitrary dismissals for such things as free speech, Congress has once again exhibited that it is above the law.

It's hard to have respect for those who are selective about the laws they choose to obey.

If you really want to gobble up a package of Tums, wait until the estimates are released for repair after the fire in Speaker Jim Wright's office on Capitol Hill.

The figure may not retire the national debt, but it would go a long way to reducing this year's federal budget deficit.

Q. — In the grave of the unknown soldier, is the grave empty or is there a body inside?

A. — This memorial in Arlington National Cemetery dates to World War I, when a body was chosen from unidentified dead in Europe. The Unknown Soldier of World War I was entombed in 1921. In 1958, two unidentified servicemen, one who died in World War II and one in the Korean War, were placed in crypts beside the first.

In Brief

Jail death

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Bexar County sheriff says the first slaying at the new county jail has been linked to the so-called "Mexican mafia", an infamous prison gang in the Southwest.

District attorney's investigators have joined deputies in investigating the slaying, Sheriff Harlon Copeland said Tuesday.

"It (the murder) is gang-related, and it is the Mexican mafia," said Copeland.

Armando G. Diaz, 24, of San Antonio was strangled Sunday in the jail's sixth-floor narcotics detoxification unit. No charges have yet been filed in the slaying.

Bank lawsuit

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An amended lawsuit seeking to dissolve a partnership in one of the state's last private banks accuses Chase Manhattan Bank and others of fraud for allegedly misrepresenting a partner's financial background.

The lawsuit filed by the Sydney L. Thomas Trust and its trustee, James C. Thomas, claims his family's ownership stake in the Galveston bank was taken illegally by partner E. Lawrence Price.

Thomas alleges that Chase Manhattan Bank made fraudulent misrepresentations about Price to induce Thomas and his family's trust to join in the banking partnership formed in 1983.

Alamo operator reprimanded, audit ordered, newspaper says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The woman responsible for overseeing the operation of the Alamo has been reprimanded because of an effort to conceal a raise for a librarian, the San Antonio Light reported today.

Quoting a source who attended a meeting of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas Board of Management meeting last month, the newspaper reported that Marjorie M. Hardy, chairwoman of the DRT Alamo Committee, was reprimanded.

The source told the newspaper that the reprimand resulted from an alleged effort to conceal a $6,200 raise for a librarian who was later dismissed.

Mrs. Hardy told the newspaper she is responsible for day-to-day operations at the Alamo, but declined to comment on the reported reprimand.

"I have not received an official letter (of reprimand)," Hardy said Tuesday when contacted by a reporter. "Until I get anything, I don't have anything to say."

The management board also voted to reprimand Mrs. Bryce Hartman, chairwoman of the Alamo Chapter Library Committee, the source said.

Other DRT leaders also refused to answer questions about reported internal strife.

The management board, responsible for oversight of the Alamo Committee, also ordered an audit of the Alamo books at a cost up to $20,000, dismissed Sharon Crutchfield as librarian on a 12-11 vote, and ordered the reprimands of Hardy and Hartman for allegedly concealing a $6,200-a-year raise for Crutchfield, the source told the newspaper.

Members of the DRT have traditionally been reluctant to discuss the organization's operations publicly, holding to their argument that DRT business is private because no tax funds are used to operate the organization or the Alamo.

The source who attended the Sept. 16 Board of Management meeting confirmed the actions against the Alamo Committee leaders took place, but requested anonymity and blamed the dissension on past DRT President General Martha Rash of Rockwall.

Neither Mrs. Rash nor current DRT President General Billie Averitte of Palestine would comment on the organization's squabble. Efforts over two days to reach Mrs. Hartman were unsuccessful.

The source said an allegation in the reprimand motion that an effort was made to conceal a $6,200 pay raise for Ms. Crutchfield before the librarian was dismissed, "is flat-out not true."

Kidnappers fail to get their victim

HOUSTON (AP) — A gunman and two accomplices who confronted a Houston woman in a restaurant parking lot got more than they bargained for and wound up losing their victim and weapon.

Houston Police said Jonnelle Cole, 23, an administrative assistant with the Houston Independent School District, told them a gunman attempted to kidnap her Tuesday.

Ms. Cole said many things went through her mind when she was realized that the man had targeted her for abduction. She was faced with one gunman and a second kidnapper was in the back seat and another outside the car, but her main thought was how to escape.

"When I saw the gun, I knew if I tried to jump out of the car, he might shoot me or anything," Ms. Cole told the Houston Chronicle.

cle. The gunman provided Cole with the break she needed when he put the weapon down and started driving away. Cole didn't hesitate.

"I let the window down and threw the gun out, and when he started speeding up, that was when I decided to go ahead and jump out," she said.

The woman suffered a few bruises and scrapes on her arms and knee, but said she was happy she came out of the ordeal alive.

Ms. Cole said the drama began after she finished lunch with her mother at the Strawberry Patch restaurant. She said she left her mother standing in front of the restaurant while she went to a rear parking lot to get the car.

"Some men were parked next to my car, and they had the hood up like it was something wrong with the car," Cole said.

One of the men approached, pointed a gun at her and told her to get into her father's car, which she was using. The gunman opened the door and pushed Cole to the passenger side, while the second man got into the back seat and a third stayed outside, she said.

He asked me if I had any money, and I said, 'No, I don't have any money,'" Cole said. The man attempted to start the car but had trouble doing so, she said.

"He got nervous then because he didn't know how to start it," Cole said. "Then once he got it going, he put the gun in the tray by the armrest, and that was when I let the window down, threw the gun out and jumped."

She said that after she tossed the pistol, the man in the back seat jumped out of the car and fled with his accomplice waiting outside.

Nell Cole, the woman's mother, said she began to worry about her daughter because it had taken her a long time to return with the car and she went to investigate.

"I saw the two men and my daughter tussling with them," Mrs. Cole said. "I just started hollering and screaming and telling her to jump out of the car, just jump out, and she did."

"I'm glad it's over, and I just want to go home and rest and relax," Ms. Cole said.

Street-smart teens learn more about AIDS disease

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — More than 200 San Antonio teen-agers who have had a first-hand glimpse of life on the streets as runaways, prostitutes and drug users are learning a safety lesson that could be too graphic for many of their peers.

At least 175 boys and 25 girls from the Bexar County Juvenile Detention Center have attended the four-week program on acquired immune deficiency syndrome — the first of its kind in the nation.

"These are the highest-risk kids in the community, especially as it gets more and more away from the homosexual community and into the needle-users," Jim Sherman, the center's director of medical and psychiatric services, told the San Antonio Light.

Juvenile officials looking for a tough, realistic way to get the AIDS vulnerability message across to street-smart teens met two months ago with members of the San Antonio AIDS Foundation. The resulting weekly program not only includes demonstrations on the proper way to use a condom, but also how to clean a syringe with bleach and water to protect a user from possible traces AIDS virus-contaminated blood left in shared needle.

Episcopal chaplain Mary Grace, director of pastoral services for the foundation, uses what she calls a "yuppie" videotape, "Sex, Drugs, AIDS," to introduce teens to the basics. Then over the next four weeks she hammers the message home with the black rap videotape, "Till Death Do Us Part," and "AIDS: A Bad Way to Die," produced at "Sing Sing," the Ossining State Correctional Facility in New York.

"Luke, how do you clean a rig?" Ms. Grace calls out in street vernacular to a 16-year-old student in her group. She tosses him a syringe, without a needle — to demonstrate.

Luke, not his real name, this week won a poster contest used as a final grade in the course. The poster, which reads "AIDS Isn't Life — Use a Condom," features the Grim Reaper in a frightening depiction of Death.

Poll reveals poor give more

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donations to charity decrease as incomes increase, according to a Gallup poll which says low- and moderate-income Americans are more generous than their upper-income counterparts.

"Giving and volunteering in America is a stark contrast between heart-warming generosity and bone-chilling selfishness," said Brian O'Connell, president of the Independent Sector, a nonprofit coalition of 650 corporate, foundation and volunteer organizations which commissioned the survey.

The March survey of 2,775 adults 18 years and over produced profiles of the most and least generous Americans according to income, family status, church membership, community size and region.

Those most likely to make contributions and volunteer their time were members of low- to moderate-income families, churchgoers, rural residents and Midwesterners.

The least generous were the affluent, single individuals, the non-churchgoing, city dwellers and Southerners.

"Contrary to popular opinion, the well-to-do in America cannot be described as generous," O'Connell said.

O'Connell said at a press conference Tuesday that contributing households with incomes below $10,000 gave an average of 2.8 percent of their income to charity. Those with incomes from $10,000 to $29,999 gave 2.5 percent, while those between $30,000 and $49,999 gave 2 percent.

Contributing households with incomes between $50,000 to $74,999 gave 1.5 percent; those earning $75,000 to $99,999 donated 1.7 percent, and those with incomes of $100,000 or more gave 2.1 percent.

Overall, the survey found that 70 percent of the households in America make charitable contributions.

The average amount of annual contributions per household was $790.

Members of almost half of the households — 45 percent — also volunteered time to charitable activities. The average per household was 4.7 hours a week in 1987.

Extrapolated to the entire U.S. population, the figures would translate into 80 million people giving a total of 19.5 billion hours worth $150 billion, O'Connell said.

The study indicated a link between religion and charitable support, with 79 percent of church members contributing money and 51 percent volunteering time. Among non-members, 55 percent made donations and 33 percent volunteered time.

However, more than one in five of the church members — 22 percent — contributed only to religion and not to any other charities.

Eugene C. Dorsey, head of the group's "Give Five" campaign to increase volunteerism, said the study shows it is possible to reach the organization's goal of motivating Americans to donate at least 5 percent of their incomes and five hours a week apiece to the causes of their choice.

But Dorsey, who also serves as president of the Gannett Foundation, said the findings also confirm the need for establishment of "a basic standard of what we owe to our communities."

Virginia A. Hodgkinson, the coalition's vice president for research, said its previous surveys had missed the link between rising income and decreasing support for charity. She said the earlier studies measured only the amount given without regard to what percentage of income the donated amount represented.

She said the profiles of the most and least generous Americans were based on the averages for weekly volunteerism, contributions as percentage of income and the percentages of family members who were volunteers.

AIDS, workplace, home changes seen in future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laser-protected homes, pocket telephones and interactive television will be commonplace in the United States of the future, but the nation could face a potentially devastating AIDS epidemic and a growing threat from high-tech terrorists, researchers say.

In its annual summary of predictions, the World Future Society says AIDS could have the impact of a world war by the end of the century.

The predictions for 1989 and beyond summarize, but do not detail, reports published during the past year by the society, a non-profit educational group based in Bethesda, Md., which encourages study of issues affecting the future.

On the positive side, the society foresees technological advances in the home, improved quality of life in America's cities, and better working conditions as corporations give more attention to job satisfaction.

Workers over age 50 will find a growing demand for their stability and experience, the report said.

Company policies in support of families will become much more common as the Baby Boom generation moves into the upper echelon of management. These will include on-site child care, flexible working hours and sick leave for children's illnesses.

Among the society's other projections:

- City downtowns will become more livable. Many will plant trees and establish cultural and entertainment facilities such as arts districts, children's museums and aquariums. Shopping areas will increasingly be combined with educational, cultural and entertainment facilities.
- Many homes will be protected by laser shields and artificial intelligence security systems, with surveillance by heat-sensitive monitors and even satellites becoming possible.

- Pocket-sized telephones will become available, someday replacing public phones.
- Interactive television will play a large role in the classroom of the future, giving students in remote locations the ability to see, hear and talk to a professor hundreds of miles away.
- Businesses will need to provide continuous employee training as the automation and computer revolutions eliminate many low-literacy jobs.
- Computers will become a popular target for terrorists. Attacks on high-tech targets, such as computer networks, telecommunications facilities and defense computers could pose a major threat.
- Fraud may become the crime of choice in the future as America grows older, replacing burglary which requires the speed and agility of youth.
- New discoveries in biotechnology and genetic engineering could lead to the replacement of nerve cells, arteries, hormone-producing cells and even brain cells. Artificial implants will become more common.
- Coastal structures ranging from cottages to airports built on reclaimed land will face a threat from rising sea levels as the greenhouse effect melts the polar ice caps.
- Major disease problems of the next century will include immune-system disorders, viral conditions, bacteria that have become resistant to today's antibiotics, allergies to new chemicals and mental health problems such as alcoholism, drug dependence and mood disorders.

The society's summary of predictions is being published in the November-December issue of its Futurist magazine.

Man accidentally ignites his cat

LEBANON, Ind. (AP) — A man who was starting a trash fire says he accidentally ignited his cat, which ran into his barn "like a ball of fire" and torched the structure.

Wendell Lane saved his cattle from the blaze Monday but apparently not the cat. The animal was not found after the fire, said Lane, who feared it did not survive.

"I was starting a trash fire out back and poured just a little bit of kerosene to get the fire going,"

he said. "Somehow our cat was in the trashpile. ... He took off like a ball of fire and headed straight for the open door of the barn."

Lane found the cat rolling in hay trying to put the flames out.

Lane tried to put out the fire with an extinguisher and a garden hose, said Fire Chief Patrick McGinley. When the flames got ahead of him, he took his cattle out and called the fire department.

The blazes destroyed the wooden barn, including all his winter hay for livestock.

Long-range planning

By James Jacoby

North-South were playing key-card Blackwood, in which the king of the agreed-upon trump suit is counted as an ace. When South learned that his side was missing the club king, he gave no thought to a grand slam. At first glance, a small slam in no-trump looks like a safe bet, with double stoppers or better in all suits and only the king of clubs to be forced out. But the bad split in clubs precludes a successful no-trump slam. Six clubs is still a makable contract, and today's South succeeded by not being too greedy.

Declarer won the opening lead in hand with the heart ace and immediately laid down the club ace. When East showed out, he didn't give up. He played a heart to dummy's king and ruffed a heart. He then led a spade to the queen and ruffed another heart. Notice that South was now down to the same length in trumps as West. He cashed the A-K of spades, and West followed suit. He now played the diamond ace and the diamond queen (overtaking with dummy's king) and ruffed a diamond with his club queen. There was nothing for West to do but overruff with the king. But he now had to lead away from the 10-8 of clubs and give declarer his slam.

Notice that had declarer carelessly won trick one with the heart king to lead a club from dummy, the winning end position could not have been reached.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

LAFF-A-DAY

DENNIS THE MENACE

Late homer lifts A's past LA

OAKLAND (AP) - The Oakland Athletics nearly got even.

The losers of Game 1 on a bottom-of-the-ninth-inning home run by Kirk Gibson, the A's beat Los Angeles 2-1 in Game 3 of the World Series on Mark McGwire's ninth-inning homer Tuesday night.

"That's one," A's Manager Tony La Russa said. "Now, we need three more."

The A's still trail in the Series 2-1, but by winning Game 3, they at least stopped the bleeding and averted almost certain defeat. No team has come back from 0-3 in a seven-game Series.

The Dodgers squandered a bases-loaded, none-out opportunity in the sixth inning with the score tied 1-1, and that was where the game turned.

"That definitely picked the team up," McGwire said. "That kept us in it. They could have blown us out right there."

The A's will use their best pitcher, Dave Stewart, in Game 4 tonight as they try to really get even. Stewart, 21-12, gave up three runs over eight innings in Game 1. The Dodgers will go with rookie Tim Lincecum, who lasted only two innings in the opener.

Rick Honeycutt threw two hitless innings of relief for the A's, and McGwire, who hit 32 homers during the season, launched his game-winner with one out in the ninth off Jay Howell.

Just as Gibson had homered off the A's top reliever, Dennis Eckersley, McGwire faced the Dodgers' bullpen ace. And he added a taste of defeat to a postseason of insult and embarrassment for Howell.

Howell was thrown out of a playoff game for putting pine tar on the ball, then was suspended for two games. He was belittled first by the New York Mets' David Cone as a high school pitcher, then by the A's Don Baylor, a former teammate, as a guy who couldn't get anybody out. And now this.

Instead of wearing No. 50 on his back, he might be wearing 86.

"I have no excuses," Howell said. "I just made a bad pitch. I tried to get a high fastball by him."

The Dodgers lost two players to injury early in the game - starting pitcher John Tudor and cleanup hitter Mike Marshall - and when the sixth inning came, Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said he was afraid to use gimpy Gibson as a pinch-hitter for Jeff Hamilton. He said he didn't want to run out of players too early in the game.

Gibson has not started in the Series because of injuries to both legs. Tudor went out in the second inning with a sore elbow, and Marshall had to leave in the fourth with a stiff back. The Dodgers said Marshall would be ready to play in Game 4, but they didn't know the extent of Tudor's injury.

Face Monahans next...

Lady Tigers maul Maidens

Snyder's Lady Tigers broke their three-match losing skid with a 15-5, 15-11 victory over San Angelo Lake View here Tuesday night.

The win put Coach Patty Grimm's ladies at 6-5 in District 4-4A volleyball action and 16-11 for the season. Lake View dropped to 1-10 and 3-16.

In other action Tuesday, Pecos clinched a tie for the district championship with a 15-10, 15-2 win over Monahans. The Lady Eagles, defending state champions, are 11-0 in district play. Also, Sweetwater remained in second place at 8-3 with a two-game win over Big Spring and Fort Stockton moved into sole possession of third place by beating Andrews, also in two games.

Next action for the Lady Tigers will be Saturday at 8 p.m. in Monahans.

Scoring on serves Tuesday for Snyder were Holly Fuller 10, Angie Brewster 8, Teena Brazier 4, Melody Pickering 3, Rhonda Echols and Cindy Srna 2, and Sandra Morin 1.

"The first game, we kept Lake View from scoring for the first four rotations," said Coach

Grimmett. "We were scoring on our offense, putting it to the floor. We played as a team and kept our confidence through both games. The second game, we had a slow start. They racked up about five points on us and Holly Fuller came up (to serve) and we scored 6 points and took control again. Our serving game was good and our offense looked really well, a lot better than it has been. Our defense played well also."

The Tigers got seven straight points from Angie Brewster in the first game.

Snyder junior varsity also won here Tuesday, 15-12, 16-14. Serving for points were Angie Burleson 16, Robbie Brazier 7, Monica Garcia 3 and Dayla Church 3, and Angie Crawford 1.

"In the first game, both teams were taking turns scoring. We had some long rallies but played well and came out ahead to win. In the second game, Angie Burleson served the first eight points, then Lake View caught up and got ahead of us. We were behind 14-10 but held our composure and came back to win 16-14," noted Coach Laurie Welch. "Overall, I thought we played good and in control for most of the match."

Saturday's action will begin at 7 p.m. with a freshman match in the Monahans high school gym and a junior varsity match in the complex. The varsity match will begin at 8 p.m. in the complex.

Struggling Cowboys look for revenge in bout with Eagles

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys hope to ride revenge to a victory over the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday in what is fast becoming one of the premier "bad blood" meetings in the NFC East.

Two incidents last year led to bitter feelings between the two teams, who need a victory after tough losses last week.

"We'll have to win our next three games (against NFC East opposition) to go any place this year," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. "Right now our season goal of 9-7 will be difficult to reach but it is still attainable."

The Cowboys have plunged to a 2-5 record, worst start since 1965.

They travel to Philadelphia on Sunday, come home to host Phoenix, then go back on the road to meet the New York Giants in the next three weeks.

Last October, the Cowboys felt Philadelphia ran the score up on them in a 37-20 loss. Quarterback Randall Cunningham faked dropping to one knee with time running out late in the game, then threw a long pass that led to a touchdown with one second left.

Eagles' Coach Buddy Ryan said at the time he was trying to get even with Landry for playing some of his regular players in a strike game earlier in the season.

"We'll let our players look at films of the game last year," Landry said. "They'll remember it. We won't have to remind them much."

"It was sneaky and underhanded," said Dallas linebacker Steve DeOssie. "I wouldn't mind jumping all over them."

In a conference telephone call Tuesday, Ryan said, "I never had any animosity toward Tom Landry. He was the Dallas coach when I was coaching high school football in Gainesville (Texas)."

Ryan said he had a few words "sent from my friends in Dallas" on the Eagles' bulletin board.

"A lot of our fans are still upset from that first (strike) game last year," Ryan said. "Of course, a lot of things upset me. I get upset easy."

He added "the Eagles and the Cowboys have been going at it tooth and nail for what seems like 100 years. It's great for pro football."

Landry said he had a lot of respect for Ryan, but added, "my memory is good enough to go back that far (the second game of last year)."

Odds makers made the Eagles five point favorites. It's been 21 years since the Eagles have beaten Dallas in two straight games.

The Cowboys will have a new backup quarterback to face the Eagles with Danny White on the injured reserve list for four to six weeks with ligament damage in his left knee.

Kevin Sweeney moved into the second spot behind Steve Pelluer, who has recovered from the concussion he suffered in Sunday's 17-7 loss to the Chicago Bears.

"It could be interesting if Sweeney gets in there and he might if our quarterback (Pelluer) doesn't start learning how to slide," Landry said. "It might be refreshing to see Sweeney. The players like him. He did well last year in the replacement games."

Landry will tutor placekicking specialist Roger Ruzek, who missed two field goal tries against Chicago and is four for 10 this year.

"I'll coach him myself," Landry said. "He's trying to guide the ball. It's like a golf swing, you can't do that and hit the ball. He's got to bounce back."

The Cowboys are so hard hit with injuries at offensive tackle that they signed free agent Bob Brotzki who was a backup earlier in the year at Indianapolis. He can also play center.

(Left tackle) Mark Tuinei is going to have surgery tomorrow for ligament damage and will probably be gone for the year," Landry said. "Kevin Gogan is our only healthy tackle."

Tackle Darryl Smith has fractured ribs and Dave Widell, the other tackle, was kicked in the leg and has a deep bruise.

Landry said rookie wide receiver Michael Irvin will return after missing two games with an ankle injury although Kelvin Martin will probably start against the Eagles.

In the wake of the flap that arose following Notre Dame's controversial 31-30 victory over Miami, might college football go the way of the NFL and adopt the instant replay?

"I hope not," says Dave Nelson, secretary-editor of the NCAA Football Rules Committee.

Not only is Nelson, former head coach and athletic director at the University of Delaware and now the dean of the school of physical education there, the nation's guru when it comes to football rules, he also was an aerial photographer during World War II.

Lohn on top in six-man poll

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Teams in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's weekly high school six-man football poll enjoyed a perfect week, with most of the honor squads winning comfortably.

The only school to have much of a problem was Milford, which made the top 10 last week. The Bulldogs ran their record to 6-0 with a 32-30 win against Buckholts.

Lohn and Christoval hammered their opponents to retain the top two spots in balloting by a panel of West Texas sports writers. Lohn, the defending state champ, drilled Paint Rock 62-12 and Christoval crushed Brookesmith 48-0.

Of all the teams in the top 10, Cherokee had the easiest time Friday, as the Indians won by forfeit against Pottsville. The decision prompted pollsters to drop Cherokee from No. 8 to No. 9.

Harrold, a 44-12 winner against Vernon Northside in a game postponed until Saturday because the officials failed to show up Friday night, moved from ninth to eighth.

Here are the top 10 teams, with season's ranking and points received:

1. Lohn 6-0 601; 2. Christoval 6-0 542; 3. Zephyr 6-0 443; 4. Trent 7-0 424; 5. Lazbuddie 7-0 405; 6. Fort Hancock 7-0 306; 7. New Home 6-0 217; 8. Harrold 7-0 159; 9. Cherokee 6-1 118; 10. Milford 6-0 61.

Traders yawn at anniversary of crash

NEW YORK (AP) — The world faced the first anniversary of the worst stock panic in history today with cynicism, sullenness and the long-awaited government approval of automatic trading halts designed to foil another crash.

"It's business as usual," said Arthur D. Cashin, a PaineWebber Group Inc. broker and governor on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, where prices eked to a post-crash high Tuesday despite less-than-bullish attitudes.

Trading remained so slow that dozens of brokers in the nation's biggest stock market stood around with little to do. "If there's no fire, all you see is guys polishing the engines," Cashin said. "There's a lot of people not participating, a lot of people on the sidelines. I would say the mood is sober, bordering on the sullen."

The atmosphere in the heart of this world financial center contrasts sharply with the heart-stopping, stupefying frenzy of a year ago, when prices tumbled out of control and shattered a five-year bull market that only a month earlier had shown little sign of fading.

The Dow Jones industrial average finished Oct. 19, 1987, with a record 508-point loss from 2,246.73 to 1,738.74, a 22.6 percent decline. By comparison, the percentage decline on Oct. 28, 1929, was 12.8 percent. More than 600 million shares changed hands last year, nearly double the previous record.

It was a jolt that shook the financial world and threatened to bleed into the nation's banking system. Some analysts even said it augured an economic depression, and many raised fears of recession or, at least, uncertain times ahead.

Since then, forecasts of recession have receded, while the Dow average and other key indices have recovered somewhat. Late Tuesday, a buying burst lifted the Dow average 19.38 points to 2,159.85, its highest post-crash close.

But many Wall Street professionals say the stock market remains uninspired, even though some of the best-known firms have exhorted investors to buy. They blame continuing uncertainty about the direction of interest rates and the nation's general economic health.

"I think people on Wall Street are more concerned about the economy," said Earl Ellis, a market maker on the New York exchange floor. "If you could assure people that the economy would be good, this market would take off."

The exchange, alarmed about post-crash investor apathy and underlying fear of another crash, joined with other U.S. financial markets in July in proposing "circuit breakers" — coordinated trading halts and price limits to avoid another panic. Late Tuesday, on the eve of the crash anniversary, the Securities and Exchange Commission approved these proposals, as expected.

The measures, approved on a one-year experimental basis, provide for a one-hour trading halt across markets when the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks plunges by 250 points or more from the previous day's closing. It calls for a two-hour halt when the Dow falls by 400 points.

Coordination among markets was a key recommendation by a White House panel appointed to study the crash. But it took months for the New York exchange and other markets to finally agree on how to do it.

"There's a time to be stubborn and there's a time to be accommodative and get some stuff done," Exchange Chairman John Phelan told reporters at a briefing earlier this month, when he talked about the circuit-breaker proposals. "I think this last year has been a time to be accommodating."

Eskimos try to help whales trapped in ice

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Eskimo whalers wielding chain saws donated by an oil company cut new breathing holes for three beleaguered whales trapped two weeks in thick ice near the top of the world.

The Eskimos on Tuesday cut three holes 75 yards apart in a line leading away from the larger of two small breathing pools the California gray whales have used since being stranded in the Beaufort Sea while migrating south.

The rescuers, who received a telephone pep talk Tuesday from President Reagan, hope the new holes will influence the endangered mammals to move in the direction they must travel if they are ever to escape their icy corral.

"It'll be interesting to see if it works," North Slope Borough biologist Craig George said as he dodged the slushy spray from chain saws chewing through foot-deep ice 18 miles northeast of this Inupiat Eskimo community.

Standard Oil of Alaska donated three chain saws, and planned to send a digging machine by helicopter to speed the work.

Meanwhile, a long-shot attempt to free the whales with an icebreaking barge was delayed until today.

Two Alaska Army National Guard Skycrane helicopters have been rigged to tow the 185-ton hovercraft barge from Prudhoe Bay, an oil field about 200 miles southeast, in a tricky trip across Arctic Ocean ice.

The trip, which is expected to take 25 to 40 hours, was to have started Monday, but was delayed when the barge got stuck in the ice and was slowed again by refueling. The barge was moved a short distance from its dock Tuesday night, but one of the helicopters encountered some resistance.

Crews planned to work through the night to lighten the barge by 70 tons, National Guard spokesman Mike Haller.

Haller said that if the barge could not be moved by noon today (5 p.m. EDT), officials would consider alternatives.

Officials hoped to use the barge to carve a 40-foot path to open water and freedom for the whales. The barge pulverizes ice with its bulk and the fans that provide lift.

Leads in the ice that were as close as five miles last weekend have been plugged by shifting winds, record low temperatures and drifting ice. By Tuesday night the nearest open water was believed to be 100 miles away, officials said.

Money exchange house accused of laundering millions

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Up to $6 million of a convicted smuggler's drug money was laundered through one of the Rio Grande Valley's many exchange houses, federal prosecutors alleged in a case being tried here.

Antonio Franco is accused in a 25-count indictment charging that he and Oscar Alvarez-Ortiz, owner of Oscar's Money Exchange in McAllen, smuggled drugs through the Rio Grande Valley from Mexico.

Prosecutors alleged the two laundered millions of dollars in drug profits through the money exchange house, known along the border as a "casa de cambio," where dollars are converted to pesos and vice versa.

According to the indictment, Franco and Alvarez also are charged with conspiracy and possession with the intent to distribute cocaine and marijuana, failure to file currency transactions and money laundering.

The indictment accuses them of operating a continuing criminal enterprise and a racketeer-influenced corrupt organization during 1987 through those alleged activities.

Franco is serving a 35-year prison sentence on a drug conviction in Illinois.

Texas Department of Public Safety narcotics investigator Joe Garza testified Tuesday that he and other officers discovered ledgers during a June 24, 1987, search of the exchange house indicating Franco made a single deposit of $1,299,100 that month.

The ledgers also showed other deposits made during the preceding four months of up to $979,660 each, totaling from $5 million and $6 million between February 1987 and June 1987.

Garza testified an employee at the exchange house told him Alvarez kept two sets of books on Franco's account, attributing deposits, withdrawals and balances to Franco in one set and labeling the other under Pemex, the Mexican government's oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos.

One of Franco's pilots was caught by federal agents earlier in the month. He agreed to become an informant in their probe of the marijuana and cocaine-smuggling operation at the tiny Filigonia Airport near Raymondville and also testified. Federal prosecutors requested the pilot's name not be published out of concern for his safety.

The pilot, whose testimony lasted most of Monday, said he flew thousands of pounds of marijuana for Franco from Mexico to the airport.

From there, he often flew loads of drugs north to an area called Checkpoint Ranch, bypassing U.S. Border Patrol inspection stations, he testified.

In exchange for undercover work, the pilot said agents afforded him immunity from prosecution, returned to the pilot the $17,000 they seized from his home and allowed him to keep the money he earned from flying loads of drugs for Franco.

The pilot's testimony angered Franco's attorney, J.A. "Tony" Canales, who noted the informant was virtually rewarded for his activities as a drug smuggler.

Also named in the indictment is suspected drug smuggler Ricardo Garza, who remains a fugitive.

Jessica's movie said still in the planning stage

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A television movie about the rescue of Jessica McClure from an abandoned well is little more than a gleam in the producer's eye, but he knows what angle the story will take.

"The story is about a town that found its soul, found its heart," said John Kander, executive producer for the movie. "Midland had lost its can-do spirit (with the fall of oil prices) and found its heart again through volunteers."

The movie, which is still in the planning stages and has not been scripted, will focus on the volunteers and city employees who rescued the 18-month-old girl Oct. 16, 1987.

"We're still at the point of organizing — how many characters we can put in it and still be very clear and true to the facts," Kander said Monday.

Jessica fell 22 feet down an 8-inch well Oct. 14. Hundreds of volunteers worked non-stop and rescued the little girl 58 hours after she fell in.

Three Americans win Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Three Americans won the Nobel Prize in physics today for discovering a way to use beams of ghostlike subatomic particles called neutrinos to peer ever deeper into the fundamental structure of matter.

Three West Germans won the Nobel Prize in chemistry for determining the structure of proteins that plants and some bacteria need to convert sunlight to energy through photosynthesis.

The Royal Academy of Sciences awarded the physics prize to Leon Lederman, Melvin Schwartz and Jack Steinberger for their work with neutrino beams.

The announcement said their work was carried out in the 1960s and "opened entirely new opportunities for research into the innermost structure and dynamics of matter."

The academy also cited their discovery of the muon neutrino.

Neutrinos are extremely tiny particles — even on the subatomic scale — with no electrical charge. They interact very weakly with other forms of matter and could easily pass through a layer of lead trillions of miles thick without being diverted from their course, according to the Nobel citation.

"The contribution now awarded consisted among other things of transforming the ghostly neutrino into an active tool of research," the announcement said.

Lederman, who got the call from Stockholm around 6 a.m. EDT, said: "This is an experiment that was completed and published in 1961. Those poor guys in Stockholm have been puzzling over it ever since and finally decided it was good stuff."

"Some day, some kid who is now in high school will find out how to use this information to bring benefits to all of society."

Lederman, 66, said he hasn't decided whether to use his share of the $390,000 prize "to buy a castle in Spain or a string of race horses."

Lederman is director at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia, Ill. Schwartz, 55, is a former professor at Stanford University and now president of Digital Pathways, Inc., in Mountain View, Calif.

Steinberger, 67, was born in Bad Kissingen, West Germany, and is an American citizen. However, the academy officially lists his nationality as Swiss. He has been a physicist at CERN, in Geneva, since 1968.

The academy cited the laureates' research at Columbia University in the early 1960s, when they tried to find a way to study the effect of weak forces at high energies.

Chemistry prizewinners Johann Deisenhofer, Robert Huber and Hartmut Michel of West Germany were cited "for the determination of the three-dimensional structure of a photosynthetic reaction center."

In 1982, Michel was able to obtain the proteins in a crystalline form that allowed their structure to be determined.

Ballot contains 3 amendments

Lawmakers placed Proposition 1 on the ballot after questions arose during the 1987 legislative session on whether the federal reimbursement to the state highway fund could be used for purposes other than highways.

The federal government reimburses the state for 90 percent of the money it spends on interstate highway projects and 75 percent of its expenses for certain other highway projects. In fiscal year 1987, this reimbursement totaled $837 million; nearly one-third of the $2.5 billion highway fund.

Supporters of this amendment say it would halt the temptation to use these funds for short-term budgetary gain at the expense of the highway program, which they say is integral to Texas' long-term economic rebound. And they say it is only fair that federal highway reimbursements be used for highway projects.

Although there is no organized opposition to this amendment, legislators often complain that too much of the state budget already is locked into dedicated funds, leaving fewer alternatives for adjusting the budget during economic emergencies.

More than half the budget is dedicated to specific programs, under the constitution and state law. Add in funds that must be spent due to court decisions and funds driven by federal formulas, and lawmakers can set spending priorities on about 15 percent of the state's total budget.

Proposition 2 deals with transferring surplus revenues into a special fund that could be appropriated by the Legislature.

If passed, one half of any surplus in the state general revenue fund and three-fourths of any oil and natural gas production tax revenue that exceeds that tax revenue collected in fiscal year 1987 would be put in the fund.

The fund could not exceed 10 percent of the general revenue raised by the state during the prior fiscal biennium. Under various conditions, the Legislature could appropriate money from the fund with a two-thirds or three-fifths vote.

Supporters say the fund could be used during economic hard times, such as what the state faced in 1986 with the sudden collapse in oil prices. The fund also would improve the state's credit rating on Wall Street.

Again, no formal opposition has coalesced, but some legislators argued during the session that the state should not set aside money when there are vital state programs ranked near the bottom in funding among all states.

Proposition 3 has two purposes — to set up a growth fund and allow trustees of the Permanent University Fund, the Permanent School Fund and the public employee retirement funds to invest in it, and also allow more flexibility in other investments. Currently, the four funds control $28.5 billion.

The trustees of the Permanent University Fund support the measure.

Trustees of the Permanent School Fund, Teacher Retirement System and Employee Retirement System have remained neutral because the investment changes, if approved at the polls, would be optional.

Currently the school funds can only invest in bonds, securities and stocks that have paid dividends over the past five years. Passage of this amendment would abolish these restrictions, in addition to some others. Instead, investments could be made solely on the "prudent-person" standard, which requires the trustees to exercise judgement and care in investments.

The amendment would also allow the school funds and public-employee retirement funds to invest into the so-called Texas Growth fund, which would provide an alternate source of funding for business. Not more than 1 percent of the value of the assets of any of the school or retirement funds may be placed in the Texas Growth fund.

Supporters say the amendment will allow the funds to increase income on investments without exposing them to undue risk, and be able to target some income toward growth in Texas.

But others point out that the current investment restrictions keep possible losses to a minimum while allowing a safe, acceptable rate of return.

Amendment 1 profiled below

because of their size, cost and time for completion, require long-range planning."

Opponents contend that major state taxes and fees are already constitutionally set aside for highway purposes. "Federal reimbursements have traditionally been made available for these purposes as well," a spokesman said, "and there is no reason to believe that the legislature will ignore or abandon the state's history of commitment to its highway program."

The SENATE RACES: Which seats are contested in 1988?

NEA GRAPHICS

THIS YEAR, 33 Senate seats — 18 now held by Democrats and 15 by Republicans — are up for grabs. The Democrats, though, are expected to retain control of the Senate.

Election '88

Democrats should keep Senate control

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Republicans say that with a little luck they can regain the control of the U.S. Senate they lost in 1986. But given the present 54-46 Democratic majority, the GOP's attempt would appear something of a mission impossible.

This year, 33 Senate seats are up for grabs, 18 held by Democrats and 15 by Republicans. To retake control the Republicans must make a net gain of five seats. Only the most optimistic GOP strategists see this happening.

Fifteen Democratic senators are running for re-election. Twelve are considered almost sure bets to win another six-year term. They are: Daniel Patrick Moynihan (New York), George Mitchell (Maine), Donald Riegle (Michigan), Lloyd Bensten (Texas), Dennis DeConcini (Arizona), Jim Sasser (Tennessee), Robert Byrd (West Virginia), Edward Kennedy (Massachusetts), Spark Matsunaga (Hawaii), Paul Sarbanes (Maryland), Jeff Bingaman (New Mexico) and John Melcher (Montana).

Bingaman and Melcher are not considered absolute shoo-ins, but both are facing inexperienced and underfinanced opponents. Some GOP strategists believe an upset in either race is possible if George Bush wins in a landslide and has very long coattails.

The three remaining Democratic incumbents running for re-election, Quentin Burdick (North Dakota), Howard Metzenbaum (Ohio) and Frank Lautenberg (New Jersey) are currently leading in their races but are vulnerable.

Burdick is hugely popular in his state. But he is 80 years old and has had health problems. His opponent, Earl Striden, is the long-time GOP majority leader of the state legislature. Burdick could lose if the voters are concerned enough about his health.

Metzenbaum is facing Cleveland Mayor George Voinovich in one of the nation's nastiest contests. Metzenbaum has held a solid lead in the polls from the start, and Voinovich has not been able to close much ground mainly because he is not doing as well as hoped in such GOP strongholds as Cincinnati.

Lautenberg's opponent is former football hero, Army general and businessman Pete Dawkins, who is running for elective office for the first time. He is an attractive candidate, but his campaign has lagged badly.

GOP breakthroughs are possible in any or all of the currently Democratic seats coming open because of retirements.

Their best chance is in Florida where the Democrats' strongest potential candidate, Gov. Reubin Askew, chose not to run, and the party was badly split by a bruising primary. The race pits Democratic Rep. Buddy McKay against Republican Rep. Connie Mack III.

In Wisconsin, which features one of this year's tightest races, the Democratic nominee, businessman Herbert Kohl, spent millions of his own money to win the primary. He is slightly ahead of moderate Republican Susan Engeleiter, also a narrow primary winner.

In Mississippi two popular sitting congressmen — Democrat Wayne Dowdy and Republican Trent Lott are locked in a tight showdown to succeed retiring Sen. John Stennis.

Of the 12 Republican senators running for re-election six appear to be in no trouble: They are John Heinz (Pennsylvania), John Danforth (Missouri), Richard Lugar (Indiana), Malcolm Wallop (Wyoming), Orrin Hatch (Utah) and William Roth (Delaware).

But three other GOP incumbents are in big trouble. In Nevada Sen. Chic Hecht is far behind his challenger Democratic Gov. Richard Bryan. In Nebraska, former Democratic Gov. Bob Kerrey, one of the state's most popular politicians, is well ahead of incumbent GOP Sen. David Karnes, who was appointed to his seat to fill a vacancy. In Minnesota, Republican incumbent David Durenberger is neck-and-neck with state Attorney General Hubert H. "Skip" Humphrey III. The question is whether the Humphrey name still holds magic for Minnesota voters.

Three other Republican incumbents running for another term are ahead, but considered vulnerable.

The most intriguing contest is in Connecticut where maverick GOP moderate Sen. Lowell Weicker finds that many conservatives are openly supporting his Democratic opponent, state Attorney General Joseph Lieberman. In California, incumbent Pete Wilson should defeat Democratic Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy, and Rhode Island's John Chafee should defeat his state's lieutenant governor, Richard Licht. But both of those races could be very close.

Among the three open Republican Senate seats, the GOP should easily hold one and will definitely lose one. In Virginia, former Democratic Gov. Chuck Robb will win easily; in Vermont, Rep. James Jeffords should hold the seat for the GOP. The third contest, in Washington state, is a toss-up. Former GOP Senator Slade Gorton, who was defeated in 1986, is attempting to return to Capitol Hill. He is in a tight contest with Rep. Mike Lowry.

Given all this, the betting among insiders is that the make-up of the next Senate will pretty much mirror the current one.

Medical group seeks drug testing okay

DALLAS (AP) — State health officials should permit testing of experimental drugs for fatal illnesses before they get federal approval, said the Texas Council on Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders.

Allowing testing before approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration would speed the availability and reduce the cost of developing experimental medications for desperately ill Texans, Dr. J. Thomas Hutton, council chairman, said Tuesday.

The council was created by the Legislature last year to advise the governor, lawmakers and state agencies. Its 17 members make the recommendation in its biennial report, to be submitted Wednesday to legislators.

FDA officials regulate testing and sale of drugs across state boundaries.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband is having a mini "fatal attraction" problem and could use your advice. He works at a large government complex in our hometown. This married woman who works in the same complex will not leave him alone. She's had affairs with other men she works with, and now she's after my husband. I have a rock-hard Christian marriage, and my faith in my husband has never wavered, but my patience with this lady is wearing thin.

She calls his office at least six times a day. He has left instructions with his secretary not to put her calls through, so now she's started to call the house. I have taken to answering the phone at home, and she brazenly asks to talk to him. He always asks me to tell her he's not home. I try to be polite, but I can take only so much. My husband swears he has never given her any encouragement and I believe him.

How does one deal with such a persistent pest? Having our home telephone number changed and unlisted would be a great inconvenience, but we may have to if there's no other way to be free of her.

FATAL ATTRACTION
IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR FATAL ATTRACTION: From what you say, the woman is more than just a "pest" — she's a nuisance. Furthermore, she is harassing your husband. He should tell her that if she calls him again, either at home or work, he will charge her with harassment. One letter of warning (from a lawyer's office) might be all that's necessary.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I got married, he said he didn't want children "right away." I agreed. That was eight years ago, and now he says he doesn't want any children at all! He's even using a birth control method, and I am heartbroken to say the least.

I was an elementary school teacher for 10 years, and I love children. I'm approaching my 36th birthday, and not only is my biological clock ticking away, but I would like to be young enough to enjoy my grandchildren.

Whenever I try to discuss it to find out why he's so against having children, he simply says, "I just don't want any kids!" He keeps repeating that sentence, but never gives me a reason. He's only 42 and in excellent health, so I can't understand why he's so opposed to having children.

Don't suggest counseling. I've already asked him, and he says he doesn't need anyone to "counsel" him as he has no problem with his decision. Any suggestions?

WANTS MOTHERHOOD

DEAR WANTS: I think you're fighting a losing battle. It was unfair of your husband to change the rules in the middle of the game, but if it's any consolation to you, a man who must be talked into fatherhood would probably make a very poor father.

***

DEAR ABBY: We are having a difference of opinion at our office regarding particular wedding anniversary celebrations where the newspaper announcement states, "No gifts, please."

Some of us feel obligated to give a card with money enclosed, and others say that the honorees don't want your presents, just your presence.

Also, maybe it could be interpreted that they want no gifts, but money would be fine.

Your comments, please.

PARTIME PATTI

DEAR PATTI: "No gifts, please" means "Please do not give me any kind of gift — including money."

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been housed in extended lockdown for three months. Yesterday I discovered warts around my penis. I've engaged in prison sexual activities in the past. Do these warts just appear on their own or are they due to sex from three months ago?

DEAR READER: Venereal warts are caused by viral infection that is spread from one person to another. In all likelihood, you got the warts from one of the sexual partners you had three months ago. Ask the prison doctor for treatment and tests to make sure that you did not contract other sexually transmitted diseases.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my health report, "Where to Find Sex Information." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son had severe bleeding of both lungs, which the doctors could not contain despite draining, antibiotics and steroids. He died. The doctors suspected that the toxic materials at work were responsible but the autopsy was inconclusive. Naturally, neither my son's employer nor the manufacturer are helpful. What's our next step, or should we just accept his death and let the matter drop?

DEAR READER: If the authorities suspected that your son died from exposure to chemicals or substances in the workplace, they should have performed a toxicological analysis at the time of the autopsy. Ask your own doctor to act as a patient advocate and obtain the autopsy report.

This document will tell him what was analyzed — and what was not. If your son was not checked for toxic compounds, someone made a serious error and the case should be reopened and resolved. If he was thoroughly checked, you should try to accept his death. In either case, you have a right to know the cause of death.

Fatal pulmonary bleeding is an unusual situation; I think that you deserve some answers. An "inconclusive" autopsy is not good enough. Your doctor can help you get to the bottom of this tragic matter.

DEAR DR. GOTT: This aspirin business — which side are you on? The "one-a-day" side or the "it doesn't do good" side?

DEAR READER: As I've written before, I'm waiting for more information before I decide. The final word is not yet in. I recommend to my patients who have angina — or who have had heart attacks — that they take an aspirin a day to help avoid further coronary problems. I do not advise healthy men or women to take aspirin regularly — nor do I take it myself — because the benefits for these people do not outweigh the risks.

I hope that the experts come up with a consensus pretty soon in order to clear up the confusion that you and other readers are experiencing. I'll keep you posted in this column.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could you provide a listing of health lectures from teaching hospitals or medical schools that would be helpful to the lay reader?

DEAR READER: Many teaching hospitals publish health reports. These newsletters provide a splendid public service. In addition, they are great money-makers for hospitals that find themselves caught in a profit-squeeze. In my opinion, the best health report is the one published by the Harvard University Medical School.

Champ's wife a hit in ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Robin Givens' tearful discussion with Barbara Walters about her rocky marriage to boxing champ Mike Tyson got ABC's "20-20" its highest rating since Walters interviewed Donna Rice last year.

"20-20" ranked 10th in the weekly A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings with a 17.2 rating. The installment on which Rice appeared last summer rated an 18.2.

Otherwise, it was a battle of baseball in last week's top 10. NBC had the first two games of the World Series between the Oakland A's and the Los Angeles Dodgers. ABC had the last two games of the National League championship playoff between the Dodgers and the New York Mets.

Teacher pleased with verdict

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Waco teacher says she is relieved a jury ruled in her favor in her battle with the public school system after she refused last year to pass a star football player who was failing her sociology class.

"I think I'm most pleased with the verdict," Sue Collins said Tuesday. "I knew that we were telling the truth. It was just a feeling of relief more than anything."

On Friday, a federal jury awarded Ms. Collins $77,000 in damages after it found violations of her First Amendment rights and of the state "whistle-blowers" act.

The University Interscholastic League ruled midway through the 1987 football playoffs that Waco High School star defensive end Trel Payne was ineligible to play because he had failed Ms. Collins' class.

The football team, undefeated at the time, forfeited six games, including a final playoff contest that ended its season as the team prepared for its next playoff battle.

House Bill 72 states that any student who fails a class will be declared ineligible from extracurricular activities for the next six-week grading period.

The 34-year-old Ms. Collins said Payne also had failed her course during the first six-week grading period, but that principal Wilbur Luce and football coach Johnny Tusa pressured her to pass Payne.

The teacher said the school officials suggested she use a method called "point-borrowing". She could raise his score 15 points for the grading period, then subtract it from the next one when the student's performance had improved.
