County, drug company sued...

DPT shot prompts lawsuit

A Hermleigh couple has filed a lawsuit against the Snyder-Scurry Health Unit and a Harrisburg, Pa. chemical manufacturer in connection with what they claim was brain damage suffered by their 4-year-old daughter from a 1984 DPT shot. In the suit filed last week in 132nd District Court, Joe Don and Tracey Williamson claim that they were not sufficiently warned about the possible side-effects and hazards of the Nov. 20, 1984, injection. The health unit is being sued for $5 million and the company, Wyeth Laboratories and Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, a division of American Home Products Corp., for $20 million in the suit filed by Fort Worth attorney Thomas S. Brandon. Brandon noted that the Texas Tort Claim Act limits such awards to $100,000 from county governments and $250,000 from municipalities, however, and he said he did not know which category the health unit would be in. County Attorney Michael Line said, however, that he considers it a suit against the county. The suit claims that the 2-month-old infant went into seizures and convulsions within two hours after the injection, which is given to protect against Diphtheria, Pertussis and Tetanus. Ask Us

Q — How was it determined which party candidate would be listed first on this year's ballot?
A — The election code in Texas states that the race for governor determines this. The winning party in the most recent race for governor has its candidates listed first in subsequent elections. On Tuesday's ballot, all Republicans are listed first based on Gov. Bill Clements' win two years ago.

In Brief

Chopper crash

CAMERON, La. (AP) — Four men were missing and presumed dead after a helicopter carrying six people plunged into the Gulf of Mexico during takeoff from an oil platform about 120 miles south of Cameron.

Local

Court agenda

Scurry County commissioners Monday will consider new rules and regulations for the operation of the recently renovated Winston Field county airport. Other business in the 10 a.m. meeting will include consideration of a bond for County Attorney Michael Line and a report from Line on pending litigation in which the county is involved.

City to meet

The Snyder city council will conduct its regular November meeting Monday at 6:30 p.m. and a session to discuss the agenda will be held at noon Monday. The noon meeting will be at Willow Park Inn.

Popcorn sales

Snyder Boy Scouts are now selling popcorn at $5 per bucket. These will be delivered between Nov. 29 and Dec. 13. To place an order, any Scout may be contacted.

NE project

Northeast Elementary is sponsoring a basket of food giveaway. A donation of $1 is worth four chances at winning the prize. Students or parents at Northeast may be contacted to enter. Chances are available also at the school office. The drawing to determine the winner will be Nov. 23.

Library closed

The Scurry County Library will be closed all day Tuesday for library business as the facility is used as a polling location for voting Pet. 17.

Cemetery fund

The Camp Springs Cemetery Association has established a fund at Snyder National Bank to help raise funds to clean the cemetery. Donations may be made to the Camp Springs Cemetery Fund.

OUT OF THE PAST — Members of the Scurry County Historical Commission recently unfurled a long rolled up curtain at the old Dermott School building and found it laden with advertisements of businesses from Scurry County's past. The school building is now under renovation at the coliseum grounds and a garage and bake sale to help with this project is slated Saturday, Nov. 26, at Towle

Absentee record shattered

A record 1,820 absentee votes were cast in Scurry County as the ballot closed Friday, shattering the previous record absentee count of 800. The number is expected to go higher as mailed out absentee ballots are returned. These may be received at the county clerk's office through election day Tuesday. On Tuesday, Scurry County residents will go to the polls at 15 sites (see related story). In addition to casting ballots for the man who will be our next president, voters will decide the high profile and highly contested race for district judge here. Incumbent District Judge Gene Dulaney is opposed for his second four-year term by Pete Greene, former district attorney for the 132nd District. In addition, this area's state representative for the next four years will be chosen as ex-Snyder mayor Rod Waller, a Republican, is challenged by Democrat David Counts of Knox City. Both Waller and Counts are the only candidates in a second vote related to the state represent See ABSENTEE, page 15A

Counts calls self moderate

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor
David Counts, the Democratic nominee for the 78th District's state representative seat, views himself as a "typical West Texas moderate." And as a Democrat, the 52-year-old Counts says his philosophy is that of a man who "takes care of the needs of those less fortunate while trying to hold down the costs of government." In contrast, he characterized Republicans as a party which "looks after the big rich, but doesn't like to provide money for services." "The Democrats are still a par-

Waller aims to be first 78th GOP rep

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer
Republican state representative candidate Rod Waller of Snyder said last week that he has met with President Reagan and Vice President Bush in recent months and that both men are interested in his and other "down-ballot" races in Texas. Waller said, however, that he is not counting on a "coat-tail" effect from Bush's candidacy to help significantly in his race, hoping that his weeks of campaigning as the more conservative candidate will carry the day. Waller, a 57-year-old businessman who was mayor here from 1982 to 1987, said he met with Bush in Houston in July and attended a White House cabinet briefing with other Texas GOP candidates in August and met with Reagan. Waller said Bush "is interested in all the state races," commenting that the presidential nominee "is very personable and seems to be a very devoted family man." In his race against Knox City Democrat David Counts, Waller said being a Republican may be more of a disadvantage than an advantage, even with Bush's popularity in Texas, because the 12-county 78th District has substantially more Democrats than Republicans registered to vote, being one of the more traditionally Democratic representative's districts in the state. Waller would be the first Republican to serve the district, which encompasses 11 counties and most of Taylor County, except for Abilene. The candidate said that See WALLER, page 3A

Ballots will open at 15 county sites for Tuesday vote

On Tuesday, Scurry County voters will go to the polls from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. at 15 locations based upon which voting precincts they reside in. Voting precincts are numbered here beginning with the number five, to avoid confusion with county commissioner's precincts numbered one through four. The following lists the ballot box location for each of the 15 voting precincts and the election judge for that box. Individuals are reminded that the voting precinct in which they reside is printed on their voter registration card. Voting precinct ballot locations include

- Voting Pct. 5 (Fluvanna): at the Fluvanna Community Center. Election judge is Louetta Turner and assistant election judge is Mrs. Clyde Smith.
- Voting Pct. 6 (Union): at the Union Community Center. Election judge is Mary Lankford and assistant election judge is Paula Lewis.
- Voting Pct. 7 (Knapp): at the Knapp Community Center. Election judge is Mickey Sterling and assistant election judge is Pam West.
- Voting Pct. 8: at the school administration building. Election judge is Stanley Noah and assistant election judge is Stanley Noah and assistant election judge is Stanley Noah. See POLLS, page 15A

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Everybody makes mistakes. That's why we keep on having elections." At a recent public forum on the workman's compensation crisis, State Rep. Rick Perry of Haskell pointed the accusing finger directly at a plaintiff's lawyer-financed and anti-business state supreme court. Perry suggested, and we agree, that the solution to the workman's compensation crisis and to the tort problem in this state starts and ends with selecting a pro-business court—or at least an impartial one. Chief Justice John Hill resigned last year to promote the "merit election" of high court judges, but voters failed to understand the plan and it was defeated. But for years voters have failed to know the candidates and understand the issues when voting for court justices. The state is facing an economic crisis unless the right choices are made on Nov. 8. Texans have the opportunity to elect a majority six on the nine-member court. Our recommendations are based not on political party but either on past decisions rendered or on the source of campaign contributions. Those who have received large contributions from plaintiff attorneys are removed from our list of acceptable candidates. For Chief Justice we recommend Tom Phillips against Ted Robertson as Robertson has received more than $768,366 from lawyers. Paul Murphy is running against Lloyd Doggett and Doggett has received $222,895 from legal interests. Nathan Hecht faces incumbent William Kilgartin with the latter receiving over $1 million from attorneys. Therefore, Murphy and Hecht are clear choices. Raul Gonzales faces Charles Howell and Gonzales is the pro-business choice as is Eugene Cooke who faces Carl Bayer. It may be a toss-up in the Jack Hightower and Barbara Culver race but two recent decisions by Culver give Hightower the edge in business circles. In case you're wanting something to clip and take to the voting booth, here are the names to remember in the Supreme Court races. Phillips, Murphy, Hecht, Gonzales, Hightower and Cooke

Indian naval vessels halt rebel boat

MALE, Maldives (AP) — Two Indian warships halted a boat carrying foreign mercenaries and about 18 hostages Saturday as the gunmen tried to flee after attempting to overthrow the government of this remote island chain, an Indian general said.

The general, who is at the senior level of the operation that rescued besieged Maldivian President Maumoon Abdul Gayoom, said Indian troops had not boarded the boat, which had headed toward Sri Lanka after sailing Friday from the capital Male.

He spoke on condition of anonymity during a flight from the south Indian airport at Trivandrum to the Maldives, 500 miles southeast of India.

A Maldivian Foreign Ministry official said at least 20 people were killed in the attempted coup, which was foiled when Indian paratroopers came ashore in Male.

The official, Ahmed Jumeel, said 13 civilians and seven Maldivian security men were killed. He said no bodies of mercenaries had been found.

Jumeel said the mercenaries were thought to be Tamil militants from Sri Lanka, a belief voiced earlier by several foreign diplomats in Sri Lanka.

"They were trained men, and they carried sophisticated arms," Jumeel said.

Earlier Saturday, the Maldivian high commissioner in Sri Lanka quoted President Gayoom as saying seven Maldivian security men and three civilians were killed in the attempted coup, which was launched before dawn Thursday with an attack on the presidential palace.

High Commissioner Ahmed Abdullah Aziz, whose rank is comparable to ambassador, said 40 people were injured, including 22 Maldivian security troops. He said the rest were civilians.

A national day of mourning was declared Saturday for the victims.

Aziz quoted Gayoom as saying six mercenaries were captured. "The rest either fled or are in hiding," Aziz said.

But a captain in the Indian army commando force said only four known mercenaries had been captured. Two of what the government called "dark-skinned invaders" were shown in custody on television news footage Saturday from Male with chains around their ankles.

A National Security Service officer in Male said Saturday, "We located the boat Friday night, but we have not yet boarded it for fear of harming the hostages."

"We fear that the mercenaries may harm the hostages, so we want to be cautious," said the officer, who only identified himself as Maj. Zahir when reached by telephone from New Delhi.

"The boat can not go anywhere, Indian ships have kept it under strict surveillance," he said. He declined to give the location of the boat.

The Maldivian government announced a holiday in Maldives as Indian troops started a new house-to-house search operation in capital today for arms and foreign gunmen who may have failed to escape, a Male resident reached by telephone from Colombo said.

The residents were advised by state radio to stay indoors Saturday.

The mercenaries fled when Indian paratroopers landed in the Maldives to assist Gayoom and his lightly armed 1,200-man National Security Service.

Alamo Images exhibit to open

"Alamo Images," a photographic exhibit telling the story of the Alamo from mission to fortress to ruins to shrine, will open Nov. 6 in the Scurry County Museum.

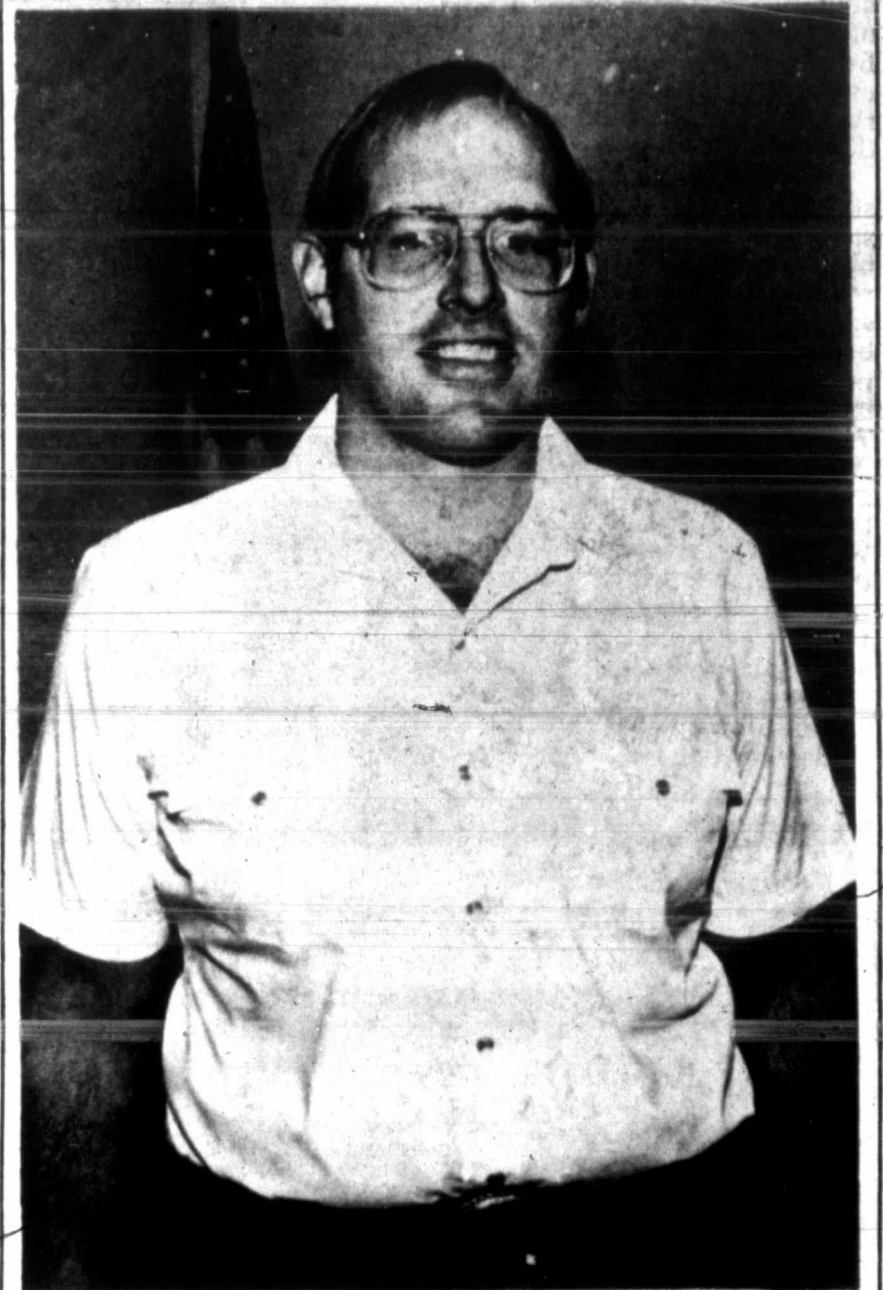

The 22 panels in "Alamo Images" uses over 140 photographs that explore what the Alamo means to Texans. Many of the panels focus on the Alamo of history, highlighting images of historic documents, letters, books, portraits and artifacts that explain the story of the battle and its heroes.

Also highlighted in the exhibit are panels that trace the evolution of the Alamo through photographs of paintings, movie stills, memorabilia, popular novels, television programs and popular culture artifacts. The exhibit was prepared by the DeGolyer Library of Southern Methodist University especially for Texas' Sesquicentennial. It was arranged for travel by the Texas Humanities Resource Center.

The "Alamo Images" exhibit is to remain in the museum through Dec. 7. Information about guided tours can be obtained by calling the museum at 573-6107.

Billionaire throws down challenge with first bid against firm

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ross Perot tossed a compact, but powerful bid on the table Friday to challenge Electronic Data Systems, the company he funded, for a Medicaid contract.

The Dallas billionaire and computer systems entrepreneur sent a representative to a North Austin Department of Human Services office with his bid to process more than $1 billion annually in Medicaid claims. The bid was submitted in two sealed manila envelopes.

By contrast, EDS employees had wheeled in 11 sealed cartons.

"It just doesn't take much to put a deal on the table that's great for Texas," said a representative from Perot's new company, Ross Reeves. "We didn't want to get into a publishing contest. We just wanted to put a business deal on the table that'll be hard to turn down."

Reeves said the Perot bid is serious and would comply with a Virginia circuit court ruling that barred Perot's new company from reaping profits when it competes against EDS.

EDS Vice President George C. Newstrom said he doesn't understand why Perot would seek a contract with which there was no chance of making a profit.

He also declined to speculate how Perot could have compressed a bid for the four-year state contract with a pair of two-year extensions in such a small package.

"We have 80,000 square feet, and almost 500 employees," said Newstrom, referring to an Austin EDS building where Medicare claims are now processed. If you can describe that in one envelope I'd be very surprised. Not having seen what was in the envelopes, I couldn't respond, but we submitted a bid that was extremely responsive."

Waller seeks 78th position

although he could work with members of both parties, he is a Republican because it is the more conservative party. "I'm running more as a conservative than as a Republican," he said.

Referring to Counts, an insurance man, Waller said, "He is saying he is a conservative businessman. I have a track record as mayor as a conservative. He has been endorsed by The Texas Observer, a liberal publication. I have been endorsed by the Young Conservatives of Texas."

Discussing specific issues that are expected to be dealt with in the next legislative session, Waller said he would like to see the workman's compensation law re-done. "It was established in 1913 and has not been substantially revised since then. A complete revision of the law would be in order, with caps (on settlements) and no lump sums."

He noted that he is opposed to the currently used "trial de novo" system, which has the effect of sending workman's comp cases directly to district courts where the rulings of the Texas Industrial Accident Board are inadmissible.

Waller said he favors giving the IAB more influence over how the cases are settled.

On what Gov. Bill Clements has been saying will be the No. 1 legislative issue next year, Austin Judge Harley Clark's 1987 ruling in Edgewood vs. Kirby that the state's method of apportioning public school funding is unconstitutional, Waller said the current system "is not equitable to the schoolchildren who happen to live in districts without large tax bases" and that "some adjustment must be made."

But he said any solution, even a constitutional amendment declaring inequality unacceptable, would be preferable to the consolidation of school districts and the resulting loss of local school districts, which he said he would fight "with all the tools at my disposal."

Waller said that of other pending issues, industrial development and the state's budget are perhaps the most important to him and that with more industrial development and proper handling of the school finance issue, the problem of declining budget revenues could be solved.

He said tort reform, or changing the way civil suits are adjudicated to reduce the number of suits and the amounts that are awarded, is also high on his list of priorities. "In my opinion, tort reform laws are the key to economic recovery in Texas," he said.

Waller said campaigning in the 78th District "is a lot like I anticipated it would be. It's a large district, and it's hard to get acquainted in all the different towns and areas."

"I'm running to make a contribution. I feel that I can represent the district in a conservative and beneficial manner, and I would like to have the opportunity to help reduce the tax burden and improve industrial development in West Texas."

Counts notes qualifications

points to his "varied background," which includes experience as a small business man—he owns Counts Insurance and Real Estate in Knox City as well as an oil field plastic pipe rental service—a farmer and rancher, and military service with the Texas Army National Guard for 32 years.

Counts commented also to the specific issues of state school financing and workman's compensation reform—items expected to be of high priority as the state legislature goes into session this spring.

The school financing plan is at issue since the ruling by District Judge Harley Clark of Austin, which ruled as unconstitutional Texas' current method of apportioning funds to its independent school districts.

Counts said he believes there has been much misrepresentation of this ruling and its final effects in Texas.

He noted he has reviewed five plans which have been submitted to remedy the ruling, and each ultimately benefit the public schools of the 78th district.

Regarding claims that the ruling might ultimately prompt mass consolidations of school districts, Counts said, "I'll never vote for consolidation of schools. The Texas Education Agency may mandate it, but I won't vote for it."

As to workman's compensation law reforms, Counts declined to commit himself to any specified changes.

He noted a report regarding this issue was completed two weeks ago by a joint select committee, and that he feels more time is required to study this report until he makes any final decisions regarding possible changes.

Among the other issues which he said need priority attention in Texas is the criminal justice system, using as an example his son, who is an assistant district attorney in Travis County.

Of felons convicted by the DA's office, Counts said, "The bad guy beats him home," a reference to the criminal appeals process and shortened prison sentences through parole.

"We have to address crime in our state," Counts said, "We're putting people back on the street with no punishment."

He added he believes crime is "linked to education," and that the long range solution is to keep youngsters in school.

Another major issue which is said he is especially interested in is tort reform in Texas.

"I'm a chamber of commerce type person," Counts said, "And I'm naive enough to believe (the state) has enough money to put its priorities where they're needed."

"I feel like I understand the problems of the 78th District and I have a commitment to help those who can't help themselves."

Cornell student created 'virus'

by The Associated Press

A Cornell University student whose father is a top government computer security expert created the "virus" that slowed 6,000 computers nationwide, said a report Saturday, and the school found that the young man possessed unauthorized computer codes.

Two sources with detailed knowledge of the case told The New York Times that Robert T. Morris Jr., 23, a computer science graduate student whom friends describe as "brilliant," devised the virus as an experiment.

M. Stuart Lynn, Cornell's vice president for information technologies, said early Saturday that the university had not talked to Morris but was investigating his computer files. The Ithaca, N.Y., school scheduled a news conference for Saturday.

"So far we have determined that his account contains files that appear to hold passwords for some computers at Cornell and Stanford to which he is not entitled," Lynn said in a statement. "We also have discovered that Morris' account contains a list of passwords substantially similar to those found in the virus."

Passwords are the codes needed to gain access to computer systems.

The student's father, Robert Morris Sr., is chief scientist at the National Computer Security Center in Bethesda, Md., the arm of the National Security Agency devoted to protecting computers from outside attack. He has written widely on the security of the Unix operating system, the computer master program that was the target of the computer virus.

Several telephone calls to the family's home in Silver Spring, Md., near Washington, went unanswered.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 132nd JUDICIAL DISTRICT

YES!! WE CAN AFFORD NOT TO VOTE FOR PETE GREENE FOR DISTRICT JUDGE!!!

I am so upset over the way Mr. Greene has been criticizing Judge Dulaney in this District Judge race. Why can't Mr. Greene tell us what he can do FOR this office (which is nothing) and not what Judge Dulaney can not do for this office. There has been a lot of untruths printed by Mr. Greene which makes me and others question his HONESTY. He has been harping on two particular cases and both cases involve the same local oil man in Snyder but he has failed to mention this same oil man paid Mr. Greene's $1200.00 filing fee for this office and also that this same oil man used his private plane to fly Mr. Greene to the State Democratic Party office in Austin on the last official filing day (Jan. 4, 1988) to file for his candidacy. Per Jim Boyett at the Democratic headquarters in Austin, he received this filing on Jan. 4, 1988. The Secretary of State office received it on Jan. 8, 1988. The last day to file is Jan. 4, 1988 and the party has ten days to get it to the Secretary of State office. So, I wonder if this was a last minute persuaded decision to run for a VERY IMPORTANT OFFICE??? It also makes me wonder if Mr. Greene is really serious about being our District Judge AND if for all the people or just a select few???? IS THIS BACK POCKET POLITICIAN WHAT WE WANT FOR OUR DISTRICT JUDGE??? Wonder who paid for the ice cream supper???? Also, we voters are not stupid, we don't need Mr. Greene translating his ads for us.

Mr. Greene's main issue in this race has been to criticize Judge Dulaney. He has said Judge Dulaney is too old to make a decision. Does this mean anyone over 60 years of age is incompetent?? He also said Judge Dulaney spent more tax money than our previous Judge. Does this mean Mr. Greene is not aware of our economic inflation or does Mr. Greene just have so much money he hasn't felt the pinch like the rest of us??? AND now I am hearing that Mr. Greene is going to try to discredit Mrs. Dulaney.

Well Wives—whatever Mr. Greene comes up with this time—let's say three cheers for Mrs. Dulaney for being a wife that loves her husband and is willing to fight for him.

As the political saying goes: IF YOU CAN'T GET SOMETHING ON YOUR OPPONENT, ATTACK HIS WIFE, AND IF THIS DOESN'T WORK, KICK HIS DOG!!!!

I'll rest my case now and ask each of you voters to make the right decision and vote for the ONLY HONEST, LAW KNOWLEDGED, AND FAIR CANDIDATE ON THE BALLOT.

Thatcher balances Polish message

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher pressed communist authorities to open negotiations with the opposition during her visit to Poland but also advised the opposition to act with restraint.

The Conservative Party prime minister, who returned home late Friday after a three-day visit, performed a balancing act in her meetings with government officials and leaders of the outlawed Solidarity union movement.

She declared she had no intention of meddling in the country's internal affairs but then encouraged social strivings for greater freedom and human rights while urging the government to stay tough in restructuring its economy.

After her visit ended, the official PAP news agency reported public opinion polls showed Mrs. Thatcher was viewed favorably by 52 percent of the Polish population, which it said made her more popular in Poland than in Britain.

A "poll of polls" issued Saturday by the British Broadcasting Corp. showed support in Britain for Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party at 47 percent, with Labor second at 35 percent, and smaller groups trailing far behind. The poll covered the period of Oct. 19-30.

Saying farewell Friday night to Poland's communist party leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, Mrs. Thatcher thanked him for allowing her to meet with different leaders.

During her visit she went to Gdansk, the birthplace of Solidarity, and met with Solidarity founder Lech Walesa as thousands of defiant people cheered her and hooted the government.

Firm fulfills dream to become singer

CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Williams once sang professionally. Tara Drzal has never sung in front of an audience before and Mike Sternberg has been singing for months with a voice described as fingernails scraped over a chalkboard.

Even so, the three were among the would-be Sinatras, Madonnas and Elvises living out fantasies of being a singing star at a recent Record-A-Hit show at Choice's.

Tuesday night patrons of the saloon can get up on stage, grab the microphone and sing along with tapes of hit songs recorded without the lead vocal.

"It makes you feel like a rock star once you loosen up," said Jennifer Nicoll, a college student.

Larry Corcoran, a bartender at another tavern, said: "You can be anybody you want to be up there. It's a fantasy."

The singers get a free tape of their performance, said Rob Broma, a former sales manager who saw a similar audience participation show in San Francisco 2 1/2 years ago and founded Record-A-Hit in Chicago.

Record-A-Hit sets up shop at five different Chicago-area nightclubs each week. The company also does private functions, special video tapings and even goes on band tours.

The concept is big business in Japan, where it is known as "karaoke," or "empty orchestra."

"Everything is free for the customer except the beer," said Rick Asta, Choice's owner. "This really helps my place's Tuesday blahs, with bigger crowds."

Record-A-Hit offers over 600 selections — songs from the 1930s to the 1980s.

"I pick songs whose words I'm familiar with," said Ms. Drzal, a computer programming trainee.

Singers get plenty of help — copies of lyrics, tips on vocalizing, echoes and other electronic effects, backup singers and props like sunglasses and cowboy hats.

Master of ceremonies Steve Morse coaxes people on stage like a carnival barker.

"Make a tape. They're great little stocking stuffers for Christmas," he implored.

The show attracts an occasional Elvis or Michael Jackson impersonator.

At Choice's one Tuesday, Dave Fanning, who works for Record-A-Hit, did Presley's "I Can't Help Falling In Love With You."

"Than' you, you're boo-ful," he kept telling the crowd, a la Elvis.

"Gee, Elvis lives," yelled Williams, a former professional singer and current AT&T supervisor who had done Sinatra's "Summer Wind" earlier.

Dave Sternberg did a rousing "Hello Dolly" in a raspy Louis Armstrong voice.

Some are kidded for their performances. When J.R. Rainey finished singing "Boardwalk," his brother, Henry, told the audience, "J.R.'s supposed to be at a church meeting tonight. I want to see how he's going to take this tape home and play it for his wife."

Although the crowd of about 50 people heard some less-than-tuneful crooners, there weren't any catcalls.

Particularly off pitch was Sternberg, a 35-year-old lawyer who sang Sinatra's "My Way."

"His voice is like fingernails on a chalk board," offered Joy Bouton, a college student.

Sternberg's own brother, Mike, agreed.

"He can't carry a tune in a suitcase," he said.

But the crowd gave him an ovation when he finished.

"You can be as lousy as the day is long but everybody is very supportive," Sternberg said.

Dear Friends,

We Snyder folks, who have had our share of hard times these past few years, now have a chance to send one of our own to Austin.

Rod Waller, who has served this city as both mayor and councilman, is now seeking the 78th District state representative's seat against a man from Knox City.

Rod's leadership is recognized here, you all know this. What you may not know is he is also recognized across the state.

In Snyder, we try to "shop at home" by supporting our local businesses. We also, as a community, support our school, its teams and its organizations.

Let's don't sellout Snyder this election day by casting a careless vote. Without YOUR important vote, we could lose our home team advantage!

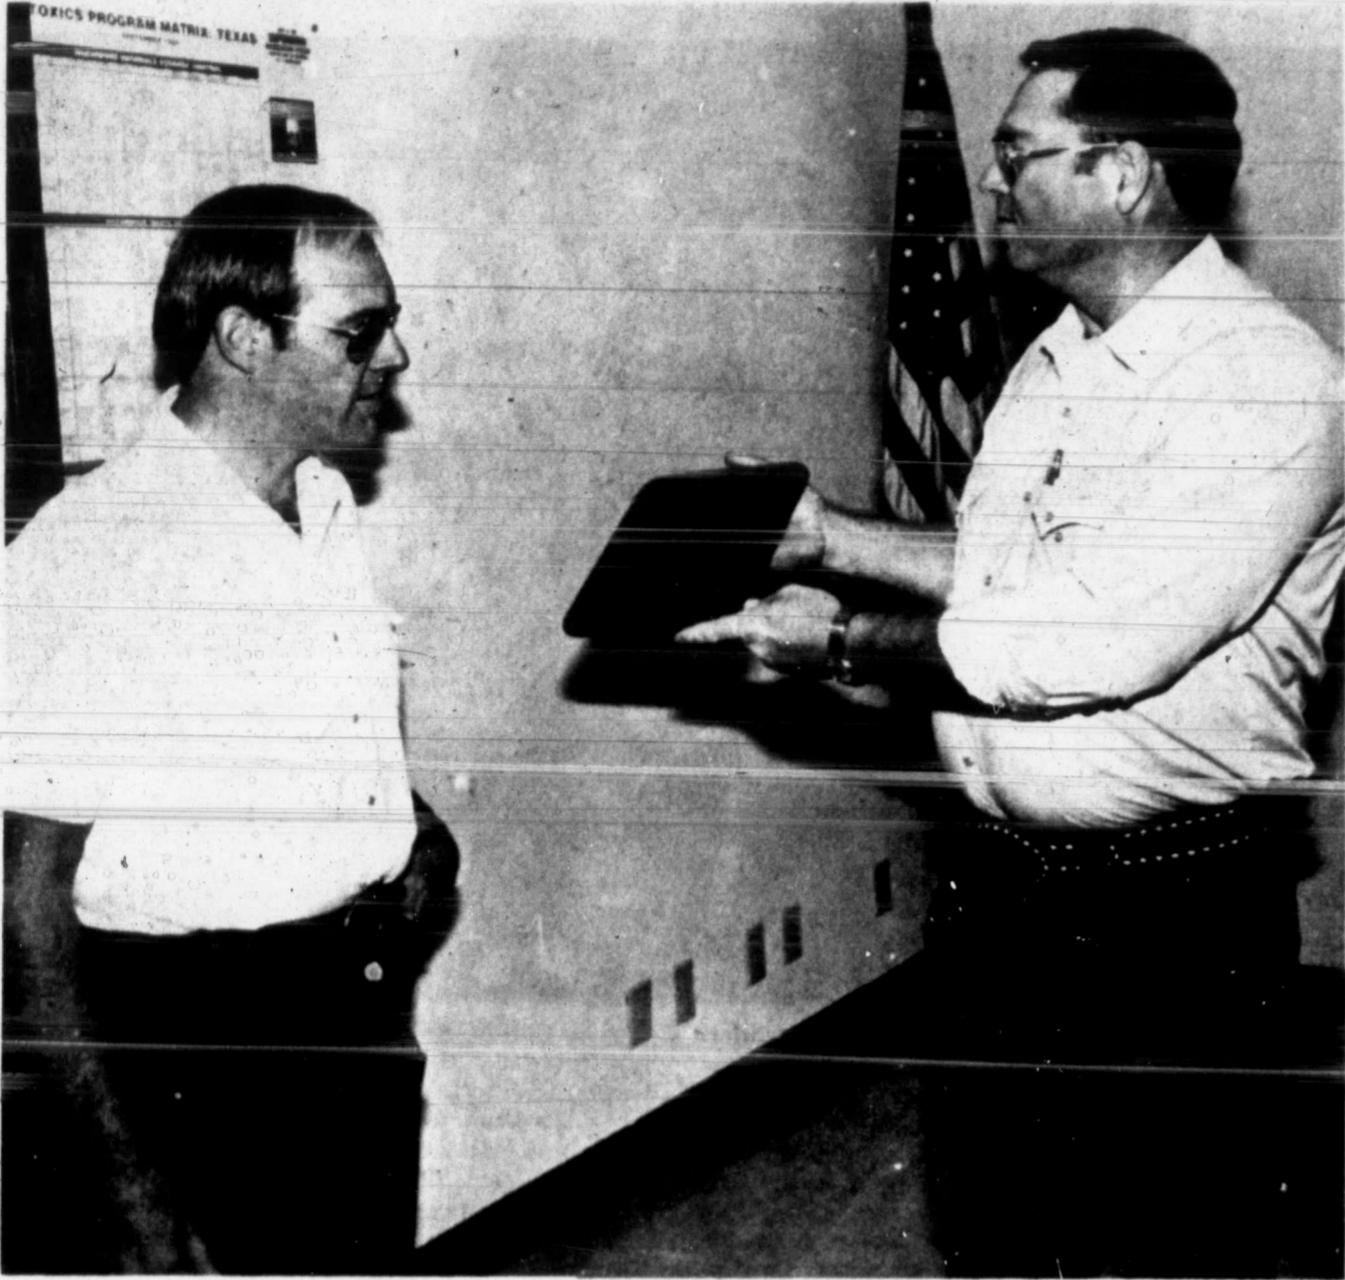

The problems in Snyder are real. And they transcend your particular party affiliation.

Please go to the polls on Tuesday and vote for Rod Waller. It's our one chance to have Snyder's voice heard all the way to Austin!

Thanks for your support!

Union brawl points up woes of Mexico's governing party

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Guests in one of Mexico City's finest tourist hotels were shunted elsewhere Friday in the aftermath of a late night union battle that left one unionist dead.

No guests were hurt in the Thursday night fracas at the Hotel Presidente Chapultepec and a Ford Group convention continued uninterrupted Friday, Excelsior news service said. However, about 30 people checked out of the 37-story parkside hotel at midnight Thursday and two groups of Europeans were transferred to the Hotel Del Prado, part of the same chain, reports said.

Authorities said nine of the 196 people who were arrested tested positive for having fired guns. Six of those arrested were juveniles, jail officials said.

Authorities estimated up to 600 unionists took part in the fracas.

One man died of a gunshot wound to the head and eight were injured in the brawl and shootout at the Presidente Chapultepec that left the lobby a sea of shattered glass and broken palm trees.

Rival union factions had turned the hotel into a blazing battleground — the second such incident this week — in what analysts said was a dramatic sign of struggle inside Mexico's weakened governing party.

"The workers movement is trying to enhance its political position using disorder and violence," Jose Maria Alverde, a leading businessman in the capital, was quoted as saying by Excelsior.

Both sides accused the other of starting the confrontation.

Witnesses and officials said gangs from rival union factions charged into the hotel lobby through separate entrances at about 9:30 p.m. Thursday.

The unionists lobbed firebombs, fired shots, broke plate glass, rampaged through offices and struggled with police.

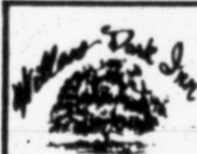

Guests ran for their rooms. Hotel employees took cover or tried to barricade the shattered entrances with furniture.

"There was a lot of screaming. We heard gunshots. We looked up and the lobby was filled with white smoke," said Paul Gregory, a lighting designer from New York City.

The hotel manager, in a television interview Friday night, downplayed damage to the hotel. "There was no panic on the part of our guests or our workers," he said.

The battle came four days after a union clash at the Acapulco Plaza resort hotel in Acapulco left two dead. Violence there flared after the national Mexican Workers Federation tried to replace a local union leader.

Reagan signature on treaty ends 40-year-old battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A treaty banning genocide finally has the force of U.S. law, bringing to a close 40 years of opposition by conservatives and putting a final feather in the political cap of retiring Sen. William Proxmire. President Reagan signed legislation Friday to implement the treaty, which was ratified by the Senate on Feb. 11, 1986. By the time the Senate acted, 95 other nations had ratified the treaty. The implementing legislation was passed last month.

Proxmire had delivered more than 3,000 speeches over 19 years before the ratification vote. Conservatives fought it all the way. They contended the treaty undermined rights of Americans under the Constitution and infringed on U.S. sovereignty.

The legislation signed by Reagan implements the treaty by making genocide — the deliberate destruction of a specific population — punishable under U.S. law and setting stern penalties for violators.

The Senate version of the genocide implementation bill is officially called "The Proxmire Act" to honor the long crusade of the Wisconsin Democrat who is closing out a 31-year Senate career.

Speaking Friday in Eau Claire, Wis., Proxmire said he was not given enough advance notice to attend the bill signing ceremony.

"I was sorry I could not be there, but the important thing is that it was signed," Proxmire said. "It should have been done long ago."

The treaty was drafted after World War II as a response to the Nazi Holocaust that killed millions of Europe's Jews and other ethnic minorities. It was approved by the United Nations at the end of 1948 and submitted to the Senate early the next year by President Truman.

The Soviet Union frequently embarrassed American diplomats by claiming that the U.S. failure to ratify the pact was evidence the United States lacked a complete commitment to human rights.

Reagan signed the genocide bill at a ceremony at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, saying he was "delighted to fulfill the promise made by Harry Truman to all the peoples of the world — and especially the Jewish people."

The president recalled the Nazi death camps that claimed millions of Jews, Slavs, Gypsies and others and said similar atrocities have since taken place in Cambodia, the Ukraine and Ethiopia.

Anderson's kidnappers say U.S. blocks hostage release

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The group holding Terry Anderson captive said Friday the Reagan administration is blocking the release of hostages by ignoring its messages.

A statement delivered to a Western news agency said Washington would not take "realistic steps" to end the ordeal of the 14 foreigners held hostage in Lebanon, nine of whom are Americans. It said President Reagan was like "the ostrich that hides her head in the sand so that the hunter will not see her."

The typewritten statement in Arabic signed by Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem group loyal to Iran, was in a sealed envelope with a blurry instant photograph of Anderson, the longest-held captive.

It was the 14th photograph released of Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, since his abduction March 16, 1985. He is shown with a mustache, wearing glasses and a white T-shirt.

He is behind a two-tier birthday cake with candles, and appears ready to cut into it. Oct. 27 was Anderson's 41st birthday, his fourth in captivity.

The picture apparently was made before a videotape released Monday, in which Anderson said Reagan and Vice President George Bush had not done enough to win his release.

Anderson was clean-shaven in the videotape, in which he said the date was Sunday.

Islamic Jihad, Arabic for Islamic Holy War, also says it holds Thomas Sutherland, 56, acting dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut, who was kidnapped June 9, 1985.

It said in the statement delivered Friday: "The only safe way to the freedom of the captives and their safety is the implementation of our just demands. This is the essential cornerstone in this issue, nothing else."

An Open Letter to Lealand W. (Pete) Greene

Dear Mr. Greene:

As a tax payer of Scurry County, I am in favor of congratulatory letters being written to young children who have excelled in their endeavors, so that they know that someone with such stature as District Judge would take the time to recognize and appreciate their accomplishments.

To me this is a far better way to spend a few tax dollars than to have a District Attorney have a private practice in the District Attorney's Office in the Court House for 14 years.

I understand that this practice was brought before the commissioners and that the practice was then stopped for a period of time. I do not know what this practice cost the tax payers, but I am sure it cost many times more than the expenses incurred by Judge Gene Dulaney and the letters he sent to the children.

Do you not also feel the conduct of the same officials, both in private and public life, should set an example for the constituency?

I think that the office of District Judge is a position that only people with the greatest integrity should be allowed to hold.

Mr. Greene, if you are in agreement with me on all of the things mentioned in this letter, then you too will probably be compelled to vote for Gene Dulaney for District Judge or do you feel you are above the law?

Sandra West

P.S.
I also resent the fact that the citizens of this county are considered so ignorant, that they would not verify your "facts" pertaining to a 3rd party involvement in a divorce settlement. The Court records show this Cause number and date to be that of an uncontested divorce and bears no mention of $18,000.00.

This bothers me a great deal that if you are not competent enough to get the Cause number and date correct in your original ad which should be of the utmost concern to you, I wonder what kind of mistakes you would make in cases in which you have no concern.

An Open Letter To All Golden Corral Customers

Dear Friends,

Sharon and I would like to express our sincere appreciation for the many kindnesses and loyal support shown to us over the last two years. Thank you for letting us share in your community's spirit and enthusiasm. We have never before been made to feel so welcome, so at home and so much a part of our community.

Therefore, it is with mixed emotions that we write now to say goodbye. I have been chosen for a promotion by the president of Golden Corral, Inc. On December 1st, 1988 I will assume the responsibilities of general manager of the Golden Corral Family Steakhouse in Albuquerque, New Mexico. I will be directly involved in the development of the "Major Market Program", a new concept for Golden Corral. They made me an offer I couldn't refuse.

The new partner/manager of Golden Corral in Snyder is Chip Chapman. Chip and his wife, Kathy, are from the San Angelo and Midland areas. They are excited about their opportunity in Snyder, and I am sure that they will become long term, active citizens. Chip and Kathy will arrive in Snyder in mid-November. Please join me in welcoming the Chapmans to Snyder and wishing them great success.

Sharon and I will not forget the friends we have made here. If your travels bring you through Albuquerque, please stop by the Golden Corral and say Hi. Thank you, again, for all of your support. Farewell good friends.

Sincerely,

Small pacemaker said implanted

LA MESA, Calif. (AP) — A dual-chamber pacemaker so small it could fit in a tablespoon was implanted Friday in the first American patient, an 84-year-old man, officials said.

Ferdinand Laux of El Cajon, Calif., underwent the operation at Grossmont District Hospital in La Mesa and was discharged later Friday in good condition, hospital officials said.

The COSMOS II, which was recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration, closely mimics the heart by regulating both the upper and lower chambers — the atria and ventricles. Its manufacturer, Intermedics Inc. in Angleton, Texas, said it is the world's smallest dual-chamber pacemaker.

It weighs 25 grams and is half the size of other currently available dual-chamber systems, Intermedics officials said. The pacemaker already is being marketed in several European countries and has been implanted in more than 100 patients worldwide with "excellent results," according to a company statement released Friday.

The first weather satellite, TIROS I, was launched in 1960 from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Environmental group blasts Bush

AUSTIN (AP) — The group Public Citizen joined other environmental organizations Friday to say Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis' record on fighting pollution is superior to that of GOP opponent George Bush.

"While Michael Dukakis was taking polluters to jail, George Bush was taking them to lunch," said Lana Nelson, president of Texans United, which released a report prepared with the National Toxics Campaign.

Ms. Nelson described her organization as a new, statewide citizen group that wants to improve the state economy and environment.

She said the group is not making an endorsement in the presidential race but is working to inform voters.

The organizations said their report examined the records of the candidates and found that Bush "worked to weaken federal air and water regulations for the convenience of industry and lobbied for reduced funding."

Dukakis worked in Massachusetts "for stronger control over pesticides, air pollution-causing acid rain, effective toxic waste cleanup and more funding for his environmental budget," the groups said.

By schoolyard standards, we'd have to give Mike Dukakis a solid 'B' and George Bush a solid 'D,'" said John O'Connor, director of the National Toxics Campaign.

Mark Sanders, spokesman for the Bush campaign in Texas, referred questions to Mark

Judge orders support payments for Cauble

DALLAS (AP) — The estranged wife of former millionaire and convicted drug smuggler Rex Cauble has been ordered to pay him $7,700 a month in temporary support as the couple's divorce continues.

Family Court Judge Sue Lykes on Thursday also ordered Josephine Hughes Cauble to make an up-front payment to Cauble of $39,997, to provide her estranged husband the use of a car and to return various possessions to him.

Seventy-five-year-old Cauble once ran a banking, ranching and Western store empire. He has served more than three years in federal prison on a drug-smuggling conviction.

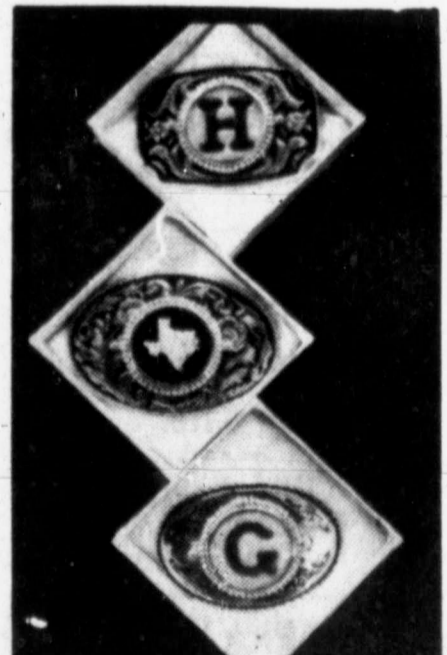

Cauble told the judge he is unemployed and said Social Security is his only source of income.

A federal jury convicted Cauble of drug trafficking and bank fraud in 1982 after a prosecutor described him as the leader of the so-called "Cowboy Mafia" marijuana-smuggling ring.

Besides the prison term, Cauble had to forfeit his 31-percent share of Cauble Enterprises to the federal government. Cauble's estranged wife and adopted son, Lewis Rex Cauble, then negotiated a buyout of the government's share of Cauble Enterprises.

Cauble said he plans to use the money to be paid by his wife in an attempt to overturn his conviction.

Earlier this year, he filed a civil suit in Denton County against his wife and son, contending they reneged on a promise to return the 31 percent to him after he was released from prison.

WHAT ABOUT US?

Japan is doing well.

Under 8 years of Republican rule, countless American jobs have been exported to Japan—and Japan has moved ever closer to controlling our economic future.

FACT: Japan now controls 17 of the world's 25 largest banks. The United States controls just one.

Saudi Arabia is doing well.

After 8 years of Republican rule, America still has no energy policy. The Saudi and other OPEC economies have boomed while the Texas economy has gone bust.

FACT: Texas has lost over 216,000 oil-related jobs in the last five years, while America's oil imports have jumped 20% in the past two years alone.

The international drug cartel is doing just great.

For 8 years the Republicans have talked tough about drugs but time and again have sought to slash funding for the war on drugs.

FACT: Under the Republicans cocaine smuggling has tripled, heroin trafficking increased 50% and the number of drug-related deaths doubled.

TEXAS AND AMERICA DESERVE BETTER

- Democrats helped save millions of American jobs by passing historic trade legislation this year.
- Democrats have adopted a Texas-proposed national energy policy that would significantly increase sales of Texas oil and natural gas and create tens of thousands of Texas jobs.
- Democrats are committed to standing up to drug kingpins like Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega and to waging a real war on drugs on our streets here at home.

Ira dumps Blackwell; finishes season at 6-4

IRA -- Ira's Bulldogs finished off a solid season with a 63-24 win over Blackwell here Friday night.

The Bulldogs, who got 207 yards, rushing and three touchdowns from Justin Spradlin, ended the season with a 6-4 record, 3-2 in District 7-1A six-man ball.

Spradlin led Ira in a come-from-behind effort with a 10-yard touchdown run in the opening quarter. James Sturdivant kicked the PAT to give the hosts an 8-6 lead.

Ira then scored on a 26-yard pass from Jason Withers to Gary Gunset and a 20-yard hookup from Charles Barbee to Withers. Barbee also hit Withers on a conversion pass.

The Bulldogs added 13 more points in the second period. Spradlin burst across on a 7-yard run and Shane Bearden connected with Barbee on a 12-yard toss. The 'Dogs added another conversion when Barbee nailed Sturdivant in the end zone.

In the third period, Barbee went back to the air, hitting Alan Martinez on a 20-yard TD pass. Spradlin and Greg Box added scoring runs of 10 and 1 yards, respectively.

Ira's other score came on a 30-yard pass from Bryan Martinez to Gunset.

Blackwell, 2-6-1 overall and 1-3-1 in district, got an early 6-0 lead on Ray Walls' 1-yard run. Walls tacked on a 43-yard field goal in the second quarter.

Blackwell also had a 1-yard TD run and a conversion kick in the fourth period and Jason Jones returned an interception for a touchdown in the third.

Friday at Big Spring...

Turnovers beat Tigers in 14-6 loss

BIG SPRING -- Snyder's Fighting Tigers darted, dashed, scrambled and passed for a season-high 459 yards here Friday night but came up on the low end of the scoreboard, falling 14-6 to Big Spring.

Turnovers, four of them, led to the disappointing loss - disappointing, especially because the Tigers dominated the District 4-4A opponent. And the miscues loomed even larger because the three fumbles came at the end of runs to the Steer 34, 28 and 9-yard lines. The other turnover, an interception, occurred at the Big Spring 27, though it was on a tough, fourth down and 10 situation.

Another mistake - a blocked punt which was picked up and run in for a touchdown - accounted for the difference on the scoreboard.

Friday's defeat also marred some fine effort from an offensive unit that has struggled this season. Snyder managed 290 yards rushing and another 169 passing. Taking advantage of good blocking, Michael Riggins ran for 144 of the yards, including a 19-yard TD scamper. The senior tailback also caught two passes for another 46 steps.

Snyder's air artillery was provided by quarterback Randy Morris, who completed 6 of 11 passes. Jayson Presley ran for 79 yards and caught a 36-yard pass, and fullback Lee Fletcher accounted for 48 yards and was a key blocker.

But there were the turnovers. In brief,

The first one came late in the first half with Snyder trailing 6-0. A 15 yard run from Presley ignited the Tigers and in four plays they raced 54 yards to the Steer 26. But Big Spring stopped Riggins and Fletcher for no gain from there, and a Morris-to-Fletcher pass missed the mark.

On fourth down, Snyder looked for a screen pass up the middle but Steer lineman Pat Wilbert picked it off.

Big Spring had scored again on a blocked punt and led 14-0. Undaunted, Morris got the Tigers in gear on a 24-yard run after the kickoff. On the next play, Presley broke for a 15-yard gain but the ball hit the ground and Big Spring recovered at its 34.

With the score 14-6 after Riggins' 19-yard TD run, Snyder held the Steers to a punting situation. The Tigers then quickly marched to the 46, with Riggins picking up 29 of the yards on three carries. From the 46, Presley scampered for a 26-yard gain. A good defensive effort separated the ball though, and Rye Bavin recovered at the Steer 28.

Ironically, Snyder's third fumble was set up by Big Spring's only turnover of the game. Israel Hinojos fell on the loose ball at the Tiger 11, giving Snyder a chance to score and tie the game.

Taking over with 2:25 left to play, Snyder moved quickly. Despite the previous turnovers, Snyder's ability to move the ball had the Tigers confident. On the first play, Morris and Presley hooked up for a 36-yard gain. A defensive back draped on him, the sophomore nonetheless managed to come down with the ball at the 47-yard line.

Riggins got the call next, and burst down the left sidelines for 21 yards before being pushed out at the Steer 31. An 8-yard pickup by Presley came next, and Morris and Riggins made contact for 17 more yards to the 6 with less than 90 seconds to play.

The excitement ended on the next play, however. Riggins took the ball and a swarming Steer defense forced yet another fumble - one which Chad Small recovered for Big Spring at the 9.

An 11-yard run from Rodney Brown gave the hosts the first down they needed to run out the clock.

Big Spring's first TD came on the Steers' opening drive of the game. On the first play, Brown broke free on a 44-yard jaunt to (see TIGERS, page 9A)

Cowboys hope to stop streak but must beat Giants to do it

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - Fourteen seasons with the Dallas Cowboys have taught Ed "Too Tall" Jones mostly about the good times.

Now, he's learning about the bad ones.

Jones and his Cowboys teammates will look to avoid their longest in-season losing streak since the Eisenhower administration on Sunday when they meet the first-place New York Giants, 6-3, at Giants Stadium at 1 p.m. EST.

Dallas, 2-7 and heading toward a third straight losing season, comes into the matchup on a five-game slide highlighted by losses in the final two minutes of games.

The setbacks have Jones a little puzzled.

"Most of the time when you have guys out there hustling and playing aggressively like we've been doing week to week, you win ball games," Jones said in a telephone conference call. "We haven't been able to put it together, mainly in the two-minute area of the game where you have to put people away. It just hasn't happened for us."

The last time the Cowboys had a six-game losing streak during a season was in their first season in 1960. Dallas lost its first 10 games that season before tying the Giants.

The Cowboys have had two other six-game losing streaks, but both covered parts of two seasons. The latter one ended when Dallas beat New York 16-14 in the second game of last season.

"You hope you never experience something like this," Jones said. "But anytime you've been around as long as I have, chances are it's going to happen. The thing that keeps me going is the fact that I think we've seen our worst days."

New York has won its last three games and four of five to take a one-game lead over Washington and Phoenix in the NFC East.

However, the Giants offense has struggled recently against Detroit and Atlanta. The defense played well against the Lions (twice) and Falcons, but it has not looked like the dominant unit of two years ago when New York won the Super Bowl.

The problems have frustrated coaches and put a few players on edge, especially when they are asked about the problems.

Many of the players have shortened their answers with the media and some who asked that they not be identified said Parcels recently referred to the media as "Communist subversives."

One player, who also asked not to be identified, even jokingly walked up to a writer and called him "Comrade."

Some veterans simply get annoyed.

"How are we playing?" wide receiver Phil McConkey shot back when asked about the team. "We're winning, that's all that counts. We've had four of the last five games on the road and we're winning."

But the competition, Phil? "This is the NFL," McConkey said. "I'm not going to apologize for winning. I'll win like this all year, right up to and including the big one. Hey, this game is simple. You block, you tackle and you win. Every week is the same, you prepare and execute. It's no big mystery."

Dallas coach Tom Landry said Cowboys center Tom Rafferty will miss the game with a bruised thigh and will be replaced by Bob White, who played most of last week's game against Phoenix.

Mavericks tumble in season opener

by The Associated Press
So the Los Angeles Lakers can charge, the Cavaliers took charge.

Maybe it was the disappointment with themselves for losing all three playoffs games at Reunion Arena last spring. Maybe it was a renewed determination to be dominant on the road. Whatever the reason, the two-time defending champions opened the NBA season Friday night with a 116-113 victory over the Mavericks.

"Both teams took this as an important game," Lakers guard Byron Scott said. "Last year, we faltered on the road. We needed to prove to ourselves that we are a great road team."

Magic Johnson and James Worthy made sure the champs proved themselves on this night. Worthy took a pass from Johnson and scored a layup for the decisive points with 24 seconds to play. Johnson made two free throws and Worthy contributed a steal to seal it.

"We made six points when we got down six points," Lakers coach Pat Riley said. "It was the way we have won some championships in the past. It was a struggle but we win."

Also winning on opening night were the Cleveland Cavaliers, who spoiled the expansion Charlotte Hornets' debut 133-93. The Miami Heat, the NBA's other expansion club, opens tonight, entertaining the Clippers, who fell 129-110 at Philadelphia Friday night.

In other openers, it was Boston 122, New York 115 in overtime; Atlanta 113, New Jersey 105; Milwaukee 117, Indiana 103; Detroit 107, Chicago 94; Denver 120, Houston 117; Seattle 104, Utah 97; and Portland 120, Phoenix 105.

Come On Pete...

You should be able to do better than that. I mean, really, here you are, a practicing attorney, a past district attorney, and you come up with some suspect gossip that is not relevant to campaigning for the office.

Are you really serious...wanting to represent the judicial system in this district and run a strictly juvenile ad against your opponent such as the one run last week?

People expect dignity and wisdom from a person desiring to be a judge. People expect a man to sell the public on his ability and qualifications and not be someone who has to build himself up by trying to tear his opponent down. The public can make those decisions.

If that's the best you have to offer then you need to go back to your buddies at the country club or the gaming tables at Las Vegas and come up with something new.

My advice would be for the public to vote for Judge Gene Dulaney -- a man who has served the office with maturity, good judgement, and wisdom.

Unemployment figures said at 14-year low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment fell to 5.3 percent in October — matching a 14-year low — the government said Friday, as employers added 325,000 new jobs accelerating an economy slowed by the summer drought.

In its last major economic report before Tuesday's presidential election, the Labor Department said the 0.1 percent drop from September's 5.4 percent jobless rate was accompanied by 99,000 new manufacturing jobs, the biggest monthly increase since February 1984.

But Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, cautioned that the October pickup in factory employment "may be somewhat overstated" because of a seasonally adjusted increase of 25,000 jobs in canneries and other food processing plants.

Factory jobs declined by 45,000 in August and September.

The Labor Department said there were fewer fall cutbacks than usual in food industry employment "following light summer hiring due to the drought."

But even discounting the seasonal gain there, payroll growth in October returned to the 300,000 monthly rate it had averaged in 1986, 1987 and the first seven months of this year after falling to 240,000 new jobs monthly in August and September.

The 5.3 percent jobless rate in October matched June's rate as the lowest since May 1974.

"The future is bright and it's getting brighter," President Reagan said of the figures as he was leaving the White House to campaign for Vice President

George Bush. "Nothing's going to stop us now."

Private political and economic analysts agreed.

Only a dramatic change in the employment numbers "indicating some fantastic failure or crisis" could have helped Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis, said Richard Brody, a political science professor at Stanford University.

Instead, economists said, the October job numbers foretell an economy returning to a growth rate of 3 percent or more annually in the fourth quarter after it slowed to 2.2 percent over the summer.

"A good case is developing that the fourth quarter will show stronger growth than the third," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

Jasinowski said companies are telling him that their factory orders, which fell 1.9 percent in September, according to the government, bounced back again last month.

The slowdown in growth over the summer was more "drought-related than most people believed," Jasinowski said. "It was the most extraordinary summer in decades and it did slow the pace of things a bit more than the government's seasonal adjustments did."

Judge in Houston receives reprimand

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Commission on Judicial Conduct publicly reprimanded District Judge Marsha Anthony of Houston, saying Friday that her actions in court had "brought discredit to the judiciary."

Ms. Anthony wasn't in her Houston office Friday and wasn't expected back until Monday, her secretary said.

The commission's findings said Ms. Anthony had, among other things, called people in her courtroom "pure trash," left the bench crying and shouting threats at attorneys, and told one lawyer that she had a gun and could shoot two holes in his back before he could leave the courtroom.

"The comments of Judge Anthony are not consistent with the temperament required of a member of the judiciary," said the commission's report.

Ms. Anthony was elected to the district court in 1984, and her term expires Dec. 31. However, the commission said, "it is not to the benefit of the judiciary or the public to allow improper conduct to go uncorrected solely because of an approaching expiration of a term."

A public reprimand is the most severe action that can be taken short of removing a judge from the bench, officials said.

According to the commission's report, signed by executive director Robert C. Flowers, Ms. Anthony failed to respond to the charges "through personal interview, telephone communication and hand-delivered written interrogatories."

As listed in the report, the commission's findings also included:

— During a court proceeding, the judge failed to control the actions of her young son, who distracted lawyers, jurors and herself "by running around and crawling behind the judge's bench."

— Ms. Anthony said to her son, in the presence of litigants and others in the courtroom, "Son, you see these people out here, they're trash, they're pure trash, all of 'em."

— In one proceeding, the judge held a lawyer in contempt and told him "to pay a fine to her favorite charity, i.e., a personal friend in the hospital."

The commission's report said the disciplinary panel concluded that Ms. Anthony's cumulative actions constituted "willful or persistent conduct that (was) clearly inconsistent with the proper performance of her duties."

In November 1986, Ms. Anthony upheld the no pass, no play law but called on state legislators to mend what she called inequities of the rule.

Anthony is the same judge whose temporary injunction propelled the controversial statute to the state Supreme Court, which ruled the law constitutional.

She has said the rule had a disproportionate impact on minorities and the learning-disabled.

Financial Focus

"The Wit and Wisdom of Wall Street," by Bill Adler and Bill Adler, Jr., is a collection of quips, insights and candid remarks about money and investing by some of the leaders of American politics and business.

There are so many viewpoints about government and business reported in the media that one may be led to believe that this love-hate relationship is new. Not so. Verbal mud-slinging is traced to the birth of our republic. Thomas Jefferson accused government when he said, "Banking establishments are more dangerous than standing armies." Of course, Jefferson was a wealthy man and could afford to talk about banks.

However, it wasn't clear if Andrew Jackson, a man of moderate means, was criticizing politicians or businessmen when he said, "It is regretted that the rich and powerful too often bend the acts of government to their selfish purposes." That shoe could fit either foot.

Not all politicians have been pro-government. Ronald Regan said, "Government does not solve problems, it subsidizes them." Calvin Coolidge more diplomatically reminded us, "The business of America is business." Wendell Wilkie took the same idea and wrapped it in the flag when he said, "The glory of America is business."

While politicians and businessmen criticize each other, everyone else takes shots at Wall Street. Entertainers like Billy Rose harassed brokers when he advised, "Never invest your money in anything that eats or needs repairing." What else is there?

Will Rogers thought he found the ideal investment. "Invest in inflation," he said, "It's the only thing going up." Andrew Mellon disagreed, stating, "Gentlemen prefer bonds."

However, it took a real pro, like Robert Dinda of Merrill Lynch to give us a taste of sound Wall Street wisdom. "Select stocks the way porcupines make love - very carefully."

Wall Street has made a lot of people rich and poor and often the same people. Mark Twain once admitted, "I'm opposed to millionaires, but it would be dangerous to offer me the position."

"Rich" means different things to different people. Comedian Joe E. Lewis, a bottom-line type of guy, summed up wealth best of all, "It doesn't matter if you're rich or poor—as long as you've got money."

A disgruntled taxpayer probably offered this bit of giving spirit when he explained, "Not only is it more blessed to give than to receive; it is also deductible."

No study of money is complete without considering how our ancestors viewed it. About the same as we do, it appears.

Driver treated after pickup-truck wreck

A 25-year-old Snyder man suffered minor injuries in a 4:56 p.m. Friday pickup truck-tractor-trailer rig collision at U.S. 84 and College Ave.

Police said a 1983 Chevrolet pickup driven by Reynaldo Mendoza of 2805 Ave. I was in collision with a 1987 International rig driven by Clifton D. Caldwell of Lubbock.

Mendoza was taken by Snyder EMS Ambulance Service to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for pain in his left arm and released.

At 4:07 p.m. Friday in the 3100

Block of 37th St., a 1986 Mazda 626-GT driven by James K. Palmer of Rt. 2 was in collision with a 1986 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme driven by Kristi G. Head of Arah Rt., after which both vehicles had to be towed.

Police said Palmer appeared to have been injured in the accident but declined medical attention.

An unknown vehicle and driver struck a parked 1980 Honda motorcycle owned by Nancy Scott of 610 N. Ave. T in an incident discovered at 12:40 a.m. Saturday at 23rd St. and Ave. K.

Unique Yuletide trees solicited for museum

"Christmas Trees on Parade" will be the theme of the Scurry County Museum's 1988 Christmas Happening and businesses and organizations are being invited to decorate trees to be included.

The trees should be two to three feet in height, said Shirley Leftwich, museum director. Decorations should represent the business or organization.

"Those participating are limited only by their imagination," she said. Awards will be given for the most original, the prettiest, the funniest and other categories to be decided.

The trees can be reclaimed or may be donated to the museum for re-sale with proceeds to benefit the museum's operating fund.

Trees must be submitted by Dec. 1 and those participating are asked to notify the museum in advance to facilitate planning for the displays.

Decoration in the museum for the Christmas Happening will have a Texas theme. Volunteers to assist with decorating are now sought also.

Shuttle to carry military satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An intelligence-gathering satellite capable of spying on 80 percent of the Soviet Union will be carried by the secret space shuttle mission scheduled for late this month, an industry magazine reports.

"When fully deployed, the spacecraft will have a span as large as 150 feet," Aviation Week and Space Technology reported. "It has the characteristics of an imaging radar or optical reconnaissance involving digital imaging, or both."

"The radar transmission is designed to penetrate cloud cover and would be valuable in both ocean and land surveillance," the magazine said in its Nov. 7 issue, available Friday.

Space shuttle Atlantis and its five-man crew will be flying the third classified Defense Department shuttle mission, and the Pentagon and NASA have cloaked most details about it in secrecy. NASA processing director Conrad Nagel said the agency was aiming for launch on Nov. 28 or 29.

Aviation Week said the satellite will be launched into orbit.

Lawsuit filed against county

says she was subsequently treated for pertussis encephalopathy.

It says the seizures caused brain damage and "dysfunction in other motor areas" and that the little girl "is not coordinated enough to walk properly," adding that she now remains constantly on phenobarbital to prevent further seizures.

Brandon said the health unit erred in not seeking a medical history on the child before giving the injection.

The attorney said he is currently pursuing three other DPT-related cases in which the children all died, two from Fort Worth and one from Corpus Christi.

He noted the chemical manufacturing company, rather than the county, is the principal target in the suit filed here.

tative race. This special election—which has a separate ballot—will decide who fills the 78th District seat until this coming Jan. 1.

The special election was prompted by Steve Carriker vacating the position in order to run for state senator, the post vacated by the resignation of Ray Farabee.

In this senate race, Carriker (D-Roby), who won the remainder of Farabee's 1988 term in a special election held Aug. 13, is challenged on the ballot by Bobby Albert (R-Wichita Falls).

For U.S. senator, incumbent Lloyd Bentsen, running mate on the Democratic presidential ticket, is challenged for his senate post by Beau Boulter, a Republican from Amarillo.

The ballot includes also what has been a high profile race for

DWI case has plea of guilt

A 22-year-old San Angelo man pleaded guilty in a felony DWI case in 132nd District Court last week and received a two-year probated sentence.

Gilbert Pesina entered the plea in connection with a May 19 subsequent DWI offense.

the position of District 15 representative on the State Board of Education.

The incumbent Democrat, Paul C. Dunn of Levelland, a holdover from the appointed state school board, is challenged by Monte Hasie of Lubbock, a former school board member for Lubbock ISD.

Several other contested races are included on the ballot including seats on the Railroad Commission, the Texas Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals and 11th Court of Appeals.

In addition, three proposed amendments to the state constitution will be decided in November.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Jay Martin, a native of Snyder, has been superintendent at Ira for the past eight years. During the 1986-87 school year, the Ira PTA honored him as the 32nd recipient of its Honorary Life Membership.

In 1980, Martin assumed the duties of superintendent at Ira, his first such superintendent's job. For the past two years he also served as principal, but he relinquished that job this school year when Larry Long was hired to the position.

In 1982, one of the first things Martin did was to have 100 trees planted around the school.

"I felt the school ground needed something so I arranged to get 100 saplings from the Forest Service. I planted some myself, but I had a lot of help also," he explained.

"We didn't lose that many of the trees and I was really pleased about that," he added.

Other projects included laying new lateral lines for the school, painting the bleachers and building a fence around the football field.

In 1984, Martin guided Ira through a renovation and new construction project. The existing building was renovated and a new cafeteria was built along with several classrooms. As superintendent, it was Martin's job to work with the school board and to coordinate the project.

Martin came to Ira eight years ago after hearing on the "grapevine" that the superintendent's job was available. "I prefer a small school from the family point of view," he said. "There are advantages and disadvantages to both large and small schools, but overall I prefer a small school."

"Being a superintendent in a small school is a lot like being a principal in a large school," he said. "I like the challenge of working with the school board and guiding the school district. I hope I am forming it into something good."

"The challenge of making a school district the best it can be is most rewarding," he added.

Martin graduated from Sul Ross University in Alpine in 1965 with a bachelor of science degree with a major in science and a minor in P.E. He later attended the University of Texas in El Paso where he received his masters of education degree in 1972 and his professional administrator's certificate in 1974.

He began his teaching career in Odessa where he taught P.E. for one year. He then moved to El Paso where he taught elementary P.E. for only 12 days before transferring into the Ysleta District where he taught biology and physical science and driver's education at Eastwood High School for three years.

He was later named director of student activities, a position which he also held for three years. Since the large high school had some 40 service clubs, it became Martin's job to coordinate all of their activities. Some 3,000 students attended grades 9-12.

"Working with all those clubs keeps you young," he said. "I also sponsored the Key Club which is a good service organization for young men."

During the last three years he was in the El Paso District, Martin served as assistant principal at the high school. In this role, he was in charge of discipline.

"It was rewarding for me to work with parents and students who had problems. Occasionally I saw a student turn around and start doing what I thought was right for him to do," Martin said.

Martin then moved to Albany where he was principal of elementary and junior high school for one year. Next came a move to Alvarado, where he served as high school principal for four years.

When Martin first entered the education field, he started out just wanting to be a teacher because he wanted "to contribute to society." In those days he had no thoughts of becoming a superintendent someday.

At Eastwood High School in El Paso, he said he had the opportunity to be promoted through the ranks and that seemed like the way for him to go at the time. That school district was growing and he said he saw a need for administrators.

As a result, he attended classes during the summer at the University of Texas in El Paso working toward his masters degree, a requirement for the activity director's job at that school.

"Once I got into the administrative field I wanted to go as far as I could in it," he said. And even though a large number of "headaches" comes with the superintendent's job, Martin on the average is not sorry that he became an administrator.

Martin still keeps in close contact with students in the classroom because he currently teaches driver's education.

Martin's philosophy as an educator is a simple one. He views all children as having SUPERINTENDENT AT IRA--Jay Martin has been the superintendent at Ira since 1980. He also served as principal for the past two years until Larry Long was hired in that capacity this school year.

Martin said he enjoys the challenge of working with the school board and the school district. He is married to Myra Martin and they have one son, Kyle. (SDN Staff Photo) potential and he tries to take them "either as far as he can or as far as they will let him."

Or as he recently put it, "If they are good I pat them on the back and if they are not I paddle them."

Martin is married to the former Myra Ballard and they have one son, Kyle, who is an eighth grader. Myra is owner and operator of Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio and Boutique in Snyder.

Martin is a member and deacon of the First Baptist Church in Ira. He is also chairman of the deacons and currently teaches the Young Adult Sunday School class. In the past he has taught the Men's Sunday School class.

For recreation, Martin enjoys all sports and he likes to hunt deer. He shares a deer lease and looks forward to deer hunting every year.

Martin is a member of the Ira PTA and for years he has coached baseball and soccer. He is a member of the Snyder Noon Lions Club and has served on the board of the United Way.

ACCEPTING OTHERS
Everyone is different and special, but sometimes we don't feel that way. There are many ways to demonstrate that you accept someone.

—Tell them. Be truthful and sincere as you explain to the person why you like them or what you think is especially unique about them.

—Praise. Freely and sincerely praising someone makes both you and the other person feel great.

—Body Language. The giving of a gift, a smile, a wave, all of these can many times express more than a thousand words.

—Sensitivity. "Putting yourself in the other person's shoes" makes you aware of just a part of their feelings and fears.

Learn to accept people and care about them and not just care about yourself. People recognize those who care. They want to be around them and do things with them. A caring and accepting attitude will help you and others feel good.

BEING YOUR BEST SELF
Having a positive attitude and expecting to do your best is essential to a person's success. Aptitude and a little hard work may also play an important role in one's success; however, attitude will be a determining factor, especially in the long road of life.

The first step in developing a positive attitude is a realistic self-evaluation. Failures or weaknesses are not something of which to be afraid or ashamed.

Strengths and weaknesses are characteristics which make a person unique. You are loved and cherished regardless of competence or accomplishments. Weaknesses or negative characteristics are not what determines a person's value.

In order to be "your best self," one must constantly grow and develop. Change is possible when realistic goals are set and a specific plan for improvement, or "plan of action," is developed.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Djuan Joe and Jeanette Doty wish to announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kelly Diane Myres, to Jerry Don Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Foster of Buffalo Gap. The prospective bride is the granddaughter of the late Clifford Dove. Vows are planned at 4 p.m. Nov. 19 in the McMurray College Chapel of Grand Prairie. (Private Photo)

Bad split was good

By James Jacoby

We are always lamenting unlucky suit splits that cause good contracts to fail. Here's a horse of a different color, a deal in which declarer succeeds because a side-suit splits 5-0.

South had more than enough to jump to two hearts after his partner's takeout double of the one-diamond opening. Then, when West jumped to four diamonds and the bidding came back to South, he got caught up in the rhythm of the bidding and went on to four hearts. You need only look at the North-South cards to see that declarer has three certain losers, after which he needs something good to happen in the club suit. With all the clubs behind the dummy, declarer's position doesn't look good. But what is a plus is that West is never able to lead a club.

West led ace of diamonds and a diamond, declarer pitching a club. South now played ace and king of hearts and then the king of spades. West won the ace and returned a spade. Now declarer took the remaining spades, throwing another club. When he then led dummy's remaining heart, East was on lead with nothing to do but lead into the A-Q of clubs. The bad club split (all five clubs in the East hand) turned out to be a winner for declarer.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Country Fair planned for luncheon meeting

A Country Fair Auction will be the featured attraction at the Wednesday luncheon meeting of Snyder Christian Women's Club to be held at the Snyder Country Club from 11:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Handmade crafts and home baked goods will be offered in silent, blind and signature auctions. Bids will close at 11:35 a.m. The Country Fair has become an annual event of the local club, offering unique items in time for holiday giving.

Judy Billingsley of the club will be the featured soloist. Guest speaker will be Audrey McClung of Kingsville, sportswear buyer and model. Her husband is the former commanding officer of "Top Gun."

Reservations for the luncheon and free nursery may be made by calling Barbara at 573-9969 or Kathy at 573-8942 by noon Tuesday. The luncheon is $6 or a beverage alone is $1.

Christian Women's Club is an interdenominational organization open to all women in the community. Membership is not required and there are no dues.

Coterie sets concert

Dan McAlexander will be presented in concert at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 10 by the Musical Coterie and Vivace Junior Music Club at Martha Ann Woman's Club.

...in concert...

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for 12-year-olds and younger and may be purchased from local music teachers or at the door. All proceeds will go toward music scholarships and MAWC upkeep.

McAlexander was born and reared in Hoisington, Kan., where he began studying piano with his mother at the age of five. As a freshman at the University of Kansas, McAlexander began work with classical piano literature. Under the guidance of Carole Ross, he won most of the school's awards and competitions, appearing on its honor programs and performing as soloist with the university orchestra.

Following graduation, McAlexander was enrolled in The Juilliard School of Music in New York City where he was accepted as a scholarship student of Ania Dorfman. He continued work there with Howard Aibel and coached chamber music with Raphael Bronstein of the Manhattan School of Music.

After earning his master's degree at Juilliard, McAlexander joined the faculty of Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene where he is now an assistant professor of piano and music theory.

In addition to his career as teacher, lecturer and adjudicator, he performs throughout Texas, New Mexico and the midwest as a soloist, accompanist, and pianist for the university's resident faculty piano trio and the Abilene Philharmonic. He has also performed in Italy and Saudi Arabia.

McAlexander is currently working toward a doctor of musical arts degree in piano at the College-Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati. He will be the featured soloist with the Abilene Philharmonic in January, performing Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in B-flat minor.

FEATURED THIS WEEK
THE GI'S WAR. By Edwin P. Hoyt.

Nearly 10 years in the making, "The GI's War" is the first oral history to tell the whole story of the European war through the eyes of the field soldiers who actually fought in it.

Unfolding chronologically from the summer of 1940 to the last days of fighting in Europe, this is a gripping, emotional account, bringing to life the strategies and policies recorded in conventional World War II histories. A controversial yet genuine picture that ultimately conveys heroism more effectively than the romantic sagas that glorify war. A landmark in the literature of WW II, "The GI's War" is oral history at its best.

FALL FRUIT TREE SPRAYING

Fall is often the time when fruit tree care is forgotten or neglected, but it's a critical time for controlling many peach and plum tree diseases to insure a good crop next year.

With the arrival of fall, there's often a tendency to forget our peach and plum trees that served us so well last summer.

Applying a copper fungicide now can stop or reduce three of the diseases that attack peach and plum trees in Texas. These are peach leaf curl, bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker.

Puckered and distorted peach tree leaves that were either bright red or light green in diseased areas last spring were due to peach leaf curl fungus. The only time to effectively control this disease is in the fall with a copper-containing fungicide.

Timing of the fall spray is critical for effective control and for avoiding tree damage. Copper is a metal and may cause severe defoliation unless applied correctly.

He advises spraying when 70 percent of the leaves fall off the tree. Spraying too early will cause leaf shed or cause the spray to be ineffective later.

Fungicides containing chlorothalonil can also be used for the control of peach leaf curl.

Bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker can be partially controlled by fall spraying with a copper fungicide, but not fungicides containing chlorothalonil. But again, it's important to spray at the right time to prevent foliar burn with the copper fungicide.

Bacterial leaf spot affects both fruit and foliage. The infection causes fruit to crack and leaves develop angular spots which drop out. Bacterial canker will kill trees slowly. Infected trees will have gum or wax forming on the main trunk and main limbs.

Fall spray in northern Texas is most often applied from late October to November-15. Application time will vary with the season, so check your fruit trees closely.

Watch oils and fats

ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — All oils and fats are equally high in calories, so see how little you can use, says Healthy Heart.

But, when you do use oils and fats, remember the higher the percentage of saturated fat, the worse the oil. Choose those high in polyunsaturated and monosaturated fats and low in saturated fat.

The best oils, it says, are canola, safflower, sunflower and olive. Butter is loaded with saturated fat so switch to a soft margarine, one that is made from unsaturated fat so that it gets very soft at room temperature.

Words of Wisdom Help When Mr. Right Is Really Mr. Wrong

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old woman. Several years ago I came across this piece in your column, and it has helped me a great deal to understand relationships and to grow emotionally.

Every time I put another "Mr. Right" behind me, I go through my hope chest and read this piece. It gives me an odd sense of strength. I'd really love for others to read it and realize what I've realized from reading it. Please run it again. Thank you.
B.K. MEEHAN, NEW ORLEANS

DEAR B.K.: I'm happy to — here it is:

After a while, you learn the subtle difference between holding a hand and chaining a soul. And you learn that love doesn't mean leaning and company doesn't mean security. And you begin to understand that kisses aren't contracts and presents aren't promises. And you begin to accept your defeats with your head held high and your eyes open, with the grace of a woman, not the grief of a child. You learn to build your roads on today, because tomorrow's ground is too uncertain and futures have a way of falling down in mid-flight. After a while you learn that even sunshine burns if you get too much. So you plant your own garden and decorate your own soul, instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers. And you learn that you really can endure, that you really are strong. And that you really do have worth and that you keep learning. With every goodbye you learn. (Author unknown)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old male college student. Recently my girlfriend asked me to get my ear pierced. I know that many men are doing this, and some don't think it's the thing to do.

I was going to get a pair of small diamond earrings for my girlfriend and me. (She would wear one and I would wear the other.) I thought it was a good idea, but I haven't consented yet, for I don't know what others might think of me, particularly my parents.

What do you and your readers think?
POINT LOOKOUT, MO.

DEAR LOOKOUT: If you are hesitating because you are concerned about what "others" (particularly your parents) might think, I advise you to put this idea on hold.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, my 10-year-old daughter, our collie named Ruff and I visited a very old town outside of Denver. As we stopped at a little church to listen to a minister, we were invited in. I pointed to my dog, and the minister announced loudly, "All God's creatures are welcome in God's house."

We went in and sat close to a wall so we wouldn't bother anybody. When the people prayed, Ruff put his head down between his paws; when the people sang, Ruff "sang" louder than anybody. The minister devoted the last half of the sermon to "God's four-legged creatures." As we were leaving the church, many parishioners stopped to shake Ruff's paw or give him a hug. So, who says children dressed in pajamas don't belong in church, Abby? Aren't they God's creatures, too?

MABEL CHAMBERLAIN,
FRESNO, CALIF.

DEAR MABEL: You're dog-gone right they are!

Is your social life in a slump? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61064. Postage is included.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to respond to "Got It Together in Iowa," who's had it up to her eyeballs with "supermoms" who work outside the home and entrust the care of their children to others. She's angry because mothers who stay home are looked down upon, while "supermoms" are praised and respected.

I am a working mother, but I'd never call myself a "supermom." I envy all those women who can stay home and raise their children. I'd have given anything to have had the chance, but my son's father left us when "Todd" was 5 months old. I could either go on welfare or work two jobs. I chose the two jobs.

I worked 70 to 75 hours a week for six years with no child support or outside aid. The first few months I left my home at 4 a.m. and walked to the sitter's house, carrying my tiny baby. I continued to walk to work, arriving at 7 a.m. I did this until I could afford to buy a secondhand car.

I've worked my way up; now I'm able to make it with one job. I am a den mother for Todd's Cub Scout troop. He's a wonderful kid — smart, well-behaved and lovable. We read together, hike, laugh, argue, play games and make jelly. I'm no supermom. I'm normal. And there are a lot of other single working mothers just like me.

KEEPING IT TOGETHER
IN MICHIGAN

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for "Got It Together in Iowa." I was a schoolteacher for five years, but gave it up when I had my first child. Now I have four.

Please spare me the "have-to-work" excuses. I know too many "supermoms" who live in $200,000 homes, have a BMW in the driveway, a swimming pool in the backyard and take European vacations. Meanwhile, they're paying strangers to raise their kids. Let's get back to raising our own families, wearing less expensive clothes, driving economy cars and doing what women were meant to do — being homemakers and full-time mothers.

I wouldn't dream of giving the responsibility and fun of raising my children to anyone else. It's the most fulfilling and rewarding job in the world.

GOT IT TOGETHER
IN ATLANTA

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Got It Together in Iowa," who gets no respect because she's a stay-at-home mom. OK, now, everybody listen:

Some women have to work. They need the extra money, or they're supporting their family on their own.

Some women want to work. They love their families, but the daily domestic scene is not for them. They prefer the challenge of the business or professional world. Good for them!

Some women prefer to stay home. They enjoy housekeeping, cooking and being a full-time mother. This is very hard work, but they find it fulfilling. Good for them!

Not all women who work outside the home are pampered executives with painted fingernails, designer clothes, neglected husbands and latchkey kids.

Neither are all housewives brainless, frumpy women who walk around in their housecoats and curlers saying, "Yes, dear," to their husbands and yelling at their kids.

Agency's chief will be placed on leave

AUSTIN (AP) — A key state lawmaker said he is pleased with action taken by the State Board of Insurance to address concerns of mismanagement.

The three-member board Thursday said it will place the agency's chief on leave pending an investigation into allegations of foot-dragging in the largest insurance company insolvency case in state history.

The board also said the Travis County District Attorney's public integrity unit will review the agency's handling of the National County Mutual Fire Insurance insolvency for any possible criminal wrongdoing.

Emerging from an hour-and-15-minute closed session, the board said recent criticism prompted them to initiate the management probe and investigation into the department's delay in taking control of National County Mutual.

During this examination, Commissioner Doyce Lee will be placed on leave, although the details of this move had not been worked out, board members said. Lee, 47, and commissioner since 1985, said he agreed with the board's decision. "I think it takes the pressure off of me and the board, and the agency can go about its business of regulating the industry. That will give time for the air to clear."

State Rep. John Gavin, D-Wichita Falls, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, supported the board's action. "Most of the problem seems to be a lack of communication within the agency. The left hand and the right hand don't seem to work very well together," he said.

Earlier, state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, called for the board to temporarily remove Lee.

"The State Board of Insurance is failing in its mission to regulate the insurance industry and protect the interests of consumers and policyholders," Montford said. "It is my opinion that the problems with this agency begins with its wasteful management."

Board members praised Lee, and credited him with making the recommendations of conducting an independent audit.

Pentagon's buying regulations vague, according to audit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's procurement regulations are so vague that major defense contractors have been allowed to bill the government for millions of dollars spent on outside consultants without justifying or explaining the work they did, a special audit has found.

In a review of 12 of the Top 100 defense contractors, the auditors labeled as "questionable" claims for $43 million out of the $236.5 million they charged to the government over the past year for consultant services.

The Defense Contract Audit Agency, which conducted the special review, also blasted the contractors for "non-existent discipline" when it came to controlling or even documenting their outside consultant expenses.

The agency further expressed concern about the number of consultants it encountered "who were former high-level DoD military and civilian personnel."

"We found that contractors were spending considerable sums supplementing and complementing virtually every in-house activity with professional and consultant services," the auditors wrote.

Under existing Federal Acquisition Regulations, the auditors continued, a defense contractor may bill the government for its expenses on outside consultants as long as it can show "evidence of the nature and scope of the service furnished."

That standard is so loose that it does not force contractors to document truly what they are paying for, the audit concluded.

"The current Federal Acquisition Regulations' cost principle is not effective in assuring that only allowable costs are claimed under DoD contracts," the audit said.

The Pentagon, in releasing the special audit this morning, announced it had already written new regulations to address the DCAA's concerns. A public comment period on the new regulations will end Dec. 5, at which point they can be made final, the Pentagon said.

GOP leader predicts victories

AUSTIN (AP) — With George Bush heading the Republican ticket, the party's candidates are poised to win "from the courthouse to the White House," the Texas GOP chairman says.

"Sixty percent of the people of Texas define themselves ... as conservatives, 26 percent as liberal. We think that philosophically, the vast majority of the voters of Texas believe as Republicans do and have our positions on the issues," said Republican Chairman Fred Meyer.

With Tuesday's election almost at hand, Meyer said Thursday that he expects the party to pick up five to 10 seats in the Texas

House and do well in other down-ballot races.

"This is going to be a watershed year in Texas politics, the time the Republican Party really comes into its own from the courthouse to the White House," Meyer said.

He said sharp differences between "conservative" Bush and "liberal" Democrat Michael Dukakis have shown up for the first time in positions taken by each presidential hopeful.

"This year, with the difference of position on the important issues to Texans like taxes, gun control, on aid to the freedom fighters (in Nicaragua), strong national defense, tough on crime, all those things ... We now have a very sharp split. We think that's going to be reflected up and down the ballot," he said.

Meyer said he expects to add to the party's 56 seats in the Texas House, reaching between 61 and 66 for the 1989 Legislature. "We've got good candidates, much better candidates than we've ever had before," he said. If the GOP doesn't gain House seats this year, he said, "We will have missed a great opportunity."

Democratic leaders in recent days have accused Republicans of trying to intimidate minority voters, particularly in the Rio Grande Valley, to keep them from voting. Meyer denied GOP involvement and said he wasn't surprised by the accusation.

"Democrats reach down into the bottom of their bag every election and do two things: they charge racism and they charge voter intimidation ... This is a standard dirty trick. It happens every election, particularly it's happening this year, I think, because they're pretty desperate."

In other political developments Thursday: — Attorney General Jim Mattox said he would have assistants in several cities on alert Election Day to answer any legal questions over election laws at polling places around the state.

"We want to ensure that this important election is conducted fairly and with the utmost integrity. There must be no attempts to intimidate or threaten voters," said Mattox, a Democrat.

— A group called Farmers and Ranchers for Dukakis-Bentsen issued a statement saying 1,500 of their number in Texas would be involved in Democratic get-out-the-vote efforts Tuesday.

"Since November of 1987 we have been losing about 175 farms a week in Texas ... I think it's a sad state of affairs when the very foundation of this country is ignored by the Republican administration," said Rep. Kika De La Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

— John Humphreys, Democratic primary opponent of Texas Supreme Court Justice Ted Robertson in the race for chief justice, endorsed Robertson's GOP opponent. "I believe Chief Justice Tom Phillips will restore the integrity and dignity of our state's highest court," Humphreys said.

— Richard Jensen, consultant to Robertson's campaign, said that Phillips' cap on campaign contributions is a ploy and his advertising is deceptive.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Nov. 6, 1988

Something you've always wanted but felt you could never afford could be within reach in the year ahead. Your financial prospects are starting to look more and more encouraging.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your involvements with others today, you could be the one who ultimately derives the greatest benefits, even though your intentions won't be self-serving. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when someone you thought was never too fond of you expresses to others how really great you are.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your standing in the eyes of others will be elevated today, because you won't be reluctant to take on assignments or responsibilities they have been ducking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It pays to be observant today, because you can profit from studying the experiences of others. What you learn could be applicable in your own life at a later date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be a bit more protective than usual of loved ones today, especially in situations where they have to deal with people who have given them problems previously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Finding compatible companions to pal around with should be easy for you today. You will be the one who sets the example they'll want to emulate. Your charm is contagious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be sincere in your dealings with others today, but also make it a point to compliment the deserving. Kind words will have enormous impact and will not be readily forgotten.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Any flirtation on your part will be taken seriously by the target of your intentions, so be sure you're really interested before you start sending signals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A situation you felt would be difficult to manage looks like it will work out with relative ease today. Don't anticipate negative results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In meaningful relationships, don't be hesitant about using terms of endearment. People who like you are equally anxious to know you care for them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There are indications that you may be repaid today for a favor you went out of your way to do for another. Good deeds are coming home to roost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your assertiveness is apt to be pronounced today, but none are likely to find your actions offensive. Your motives will be masked with charm and sincerity.

Nov. 7, 1988

There will be big shifts in conditions in the year ahead that you should find to your liking. You are not apt to be the one who triggers them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions continue to look favorable where your material interests are concerned. Give matters that can add to your resources top priority. Major changes are ahead for Scorpio in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Effective, practical measures can be taken today to bring about something for which you've been hoping. Strive to be optimistic and realistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your greatest asset today is your ability to take full opportunities and turn them into something grand. It looks like you may use your gift in two areas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone new is about to enter your life. This person could figure prominently and positively in your affairs. The introduction will be made by an old pal.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Joint ventures could work out well at this time, especially if you link up with someone who can contribute knowledge you lack.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might be required to make a serious decision today, yet you'll take it in stride. Past experience and knowledge should enable you to make the right move.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Testy conditions are likely where your work or career is concerned. However, they shouldn't faze you. You'll be in your element meeting and overcoming difficult developments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An old ally who always seems to be available won't fail you today, stepping into the picture right on cue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are still in a favorable trend for finalizing sticky matters that have been left hanging. Don't leave any loose ends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An unexpected opportunity may present itself today that will enable you to discuss with a friend a matter that has caused you to be uneasy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone with whom you have strong emotional bonds might make it possible to acquire something you've been wanting for a long time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A personal interest can be substantially advanced today if you have the persistence and tenacity to see it through. Set a specific goal and go for it.

Norway confirms diversion of heavy water to India

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Fifteen tons of heavy water that could be used to make nuclear weapons were illegally diverted to India, authorities said Friday. They fear India may have used the material in a secret weapons program.

India did not sign the 1968 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and is known to have tested nuclear devices. The Indian government, however, has denied that it operates a nuclear arms program.

Tor Axel Busch, Norway's deputy public director of prosecutions, Friday confirmed reports that heavy water was flown from Norway to Basel, Switzerland, where it was rerouted via Dubai to Bombay, India. The reports were published last summer in the Oslo newspaper Verdens Gang.

A West German firm bought the heavy water in 1982 for scientific use in West Germany. It denies any diversion.

The New York Times reported in Friday's editions that the Norwegian heavy water, while en route to India, was combined with a shipment of 6.7 tons of Soviet heavy water purchased by the same broker.

Busch was away from his office in northern Norway Friday and not available for comment. Bu his office relayed a statement to The Associated Press in which said he has heard unconfirmed reports of the Soviet shipment but that he knows nothing about it.

FACTS ABOUT WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION

1. The Texas Legislature will pass and the governor will sign a law to reform the workman's compensation system.
2. Plaintiff lawyers will challenge the constitutionality of the new workman's compensation reform law.
3. The future of the bill will be decided by the Texas Supreme Court which currently is influenced by plaintiff attorneys.
4. The only hope for the economic future of Texas is to elect a Supreme Court which will decide this and all cases on the merits of law—not on the basis of campaign contributions.
5. The Choice is Clear on Nov. 8. Texans can put a majority on the 9-member Texas Supreme Court as six seats are on the ballot.

Show biz standouts, business chieftains among contributors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Mary Tyler Moore and TV producer Norman Lear are among a wide range of celebrities, financiers and others who gave large sums to the Democratic National Committee in the past year, according to party records.

Notables who made sizable contributions of less than $100,000 included: California state legislator Tom Hayden, the husband of actress Jane Fonda, $60,000; Miss Moore, $10,000; Miami Dolphins owner Joseph Robbie, $50,000, and Lear, $25,000.

The information was contained in DNC records filed in Austin, Texas.

The funds were given to the national committee's "soft money" account, which does not have to conform to limits imposed on the candidates and the political parties by the Federal Election Commission.

The so-called soft money accounts are largely transferred by both the Republican and Democratic National Committees to state parties.

Democratic National Chairman Paul G. Kirk Jr. has said he would disclose details of the committee's soft-money fund raising after the election.

Texas law, however, requires the parties to file either a list of donors or a Federal Election Commission registration record when they transfer money into the state from elsewhere.

Since the soft money was not raised under federal limits, the Democrats were required to submit a list of donors.

Those listed as contributing $100,000 were:

Andrew A. Athens, Chicago; Robert M. Bass, Fort Worth; Eli Broad of Kaufman & Broad, Los Angeles; Ann Cox Chambers, Atlanta; Richard D. Cohen, Boston; Marvin Davis, Los Angeles; Mark Dayton, Minneapolis; Richard J. Dennis, president of Richard J. Dennis and Co., Chicago;

Dennis, Chicago; Barry Diller, 20th Century Fox, Los Angeles; Sandra Ferry, Cambridge, Mass.; Susie Field, Interscope Investments; Frederick Field, Interscope Investments, Los Angeles; John Freidenrich, Mountain View, Calif.; Monte Friedkin, Hallandale, Fla.; Mitchell Kapor, Cambridge, Mass.;

 "WHUT! WHUP! WHAT! I mean what do you MEAN do I think you could get AIDS!"
 "I'm just interested, that's all."
 "Good grief pal, you're nine-years-old. Getting AIDS should be the last thing in the world you have to worry about."
 "Yea, but I've been thinking about it."
 "Someone has told you something, I can tell. Has some chucklehead been filling you up with a bunch of fooyoey? What kind of junk have you heard?"
 "Nothing, I told you. Never mind."
 "Wait, wait. You asked me a question and I'm going to answer it. Do I think you could get AIDS? The answer is no. Now, let me tell you what I know about that. Someone could have gotten AIDS from a blood transfusion, but that was a million years ago and a million-to-one shot. Anyway, you haven't had any blood transfusions so I'm not worried about that."
 "Is that the only way?"
 "No. People who use needles to shoot drugs can get AIDS if they use a dirty needle that had been used by someone else with AIDS."

"That's sick dad."
 "It's sad, that's true, but as far as I know you are not an intravenous drug user and you don't know any intravenous drug users and so there is no way you could get AIDS that way."
 "Is that it?"
 "No. There's one more way. You can get AIDS if you have sex with someone who has it."
 "SEX!"
 "Yea, sex."
 "If you have sex you get AIDS?"
 "I didn't say that."
 "But by having sex you get AIDS?"
 "No, no, no. First off, you have to be around someone who has AIDS. Then, you can get it from them."
 "By having sex?"
 "That's what I said. But it's a whole bunch more complicated than that. You can't just get it by only hanging around them."
 "You mean like kissing?"
 "Not exactly. What I mean by that is, just kissing them on the cheek or something doesn't mean you'll get AIDS. It's a little more serious than that. And it's also something you have plenty of time to learn about. Like when you're 30. Now, you tell me what you've heard."

 "Let me ask you a question first. Can you get it by drinking after somebody?"
 "Absolutely not. Let me say that again. Absolutely, no-way Jose, not."
 "Good."
 "Is that what you've been worried about?"
 "Okay, here's the deal. I let this kid have a drink of my Coke. And some other kids told me that he had AIDS."
 "Old buddy, let me say this about that. Somebody's pulling your string. Somebody's telling you a bunch of bunk just to watch you holler. Let me say it plainer. No one you know has AIDS and no one can get AIDS by drinking after someone who has it."
 "Well then, is there AIDS in Snyder, Texas?"
 "All I can say is, I hope not and I really don't want to talk about AIDS anymore. What else have you got on your tiny mind?"
 "Nothing."
 "No, go ahead. There's something else, I can tell."
 "Dad, are we going to have a nuclear war?"

Every once in a while, a television program hits the airways that is so beautifully done, so richly talented in the writing, so well-cast, that each episode leaves you a little disappointed because you are not quite ready for it to end yet. In fact, after only four half-hour pre-writer's strike episodes, this program won the Emmy award for Best New Comedy Series. That's why I'm going to use this space to do something I've never done before: endorse a TV show.

Admittedly, those of us most drawn to the show fit the "Baby Boomer" age group, but older audiences will smile in recognition, and my kids, ages 11 and 8, wouldn't miss it. It's called "The Wonder Years" (8 p.m. Wednesdays on ABC).

The format is unusual: it's set in the year 1968, when the main character, "Kevin" (played by Fred Savage), is 12 years old. Yet the story is narrated by an unseen adult — Kevin, all grown up, looking back, remembering what it was like to start junior high in a year when the world seemed to be exploding around us, but our dads still came home at 5:30 every night and our moms were there waiting for us every day after school.

The power of this story, for all us Boomers, is that it is a funny, poignant reminder of what it was like to be the very last generation to grow up in innocence. In one early episode, the 19-year-old across the street who spent his days working on an old car and was Kevin's hero, went off to Vietnam and was killed. That evening, Kevin took off down the sidewalk, hands in pockets, scuffing his feet, and the invisible grown-up Kevin says, "Back then kids could go for a walk alone at dusk without fear of winding up on a milk carton."

Our childhoods were spent in the days of Mamie and Ike, the hoola-hoop and tract houses, grape Ne-hi and dime treats from the ice cream man. All the families were large and neighborhoods packed with kids. We never saw any black children because they lived in separate neighborhoods and went to different schools. If a family erupted into violence it was considered scandalous and was talked about in whispers. Child abuse was never mentioned.

Movies weren't rated because there was no need, and on television, couples slept in twin beds, even though none of our parents did. About the wildest thing you heard in rock music was songs like, "Smokin' in the Boy's Room," or how Charlie Brown, the clown, called the teacher

"Daddio." And everyone giggled about the "Little Bitty, Teensy, Weensy, Yellow Polka-Dot Bikini." (Nobody wore them though, not even in the movies. Girls wore demure "two-piece" suits with little skirts on them.) Mothers still didn't mention sex to their daughters until the night before her wedding, and if a girl got pregnant before she was married, she was sent away to live with relatives so that no one would know.

By the year 1968, I was 16 years old, and already the world had undergone cataclysmic changes, but there was something about that year that seemed to grab the fabric of common decency and rip it asunder until there were no standards left. The country recoiled in horror when Martin Luther King, a man who had preached nothing but love, peace, and non-violent co-existence all his life, was brutally shot to death. Streets erupted into violence, and as summer heat intensified, Bobby Kennedy was assassinated just for trying to run for president — he hadn't even been elected yet, or even nominated.

Every Friday on the TV News we were treated to the latest "body counts" from Vietnam, and every single Friday, the enemy had a higher body count. Even a teenager could figure out that somebody, somewhere, was lying.

Riots paralyzed college campuses, and parents, many of whom had grown up in grinding Depression-year poverty and had made great sacrifices to provide these educations to their offspring, staggered under the rebellion, feeling betrayed. They had to start rating the movies because of all the violence and sex. Rock music began to scream about "revolution," while the Beatles dropped acid. Something called a "Birth Control Pill" removed the single greatest deterrent to pre-marital sex: fear of pregnancy. Parents coped by pretending that nothing had changed, a disastrous mistake for many of them.

I don't think there's ever been a harder time to be young.

In a way, we were pathfinders, groping our own way to survival in a new world. "The Wonder Years" examines that journey with warmth and laughter and tears, and the whole family enjoys it. TV Guide says, "Watching 'The Wonder Years' is like eating a dish of rich, homemade ice cream on a hot day. It leaves you with a good feeling, a sense of having enjoyed one of life's small but eminently satisfying pleasures." It brings back that same feeling we had in our youth when life's mysteries awaited discovery and we couldn't wait to begin the search. That summer before seventh grade, in the year 1968 was, the narrator says, "the last summer of my innocence." And so it was for us all.

ANOTHER NIGHTMARE ON ELM STREET

MONDAY October 31

Scurry County commissioners Monday appointed Dr. James R. Burleson to serve on the county airport board and approved a low bid for the purchase of a used dump truck to be used in Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr.'s Pct. 3.

A heavy thunderstorm at Ira around 1 a.m. Monday dumped up to 1.7 inches of rain and peized hail while simultaneously causing an electrical outage which affected TU Electric customers in Ira, Snyder and Hermleigh.

The Ira area was singled out for the rainfall as rain amounts elsewhere in Scurry County were minimal.

The unemployment estimate for Scurry County during September was listed at 5.8 percent, approximately the same level reported all through the summer here, it was reported Monday.

The number of persons said employed took a drop from the previous month, however, as summer jobs came to an end.

The firing range used by the Canyon Gun Club here has recently been renovated to make it comply with Texas Department of Corrections standards—improvements prompted by the TDC guard training course now underway at Western Texas College, it was reported Monday.

The range has been changed to at least 25 shooting stations and a firing line distance of 50 yards.

The result, according to Mike Thornton, liaison staffer for the college with TDC, was "equal to or better than any range TDC has anywhere."

TUESDAY November 1

Snyder High School seniors left no doubt about their preference for George Bush in a mock election held Tuesday at the school, giving Bush 113 votes to Michael Dukakis' 44.

Voting on the entire Nov. 8 ballot as a social studies project, the students made it closer in the United States Senate race, with incumbent Democrat and vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen receiving 85 votes to Republican Beau Boulter's 74.

WEDNESDAY November 2

The attendance drive for the month of October in Snyder public schools has ended with an average daily attendance (ADA) of 96.7 percent.

This "push" for enrollment may have saved the district as much as a $279,000 drop in state funding for next year, it was noted Wednesday.

In October, the ADA figure for all Texas school districts is used as the basis for state funding for the following year.

For September of this year, Snyder's ADA was 3,163 students, and October's attendance drive managed to raise this to 3,351—a "plus" of 188 students.

THURSDAY November 3

In letters received by Scurry County teachers, Pete Greene, Democratic candidate for district judge, has accused incumbent Republican Gene Dulaney of employing a private investigator to "conduct an investigation into my background."

In response, Dulaney said Thursday that his wife Mary initiated the investigation related to Greene following a candidate's rally held here Feb. 22.

In addition, the couple said when Mary Dulaney first proposed the idea, it was rejected by her husband. Her decision to continue with the plan, they said, was done without Dulaney's knowledge or consent.

Building permits in Snyder got off to a slow start during October with new construction estimates at $91,564 for the start of the fiscal year.

By comparison, the city's fiscal year last October began with a $480,000 month.

As their high school counterparts did Tuesday, a large majority of Snyder Junior High School students indicated Thursday a preference for Republican presidential candidate George Bush.

Casting ballots in a mock election poll, 67 percent of 442 students voting favored Bush over Democratic opponent Michael Dukakis.

Artificial limb will be a help

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Due to osteoarthritis I have had one knee joint replaced. My other knee is pretty bad now and it will have to be replaced soon. Will there be two false knees more difficult than one?

DEAR READER: If your own knee is so painful and stiff that walking is uncomfortable, you will probably be better off with a second artificial knee.

You may have to be especially careful of two synthetic knees, and you may need physical therapy to strengthen your legs, but you'll certainly be more mobile.

Ask your orthopedic surgeon to give you a full explanation of what to expect.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Understanding Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter, age 40, has been diagnosed with MS but I think she has Cushing's syndrome as well; she looks and acts just exactly like the description in the medical book. How can we find out?

DEAR READER: Multiple sclerosis is a diagnosis of exclusion. In other words, there is no definitive lab test, other neurological disorders that mimic MS are ruled out until MS is left, by exclusion.

On the other hand, Cushing's syndrome is a constellation of symptoms and signs, such as easy bruising, round face, diabetes and weakness. It results from an overabundance of cortisone in the body and is easily diagnosed by blood tests. The doctor measures the amount of serum cortisol (cortisone) both before and after the administration of dexamethasone, a synthetic steroid drug. The dexamethasone should shut off the body's production of cortisol, thereby lowering the amount measured by the second blood test. In Cushing's syndrome, dexamethasone does not reduce serum cortisol.

If you are concerned that your daughter has Cushing's syndrome, her physician could perform the necessary blood tests or refer her to an endocrinologist for evaluation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In our part of the country there is a long-held belief that women can stand the cold better than men because they have a thin layer of extra fat that keeps them warm. Is this accurate?

DEAR READER: Anyone who has extra fat has additional insulation against cold. Therefore, as a general rule, stout people appear to be more resistant to cold than do thin individuals.

Unless the women in your part of the country are fatter than the men, there will be no gender-related tolerance to cold. The issue is one of body-build, not sexual identity.

All things being equal, thin women will feel the cold about as much as thin men.

Medical ethics deserve note

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

The new buzz-word in medical circles is "ethics." Judging from the deluge of articles in doctors' professional journals, you'd think that physicians don't know enough to come in out of the rain.

Medical schools increasingly are offering didactic course-work in ethics and, in some teaching hospitals, ethicists are making patient-rounds with the residents. Many hospitals have formed ethics committees to provide guidance in difficult situations.

In its broadest sense, "ethics" refers to how physicians behave toward one another and with patients. This includes fundamental issues of honesty, plagiarism, patients' expectations, a philosophy of practice (i.e. "good" doctor vs. "bad" doctor), greed, patient treatment-refusals, discontinuation of aggressive therapy of terminal illness, and euthanasia.

In its narrowest sense, "ethics" has primarily been viewed as pertaining to death, in the forms of "active" or "passive" euthanasia. This has quite extensively (and properly) been addressed by the President's Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine and Biomedical and Behavioral Research.

I used to believe that neophyte healers entered medical school with a well-developed system of ethics. They knew right from wrong. Now I'm not so sure. Last year, Time magazine featured a cover story about "moral disarray in America." Evidently, in our decade of spiritual exhaustion, we've been neglecting something called conscience. This handicap may be affecting a whole generation of young people who often seem preoccupied with materialism and me-ism. This preoccupation may make for wealthy stockbrokers and businessmen, but it's the kiss of death for doctors.

Despite the bad press, I hope that today's doctor-to-be will continue to enjoy a solid foundation of ethical behavior, because I believe that most young people know deep down what a good doctor should be. Decency, fairness, consideration and compassion remain the cornerstones of ethical medical practice. These qualities can be fine-tuned through the process of education, but I think they're basically present (or absent) by the time a child reaches the age of 12.

On the other hand, euthanasia is a trickier topic because, in most instances, decisions are made on a case-by-case basis. In addition, non-medical people — lawyers, clergy and ordinary men and women — have become anxious about how medical technology has altered both the concept and the natural history of death itself. Actually, the line between "active" and "passive" euthanasia has been blurred; the President's Commission chooses to refer to "actions that lead to death" and "omissions that lead to death," rather than "killing" and "letting die." Here is where we need help — from the law, academia, philosophy and patients themselves.

While the subject is being debated, I trust that physicians will continue to adhere to that part of the Hippocratic oath ("To please no one will I prescribe a deadly drug, nor give advice which may cause his death"), which has guided the healing profession for centuries.

In short, not doing something to keep someone alive is ethical, murder is not. If we break the rule, as we sometimes do, we must be prepared to face the consequences.

All practicing doctors have the wherewithal to kill patients. Conscience and honor prevent us from exercising this frightening power. And we must always resist this temptation, expedient though it may be, to use this power. If we give in to the relativists, we will abdicate the trust and respect placed in us by the public.

In the final analysis, most ethical issues can be reduced to right and wrong. In the process of deciding these issues, we mustn't lose sight of a crucial moral dictum, so deceptively simple that it is almost a cliché: Above all, do no harm.

City lawyer's office blamed for destruction of records

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas Police department report says the city attorney's office was aware that sensitive internal police documents were being illegally destroyed over the past two years but took no action to stop it.

The report did blame one officer, but placed most of the blame on the city attorney's office for failing to warn the department against "purging" records requested under the Texas Open Records Act.

The records of 253 full-fledged investigations into complaints against police officers were improperly destroyed, as were files containing the results of 402 preliminary investigations, according to the report by Capt. W.R. Rollins of the police Intelligence Division.

The report said nearly 150 of them were destroyed after a January 1988 directive from the city secretary's office requiring that such documents be retained.

Twenty-one months of files which should have been retained had been purged," Rollins said in his report.

Police Chief Mack Vines ordered the investigation in September when he discovered that records from the Internal Affairs Division were missing and could not be produced to comply with a court order stemming from an Open Records Act lawsuit the city filed against County Commissioner John Wiley Price, Attorney General Jim Mattox and the Dallas Times Herald.

Vines lodged complaints against two captains who had headed the division during the 21 months the records were being improperly purged, and shortly thereafter a lieutenant became the third subject of the police investigation that resulted from Vines' complaints.

The investigation exonerated Capt. Roger Duncan, who headed the Internal Affairs Division until late last year, and his top assistant Lt. Douglas Kowalski.

Capt. Dwight Walker, who headed the division until last month, was removed from office and transferred to a patrol division after the investigation.

The investigation concluded that he should have known of a January 1988 city directive against destroying documents that had been the object of formal requests under the Texas Open Records Act.

Glenn Holley, an assistant city attorney who performed legal liaison duties for the police department, said in a written statement he was "familiar with the IAD policy of purging its records every two years."

But he said, however, that he had "never been asked if this policy should be suspended for any reason."

James Chandler, a detective formerly assigned to Internal Affairs, also said four other assistant city attorneys knew that the division routinely destroyed its investigative files on complaints against officers after two years.

But Assistant City Attorney Ed Perry, the principal legal adviser to the department in its open records dispute with Price, Mattox and this newspaper, said in a written statement attached to Rollins' report that he had no knowledge of the policy.

City Attorney Analesie Muncy said she had reviewed Capt. Rollins' report but defended her staff attorneys on grounds they were not aware records were being destroyed.

"I don't think there's any reason to take any disciplinary action," she said. "I think we can certainly improve our procedures."

Soviets suspend troop withdrawal

MOSCOW (AP) — A top Foreign Ministry spokesman today said the Soviet Union has suspended its troop withdrawal from Afghanistan because of heavy attacks by rebels and hinted the pullout might not be completed by a Feb. 15 deadline.

"The Soviet troops are being withdrawn due to the goodwill of the Soviet government," First Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh told a news conference. "They will be withdrawn in honorable conditions."

The current atmosphere of heavy attacks by insurgents with arms supplied by the United States, Pakistan and other countries "does not provide conditions for such a withdrawal of Soviet troops," Bessmertnykh said.

Attorneys file briefs saying whistleblowers harrassed

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Three Hispanic FBI agents are asking a federal judge to make the FBI stop harassing and intimidating them for participating in a successful racial discrimination suit against the bureau.

FBI officials deny the harassment allegations.

The 32-page document filed Thursday in U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's court contains affidavits from three Hispanic agents who contend they have been singled out and treated unfairly since Bunton ruled Sept. 30 that the FBI discriminates against Hispanics in promotions and job conditions.

Bernardo "Matt" Perez, who initiated the class-action lawsuit in January 1987, contends in his affidavit that many of his duties as No. 2 man in the El Paso office have been taken away, and that his boss has intimidated another agent for talking to reporters about the case.

An agent in Miami says in his affidavit that he needs psychiatric care for a traumatic stint as an undercover foreign counter-intelligence agent, but that the bureau has refused to grant security clearance to a psychiatrist outside the FBI.

An Albuquerque agent contends in his affidavit that his gun and car were stripped from him under the pretext of a medical condition.

FBI spokesman Gregory Jones, told of the allegations Wednesday, said from FBI headquarters in Washington that "any intimidation or retaliation would be illegal and intolerable, and would result in an FBI inquiry."

The three agents who submitted the affidavits testified in the two-week, non-jury trial before Bunton in August. The 311 Latino agents who joined the suit successfully argued that the FBI assigned them less-desirable jobs, promoted them too slowly and didn't give them the recognition they deserved for their successes.

Bunton will rule on damages in future hearings. He implied in his Sept. 30 decision that monetary damages might be small or non-existent, and that he might order the FBI to change the way it operates.

In his affidavit, Perez contends that since the verdict was announced, "I have been purposely divorced from many of the administrative operations of the office, and from my day-to-day management responsibilities."

Perez' boss, agent-in-charge Richard Schwein, said the allegation is "not true."

"He carries out the day-to-day operations in this office, and everyone in this office reports to him except me," Schwein said Thursday.

Schwein said he saw a TV interview of one Hispanic agent in El Paso on the night of the decision, and that he talked to the man about it later.

"I said, 'Hey, pal, you didn't say you were speaking as a citizen and not as a special agent of the FBI,'" Schwein said, adding that he dropped the matter when the agent explained that such a comment had been edited out.

Schwein said he feels more hurt than angry about Perez' allegations.

DEMOCRAT - Pol. Adv. by Judge Chuck Miller Campaign Comm., Kate Kelley Miller, Treas., 1705 Wild Basin Lodge, Austin, Texas 78746

On Sunday, March 23, 1986, Jack Huddleston was murdered at the Allsup's store in Snyder. Gene Dulaney was the District Judge at that time. He had a hard job to do and he did it with statewide recognition. He was admired for his fair and impartial judgements.

The issue of the money spent on prosecution was brought up by his opponent. We would like to express our opinion about this. We feel that if anyone had the right to protest the money used to defend the one who murdered Jack Huddleston it was us. However we do not protest this. We support Judge Dulaney as taxpayers and appreciate the value that he places on human life.

Jack Huddleston was a born Democrat. However on election day in 1984 he broke his tradition. Dulaney was the only Republican that we know of that Jack ever voted for. We are Democrats also, but we care more about Snyder than our traditions. We're voting for Gene Dulaney as a judge who has proven himself many times over.

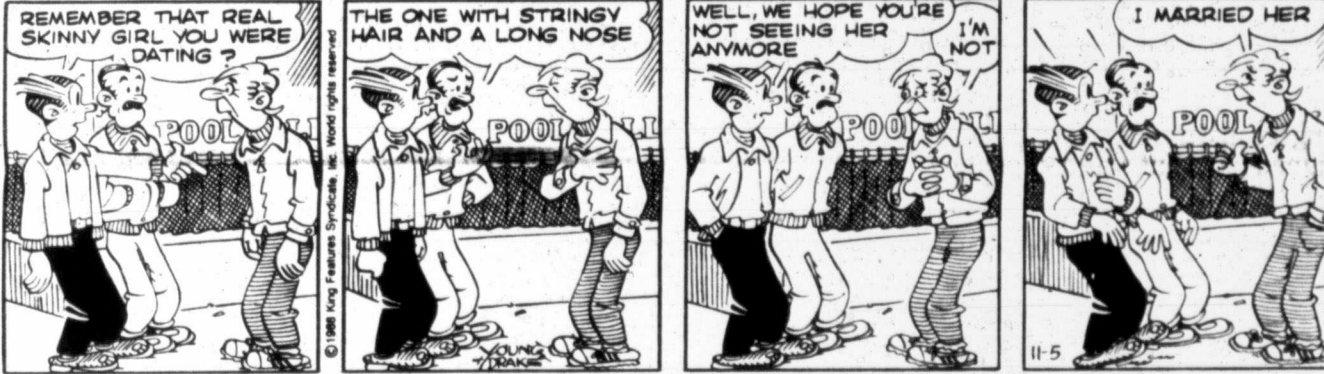

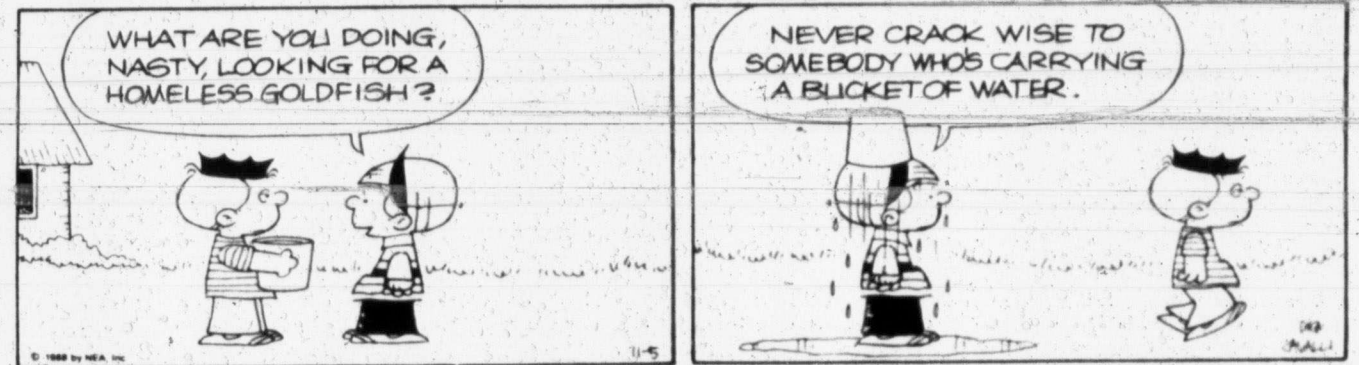

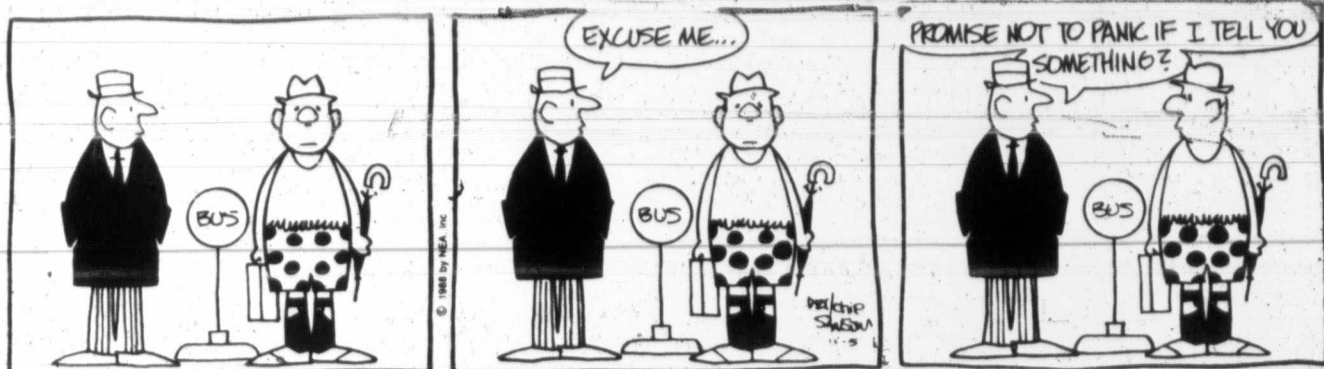

Gene Dulaney has displayed a rare and unusual character in his campaign. He shows respect for his opponent as an individual and refrains from revealing some facts that could publicly shame his opponent.

Being a people's judge must be very hard, because humans make mistakes. Thank God for Gene Dulaney and his impartial judgements.

Supporting Gene Dulaney with your votes is supporting Snyder for another four years.

Gubernatorial races spark little interest Texans have special interest in 1988 presidential election

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It often seems that voters seek flash and charisma when electing presidents or members of Congress, but want quiet competence when electing governors. So, most of the governors running for re-election in November should win easily even though few are very well known outside their own states.

Most states have their gubernatorial election scheduled for years when there is no presidential election. Thus, only 12 state executive mansions are up for grabs this year, as compared to 34 that will be at stake in 1990.

Of the 12 governors' offices at stake in November, eight are currently controlled by Republicans, four by Democrats. This is something of a fluke because 27 current governors are Democrats, while 23 are Republicans.

Three of the four contests for Democratic seats feature incumbents: George Sinner in North Dakota, Madeleine Kunin in Vermont and Booth Gardner in Washington state. Sinner and Gardner are expected to win easily. Both of Kunin's previous victories have been narrow, and she is getting a good run from state House minority leader Michael Bernhardt. Despite this, she is favored to win.

The fourth Democratic contest is interesting. With Gov. Ted Schwinden of Montana retiring, the GOP thought it had a potential winner in Secretary of State Jim Waltermire. But he was killed in a plane crash.

So, now the contest is between former Democratic Gov. Thomas Judge, whose political career was put on hold when Schwinden defeated him in the Democratic primary in 1980, and retired conservative state Sen. Stan Stephens.

Both candidates have image problems. Judge was battered by Schwinden in 1980, and Stephens faces charges that he is too conservative. A tight race is developing in Montana.

Six current Republican governors are running for re-election: Michael Castle in Delaware, John Ashcroft in Missouri, James Martin in North Carolina, Edward DiPrete in Rhode Island, Arch Moore in West Virginia and land, Arch Moore in West Virginia and Norman Bangerter in Utah. All but Bangerter are clear favorites to win another term.

The Utah race is probably this year's hot gubernatorial contest. Bangerter has been roundly condemned for breaking his pledge not to introduce any new taxes when he pushed through a major tax increase last year. He is being challenged by popular former Salt Lake City Mayor Ted Wilson. Observers believe Bangerter's best hope is that George Bush wins big in Utah and has long coattails.

Incumbent Republican governors are retiring in New Hampshire and Indiana. Both are solid Republican states, but in both the gubernatorial contests have become interesting.

In New Hampshire, attorney Paul McEachern ran well when he lost to John Sununu in 1986. The Democrat was geared up to try again when Sununu surprised everyone by announcing his retirement. Now McEachern is facing Judd Gregg, a popular GOP congressman. Gregg has none of the significant negatives that Sununu had developed from his support of the controversial Seabrook nuclear plant, the issue in New Hampshire. Gregg has become the favorite.

In Indiana, GOP Lt. Gov. John Mutz would figure to be an odds-on favorite to replace Republican Gov. Robert Orr, who, by state law, cannot succeed himself. But the Democratic candidate is Secretary of State Evan Bayh, son of the former Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh.

Mutz had based much of his campaign on the fact that Bayh, 32, lacks experience. But this strategy was badly undercut when the Republicans selected Dan Quayle as their vice presidential candidate.

For Bayh to win he will have to run far in front of Michael Dukakis. Birch Bayh was able to vastly outpoll Democratic presidential candidates. There is a question if his son can.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans cast ballots Tuesday in a race that has a Texan on each presidential ticket and Democrats urging people to vote twice — legally — for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Vice President George Bush, who moved to Texas in 1948 and still calls Houston home, led in every opinion poll taken since mid-summer despite Bentsen's position as Democratic running mate to Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Dukakis campaigners insisted in the final days that they were narrowing the gap. And polls showed Bentsen well ahead in his second race, for re-election to a fourth Senate term, which is allowed under a 1959 law passed so Lyndon Johnson could seek re-election to the Senate and run for the White House.

Down the ballot, heated campaigns are being waged for the unprecedented six openings on the Texas Supreme Court, and Texans also will be choosing 150 members of the state House and half the state Senate.

With 29 electoral votes, Texas is the nation's third-largest Election Day prize and serves as a power base for Bush. His campaign has been pushed by every leading Texas Republican, including Gov. Bill Clements, U. S. Sen. Phil Gramm and former senator John Tower.

Dukakis tried to revive the 1960 "Boston-Austin axis," when John F. Kennedy chose Johnson as his running mate, by selecting Bentsen to run with him. But several Democratic politicians said Dukakis' choice of Bentsen instead gave voters a chance to vote for both Bush and Bentsen and block straight-ticket Republican voting.

"I think Bentsen is having a very obvious effect on the coattails. If any Democrat survives a close race, it will be because of Lloyd Bentsen," said Democratic state Rep. Stan Schlueter.

In that Senate race, Amarillo Congressman Beau Boulter campaigned hard but was outspent by Bentsen. According to Sept. 30 campaign finance reports, Bentsen had raised about $8.5 million to the Republican challenger's $1.5 million.

Boulter began his campaign by criticizing Bentsen for "riding two horses at once" with his dual candidacy.

As the campaign drew to a close, Boulter also accused Bentsen of turning his back on Dukakis and concentrating on his re-election bid. "He has no commitment to any philosophy under the sun as far as I can see. He is the most elitist, special-interest, backroom powerbroker politician this country has ever seen in its history," Boulter charged.

Throughout the campaign, Bentsen pointed to the state law that wouldn't allow him to withdraw from the Senate race without giving the office to the Republicans. And besides, he argued, Texans enjoy having him as chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Jack Devore, a spokesman for Bentsen's Senate campaign, said Boulter's last-minute criticism was a desperation move. "He seems to be coming apart at the seams," Devore said.

U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth faced no opposition, and Democratic officials said they hoped their candidates would pick up one or two seats in congressional races to expand their 17-10 lead.

Some of the closest races looked to be those in Boulter's Panhandle district, where Democratic state Sen. Bill Sarpalius faced Republican Larry Milner, and in the south-central district of Republican Rep. Mac Sweeney, who was challenged by Democrat Greg Laughlin.

Due in part to negative national publicity given the Texas Supreme Court after its refusal last year to even hear the $11 billion judgment against Texaco Inc. in its battle with Pennzoil, this year's court races have been unusually heated.

Resignations by Democrats allowed Republican Gov. Bill Clements to appoint three GOP justices this year, including Chief Justice Tom Phillips. The remainder of those terms, plus three other regular openings, are up for election.

The chief justice candidates — Phillips and Democratic Justice Ted Z. Robertson — each raised more than $1.8 million for their races and both flooded the airwaves with television commercials.

The big-money aspects of the Supreme Court races also were illustrated by a political committee organized by plaintiffs' lawyers, Fund for a Democratic Texas, to give $1 million to help Democratic court candidates.

Republicans also are matched against Democratic incumbents in two of the three races for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, and a Libertarian faces a Democratic incumbent in the other race.

Canadian television broadcasting began in Montreal in 1952.

Texas Air posts third quarter loss of $114.1 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Air Corp., parent company of Continental Airlines and Eastern Airlines, said Friday it lost $114.1 million during a third quarter that traditionally is strong.

The loss was 57 percent worse than the $72.8 million in losses experienced by the airline holding company in the same period a year ago.

For the three months ending

Sept. 30, Texas Air losses amounted to $3.05 per share on revenues of $2.13 billion, compared to $1.97 per share on revenues of $2.2 billion for the same period a year ago.

Houston-based Continental recorded a profit of $15.2 million on total revenues of $1.2 billion for the quarter. In the same quarter in 1987, Continental lost $10.2 million on revenues of $1.1 billion.

"Continental's modest profit signals that financial progress continues to be made at the company. However, in view of the fact that the quarter is traditionally one of the company's strongest, the results are clearly unsatisfactory," a Texas Air statement said.

TWO THINGS TEXANS DON'T LIKE ARE BAD HIGHWAYS AND BROKEN PROMISES.

The money we send to Washington every time we fill up our cars comes back to Texas. The government promises that this money will be spent to build, repair and maintain our highways.

Diverting those Federal Highway Trust dollars to some other purpose could devastate our highway system for years to come.

- It would halt vital road construction;
- Cancel needed safety improvement;
- End repairs to roads and bridges.

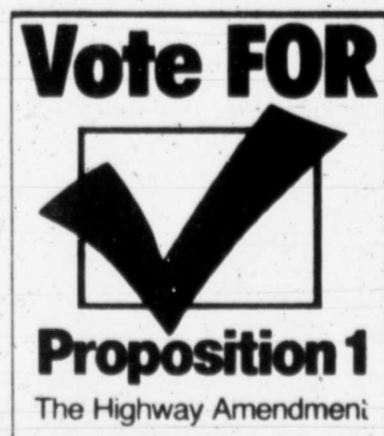

Texans can stop this threat by voting for Proposition One which makes certain that highway dollars are spent on highways. Let's keep the promise to Texans.

On Election Day look at the bottom of your ballot and find Proposition One, the Highway Amendment. Proposition One continues the Texas plan for good jobs, economic growth and safe roads without raising taxes and most importantly . . . keeps your family safe.

A lot is riding on the promise of good Texas roads.

Keep highway money for highways and the jobs they create. Proposition One is endorsed by the Texas Highway Commissioners, local and state-wide officials of both political parties, and hundreds of civic groups because they know that building good roads keeps Texas moving.

Attorney general will probe complaints from Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating Democratic charges that Republican advertising in South Texas is an attempt to lower Election Day turnout among Spanish-speaking voters by "injecting an element of fear."

Rep. Jack Brooks, a Beaumont Democrat, prompted the investigation when he asked Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh to determine whether the Spanish-language radio advertising campaign in the Rio Grande Valley was intimidating voters with its "Big Brother" tone.

"We certainly will look into this complaint and to the extent that there is any evidence that it might be valid, there will be a harsh response from the federal government," said Justice Department spokesman Loye Miller.

charge of the heavily Hispanic border area would be contacted today and asked to "take a look at the whole situation."

Brooks, who will become chairman of the House Judiciary Committee in January, complained the advertising by the Hidalgo County Republican Party was a "concerted effort" to "inhibit Texas citizens' exercise of their right to vote in next Tuesday's general election."

The ads warn listeners twice that election officials "will be watching" and cite penalties for illegal voting. Brooks said he was concerned the ads could be a violation of federal voting rights laws, which prohibit intimidation or coercion of voters.

"It should be clear that this advertising campaign, accompanied by the repeated 'Big Brother' warning that 'election officials are watching,' was not motivated by the benign goal of discouraging illegal voting, but rather is an obvious attempt to hold down overall voter turnout among Spanish-speaking citizens by injecting an element of fear into the voting process," Brooks told Thornburgh.

Republican officials defend the ads as proper and say they are not an attempt at intimidation.

"I would hope that any law enforcement agency spending time in South Texas concentrates on trying to stamp out the voter fraud we have seen in that region for the past 20 years — voter fraud perpetrated by the Democrats," said Mark Sanders, a spokesman for the Texas campaign of Republican presidential nominee George Bush.

Rep. Bill Richardson, Hispanic coordinator for Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, on Thursday blasted Bush and his campaign for using racist and intimidating tactics.

Bush, appearing on NBC's Today show, denied his campaign had a racist tenor in speeches or commercials.

"I'm fed up with Bush and the Republican Party refusing to own up to these intimidating and racist tactics aimed at Hispanic and black voters," Richardson said, referring to the Hidalgo County campaign and a national Willie Horton furlough ad.

"I challenge Bush to put his 'kinder, gentler nation' rhetoric into practice by taking these clearly intimidating and racist ads off the air," said Richardson, D-N.M.

The Spanish-language ad says: "Voting officials will be watching closely. It is illegal to vote in this election if you are not a U.S. citizen. If you have a green card you cannot vote. If you do you can be subject to up to 10 years in prison, fined up to $5,000 and lose your opportunity to become a U.S. citizen. If you accept money to vote you can get up to five years in jail. Remember, election officials are watching. Paid for by the Republican Party of Hidalgo County, Don Winngate, director."

Election '88 GOP hopes to gain in legislatures

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For Republicans the target is 1991. Then, based on the 1990 census, new seats in the U.S. House of Representatives will be given to states that have recorded population gains, and old seats will be taken away from states that have suffered population losses.

In turn, each state will be required to re-draw its congressional district boundaries based on population shifts within its borders.

As the Democratic-controlled California legislature showed in 1981 — during the last congressional redistricting — the party that controls the process can make all the difference.

In 1981, California received two new House seats. By right, the new districts should have been in areas that had become heavily Republican. But the Democrats masterfully drew congressional district lines so that many of the new seats became Democratic and most of the party's incumbents were protected.

Most GOP insiders admit their best chance to make any real gains in the House in the 1990s depends on getting favorable treatment in redistricting. That, in turn, depends on the GOP's ability to gain control of several key legislatures. It is a big priority in the many state legislative contests this year and in the ones coming up in 1990.

The Reagan years have been good for the Republicans in terms of gains in state legislatures. Since 1981, the GOP has picked up 7 percent more state house seats and 12 percent more state senate seats.

But the GOP has a long way to go. Currently, Democrats control both bodies (or, in Nebraska, the one chamber) in 28 state legislatures, while the redistricting.

Much the same situation exists in Florida where the Democrats currently hold 25-15 Senate and 75-45 House majorities. The Florida House will remain Democratic, but Florida Republicans believe that over the next four years they might be able to effect a six-seat swing in the state Senate and take control.

Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia seem lost causes for the Republicans. All three legislatures are firmly in Democratic control and they likely will remain so for the foreseeable future. But there is good news for the GOP in Arizona. Its two chambers are Republican controlled and should remain so.

There are other targets for both parties in this fight to control state legislative chambers. The GOP is hopeful that it can take control of the Illinois Senate (currently 31-28 Democratic), North Dakota Senate (27-26 Democratic), Pennsylvania Assembly (103-100 Democratic) and the Oregon Senate (31-29 Democratic), and regain control of the Washington Senate (25-24 Democratic). But the Democrats have their own targets. They believe they can take control of the Michigan Senate (currently 20-18 Republican) and the Ohio Senate (18-15 Republican).

The GOP is hoping to increase its clout in states that will get new congressional seats after the 1990 census.

credits his parents — a cattle foreman and a homemaker who never went to college — with encouraging their five children to get degrees. One son, Dick, became a four-star Army general. Another, Bob, was an all-America running back who now owns a ranch.

A sixth-generation Texan and father of 10, Cavazos' voice fills with emotion when he recalls graduating from Texas Tech with his bachelor's degree.

"I was so proud, so proud, when I looked at my father when I got my baccalaureate degree," he says. "And his pride in me when I went up the academic ladder there was so clear."

"I didn't do that for him ... somehow they got it through to me that I would do it for myself, that it would make me a better citizen, bring me economic support, that it would bring me happiness. Somehow they got that lesson across to me," he says.

Cavazos says he's also concerned about how the dropout rate is diminishing the number of minority students in higher education.

"Every person, every minority student, adds to the richness of that university and the fabric of our society," he says.

Cavazos also advocates colleges and universities defining their areas of excellence as a way of cutting costs and duplication.

"Lauro Cavazos seems to be a very sensitive man," says Ivette Torres, a spokeswoman for the National Education Association. "He seems to portray sensitivity toward the high-risk population, which his predecessor was not too concerned about."

While former Secretary Bennett "lacked insight of the needs of disadvantaged students," Ms. Torres said Cavazos appears ready to fight for student grants.

Cavazos also seems willing to listen to NEA and other groups, she said, while Bennett had been caustic in his criticism of teachers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a recent trip back to Kingsville, Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos insisted on shaking hands with every student who goes to school on the huge King Ranch.

As they filed past the first Hispanic member of a president's Cabinet, the son of a ranch hand told each child how he, too, had once studied in the tiny schoolhouse amid the prickly brush and mesquite trees.

"You can do it if you just stay in school," Cavazos told them. "Stay drug free."

"When we talk to young people about opportunity through education, it helps to have a man at the top who proves through his own life and experience that the American system of opportunity through education works," says Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas.

Born on the immense King Ranch, educated first with the other cowboys' Spanish-speaking children and later at the Anglo school in Kingsville, Cavazos became the nation's No. 1 educator Sept. 20.

His nomination by President Reagan to replace William J. Bennett was criticized by Hispanic leaders as a political ploy to bolster Republican presidential nominee George Bush in the Hispanic community.

Rep. Albert Bustamante, a San Antonio Democrat and chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, said at the time: "It seems that the administration has just discovered that Hispanics exist."

But he praised Cavazos, the president of Texas Tech University and its medical school since 1980, as "well-respected, well-prepared, with a history in education that is second to none."

Cavazos will serve until Jan. 20 unless reappointed by the next president. He brushes aside questions about the next turn in his career, saying he reached his life's goal when he became a full professor.

He is firm in insisting no deal has been struck for him to remain in the Cabinet if Bush wins Tuesday, but speculation is strong that Cavazos would be asked to stay.

He has campaigned for the Republican ticket during trips in which he also visited local schools.

He emphasizes the need to keep students from dropping out and to educate the illiterate, the handicapped and the dyslexic to their fullest potential.

Cavazos is keenly concerned about the dropout rate, and he hopes to position the Education Department to be sensitive to the problem even if he leaves office in January.

In Texas, he says, 45 percent of Hispanics don't finish high school, while the dropout rate for blacks is 32 percent and for Anglos, 30 percent. The national average is 28.5 percent.

Economic troubles, early marriages, drugs or alcohol often are blamed for the Hispanic dropout rate, but Cavazos sees them as symptoms of an unraveling family structure unable to give children the support and the confidence they need to succeed.

"If that family structure is not a good, tight structure that supports education and encourages education and raises the vision of young people and says 'Yes son, yes daughter, you will educate yourself,' ... they can fall into the social ills I talked about."

"Those young people need guidance," says Cavazos, who

Ballot measures confront big issues

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — This November, residents of 41 states will vote on a myriad of issues that have been placed on their ballots.

A total of 230 ballot measures will be decided, 54 of which got on ballots after citizens petitioned for a chance to vote on them. The rest were referred to the voters by their legislatures or because of state constitutional provisions.

California, as usual, leads the parade with 29 different measures on its ballot, the largest number in 66 years. Between $60 million and $75 million are expected to be spent in California by interest groups pushing or opposing one measure or another.

Two-thirds of this spending is on five separate and generally contradictory state initiatives on automobile insurance and damage litigation. Two are being supported by the auto insurance industry: One would reduce allowable damage claims and introduce no-fault insurance; the other would reduce allowable lawyer contingency fees.

Three of the California proposals would mandate lower auto insurance rates: One is being proposed by the state's trial lawyers, who are seeking to get back at the insurers for trying to lower their fees; the second is the product of consumer advocate Ralph Nader; the third is the brainchild of a maverick insurance agent.

Polls in California show that all, except the no-fault proposal, are likely to pass. This will leave the courts with the task of sorting out the often contradictory language of the other four.

One California initiative involves perhaps this year's most emotional debate. Paul Gann, the 76-year-old civic activist who was the co-author of the original tax-cutting measure, Proposition 13, is dying of AIDS that he received from a blood transfusion five years ago. This has become his new cause, and he has proposed an initiative that would revise California's AIDS testing.

The initiative, if passed, would require all health professionals and medical facilities to report the names of people they even suspect might have the disease. It would also require that former sex partners of those infected be notified; and it would permit employers and insurance companies to require AIDS testing. Current polls suggest the Gann initiative will pass.

Other California initiatives expected to pass include measures mandating higher spending on education; a higher cigarette tax, with the income going to cancer research; reinstatement of the state occupational health and safety office; increased spending for the homeless; and another AIDS measure requiring the mandatory testing of all prisoners who may have exposed law enforcement or health personnel to the disease, or who have been arrested for sex crimes.

Anti-crime initiatives are on several state ballots.

A California initiative would allow the governor to overrule the state pa-question — whether to declare English as each state's official language.

Massachusetts voters are being asked to pass on three hotly contested measures. The first would shut down the state's two operating nuclear power plants and forbid future plants. It is opposed by Gov. Michael Dukakis, who, while a nuclear power foe, believes decisions should be made on a plant-by-plant basis. The second, role commission and deny parole to any convicted murderer. Oklahoma, New Mexico and Rhode Island voters are being asked to approve measures to allow judges to deny bail for drug offenders and some kinds of repeat offenders. Oregon voters face the question of whether repeat felony-offenders should be made to serve full sentences without hope of parole. Florida, Georgia and Michigan voters are being asked to approve victim rights and compensation programs.

When residents of 41 states go to the polls, they will vote on a total of 230 measures.

Tax reduction, which was a focus of initiative campaigns in past years, is only on two ballots, Utah and South Dakota, this year. A tax reduction measure could be on the Colorado ballot, but it is facing a stiff court test. Colorado voters are also being asked to require voter approval for all future tax increases of more than 1 percent. Nevada voters will decide whether to prohibit the introduction of a state income tax.

Several measures would mandate new taxes. One in Missouri would raise money for the state Medicare program; one in Washington state would raise money for environmental cleanup; and one in Oregon, which would raise taxes on cigarettes and beer, seeks to fund state colleges' sports programs.

Measures in Arkansas and Michigan would forbid taxpayer funding of abortions. One in Colorado would allow it.

Minnesota and Kentucky voters are being asked to approve state lotteries, and voters in Idaho and Nebraska are being asked to approve parimutuel betting.

Voters in three states with growing minority populations, Florida, Colorado and Arizona, are facing the same question — whether to declare English as each state's official language. Massachusetts voters are being asked to pass on three hotly contested measures. The first would shut down the state's two operating nuclear power plants and forbid future plants. It is opposed by Gov. Michael Dukakis, who, while a nuclear power foe, believes decisions should be made on a plant-by-plant basis. The second, which pits conservatives against unions, would eliminate the requirement that the state pay "prevailing wages" when non-union workers are used on state-funded projects. The third would rescind a large pay raise given state legislators this year.

One of the most closely watched measures is before Maryland voters. The Maryland legislature earlier this year passed a ban on the sale of cheap handguns, so-called "Saturday Night Specials." The National Rifle Association is pouring millions into a campaign to nullify the legislature's action.

Perhaps the nastiest contest is in Oregon where conservatives are attempting to nullify an executive order issued earlier this year by Gov. Neil Goldschmidt prohibiting discrimination by state agencies against homosexuals.

Study says poverty rate for Hispanics increases sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poverty among Hispanics has risen at a faster rate than for other ethnic groups over the past nine years, according to a study by a non-partisan research group.

"The current economic recovery appears to be benefiting Hispanics much less than other groups. Hispanics are the only racial or ethnic group whose poverty rate remains at or close to recession levels (of the early 1980s)," said Robert Greenstein, director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.

The group's study found the percentage of Hispanics living in poverty grew from 21.6 percent in 1978 to 28.2 percent in 1987, while the poverty rate for whites grew from 8.7 percent to 10.5 percent, and from 30.6 percent to 33.1 percent for blacks. The poverty rate for all Americans increased from 11.4 percent in 1978 to 13.5 percent last year.

The center — a non-partisan, non-profit research organization that studies government spending, programs and public policy issues affecting low and moderate-income Americans — based its findings on data from the U.S. Census Bureau and Labor Department. It used 1978 as a comparison year with 1987 because national economic conditions, such as national and Hispanic unemployment rates, were nearly the same in both years.

During the nine-year period, the income of the typical Hispanic family fell nearly $1,600, after adjustment for inflation, compared with an increase of $276 for a white family and a decline of $854 for a black family, the study said.

As a result of declines in Hispanic earnings, the study said the median income for Hispanics equalled 62.9 percent of median family income for whites last year, the lowest percentage on record.

Hurt hardest by the increase in poverty and the earnings decline have been Hispanic married families, the study said. Their poverty rate grew by more than half, with fewer than one in eight families below the poverty level in 1978 compared with nearly one in five in poverty last year.

The study also found that two in five Hispanic children were living in poverty last year, or 39.6 percent, up from a rate of 27.2 percent in 1978.

PCB gobbling bacteria found on river bottom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toxic PCB compounds someday could be gobbled up by bacteria during hazardous waste cleanup operations, according to new findings from the bottom of the Hudson River.

PCBs accumulated in sediment above Troy, N.Y., are being changed into less toxic forms by bacteria that work without oxygen, researchers from Michigan State University report. These less toxic forms do not accumulate in living tissue.

PCBs' tendency to accumulate in tissue has led several states to advise against eating PCB-contaminated fish. New York, for example, has banned fishing for striped bass below Troy all the way to the ocean.

The new findings raise hopes

Objects fly around home

MONTPELLIER, France (AP) — An elderly couple claims objects flew mysteriously around their home at night and asked police to investigate.

"We've lived here for 50 years and nothing like this ever happened before," 76-year-old Raoul Fournier told reporters Thursday.

Fournier said dishes, jars of that highly toxic PCBs could be changed into the less toxic, non-accumulating forms in more locations.

jelly and other items flew around a room on the ground floor of the house from 11 p.m. Tuesday until 4 a.m. Wednesday.

"It's unimaginable what happened," he said. "Trinkets, dishes and even our holy candle brought back from Lourdes flew around at high speed and crashed against the walls."

He said his wife Angele, 73, was

"If it is true, it could have enormous significance," said Richard D. Morgenstern, head of the Office of Policy Analysis in the Environmental Protection Agency. It's too early to start looking for PCB-free striped bass, said Darrell Banks, deputy commissioner of the state's Department of Environmental Conservation, which plans to dredge and remove 360,000 cubic yards of PCB-contaminated sediment from the river.

The state probably will go ahead with the dredging project, he said. But the Michigan State findings "cause us to hope for a system that might be useful for hot spots we can't deal with" by dredging.

It's too early to start looking for PCB-free striped bass, said Darrell Banks, deputy commissioner of the state's Department of Environmental Conservation, which plans to dredge and remove 360,000 cubic yards of PCB-contaminated sediment from the river.

The state probably will go ahead with the dredging project, he said. But the Michigan State findings "cause us to hope for a system that might be useful for hot spots we can't deal with" by dredging.

"It could in some cases make dredging unnecessary," said environmental chemist Stephen A. Boyd, one of the Michigan State authors reporting on the work in the issue of Science magazine published today.

He said that for dredging and other removal projects that do go ahead, "it would certainly lessen the risk-to-benefit ratio," that is, make the work less risky than believed up to now.

There are 209 possible PCB compounds. Each contains one to 10 chlorine atoms. GE noted that PCB sediments in the Hudson had lost chlorine, and the proportion with only one or two atoms had increased over what was put in the river.

Snyder High and Junior High Honor Rolls

HONOR ROLL FOR SECONDARY STUDENTS

Students earning a grade of 90 or higher in every subject taken during the six week period are eligible for "A" Honor Roll recognition. Students earning a grade of 80 or higher in every subject taken receive recognition on the "B" Honor Roll. High school students enrolled in Honors or Advanced Courses receive a weighted score due to the difficulty of the subjects. Because the school computer program used for identifying honor roll students is not able to deal with this weighted scoring system some students who score below an 80 or 90 in an honors or advanced course will not be listed on the "A" or "B" Honor Roll even though the weighted grade entitles them to this recognition. The District is sorry for the omission of these names during the posting of students having achieved honor roll status. Plans are being made to prepare an accurate roster of names of all high school students earning honor roll status at the end of the first and second semester.
