Bentsen attacks negative campaigning

DALLAS (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen is ending his campaign with a simple, two-part refrain — accusing the Republicans of dirty campaigning and telling people that the Democrats are "on your side."

Michael Dukakis' running mate delivers that message today in a last pitch to bring home Texas to the Democratic column, and then heads out on a hastily-arranged election eve swing to Arkansas and Missouri.

Bentsen spends the daylight hours today making a whirlwind tour of Texas and nearby Louisiana, including stops in Dallas, Shreveport, La., Houston, and Beaumont and San Antonio, Texas.

The schedule was originally scheduled to end after San Antonio, but late Sunday the campaign added nighttime rallies in Little Rock, Ark., and Kansas City, Mo. — two states the Democrats are still hoping to swing in their direction.

In addition to his public stops, Bentsen will be doing interviews via satellite with television stations in several other key states.

"We're doing hand-to-hand combat in Texas and we're going for the airwaves" in battleground states, said Mike McCurry, the campaign's director of communications.

The expanded schedule, he said, was "to take advantage of a dramatic tightening of the race" in Missouri and Arkansas, McCurry said. "The question is whether it is enough time" to bring about an upset of the Republican ticket, he said.

Dukakis himself has launched into around-the-clock campaigning heading into Election Day, with an early morning event in Cleveland, a stop in St. Louis and a return visit to California for a San Francisco rally.

However, the sleepless campaign swing was not being asked of the 67-year-old Bentsen.

In El Paso on Sunday, Bentsen told a rally outside the city's train station that the Democrats are concerned about the middle class — a theme Dukakis has been hammering in his campaign stops.

"Mike Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen are on the side of the working men and women of America and the Republicans are on the other side," said the Democratic candidate, who addressed the crowd in both Spanish and English — an appeal to the state's large Hispanic population.

Like Dukakis, Bentsen has for the past few weeks made attacks on the negative tone of the Republican campaign a central theme of his own. The backlash from the GOP "distortions," Bentsen says, is a major factor in the Democrats' narrowing of the Republican lead in the polls.

Airport rules-regs revised by county

Scurry County commissioners Monday approved a revised set of rules and regulations for the operation of the newly renovated Winston Field airport.

Pct. 2 Commissioner Tommy Pate, in whose precinct the airport lies, noted the regulations were approved recently by the county airport board.

The regulations pertain to the parking of ground vehicles, landings and take-offs, fire prevention and other matters. County Judge Bobby Goodwin noted:

Pate said the only substantial change from the regulations as they existed prior to the runway lengthening and other improvements is a restriction on the closing of large hangar doors, which Pate said have sometimes been left open for days at a time in the past.

The commissioner said the new requirement is for the doors to be closed if a pilot is going to be gone for more than a few hours.

Other business in the 10 a.m. meeting included authorization for a new bond for County Attorney Michael Line, who will begin a new four-year term in January.

Line was discussing pending litigations in which the county is involved in an executive session with the court near mid-day

November session for city is tonight

The regular November session for Snyder city council members will begin at 6:30 p.m. Monday and will include bids for law enforcement liability insurance, appointments to a city board and suggested modifications to the city's landfill site.

The liability insurance decision is listed under bids. Also under this category is a new four-wheeler for use by the meter reader in the city's utility department.

Board appointments scheduled by the council include four positions on the electrical board.

Under old business, the city will consider on second reading setting new speed limits on state and federal highways which pass through Snyder to include State Highways 350 and 208 and U.S. Highway 180.

Under new business, agenda items listed include:

—A special use permit submitted by an individual who seeks to operate a one-station beauty salon at 3727 Ave. U. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended it be approved.

A rezoning request for a 7.6 acre tract in the 300 Block of 37th St., changing it from C-2 to R-3, which would make it suitable for mobile home move-ins. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended it be denied.

Final approval of the Walmart plat.

First reading on an ordinance related to water conservation and required as part of the city's application for bond monies through the Texas Water Development Board. These requirements—to include penalties for individuals who purposefully waste water—will include that the city mail notices to its customers outlining ways to practice water conservation and that it promote a range of water conservation programs in the community.

—A presentation from Tommie J. Mills, municipal court judge.

The council plans also to go into See COUNCIL, page 13

Two Texas polls pick Bush to win election by 17 points

By The Associated Press

A poll taken for Texas' two largest newspapers a week before the election gives Republican George Bush a lead of 17 percentage points over Democrat Michael Dukakis in the Lone Star State.

The poll taken for The Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle found that of those polled who said they were likely to vote 56 percent favored the GOP ticket of Vice President Bush and Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, while 39 percent favored Democrats Dukakis and Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

The poll, which has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points, found an undecided vote of 5 percent.

"Barring something highly unlikely, I see nothing the Democrats can do to reverse a lead of this magnitude," pollster Richard Murray said.

The poll indicates "that the presidential election was decided by Texans some days ago with a clear majority for Bush," Murray said.

"Until people vote, nothing is insurmountable, but the likelihood Democrats can overcome it is very small," said Murray, who directed the survey of 820 registered voters through the University of Houston's Center for Public Policy between Oct. 31 and Nov. 3.

Petroglyph 'find' said new

The set of petroglyph drawings carved into a large sandstone crevice which traverses a northeastern section of Scurry County continues to generate interest as a local family's recent Sunday afternoon expedition uncovered a drawing heretofore undocumented.

An afternoon outing of the Troy and Brenda Botts family recently turned up the new petroglyph, which family members believe represents a deer or an antelope.

The modern study of the petroglyphs—carved figures and symbols cut into the rock—dates to the mid-1960s, when two local couples, John and Fern Portis and Pat and Nelda Bills, began to document them.

The Botts family, after their discovery, contacted Portis, who indicated he had never before seen the carving they described and photographed. Brenda Botts explained that it is located a considerable distance from the grouping of other petroglyphs.

The other symbols previously documented include stick figures of humans as well as what appear to be a buffalo. Other markings appear to be symbols, their meanings lost with time.

Portis said he believes there are definitely two periods represented by the drawings.

A set of drawings derived from "rubblings" of the figures now hang in the Scurry County Museum.

The etchings themselves are located on the walls of a crevice which splits the sandstone rock, a "crack" which runs some 50 ft. at a width of from 2½ to 4½ ft. wide.

The site is on private property in the eastern part of the county known as the Greene Springs area.

Minor injuries to 3 following wreck

Three people were injured, none seriously, in a 6:37 p.m. Sunday traffic accident at East Hwy. and Ave. E.

Police said a 1975 Oldsmobile two-door driven by Charles W. Sewell of P.O. Box 145 was in collision with a 1982 Oldsmobile four-door driven by Fidencio S. Contreras of 1110 15th St., after which both cars had to be towed.

Snyder EMS Ambulance Service took Sewell, 32, to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he was treated for neck pain and released.

Contreras, 28, and a passenger in his car, 23-year-old Eulalia Contreras, were taken by private vehicle to the hospital, where Contreras was treated for knee pain and his passenger for head and wrist pain, after which both were released.

At 5:11 p.m. Sunday in the 1800 Block of 30th St., a 1981 Ford stationwagon driven by Alton L. Grove of Ropesville was in collision with a 1987 Buick four-door driven by Peggy H. Hardin of 3202 48th St.

A 1978 Chevrolet pickup driven by Melvin L. Boatman Jr. of 2108 26th St. struck a light pole owned by TU Electric at 7:51 p.m. Sunday in the 3200 Block of Ave. A, causing an undetermined amount of damage.

At 10:40 p.m. Saturday in the 1100 Block of 20th St., a 1980 GMC Suburban driven by Monty K. See WRECKS, page 13

Q.—What percentage of the registered voters in Scurry County have already voted absentee?

A.—Close to 20 percent. The absentee count at the close Friday was 1,820 and there are 9,175 registered voters in the county.

In Brief

School woes

WESTMINSTER, Texas (AP) — Voters approved a tax rollback referendum over the weekend, squashing plans by local officials to use a tax hike to save the financially-troubled Westminster school district.

The 193-student Collin County school district, which has experienced accreditation problems since 1955, badly needed revenues to fund a $741,627 budget for the 1988-89 school year and pay about $65,000 in back debts, officials said.

In an election Saturday that drew 742 residents, 216 voted for and 131 against the rollback referendum, forcing a lowering of school taxes to a rate generating the same amount of revenue that last year's rate produced.

"We'll have to go back and look at our financial situation," school board president Jim Bradley said.

Houston fires

HOUSTON (AP) — Grass fires fanned by high winds raced through parts of northwest Houston damaging several homes and destroying a garage and barn before startled residents could react.

The fires struck without warning, residents said.

"It was right over there," said Charisse Lang, pointing to what remained of a fence in her backyard. "By the time I got the cars out of the garage, it was already here."

Flying embers ignited wooden shingles on Ms. Lang's roof, causing about $200,000 damage to the home, said Champions Area Fire Chief Jon Bonsall.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 46 and have had melanoma metastases. I still want a child but my doctor feels it's too dangerous. I menstruate every three months. What do you think?

DEAR READER: Yours is a difficult question to answer because I am not familiar with your medical history.

Melanoma is a highly malignant skin cancer. Yours has apparently metastasized (spread beyond the original lesion). This situation is treatable — and may be curable — with modern techniques. However, treatment, such as chemotherapy, may affect your fertility. It may also be dangerous for an unborn child, should you become pregnant.

Further, although women in their 40s can conceive and bear normal children, the older you get, the greater the risk of fetal abnormalities.

Therefore, I think that your age and medical condition may interfere with your wish to start a family. Check with a gynecologist about this. Perhaps you might consider adoption as a realistic alternative.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife and I are now caring for my nephew, who has been diagnosed with olivopontocerebellar degeneration. We don't know quite what to expect.

DEAR READER: Olivopontocerebellar degeneration is one of a rare group of neurological diseases, usually hereditary, that are marked by progressive malfunction of portions of the brain and upper spinal tract.

The diseases are characterized by untreatable loss of nerve function, leading to difficulty with coordination and walking, blindness, problems with feeling and sensation and, in some cases, mental deterioration.

Your nephew has a grim prognosis. I'm afraid, and will require increasing help in order to carry out everyday activities. He certainly should be under the care of a neurologist, who can advise you about future problems and what resources you will require to administer home care.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm female, age 65, 5 feet 2 inches tall and have weighed 120 pounds since I was 20. I've eaten a low-fat diet for 15 years. What a shock to discover my cholesterol was 320, HDL 54, triglycerides 174. My doctor has started me on medicine. What's going on?

DEAR READER: Evidently, you have inherited genes that predispose you to a high serum cholesterol. Your doctor was correct in giving you drug treatment, in addition to the dietary restrictions.

Since you apparently are unable to metabolize excess cholesterol and triglycerides from your bloodstream and these fats build up to excessive levels, you need medicine to block absorption of dietary cholesterol or to interfere with the body's production of fats. Your cholesterol should be below 250 mg/dl and your triglycerides below 150 mg/dl. Your HDL (high density lipoprotein) — the "good" cholesterol — is average and will probably rise with treatment.

High cholesterol levels are not necessarily correlated with being overweight. In your case, the blood test told the story and you appear to be receiving appropriate therapy.

For more information, I am sending you a free copy of my health report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Rich-poor gap is widening

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's wealthiest families are keeping ahead of inflation, the poorest are losing ground, and many of the rest are holding even only because more family members are working, according to a new economic study.

The study conducted for the Economic Policy Institute shows a widening gap between rich and poor since President Reagan took office, with the top-earning 20 percent making nine times as much money in 1986 as the poorest 20 percent, compared with seven times as much in 1979.

Institute president Jeff Faux said the report shows average American families have been under greater economic pressure during the past decade than at any time since World War II.

"Without new economic policies it is clear that families can no longer count on steadily increasing incomes and that the next generations cannot expect to live better than their parents," Faux said.

Stephen Rose, a Seattle economist who wrote the report along with economist David Fasenfest of Louisville, said the widening gap between rich and poor is a reversal of trends in earlier decades.

The study concludes that without big increases in the number of women working, as many as 60 percent of American families — those earning less than $40,000 a year in 1986 — would have been unable to keep up with inflation between 1979 and 1986, the latest year for which complete data is available.

The report says the number of working wives increased from 55.4 percent in 1979 to 66.1 percent in 1986.

"This is an important first step in measuring the real economic benefit of having a wife work," Rose said in a telephone interview Sunday. But he cautioned that more study is needed to determine the additional costs families incur when the wife works, such as greater need for child care.

How Sweet It Is, Says Man With Zest for Life and Love

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You are correct to say that hotel managers do not care whether couples traveling together are married or not. After I lost my first wife to cancer in the 1950s, I made trips to Las Vegas, New Orleans, San Antonio and elsewhere — signing the hotel register with my name only, and marking "2" in the proper space when I took a lady along.

After losing my second wife to cancer, I was 79 years old and thought my time for romance was over — then I met a lovely lady at church. She was a 65-year-old widow. Before we married, she wanted a trial honeymoon trip and so did I. She wanted to go to the Swiss Alps and I wanted to go to the Orient. We compromised and went to both!

The travel agent made all our reservations in the name of "Mr. and Mrs." However, our passports were in our own names. The tour hostess called us "The Andersons," and the only embarrassment occurred when others on the tour asked us how long we had been married because we looked like honeymooners. We were, actually, but we weren't married yet. Our biggest difficulty was getting a double bed instead of twin beds.

I'm 82, and happier than I ever thought I could be at this age. All I can say is what my wife's daughter told her after meeting me: "Go for it, Mama!"

ANDY ANDERSON, DESERT HOT SPRINGS, CALIF.

DEAR ANDY: Thanks for another testimonial to the fact that people are not only living longer, they are enjoying their later years more. Go for it, Papa!

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a young woman who wanted to get married before her sister, who had announced her engagement first. My son had the same problem when he decided to get married after we had begun making the arrangements for his sister's wedding. The perfect solution for our family was to make it a double wedding! The brides agreed to it, and all the brothers and sisters from the three families involved were included in the bridal parties.

It turned out to be enormously successful, and the wedding was far more memorable than two small weddings would have been. Also, it was appreciated by the out-of-town friends and relatives who didn't have to make two trips.

MARILYN IPPOLITO, PHOENIX

DEAR MARILYN: My twin sister and I also had a double wedding (circa 1939), and we recommend it. But not every bride would be willing to share equal billing with another bride.

DEAR ABBY: When my wife and I were married, there was no way I was going to call my father-in-law — who is an elderly gentleman — "Roy" or "Mr. Henderson." I started to call him "Governor." He loved it, and told all his younger friends about it. To his joy, they promptly adopted it.

This may be a solution to a tough problem.

DONALD RIDGE, WAUKEGAN, ILL.

DEAR DONALD: Wonderful. Now, do you have any ideas about what to call an elderly mother-in-law? How about "Governess" ... or just "Hello, Beautiful"?

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.99 ($3.99 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

MCorp reaches accord

DALLAS (AP) — MCorp, the second-largest bank holding company in Texas, agreed to open up its records to other financial institutions interested in taking over the financially troubled company.

MCorp officials said Sunday that the access will be allowed under an understanding the company reached with federal regulators under which the company's request for government assistance can be considered in a "stable and non-disruptive environment."

In return, regulators will not pursue "various enforcement actions against certain MCorp banks and the holding company, respectively, while consideration of proposals by MCorp and other parties goes forward."

For several days, news reports have surfaced about an apparent desire by regulators for Dallas-based MCorp to transfer cash to subsidiary banks, a move company officials said would force them to seek reorganization.

At issue is more than $400 million in assets held by the holding company and not already distributed to its 26 member banks. Regulators want the money used to recapitalize the banks, but MCorp bondholders want the fund set aside to pay the holding company's debts.

"The understanding reduces the pressure of regulators that might force MCorp to reorganize" under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Code, said MCorp spokesman George McCane.

"The understanding we've achieved is a step forward to resolving MCorp's capital needs," McCane said. "It reflects a healthy level of cooperation between the company, the Comptroller of the Currency and the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System."

INTRODUCING THE EASY STIM ANSWER

Stimulates Injection Wells When Acid Treatment Fails

An Innovative Onstream Process
Easy Stim is uniquely designed to eliminate deposits of sulfides, biomass, polymers and other oxidizable plugging agents associated with water injection and disposal wells that do not respond to traditional acid stimulation techniques. The Easy Stim treatment is applied onstream and typically results in increased water flow and/or lower line pressure.

Fast, Safe, Focused Treatment
The Easy Stim process uses a mobile, truck-mounted unit to generate the stimulation chemical that is immediately pumped into the well at system pressure. Easy Stim's unique inhibitor package is safe and effective in limiting corrosion to levels acceptable during acid jobs.

Cost Effective, Turn-Key Operation

An Easy Stim treatment typically takes six to eight hours with no time lost in well shut-in; no work-over rigs and no extra pump or transport trucks. At last, Easy Stim provides the answer: a process that operates faster, with less manpower, to provide cleaner wells and better operating efficiency.

House fire kills 2 infants, teenager

DALLAS (AP) — Four people, including a teen-ager and two infants, died and another person was injured when a late night fire filled their home with smoke. The fire broke out shortly after 11 p.m. in the one-story home that was not equipped with smoke alarms, officials said. But fire officials said the one-alarm blaze was extinguished quickly. "The fire itself didn't amount to a whole lot," said a dispatcher who declined to give his name. "It's smoke inhalation that gets most people."

Paramedics attempted to resuscitate an 18-month-old girl and a 2-year-old boy, but the children were declared dead shortly after arriving at Parkland Memorial Hospital, said Virginia Brandenburg, emergency room charge nurse.

A 15-year-old girl died in the emergency room of Methodist Medical Center, said Linda Dickson, nursing supervisor.

Chubby Checker's boots auctioned

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Between 200 and 300 bidders at Chubby Checker's boots, a harmonica autographed by Bob Dylan and a surfboard signed by the Beach Boys went on the block at a rock 'n' roll auction to benefit the Philadelphia Music Foundation.
 The top seller, however, was a white Kramer guitar autographed by Eddie Van Halen, of the rock group Van Halen, which went for $2,900.
 Karen Teitelbaum, a spokeswoman for the foundation, said Sunday's event raised about $32,000.

California battles top issues

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Partisans of 29 statewide propositions Californians face Tuesday spent a record $130 million — more than $9 a voter — on a media war involving issues like car insurance rates, AIDS and raising cigarette taxes.
 More than half the spending has centered on five conflicting propositions aimed at revamping the auto insurance rate-setting process and lowering premiums.
 Insurance companies alone, fearing a budding "car premium revolt," poured more than $60 million into the battle, and trial lawyers' groups spent $15 million, making it the most expensive single campaign in the country outside a presidential race.

"This is the most massive financial attempt in corporate history to buy votes," said consumer advocate Ralph Nader, chief supporter of the proposition that would cut auto rates the most.
 Other hotly contested initiatives would raise cigarette taxes by a record 25 cents per pack, override Republican Gov. George Deukmejian's veto of a state worker safety program, and tackle AIDS issues.
 Elsewhere Tuesday: Maryland will decide whether to keep a 6-month-old law effectively banning cheap handguns; Michigan, Arkansas and Colorado will tackle the issue of abortion financing; South Dakota, Utah and Colorado will decide tax limitation proposals.

 Florida, Arizona and Colorado voters will vote on whether to declare English their states' official language; and Oregon voters will consider the toughest statewide smoking ban in the nation.
 Insurance companies have tried to convince California voters that the only real hope for rate relief would come from Proposition 104, which would create "no-fault" auto insurance and cap attorney fees.
 Insurers have condemned the rival Nader-backed Proposition 103, which would cut rates 20 percent and impose government regulation. They also have criticized a rival measure backed by lawyers to cut auto premiums by 20 percent for good drivers and prohibit limiting lawyers' fees.

 Despite the insurers' blitz of television commercials, polls showed voters favoring the Nader-backed measure. But a large undecided vote left the outcome unclear.
 If two or more of the measures pass, court battles may produce some unintended hybrid.
 California Proposition 102, backed by tax revolt champion Paul Gann, would require doctors to report people who have AIDS to county public health offices. It would also allow people charged with certain crimes to be tested for the deadly disease without their consent. The measure has been opposed by state health authorities.

Learning to play with assurance

Do you know some youngsters who you think would love to learn to play bridge? "Teach Me to Play" by Jude Goodwin and Don Ellison is the book for them. Winner of the American Bridge Teachers' Association's "Book of the Year" award, it offers delightful activities that make learning the game easy for anyone — not just the 8- to 14-year-olds for whom it is designed. (It is available from Pando Publications, 540 Longleaf Drive, Roswell, GA 30075, for $12.50 including postage.) Next year there will be a second volume, focusing on declarer play, defense and leads. "Teach Me to Play" is filled with hundreds of line drawings, cartoons, puzzles and projects that hold the learner's interest.
 In today's hand from the book, North-South bid quickly to three no-trump and West led the king of diamonds. South plays low from both hands on the first two diamond tricks. On winning the third diamond, declarer tries a losing club finesse. South wins the spade return, cashes his high spades and the club ace and king. When West shows out on the third round of spades and East on the third round of clubs, declarer has a complete count on the hand. West had two spades, six diamonds and four clubs, and therefore only one heart. With absolute assurance he leads a heart to dummy's ace and a heart back to his 10, making his contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Education secretary solicits help in curbing loan defaults

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos is seeking the advice of thousands of lenders, colleges and universities, and public officials on how to hold down the escalating default rate on student loans.
 The Education Department says taxpayers spent $1.5 billion to cover defaults on the guaranteed student loan program in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, almost 43 percent of the program's entire cost.
 The figure represents a 200 percent increase over the past five years in what is now known as the Stafford loan program, the department said.
 "We want the advice of all parties — the Congress, the public, schools, lenders, guarantee agencies and borrowers," Cavazos said in a statement. "A lot has already been done, but clearly, additional action is necessary."
 The program has loaned about $40 billion since it began. Of the current $12 billion in outstanding loans, about $5 billion is overdue, the department said.
 Charles Kolb, acting deputy undersecretary for planning, budget and evaluation, said Cavazos has sent letters appealing for advice to more than 7,000 participating colleges and universities, 13,000 lenders, 54 agencies that guarantee student loans, 50 governors, and members of Congress.

 Cavazos, who was president of Texas Tech University until taking over as education secretary in September, is also accepting suggestions from students. He is especially concerned about those who defaulted on their loans because they were unable to earn a living after attending unscrupulous trade or other schools that award a certificate but do not provide necessary job skills.
 Kolb said some schools have 100 percent default rates, suggesting they may not be providing the kind of education necessary for students to hold a job and earn enough money to repay their loans.
 "There are a lot of scams going on here," Kolb said.

Safety officials are concerned about too much preflight cockpit chatter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two fatal airliner accidents have prompted questions about idle chatter in the cockpit and raised concerns by some safety officials that pilots may not always be focusing on business when they should be.

Federal investigators at the National Transportation Safety Board are closely examining the tape covering nearly 30 minutes in the cockpit of Delta Air Lines Flight 1141 last August before the Boeing 727 crashed seconds after takeoff, killing 14 of the 108 people aboard.

More than half of the tape, covering a lengthy taxi period at the huge Dallas-Forth Worth International Airport, involves impertinent conversation among the pilots and two flight attendants on subjects ranging from the recent purchase of a house to the habit of birds nesting near airports.

Nearly 11 minutes of the tape were omitted from the transcript because they were considered irrelevant, including a reference, according to sources, of the disclosure in news reports a few days before the crash of idle chatter aboard a Continental Airlines that crashed in Denver 10 months earlier.

If there is an accident, one participant in the Delta cockpit reportedly reminded his colleagues, their words might end up in the newspapers, too.

Later, the plane's captain told investigators he did not care for the lengthy presence of the flight attendants in the cockpit, but that it was not his nature to order them from the cockpit during the long takeoff delay.

Investigators emphasized that so far there has been no clear evidence linking these conversations — some of which was technically legal because the plane was not moving — with the possible cause of the crash.

But investigators are trying to determine whether the flight crew forgot to properly set the jetliner's wing flaps, which help it gain lift, and whether the conversations distracted them from preparing the plane for flight.

An exchange lasting 7 minutes and 42 seconds between co-pilot Carey Kirkland and a senior flight attendant began as the crew was going through one of the preflight check lists. Finally, the exchange was cut short by Capt. Larry Davis, prompting an apology from Kirkland about "sittin' here talking to the flight attendant," according to the transcript.

Later flight engineer Steven Judd told investigators he had been uneasy about the attendant's lengthy presence.

While there is no link established between these discussions and the accident, some NTSB investigators are uneasy about the casual and relaxed demeanor the exchanges reflect.

Furthermore, several aviation safety officials not involved with the Delta investigation suggested such extraneous discussions before takeoff are common.

"It's very difficult to legislate against people interacting in a job situation," says Clay Foushee, an aviation safety researcher at NASA's Ames Research Center in California.

Foushee said while some casual exchanges may help a flight crew feel at ease and work together, there also have been numerous pilot complaints received through NASA's anonymous aviation reporting system over the years about pilot distractions, including inappropriate conversation and untimely presence in the cockpit of flight attendants.

Earlier this year, the NTSB in its final report on the Nov. 15, 1987, crash of the Continental Airlines jetliner in Denver also raised concerns about idle chatter in the cockpit. That crash, which killed 28 people, was attributed to the pilot taking off in snow with ice on the wings.

Four minutes before takeoff, the two Continental pilots "engaged in almost three minutes of nonpertinent social conversation" — reportedly involving a flight attendant — which "would suggest inattention to more important details" such as the weather and its effects on icing, the safety board said.

School board adopts new code of conduct

CLEVELAND, Texas (AP) — A stiff new code of conduct has been adopted by the school board of Cleveland High School, whose athletic program was placed under probation through 1989 because of a brawl during a losing game last month against Lumberton.

School officials forfeited Cleveland's last two football games of this season because of continuing problems with players' on-field conduct.

New reforms adopted and put into effect this week by the school board provide for suspension from athletes from the remainder of the school year of any athletes who engage in fighting and for one-game suspensions for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Cleveland is about 40 miles northeast of Houston.

"We were asked to come up with some strict, rigid guidelines, and we did," said Cleveland High School principal Lubbie Whitmire. "Our board wanted to prevent any trouble from happening again."

The code stipulates: "Athletes are expected to set high standards of behavior for they are the leaders of the school. Because of the prominent role of athletes, their conduct must be exemplary at all times."

The code calls for suspension from athletics for the remainder of the school year for any athlete who becomes involved in a fight on the field of play during or after a contest.

The code also imposes suspension for the remainder of the school year for any athlete who, in the event of a fight, fails to immediately go to the sidelines and remain there.

Besides fighting, any other "unsportsmanlike violation" will result in a player being immediately suspended from that game and the next game. The athlete also must immediately report to the dressing room and cannot attend the following week's game or practice.

A second unsportsmanlike violation will result in the player being suspended for the remainder of the season, the code says.

Singer issues apology

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio police canceled a boycott of a Willie Nelson concert after the country-western singer apologized to them for staging a benefit that raised funds for a man later convicted of killing two FBI agents.

Sgt. Harold Flammia, president of the San Antonio Police Officers Association two weeks ago asked officers not to work as security officials at the concert Thursday because Nelson sang at a California benefit for Leonard Peltier, an American Indian convicted of killing two FBI agents 13 years ago. The proceeds of the concert went toward Peltier's legal defense.

Nelson again issued an apology Friday night from his home in Austin.

Parties, unions seeking to boost voter turnout

by The Associated Press
With two Texans on the national ticket, voter turnout in the Lone Star State is expected to be high. But elsewhere, political parties and other groups are scrambling to get a reluctant electorate out on Election Day.
"I don't see nearly as much enthusiasm as you typically see in a presidential year," said Chris Verenes, executive director of the South Carolina Democratic Party, in a comment echoed across the country.
With only half of the country's eligible voters expected to turn out Tuesday, down from the 1984 figure of 53 percent, Republicans and Democrats alike know that getting people to vote will be their No. 1 challenge.
The White House, 33 Senate seats and all 435 seats in the House are at stake, and state and local races and issues abound.

Parties, unions and other special-interest groups are running phone banks to reach swing voters as well as the faithful. As usual, workers will hand out leaflets, arrange for baby-sitting and escort people to the polls. But there are also some more unusual strategies.
In Arkansas, where the deer-hunting season opened Saturday, Republicans mounted a mail campaign encouraging deer hunters to get an absentee ballot if they won't be back from hunting in time for the election. The National Rifle Association has saturated Arkansas and a dozen other states with ads claiming Michael Dukakis would disarm sportsmen, a charge the Democratic presidential candidate denies.

Coalition '88, a group of gays and others who want two California AIDS initiatives defeated, will have hundreds of volunteers on Election Day erecting "human billboards" at 70 major intersections in Los Angeles urging voters to get out and turn down the two propositions.
Both parties are conducting massive drives for the state's 13.5 million registered voters but worry about the dampening effect of a ballot with nine state initiatives and possibly hundreds of local measures. Says state GOP chairman Bob Naylor: "I'm very concerned that people will be confronted with long lines at the polls, get early results from the East Coast and absentee ballots and say, 'What the heck. I won't vote.'"
Reasons for the low turnout projections vary, but many pundits point to laws requiring registration days or weeks before the election. Many voters also may simply be uninterested in the races and find no compelling issue or inspiring candidate.
In Alabama, where there is no race for governor, U.S. Senate or a major statehouse post, officials expect many voters to stay home.

Television campaign ends on video note

WASHINGTON (AP) — A made-for-television presidential campaign is ending with upbeat musical commercials and mellow network appeals as George Bush and Michael Dukakis seek to inspire voters after a long season of attack ads.
Quick, which one is using flags, children and old people in a sentimental media closing? The answer is both Democrat Dukakis and Republican Bush, in 60- and 30-second versions of their respective musical ads.
The inspirational ads are part of a multimillion-dollar windup to a campaign season shaped to an unprecedented degree by television — from 10-second sound bites and 30-second ads to extended interviews. The finale comes tonight, when each candidate airs 30-minute appeals on the three networks at a cost of $1 million for each campaign.
Even the ads acknowledge TV's pervasive presence. Bush's musical spot features several scenes of people watching him on their TV sets. Dukakis is shown in one of his spots watching a Bush attack ad and switching off the set in disgust.
The fall campaigns began with made-for-TV conventions awash in flags, balloons, children and TelePrompTers, the halls carefully refashioned with seating, podiums and colors suitable for the small screen.
The Dukakis program at 8 p.m. EST showcases the Massachusetts governor answering questions in a town meeting setting and contains footage of his family and his running mate, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. During the program, Dukakis urges Americans to "look in the mirror and ask yourself — Is George Bush on your side? I want to give every American a chance to build a better life."

The Bush effort at 8:30 p.m. EST summarizes the vice president's resume, beliefs and plans for the nation.
The two candidates set records this year for money spent on commercials (expected to top $30 million apiece) and for free air time on news, talk and interview shows (at all hours of day and night).
Some say the campaigns also set a record for negative advertising. But while a mixture of ads remained on the air to the end, the mood of the newest spots was uplifting.
Sig Rogich and Jim Weller, part of the team that brought viewers the "Morning in America" ads of President Reagan's 1984 campaign, evoke the same mood for the vice president with the same song — "God Bless the USA," a patriotic country ballad sung by Lee Greenwood.
There are the TV-watching scenes, a grandmother and grandchild, several Pledges of Allegiance, Bush with world leaders and Bush with children dressed up as pilgrims for a play. Singing Greenwood: "If tomorrow all the things were gone I worked for all my life ... I'd thank my lucky stars to be living here today cause the flag still stands for freedom and they can't take that away."
The lyrics in Dukakis' "Anthem" commercial reflect the Democrat's more complicated task of promising a better future without badmouthing the present. "The time is soon," the singers say as a young mother caresses a baby's face. "A bright future is what we're going to see. We keep reaching out for better and we will never say never because we know where we come from. The best America ... is yet to come."

Iran-Contra... Probe aimed at possible injury

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Iran-Contra grand jury is conducting what appears to be an investigation of possible perjury by witnesses questioned by Congress or another grand jury about the arms-for-hostages affair.
The new grand jury has viewed videotaped recordings of testimony given to the House and Senate committees that investigated the Reagan administration's arms deals with Iran and the diversion of money to the Nicaraguan rebels, said sources speaking on condition of anonymity.
Independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh took measures to isolate his staff and the original Iran-Contra grand jury from news coverage of the congressional hearings.
He wanted to avoid defense accusations that he relied on evidence given to Congress under limited grants of immunity to bring charges against former White House aide Oliver L. North and others indicted earlier this year by the first Iran-Contra grand jury.
The latest grand jury investigation is being headed by K. Chris Todd, one of the few members of Walsh's staff who was exposed to congressional testimony given under grants of limited immunity from prosecution.
Todd's presence at the proceedings indicates that the grand jury, which had been hearing totally unrelated cases, is considering evidence from the congressional Iran-Contra hearings.
Walsh testified at a court hearing last spring that Todd had been exposed to congressional testimony and was no longer working on the case against North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and

Fatal shot hits escapee in back

HOUSTON (AP) — An unarmed prisoner who was shot as he tried to escape from two sheriff's detectives outside the county jail was killed by a bullet that entered his back and exited his chest, an autopsy showed.
Sheriff's Lt. Ruben Diaz said the officers fired at least 12 shots. Authorities said it had not been determined who fired the fatal shot.
The prisoner was identified as Roland Brothers Jr., 28, of Lafayette, La. The county medical examiner's office said Sunday that Brothers was struck Saturday evening by three bullets, two in the chest.
Chief Deputy Sheriff Tommy Thomas said Sunday that some witnesses had disputed reports that the officers continued to fire at Brothers after he fell.
Other witnesses, who told reporters immediately after the shooting that the officers fired more than was necessary, refused to talk to sheriff's investigators Sunday, Thomas said.
Brothers had been identified earlier as Michael Reed. He was pronounced dead at 7:12 p.m. Saturday at the jail.
Detectives Barry Rizk, 29, and Robert Nichols, 34, have been relieved of duty with pay pending an investigation by the sheriff's homicide and internal affairs divisions and the district attorney's office.
Rizk has served seven years with the department, Nichols five years. Diaz, who supervises the criminal warrants division where the suspended officers work, said ing the groundwork for the investigation by playing the tapes. Because grand jury proceedings are secret, it is unclear who might be suspected of giving false testimony, either to Congress or the original Iran-Contra grand jury.

Members of the House and Senate panels openly expressed doubts about the credibility of some of the congressional witnesses, including Poindexter.

Lady Dusters thump Tyler; join men tonight at Ranger

RANGER - Western Texas College's Lady Dusters team up with the Westerners for their first double-header of the season here tonight.

The women tip off at 6 p.m.; the men at 8 p.m.

Coach Tony Mauldin's Westerners, idle for almost a week, will take a 2-0 record into tonight's non-conference contest. The Lady Dusters, under the direction of Kelly Chadwick, are 4-2.

The Dusters go into the tournament on the heels of a 77-67 victory over Tyler Junior College in the South Plains Lady Texan Classic.

Western opened the three-day classic last Thursday with a four-point loss to Western Oklahoma, but came back to defeat Barton County and Tyler.

"We just did a lot of things right. We played like I thought we could play the first game or two," said Chadwick of Saturday's win over the Lady Apaches. "We cut the turnovers down, rebounded exceptionally well, played very good defense and shot the ball better."

The Dusters put four ladies in double figures, including all-tournament choices Nickey Allen and Stephanie McKnight, who scored 18 points each. Stacy Smith punched in 11 and Olton freshman Joy Muller added 10.

Tyler, 2-2, got 18 points from Morton's Nedra Johnson. Bobbie Bean added 12.

"We're starting to look more like we'd like to look," said Chadwick. "Nicky had a good ballgame and Stephanie had an excellent ballgame. Everybody played excellent defense. Tyler has some people that can score. They pressed us and we handled it well."

The Lady Dusters will make their home debut this Friday at Scurry County Coliseum, entertaining South Plains College in a non-conference ballgame.

Giants roll up early 26-0 advantage but have to hold on to beat Dallas

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The New York Giants put together their best half of the season, and their 26-0 halftime lead was sufficient to hand the Dallas Cowboys their sixth straight defeat - the first time that's happened since their inaugural season in 1960.

Cowboys coach Tom Landry replaced ineffective starting quarterback Steve Pelluer with Kevin Sweeney in the second half, and the 1986 Super Bowl champions held off a Sweeney-led comeback Sunday to post a 29-21 NFL victory over Dallas.

"We're starting to get that Super Bowl ego back even though there still is a long way to go," defensive end Eric Dorsey said. "We're starting to show signs of breaking away (from the rest of the division). You don't see Dallas blown out like that in the first half."

One point to be made is that this is not the Cowboys of old. In losing, Dallas, 2-8, dropped its sixth straight, marking the first time since 1960 that the Cowboys have lost six in a row in the same season - and virtually assuring them of a third straight losing season.

"The Giants dominated the opening 30 minutes as they scored on five straight possessions, including three touchdowns set up by Dallas turnovers.

Lawrence Taylor personally set up two touchdowns with sacks that resulted in fumbles by Pelluer deep in Cowboy territory, while the other TD came after New York drove 85 yards following a Herschel Walker fumble.

Ottis Anderson cashed in on the first turnover with a 1-yard run,

Oilers, Browns vie tonight in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers and Cleveland Browns are survivors in the year of the injured quarterbacks.

While other teams around the league faltered as their quarterbacks fell, the Oilers and Browns kept winning. Both take 6-3 records into tonight's nationally televised game in the Astrodome.

"I don't know of any place but Cleveland and Houston where you could keep on winning without a quarterback," Oilers coach Jerry Glanville said. "They did the same thing we did."

Houston's Warren Moon and Cleveland's Bernie Kosar were both injured on opening day.

Moon missed five games after suffering a broken shoulder blade against Indianapolis and returned on Oct. 16, leading the Oilers to a 34-14 victory over Pittsburgh.

Kosar suffered an elbow injury against Kansas City and missed six games, returning Oct. 23 against Phoenix in a 29-21 victory.

Defense has picked up the slack for both teams, especially for the Browns, who lead the NFL in pass defense and rank second in total defense.

The Browns have allowed two touchdowns passes this season and are yielding 136 yards per game in the air.

The Oilers, with the AFC's No. 2 rushing attack led by Mike Rozier, may have more success against the Browns rush defense, ranked 20th among the 28 NFL teams.

The former Fresno State star hit 19 of 37 passes for 189 yards for three touchdowns. The last one came on a fourth-down, 2-yard TD toss to Ray Alexander with 1:59 remaining.

Dallas recovered the onside kick and reached the New York 29 before linebacker Gary Reasons knocked down a fourth-down Sweeney pass.

"I felt pretty good," Sweeney said. "I had a lot of fun. It was nice to get an opportunity to go out and play. That's all I've ever asked for. This isn't the way it was drawn up on the chalkboard but sometimes you have to go out there and win it."

SHS welcomes v-ball playoffs

Dumas and Leander clash in a Class 4A volleyball playoff match here Tuesday evening at Snyder High School Gym.

The playoff is one of three scheduled recently at the high school, including a Class 1A battle between Miles and Three Way that also occurs Tuesday.

In the other playoff, Brownfield defeated Colorado City last Saturday, 15-3, 15-5.

Tuesday, Dumas and Leander will play at 5 p.m., followed by Miles and Three Way at 7 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students, per game.

Dumas, which upended District 4-4A runner-up Fort Stockton 15-3, 15-4, last weekend, is 25-10 for the season. Leander is 24-11.

In other playoff action last weekend, 4-4A champion Pecos whipped Hereford 15-4, 15-6.

Southwest Conference roundup...

Arkansas has Cotton, wants A&M now

by The Associated Press

With Texas A&M ineligible to win the Southwest Conference championship, the Arkansas Razorbacks have clinched their first conference title in 23 years.

But Arkansas would like to defeat the Aggies Saturday and have an asterisk-free crown. Coach Ken Hatfield's team also has a chance at going undefeated.

Baylor coach Grant Teaff, whose Bears were flattened by Arkansas 33-3 on Saturday, believes the Razorbacks can take an 11-0 record into the Cotton Bowl.

"I think Arkansas has a legitimate chance to go unbeaten," Teaff said. "They do the things that allow you to be successful. There's no doubt in my mind they are the best team we've played this season. They deserve the SWC title."

Arkansas hosts defending SWC champion Texas A&M on Saturday. The Aggies also are unbeaten in SWC play but can't claim the title or go to the Cotton Bowl because of NCAA probation.

In other games on Saturday, Houston kept its bowl hopes alive with a 66-15 slaughter of the Texas Longhorns, Notre Dame whipped Rice 54-11, Texas A&M downed Louisiana Tech 56-17, and Texas Tech gave Texas Christian its first home loss of the year 23-10.

The last seven Baylor-Arkansas games had gone to the fourth period before they were settled.

Arkansas quarterback Quinn Grove scored on a 7-yard run and Barry Foster scored on runs of 8 and 18 yards.

Kendall Trainor's field goals of 50 and 20 yards gave him an SWC record of 17 in a row.

This is the fourth time Arkansas has been 9-0 (1964, 1965, 1969).

In games this week besides A&M-Arkansas (Fayetteville) 1 p.m., Texas is at Texas Christian at noon, Texas Tech hosts Lamar at 2 p.m., and unbeaten Wyoming is at Houston in what should be a wild, offensive show.

Houston gave Texas its worst home loss ever as Andre Ware threw five touchdown passes and Chuck Weatherspoon ran for 218 yards.

"Not in my wildest dreams would I have believed that I'd throw five touchdown passes and beat Texas like this," Ware said. "We knew we could beat them. We wanted them to know we are capable of destroying any defense."

The Aloha Bowl in Honolulu has shown interest in the Cougars (6-2), but Houston must beat Wyoming.

"If we get to go to Hawaii I'll put on a grass skirt and do a little dance for them," Weatherspoon said.

WHAT ABOUT US?

Japan is doing well.

Under 8 years of Republican rule, countless American jobs have been exported to Japan—and Japan has moved ever closer to controlling our economic future.

FACT: Japan now controls 17 of the world's 25 largest banks. The United States controls just one.

Saudi Arabia is doing well.

After 8 years of Republican rule, America still has no energy policy. The Saudi and other OPEC economies have boomed while the Texas economy has gone bust.

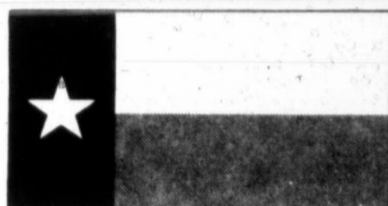

FACT: Texas has lost over 216,000 oil-related jobs in the last five years, while America's oil imports have jumped 20% in the past two years alone.

The international drug cartel is doing just great.

For 8 years the Republicans have talked tough about drugs but time and again have sought to slash funding for the war on drugs.

FACT: Under the Republicans cocaine smuggling has tripled, heroin trafficking increased 50% and the number of drug-related deaths doubled.

TEXAS AND AMERICA DESERVE BETTER

- Democrats helped save millions of American jobs by passing historic trade legislation this year.
- Democrats have adopted a Texas-proposed national energy policy that would significantly increase sales of Texas oil and natural gas and create tens of thousands of Texas jobs.
- Democrats are committed to standing up to drug kingpins like Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega and to waging a real war on drugs on our streets here at home.

Texas schools lead southern institutions in fed funding

HOUSTON (AP) — Eight Texas colleges and universities are among the top 100 recipients nationally of federal grants awarded to schools, says an official with the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

Texas ranks sixth nationwide in the amount of federal research grants awarded to colleges and universities — with four of the top 100 schools being located in the Houston area, said Roger Elliott, assistant commissioner of the coordinating board's research department.

The University of Texas at Austin, which received $74 million, was the biggest Texas recipient and ranked 20th nationwide.

The four top 100 schools in the Houston area are Baylor College of Medicine, the UT Health Science Center, University of Texas System Cancer Center and University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston.

The other Texas schools listed in the top 100 are Texas A&M, UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas and the UT Health Science Center at San Antonio.

However, on the whole, Southern schools are getting less than their share of federal money for research and development projects, said Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston.

Andrews said a report from the Sunbelt Institute, commissioned by congressional representatives from 16 Southern states, showed that schools in the Sunbelt received an average of $17.12 in research and development grants per capita, less than half that of the Northeast and Midwest states.

Andrews also said that only three Sunbelt universities — Texas, Texas A&M University and the University of Georgia — are among the top 25 recipients of federal research grants, while the bulk of those schools are on the East and West coasts.

"If the philosophy is that you should be getting money back in relation to your population, it is true" that the Sunbelt isn't getting its share, Elliott said. "We (Texas) are ranked sixth in federal R&D (research and development) dollars and third in population."

Elliott said California and Massachusetts universities have earned the reputation as research centers because of the major financial investments they have made over a long period of time.

But Elliott said the name recognition of Eastern and California schools does hinder worthy projects in lesser-known universities from getting federal dollars.

For 15 years, University of Houston chemistry Professor Ralph Becker labored on a photochemistry research project that has aroused international interest. Becker paid for most of the project, which studied how light triggers the vision process, out of his own pocket.

Turned down for funding by the National Institute of Health, Becker funded the research as he could afford it. He completed the project about six months ago and published his findings in the September issue of Photochemistry and Photobiology.

"The name of the school is a pretty powerful thing," Becker said.

Elliott said the big-name schools on the East coast are often more sophisticated when it comes to submitting projects for consideration.

"There is a great infrastructure built up," he said. "A small Texas school might mail (a proposal) off, but the folks at MIT and Stanford probably know the department manager and personally deliver a proposal that includes a video taped presentation."

VOTE for the MAN!

Come on Rich,

I guess you still don't understand why your "rich" Republican friends did not elect you to public office as their state representative on the two occasions you ran.

Pete Greene's ads have given you information to verify the facts. Does the truth hurt?

Pete Green served as District Attorney prosecuting almost 2000 felony cases, while your Republican candidate was presiding over traffic court.

Perhaps, you should have a case in District Court before you recommend "maturity, good judgement (s.i.c.) and wisdom."

If spending $151,865.73 more than his Democratic predecessor in office is reducing the District Court's budget, the public, not you, should make the decision.

But, I guess since you didn't get your money "the old-fashioned way," it's okay to waste the tax dollar!

The real issue is competency; maybe next time, you will vote for the man instead of the party!

Texas artists likes to paint patriotic themes

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Laurie Whitehead's love of art began in childhood, she said, recalling four-mile walks to lessons.

Even without nourishment, that passion for painting survived marriage and rearing a family of five.

Finally, 13 years ago, her painting became the focus of her being, until brain surgery a year ago forced another hiatus.

In Sherman recently for a visit with her aunt, Mary Bob McCoy, the Friendswood, Texas, artist traced her path from "adding brushstrokes at the kitchen table, stealing a few minutes alone when the family was in bed," to her 1984 recognition as a master watercolor artist by International Art Appraisers.

The living room of the McCoy home sizzled with color as sunshine highlighted the paintings propped against walls and furniture, spread out in a semicircle on the floor. Whitehead moved from one to another, relating the story behind each — gesturing enthusiastically as memories swarmed; pointing out minute details in the panorama of watercolor.

Whitehead has won world recognition for her painting, but one of her greatest pleasures is demonstrating watercolor techniques for school children.

"I don't teach painting," she said. "It takes up too much time, time I want to spend creating...but I love demonstrating fine art in the schools."

Whitehead's commissioned works carry big price tags and hang in prestigious collections, but proceeds from the sale of limited edition prints of those works don't put a penny in her purse — they are designated to support various scholarships and funds.

Her best-known painting, "and Touched the Face of God," hangs in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Johnson Space Center in Houston and portraits the Challenger astronauts. Proceeds from reproductions go to the Challenger Memorial Scholarship Fund, Inc., a non-profit organization founded by Whitehead and the Bay Area Executive Club of Houston. The funds are designated for students attending the Challenger Center for Space Science Education.

"Winning this commission from NASA was one of my proudest moments because it was endorsed by the family of each Challenger crew member."

The seven crew members were painted from several photos of each, she said. "I always work from several photographs, picking up details and shading from each, combining the best into a refreshment of detail."

Each astronaut is haloed with a rainbow and the rainbow hues are repeated in their nametags.

The number 13 is represented somewhere in each of her paintings, usually in a repetition of detail. A secret logo also is hidden somewhere in every painting, she confided. "I am superstitious about the number 13 because it was 13 and a half years ago I decided to go my own way — to see if I could become self-supporting through my art."

The mother of two, formerly married to a rancher with three children, was newly divorced and "had time to return to painting."

Noting that during the years of her marriage, house work, child care and "cooking for ranch hands and haying crews" left little leisure for her "hobby," she was ready to "try to become a real artist."

Beginning in oils, she switched "totally" to watercolor 10 years ago.

Today, her brilliantly-colored works are found in the collections of President Ronald Reagan, Vice President George Bush, Texas Gov. Bill Clements, Dr. Denton Cooley, astronauts Jack Lousma and Jim van Hoften.

Another Whitehead collector, Chet Brooks, dean of the Texas Senate, commissioned the artist's "Our Battleship TEXAS" as a tribute to the grand old ship and her men. Proceeds from sales of the original and limited edition prints are donated to restoration funds for the battleship.

The artist is noted for several series — her Americana paintings celebrating the Fourth of July in a mythical small town; her clowns, shown in all kinds of settings, from parades to making clown shoes; the four works commissioned by the Texas Sesquicentennial Committee; and her hot air balloons that celebrate the world of flight. The four-picture new series, "Laurie's Children," affectionately executed small paintings, ranks among her own special favorites.

A clown watercolor, "Model A Full of Clowns," became a benefit project for the Shrine Hospital. Prints of the painting have raised $70,000 for the Shrine burn center, and she has been made an honorary Shrine Clown, the only woman given the honor.

Another, "The Clown Shoemaker," led to her being named a master artist.

Her Fourth of July paintings are lovingly done from life. "Every person shown in the paintings is a real person, and recognizable," she said. "I sometimes use my grand-children, or people I know, or strangers. I love it when people point out a section of the picture and say, 'I remember seeing that at the parade.' They couldn't have — each painting is a composite of several parades, but they recognize the feeling. That's exciting."

But nothing exceeds the satisfaction she finds in demonstrating art to school children. "I am dedicated to promoting America and patriotism, and these demonstrations plant seeds for love of both art and country in our children...that is my real payment."

Mulling ideas for future paintings, she ruffles her short, sleek coppery hair, saying the color is a "legacy" from her recent brain surgery. Just over a year ago, the artist underwent surgery to repair damage caused from a years-ago bout with meningitis.

Feuding Chicago Democrats help Bush

By Robert J. Wagman

(Third of four related articles)

CHICAGO (NEA) — For many years, Illinois has acted as a bellwether in presidential politics. In 15 of the last 16 presidential contests this state has backed the eventual national winner, usually with a majority closely reflecting the winner's national majority. This year Illinois may again, at least in terms of popular vote, mirror the nation. The contest here is considered too close to call.

People remembering the Cook County (Chicago) Democratic machine, run for so long by the iron-fisted Mayor Richard Daley, tend to think of Illinois as a Democratic stronghold. But the southern parts of the state tend to vote Republican, and Illinois has not supported any Democratic presidential nominee since it went for Lyndon Johnson in 1964. So, Michael Dukakis has a lot of recent history to overcome as he tries to win Illinois' critical 24 electoral votes. And he has two major problems:

First, and perhaps foremost, Illinois voters seem to have no special affinity for the governor from Massachusetts. This is true not only of the electorate as a whole, but also of Democrats.

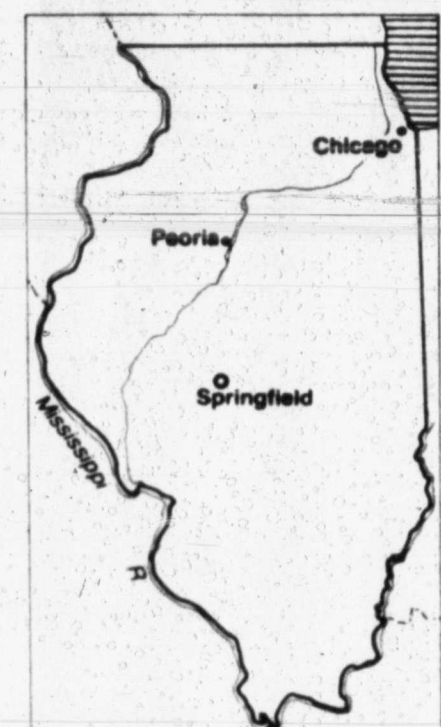

Democrats had a short but intense look at Dukakis during the Illinois primary battle this spring. They responded by overwhelmingly rejecting him in favor of their favorite son, Sen. Paul Simon.

Dukakis' second problem is more practical. As is so often the case here, presidential politics have become caught up in the byzantine maneuvers of the never-ending local political wars.

In days when the Cook County machine had real power, Dick Daley could deliver enough Democratic votes in Cook County to overcome traditional Republican strength in other parts of the state. With the machine's power sharply reduced, the key to this year's presidential contest in Illinois is whether Dukakis can hold together warring Democratic factions long enough to deliver the votes he needs to win.

The Democratic machine began to splinter after Daley's death in 1976 because he left no clear successor. A deep division among white aldermen allowed the city's growing black population to unite behind Harold Washington, who became the city's first black mayor in 1983.

The Chicago political machine is badly split and will be hard-pressed to deliver Illinois to the Democrats on Election Day.

Washington died suddenly last year, the party became more fractured as several black candidates appeared to lay claim to being Washington's heir.

Meanwhile, Vrdolyak has become a Republican. He is the GOP candidate for clerk of the Cook County Circuit Court, which, because of the patronage it controls, is a major local office.

His forces have already helped register over 100,000 new voters in heavily Republican suburban areas of the county.

Meanwhile, Cook County Democrats have to deliver more votes now than in the past because of population shifts in the state. The fastest growing areas in Illinois are the Chicago suburbs. Many of their residents are younger persons buying their first homes, and many are whites fleeing the city. While a number of these people consider themselves Democrats, they are the kind of conservative Democrats that defected to Ronald Reagan in droves in 1984.

Bush has made great strides in these suburbs. His attacks on Dukakis as a liberal, especially his attacks on Dukakis as soft on crime and weak on defense, have been especially telling. Where Dukakis once held a slight lead among these voters, Bush now commands a wide margin.

A simple comparison indicates how daunting the Democrats' task is. In 1960 John F. Kennedy carried Illinois by 8,858 votes after Daley "found" enough votes to give Kennedy a 318,736-vote margin in Cook County out of 2.4 million votes cast. In that contest, suburban DuPage County, gave Richard Nixon a 57,000-vote margin out of 145,000 cast.

Between 1960 and 1984, DuPage County's turnout more than doubled and, in 1984, Reagan carried the county by 155,000 votes. At the same time, the Cook County turnout dropped by more than 250,000 from 1960.

Amid all this, there is one piece of good news for Dukakis. Polls show that Bush has been hurt by the administration's agriculture policies and is lagging in the normally Republican rural areas. Despite this, if the Massachusetts governor is going to capture Illinois, he must somehow get the help of the warring Cook County Democrats while making serious inroads into the growing GOP strength in the suburbs. It will be a difficult mission.

When You Cast Your Vote For District Judge Please Remember These Things:

Judge Gene Dulaney is a hard-working full time judge.

Judge Gene Dulaney is obligated to no individual or group of individuals.

Judge Gene Dulaney is a judge for everyone, not just a few.

Judge Gene Dulaney is a judge of proven honesty and integrity, who has always conducted himself in a dignified and ethical manner.

Judge Gene Dulaney is a judge who protects your rights.

Judge Gene Dulaney is tough on crime and believes in equal justice for all.

Judge Gene Dulaney is a real family man who has reared his family in Scurry County, and who understands family problems and is able to offer fair solutions in all family matters.

Judge Gene Dulaney has owned his own home and been a taxpayer in Scurry County for 38 years.

Judge Gene Dulaney is the only candidate with judicial experience. He served 20 years as your Municipal Judge and the last four years as your District Judge.

Judge Gene Dulaney asks you to consider these points and return him to the office of District Judge for a second term.

California pits big name vs. organization

By Robert J. Wagman

(First of four related articles)

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — Michael Dukakis' forces believe they can win here with a controversial campaign strategy. The Bush camp thinks it has an unbeatable weapon it is about to unleash. And both sides agree this contest is about dead even and will probably stay that way right down to the wire.

With 47 electoral votes — the nation's biggest single bloc — California is a must-win state for Dukakis.

Shortly after the Democratic convention, some polls in California showed Dukakis with what seemed to be a virtually insurmountable 20 point lead. At that same time, only 66 percent of voters who identified themselves as Republican said they were going to back the vice president.

A combination of factors has allowed Bush to make a comeback.

His performance at the Republican convention won over conservative Republicans who had feared he was a closet moderate, something they find more dangerous and objectionable than a Kennedy liberal. Current polls show that more than 90 percent of voters who call themselves Republicans support Bush.

Bush also helped himself when he hit Dukakis repeatedly and hard on crime, the death penalty and defense.

On almost every visit to California, Bush has gone to a defense plant. California is the No. 1 state in the nation in terms of its share of Pentagon spending, and for many Californians, the defense budget is a pocketbook issue. The Bush campaign has encouraged many defense workers to fear that they would lose their jobs if Dukakis were elected.

Fear of crime is the major issue in many parts of Southern California. The Bush camp has relentlessly pictured Dukakis as soft on crime and as being more concerned with the rights of criminals than the rights of victims.

Dukakis' No. 1 issue here is Bush's environmental record and support for increased offshore oil drilling. But the Bush camp has been somewhat able to blunt the issue by attacking Dukakis' own environmental record, particularly the pollution in Boston harbor.

But, issues aside, Republicans believe they have a secret weapon that will make the difference in a close race. His name is Ronald Reagan. The president will campaign extensively for Bush here in the final days of the campaign.

George Bush has come from behind to pull even with Michael Dukakis in California, and the race is expected to go down to the wire.

"A last minute blitz by the president might mean a two or three point swing," said Bush campaign consultant William Lacy. "That could well end up being the difference."

The Dukakis camp, meanwhile, believes that it is going to win with a tactic that is so old that it is new in California — a good grass-roots organization.

Dukakis is spending millions and deploying several hundred full-time staffers to recruit and train some 29,000 precinct-level chairmen. They will each be responsible for setting up a mini-organization and then delivering the vote in their precinct.

This is how politics has been run in most big American cities for generations. But the conventional wisdom is that California is too big and too complex for such a strategy to work.

The Dukakis organization is being put together by veterans of local and regional grass-roots campaigns who believe they can duplicate their past successes on a statewide level. "The key to this race will be our organization," says Tony Podesta, Michael Dukakis' campaign manager in California. "You'll see that on election night."

As the experts now view the race, Dukakis is well ahead both in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Bush, in turn, will do very well in Orange County and the other conservative strongholds of Southern California, and can count on a sizable majority in many of the fast growing suburban areas. In the high-tech areas of Santa Clara County and San Jose the contest is about even.

One big question mark is the Central Valley, the 150 mile-long agricultural heartland of the state.

The Bush forces see the Central Valley as somewhat similar to many areas of Southern California, with many conservative Democrats who voted enthusiastically for Ronald Reagan. The GOP believes it can attract these voters by relentlessly depicting Dukakis as a liberal.

The Dukakis camp counters that the valley has seen a sizable growth in its minority population and that, if it can register these voters and get them to the polls on Nov. 8, Dukakis will take the valley.

Texas slips away from Democrats

By Robert J. Wagman

(Second of four related articles)

DALLAS (NEA) — No Democrat has ever won the Oval Office without carrying Texas. But if all the indicators are correct they are going to have to try this year.

Some reports claim that the Dukakis forces have conceded Texas and its 29 electoral votes to George Bush. That is not exactly correct. Dukakis still has a large full-time staff in Texas. They will buy at least some television ads in the final days of the campaign, and he will make at least one last visit to the state.

But the Democrats really have no illusions. They know that, despite a huge investment of time, money and energy, this state is slipping away from them. And they seem hard-pressed to explain why.

Make no mistake about it, Texas was a very major effort for Dukakis. He picked the state's senior senator, Lloyd Bentsen, as his running mate almost solely in the hope that he could deliver his home state. He put a staff of more than 100 in the field. He has spent lavishly on advertising, producing many television spots especially for Texas and some designed for specific areas of Texas. At least on paper, no candidate could have made a greater effort than Dukakis has made here.

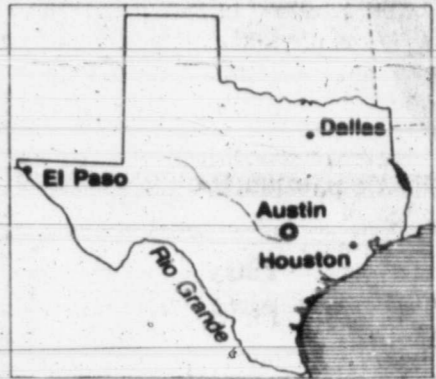

Ronald Reagan ran away with Texas four years ago by a margin of 64 to 36 percent, but the Democrats thought they could carry it this year for three reasons:

First, Reagan won in '84 thanks in great measure to the wholesale defection of conservative yellow-dog Democrats ("I'd vote for a yellow dog if he were a Democrat"). But Dukakis strategists believed they could recapture many of the defectors because Texas' economy has been so bad.

Secondly, the fast growing Hispanic population of south Texas and the Rio Grande Valley has become the swing vote in this state. In 1984, Ronald Reagan was able to attract almost 30 percent of the Hispanic vote. The Dukakis strategists thought that they could register huge numbers of new Hispanic voters and then snare 90 percent of their votes.

Finally, there was the Bentsen factor. He has been, and continues to be,

Dukakis has made a major effort in Texas but it now appears that Bush will carry the state anyway.

hugely popular here. The Dukakis strategists believed Bentsen could make up to a 10 point difference in the final vote totals and that that would be enough to swing the race to them.

So what has happened? Insiders say it is a combination of things.

First and foremost has been Bush's stinging negative attack on Dukakis. Soft on crime. Weak on defense (a position that, Bush says, could cost Texas many of their 300,000 defense-related jobs). Card-carrying member of the American Civil Liberties Union. Supporter of gun control. The "L" word. Bush has blasted away at these themes in numerous personal appearances and in some of the most negative television advertising seen anywhere this year. Chances are the negative campaign has worked better in Texas than in any other state.

The most significant factors in the polls here are the so-called "negatives" — the measure of people who have a negative opinion of a candidate. After the Democratic convention, when Dukakis was shown leading in Texas, his negatives were relatively low, in the high 20 percents. Today, with the polls showing Bush comfortably ahead, Dukakis' negatives are approaching 50 percent, an area of certain death for any candidate.

Some Texas Democrats, including Democratic state party Chairman Robert Slagle, have been openly furious with Dukakis for not responding more aggressively to the Bush attacks.

Then too, George Bush looks like he will be surprisingly effective in holding at least part of the Hispanic vote. His "Dukakis is soft on crime" ads have been effective, and his Hispanic daughter-in-law's campaigning has also helped.

Finally, the Bentsen factor has become confused and, in the end, may almost be counterproductive.

Under an unique law passed here in 1960 to protect Lyndon Johnson when he ran as John F. Kennedy's vice president, Bentsen can both seek re-election to the Senate and run for vice president. Polls are showing that Bentsen has lost none of his popularity but that many voters believe they are fulfilling their obligation to him by voting to return him to the Senate. They have even been helped along in making this decision by GOP ads that say, in effect, that Texas is better off with Bentsen in the Senate.

The Dukakis camp has not given up on Texas completely. Before Election Day several Kennedys will campaign through the Rio Grande Valley where the Kennedy name is still magic. An outpouring of Hispanic votes, a Bush stumble, a last-minute Bentsen effect — that is the hope. But, as the Dukakis strategists admit privately, it is not a very realistic hope.

GOP, Democrats take campaign to El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Democrats and Republicans courted the Hispanic vote in weekend swings through El Paso.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen, appearing before about 800 Democrats at El Paso's downtown train station, predicted a come-from-behind victory Tuesday for the Democratic ticket, headed by Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"Those Republicans are dropping like a rock in these polls," Bentsen said in a speech laced with snippets of Spanish.

Republicans brought the first Hispanic member of the Cabinet to El Paso. Former Texas Tech president and current Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos told a gathering of about 200 Republicans that a George Bush administration would make education a high priority.

"Let us educate every person to their fullest potential," Cavazos said. "What we will do is take the highly motivated student and help this person through the system. Let us find that dropout and say, 'Son, daughter, queremos que tu vuelves'" — we want you to return.

Bentsen referred to Republican Spanish-language radio advertisements that were aired in the Rio Grande Valley and in El Paso in which an announcer intones that officials "will be watching" to discourage vote fraud or voting by non-U.S. citizens.

He condemned the ads as a tactic to scare Hispanics from the polls.

"Now they're running radio ads in Spanish to scare Hispanics from voting, but we're not going to be frightened away," Bentsen said.

The radio spots aired only a few times in El Paso and at least one station, KVIV-AM, is no longer airing them.

Also attending the Republican meeting in a cramped banquet room at a hotel were former Sen. John Tower and Roy Barrera, a former candidate for Texas attorney general.

Tower began his speech by saying: "I'm sure the Dukakis camp is trying to convince our Mexican-American citizens that he cares about them. But let's look at the record." He cited a Hispanic high-school dropout rate of 66 percent in Massachusetts, and said Dukakis has no Hispanics in his cabinet.

"The Reagan-Bush team has been providing the climate for upward mobility among the Hispanic community," Tower said.

His words might have been largely lost on the 25-percent Hispanic audience. By contrast, about 75 percent of the crowd at the Bentsen rally was Hispanic.

Bentsen stuck closely to his standard stump speech, promising more jobs, affordable housing, easier college loans and protection of Social Security.

The senator even decried what he called the exportation of American jobs abroad, a touchy subject in a border city that relies heavily on maquiladoras.

Maquiladoras, also called twin plants, are factories in which components are shipped to Mex-

West Texas writer is beatnik scribe in a Yuppie decade

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Sam Pendergrast got down on his knees, grinding his tan cords into the parched earth of Concordia Cemetery, a disheveled place where respect for the dead has disappeared. He tipped his cap in mock salute to the fallen hell-raiser buried before him, gunslinger John Wesley Hardin, shot dead at 42 on Aug. 19, 1895. Pendergrast's bald pate beamed under the cloudless sky. It was a tribute of sorts, from one rebel to another.

"People always talk about Billy the Kid being so tough. But while Billy killed 21 people by age 21, Hardin had killed more than 40 by 17, and he never counted Mexicans and blacks," said Pendergrast, an Abilene resident recently in El Paso to both autograph his recent book "Avenida Juarez," as well as research his forthcoming opus on El Paso titled "The Hungry Land."

Pendergrast — who, by his own score, is a writer, teacher, journalist, and some-time chili head — surveyed the cemetery. Broken beer bottles and toppled tombstones mingled on the desert's barren cape. His eyes returned to the ground, staring at the dirt that lapped at the grey marble slab.

"This is real old El Paso," he proclaimed with a smile. And Sam Pendergrast is as close to a real beatnik scribe as one can find in this Yuppie Decade, its pulp product best characterized by the tale of urban decadence whipped up by young, party-hopping "Bright Lights, Big City" author Jay McInerney.

With the scraggly, bearded, 56-year-old Pendergrast, you get no allusions of literary propriety or social scaling. His T-shirt reads, "Experts agree! Meese Is A Pig." His trusty red Chrysler Reliant K-car is plastered with "Dukakis-Bentsen" stickers. Its ashtrays are littered with butts. Its stereo pumps out Wagner.

But Pendergrast doesn't reek revolution. His voice is soft. His humor permeates most every topic (On being recognized throughout San Angelo, Texas, where he once penned a newspaper column: "That really messed up my hot-check career.") He's a jovial sort, ready to placidly pontificate on the subject of your choice.

During World War II, American forces launched the invasion of Okinawa April 1, 1945.

Obituaries

Phyllis Smith

MULESHOE-Graveside services were set for 4 p.m. Monday in the Bailey County Memorial Park for Phyllis Beavers Smith, 67, who died Saturday in St. Mary's Hospital. Memorial services for Mrs. Smith were held Monday morning at the Bethany Baptist Church in Lubbock.

She was the mother of John Border of Snyder and the Rev. Glenn Border of Lubbock, a former Snyder minister.

Born in Jet, Okla., she moved to Lubbock from Muleshoe in 1960. In Muleshoe she was the owner of Beavers Flowerland from 1957 to 1980. She married J. B. Smith on Aug. 14, 1960 in Dickens. She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband; another son, the Rev. Chester Beavers of Hobbs, N.M.; her mother, Viola Layne of Lubbock; 12 grandchildren; and 21 great-grandchildren.

Frank Bearden

BROWNWOOD-Graveside services for Frank Bearden, 64, were set for 4 p.m. Monday in the Jenkins Spring Cemetery. He died Saturday while deer hunting 10 miles south of Loraine.

A former resident of Snyder, he was the brother of Ronald Bearden of Snyder.

Bearden moved to Plainview in 1964 and was print shop foreman at Wayland Baptist University. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army Air Corps and was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife, Franton Jones Bearden of Plainview; two stepsons, Zane Jones and Todd Jones, both of Austin; a stepdaughter, Martha Wells of Lubbock; and three other brothers, Clyde Bearden of Lubbock, Olin Bearden of Coahoma and Lowell Bearden of Brownwood.

The Pilgrims set sail Sept. 6, 1620, from Plymouth, England, on the "Mayflower" to settle in the New World.

Numerous vandalisms occur during weekend

Police and sheriff's deputies are investigating several vandalism cases and one theft reported over the weekend.

Earl McCann of the Clairemont Hwy. told deputies at 5:30 p.m. Sunday that someone had broken the back window out of his car while it was parked at Ave. R and Taylor.

Doris Rivers told police at 10:14 a.m. Sunday that someone had defaced houses at 400 and 402 29th St. by painting the walls with shoe polish.

Frank Selvera of 1104 20th St. at 9:23 p.m. Sunday reported a criminal mischief incident at his house, but the police report had not been completed to indicate what kind of damage had been done.

In addition, Lionel Orocco of Rt. 1 at 3:08 p.m. Saturday reported the theft of a 20-gauge Winchester pump shotgun.

executive session at the end of the meeting to discuss acquisition of right-of-way related to the laying of water and sewer lines to the Texas Department of Corrections prison site.

DWI arrests number three

State highway patrolmen arrested three men for DWI in separate incidents late Saturday and early Sunday.

A 52-year-old man was taken into custody at 11:45 p.m. Saturday three miles south of Snyder on Hwy. 208 and a 48-year-old man at 11:30 p.m. Saturday on the county coliseum grounds.

A 44-year-old man was arrested just after midnight Sunday at Round Top Acres.

Police answered a 7 p.m. Saturday disturbance call at a home in the 2400 Block of 40th St. and took a 33-year-old man into custody on a misdemeanor assault charge.

At 1:23 a.m. Sunday in the 300 Block of the East Hwy., a city patrolman arrested a 43-year-old man for DWI and a 32-year-old man for public intoxication.

Grass fire is extinguished

Firemen took only a few minutes to extinguish a small grass fire early Sunday afternoon in an alley off the 3200 Block of College Ave.

The call came in at 12:55 p.m., a department spokesman said.

Actor carefully studies movie roles

NEW YORK (AP) — For Dennis Quaid, one of Hollywood's busiest actors, much of his work in a movie comes before a single frame is shot.

To portray an astronaut, he learned to fly; to play a cop, he spent a month on patrol; and to play rock legend Jerry Lee Lewis in a forthcoming movie, he has spent months steeped in Lewis' life. He even turned his living room into an impromptu recording studio.

"I'll sound like Jerry Lee Lewis if I can get inside of him," Quaid said in an interview published Sunday in The New York Times Magazine.

Quaid, 34, has signed a contract to play Lewis in "Great Balls of Fire." In 13 years, he has been in 21 films, including "Breaking Away," "The Right Stuff," and "The Big Easy."

Ms. Gail Dixon
Mr. and Mrs. Mike Tatum

Dear Ms. Dixon and the Tatums, and others:

In response to your recent criticism of Pete Greene's campaign, I would like to say that I differ with you. In my opinion, he has presented verifiable facts that show the following:

1. Within a few months after taking office, the present district judge did not comply with the laws of the State of Texas regarding the competitive bid process involving the purchase of more than $5,000 in office equipment, by splitting it into two purchases. Judge Dulaney never addressed the competitive bid issue.
2. The County Auditor, former Republican County Commissioner, B.J. Bartels, the "watch-dog" over the Commissioner's Court, passively stood-by and approved the purchases, as the District Judge circumvented the law.
3. The present district judge had and, by his own admission, intends to continue a practice of "misapplying county property."
4. The District Court's budget almost doubled in the last four years. The Auditor's records reveal that Judge Holt spent $168,661.77 in his last term, compared to $320,527.50 spent by Judge Dulaney, while Judge Holt disposed of over 200 more cases.
5. The present District Judge has apparently discriminated against females, blacks and hispanics in appointing persons to select grand jurors.
6. After alleging that Pete Greene began a "dirty campaign," the truth about who instigated a "dirty campaign" has been revealed by recent newspaper articles.
7. The incumbent District Judge misrepresented the truth in saying that his opponent "had repeatedly, publicly and privately, stated that he did not want the job," by not quoting exactly what was printed in the newspaper about what Pete Greene said.
8. The present District Judge has used poor judgment in court decisions and gave you examples.

The political advertisements made by Mr. Greene gave sufficient information to personally verify the information as to accuracy, candor and fairness.

Ms. Dixon, your facts are not accurate.

As an example, the Sworn Report of Contributions and Expenditures on file with the Texas Secretary of State in Austin, Texas, shows that Mr. Greene paid his own filing fee of $1,200.00 on January 4, 1988.

In order to meet the filing deadline, his brother-in-law requested the use of Cloyce Talbot's airplane to take the application to Austin, Texas, which was reported in the report.

The following day, Roy Baze, former Chairman of the Republican Party for Scurry County, Texas contributed $1,000.00 to Mr. Greene's campaign; that should tell you something.

Whether you are Republican or Democrat, this information should show you that the present district judge simply is not doing a good job.

On the other hand, there has not been anything factual in the criticism of Pete Greene, except that he had a private practice of law as District Attorney, which the law allowed. Other attempts to criticize him have been by innuendo and deceit. He and his family have been good, respectable citizens of Scurry County for many years.

In the face of him having to practice in Judge Dulaney's court, I appreciate the fact that Pete Greene was willing to investigate these matters and make them public. If you have not voted, I urge you to vote for Pete Greene.

Sincerely,

Sig Line

A GOOD JUDGE DOING A GOOD JOB?

VOTERS, is Judge Dulaney really a good judge, doing a good job?

Attorney General Jim Mattox states that fathers who DO NOT pay child support are BAD!

I say that a Judge who does not enforce the payment of child support is also BAD!

On Oct. 23, 1988, Judge Dulaney called himself "a real family man who has reared his family in Scurry County, and who understands family problems and is able to offer fair solutions in all family matters."

I am one of the many single parents whose children are suffering because of Judge Dulaney's failure to enforce his Court's order!

In my opinion, he is not serving the people of Scurry and Borden Counties!

Immigration reforms second phase begins on Monday

By The Associated Press

Today marked the first day that immigration amnesty recipients could apply for permanent U.S. residency — but many of them will be in class instead of at Immigration and Naturalization Service legalization centers.

With permanent residency status, immigrants receive their prized "green cards" which permit them to work permanently, to leave and enter the country as they wish and to apply for citizenship in a few years.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, most amnesty recipients have to know some English and civics before they obtain permanent residency — a requirement that could spark a back-to-school movement rivaling the one created by the GI Bill after World War II.

Federal officials expect about 1.5 million of the 1.8 million non-agricultural amnesty applicants to apply for permanent residency. Most are Spanish-speakers from Mexico, El Salvador and other Latin American countries.

Many will have to attend school to become eligible for permanent residency, but authorities say some potential applicants could find themselves locked out of overcrowded classes.

"They are looking in a very nervous fashion for a class to get into," said Vanna Slaughter, program director for the immigration counseling services of Dallas' Catholic Charities.

Ms. Slaughter, who helps find teachers for the courses, said classes are packed and the waiting period to get into them usually is two to three months.

"There are about 75 sites where the classes are being taught, (but) we need at least 100, probably more," she said, adding that about 15,000 of the area's 65,000 amnesty applicants have taken courses so far.

Classes for amnesty recipients are free in Dallas public schools, but many attend privately run programs with more flexible hours.

Evans Community Adult School in Los Angeles offers classes 24 hours a day Monday through Saturday, including sessions that start at 2 a.m.

In New York City, classes will be offered by the Board of Education, the City University of New York and many community-based organizations. The city's applicants come from 153 nations, which poses a challenge for teachers, said Garrett Murphy, director of the state education department's division of continuing education.

"We probably have more language groups and more languages than any other state," Murphy said.

Arthur Helton, a spokesman for the Lawyer's Committee for Human Rights, predicted New York state would be overwhelmed by a late swarm of applicants because the INS has done little to inform immigrants about the education program.

"It started with remarkably little fanfare," he said, adding that many immigrants probably are unaware of the educational requirement. "People may just think they have (legal) status now, and they aren't thinking about the next step."

The INS released its guidelines for English and civics classes only a couple of weeks ago, said Henry McGehee, INS legalization officer for the El Paso district.

Immigrants must show a "simple knowledge of government and history of the United States and of simple English," McGehee said.

The INS sends out three letters to each amnesty recipient in the months before he becomes eligible to apply for permanent residency. About a month before, each amnesty recipient gets an application booklet in the mail. All the communications are in English.

"We have a big advantage this time in that we know the applicants and we know where they're living, and they're supposed to mail in change-of-address cards," McGehee said.

Amnesty recipients who apply for permanent residency must either take a 60-hour course from an INS-certified school, pass an oral and written examination similar to the citizenship test given to legal immigrants, or qualify for an exemption.

People who have completed 40 hours of an approved 60-hour course don't have to take the test. Neither do agricultural workers who applied for amnesty under a separate program, children under 16, adults 65 and older or people who are physically unable to take the course or test. All have to pay the application fee of $80 a person or a maximum $240 for a family.

Drug smugglers eye the Texas coast

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Drug smugglers are looking at the Texas coast as an alternate drug-trafficking corridor because of a crackdown along the Florida coast, officials said.

Officials along the Gulf Coast from Port Aransas to the Mexico border have begun gearing up for the anticipated increase in smuggling activity with joint operations involving both federal and state agencies.

Among the newest soldiers in the battle are park rangers assigned to the Padre Island National Seashore who now are armed with automatic weapons.

"We consider this a major problem," Chief Park Ranger Max Hancock told the San Antonio Express-News. "Padre Island is an ideal route for smuggling drugs into the country," he said.

"The smugglers are well organized and know what they are doing. It has just been in the past year that we have received additional funding so we can undertake a serious effort to stop the drug trafficking."

Hancock said the eight full-time rangers he has assigned to the 67-mile stretch of seashore have been authorized to carry automatic weapons as fears of the mounting drug war increase.

"The concept of law enforcement in the National Park Service is a relatively new idea," Ranger Don Carnes said. "We still want the public to see us as rangers and not just law enforcement officers, but that aspect of our job is increasing."

There are increasing indications of new drug smuggling activity — aircraft landing sites, four-wheel-drive vehicle tracks and bales of marijuana that have washed up on the beach, Carnes said.

"A lot of the information we receive is based on observations from park visitors and other agencies," he said. "Once we hear about something going on, we set up a checkpoint to try to catch the smugglers in the act."

"But these people know what they are doing. For every one we catch, there are probably 10 that get away," Carnes added.

"Drugs in the national parks is not a new thing, but there is a new awareness. You have a vast amount of land with a very small amount of patrol. We're short on manpower with dozens of access points, so the criminals see (the parks) as a place to go."

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Hillside serves area for many years

Hillside Memorial Gardens, located on the Colorado City Highway, has been serving Snyder and the Scurry County area for many years.

Hillside Memorial Gardens is a perpetual care cemetery governed by the State Banking Department. The one price you pay for perpetual care is the only one you ever have to pay. There are no yearly dues necessary for the upkeep of the property.

The staff at Hillside Memorial Gardens is committed to serving your best interests. W.C. and Greg Graves will be glad to help you with any of your pre-need planning. Everyone plans for the future in one way or another whether with savings or insurance to take care of something that might happen. Why not prepare for the inevitable? Making the decision to purchase a Family Memorial Estate plan now insures that the decision is made together and one is not left to make it alone. Statistics show that these decisions are made 67 percent of the time by widows and children and 33 percent of the time by husbands. The purchase of a Family Memorial Estate plan can also be a savings plan because the deed is the equivalent of a paid up insurance policy.

Lots at Hillside Memorial Gardens are reasonably priced and they offer a Pre-Need Financial Plan of only 20 percent down and small monthly payments without interest or carrying charges. If the only time you have is on the weekends, Greg can be contacted at 573-5864 and will be glad to help you anytime. Granite and bronze memorials

Suicide attempts prompt concern in Plainview

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — Attempted suicides are becoming more frequent in this West Texas town and some experts believe they signal a trend of more stressful lifestyles creeping into smaller communities.

In the last two weeks, at least nine young residents of this community of 22,400 have tried to kill themselves.

"For some reason in the last six months the number of teen suicide attempts has gone through the roof," said Paul McKenzie, a psychologist with Central Plains Mental Health-Mental Retardation, which handles suicide referrals for the area. "I cannot remember a time in the four years I have been here when we have ever had this kind of situation arise.

"It's scary," McKenzie told the Plainview Daily Herald. "I am amazed that we have as many as we have. I've worked at centers in big cities like Chicago and Los Angeles and I don't ever remember nine in a period of two weeks."

Since the beginning of the year, two young people have committed suicide in Plainview. "It's not like we're having a teen-ager commit suicide every week, but what we do have is kids cutting their wrists, taking too many pills or talking about wanting to kill themselves," said

Bobby Chandler, juvenile officer of the Plainview Police Department.

Suicide is the third-leading cause of American deaths in the 15 to 24 age group. But attempts far outweigh the number of successful suicides.
