LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — The search continued today for the body of a man missing since a helicopter crashed Friday in the Gulf of Mexico, presumably killing four of the six people aboard, officials say.

An unidentified body and the body of pilot Jim Roos, 44, of Nacogdoches, Texas, were found Monday in the wreckage, said Michael O'Malley, a spokesman for Mobil Oil Exploration & Producing Southeast in Dallas.

The body of Eugene Scott, 40, of Abbeville, a Mobil employee, was found Sunday, he said.

Candidates vote as long effort ends

by The Associated Press

George Bush and Michael Dukakis joined millions of other Americans at the polls today at the end of their long presidential campaign. Bush said, "I feel nervous," though pre-election surveys showed him leading. Dukakis predicted a surprise victory.

Republican Bush and his wife, Barbara, voted in Houston shortly after sunup.

"Every time I vote here I feel nervous," he told reporters.

"No predictions," he replied when asked about the outcome.

After two days of non-stop campaigning, including pre-dawn stops today in Iowa and Michigan, Democrat Dukakis returned to Boston.

"I think tonight we're not only going to surprise a few people, but we're going to be doing the celebrating," he told supporters who welcomed him at the airport.

"I voted for Mike Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen and I'm proud of it," he said after casting his ballot later, along with wife Kitty, daughters Andrea and Kara and son John.

"I come away from all of this even more optimistic about the future of this great country of ours than when I started," a sleepless Dukakis had told 3,000 supporters who turned out for a 3 a.m. rally in sub-freezing weather in Des Moines, Iowa.

"Our spirits are bright, the future looks good. We're grateful to all of you," he told several hundred people who stood in the rain in Detroit.

Initial reports from around the country were of a heavy early turnout of voters. In Georgia, See NATIONWIDE, page 11

Balloting may not be record

While absentee voting records for Scurry County were easily bettered this election year, voters going to the polls here Tuesday have a high mark to reach if an all-time vote count is to be set.

Four years ago, some 6,700 Scurry Countians turned out to re-elect President Ronald Reagan. With some 9,175 registered to vote this year, this means 73 percent will have to turn out to set a new record this year.

The record absentee vote totaled 1,820 as this ballot closed Friday. This shattered the previous record of 800 absentee votes.

The early indication here Tuesday was for another heavy turnout. As for setting an all-time record, however, County Clerk Jenna Vee Miller said, "We might, but I'll be surprised."

She noted statewide voter turnouts rarely exceed 50 percent of the registered count.

County residents have until 7 p.m. to vote at 15 sites (see related story).

Voter interest here has been most stirred by the high profile and highly contested race for district judge as District Judge Gene Dulaney is opposed for his second four-year term by Pete Greene.

Dulaney hopes to return as the first Republican ever elected to the office, which entails both Scurry and Borden Counties. Greene is challenging him as a Democrat after winning that nomination in a two-man race last March during Super Tuesday balloting here and across Texas.

In another race generating local interest, the 78th District's state representative post will be

Some candidates are sure winners

For the political races most discussed up until Tuesday's Election Day, it's still too early to call, but seven Scurry County candidates on the ballot can safely assume a four-year term beginning Jan. 1.

In addition, an eighth can at least expect to win an unexpired term and a new political office.

New to her political post, although not new to the duties of the job, will be Frances Billingsley, 55, unopposed for an unexpired term for county clerk.

She will succeed Jenna Vee Miller, who was appointed by commissioners following the retirement of Beverly Ainsworth Miller said at the time of her appointment that she would not be a candidate for the county's clerk's post in any subsequent elections.

Billingsley, a longtime deputy county clerk, was unopposed for the Democratic Party nomination last spring and is again unopposed Tuesday.

Also without opposition on the ballot are the positions of district attorney for the 132nd District, county attorney, county sheriff, county tax assessor-collector, the county commissioner's posts for Pcts. 1 and 3 and county constable.

Candidates now assured new four-year terms are:

—District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, 40, a Democrat, who was first elected to the post in November of 1984.

Windbreak trees ok'd for landfill

City councilmen Monday night approved the submission to the Texas Health Department of a revised plan related to the municipal landfill site—changes in part prompted by requests to control blowing trash at the facility.

Changes will include to smooth up and re-slope the dike along the south boundary and to plant United States Forest Service-supplied windbreak trees around the other three sides of the landfill east of town.

City Engineer Don Osborn proposed also that an 8 ft. chain-link fence previously discussed by the council be built in stages over the next 30 years, but Councilmen Ralph Williamson and Joe Coronado noted that nearby landowners appeared satisfied with trees to replace the fencing in a recent meeting and said the fencing should be deleted from the plan.

A motion to delete the fencing was unanimously approved.

In other business, council members approved the final revised plat for the new Wal-Mart store in south Snyder off College Ave., clearing the way for the scheduled completion and

One coffee group in Snyder gathers at the College Ave. Dairy Queen. Many of them are retired and commonly refer to themselves as the "Stanfield housewives."

Their spiritual leader is Bunk Casey, a professional expert on just almost any subject. His father was an early day school teacher and was the first superintendent at the Hobbs school in Fisher County.

Just the other day, a friend of Casey inquired about his education. "Bunk, looks like the superintendent would have insisted on an education for his son."

George Lee, who retired from the City of Snyder, brought in an explanation for Bunk's current state. Lee had pictures of Bunk with the Hobbs High School football team.

The years were 1936 and '37. Bunk graduated in 1936 but returned the next fall to play football. Bunk noted there were 11 players on the team—just enough as every male in the high school was suited out.

The thing that stood out most, however, was the uniform—or lack of a complete one. Casey was the only player in the picture without a headgear.

Playing football without a helmet explains a lot about both Gerald Ford and Bunk Casey.

Computer virus event raises ethical questions at schools

NEW YORK (AP) — The marauding computer virus unleashed last week has jolted many academics into realizing that ethical values are critical in a field where brilliant minds can turn dangerously arrogant, careless and naive.

"I would like to see students more sensitized to this," said Peter Yee, a member of the experimental computing center at the University of California's Berkeley campus, one of the targets of the virus.

The virus, believed spread by a graduate computer science student at Cornell University, clogged an estimated 6,000 computers at universities and research institutes by spreading via electronic mail networks and making copies of itself. It reportedly only took up memory space and did not destroy files.

"Before this incident, students felt that security and privacy were somebody else's problems," Yee said Monday. "Now that one of our own has done this, I expect more in-depth discussion."

Others queried in an informal sampling of top U.S. universities said they believe most computer science students have a fundamental grasp of proper ethical conduct. But several said computer advances are moving so quickly that questions of right and wrong often have not been discussed in depth.

"I think there's a broad consensus among students and faculty at Harvard that tampering with major computer information systems is a very bad thing to do, and it can cause disruption within the whole social structure," said John Shattuck, Harvard vice president for government, community and public affairs.

At the same time, Shattuck said, "I think the technology is moving so rapidly here that it's somehow gotten ahead of the discussion and careful weighing of principles, as reflected in the slow evolution in the law in this area. This case will certainly draw attention to the questions."

The Cornell student, Robert T. Morris Jr., did his undergraduate studies at Harvard.

The Justice Department has directed the FBI to conduct a full-scale criminal investigation of Morris and the incident, a government source familiar with the case said late Monday on condition of anonymity. The FBI had been conducting a preliminary inquiry.

"It's a bit terrifying," the 23-year-old Morris said.

Thomas Guidoboni, a lawyer in Washington, D.C., said he had been retained to represent Morris, who is staying at his family's Arnold, Md., home. "We have notified the federal authorities of our representation and his whereabouts," Guidoboni said.

Eugene Mallove, spokesman and chief science writer for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the virus incident compelled the school's authorities to reiterate their policy on the misuse of computers, which will be published Wednesday in the campus newspaper, Tech Talk.

'Towel bandit' strikes

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A man dubbed "the towel bandit" struck two businesses in the Conroe area within 12 hours during the weekend, authorities say.

The man is believed to be responsible for four robberies in southern Montgomery in the past four weeks, according to Montgomery County Sheriff's spokesman Bob Morrison.

In each robbery, the man who appeared in brandish a handgun wrapped in a red or white towel or cloth.

AIDS update given

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP)

— Vials of gamma globulin sold in Monterrey and found to contain AIDS antibodies did not pose a public health risk because the virus itself was not present, a federal Health Ministry official said.

Mario Lieberman told a news conference Monday that the lot of gamma globulin tested positive for AIDS antibodies but presented no threat because it did not contain the virus.

"This product does not have the virus and cannot infect anybody," he said.

Lieberman was in Monterrey, capital of the northern state of Nuevo Leon, after a hospital reported it had discovered the virus for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, in the lot.

Gamma globulin is made from blood serum and contains antibodies that are useful in the temporary prevention of several diseases, including measles and hepatitis.

Independent Daughter Wants Handout to Foot Wedding Bill

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 26. She's living with a man we've never met. They have lived together for more than two years. Eighteen months ago, she called to tell us that she was pregnant. At the time, I suggested that they get married, but she said she didn't know if she really "loved" him. They now are the parents of a healthy 10-month-old boy.

Last week, this daughter (who lives 1,000 miles away) called to say that she decided to marry this man — and would we pay for the wedding? I didn't know what to say.

We haven't seen her for more than two years. Two years ago, my wife and I drove from Phoenix to Denver to surprise her on her birthday. We called her from a service station on the outskirts of town, and were told she had other plans and couldn't see us that week. Almost every call we've had from her since she left home at 18 was an SOS for money.

My first reaction to her request that we pay for her wedding was anger — although I didn't express it. I don't think we should pay for it. What do you think?

HOT IN ARIZONA

DEAR HOT: In view of the shameful way your daughter has treated you, you would be justified in telling her to finance her own wedding, but please don't. Tell her instead that you would like to see her and meet her fiance and your grandchild, and then you'll talk about paying for her wedding.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, Newsweek magazine recommended 10 ways to cope with the pressure of the workplace. I think the list is so valuable that you may want to share it with your readers. The tips:

1. Maintain a sense of humor
2. Meditate
3. Get a massage
4. Exercise
5. Eat sensibly
6. Limit alcohol and caffeine
7. Take refuge in family and friends
8. Delegate responsibility
9. Stand up to the boss, or
10. Quit!

Then we were told that the magazine's prescription is really nothing new — that it was summed up about 250 years ago by Jonathan Swift, who wrote: "The best doctors in the world are Dr. Diet, Dr. Quiet and Dr. Merryman."

I just had to send this to you, Abby. Please print it. It should help millions of readers.

MILLIE HAWTHORN, HARRISBURG, PA.

DEAR MILLIE: Newsweek's recommendation for coping with pressure is well worth quoting. And Jonathan Swift's prescription for good health can be paraphrased into the more contemporary: "Eat judiciously, practice moderation in everything, practice merriment in every-thing, and make merry!" (Van Buren)

DEAR ABBY: Every morning, a neighbor catches a ride to work with someone who pulls up in front of his house and honks loudly three or four times.

Doesn't this honker realize that some people might still be trying to sleep? I have been sleeping in because I am recuperating from surgery. People being picked up should be at the door and ready to go, so the driver doesn't have to honk at all.

Please print this for that inconsiderate driver and the passenger who is never ready on time.

RUDE AWAKENING IN CHERRY HILL, N.J.

DEAR RUDE AWAKENING: A friendly visit with your neighbor will probably do a lot more to silence the disturbance than this message. I've done my part — now you do yours. Pleasant dreams.

Wedding bells? Wedding bills! Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

238 ballot questions include gun control, car insurance

By The Associated Press

Voters today were deciding bans on cheap guns in Maryland and state-funded abortions in Michigan. Measures in California aimed at curbing car insurance rates resulted in the nation's most expensive contest outside who occupies the White House.

The 238 ballot questions facing voters in 41 states also included proposals dealing with AIDS testing, smoking, nuclear power, homosexual rights, lotteries, and even the treatment of animals.

California voters faced the most statewide propositions, 29, on which a record $130 million, or more than $9 per voter, was spent.

Supporters and foes of five proposals aimed at cutting car insurance rates poured in more than $75 million, making it the most expensive campaign in the country outside a presidential race. Insurers alone spent $60 million, hoping to stop what they fear could be the start of a nationwide "insurance revolt."

An AIDS testing measure would among other things end California's anonymous screening program and require officials to trace the contacts of anyone testing positive for the virus.

The measure was promoted by Paul Gann, who contracted AIDS in 1982 from a blood transfusion and was co-author a decade ago of the landmark tax-cutting Proposition 13 and backed by Republican Gov. George Deukmejian. On Saturday, a group representing 500 health care professionals vowed to defy the measure.

In Maryland, the National Rifle Association pumped more than $4 million into its bid to repeal a 6-month-old law that outlaws cheap handguns. Opponents and advocates agreed that the vote could influence the fate of similar statutes pending in the New Jersey and Florida legislatures. Polls projected a close race.

Voters in Michigan decided whether to ban state-funded abortions for poor women except to save the mother's life. Anti-abortion groups spent $3 million and pro-choice groups raised $1.2 million on the campaign.

A proposed Arkansas amendment would ban tax-financed abortions and protect life from conception, and Colorado voters decided whether to repeal a similar measure. Michigan, however, was seen as the most important test, in part because of the diversity of its population and the amount spent.

In other issues:

SMOKING — Oregon voters decided whether to toughen the state's already strict anti-smoking ordinance with a measure that would ban smoking in most public places. Californians decided whether to boost the cigarette tax from 10 cents to 35 cents a pack and use proceeds to promote health.

ENVIRONMENT — Massachusetts voters decided whether to effectively shut down its two nuclear power plants. Nebraskans considered whether to become the first state to pull out of an interstate nuclear waste disposal compact.

In Kentucky, the coal industry fought a proposed amendment limiting the right to strip mining.

WTC's service featured at B&PW

Business and Professional Women's Club members met at Martha Ann Woman's Club for their October dinner meeting and featured speaker Bettie McQueen, Dean of Instruction at Western Texas College.

McQueen's topic, "How WTC Serves the Community," related to the club's theme of serving others.

McQueen attributed the variety and growth of activities at WTC to the quality and excellence of the college staff. She stated the average student's age is 27 although 17- and 18-year-old graduates account for the core of enrollees working toward degrees.

In last year's analysis, over 2,000 enrolled in the vocational department which includes courses in cosmetology, real estate, nursing, and computer training.

McQueen also presented statistics on evening classes, extension courses, continuing education, art and golf as well as "fun" courses such as flower arranging and dough art.

Ruby Butts was hostess for the meeting and used a fall motif of pumpkins and leaves in table decorations. A large pumpkin was filled with small packages of M&Ms for favors.

Elizabeth Beavers was program coordinator and presented a bouquet of red roses to McQueen in appreciation of her speech.

Club president Frances Brown conducted the business meeting and reminded members to meet Nov. 17 due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

MAWC representatives announced the annual garage sale would be Nov. 12 at Towle Park Barn with proceeds supporting the clubhouse.

Monette O'Day announced the recital of Melanie Smith at WTC and read a thank you letter to club members from Judson Morrison, scholarship recipient.

The book, "A Salute to Irving Berlin" by Michael Freedland, is being studied by members in honor of the year's theme. Hataway gave a performance of Berlin's, "Puttin' on the Ritz." A video of the CBS special, "A Tribute to Irving Berlin," was shown and discussed. Thanks were expressed to Elaine Byrd and A.C. Floyd for making the featured program possible.

Musical Coterie is affiliated with the Texas Federation of Music Clubs and the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Mrs. Joel Hamlett III gave a program on potpourri and how to dry flowers and herbs to create all kinds of potpourri scents. She also told members how to restore fragrance to potpourri mixtures.

Refreshments were served.

A daring holdup

Holding up taking a winner is a common and well-known defensive strategy. The purpose is to break up communications between the declarer's hand and dummy, usually to prevent declarer from establishing and using tricks in a long suit. The defender usually has an ace or a king and waits until the propitious moment to take it. Today's deal is a departure from the norm in that the card held up is a lowly queen.

Place yourself in declarer's seat after the straightforward auction ending in three-no-trump. A heart is led, you win in your hand and lead the nine of spades. When West plays low, you play low from dummy. If East takes the queen, no problem can arise in the play for nine tricks. A second spade lead will set up three tricks in that suit for declarer, to go with three heart tricks, one club trick and two diamond tricks.

When the East defender was New York expert David Berkowitz, playing at a recent North American championship, he allowed declarer's spade nine to win the trick. Declarer of course continued with a second spade to dummy's 10, and now Berkowitz won the queen. But declarer's communication was gone for the spade suit, and he eventually failed in his contract.

First few weeks are most important

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever his margin of victory, the man Americans are choosing for the White House today will move in with a mandate — for as long as he can make it stick.

The vote count and the way it was fashioned will fade quickly into the fine print of statistics. The new administration will be in charge for at least four years, and what the president-elect does in the first weeks of his tenure will count for more than everything that has gone before.

Neither Vice President George Bush nor Gov. Michael Dukakis offered the voters much in the way of detailed blueprints for action on specific problems that will come due for the next president, the swollen budget deficit chief among them.

AP analysis

That has led critics of both candidates, and of the campaigns they have waged, to question whether either could claim enough of a mandate to govern effectively.

The president-elect will have to prove himself a positive leader, quickly, with his appointments and with what he says about policy from his unmatched political station. A Democratic Congress will be watching, measuring the new leader in his new circumstances.

President Reagan put his first-term income tax cut before the voters in his 1980 campaign, then used his mandate and his soaring personal popularity to get his way with Congress. But presidential nominees are more often vague than specific.

Indeed, an itemized campaign can haunt an officeholder. So, for example, Bush could well one day have problems with one of his few specifics: no new taxes. The read-my-lips line would be impossible to ignore, even if economic reality dictated a different reading. On that issue, Dukakis would have room to maneuver where Bush has little or none.

The Dukakis campaign has offered no catalogue of Democratic alternatives; it, too, has been long on generalities. The tactic was keynoted when Dukakis allies fashioned a Reader's Digest of a campaign platform, keeping it brief and vague — in contrast to the itemized wish lists that burdened earlier tickets.

Each candidate spent most of the campaign trying to persuade people to vote against the other one. It was negative, often nasty, and hardly unique.

Bush was campaigning to break a 152-year shutout by winning the presidency as a sitting vice president. He joked that it was "the curse of Martin Van Buren," but he also had to shake off the curse of George Bush, the image of a card-carrying wimp.

He took a battering on that score during the primary election season, even as he won the nomination.

At the beginning, Dukakis said the Republicans were "moving farther and farther away from the mainstream," while he stood for Main Street. At the end, Bush declared "If I win, it will be a mainstream mandate."

Mainstream or Main Street, close count or landslide, the mandate will be there on Wednesday.

Demos favored in Indiana, W. Virginia

By The Associated Press

Democrats were favored to retake the governor's office in Indiana and West Virginia and were locked in tighter-than-ever races with GOP incumbents in Rhode Island and Utah today as voters in 12 states cast ballots for their top job.

Montana also held the possibility that the governor's office might change party hands, with the candidates in a dead heat to succeed Democrat Ted Schwinden.

Utah Gov. Norm Bangert, overcoming the stigma of a record $166 million tax increase in 1987, erased an early, 30-point deficit in the polls to draw even with Democrat Ted Wilson. In Rhode Island, Bruce Sundlun's allegations of unethical conduct lifted him into a too-close-to-call race against Gov. Edward DiPrete.

Democrats hold 27 of the 50 governorships. Nine incumbents — six Republicans and three Democrats — are on the ballot. Republican Robert Orr of Indiana is barred by law from a third term; Schwinden and New Hampshire Republican John Sununu are retiring.

If Massachusetts' Michael Dukakis is elected president, Lt. Gov. Evelyn Murphy, also a Democrat, will serve out his gubernatorial term. In Nevada, Lt. Gov. Bob Miller will succeed fellow Democrat Dick Bryan if Bryan is elected to the Senate.

Other states electing governors are Delaware, Missouri, North Dakota, Vermont and Washington.

Evan Bayh, son of former U.S. Sen. Birch E. Bayh, was favored to become Indiana's first Democratic governor office in 20 years, although his lead appeared to be slipping. The 32-year-old Indiana secretary of state would also be the youngest U.S. governor in office.

An Indianapolis Star poll published Oct. 30 gave him a 54-40 lead over Republican Lt. Gov. John M. Mutz. But a statewide poll by the Public Opinion Laboratory at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis and released Monday showed likely voters splitting 50-1 percent for Bayh to 46.3 for Mutz. The GOP hoped a big Bush-Quayle victory in Sen. Dan Quayle's home state would help pull Mutz through. It was Quayle who ousted the elder Bayh from the Senate in 1980.

In West Virginia, Republican Arch Moore, seeking an unprecedented fourth term, fought for his political life. His opponent, Democrat Gaston Caperton, an insurance executive and political novice, has called the election a referendum on the economy in West Virginia, which has one of the nation's highest unemployment rates and had to borrow $80 million from its investments this year to pay its bills because of a slump in coal and other industries.

A poll Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 gave Caperton a 51-35 lead, unchanged from mid-October, but Moore is a 65-year-old political warhorse who has made a career overcoming the odds in predominantly Democratic West Virginia.

"People know Arch Moore hasn't delivered and that I will deliver," Caperton said.

In Rhode Island, Sundlun, a communications executive who lost to DiPrete by a landslide in 1986, robbed the governor of an early, commanding lead by raising questions about DiPrete's private business deals, alleged favoritism in the awarding of state contracts and the hiring of the ex-wife of a reputed mobster for a state job. DiPrete has stressed the state's economic recovery.

Two TV station polls last week had the candidates one point apart.

The Bangert campaign in Utah also counted on a strong showing by Vice President George Bush. The governor's comeback largely coincided with Bush's surge since the Republican National Convention in August. The outcome may also hinge on whether independent Merrill Cook, who ran on a tax-limitation platform, can hold the support of conservatives.

Two polls issued Sunday had Wilson, the former mayor of Salt Lake City, 2 points ahead of Bangert with 37 percent, and even with the governor at 36 percent. Cook had 26 percent and 24 percent.

"It's always scary to see those polls drop, but 15 months ago, when we led by 30, we knew there was no way we could win by more than 4 points," said Wilson campaign manager Rob Jolley.

Montana's Thomas Judge, Democratic governor from 1973 to 1981, and Republican state Sen. Stan Stephens claimed late momentum in a campaign over how to revive the state's economy. A poll late last month indicated a dead heat.

Neither side expected much of a coattail effect from the White House race; ticket-splitting Montana has sided with the GOP presidential winner for 20 years, but its governor, both senators and one of two congressmen are Democrats.

Security checks not updated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators say the State Department has failed to update its security checks on thousands of employees who have access to top secret information.

The General Accounting Office said in a report Monday that only about one-quarter of the 9,000 long-term State Department workers have been subjected to updated security investigations.

The number of people not reinvestigated after five years was 6,739, according to the GAO, which is the investigative arm of Congress.

DR. GOTT

PETER GOTT, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For two years I've had a recurring prostate problem. I get a pain in my right testicle that sometimes extends down my leg. I go to a urologist, get an antibiotic, the pain goes away for six months, then returns. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER: I'm not sure that your problem is arising in your prostate gland. It could be, but you also might have recurring infection in the ducts draining your testicle.

If your symptoms are due to chronic prostate infection, your urologist should be able to recommend ways to prevent such an infection. If he is unable to do so, request a referral to another urologist for a second opinion.

For more information, I am sending you a free copy of my health report "The Prostate Gland." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Have you ever heard of the Rinkle method to treat allergies? My old doctor would mix up a potion every spring, give me a shot and that would be that for six months.

DEAR READER: I haven't heard of the method you mention.

Ordinarily, desensitization injections are given at regular intervals, such as every four to six weeks, in increasingly stronger concentrations until a maintenance dose is reached.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been told that people with high blood pressure should not use a pulsating shower head as the pulsating might set off a stroke. Was my information correct?

DEAR READER: Your information was incorrect.

Uncontrolled hypertension, not shower heads, is associated with stroke. I see no reason why a person with high blood pressure should not use a pulsating shower head if he or she feels like doing so. Obviously, the hypertension should be treated and monitored by a physician.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When I spit it's mostly brown but sometimes it's pink. Could you give me some advice?

DEAR READER: It's important to know whether your pink/brown "spit" is due to discoloration of your saliva or whether it is actual sputum, phlegm coughed up from the lungs.

A brownish tinge to the saliva is often seen in users of smokeless tobacco.

co. Bleeding from the gums will color the saliva pink. In mild form, both these conditions are innocuous.

"On the other hand, a brown cast to the sputum is always abnormal; it can be the product of old blood coughed up from the lungs or, in the case of pink discoloration, active bleeding. Such a condition can be caused by a variety of pulmonary ailments, including infections and tumors.

Therefore, if you are actually coughing up blood-tinged sputum, you need a thorough medical examination and a chest X-ray. See a doctor if your discolored "spit" is phlegm.

Debt grows at smallest pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer debt grew at its smallest pace in nearly a year in September as Americans took out $1.88 billion more in credit than they paid off.

The Federal Reserve said Monday that the September increase in consumer debt was down from an August rise of $5.32 billion and was the smallest monthly advance since a $1.79 billion rise in November 1987.

"There are increasing signs that consumers are becoming more cautious as they cut back on spending and try to reduce their debt loads," Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, said of the latest figures.

From July through September, consumer debt rose at an annual rate of 6.75 percent, down significantly from a 10.2 percent growth rate in the first six months of the year.

Baby food can be heated in a microwave — with caution. Baby-feeding experts at Beech-Nut Nutrition Corp. suggest microwaving baby foods in the jar, with the metal cap off, for 15 seconds for the 4½-ounce jars and 30 seconds for the large jars, both at half power. Always mix the food and taste it yourself to test the temperature before feeding the baby.

House roundup given

WASHINGTON (AP) — The only question that today's voting will answer about the Democrats' control of the House is precisely how dominant they will be, politicians and observers agree.

A mere handful of the 408 incumbents seeking re-election are expected to fall, a group that may include a young Georgia congressman facing a legal problem and a veteran Rhode Island lawmaker mired in an ethical controversy.

Expectations are that when the smoke clears, the current Democratic majority of 255-177 over Republicans — there are three vacancies — will be little changed.

"There's a tendency, when they're not hurting, for people to go with incumbents," said Nelson Polsby, a political science professor at the University of California at Berkeley who studies congressional elections.

Coupled with that attitude are the tremendous campaign advantages that officeholders have. They routinely raise more money than their opponents — they have a $151 million to $32 million edge over their challengers in contributions so far. Also, they often are from districts mapped to help their electoral prospects, and they usually are much better-known among voters than are their challengers.

Even if GOP presidential nominee George Bush defeats Democrat Michael Dukakis, observers say turnover of House seats should be in the low single digits. Spokeswoman Peggy Connolly of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee said Monday that she expected Democrats to pick up two seats, while National Republican Congressional Committee spokesman Rich Galen predicted a swing of two seats either way.

"It's just so hard to knock off an incumbent," Galen conceded.

History backs him up. In 1986, 98 percent of the incumbents seeking re-election were successful.

House Banking Committee Chairman Fernand J. St Germain, D-R.I., found himself in a dead heat as voting began and could earn the distinction of being the first House committee chairman to be defeated since the 1980 defeat of Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., who headed the ways and means panel.

St Germain's problems were aggravated two weeks ago when a federal judge in Washington unsealed a letter from a Justice Department official to the House ethics committee mentioning "substantial evidence of serious and sustained misconduct" by the lawmaker.

The department said in May that it had declined to prosecute St Germain, 60, over allegations that he received favors from savings and loan industry lobbyists. But it has sent its findings to the ethics panel, which cleared the legislator last year of separate charges that he had used his influence to build a $2 million real estate empire.

St Germain, a 14-term veteran, has denied that the ethics committee is investigating him, and has questioned the timing with which the Justice Department letter was unsealed.

Demos likely to retain lead; some contests suspenseful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats appear assured of keeping or improving their 54-46 grip on the Senate in today's balloting as a handful of cliff-hanger contests inject political drama into an election in which most incumbents probably are home free.

If Republicans fail to recapture the Senate majority they lost two years ago — as most polls suggest, a united Democratic front will be in place on Capitol Hill next year to either challenge George Bush or cheer on Michael Dukakis.

But officials of both parties report unusual voter volatility in this year's 33 Senate races, a factor that could lead to some surprises.

Democrats appeared poised to capture Republican-held seats in Nebraska and Virginia.

Sen. David Karnes, R-Neb., who was appointed to the job, trailed Robert Kerrey, a popular former Democratic governor, in late polling. Former Virginia Gov. Charles Robb, son-in-law of the late president Lyndon B. Johnson, was the odds-on favorite for the seat of Republican Sen. Paul Trible, who is retiring.

The brightest Republican hope for capturing a Democratic seat appeared to be in Mississippi. Rep. Trent Lott, the assistant GOP leader in the House, appeared to have succeeded in his bid to replace Sen. John Stennis, the Senate's most senior Democrat, who is retiring.

The open Republican seat in Vermont appeared in no danger. Rep. James Jeffords was the clear favorite to succeed GOP Sen. Robert Stafford who is retiring.

But three other open Senate seats were the scenes of some of the hottest contests.

They included: —Florida, where Reps. Connie Mack III, the Republican grandson of the baseball Hall of Fame manager of the same name, battled Rep. Buddy MacKay for the seat of retiring Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.

—Washington, where former Republican Sen. Slade Gorton staged a comeback try against Rep. Mike Lowry, a liberal Democrat.

—Wisconsin, where millionaire businessman and political newcomer Herb Kohl held an edge in polls over state Senate minority leader Susan Engeleiter, one of the few women among 1988 Senate candidates. The race was marked by Kohl outspending Engeleiter with millions of dollars of his own money.

Two Republican incumbents were battling strong attempts to oust them from their seats.

Sen. Chic Hecht in Nevada, a first term, has been struggling all year against popular Democratic Gov. Richard Bryan. And three-term maverick Lowell Weicker in Connecticut, who first came to national attention as a member of the Senate Watergate committee, was strongly challenged by Democratic state Attorney General Joseph Lieberman.

One Democratic incumbent, Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey, struggled to fight off Republican Pete Dawkins, a resume candidate who has been a Rhodes scholar, football star and one-star Army general.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., appeared likely to survive a strong challenge by Democratic Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy. Wilson led McCarthy by comfortable margins in every poll over the past 21 months, topping McCarthy by 14 points in a final pre-election survey.

Democrats with the safest seats appeared to include Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., who is moving from Senate majority leader to become chairman of the Appropriations Committee; Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; and Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, one of a trio of senators seeking to succeed Byrd as Democratic leader.

Republicans with no apparent re-election problems include Sens. Richard Lugar of Indiana, Orrin Hatch of Utah, John Heinz of Pennsylvania and John Danforth of Missouri.

Volunteers mobilized for last minute push

DALLAS (AP) — Neither party likes to publicize its more colorful Election Day exploits, but with predictions that 5.9 million Texans will vote, both Democrats and Republicans mobilized thousands of volunteers and spent millions of dollars for a final voting push.

It's all part of what Democrats call "ED GOTV" — Election Day get-out-the-vote — and what Republicans call "create the vote."

Indeed, Texas political lore is replete with examples of just such creativity.

In 1982, pundits attributed the surprisingly high Democratic turnout to two factors: the well-oiled machine of veteran Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Mark White's populist-style pledges to reform the state's utility companies.

Two other factors were overlooked by the analysts, a top Democrat recently said: "The buses and the color TV."

There were color televisions on the buses that drove people to the polls?

"Nope. They raffled one off," the Democratic official said.

This year, Republican volunteers have a special incentive to work in the GOP's Victory '88 phone banks. It is a statewide lottery called "The Olympic Caller Contest."

The lottery is advertised on handbills in Republican phone centers.

"Make 50 phone calls in one day and your name will be entered in a drawing for a chance to win two free airline tickets — anywhere American Airlines flies in Europe, the U.S. (including Hawaii), Mexico and the Caribbean."

"The more calls you make, the more chances to win," the signs say.

With a Texan on each ticket and the state a key battleground, both parties say that they have in place the most intense get-out-the-vote campaigns in history.

"In the past, the Democrats have been highly successful with their GOTV and we are determined this year to match them," Mark Sanders, a spokesman for the state campaign of Republican presidential nominee George Bush, told The Dallas Morning News.

The Democrats insist they won't be outdone.

State executive director Ed Martin said the party is poised to launch an unprecedented get-out-the-vote effort.

"We're going to be doing our best to get people out to vote with every legal means at our disposal," he said. "Whatever people have thought about the campaign, now is the time when Texas Democrats show how we can get out our vote."

Game filled with 3-pointers...

Western outlasts RJC, 85-81

RANGER - Western Texas College survived a bombs-away contest here Monday to remain undefeated for the 1988-89 juno cage season.

Eighteen 3-point baskets highlighted the ballgame as WTC's Westerners emerged an 85-81 victor over the Ranger JC Rangers.

"It wasn't a great game for us as far as how we played, but it was a great win for us," said Coach Tony Mauldin. "The gym was loud and it was tough to win down there. They are a lot better than their record would indicate."

Now 3-0, Western will stay on Interstate 20 to play in Cisco at 8 p.m. Thursday. The Westerners also host the Cisco Wranglers on Monday, Nov. 14, in Scurry County Coliseum.

Ranger, 2-4, cranked out 11 of the 3-pointers here Monday, while Western had seven.

Western's ability to spread out the scoring - four players in double figures and two others with 9 points - helped make the difference in the ballgame. Sophomores Keith Hawkins and Bobby Spear led the way with 15 points apiece. Right behind them were freshmen Kenneth Critton and Vladimir McCrary while Bernard Williams and Cedric Mason bagged 9 each.

Hawkins, McCrary and Mason popped two 3-pointers apiece while Williams, a sophomore transfer from Andrews, got the other.

Ranger got all but 20 points from two players. Ken Austin, a 6-5 sophomore, rattled the hoop for a whopping 38 points while Reginald Davis, a 5-11 freshman, scored 23, including six of the 3-pointers.

Lady Dusters rally to claim third straight victory, 74-43

RANGER - Western Texas College's Lady Dusters put on the defensive clamps in the second half here Monday and squeezed Ranger 74-43 in a non-conference basketball tilt.

The win was the third straight for Coach Kelly Chadwick's ladies and gives them a 5-2 record heading into their home debut Friday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Snyder sophomore point-guard Stephanie McKnight scorched the Lady Rangers for 16 points - including three 3-point goals - and two other girls landed in double figures for the Dusters. Freshman post Tami Wilson and sophomore post Nickey Allen tossed in 14 and 13 points.

Western trailed by two points late but McCrary knocked down a 3-pointer to give Western an 80-79 lead with about 40 seconds left. The teams traded free throws before Hawkins hit the front end of a bonus situation with six seconds left. He missed the second, but Critton rebounded for Western and put the ball back in to seal the win.

Western held only a 30-24 halftime lead but out-gunned the Rangers 44-19 over the final 20 minutes.

"We didn't play very well the first half. We weren't sharp. We were getting the shots but nothing was falling for us. They were hitting pretty well," said Coach Chadwick. "They run some different type offenses and we didn't defend it properly. At halftime we went over some things and that pretty much shut them down. Our defense picked up a lot and we started to hit."

In all, 10 Dusters lit the scoreboard, including Tabitha Walton with 8 points, Stacy Smith with 7 and Elayne Maddox with 6.

"We're still not shooting the ball well. We've had periods where we look like the Los Angeles Lakers but we have times when we look like the South Pasadena Fourth Graders, too," he grinned. "We haven't gotten the consistency I'm looking for, but we're playing a lot of kids and that's exciting. A lot of our freshmen are getting some quality time."

Friday's home game will pit the Dusters against WJCAAC rival South Plains College, although the contest will be non-conference action. The Dusters and Lady Texans also hook up on

Leonard knocks out Lalonde in the ninth

LAS VEGAS (AP) - If having fun in the ring is Sugar Ray Leonard's measure of success, he had the time of his life against an overmatched Donny Lalonde.

Leonard, showing flashes of power few thought he could bring against a light heavyweight champion, fought back from only the second knockdown of his 11-year pro career Monday night to knock Lalonde out in the ninth round and win two boxing titles.

"I was just out there to have some fun," Leonard said after returning from an 18-month ring absence to win for the 35th time in 36 fights. "I happen to be out there because I love being there, that's it."

Leonard, further cementing his already considerable place in boxing lore, became the first man in history to win parts of five titles while quieting critics who suggested he had had one comeback too many and had no business being in the ring.

"Ray dug a little deeper than I did," said Lalonde. "Ray's got a lot of heart, he's a great champion."

Leonard, fighting for only the third time in nearly seven years, battled back from a flash knockdown in the fourth round to turn the tables and become the power puncher against the hard-hitting Canadian.

Fighting flat-footed and refusing to back off, Leonard turned in a brilliant ninth-round performance, knocking Lalonde down once before stopping him at 2:30 of the round with a vicious left hook followed by a right hand.

"It was just a matter of me keeping my composure and trying to get the left hook in there," Leonard said. "It was just a matter of time before I caught him."

The end wasn't always so clear-cut, however, in a fight that Lalonde was in all the way and was actually leading on one ringside judge's scorecard after eight rounds.

Leonard earned a reported $15 million to Lalonde's $5 million in a fight that attracted 13,246 fans to the 15,300 seat outdoor arena at Caesars Palace.

The live gate for the bout was $7.5 million and promoters claimed early figures showed some 800,000 households bought the pay-per-view broadcast at $29.95 apiece.

Astros hire Howe to replace Lanier

HOUSTON (AP) - Although Art Howe had been seeking a major league managerial post since 1986, he says it wasn't until this year that he really felt ready.

Howe, hired Monday as manager of the Houston Astros, interviewed at Pittsburgh in 1986, and discussed vacancies with Seattle and the Chicago White Sox this year.

"I interviewed at Pittsburgh in 1986 when Jim Leyland got the job, but deep down, I didn't really feel ready," Howe said Monday.

Howe, who played seven seasons with the Astros before ending his career in St. Louis, became a coach with the Texas Rangers on May 21, 1985. Despite his inexperience, he applied when the Pittsburgh job became available.

"I'd never been through a spring training as a coach, so I didn't know how to organize it and how to maximize the time," Howe said.

"I think working with Bobby Valentine has been a great help to me," Howe said of the Rangers' manager. "He is so organized. He doesn't miss the slightest detail. I owe him a lot for helping me along."

Howe replaces Hal Lanier, fired at the end of a disappointing season in which the Astros faded to a fifth-place finish in the National League West, 12½ games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lanier led the Astros to the division title in his first season, 1986, but Houston had late-season swoons in 1987 and 1988.

Howe said three holdovers from Lanier's staff, Yogi Berra, Matt Galante and Les Moss, would remain with the team.

Houston 24, Cleveland 17...

Oilers are 'genuine'

HOUSTON (AP) - There can be no more doubt about the reality of the Houston Oilers to running back Allen Pinkett's way of thinking.

"That's two weeks in a row against two winning teams that we've taken charge and that takes it out of the fluke stage and makes us genuine," Pinkett said Monday night.

The Oilers proved themselves genuine Monday night, charging to a 21-3 lead over Cleveland and then holding on for a 24-17 victory that established Houston as a serious title contenders.

The victory put the Oilers one game behind AFC Central Division leader Cincinnati with a 7-3 record and dropped Cleveland two games off the pace at 6-4.

"I think Cleveland realizes they aren't going to win the division now," Oiler fullback Alonzo Highsmith said. "This is a new team the second half of the season."

Highsmith scored his first touchdown of the season on a one-yard run in the second quarter and the Oilers depended on their ground game and a rugged defense for a 7-3 halftime lead.

The Oilers got the first big break of the game in the third quarter when Johnny Meads blocked an NFL-record-tying fifth punt this season for the Oilers.

Warren Moon, who hadn't beaten the Browns since he became the Oiler quarterback, then threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to Ernest Givins and Mike Rozier ran three yards for another score and it was 21-3 with 4:47 to go in the third quarter.

That's when Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar, who had not lost to the Oilers in five games, almost pulled it out.

"We got behind early but we scratched and clawed and got ourselves back in it," Kosar said. "In the second half, I tried to calm everybody down."

Reggie Langhorne ran 20 yards on a double reverse for a touchdown to make it 21-10 in the third quarter.

Cleveland tight end Ozzie Newsome caught his 600th career pass, a four-yard touchdown strike early in the final period.

"Getting 600 was nice but it would have felt better with a victory to go with it," Newsome said of his catch, which pulled Cleveland within 21-17.

Houston's defense, which plagued Kosar throughout the game, stopped the Browns two more times, the last with 1:01 to go on Ray Childress' fumble recovery.

After Highsmith scored, Cleveland's Matt Bahr booted a 40-yard field goal in the first quarter for the first-half scoring.

The Oilers came out running at the Browns and finished with 148 yards on the ground, led by Rozier's 76 yards on 23 carries.

The Oilers have won 15 of their last 16 non-strike home games and the Browns administered the only loss in the streak with a 40-7 victory last season.

The Browns made it close in the fourth quarter but couldn't complete the rally, Cleveland Coach Marty Schottenheimer said.

"I was proud the way we came back," Schottenheimer said. "I felt we had the opportunity to win the game but Houston made the plays when they had to."

The combination of Rozier and Highsmith, who carried eight times for 40 yards, and Pinkett, who was 8-31, enabled the Oilers to break a seven-game losing streak against the Browns. That enabled Houston to hold the ball for nearly 36 minutes, 12 more than Cleveland, which ran the ball just 16 times for 44 yards against a tenacious Oiler defense.

Comptroller: Texas economy bouncing back

AUSTIN (AP) — Real estate, banking and construction continue to be the weak links in the recovering Texas economy, according to the November issue of Fiscal Notes by Comptroller Bob Bullock's office.

Those industries have been "battered by overbuilding and bad loans," said an article in the comptroller's publication distributed Monday.

Most of the economic gains have been in manufacturing, services and trade, the comptroller's office said in the report, which summarizes the 1988 Annual Report for the State of Texas.

In addition, it said in another article, the Texas economy is more diversified and better able to withstand blows to any one industry.

"Problems in one industry — such as oil and gas — no longer sink the entire economy of a region," it said.

The Texas region along the Mexican border continued strong growth, spurred by twin-plant expansion in Mexico, the article said. Twin plants involve factories in Mexico that assemble parts made in Texas, it said.

The McAllen area gained 3,600 new non-farm jobs by August 1988, a 4.1 percent increase from the previous August. During the same period, Laredo's work force grew by 2,100 jobs, or 5.9 percent, the article said.

Gulf Coast manufacturing — especially petrochemicals — grew mostly because of increased exports that benefited from the falling dollar, according to the comptroller's office. Petrochemical industry growth stimulated plant expansions, which generated construction and engineering activity.

From August 1987 to August 1988, Houston non-farm employment rose by 2.6 percent, or 36,300 jobs. All other major Gulf Coast cities also had job gains, including 2,300 in Corpus Christi and 1,700 in Brazoria.

Among events helping the East Texas economy were the dollar's lower value and a trade agreement on Canadian timber imports, the article said. The Longview-Marshall area gained the most jobs in East Texas, with total employment up by 1,700, or 2.6 percent.

The Plains region's economy also was helped by a manufacturing resurgence. The falling value of the U.S. dollar helped apparel, electronics and plastics manufacturers, the report said. Farmers also received good prices for cotton and beef, and the region saw an increase in oilfield equipment manufacturing because of oil prices holding relatively steady. Employment rose or remained stable in every major city in the Plains, the comptroller's office said.

Lubbock added the largest number of jobs, with employment up by 2,900, or 3.2 percent. Midland had the most rapid rebound, as non-farm employment grew 3.5 percent, or by 1,500 jobs. Abilene's employment was up 3 percent, by 1,500 new jobs. Odessa gained 1,200 jobs, or 2.8 percent.

Employment improved at a slower pace in the Metroplex — including Fort Worth-Arlington, Sherman-Denison and Dallas — and the Central Corridor, including Austin, Waco and San Antonio.

"These regions continued to suffer from weaknesses in the construction, banking and real estate industries," the report said.

High-tech industries are experiencing a recovery in the Metroplex, with the aid of the dollar's lower value, the report said. Dallas employment grew 0.4 percent, or by 4,802 jobs, from August 1987 to August 1988. Fort Worth-Arlington lost 2,208 jobs, or 0.4 percent. The Sherman-Denison area added 600 new jobs, or 1.7 percent.

In the Central Corridor, Austin was suffering from a downturn in the construction industry and lost 3,004 jobs, or 0.8 percent.

San Antonio — boosted by the opening of Sea World and Rivercenter Mall, as well as rapid expansion of medical and health facilities — gained 8,200 jobs, a 1.6 percent increase.

Campaign battlegrounds

Labor may hold key to industrial states

By Robert J. Wagman

(Last of four related articles)

CLEVELAND (NEA) — Collectively Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan have 68 electoral votes. These are votes that Michael Dukakis needs desperately if he is to have any chance of winning. And as the campaign enters its final days, the contests in all three states are too close to call.

These three states are very similar, and the Bush and Dukakis camps are treating them as a single bloc. It is very possible, in the end, that as one goes so go all three.

With the exception of Cincinnati, all the big cities in the states — Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit — are Democratic strongholds. For Dukakis to have any chance of carrying these states he must have an outpouring of votes from these cities.

At the same time, the growing suburban areas of these cities are becoming increasingly Republican. Ronald Reagan carried these states in 1984 by capturing more than 60 percent of the suburban vote. George Bush must gain at least 60 percent if he is to offset Dukakis' totals from the inner cities.

One problem that Bush may face in the suburbs is apathy. There are no dominating Senate campaigns as Democrats Howard Metzenbaum in Ohio and Donald Riegle in Michigan and Republican John Heinz in Pennsylvania are expected to win re-election. If George Bush is seen as an easy winner the suburban turnout could be light.

Bush is also looking for the prosperous areas of all three states to provide him with a solid base.

But in all three states sizable areas have all but been missed by the long recovery, and all three have lost jobs as companies have moved manufacturing operations abroad. There is much unhappiness with the economic record of the Reagan years in these areas, and the Dukakis camp hopes this displeasure will be translated into votes.

Finally, in all three states, Dukakis must rely very heavily on the efforts of organized labor. Perhaps nowhere else in the country is Dukakis' fate so tied to big labor's ability to deliver a solid bloc of votes. Labor used to be able to do precisely that, but, in the last two presidential elections, unions have been fairly ineffective. This year, these three states will serve as perhaps a final test of labor's political clout.

Here's an individual look at each of the three states:

Ohio — After the primaries, Dukakis' strategists were so confident they could count on Ohio's 23 electoral votes that they passed over favorite son Sen. John Glenn for the vice presidential nomination. Given the current state of affairs in Texas, it is a decision they now probably regret.

The Dukakis campaign got off to a very slow start in Ohio, and for many weeks the campaign was marred by friction between state party leaders and Dukakis headquarters in Boston. But those problems have finally been ironed out, and Dukakis has poured money into the state and moved a number of key staffers from Florida to Ohio to augment a large staff already in place.

The Bush camp intends to flood Ohio with television ads in the final days of the campaign. In the end, the election may well ride on how well he does in the GOP stronghold areas of Cincinnati and the southern part of the state.

Michigan — In this state, both the Bush and Dukakis campaigns have been marred by internal party feuding.

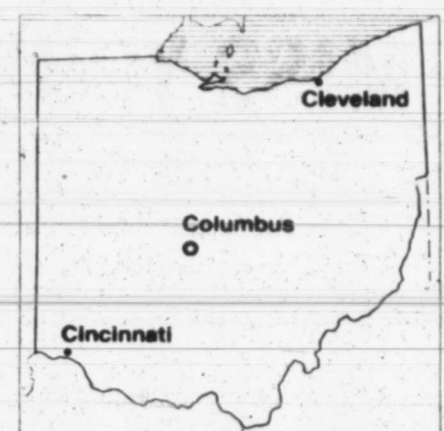

The bitter GOP primary saw fundamentalist forces supporting Rev. Pat Robertson capture the party machinery in several parts of the state but then be closed out of the GOP convention. But recently, the Bush camp has brought the Robertson forces into the fold and the GOP is again unified.

Meanwhile, as in Ohio, Dukakis headquarters in Boston have been involved in a running battle with state party officials, including Gov. James Blanchard, who are unhappy with Dukakis' strategy. These problems now reportedly have been resolved.

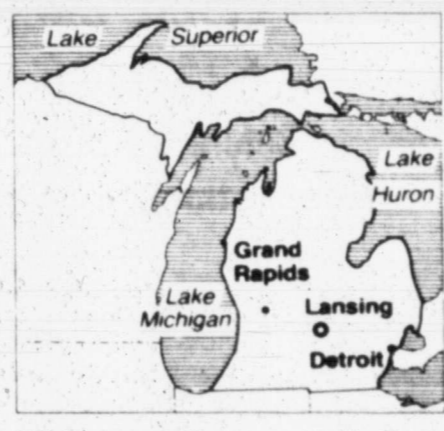

The race for Michigan's 20 electoral votes is seen as dead even. Insiders in both camps believe the key may be the final vote count in Macomb County — a white working-class suburb north of Detroit. These are blue-collar union voters, and if big labor can deliver them for Dukakis, he should be able to carry the state.

Pennsylvania — As both sides see it, this is a classic city vs. suburbs struggle. Bush forces believe the vice president will do very well in the rural areas and the small towns. Dukakis strategists are confident they will do well in western Pennsylvania, where the steel industry is depressed.

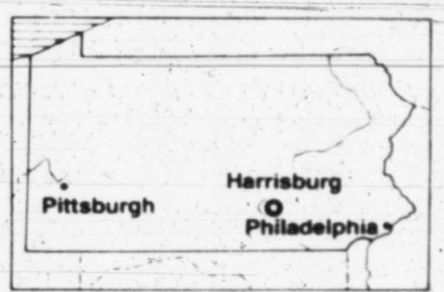

The key to capturing Pennsylvania's 25 electoral votes will be whether Bush's margins in the Philadelphia suburbs will offset Dukakis' margins Dukakis started out far ahead in Ohio, but Bush could now win the state.

If labor can deliver votes to the Democrats, Dukakis should be able to carry Michigan.

The race in Pennsylvania pits Dukakis' strength in the city vs. Bush's strength in the suburbs.

in the city. Ronald Reagan carried Pennsylvania in 1984 by a margin of only 53 to 46 percent. The Dukakis camp believes that Bush will not do as well as Reagan did and that the Massachusetts governor will come out on top.

After rejection by Church's, Popeyes will keep trying

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The board of directors of Church's Fried Chicken said a $290 million takeover bid by rival Popeyes Famous Fried Chicken and Biscuits won't fly and rejected it as inadequate.

The Church's board announced Monday the Popeyes offer was not right for the San Antonio-based company, which has been struggling through a tough economy and shuffling of top management.

"The price that they gave us was inadequate," said Ernest Renaud, Church's president and chief executive officer.

Church's, the country's second-largest fried chicken restaurant chain behind Kentucky Fried Chicken, had considered the $8 per share offer from Popeyes' parent company, A. Copeland Enterprises Inc. of New Orleans, for two weeks.

Church's, which also announced a shareholder protection plan that would make a hostile takeover more difficult, said it would file a counterclaim in Louisiana federal court to stop Popeyes from pursuing the takeover offer.

Church's rejection did not ruffle Popeyes' feathers, said company spokesman Mark McKinnon.

"We are disappointed. We still want a friendly deal and would sign a confidentiality agreement to get more information about the company," McKinnon said. "The bottom line is we are not going away. Our offer still stands."

Church's officials also have filed motions in federal court in San Antonio seeking a declaratory judgment confirming the validity of the shareholder rights plan.

The shareholder rights plan, commonly known as a poison pill, enables Church's shareholders to sharply increase their holdings in the company in the event a hostile bidder acquires a stake of 20 percent or more, and to buy at a discount stock in the hostile bidder if it wins control of Church's. Such plans are aimed at making a hostile buyout prohibitively expensive.

"This is a program that's designed not to prevent a takeover, but to encourage a potential buyer to negotiate properly for the benefit of the shareholder," Renaud said.

"It makes the potential buyer go back and do his homework on the offer and allows the board time to look at the takeover offer and not to stampede into it," he said.

Church's shares dipped 25 cents to $7.75 a share Monday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Church's, with about 1,500 restaurants nationwide, has gone through management changes the last several years. It is expected to see sales this year of $520 million, down from $570 million in 1986 and $633 million in 1984.

Popeyes, the No. 3 chicken restaurant, is expected to have sales of $485 million this year. There are 725 Popeyes restaurants nationwide, 100 of them company-owned.

McKinnon said he believed Church's legal claims were unfounded and that Popeyes could help Church's through troubled times.

Four people suffered minor injuries in separate traffic accidents Monday.

In a three-vehicle crash at 11:09 a.m. at 30th St. and College Ave., a 1977 Datsun two-door driven by Alta K. McMillan of Hermleigh was in collision with a 1980 Buick four-door driven by Leoma L. Benavides of 2907 Ave. V and a 1978 Ford pickup driven by Bobby Rhodes of 1601 Ave. T.

The Datsun and Buick both had to be towed, police said, and McMillan, Benavides and a 2-year-old girl passenger in the Benavides car, Nina Nesmith, were all treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

At 11:24 a.m. Monday in the 2100 Block of 25th St., a 1986 Oldsmobile four-door driven by Bernard W. Goforth of Lubbock was in collision with a 1985 Buick stationwagon driven by Hortencia Villareal of 1211 29th St., with a passenger from the Villareal car, 33-year-old Leonora Rocha, being treated and released at Cogdell.

A third accident was investigated by city police at 6:25 p.m. Monday at 37th St. and Houston Ave., when a 1986 Chevrolet pickup driven by Glen E. Sunderland of Rt. 1 was in collision with a 1987 Oldsmobile two-door driven by Mary Y. Dennis of 3505 Kerrville Ave., after which the Dennis car had to be towed.

Needle exchange begins slowly

NEW YORK (AP) — Only two people received free needles on the first day of a program for drug addicts that seeks to stem the spread of AIDS, but an official declared the nation's first government needle giveaway "an enormous success."

Dr. Stephen Joseph, the city's health commissioner, said he anticipated a slow start for the experiment, which calls for participation by 400 of the city's estimated 200,000 drug addicts.

Election '88

Bush forces are looking for a landslide

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — With Campaign '88 nearly over, most of the experts agree: While the popular vote contest is tight, George Bush appears to be on his way to a clear electoral victory, perhaps by a huge margin.

Going into the election, the Democrats had hoped their candidate could recapture many of the Democrats who deserted the party to vote for Ronald Reagan. Republicans, on the other hand, wanted Bush to hold together what has become known as the Reagan coalition. While the vice president has not been quite as successful as some Republicans might have hoped, it appears that he has been successful enough to win convincingly.

It looks as though Bush will be helped by the workings of the electoral college. If a candidate wins a state — even by a single vote — he gets all of that state's electoral votes. So a candidate can win a series of narrow victories in a large number of states and end up with a landslide in the electoral college.

Some experts believe that is what will happen Nov. 8. George Bush may well outpoll Michael Dukakis by only a few percentage points — perhaps as few as three points — but could end up with more than 400 electoral votes and perhaps even approach Ronald Reagan's 1984 total of 525. (The president carried 49 states against Walter Mondale.)

Almost every poll shows Bush with a solid base of support in the Deep South and Mountain West. With their electoral votes and those of several other solid GOP states like Indiana, New Hampshire and Maine, Bush appears to have a minimum of 202. Bush strategists believe that if they can carry only four additional states now leaning toward the vice president — Texas, New Jersey, Ohio and Michigan — they can win the election even if they lose everything else. And they certainly don't expect to lose everything else.

The potential narrowness of the popular vote margin gives the Democrats some hope. Some Democratic planners believe a shift of as little as 2 percent of the popular vote could end up moving as many as 150 electoral votes from one candidate's column to the other's.

In October, the Dukakis camp decided on a strategy of retrenchment. They divided the states into four categories: those that can be won and deserve a maximum effort; those where Dukakis is still competitive and might well win; those where the numbers are definitely against Dukakis but he might be able to take advantage of a Bush stumble; and those that are clearly lost. Virtually no effort is being made in the last group.

In the first category are 18 states plus the District of Columbia whose electoral votes add up to 272, two more than the number needed for election. These 18 states became the major battlegrounds in the final weeks of the campaign.

decided, a state race featuring a local candidate, ex-mayor Rod Waller.

Waller is running as a Republican and is challenged by Democrat David Counts of Knox City.

The pair face each other also in a second "special election" related to the state representative race. This election—which has a separate ballot—will decide who fills the 78th District seat until this coming Jan. 1.

The special election was prompted by Steve Carriker vacating the position in order to run for state senator, the post vacated by the resignation of Ray Farabee.

In this senate race, Carriker (D-Roby), who won the remainder of Farabee's 1988 term in a special election held Aug. 13, is challenged on the ballot by Bobby Albert (R-Wichita Falls).

Other races on the ballot include the U.S. Senate race with incumbent Lloyd Bentsen, running mate on the Democratic presidential ticket, challenged by Beau Boulter, a Republican from Amarillo.

The ballot includes also what has been a high profile race for the position of District 15 representative on the State Board of Education.

for an upset, campaigned through the night, stopping in Des Moines for a pre-dawn rally and then flying to Detroit before returning home to vote in Brookline, Mass.

The Democratic candidate also was appearing on the three network television morning shows.

With pollsters still finding millions of voters claiming they hadn't made up their minds, Bush and Dukakis made final-hour appeals for support on television Monday night.

"I cannot predict all of the challenges America will face in the years ahead," Bush said at the conclusion of a 30-minute television commercial broadcast on the three major networks. "I can tell you what principles will guide me, what values I hold dear and I can say that I believe I have the experience to be a steady hand guiding our country."

He described Dukakis as someone with "no experience in national security affairs."

The Democratic nominee's 30-minute appeal was on the networks immediately preceding the Bush broadcast.

The campaigns paid about $1 million each for the time for their back-to-back appeals.

Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, was in Texas although he had used an absentee ballot to cast his vote early.

opening of the store after the first of the year.

Osborn said the final revised plat contained no major changes from previously approved plans.

Other business in the 6:30 p.m. meeting, which lasted until 7:40 p.m., included approval of a water conservation and contingency plan to satisfy Texas Water Development Board requirements for the issuance of bond monies to extend water and sewer services to the Texas Department of Corrections unit that is under construction east of town.

Included in the first year of the plan will be the distribution of a water conservation brochure, pamphlet, fact sheet or bill-stuffer to all city water customers and a water conservation education program in the public schools.

An ordinance was passed on second reading to approve the state highway department's proposed changing of speed limits, typically up or down by five mph, on State Highways 208 and 350 and U.S. 180 in and around the city.

Ed Blocker, Frank Beights and Lindsey Mead were appointed to two-year terms on the city's electrical board, and Bobby Nolan was newly appointed to the board.

Melinda Early was given a special use permit to operate a beauty salon at her 3727 Ave. U home.

Upon the recommendation of the planning and zoning commission, a request from Eddie Parks to change the zoning in the 300 Block of 37th St. from commercial to residential to allow the establishment of a mobile home park on a 7.69-acre plot was denied — a request that Osborn said is now moot because Parks has found another location on which to put his mobile home.

A scheduled appearance by Municipal Judge Tommie Mills to discuss the operations of his court was postponed because Mills' father was critically ill in Brownwood.

City Manager John Gayle had noted earlier Monday, in a noon agenda discussion meeting at Willow Park Inn, that the municipal judge often appears before the city council prior to the consideration of his re-appointment, and Gayle said the city staff "is very satisfied" with Mills' work and will recommend that he be re-appointed after the first of the year.

A bid of $10,637 was accepted from U.S. Risk Insurance Agency of Dallas, an affiliate of Lloyd's of London, for the annual premium on $25,000 deductible liability insurance for city law enforcement officers, with coverage of $1 million per occurrence.

A low bid of $3,002 from Key Brothers Lawn & Leisure, with a $500 trade-in, was accepted for a new four-wheel vehicle for the city water department to read meters from. The only other bid was from Honda of Lubbock for $3,899, with no trade-in.

An executive session was held at the end of the meeting to discuss property acquisitions.

The council accepted a memorandum from city building inspector Vick Chambers about the impending demolition of two buildings that have been determined to be a public hazard in the 2800 Block of Ave. D.

Chambers advised that the Royce Davis Estate has told him it will not oppose the demolition of the buildings, which he said neighborhood children are able to enter through holes in the walls.
