

Gonzalez seeks aid for thrifts

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The heir-apparent to the chairmanship of the House Banking Committee said he will seek a meeting this week with Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady to press for more aid to the Texas savings and loan industry.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, said he will use the meeting to argue for a $50 billion emergency program to head off an impending crisis in the nation's thrift industry.

Gonzalez will urge Brady to extend a $50 billion line of credit to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. so it can move to deal with the nation's many insolvent thrifts.

"The alternative is chaos and a breakdown in our present financial system," Gonzalez said in an interview Saturday at the San Antonio Light. "The eventual cost to the nation will be incalculable."

Gonzalez, 72, has won the backing of House Speaker Jim Wright in his bid to succeed Banking Committee Chairman Ferdinand J. St Germain of Rhode Island, who was defeated for reelection last week.

"It looks good," Gonzalez said of his chances for the chairmanship when the House Democratic Caucus meets Dec. 6.

PLO leaders...

Israel's existence recognized

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — PLO leaders today drafted a historic declaration to be presented to the group's parliament-in-exile that implicitly recognizes Israel's right to exist.

Several conference sources said they expected up to 85 percent of the 450 members of the Palestine National Council to endorse the document.

The council's political committee met behind closed doors to debate the wording of another part of the declaration, a commitment distancing the Palestine Liberation Organization from terrorism, conference sources said.

The source, who are on the drafting committee, said they did not expect any differences over the draft, but would not elaborate. They spoke on condition of anonymity.

The declaration sets out a new political strategy by endorsing U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 — which recognizes Israel's right to exist — thus satisfying one of Washington's key conditions for dealing with the PLO. The resolution also calls for Israel's withdrawal from territories occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

On Tuesday, the council is expected to end its extraordinary four-day meeting with a declaration of independence for the West Bank and Gaza Strip, where Palestinians have for 11 months been revolting against Israel's 21-year occupation.

In a radio interview today, PLO chief Yasser Arafat called the council meeting a "turning point in the course of the Palestinian struggle that will also influence events and developments in the Arab world." The Radio Monte Carlo interview was monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

The independence declaration, PLO spokesman Ahmed Abdul-Rahman and other officials said, already has been drafted. Another draft document proposes the formation of a provisional government to negotiate peace.

The Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine faction, which had argued strongly against endorsing Resolution 242, agreed Sunday to go "with the rule of the majority," a spokesman said.

Omar Koteish, a member of the Marxist front's politburo, said: "We will voice reservations. Resolution 242 is inadequate and does not fulfill our aspirations for an independent state. But we will not withdraw from the conference if the majority votes for it."

PLO chief Yasser Arafat had hoped for a consensus on Resolution 242 to avert further splits within his guerrilla movement and in the national council, which first assembled in 1964.

The assurances that the Marxist front's reservations would not torpedo unity at this session appeared to satisfy Arafat.

Welfare offices for county due new office space

Scurry County commissioners Monday authorized the Texas Department of Human Services to move its offices from the Senior Citizens Center to the county coliseum annex.

A spokesman for the state agency said the child protective services, income assistance, food stamp and child and county welfare offices will be moved to the annex, primarily to gain more space.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin said the front office area of the annex, which is currently unoccupied, will be renovated to accommodate the move.

There was no immediate report on how much the renovation will cost or when it will be completed.

In other business in the 10 a.m. meeting, the court presented a resolution honoring Wortham Loyd and Robert Scott, who recently revived a heart attack victim while participating in a pool tournament at the senior center in Sweetwater.

The court also awarded a $47,726 bid for two new dump-trucks to Snyder Truck & Tractor.

The bid, the lowest offer among several that were submitted from companies in Snyder and Lubbock, was for two International trucks to be used in Commissioner Duaine Davis's Pct. 1.

Wes-Tex Truck and Gene Messer Ford of Lubbock also submitted bids, although the bids were not advertised in Lubbock.

The swearing-in of newly elected County Clerk Frances Billingsley was attended by about two dozen people who then took part in a reception for her in the county employees' break room on the third floor of the courthouse.

Trial defendant does not appear

A 30-year-old defendant scheduled to stand trial along with his wife for delivery of marijuana charges Monday in 132nd District Court failed to appear for his hearing.

At noon Monday, a warrant was being issued for the arrest of John G. Jasso, who faced two counts of felony delivery charges in connection with alleged incidents here March 16 and 22.

Simultaneously, District Attorney Ernie Armstrong was filing motions to revoke two bonds of $15,000 each under which Jasso had been free from custody.

Jasso's wife Rebecca, 26, who also faced one charge of marijuana delivery and was to be tried with her husband, appeared in court Monday.

Any action against the couple, who had requested to stand trial together, is now pending the arrest of John Jasso. As a result, Monday's jury was dismissed.

They couple was indicted in July. The incident involving Rebecca Jasso is alleged to have occurred March 29. She remains free under a $15,000 bond.

Year-to-date total...

Sales tax 12 percent higher

The latest monthly sales tax return for Snyder managed to better itself some $10,000 which equaled a 14.5 percent increase.

These figures helped to boost the year-to-date percentage to a plus 12 percent.

In actual dollars, Snyder has received $705,448 to date as its share of the 1 percent sales tax. This compares to $629,322 last year at this time.

The monthly return was $78,531 this year compared to $68,575 last year. In addition, Scurry County, which collects 1/2 of 1 percent in sales tax, has collected $317,605 for the year-to-date. This amount is to be used to offset property taxes for the coming year.

November's checks represent taxes collected by monthly filers in September and taxes collected by quarterly filers in July, August and September.

Across Texas, the state comptroller's office sent checks totaling $118.4 million to 1,045 cities. Statewide, the year-to-date payment is a percentage increase of 12.4 percent.

Other area sales tax returns include:

—Lubbock, plus 11.6 percent with $13 million returned to date compared to $11.6 million last year. The monthly return reflected a 20.8 percent increase.

—Abilene, plus 12.5 percent with $7.2 million returned to date compared to $6.4 million last year. The monthly return reflected a 21.5 percent increase.

—San Angelo, minus 1.8 percent with $5 million returned to date compared to $5.1 million last year. The monthly return reflected a 6.9 percent increase.

—Big Spring, plus 0.97 percent with $1.3 million returned to date compared to $1.3 million last year. The monthly return reflected a 2 percent increase.

—Sweetwater, plus 16.7 percent with $717,447 returned to date compared to $614,642 last year. The monthly return reflected a 34.2 percent increase.

—Snyder, plus 12 percent with $705,248 returned to date compared to $629,322 last year. The monthly return reflected a 14.5 percent increase.

—Colorado City, plus 50.3 percent with $344,326 returned to date.

Sakharov visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, welcoming Andrei D. Sakharov at the White House, said today human rights will remain an irritant in U.S.-Soviet relations until all political prisoners are released.

"We've had great success," Reagan said as he praised Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev as more cooperative than any Kremlin leader before him.

But, Reagan said, "We can only wait and see" if Gorbachev makes good on a promise to release all political prisoners.

Sakharov told the president as they posed for pictures that "there are only individuals" left in jails. The Nobel laureate and human rights activist spoke through an American interpreter.

Quayle likely to be odd man out in Bush's White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dan Quayle is likely to be a "man on the outside" in George Bush's White House following a vice presidential candidacy that began in a furor but settled into obscurity, experts say.

Encumbered by his image as a political novice who needed a bevy of professional handlers to survive early campaign controversies, Quayle enters a Bush administration in which he has few intimates or allies.

Relegated in the campaign to small towns and safe GOP areas, Quayle as vice president is likely to be given a traditional ceremonial role — going to political gatherings and state funerals — rather than the advisory role that Walter Mondale and even Bush had, some scholars feel.

"Dan Quayle is going to set the vice presidency back about a decade or more. One thing that political scientists have been talking about is just how much the vice presidency has grown.... With Quayle, it's just going to retreat to the old days of politics and funerals," said Ryan Barilleaux, a professor of political science at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, who studies the American presidency. Bush rarely mentioned his 41-year-old running mate during the campaign. When asked, Bush employed the stock lines that Quayle would "make an outstanding vice president" and had been "tempered by steel" as he weathered the early furor over his military service, academic record and personal life.

The president-elect told reporters Quayle would have access to the same papers, information and intelligence that is available to the president. But he would go no further in describing what assignments he would give Quayle.

Quayle says Bush has talked to him about heading a space council, and that he assumes he'll have a role in the administration's anti-drug efforts. "I will be a very close adviser to the president," Quayle said.

But that's not the way everyone sees it. Both Bush and Mondale came to their vice presidential campaigns with substantial reputations and were able to place key staffers in important positions in the respective presidential campaigns, Barilleaux notes.

"Dan Quayle has contributed nothing in the way of staff to the Bush campaign. He doesn't have his own big reputation on Capitol Hill.... Dan Quayle has no friends in a Bush White House except George Bush," Barilleaux says.

"They're going to give him a lot of window dressing, a space council, drug task force, but he's going to be a man on the outside... not a man who's going to be consulted in a crisis, except on a pro forma basis."

But Eddie Mahe Jr., a GOP consultant who worked with the Bush campaign, says Bush is likely to give Quayle a more active role in the administration than he had in the campaign.

"Vindication demands that. Both of them will want to prove how right the decision was," Mahe says.

Norman Ornstein, of the American Enterprise Institute, says Quayle, while "not the world's leading intellectual," is not "a complete dummy." He was simply thrust into a situation for which he was unprepared, Ornstein says.

"I think he's immature. He's not stupid," Ornstein says.

But Quayle comes to the White House with "a very damaging stereotype that's developed about him that's widely believed in the political community and that's believed by a large segment of the electorate," Ornstein says.

Both Barilleaux and Stephen Hess of the Brookings Institution see parallels in Quayle's vice presidency and those of Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew. The choice of Nixon was viewed as a move by Dwight Eisenhower to appease the party's right wing, and Agnew was seen as a political nonentity.

No rush to apply reported

DALLAS (AP) — Operators of nine Texas horse tracks say they're willing to spend nearly $45 million on improvements to be among the first pari-mutuel race tracks in the state.

In letters of intent to the Texas Racing Commission, operators said they were prepared to spend nearly $45 million on new grandstands, track surfaces, clubhouses, barns, landscaping and other improvements to bring their medium-sized track facilities up to commission standards for Class 2 tracks.

The commission began accepting applications for Class 2 pari-mutuel licenses Nov. 1 and will continue through Dec. 30. No official application has yet to be received, the Dallas Morning News reported.

The letters that have been received mostly came from tracks now operating as non-betting quarterhorse tracks, commission officials said. Investors also say they plan to build at least four new Class 2 tracks, ranging in prices as high as $30 million.

While most of the tracks plan to be converted and operational by spring or early summer, operators told the Morning News they may seek extensions of the first few racing seasons or compliance waivers of commission standards to insure the track's viability for the first few years. But race officials are hesitant to make such commitments.

"We are going to be broad-minded about making exceptions in certain cases," said Commissioner Hugh Fitzsimons Jr. of Carrizo Springs. At the same time, commissioners must ensure quality so that "the public is not out there betting on a bunch of donkeys," he said.

Moms Find Words of Love After Losing All Their Anger

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the letter from "Feeling Guilty" — the mother who couldn't bring herself to show love to her 15-year-old daughter. I know exactly how she feels.

For the first four or five years of my son's life, I simply could not show him any affection and I was miserable because I couldn't do anything about it. Deep down I really loved Tommy and would have killed anyone who tried to harm him. Yet I held him at arm's length.

Why? Because I was crazy in love with his father, "Mike," who ordered me to get an abortion when I told him I was pregnant. (We were not married.) I considered an abortion, made all the arrangements, but couldn't go through with it at the last minute. That cost me my relationship with Mike.

I married someone else for all the wrong reasons, but that marriage didn't last long.

As time went on, I found myself being unreasonably hostile to Tommy. It got so bad that I actually gave him to a friend for a few days so I could get my head screwed on straight. After hours of soul-searching and praying, God finally spoke to my heart. He said, "You are blaming Tommy for being born and coming between you and Mike." When I finally admitted it to myself, it was as though a heavy weight was lifted from my shoulders.

Tommy is 11 now, and I'll never forget one day about three years ago, we were driving down the street, and I just felt like reaching over, giving his arm a pat and saying, "I love you." He turned toward me, his big brown eyes filled with tears, and said, "Mommy, I don't remember ever hearing you say that before." Abby, that just about broke my heart. Imagine being 7 years old and never hearing your mom say "I love you" before.

From that day on, I changed my ways and have said "I love you" every day. And you know what? I really do.

NO MORE GUILT IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY: I could have written that letter signed "Feeling Guilty." I thought I was the only mother in the world who had that problem.

I had a 13-year-old daughter I couldn't love. To make matters worse, I had two younger children from my second marriage and I had no trouble loving them at all.

I knew my feelings were wrong, unfair and downright mean, but I couldn't change my feelings. Things got so bad, I went to a psychiatrist because I wasn't able to sleep nights for the guilt I was feeling. In less than a year, everything became perfectly clear. I didn't realize it at the time, but this innocent child was the image of my first husband's mother who detested me because, as was the case in "Feeling Guilty," her son had to marry me. There was more to it, of course. I was still in high school, and he was in college and had to drop out and go to work to support me and the baby. His mother always thought I ruined his chances for a college education and a successful professional career.

Anyway, I know it's irrational for me to have blamed my daughter, but that is what I did. It wasn't her fault that she was the image of her father's mother. It all came out on the psychiatrist's couch. Thank God, I sought the help I needed.

Keep recommending professional help, Abby. I shudder to think what could have happened to me and my family had I not had it.

Texas shaking its oil, real estate slump, economists report

DALLAS (AP) — Texas gradually is shaking free from its oil and real estate depression and is setting the stage for new investments with a shift towards exports, manufacturing and small business starts, economists say.

"You've got to look at the fundamentals. At the basic industries, at employment, at the changing industrial structure, at the demographic trends... Texas is looking real good," said Bernard L. Weinstein, director of the Center for Enterprising at Southern Methodist University.

"I think there will be a stampede of investors over the next year," he said.

And Weinstein is not alone in his thoughts. The consensus of The Dallas Morning News Board of Economists forecasts the state jobless rate to drop in coming months, even though the panel expects a decreased rate of growth for the national economy.

The panel said the state got a boost last week with the announcement that the multibillion dollar superconducting "super collider" will be built in Ellis County, just south of Dallas.

"If we get a $6 billion federal construction project into Texas, it also brings us a national research lab and an additional $250 million or so in research money," said M. Ray Perryman, director of the Baylor University Forecasting Service.

The super collider announcement came only two days after voters sent several influential Democratic and Republican Texans to key Washington posts, including President-elect George Bush, who is expected to appoint a handful of Texans to his Cabinet.

The panel said Texas' power base in Washington could grow and become ever more important for the state recovery. While Democrat Lloyd Bentsen lost his vice presidency bid, the longtime Texas leader was re-elected to his Senate seat, where he is chairman of the powerful Finance Committee. And the group says it appears House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth will be able to resolve issues raised by a House ethics committee investigating his dealings with insolvent Texas savings and loan associations.

The board, however, foresees the price of West Texas intermediate crude falling to $14.63 per barrel — below the perceived comfort level of $15.

Using retail sales as a barometer of economic activity, Ira Silver, chief economist at J.C. Penney Co., said sales in Texas lag behind those in the rest of the nation, but are up from last year.

Thomas R. Plaut, a senior economist in the state comptroller's office, said the upturn in consumer consumption could help carry the Texas economy if national economic policies and other trends temporarily slow business investment in the state.

"If we do see some weakness in oil and gas, and we do see some slowdown in exports and investment, which will happen, a pickup in consumption will help a lot," Plaut said. "That could be our ace in the hole."

Adoptive parents ask access to records

DALLAS (AP) — Seven adoptive parents of abused children say they will appeal a federal judge's ruling that the state has no obligation to disclose details of a child's past to adopting parents.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas ruled Wednesday there is no constitutional basis nor legal precedent to force the Department of Human Services to disclose all records about the children they adopt.

The parents, who filed the suit last May seeking records and help with staggering medical bills for their children's emotional treatment, say the children often have so much pent-up rage and other emotional problems that they become a danger to themselves and their new family.

"It seems irrational to say that the parents don't have the right to the background information," said the Rev. Bob Chandler, the adoptive father of an abused child. "If we had not gotten the records, Tina might still be a child without hope."

The state contends it shares all known relevant information with prospective adoptive parents through interviews and written summaries. But medical specialists who treat adopted abused children say few states fully disclose details that can be essential to recovery. The Chandlers had to obtain Tina's background information through outside sources.

Chandler and his wife, Cherry, of Dallas, adopted Tina from DHS a decade ago, after she had been taken from her biological parents. The Chandlers knew Tina had been abused, but did not learn the extent of the abuse until earlier this year, after the girl's emotional problems had traumatized their home and cost them nearly $150,000 in psychological treatments.

"We were told if we'd be patient and give her lots of love, she'd be OK," Mrs. Chandler said of her adopted daughter, now 13. "We didn't know that we needed that information in the records, and we didn't know she would need it one day."

The Chandlers, like many families who adopt abused children, suffered through their daughter's violent rage without knowing how to help her.

When Tina joined the family in November 1978, the 3-year-old colored her new parents' walls and carpets with black marker. As her anger grew, Tina stole money and jewelry from the Chandlers and their two sons. Knives disappeared from the kitchen, later to be found as Tina raced through the house, ripping up furniture in a rage.

"She was so full of hate," said Mrs. Chandler. "Every time she was angry another piece of furniture would be shredded or stabbed."

Fearing for their lives, the Chandlers later installed locks on their bedroom doors. They enrolled Tina in therapy when she was 10, including residential treatment in Evergreen, Colo.

The Chandlers sought more details of Tina's history at the urging of their daughter's therapist. When the Department of Human Services refused to provide the information, the Chandlers obtained horrifying details and photographs from an attorney who represented Tina's interests when the state revoked her biological parents' custody rights.

The Chandlers learned for the first time that Tina had been sexually and physically abused since she was 2 weeks old, at times held dangling by one foot and beaten by her father.

"We had been so naive," said Chandler, pastor of Highlands Christian Church in Dallas. "From the beginning, we would have had her in treatment. We didn't know what to look for."

Tina shook in January when her therapist showed her the police photographs her parents had obtained. Ten years of rage exploded when she realized she was the battered and bruised toddler in the photos.

This week we will look at some card combinations, with a view to understanding why certain plays are correct. In today's auction, South was comfortable rebidding two no-trump with the spade ace and a double stopper in hearts. When North then supported diamonds, South bid three hearts to show strong controls in that suit. Since North was afraid of spades in no-trump, he simply bid four diamonds, and South carried on to game.

Making 11 tricks is easy provided declarer loses no more than one diamond trick. But South played carelessly. He won the ace of spades and led the jack of diamonds. West played low and declarer played low from dummy. East won the singleton king. Later the defenders made another diamond trick and a club.

Whatever declarer does in diamonds is immaterial if the suit splits 2-2, but when East has a singleton, declarer must make the right play. If East has the singleton 5, nothing matters. If East holds the nine alone, today's declarer's play is right. But if East holds either the king or the queen alone, it is right to play a low diamond to the ace. Since playing low to the ace wins twice (king or queen alone with East) and playing the jack wins only once (singleton nine), obviously the correct play is a low diamond from the South hand. The only exception to this would be if the bidding showed absolutely that West held the K-Q of diamonds, then you might as well lead the jack and hope that either the suit is splitting or East has the lone nine-spot.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

But get no respect from Aggies...

Hogs go undefeated in SWC

Vikings welcome Sweeney to NFL

by The Associated Press
The toughest could be yet to come, but Arkansas can at least go to the Cotton Bowl knowing it has taken no shortcuts after chalking up a victory over its last Southwest Conference opponent. The Razorbacks on Saturday became the first team since 1983 to go through the SWC football race unbeaten when they beat defending champion Texas A&M 25-20 in Fayetteville on homecoming. The probation-stained Aggies had claimed the best team wouldn't be going to the Cotton Bowl unless Arkansas beat them. Texas A&M is ineligible for post-season play because of NCAA probation. "The best team in the conference is going after all," said placekicker Kendall Trainor, who kicked five field goals and now has 22 in a row.

also could crack the Associated Press top 10 for the first time this season thanks to the Houston Cougars, who routed previously unbeaten Wyoming 34-10 in the Astrodome. The Razorbacks won little respect from the Aggies on Saturday, however. "Arkansas is not a top 10 team," said A&M linebacker Dana Batiste. "We played some top teams like Nebraska, LSU, and Oklahoma State and Arkansas doesn't match up." Arkansas safety Steve Atwater said, "They did the talking but we let our actions talk for us." The Razorbacks will play either UCLA or Florida State in the Cotton Bowl Classic on Jan. 2. But Arkansas' last regular season game is Nov. 26 against Miami, who whipped the Razorbacks 51-7 last year. Houston manhandled the Cowboys, the previously unblemished Western Athletic Conference champions. The Cougars had 16 sacks, nine by defensive tackle Glenn Montgomery. Houston's victory should earn the Cougars a bid to the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu Christmas Day against Washington State. Houston (7-2) could make the top 20. "I think we could jump up to number 15," said Houston coach Jack Pardee. "We should have some kind of respect now, beating the 10th-ranked team that was unbeaten on national television. If we had any proving to do, I think we did it." In other action Saturday, Texas defeated Texas Christian for the 22nd consecutive time, 30-21; Baylor downed Rice 20-10, handing the Owls their 16th consecutive loss; and Texas Tech routed Lamar University 59-28 at Lubbock. In games this week, TCU is at Texas A&M in a noon CST television (Raycom) game, Texas is at Baylor at 1 p.m., Houston is at Texas Tech in a 2 p.m. clash and Rice tries to break its losing streak when it hosts North Texas at 1 p.m.

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Kevin Sweeney was welcomed to the "real" NFL on Sunday night by the Minnesota Vikings who inflicted the fourth worst loss in history on the Dallas Cowboys. Minnesota cashed seven turnovers into a 43-3 rout and stayed alive in the NFC Central Division with a 7-4 record. Dallas suffered its seventh consecutive loss and dropped to 2-9. The Vikings intercepted Sweeney four times, sacked him five times, and recovered two of his fumbles in an experience he called "humiliating to say the least." Sweeney was the hero of two strike replacement game victories last year and earned his first starting berth in a regular game last Sunday with three scoring passes against the New York Giants in the second half. Wade Wilson threw three touchdown passes. Hassan Jones caught scoring passes of 26 and 64 yards and Steve Jordan shagged a 3-yarder as the Vikings put a damper on the crowd of 57,830 fans in Texas Stadium. The Vikings held Sweeney to only 10 of 28 completions for 93 yards. They sacked him for a safety and one of his fumbles was picked up by Henry Thomas who ran 3-yards for a touchdown. "I wish I had a yo-yo string on some of my passes," Sweeney said. "I did some stupid things but Minnesota has a great defense. I've been hit hard a lot of times but this ranks with the best." Minnesota defensive end Chris Doleman said the game plan was to pressure Sweeney into mistakes. "I was chasing him hard all day," Doleman said. "Even though he threw some interceptions and made his mistakes, I think they might have something in him. We did what we wanted to do and that was keep him off-balance." Wilson hit 12 of 27 passes for 240 yards but praised his defense. "Our defense is what won the game," Wilson said. "They put pressure on Sweeney. When we play like this we can play with anybody in the league." Dallas coach Tom Landry didn't blame Sweeney for the loss. "Sweeney just didn't have a chance," Landry said. "They just unloaded on him after they got an early lead. He tried as hard as he could but he just didn't have a chance. He got worked over because he had no protection."

Fiesta Bowl lines up Irish, West Virginia

by The Associated Press
For the second time in three years, the Fiesta Bowl has lined up what it hopes will be a national championship game. On Jan. 2, No. 1 Notre Dame will play No. 4 West Virginia at Sun Devil Stadium in Tempe, Ariz. "It's done," a high-ranking member of the Fiesta Bowl selection committee told the Associated Press. He also said there are no conditional deals, which means the Fiesta Bowl could wind up with a couple of also-rans if Notre Dame loses either of its last two regular-season games against Penn State and undefeated second-ranked Southern California and West Virginia drops its finale to once-beaten No. 15 Syracuse. The bowls usually are set a week or so in advance of the official selection date and this year was no exception. The lineup looks like this: Fiesta Bowl - Notre Dame-West Virginia. Rose - Southern Cal-UCLA winner vs. Michigan, which defeated Illinois 38-9 on Saturday and captured the Big Ten crown.

Orange - Nebraska-Oklahoma winner vs. Miami. Sugar - Auburn or LSU vs. Southern Cal or Florida State. Cotton - Arkansas vs. Florida State or UCLA. Citrus - Nebraska-Oklahoma loser vs. Clemson, which beat Maryland 49-25 for its third straight Atlantic Coast Conference title. Hall of Fame - Auburn or LSU vs. Syracuse. Holiday - Wyoming-Oklahoma State. Sun - Alabama-Army. Aloha - Washington State-Houston. Gator - Georgia vs. Michigan State, if the Spartans beat Wisconsin. All American - Florida vs. Illinois, if the Illini beat Northwestern. Liberty - Indiana-South Carolina. Freedom - Brigham Young-Colorado. Peach - Iowa-North Carolina State. Independence - Southern Mississippi vs. Pitt, Wake Forest or Texas El-Paso. California - Western Michigan-Fresno State.

WTC men to host Cisco at 8 tonight

Coach Tony Mauldin's Westerners get a chance to atone for last Thursday's loss when they entertain the Cisco Wranglers at Scurry County Coliseum tonight. Tipoff is set for 8 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students. Western, 3-1, suffered its only loss last Thursday to the Wranglers, losing in a wild scoring game, 138-114, in Cisco. "Definitely we need to beef up our defense a little bit," grinned Mauldin. "Being the only team we lost to we'd like to play better tonight. Cisco is tough. They are quick and they shoot the ball extremely well." Kanger showed good balance in Thursday's game. Guards Lewis Hicks and Eric Brown scored 27 points each and 6-4 forward-post Mark Chambers scored 33. "We may try to do some things different defensively. We're definitely going to have to play better defense on the perimeter," said Mauldin. "Both Hicks and Brown hit four 3-point shots each on us. Chambers is not that big, but he is quick and deceptive inside." "We didn't feel like we played that good of defense. We're going to play again tonight and they may do it to us again, but I'd like to think we can play better defensively. In the other game we got behind and really played nothing but a transition game trying to catch up. We got within six, but couldn't get over the hump," the coach noted.

Defense keys winning effort...

Dusters outlast SPC, 65-55

Stephanie McKnight hit six-of-six free throws in the final minute and Western Texas College's Lady Dusters held on to defeat South Plains here Saturday night, 65-55 in a non-conference basketball game. "I was pretty confident. Coach just tells us to walk up there and shoot them and that's what I did," said McKnight, whose free throws with 59 seconds left broke a string of seven straight South Plains points and gave Western a 59-52 advantage. The Lady Dusters had lost to South Plains 55-45 on Friday here. Saturday, the squad played with the same defensive determination, and unlike Friday, managed enough offense to post a victory. "Last night (Friday) we just couldn't hit anything but we played good defense. Tonight, we played great defense. We haven't got any consistency in our shooting yet. We're still trying to get there but I'm sure we'll get it corrected. We'll work at it until we do," said the 5-4 point guard from Snyder. Coach Kelly Chadwick was pleased with the defensive effort. "I think we've got a good defensive team this year. I thought our defense was the key to winning this game. I know when Pruitt (South Plains' Teresa Pruitt) set up to shoot the ball you could count on it going in."

Pruitt, a 5-8 sophomore from nearby Big Spring, scored 11 of South Plains' first 13 points. She was held to only 6 in the second half, however, and finished with a game-high 19. Western fell behind early in the first half but rallied for a 10-8 lead when McKnight dropped in a 3-point shot with 13:58. The teams fought back and fourth until 6:56, when Seagraves freshman Tami Wilson made it a 19-17 contest. Western never trailed again and led 29-21 at the half when McKnight, Nickey Allen and Stacy Smith combined for 6 unanswered points. Western stretched the lead to as many as 15 in the second half but couldn't put the Lady Texans away. With less than four minutes to play, Janet Keesee scored 7 straight points to pull the visitors within five, 57-52. The Texans then quickly fouled McKnight, who calmly scored two free throws. Pruitt answered with a 3-point basket, but two more McKnight free throws kept Western in front. A basket by Valery Jackson helped seal the win, and

Bush on spot to make good on pro-environment claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The environmental community is looking to President-elect George Bush to take action early next year to back up his campaign-trail claim to be an environmentalist.

"If he specifically proposes to Congress half of what he's promised in the campaign, he'll have a hell of an environmental record," says Gaylord Nelson, counselor to the Wilderness Society.

"Proclaiming himself an environmentalist is not enough," says Robert SanGeorge, the National Audubon Society's vice president for public affairs. "Now is the time for action. He's got a lot to prove."

Shortly after getting the Republican nomination, Bush moved to stake out the green ground, proclaiming "I am an environmentalist" and putting Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis on the defensive with ads about the filthy waters of Boston Harbor.

In what amounted to an indirect repudiation of Reagan administration policies, Bush pledged action on a variety of fronts, from convening an international conference on global warming to protecting this nation's disappearing wetlands and cleaning up its polluted air.

Both Bush and Dukakis ran as environmentalists, elevating the issue to a higher level than in previous presidential races. They played to an increasingly popular cause.

A Gallup poll released two days before Bush's election said that 65 percent of the respondents — Republicans and Democrats — said the top priority of the next president should be "proposing laws to increase protection of the environment."

Nancy Light of the Sierra Club said "the reason Bush got so many votes was because he did eliminate some of the skepticism about his earlier environmental stands."

She and other officials of national environment and conservation groups said in interviews with The Associated Press that the skepticism came from Bush's role early in the Reagan years as head of the effort to scrap federal regulations, including some sacred to the environmental lobby.

Bush worked to overcome this by strong, although mainly generalized, statements in favor of a better environment.

"In many ways Bush set up the expectation he's going to be the best environmental president since Teddy Roosevelt," said Rick Hind of U.S. Public Interest Research Group.

Genealogist says Bush, Quayle are distant relatives

BOSTON (AP) — President-elect George Bush and Vice President-elect Dan Quayle may be more than just running mates. A genealogist who specializes in the lineage of presidents says Bush and Quayle are 10th cousins once removed.

The two are also related to Abraham Lincoln, and the man thought to be Marilyn Monroe's father, said Gary Boyd Roberts, a genealogist at the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston.

Bush, a Yankee, and Quayle, from a wealthy Indiana newspaper publishing family, both have 17th century roots in New England, Roberts said.

Roberts has spent almost a decade researching Bush's ancestry, which will be included in his upcoming book on presidential lineage, timed to coincide with the 200th anniversary of George Washington's inauguration April 30.

Roberts is director of publications at the genealogical society, the nation's oldest and second largest.

"Part of my mission is to show how one goes out from one's self to one's family to the community and to various groups around the nation," Roberts said. "If you look at pedigree, you can tell about patterns in culture."

Bush, he said, is only the third of what he calls "Social Register" presidents. The first two, Republican Theodore Roosevelt and Democrat Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who were distant cousins, were closely connected to New York society.

Both Bush and Quayle are WASPs — white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestants — with a twist. They both have strong ancestral ties to the South as well as New England, Roberts said.

According to Roberts, Bush is distantly related to 10 American presidents, including Franklin Pierce, the nearest relation (fifth cousins four times removed); Lincoln; Ulysses S. Grant; Rutherford B. Hayes; Grover Cleveland; William Howard Taft; Calvin Coolidge; Franklin Roosevelt; Richard Nixon; and Gerald Ford, the most distant relation (11th cousins once removed).

Bush also is descended from British royalty going as far back as 12th century King Henry I, the son of William the Conqueror, said Roberts.

Quayle "almost certainly" has some royal ancestry but Roberts has not thoroughly researched his family tree.

Cycle rider scares horse

A motorcycle rider now faces misdemeanor charges after a report during the weekend that a man and his son were thrown from a horse when the rider reportedly scared the animal.

The incident was reported to the sheriff's office at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. Reportedly, a man riding a green motorcycle drove close to the pair while they were horseback-riding near their North Ave. O home.

An officer subsequently found the suspect in the same area and cited him for operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

Following a reported 9:22 p.m. Sunday fight in the parking lot of a College Ave. drive-in restaurant, two individuals came to the police station and filed complaints against a 16-year-old youth.

Police said the suspect was charged with criminal mischief and misdemeanor assault complaints and that the cases would be forwarded to the district attorney's office.

The initial report was that knives were displayed during the disturbance and that a car with eight young men left the scene.

Pat McClure

ROTAN—Services are set for 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Weatherbee Funeral Home Chapel for Pat McClure, 68, who died Friday in a Kerrville hospital. Burial will follow in the Roby Cemetery.

He was the step-father of Judy Gann of Snyder.

Born in Fisher County, he moved from Robert Lee to Blackwell in 1986. He was an oilfield worker, and a veteran of World War II. He was a member of the VFW and the Roby First Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Sue McPeeters McClure of Blackwell; a son, Sam McClure of Austin; a daughter, Cynda Ray Manning of Eldorado; a step-son, Jimmy Bennett of California; two brothers, Jack McClure of Roby and James McClure of Agar, S.D.; five sisters, Inez Neves of Roby, Louise Spiel of Parade, S.D., Jane McClure of Brownville and Pauline Webb and Elizabeth Byrd, both of Robert Lee; and five grandchildren.

Vandalisms, thefts noted

Thefts and vandalisms were worked by local law enforcement staffers during the weekend.

Gene Rios of 2903 Ave. J told police at 9:40 a.m. Saturday that someone had siphoned $10 of gasoline from his Pontiac Firebird.

Hilda Molina reported at 10:46 a.m. Saturday that a tire had been cut on a 1976 Ford pickup in the 900 Block of 27th St.

Regina J. Hammond of 1907 Coleman Ave. told the sheriff's office Sunday that she had attended a Saturday night wedding party at a home in the Oasis Trailer Park where $30 was stolen from her purse.

Sheriff's officers are also investigating Brenda Castillo's Sunday report of BBs or pellets having extensively dented a pickup truck and car at her 1010 N. Ave. L residence.

In 1957, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed into law the first civil rights bill to pass Congress since Reconstruction.

Man charged in death of child

MERKEL, Texas (AP) — A man has been charged with murder in the death of a 7-year-old girl who disappeared from a relative's home and was found in a West Texas pasture, officials said.

The nude body of April Marie Wilson was discovered Friday eight miles from her Merkel home. Authorities said they are awaiting test results to determine how she died.

Jones County Sheriff Mike Middleton identified the man as Garry Dean Miller, 21, of Merkel, about 15 miles west of Abilene. He was charged Saturday.

April lived with her divorced mother, Maggie Wilson. The youngster's father, Terry Lee Wilson, lives in Carisbad, N.M.

Because Ms. Wilson was working a late shift at a nursing home, April was spending the night with a cousin and his girlfriend when she disappeared, Merkel police chief Bob Jones told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Transporting alcohol prompts local arrests

A Snyder couple was arrested for transporting alcohol in a dry area Sunday afternoon after sheriff's office personnel told city police that a yellow Cadillac might be bringing alcohol into the county from Colorado City.

Police were notified of the possible violation at 12:17 p.m. Sunday, and a city patrolman arrested the 30-year-old man and 51-year-old woman on the Class A misdemeanor charges at 2:21 p.m. in the 1100 Block of Ave. Y.

The man reportedly told officers that a local bootlegger had paid him $10 to make the "run."

Other weekend arrests included one of a 15-year-old boy at 12:25 a.m. Monday in the 3600 Block of Ave. U for evading arrest.

An 18-year-old male was taken into custody at 1:58 p.m. Saturday in the 4100 Block of U for soliciting without a permit, and a 56-year-old man was arrested at 10:20 p.m. Saturday in the 1600 Block of 25th St. for DWI and on Department of Public Safety warrants from Houston for driving on the wrong side of a divided highway and failure to appear in court.

Two men were arrested for DWI late Saturday and early Sunday, a 28-year-old at 11:35 p.m. Saturday in the 700 Block of East 37th St. and an 18-year-old at 1:45 a.m. Sunday in the 400 Block of 20th St.

Two 16-year-old boys were taken into custody for public intoxication at 2:30 a.m. Sunday in the 500 Block of 15th St.

A 31-year-old woman was arrested for DWI by a state highway patrolman Saturday two miles south of Snyder on Hwy. 208.

Police to resume digging in yard where corpses found

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A landlady suspected of killing at least five people and burying them in the yard of her Victorian boardinghouse was on parole for drugging three elderly people, police say.

Detectives were seeking the manager of the rooming house, Dorothea Montalvo Puente, 59, for investigation of murder, said Homicide Lt. Joe Enloe.

Investigators said they believe seven or eight bodies may have been buried in the yard, based on the number of residents who are missing, Enloe said.

The woman apparently had been cashing some of the victims' Social Security checks for several months, he said. The motive in the deaths was believed to be robbery, he said.

Digging crews, directed by forensic anthropologists, would continue searching the front yard of the home today where neighbors reported a hole had been dug, Enloe said.

Puente was interviewed Friday by police after the first body was discovered but was released for lack of evidence.

Puente was convicted in 1982 of grand theft and imprisoned for drugging three elderly people and taking their possessions after meeting them in bars, police said. She served 2½ years of a five-year sentence before being paroled, officials said.

The boardinghouse is not a nursing home and did not require a license.

The first body was discovered Friday and was followed by the unearthing of two more bodies Saturday and two others Sunday.

After uncovering the fifth body, police arrested John McCauley, 59, on suspicion of being an accessory to the homicides. McCauley, a resident at the boardinghouse, was arrested after he gave conflicting information, Enloe said.

"We do not believe that this could have been done solely by herself," Enloe said. "We know she's had people help her dig the holes."

Police were unable to determine the identities of the victims or how they died because four of the bodies were wrapped in cloth or plastic, investigators said. They were able to determine the sex of only the first body, "wrapped like a mummy" and described as a gray-haired woman.

The bodies, all found in the fetal position, showed no signs of trauma, according to police, who said autopsies would be performed.

Enloe said evidence was discovered in the graves linking Puente to the deaths, but he declined to elaborate.

"Part of the reason we have probable cause (for her arrest) is because we've been digging for two days, and we've discovered things," he said.

An all-points bulletin was issued for Puente and she remained at large today. She had not been charged, but Enloe said an arrest warrant was being prepared for her for investigation of murder.

Investigators also were seeking access to her bank records.

"Until we get a search warrant, until we get in her bank account, find out what's in there, identify who these people are and try to show she changed their money, it's still guesswork," Enloe said.

For months, neighbors had complained of a stench coming from the site and were told a fish emulsion had been used there as a fertilizer, police said.

"The first time was about the middle of last May," said neighbor Will McIntire. "We couldn't stand it. It definitely was something dead. It had a sweet, sickly smell."

Police went to the house last Monday after neighbors reported former tenant Bert Montoya had been missing since August.

Pet quota comes before city council

DALLAS (AP) — A condominium owner has asked the city of Dallas to pass an ordinance restricting the number of dogs and cats that can be kept in apartments, condominiums and townhouses.

A court case is pending on the matter, but the Zoning Ordinance Advisory Committee scheduled a public meeting for today to discuss whether the city needs a zoning ordinance to limit the number of pets in residential areas.

"Something has to be done," said Ann Shine. "I live in a duplex and the lady next door started breeding animals several years ago and she now has 32. The noise, the odor and the bugs and flies are unbelievable."

Dozens of cities across the country have ordinances limiting the number of pets a person may own, "but they can't enforce it," said Janet Tharp of the city's Planning and Developing staff, which has recommended the city not restrict the number of pets.

Ms. Shine is involved in a civil case that is pending in district court on the matter.

Dallas City Council members voted in June to have the city staff draft an ordinance limiting the number of dogs and cats that could be kept at a residence. But so far, no number has been specified.

"Limiting the number of animals will not take care of the problem," said Dr. Leonard Carpenter, a veterinarian. "You can have one animal that causes more problems than several."

A survey of 45 Texas cities showed that 33 limit the number of pets in residential areas, Ms. Tharp said.

Dallas already has laws to deal with health and sanitation problems such as noise, odor and stray animals, Ms. Tharp said.

Prince Charles turns 40 today

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Prince Charles today celebrated his 40th birthday with a trip to Birmingham for an inner-city "street party", and the Defense Ministry promoted him to Royal Air Force colonel and Navy captain.

As he crosses into middle age, the heir to the British throne, who has no constitutionally defined job, has carved his own role — as crusader for the underprivileged and protector of the environment.

On the eve of the prince's birthday, one of his close associates, Tom Shebbaire, said Charles is irritated by the news media's obsession with peddling what he called "tittle-tattle" and fiction about Charles' private life, which he said distracts from the prince's serious work.

Hundreds of well-wishers cheered and sang "Happy Birthday, Dear Charlie" when the heir to the British throne arrived in Birmingham.

Smiling, he received flowers and two birthday kisses, then met with about 20 young people who have established their own businesses with the help of his Prince's Youth Business Trust.

He also announced a new $72 million trust that will provide grants, loans and business advice to young entrepreneurs. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government has agreed to match donations up to that level.

As Charles was en route to Birmingham, the Defense Ministry awarded him the double promotion. The ranks are ceremonial; the prince ended his active career with Britain's armed services in 1976.

Charles chose the Prince's Trust — which he established in 1976 to help disadvantaged youths find jobs — to organize his public birthday celebration in Birmingham, Britain's second-largest city.

Shebbaire, director of the Prince's Trust, said in an interview published Sunday in the Observer newspaper that the prince had decided not to give an interview himself because he didn't want to get involved "in the hype" surrounding his birthday.

Methods for lowering cholesterol

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard there is something made from ground seeds that works as well as prescription medicine to lower cholesterol. What can you tell me about it?

DEAR READER: A study in the "Archives of Internal Medicine" (February 1988) showed that psyllium hydrophilic mucilloid (Metamucil), a dietary fiber made from the husk of psyllium seeds (given as 3.4 grams in cold water three times a day) reduced serum cholesterol about 15 percent in 26 patients.

These findings are exciting because Metamucil is inexpensive and produces few side effects (rarely, intestinal obstruction and allergic reactions). Although the study awaits confirmation, the results are encouraging. However, before mixing up your Metamucil drink, remember the following facts:

First, diet is the cornerstone of all cholesterol-lowering therapy. The simple act of cutting down on cholesterol-laden foods — eggs, whole milk, cheese and red-meat animal fat — is sufficient therapy for most people with elevated serum cholesterol.

Only a few patients require drug therapy; these include people whose low density lipoproteins (the "bad" cholesterol) exceed 190 milligrams per deciliter (in persons with no coronary heart disease) or 160 mg/dl (in persons with coronary heart disease or with certain risk factors), despite diet. Second, oat bran — a natural source of fiber — has been shown to lower cholesterol in conjunction with other dietary modifications.

Third, nicotinic acid (thiamine, a natural vitamin) often will reduce serum cholesterol, and is considered by some specialists to be a reasonable first-line choice for drug therapy.

Ground seeds and other preparations may be helpful in lowering cholesterol. Therefore, concerned adults can do much to aid themselves without necessarily needing medication.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter, age 10, is 5 feet 5 inches tall and has a size 11 shoe. Six months ago she was 5 feet 1 1/4 inches and size 10. I'm afraid she'll be a giant, yet all her tests are negative.

DEAR READER: I assume from your statements that you are concerned about your daughter's rapid growth. Don't be. If she has been checked out by a pediatrician and "her tests are negative," she is a healthy — albeit tall — young lady. You have little control over her eventual height. So, relax and enjoy her childhood; it will be over all too soon.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — With at least eight facilities storing huge amounts of highly toxic chemicals, and homes backed up to refinery fences in some areas, the potential for disaster in this coastal city is great, officials say.

The unit that will fight chemical accidents remains inadequate, but a chemical disaster arsenal is slowly being built, Assistant Fire Chief J.R. Guzman said.

His department could have a hot job real fast if something were to go wrong, Guzman said.

"It's a hot potato, but somebody has to handle it," Guzman told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

In mid-summer, the department's Hazardous Material response unit — known as HazMat — had only three disposable suits and a hodge-podge of homemade tools to work with.

W.C. Jones, another assistant fire chief, said at the time that the city's best defense was Mother Nature.

"The wind blows out of the southeast about 90 percent of the time, and that would take the chemical out over the water of the ship channel, away from people," Jones said in July.

The HazMat unit now boasts 12 dozen disposable suits and two completely encapsulated models, which were donated by Southwestern Refining. Valero Refining has also promised to contribute some gear.

Guzman and Jones both say they need at least six encapsulated suits to work effectively, but the new equipment has eased tensions among fire department personnel.

"I feel a lot more comfortable now than I did a year ago," Guzman said.

The current push to prepare for chemical accidents started in 1986, when Congress passed a federal law requiring community leaders across the country to formulate disaster plans to protect their citizens.

The legislation was passed in the sobering aftermath of the 1984 chemical disaster in Bhopal, India, where a Union Carbide plant let loose a lethal chemical cloud that swept through the populous countryside, killing more than 2,000 people and injuring nearly 300,000.

The law prompted local firefighters to begin looking at their options should one of the city's refineries blow up or have an accident that releases dangerous toxic chemicals.

They didn't like what they saw, they said. But city officials said there wasn't $2,000 to $3,000 available to buy needed protective suits and gear.

The HazMat unit, which houses the city's cache of chemical battle gear, is a renovated ambulance. Its floors are patched with a criss-cross of metal plates, and much of the paraphernalia it holds is homemade.

"When we first set it up, the guys called it 'Kitty-Litter 9,'"

Guzman joked. "They carried this absorbent — kitty litter — to soak up spills and that's about all they had. We do carry equipment other than kitty litter now," he quickly added.

Such budget consciousness is evident as the department prepares. The most likely candidate? A revamped beer truck, Guzman said.

"A new vehicle would cost $50,000 to $60,000, and there's no way we could do that," he said. "So we just have to make due with what we can get."

Rather than look to allocations from the city for expensive, hi-tech gear, fire officials have largely turned to donations from the private sector.

The most significant additions to the HazMat team came in late summer — when Southwestern Refining donated $10,000 worth of equipment to the department.

In addition to two encapsulated suits, the company donated communications headsets so firemen could talk to each other after they suited up, and also binoculars to put in the vehicles.

J.B. Toland, manager of human resources at Valero Refining, said additional gear for the HazMat Unit ordered two months ago finally arrived and will be given to the fire department.

"It's not the kind of stuff you find on the store shelf," Toland said of the encapsulated suit. The suits include a cover to protect against the heat of a fire, and a small chemical containment kit. The value of the gift is about $2,000.

A report by the Nueces County Local Emergency Planning Committee, which will update existing civil defense plans for hazardous chemical response, said the department now appears reasonably well equipped to respond to accidents involving known chemicals where fully encapsulated suits would not be needed.

However, a group trained and equipped to safely handle accidents involving unknown chemicals requiring fully encapsulated suits "currently does not exist," according to the report.

Male winner denied honors

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University junior Michael Grubbs admits his decision to run for homecoming queen was meant as a joke, but school administrators aren't playing along.

Despite his win over a more traditional contender in the campus election, with 266 votes, neither Rice nor Cotton Bowl officials will let him have the title.

Another battle looms at Alamo

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Remember the Alamo? The Texas Legislature has indicated it will think about the historic monument often after it reconvenes in January.

Lawmakers already are firing questions at the Daughters of the Republic of Texas — stewards of the Alamo — about the monument's fiscal operation.

State Reps. Orlando Garcia and Jerry Beauchamp, both San Antonio Democrats, said they will battle to have the DRT and the state-owned mission placed completely under state oversight.

Scientific spinoffs come with collider

DALLAS (AP) — After the "super collider" becomes operational, scientists believe many technologies will spin off from the multibillion dollar Texas project, and scholarly types can't wait.

"Roll your thoughts back about 100 years," said Texas A&M physicist Peter McIntyre. "The progress of science and technology that has defined the fabric of our civilization has been paced by a quest for understanding the basic building blocks of matter.

"The casual sequence of events that leads from a high-brow theorist through the point of an inventor who makes a better mousetrap is driven on the front end by the understanding of the fundamental things," he said.

Although federal funding still must be approved by Congress, a site in Ellis County, about 30 miles south of Dallas, has been approved as the location for the super collider, which will result in thousands of new jobs for the area.

Scientists said the project already has yielded several benefits, including better ways to kill fruit flies and detect human illnesses. Scientists involved in the groundwork for the project say they expect the super collider will pave the way for unheard-of marvels.

"We have to know how matter works in order to make progress in understanding how everything else works," said Austin Gleason, chairman of the physics department at the University of Texas. "If we don't keep making progress on those frontiers, knowledge stops."

The construction will require development of hundreds of technologies that can be applied to other fields, said K.W. Chen, director for accelerator science and technology at the University of Texas at Arlington.

Just as the moon missions brought such seemingly unrelated scientific discoveries as non-stick cooking surfaces and heart pacemakers, McIntyre said the first work on the super-conductor at the Texas Accelerator Center near Houston already has yielded technologies that seem to have little connection to quarks and protons.

By the time the super collider is operating, perhaps 10 years from now, the annual sales from spinoff technology ought to be in the billions of dollars, McIntyre suggested.

Scientists at the center, a collaborative effort of nine universities, already have:

— Developed supermagnets used in a medical technique called magnetic resonance imaging, which McIntyre said gives physicians "a 3-D road map of your insides."
