Loretta Lynch Confirmed As First Black Female US Attorney General

President Barack Obama's next Attorney General was confirmed Thursday, April 23, 2015, when the Senate finally voted for Loretta Lynch.

With a 56-43 vote, making her the first Black female Attorney General in United States history, Loretta Lynch was confirmed as U.S. Attorney General this past Thursday. Lynch will be sworn in on Monday after being stalled by the Senate. Republicans leading the Senate refused to bring her nomination up for a vote until Democrats cut a deal on abortion in crastinated decision to vote Lynch in.

Ten Republicans, including Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, joined Democrats. Texas GOP Senator Ted Cruz was the only senator not to vote. Loretta Lynch's father, Lorenzo A. Lynch, was in the Senate gallery watching when the historic vote took place and made the following statement to CNN reporters...

"The good guys won. That's what has happened in this country all along. Even during slavery. Levi Coffin was a founder of the Underground Railroad. Even during slavery. A white man fought against slavery. So all over this land good folks have stood in the right lane, in the right path."

Lynch, 55, is a two-time U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of New York. With a background in the criminal justice system as a prosecutor who confronted the ongoing threat of terrorism and police brutality cases, Obama praised Lynch for successfully prosecuting the terrorists who plotted to bomb the Federal Reserve Bank and the New York City subway.

Congrats on your victory and accomplishment to the new Attorney General Loretta Lynch from The Source.-Infinite Wiz (@InfiniteWiz)

Lubbock ISD Announces Dell Scholarship Recipient

Lubbock ISD is proud to announce that Estacado High School (EHS) senior Micheal Jones has been named a Dell Scholar by the Michael and Susan Dell Foundation. The Dell Scholar award provides $20,000 in financial support as well as a laptop and textbook credits. Funeral Services Held For Pastor Smith's Wife: Ella Faye Smith On Thursday, April 30, 2015

Funeral services were held for Ella Faye Smith, the wife of Rev. D. A. Smith, pastor of Smith Template Community Church, on Thursday morning, April 30, 2015, with Rev. Charles Planks, Sr., Associate Minister, Eulogist.

Serving as Officiant was Rev. Eddie Williams.

Interment was held in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Ossie Curry Funeral Home.

Mrs. Smith, age 72 of Lubbock, passed away on Wednesday, April 23, 2015, two days before her birthday.

She was born April 25, 1943 to the parentage of Amos and Jessie Buckner in Tyler, Texas.

Ella's formal education was in Tyler where she graduated from Emmett Scott High School and Sweet's Beauty College. She also graduated from the Business College of Beaumont, Texas.

Mrs. Smith began her church life at a very early age in the community of Jones Valley, Tyler, Texas. She was baptized at Hopewell Baptist Church in Tyler and remained there until she married and moved away. It was no surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Buckner that Ella Faye would marry someone who was a person of faith because she had worked in the church all her life.

Ella Faye Buckner united in Holy Matrimony with Rev. D. A. Smith in December of 1963. This love continued for 52 years. She cherished her duties as a constant companion and a beloved wife. The last two years of her life were filled with special challenges. Early on, Faye was not excited about carrying out all of the duties of a minister's wife. But later she became excited about her role. There were new challenging areas as she searched and worked to fulfill her obligations as the "First Lady." She was now ready for her role and moved through it with excitement and gusto.

Those who are left to cherish her memories include: Rev. D. A. Smith, devoted husband; Montequisha Green, Godchild of Lubbock, Texas; Sharon Houston, Godchild of Houston, Texas; Willie Harvey, sister of Tyler, Texas; Gail Moten (Bobby), niece of Dallas, Texas; Montecia R. In Cinque

By Renetta Howard

From time to time, I have received questionnaires and/or surveys from the American Civil Liberties Union on many topics which they feel affect the American population and is need of some kind of reform. At the end of the questionnaire there is a plea for your membership and a donation to further the work and causes of the organization.

The most recent survey which I have received is about criminal justice. I do not always respond to the surveys and questionnaires but this one really attracted my attention as it is on a daily basis throughout all media, that criminal justice is an issue. It is an issue because of the way criminals are being arrested, sentenced and housed in the justice systems of our local, state and federal courts and prisons, especially in race related ways.

Most Americans by now should have noticed that our country is busy spending billions of dollars for jails, prisons and highways. What is spent on schools and education is a pittance in comparison. If we valued freedom and education, the outcome would be very different.

Recently, the focus has been on police brutality and the killing of unarmed men, mostly Black men by White policemen. Only a few policemen have been convicted of murder because a video was available to prove what happened between the officer and the victim. Only God knows how many have been killed wherein the officer used a 'drop gun' to prove that the victim was assaulting him. For those of you who do not know what a 'drop gun' is, it is a gun which the police office plants on the victim as proof that he was armed and attempting to shoot the officer. Real criminals who would shoot an officer are aware of this and when you hear of an officer being shot, in most instances, the criminal had the upper hand. None of this would even be necessary if there were better screening for police officers when hired. Too many racists and terrorists have been hired by too many police units and there does not seem to be a vehicle or mechanism for ongoing testing and evaluation of policemen.

The ACLU wants to know America's ideas on how flawed the American criminal justice system is and how high our priorities are regarding reforms. They believe that too many people go to prison for far too long for no good public safety reason. They know that agents on all levels use racial profiling to target individuals for law enforcement attention. They are aware that states contract with private, for-profit corporations to run their prisons; mandatory sentencing laws take discretion out of judge's hands, impose extreme penalties for non-violent offenses; there is unaccountable and excessive force by local police; mass incarceration has swelled prison population; billions of federal dollars are used in the acquisition of military equipment and the use of military tactics by local law enforcement; there is the use of extended solitary confinement of juveniles held in jails and prisons; the widespread use of life sentences without parole for those convicted of non-violent offenses and the use of SWAT team raids when there is no hostage, barricades or other active threats.

We need to get 'in cinque' and let the ACLU know our feelings on this matter. If you receive a survey in the mail, please fill it Obstacles are those frightful things you see when you take your eyes off the goal.

"South Carolina Man Savage By White Cop"
by
Maurice A. Williams

Dear Editor:

The statement, "Black Lives Don't Matter", has raised its ugly head on several fronts again. The recent killing of Walter Scott, a 50 year old unarmed black man, by a South Carolina cop has re-fired an already hot discussion that never really died down.

It is really hard to watch the video, shot by a passerby, himself a hero on account of the fact that it takes real courage to shoot video while witnessing a cop with a gun: a gun that is being used to execute an apparent innocent black man.

Scott's killing will add more heat and more light to our ongoing relook at policing, especially its connection to communities of color. As many analyst's, political observers, and on the street people are indicating, it is tough to imagine that absent the video that Scott's killer would have been charged immediately and fired from the South Carolina police force.

On the other hand, the role of video is quite mixed; it clearly did not help that New York Eric Gardner filmed during his chocking at hands and the NYPD last year -- the cops were unpunished!!!

There's no doubt that the North Carolina video did help and it should be an integral part of what every major metropolitan police force employer as a matter of routine. In the coming weeks, months, days, and years -- responsible leaders: (NAACP, My Brother's Keeper, 100 Black Men of West Texas, and other concerned groups and citizens in Lubbock, Texas USA) should be making a stout effort to ascertain that our police force is or have

Why Grin When You Can Laugh out Loud

I am of the opinion that standing in line is not a career although I have been so employed most of my life. If it is a career, I am not applying for any employment.

I have searched colleges and universities and have yet to find any of them offering a PhD in Standing in Line. I believe there is no such thing, although I stood in line for so long now I probably have earned a PhD.

This past week I had this brought to my attention in an interesting manner. I had ordered a printing job at Staples and went in to pick it up. Walking in the door I noticed that at the printing department there was a long line of people waiting. My heart sank.

Nothing seems to be more of a waste of time then standing in line waiting for service or to pick up something. The woman behind the counter was doing the best she could, but the line did not seem to shrink very much. In fact, it seemed to grow.

As I stood there, I noticed the people in line were getting a little grouchy. You could tell by the grimace on their face that they were not in one of their "happy moods." At the time, most of the people in line were women. Nobody was talking to anybody, just staring or should I say glaring at the woman behind the counter trying to move the customers through as fast as possible.

It is always true that when you are in a hurry, things go rather slow. I try to pretend I am not in a hurry and whistle, usually, "Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer." If it is this time of year people look at me as though I am crazy. Looks can be deceiving, but not in my case.

If you pretend that you have all the time in the world, things seem to go by quicker. It is like your computer. If you are in a hurry, the computer will run as slow as possible. On the other hand, if while you are waiting for the computer to get up and running you have many other things to do the computer is up and running before you know it.

I was thinking all these things as I was standing in line because I was not really walking in line. I thought of Johnny Cash's song, "I walk the line," and was tempted to start singing it, but I did not think it would be appropriate.

Then things began to take another turn. A woman came behind the counter, saw me and asked very loudly, "Are you here to pick up?"

There are times when something happens inside my head that makes me say things that I have not really prepared. I do not know what it is, maybe it is my upbringing but I am still not all the way up.

Without hardly a thought, I said in my outdoor voice, "No, I'm married, but thanks for the offer. It's not often an old geezer like me get such an invitation."

Then the whole atmosphere changed. Most of the people in line broke out in hilarious laughter. They never heard such a line in all their life. One woman looked at me and said, "Thanks, I needed that." Another said, "You've made my day."

Everybody was laughing and talking and the time seemed to go by very quickly and soon I was on my way out.

My observation is that most people are too serious, but too serious about the wrong things. Everybody seems to be uptight particularly when they are in the store standing in line.

One rule I have in life and that is, I do not take myself very seriously. After all, I do own a mirror! If what I see in the mirror is what other people see when they encounter me, I better start laughing now and join the crowd.

There are things that we need to take seriously. Most people do not take the serious things seriously, but they take instead, the hilarious things seriously. We live in an upside down world.

A time comes when you have to really laugh out loud. I have noticed that when one person starts laughing pretty soon everybody in the surrounding area will join in the laughing. Laughing seems to be rather contagious.

If you get up in the morning and listen to the news, you are going to be down in the dumps all day. So much on television and radio for that matter, contribute to the degree of sadness infecting our country today.

I think occasionally everybody needs to have what I call "Laughter Therapy." The way to begin this "Laughter Therapy," is to begin laughing at yourself. After all, everybody else is laughing at you; why not join in the hilarity?

Of course, some things are not funny. The wise person knows the difference between what is funny and what is not funny. To laugh at the wrong thing can be disastrous.

Solomon understood this quite well when he wrote, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones" (Proverbs 17:22).

I refuse to go through life with a strained grin on my face. I choose to laugh out loud and invite the whole world to laugh with me.

Protesters Rally in Baltimore After Officers Are Charged

Demonstrations say charges in death of Freddie Gray are just the beginning of a national struggle against police misconduct.

BALTIMORE— More than a thousand demonstrators took to the streets of the city on Saturday afternoon, May 2, 2015, proclaiming that the arrest of six police officers over the death of an unarmed black man in their custody was only the beginning of a long, national struggle against police misconduct.

At a march and rally in front of Baltimore City Hall, speakers and demonstrators said it would take a conviction to send a message about police violence against citizens.

"The real victory will be when all six are convicted," said Sabrina Green, a demonstrator who marched 2½ miles from West Baltimore to City Hall as part of the afternoon's protests.

The rally and march, organized by Malik Shabazz, national president of Black Lawyers for Justice and former chairman of the New Black Panther Party, began in West Baltimore near where 25-year-old Freddie Gray was arrested on April 12. Other sporadic protests erupted across the city all afternoon, according to the Baltimore Police Department.

Mr. Gray was fatally injured while in police custody, sparking protests that turned violent after his funeral on Monday—as well as adding fuel to a raging national debate about the relations between police officers and some of the communities they serve.

Baltimore State's Attorney Marilyn Mosby has alleged that during the 45 minutes between the time of Mr. Gray's arrest and his emergence from the back of a police van with fatal injuries, six officers saw Mr. Gray in need of medical attention but offered no aid.

All six officers had posted bail and been released by Friday night.

None of the officers has spoken publicly. Mike Davey, a Baltimore attorney who said he was speaking for all six officers, said none of the officers did anything wrong.

Speaking on Saturday in front of a line of Maryland National Guard troops carrying AR-15 weapons charged with guarding City Hall, Mr. Shabazz—a Washington, D.C.-based attorney, community activist and prominent black nationalist—said that the movement would continue until police brutality ended across the country.

"We will gather in peace and we will leave in peace and we will march through these streets strong and we will let the world know that the march for justice will continue until police brutality ends everywhere, in all 50 states," Mr. Shabazz said.

Calling himself "the man they love to hate," Mr. Shabazz led the assembled crowd in chants of "black power" and "What do we want? Justice! When do we want it? Now!"

Speakers and marchers condemned the violence and looting in the city that took place earlier in the week, but said that it had brought the eyes of the world to Baltimore.

"Without Monday night, charges would not have been brought," said Kwame Rose, a Baltimore resident who has emerged as a leading voice in the protests after a well-publicized confrontation on Fox News with Geraldo Rivera.

"We made a statement. The world heard us then. They heard that the youth of Baltimore city are going to get justice by any means necessary. So if we have to burn a couple things down—I'm not saying do it—but I'm saying we are [in] a war right now," Mr. Rose said.

State and local authorities decided to keep the curfew in place on Saturday night, announcing their decision around 7 p.m.

instruction and training. While at Angelo State University, he received and accepted Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord in March of 1977, thus, igniting a new call and purpose over his life.

One evening while praying and studying the Word of God, the Lord impressed upon Pastor Brooks Ephesians 4:1 stating: "I urge you to live a life worthy of the calling you have received."....., the call was then issued for him to preach the Gospel. He accepted his call into the ministry in 1978 under the leadership of Rev. H. C. Lemons at St. Paul Baptist Church in San Angelo, Texas.

After returning to Lubbock, Pastor Brooks was privileged to serve several churches in the Lubbock community as interim pastor from 1982 through 1990. During this period, he gained valuable experiences and had the opportunity to meet many wonderful people.

Initially, he was called to Community Baptist Church as interim pastor in 1990. In May of the same year, he was installed as the pastor of CBC. While serving at Community Baptist Church, he met and married Miss Greta Laster, a native of Lubbock. They are now the proud parents of three beautiful daughters: Sarah, Elisabeth, and Anna.

For the past twenty-five years, Pastor Brooks has been honored and delighted to serve his Lord in the office of pastor and teacher at CBC. His passion has been to study the scriptures, communicate the Word of God directly and clearly, and strengthen marriages and families. His heart longs for revival of the saved to be restored back to fellowship with God, and for the lost to come to Jesus Christ where they will find peace with God. Lastly, Pastor Brooks desires a heart for prayer and preservation of the unity of the body of Christ.

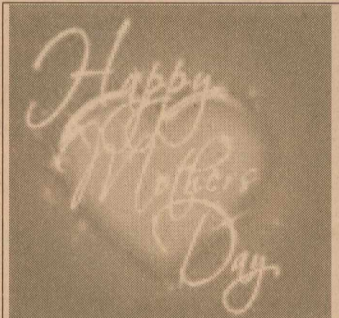

Pastor Brooks past service committees have included the following: serving on the advisory board for Women's Aglow ministries, leadership team for Pray Lubbock, advisory committees for the City of Lubbock, Fatherhood Advisory Committee for the Texas Tech University Early Head Start Program. Currently, he is a parent educator for Lubbock I.S.D. Pastor Brooks has enjoyed working with and encouraging parents throughout the community.

Baltimore Demonstration

Some community leaders had urged that the curfew be lifted and that life in the city be allowed to return to normal.

Baltimore Police Commissioner Anthony Batts thanked the city for calm over the past few days and promised that his department would work toward better relations with the community.

"The last few days have shown that Baltimore can come together as one—where we've had pastors, young adults, police officers coming together as one city. Peace and calm is always better than violence. My hope is that we work towards a new level of partnership in all parts of our community as we move forward," Mr. Batts said in a brief Saturday news conference.

Chocolate: Above&Beyond Joins International Confectionery Trade Association

Chocolate: Above&Beyond in Lubbock, Texas recently joined Retail Confectioners International (RCI), a trade association serving the confectionery industry since 1917. As a member of RCI, Chocolate: Above&Beyond will be networking with a broad range of confectioners and industry suppliers - from small, independently owned businesses to large, multi-million-dollar corporations.

The business owner, Jeanette Nathan, states, "Joining RCI was a good investment for the company. I got an opportunity to attend the Chocolate Boot Camp in Joplin, Missouri. I learned so much about the world of chocolate history, sensory evaluation, coatings, manufacturing, tempering, recipes, enrobing fundamentals, moulding guidelines, and how to operate an excellent food business. It was a once in a life time experience."

To become a member of Retail Confectioners International, an application is submitted that includes company information as well as industry references. Upon review of the application, the organization's Board of Directors vote on the company's membership eligibility. Once welcomed into the association, members have access to resources such as educational information and discounted registration rates for all RCI events.

For information about RCI membership as well as upcoming events and educational courses for chocolate and candy manufacturers, go to retailconfectioners.org.
