Another body of black child found in river

ATLANTA (AP) — For the fourth time in six weeks, the body of a young black male has been pulled from one of the area's rivers — the apparent new dumping grounds of the killer or killers who have taken the lives of 24 young blacks in the past 21 months.

The badly decomposed body of 15-year-old Joseph Bell, missing since March 2, was discovered Sunday afternoon in "an isolated and very inaccessible" section of the South River in suburban DeKalb County by a couple testing a new trail bike, authorities said.

DeKalb Public Safety Commissioner Dick Hand said an autopsy would be conducted today to determine the cause of death. But he said authorities are treating the case as a homicide.

Officials said the body may have been in the river for several weeks.

Bell, who lived in the same neighborhood as two other victims, was last seen at a restaurant where he occasionally did odd jobs.

Richard Harp, manager of the restaurant, has told police that the day after Bell was last seen, he received a telephone call from someone claiming to be Bell who said, "I'm almost dead."

Bell's disappearance was being investigated by the special task force investigating the other 23 slayings and the disappearance of 10-year-old Darron Glass, last seen Sept. 14.

Hand said the Bell case was similar to those of several other youths whose bodies have been found in DeKalb County this year after their disappearances from Atlanta. He declined to discuss details.

Authorities have said they believe that a number of the cases are isolated killings. But in all 24 of the slayings, authorities have said the victims were killed and their bodies dumped elsewhere.

Prior to the Dec. 8 discovery of the body of 16-year-old Patrick Rogers in the Chattahoochee River, however, none of the victims had been dumped in water.

With the discovery of Bell's body, five victims now have been fished out of area rivers, including four of the last five. Authorities have speculated that the killer or killers may have started dumping the victims in rivers to wash away any clues that might have been left behind on the bodies.

Hand said Bell's body apparently had been dumped off the Klondike Bridge about three-fourths of a mile upstream from where it was found lodged in a tree at "an acute turn" in the river.

DeKalb County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Burton said Sunday night that the condition of Bell's body "was not inconsistent with him being dead since the day he disappeared."

Burton said the body was so decomposed that it would be difficult to determine the cause of death.

On March 30, the body of 13-year-old Timothy Hill was pulled from the Chattahoochee River west of Atlanta. The next day, the body of 21-year-old Eddie "Bubba" Duncan, a mentally-retarded black man who was Timothy's friend, was fished from the same river several miles downstream.

Medical examiners were able to determine that Hill had been asphyxiated, the same cause of death as 10 earlier victims. Duncan's body was too decomposed to determine the cause of death.

Bell is the third victim to be found in or on the banks of the South River. The body of 13-year-old Curtis Walker was found March 6 about 10 miles west of the spot where Bell's body was found. Last Nov. 2, the body of 9-year-old Aaron Jackson was out on its banks. Both Walker and Jackson were asphyxiated.

Hours before Bell's body was discovered, a group of city residents gathered at the cemetery where six of the young victims are buried for an Easter sunrise service dedicated to the victim's memories.

"A message has come out of all of this that we have a job to do," said the Rev. Arthur Langford, an Atlanta city councilman who since last fall has led weekend volunteer searches for clues in the cases.

The body of 15-year old Joseph Bell is loaded on to a jeep near the banks of the South river East of Atlanta, Sunday. Bell, who has been missing since March 2, 1981, is the 24th young black to have been found slain in the past 21 months.

Burials, investigation follow blast

REDSTONE, Colo. (AP) — Fifteen coal miners who died in a coal mine blast will be buried this week as a team of experts working deep within a mountain tries to find out why they died.

Officials say they don't know what caused Wednesday's explosion in Mid-Continent Resources Inc.'s Dutch Creek No. 1 Mine. If methane was to blame, as some have speculated, authorities want to know why the miners' methane detectors didn't warn them of the danger.

"We just don't know the answers yet," said John Barton, district coal mine manager for the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration. "It's going to take us at least a week or 10 days to finish the on-site investigation. We have to look at every scrap of metal down there."

Pitkin County Coroner Dan Davis has finished autopsies on the miners' bodies, but did not make public his findings.

Barton said that when his search party found the first group of six bodies, "they were not badly charred, dismembered or disfigured." He said their clothes were intact, and they did not appear to have moved after the blast. That led him to believe they died from concussion rather than asphyxiation or fire, Barton said.

As to the cause of the explosion, he speculated, "it was probably mostly methane gas and very little or no coal dust."

Barton said a team of experts begin today to try to piece together the sequence of events that began last Wednesday just after 4 p.m. Their formal report would not be available for as long as 60 days, he said.

As the federal team gathered here, memorial services for the 15 dead miners were held Sunday. A bearded miner, his words catching in his throat and tears welling in his eyes, led 1,500 people in prayer.

"It is hard to find words of comfort," said the miner, Mike Rogers.

The mine where the men died is a 7,200-foot-long tunnel sloping at a pitch of 13 degrees into a rocky outcropping called Huntsman's Ridge, about 10 miles west of here up a narrow, winding road.

On Wednesday, there was an explosion in one of the deepest areas of the mine. It traveled up the tunnel 2,000 feet, burning four miners who tried to escape the searing heat in crevices in the mine wall.

Rescue workers removed the four injured miners within hours, but it was not until early Friday — about 38 hours later — that word came that all 15 miners trapped in the lower tunnel were dead. The search went painfully slow as rescuers were forced to rebuild the mine's demolished ventilation system as they went.

Mid-Continent environmental coordinator Doug Bowman has speculated that the 15 dead miners may have encountered a pocket of methane that exploded suddenly from a weak spot in the mine wall.

Methane is the traditional enemy of soft-coal miners, and Dutch Creek No. 1 has been described by Mid-Continent as "one of the gassier mines."

To guard against explosions, miners constantly check methane levels with handheld instruments and automatic cutoff devices on their mining machine.

Some miners at Dutch Creek, who demanded anonymity, have contended there has been tampering with methane-detecting equipment at the mine in the past. Redstone Workers Association president Charles Corey said some miners turn down their methanometers to increase work time.

But Mid-Continent and federal Mine Safety and Health officials have said investigations have failed to support those claims.

Riots continue in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British army vehicle killed two youths during the fifth night of rioting in Londonderry, and youths in Belfast stoned a police station as Roman Catholics observed the 65th anniversary of the Easter Uprising in Dublin against British rule.

Trouble was also reported in at least six other towns.

Rioting broke out again Sunday night in Londonderry, the province's second largest city, after a Roman Catholic march to the city cemetery commemorating the 1916 rebellion. Young people hurling gasoline bombs and rocks fought running battles with the police. Three policemen were slightly injured, and four of the rioters were arrested.

The deaths occurred after British troops fired four warning shots over the heads of about 100 stone-throwing youths in a Catholic district. Eyewitnesses claimed an army Land-Rover came over a hill at about 50 miles an hour shortly after the shots and plowed into the crowd.

Two Catholic youths, James English, 19, and James Brown, 18, were rushed to a hospital and declared dead on arrival.

British authorities said the deaths were accidental, and the army said it would make a full investigation.

The nine hours of rioting that fizzled out in the early morning hours was described by authorities as the worst the city had seen in several years. Bands of youths hurled gasoline bombs at the police, set a building on fire and firebombed a civilian car.

Police reported the city was "quiet but tense" today.

All police leave was canceled Sunday as tens of thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the Irish Republic's green and orange flag at eight cities and towns throughout Northern Ireland.

Police said about 100 youths in Belfast stoned a police station in a Catholic district of West Belfast shortly after a two-hour rally at a cemetery in the same district.

The rally drew about 5,000 people and was the largest in the province. Speakers warned of trouble if jailed IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands dies.

Three pro-IRA politicians from the Irish Republic were smuggled into Maze Prison today in a bid to persuade Sands, 27, to end his fast. Troops and police ringed the sprawling prison complex, but threatened demonstrations by Protestants opposed to the visit did not materialize.

Sands began his fast "to the death" March 1. An earlier hunger strike by 34 convicted guerrillas, including four women, was abandoned last December when one of the protest leaders was close to death after 53 days. The British refuse to concede to the guerrillas' demands.

The overwhelmingly Roman Catholic IRA and its splinter groups are fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the Protestant-dominated province with the Irish Republic, which is 97 percent Catholic.

Sands, who was jailed for 14 years in 1976 after a gunbattle with police but elected to the British Parliament earlier this month, was given the last rites by a Catholic priest Saturday.

The Northern Ireland Office, the government department that governs the province, reported today that Sands' condition was deteriorating fast.

"He is extremely weak and getting worse," a spokesman said. "His condition will soon be critical."

Sands mother, Rosaleen Sands, saw him Sunday and said he is "losing consciousness." She added that his speech is slurred and he is having difficulty keeping down water, his only sustenance throughout his hunger strike.

The government also announced that Dolours Price, a 29-year-old IRA terrorist who is serving a life sentence for car bombings in London in 1972, has been moved from Armagh Prison to a Belfast hospital.

A spokesman said she became ill last week. The diagnosis was not disclosed, but she is believed suffering from anorexia nervosa, a nervous disease whose victims cannot eat. Her sister Marion, who was convicted with her and eight others, developed the disease last year and was released from prison. She is still under medical supervision.

Stockman thrives on budget talk

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Reporter Telegram political writer Lana Cunningham recently spent several days in Washington interviewing government officials and attending a briefing on the economic program. This article concerns David Stockman's assessment of the budget.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Political Writer

WASHINGTON — He's dubbed the whiz kid. The architect. The genius. He almost gallops into the room. Plops onto the edge of a chair and waits impatiently the half-minute for his turn to speak.

David Alan Stockman, 34, the youngest member of Ronald Reagan's cabinet and the primary designer of the controversial economic package, has the shortest biography in the packet of material on administration officials.

Despite the graying hair, Stockman's face is devoid of wrinkles. Tall, slender man, he speaks swiftly, mentions figures and calculations as easily as someone talks of yesterday's lunch, and smiles seldom. Almost never is there a wide grin across his face, but something more like a Mona Lisa half-smile.

He jumps up and plunges into an explanation of Reagan's "Economic Recovery Program." A talk he has given hundreds of times in only two months since it was announced.

Ready to defend Reagan's economic program on all attacks. Particularly the one by Rep. Jim Jones of Oklahoma a few days prior to the talk. David Stockman focused on the advantages of the four-point program before a group of 60 sunbelt area reporters.

Although he listed all four points, Stockman concentrated his battle maneuvers on defending what he knows best — budget cuts. The ideas didn't pop into his head this year, according to one Washington reporter. He tried pushing the idea for these cuts the four years he served as a congressman. But the house wasn't ready to listen then.

The budget cuts for fiscal year 1982 would amount to $8.6 billion, he states. Not increasing any of the cuts in succeeding years, this would translate into $67.2 billion in 1983 and $82.2 in 1984, he said.

Totaled, these cuts add up to $200 billion worth of savings over the next three years. The budget cuts for fiscal year 1982 would amount to $48.6 billion, he states. Not increasing any of the cuts in succeeding years, this would translate into $67.2 billion in 1983 and $82.2 billion in 1984, he said.

Totaled, these cuts add up to $200 billion worth of savings over the next three years, he said.

He criticized the last administration, claiming it allowed government to grow at 12 percent a year. When the books were closed on Oct. 1, 1979 the budget reporting spending totaling $493 billion. In January 1981, the plan for 1982 called for 1740 billion in spending. This is one-fourth of a trillion increase in size and scope. It is totally inflationary.

Despite the president's hoped-for cuts in the budget, Stockman explained that Reagan is still allowing for 140 billion increase in spending. We're only trying to hold down the budget growth to 6 percent. That's only what the country can handle. "Normally, he added, most people would think that if spending is increasing that taxes should increase. But he believes a tax increase would have a detrimental effect on the credit market." Rather, a tax cut would stimulate the economy.

However, when it was mentioned that he had agreed to a one-year tax cut instead of the planned three, Stockman vehemently denied the statement.

He supported the planned cuts in social programs, saying that "they are across the board. We cut dairy subsidies by $1 billion. We're cutting synfuels subsidies by $3.4 billion." He said in citing examples.

And instead of cutting deeply into those social programs, which the administration refers to as "Safety Net" programs, the economic plan calls for increasing it, ac-ording to Stockman, while those programs comprise 37 percent of the current budget, they will be increased to 41 percent of the total pie by 1984.

A four-year congressman before his appointment as director of the office of management and budget last winter, Stockman pointed to complaints he's heard that the budget cuts "play favorites" with certain sections of the country.

"As the debate gathers steam, the theme develops that the program is biased against the Northeast and upper midwest, saying we used the strategy of splitting the sunbelt from the frostbelt."

Instead of simply saying those criticisms are incorrect, Stockman took the indirect route to give his answer.

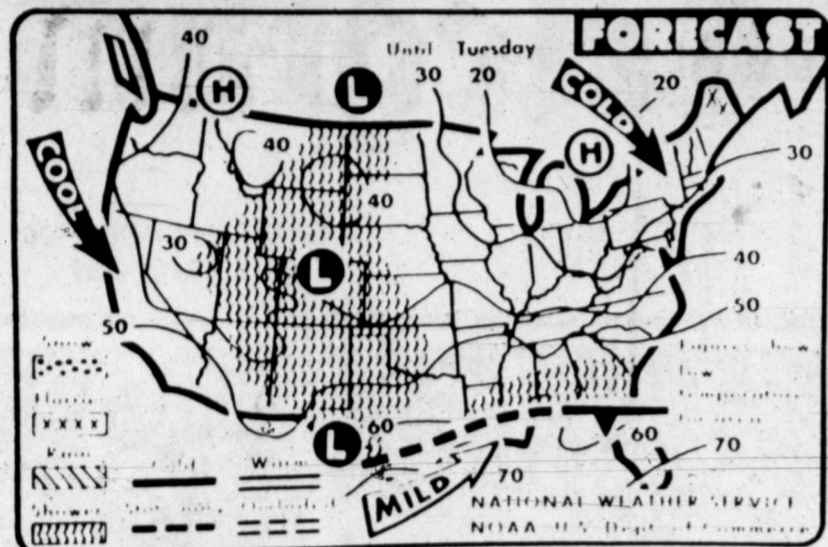

"We've done a thorough analysis of these cuts. For the country as a whole, it will be $166 per capita in reductions. The northeast will be $170 per person; the midwest, $158; the south, $170; and the west, $168 per person."

(Sung to the tune of Sugar in the Morning.)

Debit cards alternate cash, credit

LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer A growing number of Americans are paying for their purchases with a new kind of money called the debit card — a sort of "plastic check" which provides an alternative to cash or credit. The most widespread debit cards are the ones from Visa and MasterCard. They are used in conjunction with computer terminals. When a customer makes a purchase and pays for it with a debit card, the money is automatically transferred from his or her bank account to the merchant's. Charges for the service vary from bank to bank.

purchases, but they do not want to carry large amounts of cash or face the inconvenience that sometimes accompanies the use of checks. As of the end of last year, Ms. Chaddick said, there were 1.4 million holders of Visa debit cards issued by 193 banks. She said the company expects the number of issuers to double this year and estimates that volume will triple. The MasterCard II — the debit card companion to the MasterCard credit card — made its appearance late last year. A spokesman for MasterCard said 42 financial institutions now issuing the debit card and added, "They're piling up so fast that it's hard to keep an accurate count."

bounds," it is too early to measure reaction from the general public. Debit cards have, however, been a success with depositors at the Wilmington (Del.) Savings Fund Society. The society started offering debit cards — unconnected with either Visa or MasterCard — late in 1972. Customers who use the cards for purchases at participating merchants get a bonus; 2 percent of the value of their purchases is deposited in their savings account each month. If, for example, you buy $500 worth of goods or services using your debit card, $10 will be deposited in your savings account at the end of the month.

much so," said Robinson. He said the number of transactions has grown by 75 percent a year since 1975. Robinson added, however, that he was watching the Visa and MasterCard debit cards with interest to see whether they would be successful without the incentive of the savings bonus. One possible drawback to the debit cards for consumers is the loss of the "float" that occurs when you make a purchase, write a check, then run to the bank the next day to make a deposit. The computer terminals have the potential for instantaneous deductions, although in practice there is still a time lag in most cases.

Gospel singers taken hostage, freed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nine gospel singers taken hostage at a state prison by two knife-wielding prison inmates say the incident, while frightening, makes them all the more determined to preach to prisoners. "That's what we're here to do, to bring Jesus to them," Mike Capello said after he, eight other "Parable Players" and prison chaplain Al Fry, were released unharmed. Capello said the two captors were threatening at first, then ended up praying and singing with the troupe, showing remorse and even "a softness."

fashioned knives, the two inmates were taken to the Medium Security Prison nearby for requested medical and psychiatric evaluations, Robinson said. He said no charges had been filed against the two. It was the fifth time in nine months that hostages have been taken at the prison. No one was injured in any of the cases. Medium Superintendent John Slansky, who conducted the negotiations, said a review of prison security would be made to determine whether some changes are needed to prevent future incidents. About a dozen other inmates from the prison's 335-inmate population were in an education room when the two inmates took over as the troupe was completing its program, Robinson said. However, he said the other inmates left the room. No guards were present.

Miss Caine said the "Parable Players" has been putting on religious shows every month or so at the prison. Her father, Carl Caine, also taken hostage, added that the incident "makes us even more determined to come out here." "All's well that ends well," said Melbourne Motley, 75, who with James and Carolyn Walsh, two other members of the Reno-based troupe, were released about 30 minutes after the incident started at 2:15 p.m. PST. Dan Kelley of Loyalton, Calif., was freed about two hours later.

The others — Caine, his daughter and his wife, Nancy; Fry, Don Robb Jr. and Capello — were let go around 7:15 p.m. The prison is on the outskirts of Carson City, Nevada's capital, which has a population of 38,000.

Texas legal services illegally advising aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legal services groups in Dallas, Fort Worth, East Texas and Hereford have been violating federal law by representing illegal aliens, Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas has charged. He wrote Milton Socolar, acting U.S. comptroller general, last month asking for an investigation. Collins' office was informed late this past week that the General Accounting Office has begun an investigation. The Republican congressman told GAO he had learned of active representation of illegal aliens by: — Al Campos and Barbara Belejak, employees of the Dallas Legal Services Foundation, in matters involving the Immigration and Naturalization Service; — Yolanda Ayala, an attorney with West Texas Legal Services of Fort Worth; — Edward Juddenharm of Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., in a suit against law enforcement officers in Hereford and Deaf Smith County; and — East Texas Legal Services, Inc., particularly through its participation in a recent suit involving the right of children of aliens to attend Texas public schools. "These actions are in direct violation of federal law, and this waste of public funds must be stopped. While the entire federal government is trying to cut back, expenditures in violation of the law cannot be tolerated," Collins said. It became illegal last Oct. 1, the beginning of the 1981 fiscal year, for legal aid groups to represent illegal aliens. Inserted in the appropriations bill for the Legal Services Corporation was the following: "Provided further, that none of the funds appropriated . . . may be used to carry out any activities for or on behalf of any individual who is known to be an alien in the United States in violation of the Immigration and Nationality Act or any other law, convention or treaty of the United States relating to the immigration, exclusion, deportation or expulsion of aliens." Collins said immigration officials in Texas called him about the apparent irregularity, wondering if the legal aid groups had found a loophole in the law. Dallas Legal Services Foundation receives 100 percent of its operating funds from the federal government, Collins said.

The Legal Services Corporation, which provides free legal representation for those unable to afford it, has been one of the targets of President Reagan's spending cuts in his proposed new budget. "Legal Services has insisted the administration's proposed budget cuts for them are not feasible because there is nowhere to cut back," Collins said. "If they have used their federal funds in direct violation of the federal law to represent illegal aliens, there is obviously some fat in their budget that is not necessary to represent the poor." Former Texas Congressman Bob Eckhardt will host a reception for Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona. Eckhardt, 57, served in the Texas House of Representatives from 1958 to 1966, then represented northeast Harris County in Congress from 1967 until a few months ago, when he lost by a razor-thin margin in his bid for a seventh 2-year term in Washington. Does the reception mean Eckhardt is considering a return to politics? "No, I'm just trying to pay my debts," Eckhardt said. The 2-hour reception on April 30 in Washington will be open to $10 contributors and $50 sponsors. Rep. Jack Fields, the Republican attorney who ousted Eckhardt, has announced the results of a questionnaire he sent out. It went to residents of his district — northeast Houston, the area around the Houston Ship Channel, north Pasadena and the towns of Baytown, Deer Park, Galena Park, La Porte, Channelview, Jacinto City and Humble, his hometown. The answers indicate his constituents generally back Reagan's economic recovery plan, favor less government regulation and want a strong military, Fields said. More than 95 percent said they go along with the president's freeze on hiring new federal employees; more than 93 percent agree foreign aid should be slashed; more than 70 percent oppose government-paid abortions for the poor, and 68 percent said both the departments of energy and education should be eliminated. Asked if they want a constitutional amendment to permit voluntary prayers in school, 91 percent said yes.

Stockman prefers to talk budget all through day

(Continued from Page 1A) Budget in the morning. Budget in the evening. Budget at supper time. All we talk is budget. When will the turn be mine. First it's 'Face the Nation.' And then it's 'Meet the Press.' That little weasel Stockman, I wish they'd heed him less. Touching briefly on the other parts of Reagan's economic recovery program in addition to the budget and tax cuts, Stockman said it involves relieving the burden of government regulation and achieving and maintaining a stable monetary policy. A primary advantage of the president's proposal, said Stockman, is that the states will be given more leverage to use the tools of management flexibility. They can control the utilization of programs. For example, let the Medicaid patients decide which doctor or hospital to use. He denied reports that people will be thrown off Medicaid. Instead, he said, "Anyone who needs services and is from a needy household can't be denied those services." Forcing the federal reserve board to design a stable monetary policy and stick with it isn't easy, he noted. Pressure to achieve that will have to come from the executive office, not Congress. In asking a question during a briefing one reported noted a woman in his town had called Stockman "Meaner than a junkyard dog." The Director's reaction was a slight smile before asking for another question. Tuesday: Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan.

Shimon Peres dogged by former allies in Israeli election

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — After trying for seven years to be prime minister and with victory now within range, Shimon Peres is threatened by two formidable opponents who should have been his allies.

Moshe Dayan, once his mentor and close friend, is making an independent run in Israel's June 30 election and this could seriously erode Peres' power base.

Yitzhak Rabin, prime minister until a money scandal toppled him in 1977, belongs to the same political party as Peres, the Labor Party. But Rabin refuses to accept his downfall, harbors a deep dislike for Peres and is waging a debilitating guerrilla war against him.

Peres' image is also a problem for him. To his friends he is a thoughtful, kindly man, intellectually superior to most Israeli politicians but massively insecure. To his enemies he is slippery, untrustworthy and insincere.

Until recently it was taken for granted that Peres and the Labor Party would sweep out Prime Minister Menachem Begin and the Likud government that gave Israel triple-digit inflation for two years in a row.

But Labor's margin in the opinion polls has slowly narrowed. In one poll it has dropped from 60-20 to 46-33. The election campaign does not open officially until after the eight-day Passover holiday ends April 26, but already the Labor Party "is losing altitude," says pollster Ziona Peled.

Likud has boosted its popularity with extravagant tax cuts. It impressed voters April 7 by retaining its strength in elections to the Histadrut, Israel's labor federation, despite predictions of a debacle.

The polls show a large body of undecided voters, and it is they who have tempted Dayan out of retirement. The 65-year-old former defense and foreign minister is still popular, and some polls predict a kingmaking 11 seats for him in the 120-seat Knesset, the Israeli parliament.

Dayan and Peres once were allies against the Old Guard of Israeli politics. In 1965 they went down together into the political wilderness. Six months later, Peres got his first Cabinet post because Dayan forced Prime Minister Golda Meir to overcome her dislike of the polished young technocrat and take him into her government.

Even today, when Dayan looks like a spoiler who could cost Peres the prime minister's job, Peres loyally refuses to attack his old friend.

As for Rabin, "his hatred of Peres is irrational and the only cure for this hatred is Peres' defeat," wrote Maati Golan in the newspaper Haaretz. Rabin's constant criticism of Peres makes a mockery of the Labor Party's slogan, "Together we shall overcome." Rabin "is Likud's greatest electoral asset," Golan commented.

The Rabin-Peres feud sometimes allows the Likud to keep confidently silent on what would otherwise be important campaign issues. For instance, when Peres recently announced the "shadow" Cabinet he would appoint if elected, Rabin protested and said he would not be bound by Peres' choices. The Likud's reaction went largely unnoticed.

But Peres' "personality and leadership" are his biggest problem, writes Yishayah Ben-Porath, a writer sympathetic to him. Ben-Porath faults him for failing to offer the public a credible economic expert to tackle inflation, for trying to espouse conflicting foreign policies and for taking too long to produce his shadow Cabinet. With his sleekly coiffed hair, buttoned-down look and advertising-agency advisers, Peres lacks the common touch characteristic of two of his great Labor predecessors, Mrs. Meir and David Ben-Gurion, Israel's first prime minister. And he has neither Dayan's charisma nor Rabin's rough, old-soldier flavor.

"I would wholeheartedly recommend him for the premiership of Norway or Switzerland where they don't need a leader who will change the course of history," sneers leftist commentator Amos Keinan.

Rabin defeated Peres twice for the post of party leader. When Peres finally won it, he lost the 1977 election to Begin. This, in the view of Haaretz columnist Amnon Dankner, created a sort of folk belief that the 57-year-old Peres never will be prime minister, that he is an eternal loser "who gets to the tap but does not drink."

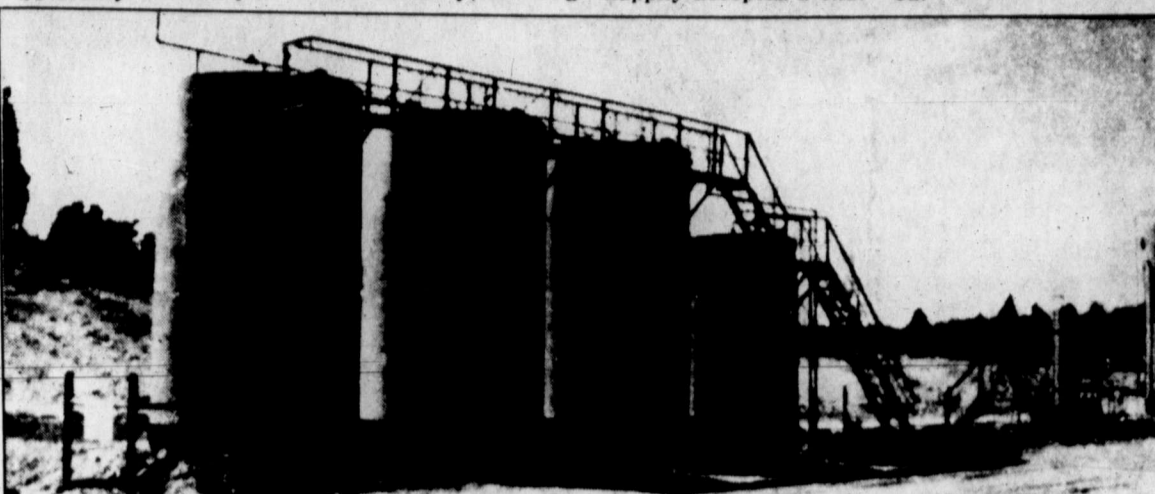

This belief, Dankner claims, "radiates at him and he radiates back his insecurity which is then read as untrustworthiness and radiates back at him and so on, like an infinity of mirrors." On the other hand

Begin, who by most accounts was supposed to be sickly and despondent, looked in fine fettle on a half-hour TV interview recently, exuding good humor and confidence in his chances. He happily accepted a chal-

Tough new laws stem illegal immigrant flow from Chinese mainland

HONG KONG (AP) — Cold and starving, a 21-year-old commune worker from China sneaked into town aboard a rickety boat, hoping to find refuge with her relatives. Instead of a joyful welcome, she was given only a hot meal and commands to get out.

A skilled mechanic from Canton took a different route, swimming through shark-infested waters to reach this British colony, his dangerous journey made bearable by expectations of plentiful work and good money.

Desperate and weary after wandering the city for days without finding anyone willing to employ him, he finally walked up to a police officer and asked to be sent back to China.

Both were victims of Hong Kong's tough new immigration laws designed to curb the flow of illegal immigrants from the Chinese mainland.

Before the laws were introduced late last year, any Chinese who managed to reach the colony's urban areas were allowed to remain here.

This was dubbed the "touch base" policy—meaning that those illegal immigrants lucky enough to evade capture near the border and to reach the city proper were granted the right to live in Hong Kong.

But the touch base regulation was scrapped following a visit by the governor of Hong Kong, Sir Murray Maclehoze, to the neighboring Chinese province of Guangdong last October. The governor told the Chinese authorities that the influx had to be halted and that all Chinese entering Hong Kong illegally would be deported regardless of where they were caught.

The Chinese raised no objections and promised to do everything they could to stem the flow.

They have increased troop numbers along the border and Chinese gunboats have not hesitated to fire on boats they believe are smuggling human cargoes into Hong Kong. Illegal migrants who are captured are repatriated to China almost immediately across the land border.

Before the new laws were passed, the Hong Kong government granted a three-day amnesty for Chinese who had entered the colony without permission. More than 7,000 turned up at a round-the-clock registration office for their Hong Kong identity cards, required for employment.

One unexpected development of the amnesty was the surfacing of illegal migrants from India and Pakistan, and Chinese from the nearby Portuguese colony of Macao. Most of these aliens were deported to their countries of origin.

The government has also made it an offense punishable by one year in prison or a fine of the equivalent of $10,000 for an employer to hire anyone without the all important identity card.

The government's "get tough" policy was triggered by the huge flow of Chinese across the border in the last two years. More than 80,000 slipped into Hong Kong in 1979 and some 65,000 last year.

Hong Kong's chief secretary, Sir Jack Cater, said the government's hardline policy was made necessary by the financial burden to Hong Kong of the flood of recent arrivals from China.

The cost of additional social spending to provide for the illegals who arrived here between 1978 and 1980 was almost $800 million in U.S. terms, he said.

The authorities have said they plan to tighten the screws even further on the human tide.

Cater announced that no second amnesty will be given to illegal aliens and that the government will soon introduce new identity cards to eliminate the possibility of people using forged ones.

Although illegal immigration dropped drastically after the new laws were enacted, there are still people in China willing to risk their lives to get here.

Bush says alternatives poor ones

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush said today that Democratic alternatives to President Reagan's tax and budget-cutting program are "only imitations and poor ones at that."

Bush said the adoption of only part of Reagan's plan "will ease some economic problems. But considering the critical shape our economy is in, a partial cure will in the long run prove to be no cure at all."

The vice president's comments came in a speech prepared for delivery at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. A copy of his remarks was released in Washington.

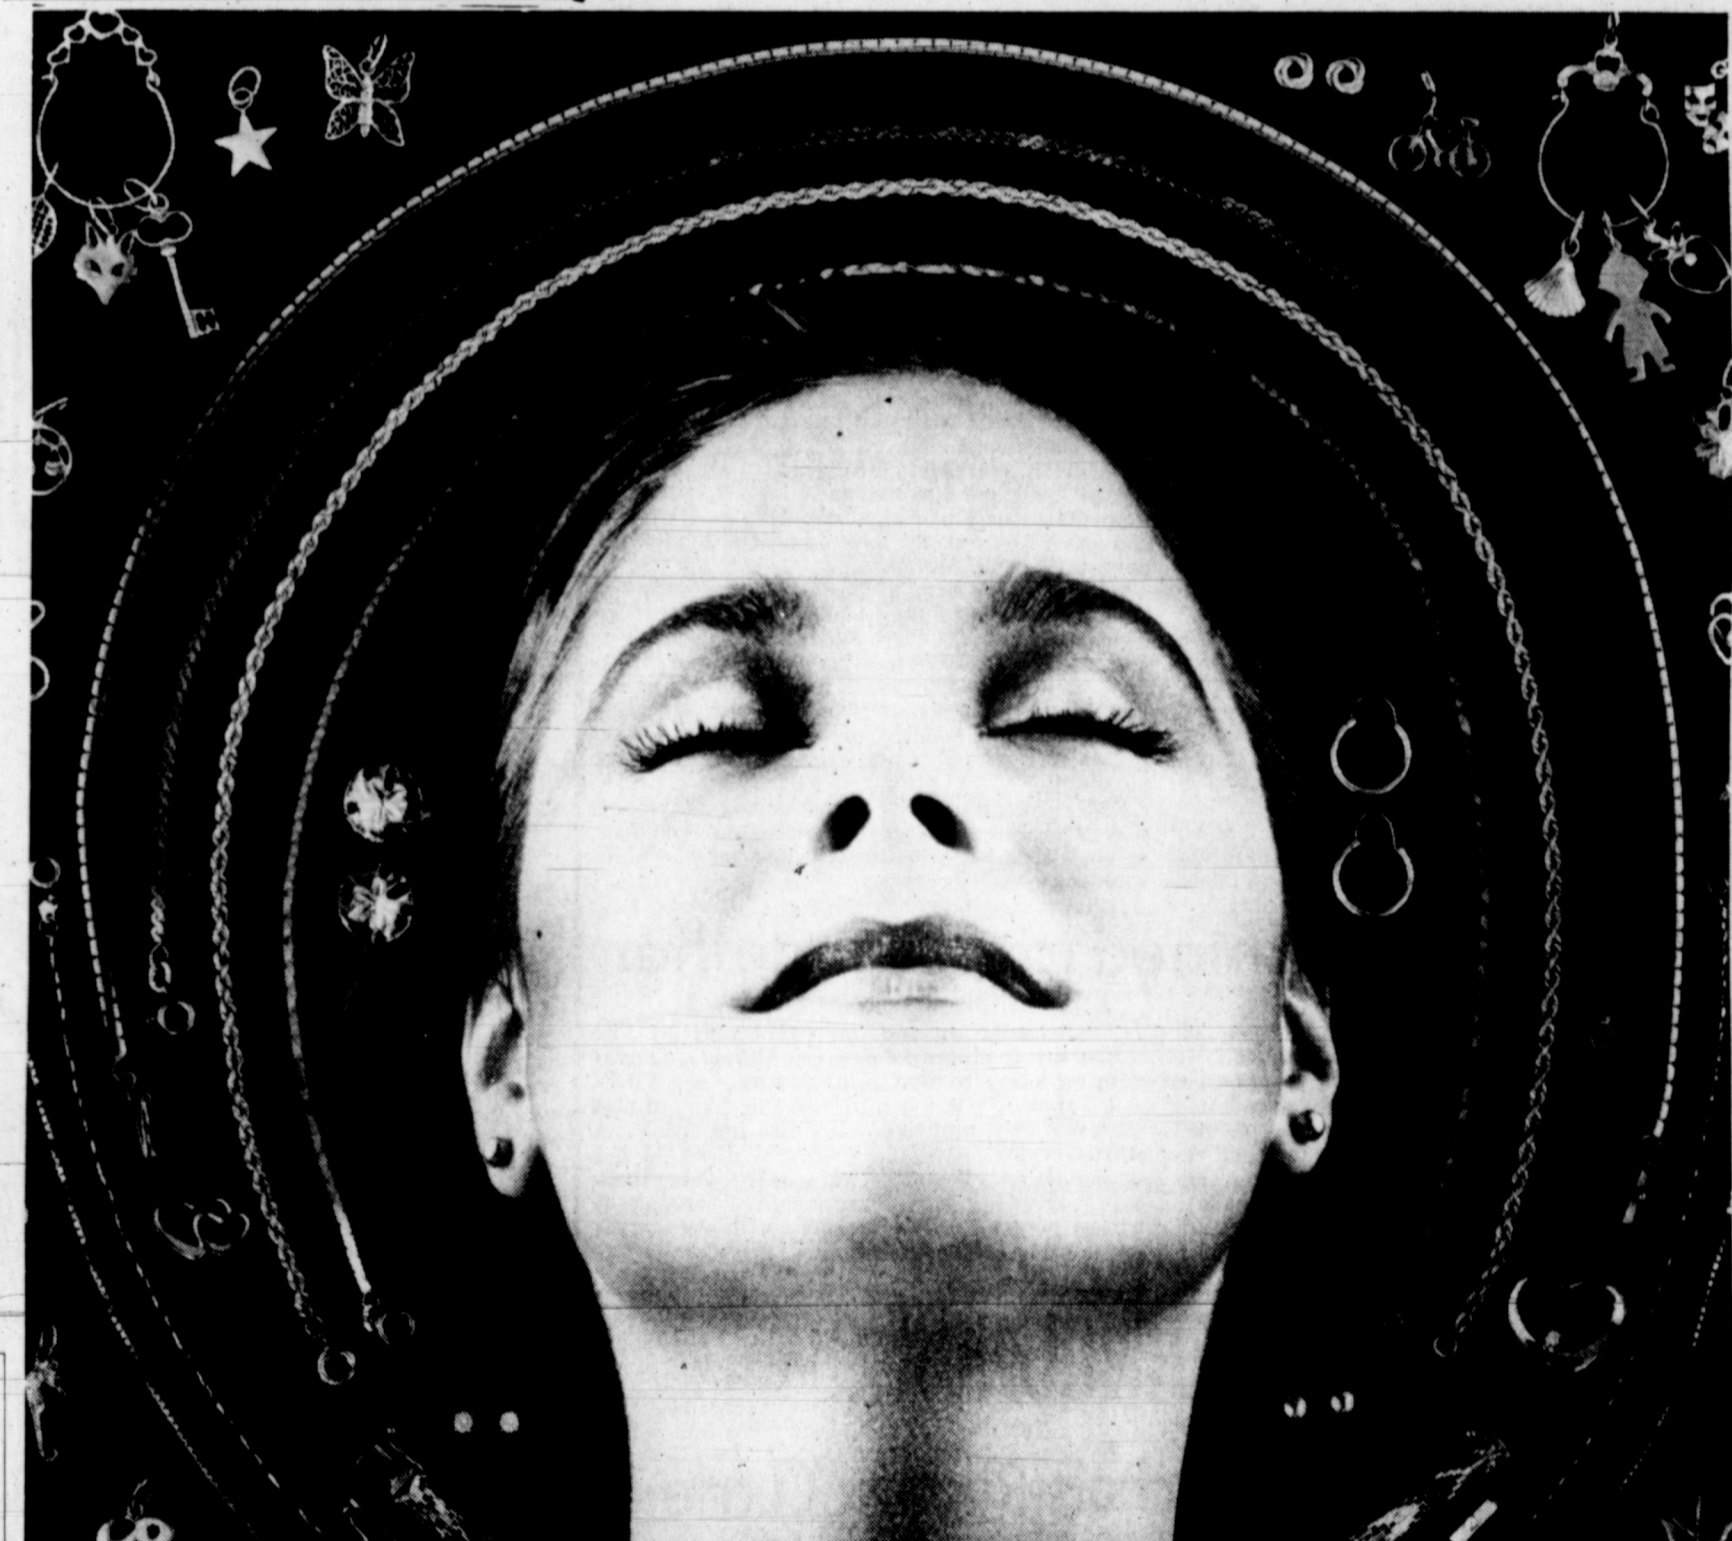

"One of the messages I bring here today," he said, "is that we can't afford to accept these substitutes that water down or otherwise weaken the cure needed for our country's economic recovery."

Los Angeles school board member Richard Ferraro flashes a victory sign as he joins board President Roberta Weintraub and state Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, after a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel allowed a halt to mandatory busing in Los Angeles public schools Saturday. The three-member panel voted 2-1 to overturn a temporary restraining order that had been issued Friday.

Children return to local schools as busing ends in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some 23,000 Los Angeles schoolchildren were going to school where they chose today as mandatory busing came to a halt in the nation's second-largest public school district.

One of the last challenges to the school board's decision to stop forced busing was set aside, at least temporarily, late Sunday as public schools were winding up a 10-day Easter break.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist refused to order the desegregation busing of 23,000 students to continue, although he said his final decision on an appeal by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People would not come at least until the middle of the week.

"There is no trace of doubt at all that this is the end of mandatory busing," a jubilant Los Angeles school board President Roberta Weintraub said as it appeared the 18-year legal battle over desegregating the city's school system finally was drawing to an end.

Officials said parents of 7,300 students forced to board buses to school up to one hour each way accepted a board offer to get out of the mandatory busing program starting today. Parents of the other children being bused decided to continue voluntarily in the program until the current school year ends June 19, they said.

"Seven thousand children will be coming home to their neighborhood schools — I feel very good about it," said state Sen. Alan Robbins, a longtime busing opponent.

The battle over busing began to intensify in 1978 when a state judge ordered busing in grades 4-8 as a way to start integrating the 529,000-pupil school system, even though state officials blamed desegregation problems on housing patterns rather than the intent of the school board.

Busing was expanded to grades 1-9 and 153 schools this year.

The controversy came to a head in 1979, when voters approved an amendment to the California Constitution, allowing busing only in cases of intentional desegregation. The amendment was upheld by the California Supreme Court in March — opening the way for the school board to start dismantling the busing program.

The NAACP appealed to the federal courts, winning a Friday decision by U.S. District Judge A. Wallace Tashima that busing be continued. But the judge was overruled Saturday by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The NAACP filed a 17-page emergency petition with Rehnquist on Sunday, but the U.S. Supreme Court Justice refused to order busing to continue. In 1978 and again last September, Rehnquist declined to interfere in the busing dispute.

Rehnquist, however, said the school board had until Wednesday to submit arguments against the NAACP petition to continue busing before he makes a final ruling on the appeals' court decision. So the possibility remained that Rehnquist could order the mandatory busing plan back into force.

The state Supreme Court also has a motion before it to save busing brought by the American Civil Liberties Union, but it was considered unlikely the state court would reverse its earlier support of the anti-busing amendment.

Despite the mandatory busing plan — which school officials said cost $160 million to administer — 231 elementary and junior high schools in east, central and south Los Angeles have remained nearly 100 percent Hispanic and black.

School officials have acknowledged they may not be able to change that balance because of the dwindling number of white students in city schools — expected to be less than 23 percent this year. More than 100,000 white students left the city's public schools after a 1976 state Supreme Court order for "reasonable and feasible" desegregation measures in Los Angeles made mandatory busing a strong possibility.

Civil rights groups have begun turning their attention to possible desegregation plans that would involve busing between the city and predominantly white suburbs.

Initiative, referendum ready for House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An initiative and referendum proposal that school administrators say could damage public education but backers regard as almost too wishy-washy comes to a vote in the Texas House this week.

"It's not what we would have preferred but it's an acceptable alternative," said Jim Kaster, chief lobbyist for Gov. Bill Clements, an ardent supporter of I&R.

In other legislative action this week, the Senate Finance Committee planned a Monday night session to finish its work on a $26 billion state budget bill. The House Appropriations Committee approved its version of the bill last week.

U.S. Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, House majority leader, speaks to a joint session of the Legislature on Tuesday.

The Senate Economic Development Committee planned a Monday hearing on 10 insurance and 11 banking bills, even though Monday is a holiday for legislators.

The I&R constitutional amendment came up in the House last Thursday but representatives voted to postpone it until this Thursday.

Rep. John Sharp, D-Victoria, the sponsor, claims 93 votes for the proposal and hasn't counted all House members yet. It will take 100 votes to send the measure to the Senate.

The measure would let the voters by-pass the Legislature and pass laws that limit "the gross amount of money the Legislature may appropriate" and reduce or limit the rate of existing taxes.

An initiative could go to the voters only if 10 percent of the voters in each of 190 counties signed a petition.

The Legislature could override a decision of the voters by a two-thirds vote.

Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, who sponsored Clements' original I&R proposal, said he might try to make a few changes in Sharp's measure.

He said the requirement of 10 percent of the voters in 190 counties was excessive and probably should be lowered to 5 percent in 50 counties.

Smith said he could visualize voters using I&R to reduce local property taxes or dedicate state tax revenues to specific purposes.

Last week's delay in the House was exactly what the Texas Association of School Boards and the Texas Association of School Administrators wanted.

They had sent legislators a letter urging them to talk with their local school officials about

I&R before voting.

"Faced with a limit on state spending, local districts would have only two options: to reduce services or raise local property taxes. With the prevailing attitude toward property taxes, it is more likely that educational services would have to be curtailed," the two organizations said. School districts cover an average of 51 percent of budgets with state funds.

The school boards and administrators said I&R "could be used to limit local taxes," thus adding to the state's responsibility for school finance and increasing state control over public schools.

Orphans determined to stay together

MIAMI (AP) — Seventeen-year-old Terence Ross has grown up in a hurry since his mother died a month ago, leaving him and an older sister in charge of a family of seven in Miami's toughest housing project.

He used to get suspended for fighting and missing classes at Northwestern High School, teachers say. Part of the reason, they say, was that the family is so poor, Ross couldn't dress as well as other kids.

"He looked like an outcast, so he acted like an outcast," said school activities director Helen Davis.

Now, she said, he "is a wonderful little guy, helpful and reliable."

Ross also is determined to keep his family together.

"We'll make it," he insisted. "You can't be weak at a time like this."

When 38-year-old Winifred Ross left for the hospital during an asthma attack last month, she assured the children she would be fine.

"The next morning the doctor called me and told me Momma caught pneumonia and died," said Ross.

His older sister, Sylvia, 19, came home from Army duty in Germany to attend their mother's funeral and help care for the children in their apartment in the James E. Scott project in Liberty City.

The family gets $300 a month in welfare. Miss Ross hopes to kick in $250 a month. Ross works three part-time jobs, all for minimum wage.

"I know a lot of people think the children should never be separated, but I don't know who can accept six dependent children," Ms. Davis said.

The youngest child, Maritza, is 9. On March 11, "she woke up and asked me if Momma's coming home today," said Terence. "I told her Momma died and she started crying."

Then there is Wandra, 10, a budding artist whose portrait of her fourth-grade teacher ran on the cover of The Miami Herald's Sunday magazine last year.

Teresa, 12, likes to play the piano and Cedric, 14, is actor. Jeffrey, 15, has built a bicycle from scratch and hopes to do construction work someday.

DEAR ABBY

Michelangelo's ecstasy not full of gaiety

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you stated that Michelangelo was a homosexual. Abby, that was only a rumor, not an established fact! It was started by Pietro Aretino, a columnist and professional blackmailer who had hounded Michelangelo for some free drawings and was ignored. To get back at the artist, Aretino stated that Michelangelo was a homosexual, a rumor that has come down through the ages.

Ask Irving Stone, the author of "The Agony and the Ecstasy." He probably knows more about Michelangelo than anyone living today. Stone spent years researching Michelangelo's life, and had there been any proof of his homosexuality, I'm sure it would not have been omitted from his book. — CLARA STUART

DEAR CLARA: I forwarded your letter to Irving Stone, world renowned historian and biographer, together with my own urgent "Help" message. His prompt reply (in part):

DEAR ABBY: Your correspondent, Clara Stuart, is entirely right, and quite knowledgeable in the bargain.

During the three years that my wife, Jean, and I lived in Italy researching the life of Michelangelo, we conferred in considerable length with all the authorities among the Italian historians, art critics and medical doctors who had made biographical studies of the time. In not one case did we find a scintilla of evidence to support the accusation that Michelangelo was a homosexual!

It is important to note that no one else alive at that time in Florence or Rome, either in correspondence, diaries, journals or published accounts, ever made such accusations against Michelangelo. Nevertheless, because of Aretino, the charge continued to be repeated by published authors who had made no attempt to verify it.

This charge of Aretino troubled me greatly, and I spent endless time trying to track down the truth. As Clara Stuart suggests, had I been able to prove Michelangelo's homosexuality, I would have felt obliged to include it in his life's story. I don't need to assure you, Abby, that I evaded nothing. However, there are still some few people who continue to perpetuate this charge against Michelangelo, but they offer absolutely no proof except the Aretino slander. I do hope that you will find a few lines in your column to quote Clara Stuart, and you may, of course, use anything in this letter that you may want or need for confirmation. Cordially, IRVING STONE.

DEAR ABBY: My wife, Viola, and I disagree. I contend that eating oysters improves one's sexual powers. My beloved Vi claims otherwise. A $10 bill rides on your answer. — RANDY IN-MILWAUKIE, ORE.

DEAR RANDY: That oyster story is an old (fish) wives' tale. Shell out a ten-spot for Vi.

(You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Approximately 330 students will receive $1,000 grants after enrolling in college next fall. About 200 students have been awarded four-year scholarships.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Make a memory scrapbook

DEAR HELOISE:

When my parents celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary, one of the extras we surprised them with was a Memory Scrapbook.

All relatives and friends in attendance were asked to bring old photographs (some even brought old tins), sketched drawings, clippings, poetry, etc.

Also, included in the invitation was a request for them to contribute to the memory book by writing down some of their experiences and memories with my parents.

We suggested some starting lines to get them thinking, such as: "Something I will always remember is..." "Let me tell you about the time that..." "Remember when we..." "I'll never forget the day..." or "It was back in 19??..."

They were given a sheet of paper bordered with an appropriate motif — hearts with my parents' names, a little boy fishing and a little girl engaged in girlish fun — suitable for enclosing in a book. This way, my parents not only had the memory recalled but a record of it in the person's own words and handwriting.

It turned out to be one of the biggest highlights of the celebration, as everyone enjoyed reliving old times. Even the kids got a kick out of Grandma's and Grandpa's antics. — Norma Wade +++

Nothing takes the place of pleasant memories. Thanks for sharing another way of recalling them. — Heloise

MASHING MADNESS

Dear Heloise: Are you tired of mashing hard boiled eggs for egg or potato salad?

Well, here's a hint that I have used for years, and it's so easy:

Just get out your kitchen grater and grate away on any size holes you wish. I prefer the larger side.

So much faster too. — Mrs. Peg Moberg

I'll say! You can grate those eggs in jig time. Did you know you can make a little hand-size grater out of a mayonnaise jar lid for grating small items, like a piece of lemon peel?

Remove the cardboard and then place the lid, top down, on a soft piece of wood and punch several holes in it with an ice pick. The jagged holes made on top of the lid make a dandy little grater.

When it gets dull or rusty, pitch it out and make another one. — Heloise

If you're a hostess who knows the mostest, send your favorite party-giving tip to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but she will use the jim-dandiest hints received in her column.

GARBAGE PICKUP

Dear Heloise: I freeze all our wet garbage — peelings, food scraps — in half gallon milk cartons.

Come garbage day, it's simple to load them into the garbage can. The dogs can't smell 'em, so they leave the can undisturbed.

It also solves the problem of smells and flies in hot weather. — Mary Berge

HANDY WIPE

Dear Heloise: Being fairly short of stature, I have trouble when I wash our pickup truck.

I can't reach the roof, back glass, windshield and hood to get them clean.

Now I simply soak my household cotton string mop in soapy water and use the wooden handle as an extended arm. Very easy and I don't have to strain my back from reaching. — Mrs. Annette Nors

THIS MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE KICKING UP THEIR HEELS... THEY BOTH HAVE NEW FIGURES FROM PAT WALKER'S

Dear Pat Walker's,

I am one of the fortunate to enjoy the benefits of Pat Walker's. I want to take this opportunity to tell others of the enjoyment and satisfaction I received from my program.

Since starting I have lost 26 1/2 lbs. and 30 inches. The pleasure of seeing in the mirror a small, uniformly well developed figure, not an overweight "hippy" one is immeasurable.

My husband's jokingly saying "I'll have to shake the sheets to find you." is just one other plus resulting from the program.

One of the greatest things is to be seen with my daughters, surprise people who even think I lie when I insist we aren't all sisters, we're near the same size and look so alike.

As a result of this program, I feel good and am ready to do anything at any time. Being a "Petite", not a "Stout", is pure pleasure.

At last I enjoy all my outdoor hobbies: swimming, horses, volleyball and lots of others.

Peggy Bowen, El Paso

Dear Pat Walker's,

This is my personal report of one of the most exhilarating and enjoyable experiences of my life.

It seems I've always been overweight, particularly in the hips. I tried diets and various exercises without doing much good.

HALLELUJAH! Things happened. I lost 23 lbs. and 36 inches. I now wear size 7 dress and pants. I can live with and be proud of those figures at the same time. How pleasant it is to have friends find it hard to realize this is a "NEW YOU", to have my husband so very pleased and able to carry me without fear of back injury.

Now I am not self-conscious of my appearance when I am enjoying my hobbies, western dancing, horseback riding and working out-of-doors with flowers. They way I feel now I'm sure I'll be adding other pursuits.

I can never say or be grateful enough for the wonderful, helpful program and staff at Pat Walker's.

Darla Bowen Elder, El Paso

Exercise gets a boost

BALTIMORE (AP) — When heart surgeon Denton A. Cooley was an undergraduate at the University of Texas he was on the varsity basketball team.

But when he arrived at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in 1941, the only place for medical students to play basketball was the tiny gym at a neighborhood church.

Forty years later, Cooley has played a part in remedying the situation by helping to raise funds for the $2.6 million Denton A. Cooley Student Recreation Center at Johns Hopkins. The Cooley Foundation of Houston pledged $750,000 toward the center, which opened recently.

The complex includes a full gymnasium, handball, racquetball and squash courts, a sauna, whirlpool, jogging track and locker rooms.

A good selection

When the Governor's Office of Volunteer Services selected Midlander Bobby Trimble as one of the recipients of this year's Governor's Award for Outstanding Service, it couldn't have selected a more deserving individual.

It's true that there undoubtedly are others throughout the state who deserve the award as much as Trimble. But it's doubtful that any deserve the award more.

Anyone who knows Trimble can recognize his tireless devotion to the Christmas in April program. He became involved with the volunteer housing repair project in September 1973, yet his enthusiasm about the project, its potential and the need for more like it elsewhere in the state and the nation betray his duration with the program; he speaks knowledgeably about CIA, yet excitedly about what it has done and what it will do.

Trimble's devotion to the Christmas in April project is apparent. It is a devotion forged by hours of endless toil in the interest of others. He has given of himself so that other Midlanders might find their lives a little more enjoyable, a little more bearable. He has achieved success in that regard and there are hundreds of Midlanders who can attest to that truth.

Even when the announcement came that he had been selected from more than 370 nominees throughout the state, Trimble, in customary selfless style, pushed aside any thought of self-aggrandizement and spoke only of his pleasure that the project was now getting the attention it deserved and that he hoped the award would serve as the stimulus for the start of similar programs elsewhere.

That's the type of person Bobby Trimble is. He cares about people. He thinks of others first and himself last.

That is the very essence of voluntarism.

Making sense on cents

Penny pinchers, think zinc. It no longer makes sense to make cents out of copper, the Treasury Department says, so a move is under way to produce pennies made mostly of zinc.

The change is being made for reasons of economy, says U.S. Treasurer Angela Marie Buchanan. Pinching zinc instead of copper pennies could save taxpayers up to $50 million a year, she said, because, for one thing, the new coins would cost less to produce.

In an appearance before the House consumer affairs and coinage subcommittee, Buchanan noted that the volatile price of copper could make the current penny exceed its face value.

Furthermore, she said, marketplace shortages develop when copper prices rise. This is because speculators hoard pennies in hope of earning a profit.

Buchanan said the Treasury Department plans to change the composition of all new 1-cent pennies to 97.6 percent zinc and 2.4 percent copper by the fall of 1982. Pennies now are 95 percent copper and 5 percent zinc.

For those worried about a penny identity crisis, it should be pointed out that the new coin will have a thin copper coating. Now why didn't they think of something like that for the quarter-sized Susan B. Anthony dollar?

INSIDE REPORT:

'High noon' approaching for budgets, conservative demos

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Passing out 50,000 copies of a Washington newspaper editorial on the streets of Tulsa, Okla., April 10, Republican operatives began the battle for Ronald Reagan's budget that will be the first decisive test of the 97th Congress.

The Washington Star lead editorial the previous day, sarcastically titled "Jim Jones for President?" criticized Rep. James R. Jones, chairman of the House Budget Committee, for presuming too much in presenting an alternative budget to Ronald Reagan's. The Republican congressional campaign committee hastened to spread the word in Rep. Jones' conservative Tulsa district, plotting to cut him down.

Whatever impact this might have on Jones' 1982 re-election campaign, it certainly will not soften his opposition to the Reagan budget. Rather, the concerted campaign against Jones by Republicans and right-wing operatives is intended to frighten conservative Democrats and make them support Reagan's budget in the floor vote early next month following the current Easter recess.

The House will be choosing between rival budgets put forth by Reagan and Jones in a high noon gunfight that will shape the Reagan administration's first two years. While the budget merely sets upper limits on spending and tax cutting, the battle is a vote of confidence or no confidence in the Reagan economic plan, certain to have repercussions on the tax cut bill. Jimmy Jones is central to this.

Evans

Novak

While Democratic leaders babbled aimlessly about a response to Reaganism, Jones acted. His budget is a political masterpiece. Wrongly styled more conservative than Reagan's because of smaller projected deficits, it in fact cuts defense, boosts social welfare and savages Reagan's tax plans.

As such, Jones' alternative looks a little as though it emerged from the hip pocket of his old boss, Lyndon B. Johnson, who as Senate majority leader gave a little here, a little there for all kinds of Democrats, enveloping the whole scene in soft lights and draperies. Whereas two months ago Jones was thought by many Democrats too conservative to be a future speaker, now a few important liberal activists tout him as presidential timber.

Even if all Republicans support the president on the budget resolution, he will still need at least 26 votes. Their primary source is the 44-member Conservative Democratic Forum (CDF) — the "Redneck Caucus" — whose members long have regarded Jones (with his 33 percent liberal voting record) as a kindred soul.

WHAT D'YA MEAN - SCRUBBING THE MISSION? CHARLEY REESE

Illustrated by L.A. Times Syndicate

Arabs' hatred of Israel illustrated for Al Haig

Secretary of State Alexander Haig went to the Middle East expecting to sell the Arabs on the idea that the Soviet Union is their number one enemy. He found out, however, that the Arabs consider Israel their number one enemy.

I hope this experience will educate Mr. Haig as to the craziness and worthlessness of the Arabs as allies. The Arab mind is stuck somewhere back in the Middle Ages.

The notion that Israel, with three million people, is a threat to the Arabs, with 135 million people, is absurd on its face. True, Israel has managed to defeat the Arab armies so far each time they have attacked, but these have all been short wars, usually terminated by a cease fire. Furthermore, the Israelis have paid a terrible price for each victory.

The truth is and the Arabs know it that Israel cannot survive a long war of attrition or even too many more short wars. The truth is that Israel does not have the manpower to occupy even Jordan even if it were inclined to invade which it is not. The truth is, and the Arabs know it, that Israel is not expansionist at all, but is merely trying to cling to its tiny chip of a country on the edge of the mammoth Islamic world.

Why then are the Arabs so hostile? Very simple. They don't like Jews. Islamic propaganda notwithstanding, Islam teaches that the Jews (and all other non-Moslems) are second class subhumans unfit to rule anyone.

Charley Reese

but most especially a Moslem. What Arabs really do not like about Israel is that it exists in a part of the world they consider belongs to Islam. This is as true of the Saudis and Jordanians as it is of the PLO. The Arab goal is the extinction of the Jewish state.

That these Arabs, in this late decade of the 20th Century, faced with the real threat of the Soviet Union, should be willing to turn the entire world upside down because of a silly religion prejudice only proves that billion of petrodollars haven't made a dent in their backward, medieval brains.

Of course what can you expect from people who still murder their daughters if they "dishonor" the family, mutilate the corpses of fallen soldiers, rape male prisoners of war, parade around with the heads of dead Israeli women on poles, shoot babies and bash five-year-olds in the head with rifle butts?

Modern Arab culture is as barren and savage as the land. Mr. Haig ought to bear in mind that Lawrence of Arabia, who had to bribe the Arabs with British gold to revolt against the Turks, said in one of his more candid moments: "It's very difficult to form a friendship with an Arab and if you do, it won't last and if it does, it won't be worth much."

The United States should realize that except for the oil under their feet the Arabs are as worthless as wings on a whale. They are not reliable allies. No Arab leader trusts another Arab leader. Even when they are united in their hatred of Israel they cannot refrain from stabbing each other in the back. Only a fool or an American politician would even consider an alliance with them.

The United States is not dependent on Persian Gulf oil. Western Europe and Japan are. We would be wise to repeal the absurd Carter Doctrine of protecting the Persian Gulf and hand that job to the Europeans and Japanese before those turbaned idiots, and their oil company public relations men, embroil us in World War III.

Hopefully, the Arabs will soon run out of oil and once more return to the obscurity they deserve.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

The National Conservative Political Action Committee is mounting a fierce campaign to attack those members of Congress who voted against Reagan's economic program. The hit list also includes some Democrats.

Three conservative Republican senators, Armstrong, Symms and Grassley, voted against Reagan. The three have been placed in isolation for psychological tests at the Kemp-Roth Laffer Curve Detention Center.

The Center has a relaxed atmosphere. After morning calisthenics to correct a knee-jerk, there is breakfast, followed by slides and lectures at Voodoo House on the virtues of a three-year tax cut.

The Detention Center was set up for the purpose of getting those Republicans who have had a lapse in faith back in line. Eventually, they will even be welcomed back at the White House but they'll only get the black jelly beans.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, April 20, 1981, the 110th day of 1981. There are 255 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 20, 1775, the siege of Boston began in the American Revolution.

On this date: In 1662, Connecticut was granted a royal charter extending to the Pacific Ocean.

In 1934, Shirley Temple's film career was launched with the release of "Stand Up and Cheer."

In 1970, President Richard Nixon announced the withdrawal of 150,000 U.S. military personnel from South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: The Supreme Court unanimously upheld the constitutionality of busing as a means of desegregating schools.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Anti-U.S. interests boosting guerrillas

WASHINGTON — The long line of Land Rovers pulled up at the rim of a natural amphitheater formed by huge drifts of sand. The scores of visiting dignitaries stepped out of the vehicles, dusted themselves off and stared in disbelief at the spectacle spread out below them.

In the desolate wastes of the Sahara, without a tree or manmade structure visible for miles, the military display arranged by the Polisario guerrillas seemed unreal, like a scene from an old Alexander Korda movie. But the "props" were unmistakably, grimly real.

The occasion for the theatrical production was the fifth anniversary of the Polisario's declaration of independence; they had proclaimed the Western Sahara to be an independent nation. In celebration, the guerrillas were now showing off the booty they had won in their hit-and-run war with Morocco.

On either side of the desert arena were long lines of captured Moroccan tanks, jeeps and troop carriers. In the center was a gruesome display — hundreds of identity cards taken from dead Moroccan soldiers. And at the far end stood 400 miserable-looking prisoners of war, squinting uncomfortably into the windblown sand.

My associate Peter Grant was there. He has spent a month covering the little-known war between troops of Morocco's King Hassan and the rebel forces of the Polisario's Saharan Arab Republic. Though the guerrillas have uncontested control of the largely worthless desert that constitutes most of the former Spanish colony, Morocco occupies the few population centers and the Western Sahara's rich phosphate mines.

Grant reports that the three-day independence celebration was a diplomatic success. Delegations showed up from most of the 45 nations that have recognized the guerrilla regime.

But it was also evident that the Polisario's support is heavily anti-American in orientation and that radical political ideology is being pushed on the rebels by such allies as Libya, which is the desert tribesmen's biggest financial backer, and Cuba, which provides medical and military aid.

Large delegations at the festivities came from Iran, Nicaragua, Mozambique and Ethiopia, as well as Palestinian groups and communist parties of several Western nations. Though the Soviet Union doesn't recognize the Saharan Arab Republic, presumably because it needs Moroccan phosphates, a camera crew from Soviet television was on the scene.

Grant spoke to many of the delegation members and concluded that several of the nations supporting the Polisario are doing so because they oppose Hassan's pro-Western regime, not from any dedication to Saharan independence as such.

Iran, for example, recognized the republic only after Hassan allowed the late shah to stop in Morocco after he was overthrown. And a West German communist candidly admitted that he is far more interested in destabilizing the West than in furthering self-determination for the Sahraoui tribesmen.

Morocco has long complained that the United States doesn't seem to understand that the Saharan war is part of the East-West struggle. The Moroccan don't see why the United States doesn't provide them with the weapons they need to crush the Polisario.

During lunch with Lt. Col. Louagli Mustapha of the Moroccan Royal Army, Grant learned how bitter the Moroccans are. Over a steaming plate of couscous in the officers' mess, Mustapha rattled off a long list of American weapons and vehicles he could use against the guerrillas. He spoke in French. "Why can't I respond to you in English?" he asked, jabbing a fork at my reporter. "It's because I never have to talk to any American military officers."

Whichever side is "right" in the desert struggle, one thing is clear, Grant reported: The Polisario guerrillas, who started off as nationalists of no strong political ideology, are in danger of falling increasingly under the influence of the anti-American radical regimes on whom they rely for their survival.

MIA UPDATE: Defense Intelligence Agency experts have told members of Congress privately that there is persuasive evidence that a small number of Americans listed as "Missing in Action" are alive in Laos. One source put the figure at 15 to 25, and said they are reportedly doing manual labor under apparently "loose" security.

The intelligence analysts have informants close to the prisoners and expect some action on the MIA's status within the next two or three months. More than six years after the end of the Southeast Asian conflict, there are still 1,363 American soldiers unaccounted for.

UNDER THE DOME: Like Pogo the Possum, Rep. James Collins, R-Texas, "has met the enemy and they is us." Declaring that "no life or property are safe while the legislature is in session," Collins has introduced a bill to restrict House sessions to 120 days a year. Any longer, he warns, and Congress will just find more ways to spend money.

— Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., recently warned his colleagues about "the dangers of talking to Jack Anderson or one of the strange creatures employed by him." How McDonald would know what it's like to talk with me or my staff I can't figure out: He never returns our calls. The congressman went on to call me a liar, a wiretapper and a burglar. If McDonald ever borrows enough courage to make such charges outside his congressional immunity, we can settle the matter in court. I'm betting he won't dare.

Former Tennessee governor facing federal court

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — His brother is being tried on tax charges. An uncle pleaded guilty to bid-rigging. A former aide is being tried on charges of conspiring to sell pardons and paroles.

Today, former Gov. Ray Blanton, eased from office three days early by his fellow Democrats in 1979, was going to federal court to face charges of taking liquor license payoffs.

Visiting Judge John W. Peck of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was to question the prospective jurors. All three U.S. District Court judges in Nashville have excused themselves.

Blanton's lawyer, John McLellan Jr. says he fears no impartial jury can be seated because of intense publicity.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Ballantine of Louisville, Ky., who is to try Blanton's brother, Gene, on highway bid-rigging charges in June, said, "Frankly, I'm concerned about an impartial jury." He said publicity was widespread even in neighboring Kentucky.

Two of Ray Blanton's 1974 campaign officials are being tried with him in the liquor case on charges of mail fraud and conspiracy. They are James Allen of Johnson City, his campaign manager and 1975 legislative aide, and Clyde Edd Hood Jr., campaign finance chairman and special assistant to the former governor.

The three are accused of conspiring to take a cut of the profits from several of 12 Nashville liquor stores licensed April 23, 1976, by the state Alcoholic Beverage Commission. The commission's three members were appointed by Blanton.

One of those licensed, former Blanton booster Jack Ham, is a chief prosecution witness. Blanton is accused of issuing Ham's license for $22,000 — or 20 percent of the first year's profits. The ailing Ham has videotaped his testimony.

But Peck, hearing the case as a district judge, has ordered him to appear in person.

Down the hall, a third visiting judge — U.S. District Judge James Churchill of Detroit — was trying Blanton's former extradition officer in another courtroom.

Charles Benson, the former extradition official, is accused of conspiring to sell pardons and paroles to prisoners while Blanton was governor from 1975 to 1979. Three others tried with Benson on the charges in 1979, before the then-presiding judge had a heart attack and a mistrial was declared, have since pleaded guilty.

Gene Blanton, at 44 seven years younger than the former governor, is in the midst of a federal trial in Memphis on charges of failing to report $68,000 in income. In testimony last week, Assistant U.S. Attorney Katherine Carlyle attempted to prove that he diverted money from family businesses and his brother's political fund for personal use.

The Blantons' uncle, Jake, pleaded guilty two weeks ago to bid-rigging. After pardoning three former prisoners and reducing the sentences of 49 others, making most eligible for immediate release, Ray Blanton was ousted from office early by fellow Democrats. His Republican successor, Gov. Lamar Alexander, was sworn in without ceremony.

At Alexander's prompting, the 1979 Legislature reconstituted the old state Board of Probations and Parole as the state Board of Pardons and gave it the authority to review executive clemency.

One of Blanton's few recent public appearances was at the recent funeral of his former finance commissioner, William Jones. The former chief executive sat alone for several minutes until a few of the former officials who once paid him homage joined him. He later left alone.

Researcher says running, having babies don't mix

ATLANTA (AP) — Women who run a lot and want to have babies may have to ease up on their training to get pregnant, an Emory University researcher says.

Strenuous exercise eliminates the body fat women need to have regular menstrual cycles, said Dr. Edwin Dale of the McCord-Cross Laboratory of Reproductive Physiology at Emory.

Irregular periods are one cause of infertility, Dale said in a recent interview, but the condition in runners is temporary and women resume having normal cycles several months after they cut back on exercise.

Dale compared 112 women runners with 56 non-runners between the ages of 18 and 48 and found that more runners than non-runners had irregular menstrual cycles or no periods at all.

Among long-distance runners, 66 percent had normal periods. Among recreational runners, or joggers, 77 percent had normal periods. By contrast, 96 percent of the non-runners had normal periods.

Dale said the study began in 1977 when he received a telephone call from a physician who said, "I have a strange lady with a problem. This lady runs 13 or 15 miles a day. She hasn't had her periods for a while."

The woman told Dale she had a runner friend with a similar problem.

"One patient led me to another and all of a sudden the phone was ringing off the wall and a number of women runners were saying, 'I would like to get into your study.' They sort of created the study for me."

Not all the women were interested in getting pregnant, Dale said, but they all wanted to know if they were sterile, or if running was a contraceptive. The study, completed in 1979, found that the answer to both questions is "no."

"Because a woman is not having her period does not mean she is contracepting," Dale said. "She probably is not going to get pregnant, but a person can't make that statement. It could get you in trouble."

Runners and women who participate in other strenuous activities like basketball, swimming and gymnastics don't have to stop exercising to have babies, Dale said, but they should cut back a little and gain some weight.

"A woman who wants to become pregnant who has been running 50 to 60 miles a week should cut back to 15 or 20 miles a week," Dale said. "She still runs enough for the cardiovascular benefit, but she will begin to gain some weight, to gain some body fat and to relieve the stress of running. She gets pregnant."

A gain in body fat is the key, Dale said, because the fat may serve as the storage site for estrogen, the female hormone, and possibly may serve as a source of nutrients for a developing embryo.

"She has to have a certain percentage of body fat to initiate menstrual periods and to become pregnant," he said.

Doctors still puzzled by treatment effects

By MATT MYGATT
Associated Press Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Some 100 cancer patients in New Mexico, most of them terminally ill, have smoked marijuana over the past two years to ease their chemotherapy-caused nausea and vomiting. Doctors still don't know why it works — or why it fails with other patients.

"I see the drug as being useful, but not a panacea," said Dr. Dan Dansak, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of New Mexico. "There are still a number of patients who don't respond too well to it and we don't know why."

"More work certainly needs to be done to see why people respond and why they do not — we still need something for those who do not respond."

On Jan. 16, 1979, New Mexico became the first state to begin giving cancer patients marijuana or its active ingredient, delta-9-tetrahydrocannabinol or THC, to combat the side effects of chemotherapy. Dansak is one of three members of a review board, composed of a psychiatrist, a cancer specialist and an ophthalmologist, that reviews applications of cancer patients to receive marijuana.

The Legislature had been urged to adopt the marijuana program by a 28-year-old cancer patient from Albuquerque, Lynn Pierson. On Feb. 21, 1978, then-Gov. Jerry Apodaca signed into law the Controlled Substances Therapeutic Research Act. The state received approval from the Food and Drug Administration Dec. 1, 1978, for use of marijuana by cancer patients.

Pierson died in August 1978. Seven months later, Gov. Bruce King repealed the 1978 law and established a permanent program — the Lynn Pierson Therapeutic Research Program.

SINCE THEN, Louisiana, Illinois, Florida and Washington state have started similar programs and at least a dozen other states have enacted laws modeled after the New Mexico statute, Dansak said.

Dr. Edward Deaux of the New Mexico Department of Health and Environment said that among the New Mexico patients, the marijuana in cigarette form seems to work better than the THC in capsule form.

"The inhaled version works better than the oral version," Deaux said. "It could be the absorption is different. It could be the drug gets into the blood faster through smoke. It could be that different drugs used in chemotherapy react differently."

The eight patients currently in the program declined to discuss their experiences for reasons of privacy, Dansak said.

"They have concerns about neighbors and how the neighbors will receive them, concerns about ... how churches and relatives will receive them," he said.

The marijuana used in the New Mexico program is grown at the University of Mississippi and distributed by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. It comes pre-rolled in tins of about 300 cigarettes each, with each cigarette containing 1 1/2 to 15 milligrams of THC.

The capsule form of THC is mixed with sesame oil and comes in gelatin capsules of five to 15 milligrams. The cigarettes or capsules are administered every 4-to-6 hours over two-day and five-day cycles, he said.

DANSAK SAID roughly 60 percent of the patients who have been in the program have had positive responses and 40 percent have had negative responses.

"Older women don't seem to respond as well to the drug as younger women, and younger women seem to respond as well as older and younger men. I think in general, male patients are a little more willing to use it. ... They might be a little more adventurous," he said.

"And there are religious reasons that people are reluctant to take it." Marijuana relaxes some patients, while others get giddy, he said. Still others seem completely unaffected.

Appetites, sometimes seriously curtailed by chemotherapy, are occasionally revived by marijuana, Dansak said. "We have some patients who get appetite stimulation. They maintain their weight better with marijuana."

Population growth triggers modern-day range war

By KRISTIN GAZLAY
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Rancher Jim Breithaupt has dug in his booted heels and is waging a modern-day range war against a proposed 50,000-acre reservoir that would swallow up a hefty chunk of his land.

It's land his family has worked since the turn of the century. His father is buried on it. Breithaupt wants it for himself, his grandchildren and their grandchildren.

Let the new Texans streaming into the Sun Belt quench their thirst, sprinkle their lawns and water-ski someplace else, he and other landowners are saying.

Breithaupt isn't just battling to stop a reservoir. He's trying to lasso progress.

"I'm not going to leave if I can help it," Breithaupt said. "I hate the darn thing coming."

Tarrant County water officials say the rapidly growing population in Fort Worth and suburban Arlington and Mansfield will be left with parched throats when the water supply is depleted as early as the 1990s.

Their $342.7 million project, which would create the Richland-Chambers reservoir straddling the Central Texas counties of Navarro and Freestone, has been snagged by two court appeals and valuable mineral discoveries.

The court roadblocks were thrown up by a group called Tehuacana-Richland Enemies of the Dam, or TRED — as in "Don't Tread On Me," a motto of their colonial forefathers.

"They're stealing our land and ruining our entire lives," says TRED president Verna Bonner of Streetman, who has been battling to turn off the billion-gallon tap for more than two years.

"We have allotted the power to control the lives of people through water projects and the like to a commission in Austin that is totally deaf to anything the people have to say," Mrs. Bonner said.

"The water district has so much power," said Breithaupt, also one of TRED's 200 members and owner of a 3,800-acre spread between Navarro and Streetman. "They can do things to you that the government can't do ..."

Bill Hilliard, of the Tarrant County Water Control and Improvement District 1, has been coordinating the Richland-Chambers project.

"I know several of TRED's members," he said. "We are doing everything we can to show them we're not the villains they think we are."

Pending court appeals aside, the water district has continued the laborious process of translating its reservoir into reality.

Hilliard said the project would serve as a boon to the Central Texas area's economy by raising property evaluations and triggering a wave of speculative buying — and provide water for Tarrant County residents at the same time.

"The Dallas-Fort Worth area is growing faster than everyone expected it to grow. It will grow and need more water," he said. "Droughts are cyclical, but this is not a new norm we're experiencing. It can happen, and if it continues, we're going to be in serious trouble."

"I think for the most part, the TRED members are sincere in their desires to just not have the area disturbed at all, to keep the rural agribusiness-oriented lifestyle and low density of residential units — everything that goes along with rural lifestyle. And they have the typical concerns of probably running taxes up, and lots of new people and cars on the highway, and having to worry about their kids."

Seven houses would be submerged when the waters immerse the two-county area, and more than 700,000 Tarrant County-area water-users would be digging deep into their pockets for the project.

"My mother's house will get to stay," Breithaupt said, "but water will be within 100 feet of her door. If she had wanted a house on a lake, she would have built it. But now they're bringing it to her."

Hilliard said the water district has satisfactorily worked out relocation processes with those who would be forced to move.

But Breithaupt said that even though his family wouldn't be uprooted, the fair market value he receives for his land couldn't hope to match the intrinsic value it holds for a rancher.

"What I have left will be split up in about seven pieces and I'll only have one sizeable block of 1,200 acres left," he said. "It's hard to make 1,200 acres economically self-sufficient. But ranching has been by sole support and it was my father's."

About 40 TRED members caravaned to Austin to present evidence to the Texas Water Commission during a two-day hearing on the reservoir, Breithaupt said, but the commission refused to listen to most of it.

"They didn't want to hear it," he said. "Those people are on a first name basis. They all know each other and it's hard to get your foot in the door. I'm not saying anything illegal is going on. I just mean they don't want to hear what we have to say."

Study: Nasty businessmen norm on TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You may think J.R. Ewing, the villain of CBS-TV's runaway hit, "Dallas," is merely an outrageous concoction dreamed up by Hollywood writers. The Media Institute believes otherwise.

In a new study called "Crooks, Conmen and Clowns: Businessmen in TV Entertainment," the Washington-based, business-supported research concern says that dastardly business executives beholden to neither God nor Constitution are the norm on prime time television.

Among the study's conclusions:

- Over half of all corporate chiefs portrayed on television commit illegal acts ranging from fraud to murder.
- Forty-five percent of all business activities on television are portrayed as illegal.
- Only 3 percent of television businessmen engage in socially or economically productive behavior.
- Hard work is usually ridiculed on television as "workaholic" that inevitably leads to strained personal relationships.
- "We were surprised by such heavy emphasis on businessmen as crooks," said Leonard J. Theberge, president of the institute and editor of the study, issued today.

The study grew out of the Media Institute's primary function — monitoring TV news coverage of business and economics. Unlike the entertainment survey, Theberge says his group has found little anti-business bias in network news broadcasts.

Among the Media Institute's 300 individual and corporate members are Mobil Oil, Westinghouse, General Electric and 20th Century-Fox.

He said the study reviewed 200 episodes from 50 programs between December 1979 and April 1980 on all three major networks.

"The small businessmen are portrayed as social climbers, buffoons, foolish; the big businessmen only seems to have time for criminal activities," Theberge said in a telephone interview.

"The murderous, duplicitous, cynical businessman is about the only kind of businessman there is on TV adventure shows, just as the cunning, trickster businessman shares the stage with the pompous buffoon businessman in situation comedies."

Theberge said businessmen fare poorly at the hands of the Hollywood creative community because of the artists' traditional disrespect for the entrepreneur and because businessmen have replaced old stereotypes such as women and ethnic minorities in stories that are told in simple "good guy, bad guy" terms.

"Minorities, ethnic groups and women are treated much more fairly than they have been in the past... This has left a vacuum in TV entertainment programs, which may explain why the American businessman is such a prominent villain," he said.

What effect does this TV view of business have on the public?

"The attitudes of young people, who watch TV more than they spend time in a classroom — they tend to share this negative view of businessmen," Theberge said. "I don't want to overstate the case — obviously TV is a major influence on people's values — but so is school and religion. But it certainly is a pervasive influence."

Chinese call halt to artistic freedom

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese Communist Party called a halt to artistic freedom today and pilloried a prominent writer for a story that indirectly criticizes China's leaders and satirizes the worship of Mao Tse-tung.

The Peking Daily published a scathing attack on writer Bai Hua for his story "Unrequited Love." It was made into a controversial film "The Sun and the Man" which has been withheld from public showing. Chinese sources who asked not to be identified said the authorities ordered 22 revisions in it.

The article, which was reprinted from the army's Liberation Daily, said Bai Hua's work shows he is "antagonistic to the party and the people" and violates the four principles of communism and socialism: acknowledgment of the leadership of the Communist Party, the superiority of socialism, the dictatorship of the proletariat and Marxism-Leninism-Mao thought.

Chinese sources reported some army intellectuals wanted to expel the writer from the Communist Party, but the party's Central Committee refused.

"Unrequited Love" is the story of an artist who returns to China to help in the development of his country but is persecuted to death during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution. His last footprints form a question mark.

Bai Hua, who is about 51, has been one of China's most controversial writers. He was persecuted as a rightist in 1957. In November 1979 he addressed a conference of writers and complained about the party's restrictions on artistic freedom.

Five killed in Midwest storms

By The Associated Press

A tornado spawned by a violent Kansas storm demolished a country church filled with Easter worshippers in northeast Oklahoma and killed five people in a nearby trailer park. Twisters also damaged homes and farms in Kentucky and Indiana.

Fifty-two people were treated for storm-related injuries in the Tulsa area, according to the Red Cross. Fifty-five homes were destroyed and 70 were damaged, the Red Cross said.

Looting was reported in nearby Bixby soon after the Sunday night storm passed, officials said. Police were asked to help control the thefts, said a Civil Defense official.

The bodies of four members of the same family and a fifth man were found Sunday night after a tornado hit Bixby, a rural suburb to the south of Tulsa, leaving behind hail the size of tennis balls, police said.

Tulsa County Deputy Sheriff Buddy Mabee said four of the victims were two parents and their children. The victims were not identified.

About 30 people were injured when the Liberty Heights Freewill Baptist Church in Bixby was smashed, authorities said.

Walter Murkey said he huddle with his wife in the bathtub of his home across the street from the church as the twister howled.

When winds died down, he ran over to help rescue his brother, who was attending evening services.

"The whole neighborhood, even the people whose houses were damaged, started immediately digging at the church to get people out," he said.

The American Red Cross set up a shelter in Tulsa for the families left homeless by the storm.

A twister was spotted Sunday afternoon near Slaughters in western Kentucky, according to police. Another tornado struck just west of Newburgh, Ind., causing extensive damage to five homes.

No injuries were reported.

The tornado in Kentucky damaged a farm, uprooted trees, took shingles off a house and blew away some tool sheds, police said.

Firemen examine industrial park in Tulsa late Sunday after a windstorm hit the area

No deaths were reported in Tulsa.

Residents of Bixby, Okla., search the wreckage of the home of Ronald Wade Friday night after a tornado hit the area. At least five people were killed by the tornado.

U.S., Iran join sides in strange court fight

DALLAS (AP) — An unlikely alliance between the United States and Iran has emerged in a court fight that centers around a Dallas computer company's efforts to collect a $19 million judgment from Iran.

Attorneys for millionaire computer magnate H. Ross Perot's Electronic Data Systems are scheduled to appear in 5th U.S. District Court of Appeals in New Orleans today to challenge an agreement the United States made with Iran in order to free 52 American hostages.

The U.S. Justice Department and attorneys for Iran say EDS should stand in line with about 400 other American creditors attempting to collect from Iran because the January hostage agreement requires American creditors seeking money from Iran to go through a special tribunal, rather than through regular courts.

U.S. District Judge Robert Porter early last year ruled that EDS was entitled to the money. Iran appealed, throwing it into the New Orleans courtroom.

Perot's attorneys argue that the settlement was ordered before the hostage accord was signed, rendering EDS exempt from its restrictions. In a judgment delivered in February, Porter concurred.

Bilingual battle lines drawn

By The Associated Press

The battle over bilingual education in Texas — a battle that involves an estimated 225,000 non-English speaking students — is headed back into court because state officials want a far-reaching federal edict stayed in order to find qualified teachers.

"We will have difficulty finding certified bilingual teachers," said Ed L. West, superintendent of the North East School District in San Antonio, after U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice denied a state's request to delay a court-implemented bilingual education program for Texas public schools.

Larry Ascough, director of communications for the Dallas schools, said the shortage of certified bilingual teachers is so severe that "even if we hired all the teachers coming out of the Texas colleges, there wouldn't be enough for the Dallas district."

Justice, who last year told the state to come up with a bilingual program for all grades to replace the one now in operation that covers the first three grades, has ordered the current program to extend to the fifth grade this fall and to all public school grades by 1986.

In his opinion last Friday, Justice wrote he was denying the state's request to delay offering a plan until the end of the legislative session to end a "deep sense of inferiority, cultural isolation and acceptance of failure" on the part of non-English speaking students.

State estimates show about 40 percent of non-English speaking students — about 90,000 youngsters — receive no bilingual instruction.

Texas Attorney General Mark White says he will seek a stay of the order pending an appeal to the 5th

U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

White also said that a Texas Education Agency report on the costs of the program would be released Monday.

Dr. Angel Gonzalez, director for bilingual education in the Dallas Independent School District, said implementing the order probably will involve "a lot of local training in language and methods of teaching. We're talking with East Texas State University about training graduating seniors who want to go into bilingual education."

Houston schools are short of bilingual teachers even though they are paid $800 more a year than single-language teachers, Gonzalez said.

Jailed Gypsies suspected in multi-state breakins

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Eight Gypsies being held without bond in Greensboro are suspected in break-ins in five other states and two incidents in Charlotte, FBI agents say.

The eight Polish-born Gypsies, four men and four women, were arrested in Greensboro after a high-speed chase April 11.

Pillowcases filled with $250,000 in silver were tossed out the windows of the suspects' car, Greensboro investigators said.

As investigators began cataloging the silver collected from the roadside, the FBI began looking for links between the Gypsies and break-ins or illegal entries in Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and South Carolina.

"I'd say this is a bizarre case with infinite possibilities," said Robert Pence, FBI agent in charge of North Carolina operations.

The FBI has identified the eight as Edward Dabrowski, 24, Peter Langer, 30, Barbara Langer, 29, Maria Szczawinska, 28, Danuta Lechowska, 40, Kazimierz Malinowski, 21, Tadeusz Wisniewski, 28, and Maria Kachanowska, 30, all of Brooklyn, N.Y.

The FBI said they may have arrived in the United States in the past four months. About 10,000 of the estimated 100,000 Gypsies in the United States live in New York.

Refugee resettlement camp quiet

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — A Cuban refugee resettlement camp here was quiet today after a weekend of violence apparently sparked by frustration at long detention and the shooting of a refugee by a security officer, authorities said.

More than 40 people were injured and three cars burned in the two weekend incidents, according to federal officials.

Charlie Hughes, a spokesman for Cuban-Haitian Task Force here, said several refugees celebrated the end of the disturbances Sunday by "going around shaking hands with the officers."

"They're beating drums, singing and chanting," he said.

Officials said the incidents began Saturday afternoon when Federal Protective Service Officer Ray J. Barnes shot a refugee, Jose Mariron, 22, who allegedly was attacking another refugee with a homemade machete. Padron turned on Barnes with the weapon, Hughes said.

Barnes has been relieved of his duties pending an investigation, Hughes said. Padron was in stable condition Sunday.

After the shooting, three bands of between 30 and 40 refugees roamed the compound, threw rocks at security officers and military police and overturned seven federal cars, burning three, Hughes said.

Officers used tear gas to turn back refugees who stormed a gate leading out of the compound and evacuated the base of 50 to 100 civilians.

Sunday morning, about 100 Cubans protested the detention of a fellow refugee whom authorities were holding for breaking curfew. Task Force public information officer Mike Sweeney said some of the refugees tossed a few rocks across a fence at military officers. He said he knew of no injuries or damage.

Hughes said the Cubans had turned in the names of five men allegedly involved in the Saturday night riot. The men were detained but no charges filed immediately.

According to Sweeney, many of the compound's 2,700 refugees were frustrated because they have not been relocated, as have most of their 127,000 countrymen who came to America in the "Freedom Flotilla" a year ago.

"We're dealing with people who've been rejected by one country in a sense, and now they're beginning to wonder if they're being rejected by another," Sweeney said.

Camp Director Barbara Lawson went on closed circuit television Sunday to tell the refugees that any future disturbances would reduce their chances of placement. But she said in an interview that officials were well within the timetable to close the camp by August.

All 120 FPS officers assigned to Fort Chaffee were called in to assist in the riot control Saturday, Hughes said. Bill Howard, a spokesman for the task force, said about 120 military police were also assigned at the base.

Howard said many of the refugees involved in the rioting are violent and can't get along with people.

"Those people have been confined, some since last May," Howard said. "That puts the frustration level pretty high."

Sweeney said 97 percent of the refugees at the base were males between 18 and 35 years old, had no relatives in the United States, were poorly educated and had poor English language and job skills.

"They're frustrated and tired of being in the compound, and we do have some troubled people," Sweeney said. "We have a number of socialists, people who just don't agree with society."

A military policeman stands guard by a military vehicle that was damaged Saturday night when Cuban refugees started throwing rocks at military police and army personnel. Several autos were overturned and one was set fire when refugees rioted after a shooting.

Houston teen youngest American to become matador

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — David Renk is 18, a blond, blue-eyed high school senior — and apparently the youngest American ever to become a matador.

In a brief ceremony Sunday, Renk's long-time dream came true. The suburban Houston teen-ager had worked since he was 14 to become a "matador de toros," the equivalent in bullfighting to a major league athlete.

"I feel pretty good," said the soft-spoken youth afterward as fans and well-wishers swarmed around him for autographs, handshakes and kisses.

Renk credits his father, David, with his start in bullfighting. The elder Renk fought bulls when his son was an infant and the boy was raised around bullrings.

He first started working with bulls when he was 12. By the time he was 14, he was fighting in the ring as a "novillero," or apprentice bullfighter. He has killed more than 50 bulls.

Jim Kerby, an El Paso public relations man and bullfighting fan, said Renk is the first American matador since the 1960s. Renk's father says the youth is the youngest American to ever be named a matador.

Renk fought the first and last of the six bulls in the ring here Sunday, finishing with a flourish that led the crowd to throw flowers, hats, boots, seat cushions and whatever else was handy into the ring.

One man tossed in a wineskin and Renk, his day's work finished, paused to squirt the red wine into his mouth.

But Renk had trouble in his first fight of the day. The crowd booed the picador, a horseman who stabs the bull with a lance, because they felt the wound was too deep. "The picador ruined the first bull," Kerby said.

The bull also refused to complete its charges, stopping alongside Renk and forcing him to dance backwards from the lunging horns. Once, the bull snagged Renk's cape and snatched it from his hands.

"I was disappointed," he said later, "but I kept my morale up. The second bull was definitely better."

Choruses of "Ole!" were shouted as Renk worked with the second bull, especially when the young matador turned his back and walked away from the bull and when he knelt in front of it to look in its eyes.

The judge awarded Renk one of the bull's ears, which means it was a good fight.

After the fight, he made his way through throngs of autograph seekers to his father's van that is emblazoned with the words "David Renk and the nickname 'El Texano.'"

Illegal alien representation called a federal violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legal services groups in Dallas, Fort Worth, East Texas and Hereford have been violating federal law by representing illegal aliens, Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas has charged.

He wrote Milton Soclar, acting U.S. comptroller general, last month asking for an investigation. Collins' office was informed late this past week that the General Accounting Office has begun an investigation.

The Republican congressman told GAO he had learned of active representation of illegal aliens by:

— Al Campos and Barbara Belejak, employees of the Dallas Legal Services Foundation, in matters involving the Immigration and Naturalization Service;

— Yolanda Ayala, an attorney with West Texas Legal Services of Fort Worth;

— Edward Juddenharm of Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., in a suit against law enforcement officers in Hereford and Deaf Smith County; and — East Texas Legal Services, Inc., particularly through its participation in a recent suit involving the right of children of aliens to attend Texas public schools.

"These actions are in direct violation of federal law, and this waste of public funds must be stopped. While the entire federal government is trying to cut back, expenditures in violation of the law cannot be tolerated," Collins said.

It became illegal last Oct. 1, the beginning of the 1981 fiscal year, for legal aid groups to represent illegal aliens. Inserted in the appropriations bill for the Legal Services Corporation was the following:

"Provided further, that none of the funds appropriated ... may be used to carry out any activities for or on behalf of any individual who is known to be an alien in the United States in violation of the Immigration and Nationality Act or any other law, convention or treaty of the United States relating to the immigration, exclusion, deportation or expulsion of aliens."

Collins said immigration officials in Texas called him about the apparent irregularity, wondering if the legal aid groups had found a loophole in the law.

Dallas Legal Services Foundation receives 100 percent of its operating funds from the federal government, Collins said.

The Legal Services Corporation, which provides free legal representation for those unable to afford it, has been one of the targets of President Reagan's spending cuts in his proposed new budget.

"Legal Services has insisted the administration's proposed budget cuts for them are not feasible because there is nowhere to cut back," Collins said.

"If they have used their federal funds in direct violation of the federal law to represent illegal aliens, there is obviously some fat in their budget that is not necessary to represent the poor."

Former Texas Congressman Bob Eckhardt will host a reception for Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona.

Eckhardt, 57, served in the Texas House of Representatives from 1958 to 1966, then represented northeast Harris County in Congress from 1967 until a few months ago, when he lost by a razor-thin margin in his bid for an seventh 2-year term in Washington.

Does the reception mean Eckhardt is considering a return to politics?

"No, I'm just trying to pay my debts," Eckhardt said.

The 2-hour reception on April 30 in Washington will be open to $10 contributors and $50 sponsors.

Rep. Jack Fields, the Republican attorney who ousted Eckhardt, has announced the results of a questionnaire he sent out. It went to residents of his district — northeast Houston, the area around the Houston Ship Channel, north Pasadena and the towns of Baytown, Deer Park, Galena Park, La Porte, Channelview, Jacinto City and Humble, his hometown.

The answers indicate his constituents generally back Reagan's economic recovery plan, favor less government regulation and want a strong military, Fields said.

More than 95 percent said they go along with the president's freeze on hiring new federal employees; more than 93 percent agree foreign aid should be slashed; more than 70 percent oppose government-paid abortions for the poor, and 68 percent said both the departments of energy and education should be eliminated.

Asked if they want a constitutional amendment to permit voluntary prayers in school, 91 percent said yes. And 98 percent indicated they're behind Houston Aldine in its court battle to keep a school song which contains the word "God."

Only 2 percent favored busing to achieve racial balance in schools.

Here's how his constituents felt on some other topics:

— 85 percent said they support a constitutional amendment to mandate a balanced federal budget;

— 96 percent said they oppose using federal money to provide legal representation for homosexuals in gay rights cases;

— 54 percent said they favor abolishing the federal 55 mph speed limit and letting each state set its own speed limit;

— 65 percent said they dislike the windfall profits tax and would like to see it repealed, and

— 76 percent said they oppose forced registration of firearms by gun owners.

Supreme Court overturns ruling on mentally retarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has not given mentally retarded persons a legal right to be treated in settings that are the "least restrictive to personal liberty," the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices overturned a federal appeals court ruling that would have required the transfer of most of the more than 1,000 patients at Pennsylvania's Pennhurst State School and Hospital.

Interpreting a section of the federal Developmentally Disabled Assistance and Bill of Rights Act, the court said, "We find nothing in the act or its legislative history to suggest that Congress intended to require the states to assume the high cost of providing 'appropriate treatment' in the least restrictive environment to their mentally retarded citizens."

The high court, however, stopped short of stating that mentally retarded persons have no constitutional right to such treatment.

The justices also left unresolved another important question: whether such patients have the legal right to sue state officials in attempts to force them to comply with conditions required under the federal act.

Writing for the court's majority, Justice William H. Rehnquist agreed that Section 6010 of the federal act created no legal right for mental patients to be treated, when possible, in neighborhood settings rather than in institutions such as Pennhurst.

"We are persuaded that Section 6010 . . . does no more than express a congressional preference for certain kinds of treatment," Rehnquist said.

His opinion was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Lewis F. Powell and John Paul Stevens. Justice Harry A. Blackmun filed a separate opinion agreeing in the result.

Justices Byron R. White, William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall dissented.

In an opinion authored by White, they said, "Section 6010 cannot be treated as only wishful thinking on the part of Congress or as playing some fanciful role in the implementation of the act. The section clearly states rights which the developmentally disabled are to be provided as against a participating state."

The disputed section of the act states:

"Persons with developmental disabilities have a right to appropriate treatment, services and rehabilitation for such disabilities."

"The treatment . . . should be designed to maximize the developmental potential and should be provided in the setting that is least restrictive of the person's liberty."

"The federal government and the states both have an obligation to assure that public funds are not provided to any institution that does not provide appropriate services and treatment."

Rehnquist's opinion noted that Section 6010 of the act, unlike other sections, lacks wording that specifically cuts off federal aid for non-compliance.

Terri Lee Halderman, a Pennhurst resident, sued the institution in 1974. She charged that she and other patients were forced to live in inhumane and dangerous conditions.

Named as defendants were the institution itself, located in the Philadelphia suburb of Spring City, Pa.; state officials in charge of its operations; and five counties — Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Philadelphia and Montgomery — from which persons are admitted to Pennhurst.

Court lets uranium price-fixing stand

Stand By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court let stand today a billion-dollar price-fixing judgment against a uranium fuel partnership owned by Gulf Oil Corp. and Shell Oil.

The justices, citing a lack of jurisdiction, turned down an effort by General Atomic Co. to overturn rulings that it reaped huge, illicit windfalls from price increases orchestrated by an international cartel joined by Gulf Oil.

Today's action marked the fifth time General Atomic appealed to the Supreme Court in its six-year battle to avoid responsibility for the results of the cartel's actions.

Courts in New Mexico never got to judge all the evidence about General Atomic for themselves because, they concluded, General Atomic, Gulf and the Canadian government cooperated to withhold key evidence.

A state trial judge in Santa Fe, accusing General Atomic of "the utmost bad faith," drew his own conclusions assessing damages and contract performance which may cost the firm more than $1 billion.

That decision was affirmed by the New Mexico Supreme Court in a 205-page opinion.

Several other damage suits stemming from revelation of the uranium cartel are wending their separate ways through the courts.

As the New Mexico courts reconstructed it, this case had its roots in contracts of 1973 and 1974 when United Nuclear Corp., a uranium producer, agreed to sell 27 million pounds of uranium oxide, a semi-processed fuel base, to General Atomic at stated prices.

General Atomic, in turn, had contracts to sell uranium fuel to various utilities including Indiana and Michigan Electric Co.

Meanwhile, in secrecy, General Atomic's parent Gulf Oil allegedly was participating in a conspiracy of uranium-producing companies in Canada, France, South Africa and Australia to limit production and drive up prices, apparently with the approval of those governments.

From 1972, when the cartel apparently began, to 1975 when these lawsuits were filed, the price of uranium oxide soared from about $6 a pound to about $40 a pound, and kept on rising.

In 1975, General Atomic was paying United Nuclear a contract price of $7.50 a pound for uranium which it could resell at market prices around $40.

At the same time, General Atomic stopped delivering uranium fuel at old contract prices to Indiana and Michigan Electric after providing only half of a 3.4 million-pound order it owed the utility.

United Nuclear sued in 1975 to break its contract with General Atomic, charging it was being victimized by a price-fixing conspiracy.

General Atomic counter-sued for enforcement of the low-priced contract, and then dragged the electric company into the lawsuit.

General Atomic's lawyers said that if the court tears up United's contract to sell 27 million pounds of uranium oxide to General Atomic, it should also tear up General's contract to deliver the remaining 1.7 million pounds it owed the utility.

Khadafy tries to form radical Saharan front

Front By ROBERT MCCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy is visiting Algeria and Mauritania trying to forge a radical Arab front across the Sahara to oppose Israel and such "traitor" Arabs as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Moroccan King Hassan II.

The mercurial Libyan colonel has expressed the hope of creating a federation of all like-minded Arab nations in North Africa. So far, Algeria and other neighbors have been cautious.

Khadafy envisions oil-rich, socialist Libya and Algeria providing the leadership for such poor neighbors as Chad and Mauritania, which have been neutral in world politics. That could tip the balance in North Africa toward the Soviet Union and its East European allies, which sell Libya and Algeria most of their arms.

Khadafy arrived in Algiers Saturday and met Sunday with President Chadli Benjedid. Then the Libyan leader flew to Nouakchott, the Mauritanian capital on Africa's northwest coast.

Benjedid has stressed that he is skeptical about uniting with Libya, even in a loose federation. He said in one recent speech:

"Algeria always expresses reserve with respect to a union that is not based on the popular conviction of the interested parties but is only the fruit of a simple accord between leaders. We will reject any union that is not accepted by the Algerian people."

Khadafy recently called for a merger of Mauritania and the Arab Democratic Republic of Saharaoui which the Polisario guerrillas proclaimed in the former Spanish Sahara. The Polisario Front, which is supported by Algeria and Libya, is fighting pro-Western Morocco for control of the territory, which is between Morocco and Mauritania and between Algeria and the Atlantic.

Khadafy said in Algiers that Mauritania and the Polisario government should join Libya, Algeria, Syria and the other Arab nations in the Arab Resistance Front formed to fight the Camp David peace treaty between Egypt and Israel.

"The necessity exists to extend the Arab Resistance Front from Lebanon to Mauritania on the side of the Palestinian resistance," Khadafy said.

Saudi oil minister says his country created world glut

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabia has deliberately created a world crude oil surplus in order to stabilize prices, and will neither increase prices nor cut production in the near future, the Saudi petroleum minister said Sunday.

"We engineered the glut and we want to see it stabilize the price of oil," Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

The sheik said he did not think the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries could settle on a single price at its meeting next month.

Asked when the other OPEC nations might go along and set a single price, he said, "Maybe sometime in 1982."

He repeatedly called on industrial nations to reduce oil consumption and thus help force other oil producers to drop their prices.

"There should be one price of oil because this means stability," he said.

Asked how the Saudis might react if Washington delayed plans to sell them five air warning and control (AWAC) airplanes, Yamani said, "We don't see a reason for postponing this" and warned the United States against delaying the deal in order to influence upcoming Israeli elections.

"We got a promise from this (United States) government that it will be done . . . and we think it will," he added.

Yamani said the United States should promptly provide his nation with the sophisticated radar and command planes because "We are surrounded by all types of countries who are focusing on the oil fields of your own (American) interest . . . We think Saudi Arabia has to be strong."

Even if the United States refuses to provide the planes, "I don't think the Saudis will go to the Soviets" for protection, he said.

GOREN BRIDGE

shows a good hand, but it is not forcing. You have about as little as the law allows for your initial action, and your singleton in partner's suit is an added drawback. Don't even think of bidding four diamonds to "improve" the contract—that would be a slam try. Pass.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KJ87 ♠AJ52 ♣95 ♦Q96
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—No response is entirely satisfactory. You are a whit short of a jump raise to three spades, so you must plan to make two bids. We suggest you respond two hearts, to show where most of your outside strength is located. Since you intend to revert to spades as cheaply as possible no matter what partner does, you can afford to make this response on a four-card suit.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A108 ♠A9 ♣QJ8 ♦QJ982
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Your honors in the minor suits have suddenly gained added weight because of the double fit. You could start cue-bidding immediately, but we slightly prefer a bid of three diamonds now, to make partner aware of the double fit. Don't worry that partner may pass. Whenever opener raises partner's two-over-one response, responder's simple preference to opener's suit is forcing.

THE KISS OF DEATH

As Jesus spoke, a mob approached, led by Judas, one of His twelve disciples. Judas walked over to Jesus and kissed Him on the cheek in friendly greeting.

But Jesus said, "Judas, how can you do this betray the Messiah with a kiss?"

When the other disciples saw what was about to happen, they exclaimed, "Master, shall we fight? We brought along the swords!" And one of them slashed at the High Priest's servant, and cut off his right ear.

But Jesus said, "Don't resist anymore." And He touched the place where the man's ear had been and restored it.

Then Jesus addressed the chief priests and captains of the Temple guards and the religious leaders who headed the mob. "Am I a robber," He asked, "that you have come armed with swords and clubs to get Me? Why didn't you arrest Me in the Temple? I was there every day! But this is your moment—the time when Satan's power reigns supreme."

So they seized Him and led Him to the High Priest's residence, and Peter followed at a distance.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Tuberculin test believed to be outdated as screening process

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is there any reason we don't have screening tests for tuberculosis the way we used to? There seem to be mass screenings for a number of other diseases, such as for high blood pressure, but not for tuberculosis. Isn't it considered important any more? — Don

Dear Don: Some physicians believe that the tuberculin test is no longer appropriate as a screening procedure, but should only be used on an individual basis when a patient is suspected of having the disease. There are two reasons for this change in approach? First, the incidence of tuberculosis today is so low that the cost of widespread screening outweighs its benefits. Second, the test is not conclusive — that is, a negative test does not exclude the possibility that a patient has tuberculosis, and a positive test does not necessarily indicate an active infection.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Our neighborhood pharmacist offered to fill a prescription for my father with a less expensive generic drug rather than a brand-name drug; however, my father refused the substitute until he could check with his doctor. I told my father that I thought he was being unnecessarily cautious, but he replied that he was just being careful. Do you feel that his refusal to accept a substitute until he could check with his doctor was unusual? — Mr. T.V.

Dear Mr. V.: At least one study suggests that your father's caution was rather typical. A recent survey in Florida showed that two-thirds of the patients questioned said they would not accept their pharmacist's advice about substituting a generic for a brand-name drug without first checking with their doctor. Among elderly people who were interviewed, 80 percent said they would first want to obtain their doctor's approval.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My question is simple and yet terribly complicated. I have been married for three years and would like to start a family; that seems simple enough. My problem is that I am on anticonvulsant medication, and I'm concerned that this may have an effect on the child during my pregnancy. Do you know if this is so? — Mrs. A.H.

Dear Mrs. H.: I wish I could be completely reassuring and tell you that you have nothing to worry about, but that would not be honest. I must tell you that some studies have shown a higher-than-average number of birth defects in women who took anticonvulsant medication during pregnancy. Bear in mind, however, that the overwhelming majority who take such medication give birth to normal children.

In addition, I don't believe that this one factor should deter you from your desire to have a family. There is some evidence that the possibility of damage to the fetus is related to the dose and plasma levels of the drugs, particularly during the first trimester of pregnancy. Your obstetrician and the doctor who is currently treating you might be able to adjust the dose so as to minimize the risk to the fetus.

Author makes big hit with new Mafia book

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ovid Demaris, the author who has hit it big with a book on the underworld and its periphery.

Demaris, a native of Biddeford, Maine, studied law and journalism, worked for newspapers and a wire service, wrote advertising copy and "True Detective" magazine stories, but finally settled on writing books.

In 1960, he went to Las Vegas to research a biography of the mobster Bugsy Siegel and met a local reporter, Ed Reid, who had massive files on mob involvement in the gambling oasis.

Together, they wrote the book, "Green Felt Jungle," which stayed on best-seller lists for 26 weeks and became a key reference tome on the Mafia.

"Since then, I've written 12 books and three of them were on organized crime," Demaris says.

But the biggest break of Demaris' career came in 1978 when he heard that Fratianno, a known Mafia hitman, had turned informer and was looking for someone to write his book. Demaris sent word he was interested.

"We met in a San Francisco hotel room that spring," he recalls. "There were marshals in the hallway guarding him. I had about 200 to 300 questions I asked Jimmy. I was really impressed. Jimmy was absolutely different from anybody I had met in the Mafia."

They made a deal, sold the book proposal to New York Times Books and began rigorous interview sessions.

Centerfold hid hole

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Posters have been ordered removed from the walls and ceilings of all Dane County Jail cells following the weekend escape of three inmates through a hole concealed by a pin-up.

Stanley Klein, chief deputy sheriff, issued the order after officials discovered that a centerfold picture from a girls magazine had been used to hide a hole sawed into the ceiling of a cell.

The three inmates in the cell fled the jail about midnight Friday and remained at large Sunday.

Officials said fragments from a hacksaw blade were used to saw the 18-inch hole that enabled the men to reach freedom.

Lead-footed Nevada legislators like new speeding law

CARSON CITY, Nev. — They've taken some of the sting out of speeding here in jackrabbit country, and for hard-driving, gas-guzzling Nevada legislators like "Old Leadfoot," the thrill of driving may be coming back.

Old Leadfoot — state Sen. Jim Gibson — earned his nickname before Nevada bowed to federal pressure in 1973 and adopted a 55 mph limit on the straightedge highways that cut through the Nevada sagebrush. Before 1973, there was no speed limit on open roads.

Gibson said the 55 mph limit made him angry. "I can't stand driving 55 miles an hour," he said.

But on Tuesday Gov. Bob List signed a measure relaxing penalties for driving between 55 mph and 70 mph. Now there's only a $5 "energy wasting" fine — not a traffic violation — for driving within that range. Previously, there was an average fine of $2 for each mile per hour over 55 and the violation was part of the driver's traffic record.

The vote in favor of the measure was overwhelming in both houses of the Nevada legislature — 36-4 in the Assembly and 13-4 in the Senate.

Assemblyman Bob Price said he was "tickled to death" about the new law. Price said he has "always consistently exceeded" the 55 mph limit, with the help of a radar detector. Assemblyman Marion Bennett, a Methodist minister with a white Mercedes, said Price is the "real speed demon" in the lower house.

But Price, a North Las Vegas Democrat, said he doesn't deserve the reputation as the fastest accelerator in the West. At least not nowadays. He's "reformed."

"Me a speed demon?" Price asked. "I was going over Goldfield Summit about four years ago, when I was fast, and was doing about 110 — and he (Bennett) passed me."

Bennett, who said he sometimes drives his Mercedes at speeds over 110 mph, admitted, "I normally drive pretty fast myself."

"It's wide open and there's nothing out there — so why not?" he asked.

The 55 mph limit was imposed after the federal government threatened to cancel highway-construction funds.

The Nevada "energy wasting" law is modeled on a law passed in Montana in 1974. Nevada is the second state with such a measure on the books.

Although there had been a growing movement to relax speeding laws in Nevada, some said the real push came after the Reagan administration announced it expected to take no action against states that reduced the penalty for violations of the 55 mph speed limit.

SOMETIMES TELEVISION IS AT ITS MOST POWERFUL WHEN IT'S SHUT OFF.

When it's turned on, television can be a great source of entertainment. And a great source of education.

But if you really want to realize television's power, think about the times you couldn't watch it.

Remember when your television spent a week in the repair shop and you sometimes felt bored out of your mind?

Television star, Adam Rich, is unhappy because he can't watch television. Taken from one of our current TV commercials.

Or, if you're younger, how about the time you misbehaved and your mother wouldn't let you watch television? You thought twice before you made the same mistake again, didn't you?

We at The Hearst Corporation operate television stations around the country. We think we make people's lives a little fuller by doing so.

In fact, The Hearst Corporation is a total communications company. We operate 10 television and radio stations in major markets like Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and San Juan, Puerto Rico. We're even launching cable TV networks.

We publish 20 magazines like Cosmopolitan and Good Housekeeping. And we distribute them in 30 countries, in 8 languages.

We publish 13 newspapers, coast to coast. From the San Francisco Examiner to Albany's Times Union and The Knickerbocker News.

We publish countless books. Best sellers in hard cover like "Come Pour the Wine" and "Portraits" from Arbor House. And best sellers in paperback like "The Thorn Birds" and "Ashes in the Wind" from Avon.

King Features, home of "Popeye" and "Blondie," is Hearst too. And that's not to mention other industries we're involved in. Like forest products, real estate and ranching.

But basically, if you can read it, watch it or hear it, chances are Hearst is involved in it.

We inform you, entertain you, challenge you.

And we like to think your life would feel a little emptier if we weren't around.

Rains create chaos in 5-5A

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Mother Nature's rains and Easter vacation has thrown the District 5-5A baseball race into a chaotic state of affairs.

Four of the district's teams have finished the first half race while the other four have makeup games to play to complete the first half. Abilene Cooper, Abilene High, Big Spring and San Angelo have ended the first half while Midland Lee has to play Midland High and Odessa High still has to meet Odessa Permian to wrap up the first half action.

Second half play was supposed to get underway Saturday with Cooper going to San Angelo and Big Spring at Abilene High. But rains washed out both contests. The Tall City coaches had decided earlier to give their players the weekend off due to Easter. Saturday's Permian at Midland High and Midland Lee at OHS are tentatively scheduled to be made up a week from Thursday.

ONE GAME of major importance to the first half's final standings is still to be played. Lee needs a victory over MHS to tie for the first-half crown with Abilene High and Cooper with 5-2 marks. If Lee should lose the contest, Midland High, Lee and Big Spring would end the first half at 4-3, one game behind Cooper and AHS. The Lee-MHS game was originally set for last Tuesday but rains washed it out. Odessa High and Permian also have a first half game to make up. OHS is 2-4 in the first half race while Permian stands 1-5.

Tim Whalen's Purple Pack gets a jump on the rest of the district when MHS plays at 4 p.m. at Memorial Stadium diamond against District 2-AAAA Monahans. Tuesday, MHS swings back into district play when the Bulldogs host Big Spring. In the first meeting of the year, MHS edged the Steers 13-10 when a triple play by the Pack snuffed out a seventh inning Big Spring rally. After taking Wednesday off, MHS clashes with Lee Thursday in the important makeup game with Lee at the Memorial Stadium diamond at 4 p.m.

COACH ERNIE JOHNSON and his Rebels, 4-2, 10-6, will be on the road Tuesday to face a resurgent San Angelo Bobcats, 2-5, 5-10. In the first meeting of the year between the two schools, Lee drubbed the Bobcats 15-0.

The Bobcats are an interesting story. Following a slow start, 0-5, in district, an editorial appeared in a San Angelo paper decrying the way the Cats played the game of baseball. The items must have spurred the Bobcats on since they have won their last two outings. Lee will hope to cut short the Cats' winning streak and start on its own.

Anthony makes bid

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Red-hot Earl Anthony this week bids to become the first three-time winner in the 17-year history of the $150,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions, professional bowling's top event.

Competition in the event opens Wednesday and continues through Saturday, preceded by today's Professional Bowlers Association Hall of Fame installation and a pro-am tournament Tuesday.

Try this on Mrs., then duck quick

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Pawtucket Red Sox pitcher Luis Aponte went home at 2 in the morning after watching 19 innings of baseball and pitching four innings in relief to be immediately confronted by his wife, Xiomara.

"My wife said, 'Where have you been?' and I said, 'At the ballpark.' She said, 'You're lying.'" Aponte said Sunday.

When he went back to McCoy Stadium later that morning, he found that the game with the Rochester Red Wings turned into the longest ever played in organized baseball.

The two International League teams battled for 32 innings over 8 hours and 7 minutes to a 2-2 tie that was postponed at 4:09 a.m. by league President

Harold Cooper when Pawtucket officials called him at his Grove City, Ohio home and asked what to do.

Cooper told them to resume the game at 2 that afternoon, but both teams agreed to postpone it until June 23rd, when they next meet in Pawtucket. Rochester manager Doc Edwards, who managed the Midland Cubs in 1975, had conferred with superiors and asked for a break.

"We're messing with young players and we don't want to ruin a career for one game," Edwards said. "The bodies just aren't there in the minor leagues."

The news hit the locker rooms as players gathered to sign a baseball headed for the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. to mark the event.

"Why wait?" said Pawtucket outfielder Chico Walker, who scored the two-out, ninth-inning run that put the game into extra innings and had been thinking about "going for the downs" in his next turn at the plate. "Everybody was ready."

But if the minds were ready, some of the bodies were not. Rochester catcher Dave Höppert put in 31 innings behind the plate.

"This game would have been over in nine innings and we would have won if the wind hadn't been blowing in so much," said Pawtucket first baseman Dave Koza, who got four hits in 13 at bats. "There were four or five shots that would have been out of the park on a normal day."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Trevino wins T of C MONY

By The Associated Press

GOLF — Lee Trevino fired a three-under-par 69 and beat Ray Floyd by two strokes to win the MONY Tournament of Champions, his first triumph in California in 15 years. Trevino, who marked his 14th consecutive year with at least one PGA Tour victory, finished with a course record-tying 273 total, 15 under par on the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course. Floyd had a final-round 70 and finished second at 275. Bruce Lietzke was third with a closing 70 and a 278 total.

Dave Eichelberger, who missed a three-foot putt on the 72nd hole, birdied the first hole of a three-way playoff with Bob Murphy and Mark O'Meara to capture the $100,000 Tallahassee Open. Eichelberger fired a 2-under 70 to complete a four-round total of 17-under-par 271 over the 7,124-yard Killbuck Golf and Country Club course. Chi Chi Rodriguez and Brad Bryant were both two strokes behind Greg Powers at 274. O'Meara checked in with a 67 and Murphy had a 69.

Beth Daniel sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole to defeat Donna Caponi and win the Florida Lady Citrus tournament. Three other players — Patty Sheehan, Cindy Hill and amateur Patti Rizzo — were involved in a five-way playoff in the $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association event, bogeyed the first extra hole, a par 5, and dropped out.

Daniel and Caponi both parred the first playoff hole and advanced to the par 3, 187-yard 16th, where Daniel earned the victory.

Amy Alcott shot a 1-under-par 74 for a 54-hole total of 221 to claim her third victory in Japan by capturing the first Mitsukoshi international by two shots over Ayako Okamoto of Japan.

TENNIS — Jimmy Connors completed a 6-1, 7-6 victory over Balazs Taroczy of Hungary in the Monte Carlo semifinals.

John McEnroe beat fourth-seeded Bill Scanlon 6-3, 6-3 in a semifinal of the Jack Kramer Open and will meet sixth-seeded Sandy Mayer, a 6-4, 6-2 winner over Nick Saviano in the championship match.

BOWLING — Wayne Webb connected for four straight strikes midway through the championship game to overtake top seed Mark Roth and win the $95,000 Greater Hartford Open.

Webb, who was seeded second going into the final round, bowled 484 for two games, beating Bob Handley 257-195 in the semifinal game and Roth 227-199 for his eighth Professional Bowlers Association title.

HORSE RACING — Obratsovy, $3.40, captured the $200,000 San Juan Capistrano Invitational Handicap by a neck over Exploded at Santa Anita.

UT wins golf, clinches baseball

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Houston's Ray Barr put together three sub-par rounds to win individual honors Sunday in the 1981 Southwest Conference Golf Championship while the University of Texas took team honors with its ninth title in 18 years.

Barr, whose victory made him only the seventh player to grab back-to-back SWC titles, fired a 70 Sunday to go with previous rounds of 70 and 69 to finish with a total of 209, two shots ahead of Texas A&M's Gary Krueger.

Texas A&M nudges Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Rodney Hodde hit a pair of homers and drove in three runs Sunday as Texas A&M dropped Texas Tech 6-5 in a Southwest Conference baseball game.

Hodde drilled his first four-bagger in the opening inning to give the Aggies a 2-0 lead, but the Red Raiders moved out front in the bottom of the inning on a homer by Jimmy Zachry.

Steve Davis got the win for A&M, which moved its mark to 24-14-1 for the year and 4-8-1 in the SWC. David Carroll drew the loss for Tech, which dropped to 24-16 for the season and 4-9 in the conference.

Texas divides with Baylor

WACO, Texas (AP) — Robert Culley powered a grand-slam home run to ignite Texas for a seven-run ninth inning and a 13-6 win over Baylor in the second game of a doubleheader, as the Longhorns clinched at least a tie for the Southwest Conference baseball championship. Baylor had upset the 'Horns in the opener, 5-2.

In the opener, Baylor pitcher Lee Tunnell went the distance, giving up four hits and logging five strikeouts, handing Texas its fifth loss of the year against 43 wins. The 'Horns are 13-2 in SWC play, while Baylor's marks are 20-20 and 6-12.

Rice sweeps Texas Christian

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Mike McGee drilled an 11th-inning home run Sunday that snapped a 2-2 tie and gave the Rice Owls a sweep of a Southwest Conference baseball doubleheader with Texas Christian. Rice won the opener 2-1.

Williams got the win for Rice, now 29-19 for the year and 10-8 in the SWC.

Celtics, 76ers for NBA title?

By The Associated Press

Only one of the two teams that tied for the best record in the National Basketball Association will be in the playoff finals. Its opponent will be a team that didn't even have a winning record.

Call it the luck of the draw, but the best-of-seven NBA semifinals beginning Tuesday will find the Boston Celtics entertaining the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Conference and the Kansas City Kings playing host to the Houston Rockets in the West.

Boston and Philadelphia posted 62-20 records during the regular season while Kansas City and Houston were 40-42. The semifinal matchups were assured Sunday when the 76ers edged the Milwaukee Bucks 99-98 while the Kings upset the Pacific Division champion Phoenix Suns 95-88. Both victories came in the seventh game of best-of-seven quarterfinal series.

JULIUS ERVING scored 28 points and Bobby Jones had 21 for Philadelphia, which had to pull out the victory after blowing a 16-point lead with 4:41 left in the third period.

A 22-5 Milwaukee rally put the Bucks on top 80-79 with 9:09 remaining and the lead seasawed until Lionel Hollins' jump shot and two free throws by Caldwell Jones gave the 76ers a 97-93 advantage. Milwaukee's Marques Johnson scored a game-high 36 points.

MEANWHILE, Reggie King poured in 23 points, including 10 in the pivotal third period, as the injury-riddled Kings defeated the Suns in Phoenix.

The Suns, who bounced back from a 3-1 deficit to even the series, led only briefly in the second half. Four points by Alvan Adams gave them a 48-45 lead one minute into the third quarter. But King then keyed a 17-4 Kansas City spree with nine points over a 5:38 span for a 60-52 lead.

Ernie Grunfeld also scored 23 points for the Kings and Scott Wedman finished with 19. For Phoenix, Dennis Johnson scored a game-high 28 points, 20 in the second half, and Walter Davis had 18.

Cubs flee Amarillo for sunny El Paso

AMARILLO—After losing three out of four in this cold, isolated Panhandle city, the Midland Cubs were happy to escape today to scenic El Paso for a five-game series before returning home Saturday night against, ugh, the same Gold Sox they just left.

Amarillo swept a doubleheader Sunday with a quick, sure knife that didn't cause much bleeding, but it hurt, nonetheless. The first game was a 2-1 eight inning loss in which the Sox tied it in the seventh and then won it after two had been retired in the eighth.

Tim Hamm simply whitewashed the Cubs on six hits in the nightcap, 4-0.

Lefthander Craig Lefferts seemed on his way to a second win in the opener after scoring an unearned Cub run in the fifth. Jack Upton walked, moved to second on a Mike Diaz bunt, took third on the ensuing throwing error and then scored on Carmelo Martinez' fly ball. It was to be the Cubs' only run all day.

Dan Gauspel's lead off homer in the seventh tied it and then, with two out, both strikeouts, Pyburn, Jerry DeSimone and Aaron Kane singled to win it.

Carlos Gil lost the second game, literally being knocked out of the box and carried from the field when hit in the knee by Jerry Johnson's line drive in the fourth. Gil was behind at the time as a result of a first inning run that came on three walks and a passed ball and another run in the third when DeSimone stole home. Ron Tingley hit a two-out homer in the fourth to complete the job.

Blues, Flyers lose

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

It's not how many... it's how good. Some teams, such as the Minnesota North Stars, can take nearly 50 shots on goal and fill the score sheet. Other clubs, such as the Philadelphia Flyers, do the same thing and come away empty.

On Sunday night, the North Stars blitzed the Buffalo goal, firing 49 shots at Sabres goaltender Don Edwards and skating away with a 6-4 National Hockey League quarterfinal playoff victory. And the Flyers sent 48 shots at Calgary goalie Pat Riggin, only to see the second-year netminder reel 47 in the Flames' 2-1 triumph.

With their victory, the North Stars grabbed a commanding 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, which they can wrap up tonight. And the Flames led Philadelphia 2-1.

North Stars 6, Sabres 4

Minnesota moved within a game of sweeping the Sabres, who were fifth in the overall standings this season to the North Stars' ninth, with their sixth consecutive playoff victory. The North Stars swept Boston in the preliminary round.

Minnesota bolted to a 3-0 first-period lead on goals by Dino Ciccarelli, Brad Palmer and Al MacAdam. Buffalo tied it as Alan Haworth, Gil Perreault and Ric Seiling tallied.

But the Stars got goals 23 seconds apart in the final period by rookies Kevin Maxwell and Neal Broten to take a 5-3 lead.

Maxwell snapped the tie with a quick wrist shot at 8:46, then Broten, a member of the gold medal-winning United States Olympic hockey team at Lake Placid, put in a rebound with Edwards caught out of position.

Flames 2, Flyers 1

Riggin made 42 saves in his playoff debut Friday, then topped that by five in holding off the Flyers. It was the second straight game that Philadelphia, which was sixth in the regular season to Calgary's seventh, severely outshot the Flames only to lose.

Without Riggin's sprawling save on a shot by Ken Linseman in the closing seconds, with Flyers goalie Rick St. Croix pulled for an extra attacker, the Flames would have been pushed to overtime.

Dodgers blank Diablos

Steve Marsden provided the pitching and Tom Beyers delivered the key hit as San Antonio Dodgers shut out the El Paso Diablos, 3-0, in a Texas League baseball game Sunday.

In other Texas League action, Amarillo swept a doubleheader from Midland, 2-1 and 4-0, Arkansas beat Tulsa, 6-4, and Shreveport defeated Jackson, 6-2.

Marsden, 1-1, allowed the Diablos only nine hits in pitching a shutout. Beyers' double drove in Steve Sax in the third inning with the only run the Dodgers needed for the victory.

Oakland sets mark

After 11 straight, A's lose nightcap

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It was one of those good-news, bad-news days for Billy Martin.

The good news was that his Oakland A's broke the modern record for most victories at the start of a major league season with a 6-1 conquest of the Seattle Mariners in the opener of a doubleheader for their 11th straight.

The bad news was that the A's lost the second game 3-2.

"I would have preferred to win that second game to setting the record," said the Oakland manager.

"Records are all right — but they don't give me a thrill. Wins and pennants are what get me excited."

IF MARTIN couldn't get pumped up about the A's record-breaking accomplishment, however, baseball purists can. Their blazing start surpassed the accomplishments of the 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers, the 1962 Pittsburgh Pirates and the 1966 Cleveland Indians, all of whom won 10 in a row at the start of their respective seasons. The all-time record is 20 by St. Louis of the old Union Association in 1884.

The doubleheader at the Oakland Coliseum was filled with tension and fights from start to finish, and while the A's won the first game, they also lost pitcher Mike Norris to injury. Norris was thrown to the ground in a second-inning melee, which began after Norris threw close to Seattle hitter Lenny Randle. Randle took several steps toward the mound, catcher Jeff Newman got in his way and both went down as players from both teams rushed onto the field.

NORRIS left the game after the sixth inning and was taken to a hospital for X-rays of his pitching arm. But Martin said he thought the injury was not serious.

"He had some numbness in his fingers, and his shoulder was stiff, but we think this will go away," said Martin of the pitcher, whose record now is 3-0.

Rickey Henderson tripled and doubled to spark Oakland in the opener. Henderson's two-run triple put the A's ahead in the third inning and they took a 5-0 lead with three runs in the fourth, two of them on a double by catcher Jeff Newman.

Henderson doubled to open the seventh inning and scored one out later on a single by Dave Revering.

Relievers Craig Minetto and Jeff Jones preserved the victory for Norris. The loss went to former A's pitcher Glenn Abbott, 0-3.

Royals 3, Orioles 2

Lee May drove in two runs and Jerry Grote knocked in another to carry Kansas City past Baltimore behind the combined five-hit pitching of Rich Gale and Renie Martin.

May, the 38-year-old former Oriole, doubled home Frank White from second for Kansas City's first run off Mike Flanagan in the second inning. May, who collected three hits, singled home another run in the fourth inning, then 38-year-old Grote, the former New York Met who ended a two-year retirement, doubled home another tally to make it 3-0 for the Royals' eventual winning run.

Blue Jays 9, Tigers 1

Mark Bombach recorded his first American League victory and Al Woods drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to pace Toronto over Detroit. Bombach, obtained earlier in the month from the New York Mets, limited the Tigers to seven hits over 7-3 innings before being relieved by Roy Lee Jackson, another former Met. Bombach struck out three and walked four.

Rangers 4, Yankees 0

Left-hander Jon Matlack, shelled in his first two outings, handcuffed New York on four hits as Texas blanked the heavy-hitting Yankees.

Matlack, pitching in Arlington Stadium where he has a 21-10 record, worked out of a no-out, bases-loaded jam in the third inning and then breezed the rest of the way. He retired 15 batters in a row at one point before Jerry Mumphrey singled in the ninth, walked one and struck out three.

Red Sox 9, White Sox 4

Gary Allenson's three-run homer in the fourth inning triggered Boston over Chicago. Allenson's home run came after Ross Baumgarten hit Joe Rudi with a pitch to open the Boston fourth and Glen Hoffman singled.
