On Day 444: Flight to freedom begun?

WASHINGTON (AP) - Jimmy Carter, pressing to end the hostage ordeal at the dawn of Ronald Reagan's presidency, settled one last account with Iran today - an act that brought 52 American captives to the very verge of freedom.

Carter, leaving the White House with Reagan en route to the Capitol for the transfer of the presidency, was asked if he had any news. He waved the query aside, as if to say, simply, no. It was 11:05 a.m., 55 minutes before the end of Carter's presiden-

Darkness at the Tehran airport caused a late delay in the hostages' departure, due to blackout conditions imposed as a result of Iran's war with Iraq. But runway lights were turned on and an Iranian official said one of two Algerian planes had taken off. It was not known if any hostages were aboard.

On his way to St. John's church near the White House, Reagan told reporters, "I think all of us are delighted. Now we'll just wait until we know they are airborne.

Carter worked overnight in the Oval Office with his vice president and two intimate friends, Carter bartered final contract terms and then ordered the return of Iran's frozen assets - triggering the hostages' release after 444 days' agonizing captiving a decompression period that would delay the homecoming. A team from Washington, including former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, was to leave for Wiesbaden as soon as the hostages were airborne.

It was shortly after 3 a.m. EST when Iran and the United States resolved an 11th-hour disagreement that delayed the hostages' freedom one more day. Immediately, Carter set in motion the transfer of billions of dollars of Iranian assets.

The assets, frozen by Carter following the Nov. 4, 1979 hostage-taking, were shifted into an escrow account in London for return to Tehran. This wasthe last step required of Carter for the hostages' release.

"At 6: 47 this morning, the president was notified by Secretary of the Treasury William Miller that the frozen Iranian assets had been transferred to the escrow account of the Algerian Central Bank at the Bank of England," Powell said. "This step completely fulfills all steps agreed to by the United States prior to the release of the hostages.

pressure applied by each side. Powell said the Iranians had been told if there were no settlement today, "in effect the new administration will be able to dismantle everything that's been done if they want to.

Iran's chief negotiator, Bezhad Nabavi, said his government would set a deadline for U.S. banks to transfer frozen Iranian assets to the Bank of England and "if this is not done, harsher decisions will definitely be

"We had prepared ourselves to put

Carter spent his last night as president in the Oval Office with Vice President Walter F. Mondale and two longtime confidants, Charles Kirbo and Hamilton Jordan.

In a capital preoccupied with the hostage drama, Reagan stayed clear of the dispute.

Assets in place, negotiator says

By The Associated Press

Iran's chief hostage negotiator said today frozen Iranian assets were in place and the 52 American hostages were "ready to fly," but there was no word that the captives had been released to board the Algerian planes that were to carry them to freedom.

One official at Tehran's Mehrabad airport said at 5:10 p.m. Tehran time, 8:40 a.m. EST, that the hostages are supposed to be leaving "about one

Behzad Nabavi, the key hostage negotiator for Iran, said Iran still required notification that frozen Iranian funds had been placed under Algerian control

In Washington, where President Carter was trying to end the hostage ordeal in the final hours of his presidency, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Algerian intermediaries had officially notified Iran.

The Bank of England confirmed that billions of dollars in frozen Iranian assets had been transferred by the United States in exchange for the hostages' freedom and put into an Algerian escrow account. But the latest word from Algiers, where American and Algerian officials tried to wrap up the final details, was that the funds were not yet under Algerian control.

Nabavi, the Iranian negotiator, called the movement of funds a "positive step" and said as soon as the transfer was "duly completed the hostages would be released. "The hostages are now ready to fly," Nabavi told Iran's official Pars news agency. "All preparations have been made and as soon as the Algerian government announces that our frozen assets have been deposited in the account of the Algerian government in the Bank of England, the hostages will go home to their families." In Algiers a foreign ministry spokesman confirmed that orders had been issued to transfer the Iranian assets, but said they were not yet under Algerian control. He said American and Algerian officials had worked through the night on the transfer details and when the assets come under Algeria's control Iran will be informed, technically lifting the last bar to release of the hostages.

An Algerian doctor who examined the 52 hostages seized 444 days ago told Tehran Radio the general health of the Americans was "satisfacto-

He said they could resume normal lives at once and it was advisable "that their entry into active life be accelerated," rather than slowed down by a scheduled stay in a U.S. military hospital in West Germany. However, the doctor, who was not identified, said the hostages "may in the future have some problems and difficulties of a medical nature as a result of living for several months in your country." He did not elaborate. Nabavi claimed that the financial dispute that held up release of the Americans was a result of rivalry between the outgoing and incoming U.S. administrations

On Monday, Nabavi had harsh words for the American posture during the negotiations and said with the settlement, "we managed to rub in the dirt the nose of the world's biggest oppressor and superpower.

ANOTHER CALF, which wasn't then primed for showmanship, rammed Greenwood 4-H'er Andrea Graham, 13, twice in the belly; she was trying to line up him for the judge's critical gaze.

"I'm fine," she insisted after the second ram; she, obviously shaken, was leaning onto the fence. The steer, like an enraged bull ready to charge

Before Andrea could do anything. some seasoned fellows who know the unpredictablity of a roiled up steer, picked up the girl and hoisted her over the fence. The steer apparently was upset by all the fanfare and by his "going public" for the first time.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan was inaugurated 40th President of the United States today, his promise of a "new beginning" a hopeful clarion for 52 Americans held captive in Iran throughout his successful quest for the White House.

At noon, to the peal of bells, then a cannon salute. Reagan became the oldest man ever sworn in to the office he sought three times, over a dozen years.

So power passes from James Earl Carter Jr., Democrat of Georgia, to Ronald Wilson Reagan, 69, conservative, Republican, veteran of Hollywood, governor of California, over whelming choice of his countrymen.

Daniel, 39, an unsuccessful 1978 candidate for Texas attorney general, also was a nephew of Bill Daniel, former governor of Guam.

His wife, Vickie, 33, was admitted to a Liberty hospital, where an official said she was suffering from shock. Eckols said he ordered a deputy to keep watch on the hospital

"When we found her, she was real hysterical," Eckols said.

The body was found in a hallway in the ranch-style Daniel home a mile north of Liberty and Eckols said a shotgun, rifle and two spent rifle shells were recovered. He said no signs of a break-in were found.

The white-tie inauguration was the climax of a four-day celebration that filled Washington with rented limousines, rejoicing Republicans, and Reagan's friends from Hollywood hostages in freedom after the inauguration. Carter had hoped to do so before leaving office, but time ran Reagan asked Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Robert Carswell and his deputy to stay on for the first few days of the new Republican administration, to deal with implementation of the hostage release agreement. They were key men in shaping its intricate terms for the release of frozen Iranian assets as soon as the hostages are released.

The new president was to dine at the Capitol with leaders of the Senate and House

Then came Reagan's parade, more than an hour of marching bands and military units, floats and men on horseback; a band concert at the Capitol; fireworks at twilight; and a long night of formal inaugural balls.

Late in the day, the Senate was to act on confirmation of the bulk of Reagan's Cabinet, all members save Raymond L. Donovan, nominated for secretary of labor, cleared by committees for approval.

The Reagans were to make the rounds of nine inaugural balls, blacktie affairs that sold out to 40,000 people at $100 a ticket. For $10,000, a well-heeled Republican could take a box at one of the balls. Ball tickets were hard tickets to come by; more than 100,000 people were in Washington for the inauguration. The big band sound was back for the Reagan festivities - Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Woody Herman, Les

There were satellite balls at more than 100 cities across the nation, with music and entertainment beamed in by closed-circuit television. The inauguration produced an early administration cost overrun, with the price tag estimated at more than $8 million. That was over the budget, but inaugural managers expected to break even or better with proceeds of the balls, tickets and television fees for the gala, souvenirs and other moneymakers. It all ends at 1 a.m., at the White House. And on Wednesday, the celebration yields to the first working day of a new, conservative, Republican administration.

Kenneth Cook, the steer judge, was deliberate. Apparently, he was looking for those well-balanced calves that weigh up to 1,500 pounds and are on the verge of losing their baby teeth and their calf-hood. That comes at about 18 months of age mand for the first time in a quarter century, was ready to respond with quick action. Its leaders hoped to have as much of the Reagan Cabinet filled by day's end as possible and rapid-fire votes were planned on the less controversial nominees.

Four years ago, it was a Democratc-controlled Senate extending similar rush treatment to President Carter's Cabinet choices, approving most of them on Inauguration Day.

Although Reagan announced his Cabinet weeks ago, the Senate cannot pelform its constitutional role to advise and consent until the nominations have been formally submitted. This Reagan will do moments after

Reagan prays at traditional church

WASHINGTON (AP) - To the pealing of a bell cast by Paul Revere, Ronald Reagan is making an inauguration day pilgrimage to a church where presidents since James Madison have prayed. Returning to a tradition begun by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Reagan included services at St. John's Church, across Lafayette Square from the White House, on his schedule today.

The church, built in 1815 as the second Episcopal house of worship in Washington, is called "The Church of the Presidents" because every chief executive since Madison has/attended it at least once.

Roosevelt began the tradition of inauguration-day services at St. John's in 1932. He continued it in 1936 and 1940 but passed up the one-block journey in 1944, when the weather was bad and he was in ill health.

Presidents Harry Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower continued the practice, but John F. Kennedy, the first Roman Catholic president, broke More recent presidents have also cone to other churches on inauguration day, although all have attended St. John's at least once. President Gerald R. Ford, like Madison an Episcopalian, attended regularly. President Carter, whose inaugural day festivities began with a prayer meeting at the Lincoln Memorial, attended the First Baptist Church

President Richard M. Nixon attended an interfaith prayer breakfast at the State Department the day he was sworn in. President Lyndon B. Johnson went to a service at the National City Christian Church.

Reagan, who goes to a Presbyterian ehurch when in Los Angeles, attended National Presbyterian here Sunday, but associates have indicated he may worship at various Washington churches as president

The Rev. Billy Graham was chosen to lead the opening prayer at the inaugural-day service after greetings from Dr. John Harper, the 13th rector of St. John's, and the singing of "O God, Our Help in Ages Past. The Rev. Donn D. Moomaw, pastor of Reagan's Los Angeles church, was designated to read the Scripture lesson, Matthew 5: 1-16, which contains the familiar Beatitudes beginning. 'Blessed are the poor in spirit.' After closing prayers, including one beseeching the Almighty to "endue with the spirit of wisdom those to whom in thy Name we entrust the authority of government," the program called for the congregation to stand and sing "America."

The traditional "President's Pew." No. 54, was set aside for the Reagan

The building was designed by Benjamin Latrobe, who also worked on the Capitol and the White House. It has been altered a number of times. but remains dominated by the original saucer-shaped dome, pierced by a lantern-like cupola.

Union leader threatens workers

Corp. have had a stern warning from the head of their union to approve a pay cut or face "dissolution" of the company.

Douglas A. Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, delivered the warning Monday after the members ratify concessions totalling $622 million.

Chrysler locals begin voting Wednesday on the new agreement, the third set of contract concessions in 16 months. The locals must report tallies by Feb.

UAW Vice President Marc Stepp said Chrysler had arranged for votes to be taken in the plants if necessary, an action that is almost unheard of. Usually, ratification ballots are cast at union halls. Chrysler has 61,000 active UAW members in the United States and Canada and 47,000 more on longterm layoff, all of whom may vote.

As the Chrysler Council, which consists of about 250 officers of the local unions, was debating its

The chance of Chrysler not getting the money is nconceivable," Fraser said. But no worker should think the company and the union can get better terms by going back to the loan board if the contract revisions are not approved, he said.

Fraser said he thought union voting would be 'decisively" in favor, but added, "I could be

After personal income increases of 1.3 percent in October and 1.1 percent in November, Commerce Department figures released Monday showed a December rise of only 0.9 percent. That placed the yearly total at 11.2 percent.

Inflation rose just over 13 percent in 1979, while personal income increased 12.9 percent, according to previous government figures.

The Commerce Department also reported Monday that housing starts were down slightly in December for the first time since May and that building permits

George Bush 'looking forward' to his role in administration

By JAY PERKINS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — He's about to become the Cheshire Cat of this political wonderland, disappearing but for an occasional public smile, and yet George Bush says he's looking forward to his new-found role.

He doesn't mind fading from the public view, he says. In fact, he considers it an essential part of being vice president.

The duties of the man who gave Ronald Reagan his toughest challenge for the Republican presidential nomination are as nebulous as the form of Alice's tour guide through another, earlier wonderland.

Bush, who gained the vice presidential nomination only after Reagan decided he could not give former President Gerald R. Ford a co-presidency, set forth his views on his new job in an exclusive interview.

He says he doesn't have a lot of details about what he will be allowed to do. And the details he does have indicate "I won't be doing as much substance as I want.

He readily says "You know, there's a lot of expectations (by vice presidents) that are unfulfilled." And he indicates he doesn't expect to shatter that tradition, saying "I just think I may have some ideas of doing things, certain things, and they won't work

Bush said he expects to spend the next four years as a behind-thescenes adviser to President Ronald

He says he's not only willing but absolutely intends to disappear intohis new job. And he adds "I'm not coming into this with overexpectations" of his authority.

Bush says outgoing vice president Walter F. Mondale probably set the best pattern in the job.

The former Texas oilman says that if you asked him "what specifically did Mondale do, what goal, what pat tern...I couldn't name a specific.

But what he did is to continue to have the confidence of the president

there and work to fulfill the goals of the administration. That's what you're supposed to be doing. You're not supposed to be posturing out there and trying to get your own name in the paper.

"The way I've sorted it out in my mind is to try to avoid a lot of specific assignments, give the president advice but...do it quietly. Be available to do a wide array of things that can be useful to the president. Work to see no staff jealosies or rivalries spring up. Be informed.

"In this office you have access to a tremendous amount of information, particularly the way Gov. Reagan has indicated to his own staff - and that will filter through the bureaucracy that he wants me treated. Be a wellinformed person, see people, interesting people, and learn. I look forward to it," he says.

Bush says he believes he has Reagan's confidence even though the two have dissimilar backgrounds and do not always agree on every issue.

Stars gather for gala

WASHINGTON (AP) - The show business friends Ronald Reagan left behind in Hollywood came east with song, praise and putdowns at an entertainment extravaganza celebrating the inauguration of the nation's 40th president.

When Monday night's nationally televised inaugural gala ended, the man who stood at the threshold of the White House told more than 17,000 cheering Republican admirers that his personal transition to power had finally become real to him. 'Almost every day (since the election) people have said to Nancy and myself, 'Well, has it really sunk in?" Reagan told the crowd after he took center stage to conclude the 21/2-hour show: He said the answer was "no" until one point during the concert when "I leaned over to her (Nancy) and Reagan did not say when that feeling occurred, but the thought might have been planted by actor Charlton Heston, who introduced a dramatic reading by noting that at noon today Reagan would "assume the most awesome responsibility ever put in a human being.... He will forever be wrapped in legend." The sparkling crowd, dressed in tuxedoes and evening gowns and sporting numerous full-length fur coats, paid up to $150 for the giant bash. Venders sold oysters on the half shell, erab claws and offered champagne to the guests. Frank Sinatra, a close Reagan friend who produced the show, got a standing ovation and concluded the concert with his old-standby song, "New York, New York The crowd also gave standing ovations to Gen.

Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five-star general, and actor Jimmy Stewart, who came on-stage to hail the start of the new administration. Most of the evening, however, struck a much lighter note as master-of-ceremonies Johnny Carson, comedian Bob Hope and impressionist Rich Little roasted the Reagans George Bush and his wife, Barbara.

The Reagans, sitting in pale blue wing chairs on a raised platform surrounded by flowers, laughed frequently and heartily at the jokes made at their Selling Reagan-Bush buttons and souvenirs near the U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) Ronald Reagan plans to begin his presidency by demonstrating his commitment to some of the major themes of his campaign - cutting the size and influence of the federal government and eliminating waste and fraud in government pro-

If the U.S. hostages are freed, another of Reagan's first acts as president will be to name his predecessor, Jimmy Carter, a special envoy to fly to Wiesbaden, West Germany, to greet the Americans at the end of their long ordeal.

Four executive orders are ready for Reagan's signature during his first week in office as 40th president

They would place a freeze on federal hiring. abolish the Council of Wage and Price Stability, suspend for review all pending federal regulations, and order Cabinet officers to initiate programs to discover waste and fraud in their departments

Perhaps the biggest push in the opening days of the Reagan presidency will be the continuing effort to find ways to cut the $740 billion federal budget Carter proposed for the fiscal year begin-fat," was Reagan's smiling reaction when handed a copy of the budget Carter sent Congress five days before his term ended. Reagan aides hope to cut $30 billion from the Carter budget.

The hiring freeze was one of Reagan's most frequently stated campaign promises. Carter imposed a hiv-ing freeze a year ago under which executive branch agencies were allowed to fill only one of every two vacancies, that occurred after Fe'b. 29, 1980. But Reagan aides say the new freeze, will be tighter than what Carter imposed

The Carter administration's latest report on the freeze said, it resulted in a net reduction of 20,-700 federal employees as of Sept. 30, 1980 - about seven months after it started

In addition, Congress imposed a limit on the number of federal employees when it passed the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978. In that law, Congress directed that federal civilian employ ment through Sept. 30, 19'31, should not exceed the level on Sept. 30 the ruling was none other than Harry Goldwater. South mentioned that there had been a lead out of turn, and Goldwater explained declarer's options, one of a diamond barred. Since South had not seen his partner's hand, he did not relish the prospect of having to play a grand slam against the opening lead of an ace. It did not dawn on him that his partner could have leaped to seven hearts missing two aces. Playing what he considered to be the percentages, he requested West to lead anything but a diamond.

West settled on the ace of spades, and that meant down one. Had declarer applied Goldwater's Law and accepted the lead out of turn, he would have made his grand slam. Goldwater walked away from the table feeling that justice had been served.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices moved narrowly Monday as last-minute snags developed in the agreement to free the American hostages.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up for most of the afternoon, ended with a drop of 2.30 to 970.99 as declines and advances were almost even among New York Stock Exchange issues.

On the final full day of the Carter administration, there were also reports indicating the economy may be slowing, with housing starts declining in December and personal income rising at a slower pace than in the previous month.

A hostage agreement was announced Monday morning, but an apparent problem was raised later, according to a U.S. official, when Iran demanded assurance that any frozen assets discovered in the future would be returned to the country, and the hostages were still in Iran as the market closed.

Volume on the Big Board was a moderate 36.47 million shares, compared to 43.26 million shares on Friday, as investors waited to see if the newest set of hostage hopes would be dashed The NYSE composite index of common stocks was down 23 to 77.10 but the American Stock Exchange market value index managed a gain of .09 to 348.03.

Since Jan. 19, 1977, the final closing figures before President Carter took office, the Dow Jones average is up just 0.23 percent, from 968.67. But the NYSE average was is up 36.9 percent, from 56.36, and the Amex index is up a stunning 212.4 percent, from 111.42. American Telephone & Telegraph was up % to 51 Monday as the NYSE volume leader, but Pacific Telephone fell 1% to 13%. AT&T's tentative settlement of a federal antitrust suit reportedly requires it to sell its controlling interest in Pacific, its Califor nia subsidiary. Petroleum issues were generally lower, with active issues including Union of California, off 1 to 43%, Texaco, down 1/4 to 45 % and Standard of Indiana, off 1, to 77. Also lower were some major banks, which stand to lose large deposits under the agreement freeing Iranian deposits in return for release of the hostages. Chase Manhattan lost 1/2 to 46 %. Citicorp was off 1/4 to 23 1/4 and J.P. Morgan fell 3, to 523, Among companies reporting higher earnings were Digital Equipment, which rose 1% to 83%, and Tandy, which dropped 1% to 41% as the increase failed to match some Wall Street predictions Standard & Poor's average of 400 industrial issues was down .56 to the door to requiring the

Harrelson cases are still pending

HOUSTON (AP) - Convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, who has been questioned by federal agents concerning the 1979 killing of a federal judge, must wait until April 6 to learn whether all cases pending against him must be thrown out.

A hearing on Harrelson's claim that investigators illegally tape-recorded his jail conversations was postponed until then by a state district judge, who refused Monday to dismiss a subpoena served on an FBI agent in the case

The decision by Judge Thomas Routt followed a brief private conversation with Mary Sinderson, an assistant U.S. attorney who asked that the subpoena for FBI Special Agent Mario Gonzalez be thrown out.

Harrelson's lawyer, Bob Tarrant, later told newsmen an anonymous caller informed him that Gonzalez had installed the controversial tape recorders. Harrelson claims he discovered the recorders while talking to a stepdaughter in the Harris County Jail last month.

Harrelson, 42, who has been in the jail since September on state charges, also has been questioned in the feder al investigation of the 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr. in San Antonio.

History may judge solutions poorly

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Having devised two of the more complex financing deals ever attempted by the U.S. government - the Chrysler rescue plan and release of the Iranian hostages - the Carter administration

But that doesn't mean the problems also retire. Instead, lawyers will be dealing with the agreements and precedents for years to come, and foreign and domestic policies could be affected in subtle ways.

The hostage settlement, for example, might satisfy the governments involved, but it may not be as acceptable to the institutions and individuals connected with the late Shah's frozen

And if the Chrysler agreement is approved by bankers and workers, it could set a pattern for companies avoiding bankruptcy courts and instead reorganizing under the protection of government guarantees.

In each instance the public praise is overwhelming, because immediate and pressing goals have been satisfied, but over time the settlements could begin to look like expedients rather than sound policy-setters. In the Chrysler case especially, the precedents are obvious: -The executive branch rather than the courts can now be used in corporate hardship cases. Without federal aid Chrysler would be bankrupt, operating under court-appointed offi-

-Assets that belong to all the people might under some circumstances now be assigned for the benefit of a particular few, such as management and shareholders, without the consent of the people.

-Uncompetitive companies may be saved at the expense of production.

save jobs and competition, but the opposite could be saved: A weak company with uncertain employment.

Whatever, and despite differences, the deals are huge accomplishments, especially in the human terms expressed by Walter Mondale. "We've got some right here to put those hostages and their families at a very high priority," said the vice president We want them home.

Much the same thing was said in the Chrysler situation, and with some justification, but then the comparisons end.

Some 140,000 jobs are said to be at stake in the Chrysler situation, which means at least a half-million family members. And perhaps that many more jobs are involved in related supplier industries.

But, whereas the hostages probably would have remained jailed if a settlement weren't reached, there is far less evidence that if Chrysler failed all the jobs mentioned would be lost forever to the country.

In fact, economists who study the Chrysler problem point out that in bankruptcy the company would continue on a diminished scale, and that conceivably it could become more competitive and able to create jobs.

It still might become strong again, and should it do so it would solidify the precedent of a corporation turning to the government rather than the courts. If one can do it, then why not another?

In fact, the possibility would seem to exist that sometime in the future a corporation might present government with the ultimatum: Financial guarantees or the company and all it workers go under. It wouldn't be true, of course, as it is in the Iranian hostage deal, but you can almost place your bets now that it will happen, if it hasn't already.

More Canyon acreage to be offered

By PETER MATTIACE

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - The government hopes to encourage further exploratory gas and oil drilling in the Baltimore Canyon Trough by leasing an additional 1.4 million acres of sea bottom in water deeper and farther off the mid-Atlantic coast.

Less than a dozen witnesses, most from the oil industry, are expected to testify at an environmental impact hearing Monday into Interior Department plans to hold its third mid-Atlantic lease sale next December.

The department's Bureau of Land Management plans a similar hearing Thursday in Norfolk, Va. The government proposes to lease 253 tracts, each of nine square miles, between 64 and 113 miles off the coasts of southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

The tracts have water depths ranging from a relatively shallow 295 feet to nearly 7,800 feet, because the Continental Shelf under the Atlantic Ocean drops off dramatically in the area. The U.S. Geological Survey estimates that about 3.4 billion barrels of oil and 14.2 trillion cubic feet of natural gas could lie under the new

No major opposition to the new mid-Atlantic lease sale is expected. The new tracts include a part of a great subterranean reef believed to stretch along the edge of the Continental Shelf from Canada to the Caribbean Sea. If the new tracts are leased, exploratory drilling would push the industry to the limits of its technology. Although drifling is possible to depths of about 5,000 feet, most offshore drilling takes place in water of less than 500

Later commercial production of discoveries at those depths would be still more difficult. No oil or gas has been recovered from water depths greater than 1,025 feet.

The government's draft environmental impact statement warns the danger of a major oil spill would increase as drilling moves to deeper and more distant areas. But it contends the transportation of oil and gas in tankers and through pipelines would pose a greater pollution danger than actual drilling and production. The oil industry has reported 11 gas strikes and one oil strike in five of the 25 exploratory wells drilled off the New Jersey coast in nearly three years. There have been 18 dry holes. Two companies, Exxon and Texaco, are still drilling

The strikes have come in a very small area about 106 miles east of Atlantic City. There, the industry says, it may soon confirm enough natural gas to allow the first commercial gas field off America's East Enthusiasm about the Baltimore Canyon area has waned, but the industry has not given up. It is awaiting the outcome of Exxon and Texaco's current drilling in the most promising
