

RE-SIGNED was not a very good term to use for the phrase re-filed or that the incumbents are seeking re-election . . . are you still confused?

Mayor Buddy Angle is seeking re-election as well as both aldermen, Paul Clayton and Ott Cash. A newcomer to city politics, Carl Shelton, will be a contestant for one of the aldermen spots.

Last week Hob Smith was program chairman for the local Lions club and had as his guest Mrs. Carolyn Pippin of Haskell.

Mrs. Pippin reviewed an old essay by Virginia Carey Hudson written in 1904 when she was 10 years old!

Mrs. Pippin warned that she would review the book in the first person, and in doing so it was impossible for us to write anything!

It was well executed and if you have a chance to hear her and see her re-enact the script from "O Ye Jiggs & Juleps" be sure to see it!

Knox City's Chamber of Commerce received small brick made from the clay Frank Henderson took back with him after his visit to Knox City seeking materials for a brick factory.

Frank said the clay samples were just as good as he had anticipated and would produce a high quality red brick.

Mrs. Luther Burkett, chairman of the Junior College Steering Committee asked us to select one board member and an alternate to represent Knox Co. as a five member board to meet with state officials on the proposed Junior College for the four county area.

We choose Sam E. Clonts as chairman and Jesse G. Smith of Munday as alternate.

This board is extremely important and we are convinced that Sam and Jesse will give our county the representation we want.

Sam is completing six years on the Knox City school board and Jesse is one of Munday's most progressive merchants and civic boosters.

Later, when the voters are asked to elect two representatives for the county, they will be well qualified and versed on junior college business and could represent us further in selecting a building site.

This, like most really worthwhile projects are not only thankless, pay-less jobs but most people agree education is one of the most important single commodities on the agenda for this day and age.

Just look around and it is obvious that we have far too many people out of work due to a lack of education, or lack of a trade. A junior college would put these men and women back to work.

As far as the raising of taxes—how much money could we save just in Knox County this year if we could cut our relief in half, and find good-paying jobs for those unable to work? We may be wrong but relief and ignorance seem to be the most expensive items we have in our budget.

We are particularly thankful to have the opportunity to work with Munday, for we would like to see both towns work together more often and in better harmony than they have in the past.

Good natured rivalry is fine but we have seen occasions when rivalry or prejudices have not only been detrimental to the towns but to the entire county. This type of thinking, we believe, can lead only to a downward plunge of both towns.

We have worked with a number of Munday people on one or more projects, and have always found them more than anxious to do their part . . . We hope we have been just as considerate where they are concerned.

Junior College Scope Is Growing

By HARLEY PERSHING

An important role the junior college plays in the changing socio-economic picture is in the field of vocational adult education beyond the high school.

Many state-supported junior colleges in Texas now are entering this field of endeavor, striving more and more to present a workable solution to a growing problem of the 20th Century.

This problem is to match educational development with that of industry and technology for the continued growth and development of the individual, the community and the state as well as mankind itself.

Another problem is in the field of training skilled workers, whose potential talents would be wasted unless they are given an opportunity to progress and advance with the ever-changing world.

This problem has been magnified by the fact that in most cases the youngster leaving high school with no intention of going to college has received insufficient training to prepare him for a place in the job market.

He has learned that a smattering of history, government, English and math hasn't armed him with the knowledge for earning a living.

In Fort Worth and San Antonio, two cities which offer technical training in the high school, the problem is not as great as in other cities. Students leaving the technical high schools have a chance of going into the trades with some degree of future success.

But what about those who do not attend the technical program? And the number in this category is tremendous.

The answer, according to top educators in Texas and other states, rests in the junior college.

They say the junior college should take on the job of offering extensive courses in vocational training, courses in all crafts such as mechanics, metal work, carpentry, plumbing, interior decorating, house painting, restaurant operations, food handling and other allied fields.

Top educators readily acknowledge that the technical high schools do a creditable job in their limited capacity. However, they point out high school graduates do not possess the age and experience necessary to command jobs in the skilled crafts immediately upon leaving the classrooms.

A student with two years of training in the junior college level, is however, more nearly qualified to accept his place in the work community. And the labor force is ready to accept him.

Educators say the vocational program could operate under either of two plans.

First the student could receive college credits for an associate degree in vocational crafts.

This course would entail general academic work as well as training in the students particular field of endeavor.

Secondly, the college could offer straight vocational classes, striving to turn out a carpenter or plumber without regard to academic education.

This would appeal to adults seeking qualifications for new jobs or for the student who has no desire to enrich his education beyond the high school level.

The first program would require a new-type curriculum—one employed in other states with great success. It is the re-writing of the college's academic program to offer the vocational student studies in subjects that would apply to his sought-after trade.

For instance, Chaucer and Shakespeare are excellent vehicles of study for the student seeking strictly academic advancement. They hardly are fitting for a student who wants to become a sheet metal worker or a plumber.

What this student needs and must have if his interest in academic work is to be maintained is subjects that would be akin to his vocational studies.

Courses in math and English should be designed to give emphasis to vocational work. English courses should be geared to reading writing and understanding trade journals and publications relating to the skilled crafts.

Above all, the educators say, the program of instruction in the vocational classes should be designed to hold the student's interest and assure him of success in his desire to find a job.

Another role the junior colleges are undertaking is in the field of adult education and community services.

This could entail programs in child guidance, real estate sales, tax returns, insurance and other fields aimed strictly at citizens wanting refresher courses or short courses in certain specialized fields.

A. J. Brumbaugh, a consultant for the Southern Regional Education Board, says in his report to the agency:

"The two-year community college should provide a variety of services. Whereas the state colleges and universities as a rule provide educational primarily for the academically minded or 'bookish' type student, the community junior college will provide opportunities for students of many types including those who are misfits in a strictly academic program."

Grand Jury Finds Little Fault With Way Officials Are Conducting Business

Knox County's Grand Jury was in session Thursday and Friday and results of the meeting were issued by Jury Foreman Arnold Navratil.

We, the Grand Jury of Knox County, for the February term of 1965, having been duly sworn and empanelled as such and meeting in Benjamin, Texas, on February 18, 1965, respectfully submit the following report:

This Grand Jury has made a careful and thorough study of the financial and business affairs of Knox County, Texas. We wish to express our appreciation to the officials who have assisted us in this study.

With few exceptions we find our county business run generally in compliance with the law.

We find that the hospital plan now employed by the county, wherein the county pays one-half and the official or employee pays one-half of the premium, to be in accordance with the law. (Article 2372 V.A.T.S.). This is also in accordance with a current Attorney General's opinion.

We find that the County Judge is entitled to reasonable travel expenses outside the county, in addition to the $25 per month allowance now being paid him by Knox County, and that the Commissioners of Knox County are entitled to receive for necessary travel expenses an amount not to exceed $300 per year, plus vehicle expense now received by them, in accordance with the law. These matters have been determined from the opinion from the Attorney General's office, as requested by our District Attorney.

We make the following recommendations:

1. That quarterly reports from the office of the County Treasurer's office, reflecting the financial condition of Knox County, if made in accordance with good accounting practices, and following the recommendations of the county auditors, and in accordance with the law, be made and published by the Commissioners Court, as required by law, in all the newspapers in the county. And that the Commissioners Court provide funds for clerical help in the County Treasurer's office, not to exceed $300 per year.

2. That any officer or official of the county shall not use county equipment for his personal gain, or the personal gain of any individual, as such. That the county commissioners keep the county materials and supplies at the county barns, or at some other specified location, if there is not a county barn available, and that such location be designated upon the minutes of the Commissioner's Court.

We request this Honorable Court that we may be recessed until our services are further requested.

(Signed) Arnold Navratil, Foreman of the Grand Jury.

Veniremen are: Charlie Flye, Mrs. Jean Allen, Boyd Meers, Jim Hill, James Smith, Phillip Homer, Arnold Navratil, J. T. Murdock, Mrs. Grace Moorman, Mrs. Bertha Speck, Paul Weiss, and Kenneth Lawson.

Boyd Meers was excused from jury duty by the foreman, as he was in the hospital.

BENJAMIN GIRLS IN PLAYOFF WIN

Blasting Weinert 31-22 in Rule Tuesday night, the Benjamin Mustangettes earned the right to represent District 13-B in the playoffs.

Benjamin took an 8-7 lead in the first quarter and stretched it to 14-10 at the half. Benjamin fans were never behind in the game.

Dorothy Raines of Weinert scored high point in the game with 14.

Sue Duke hit 11 for Benjamin followed by Jo Carol Dowd and Gay Duke with ten each.

Services Held Sunday For Rule Resident

Funeral services for Clara Ann Lesley, 83, of Rule, who died at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, were held at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Church of Christ in Rochester.

FCIC Agents To Be Here 2 Weeks

Federal Crop Insurance Corporation is now accepting applications from Knox County farmers for all-risk protection on 1965 cotton crops. FCIC an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, offers this protection, at cost, to farmers of the County in an effort to help stabilize farm economy.

When a cotton crop is lost from causes beyond the farmers control, an indemnity check from FCIC will return operating expense, thus avoiding the loss of working capital.

FCIC fieldmen will be in the county for the next two weeks explaining the insurance program to farmers and showing them exactly how it will work with their particular farming operations.

Knox County will be served by the FCIC district office, 3rd floor, county courthouse, Vernon. Information may be obtained by writing to that address.

The Children Are Waiting

There are many worthy organizations, working for the health and welfare of children, that ask and receive our support. We Americans are a compassionate people, and even the most unsentimental of us cannot bear to think of children who are waiting for help that does not come.

But how many of us stop to think that when the American Cancer Society asks us this April to help conquer cancer with a Checkup and a Check that our contribution will help thousands of children with cancer?

The tragic fact is that cancer is the leading cause of death from disease among school children. In 1965, more than 5,000 young lives will be lost to cancer.

The greatest single weapon we have against cancer—in both children and adults—is the constant vigilance of the informed individual. Tens of thousands of Americans are alive today because they recognized the danger signals of cancer and received prompt treatment.

During Crusade against Cancer month, your American Cancer Society is conducting a special educational program to make parents aware of the danger of cancer in children. So often this disease begins with some seemingly trivial ailment that is ignored until it is too late.

Parents are urged to know the danger signals of childhood cancer and to consult a doctor if any of these symptoms appear. Prompt action means real hope of a complete cure.

There is yet no cure or preventive for leukemia, cancer of the blood-forming tissues, which takes the lives of about half of the children who are cancer victims. But, there is growing optimism that leukemia may be the first cancer to be permanently controlled. The American Cancer Society is currently spending over $2 million a year on leukemia-related research alone.

We all wait eagerly for each medical advance that means new hope in our common struggle to cure cancer. Among us are thousands of children—many too young to read these words—who are victims of cancer.

This April, when you are asked to support the American Cancer Society's Crusade, please remember . . . the children are waiting.

Paula Horne of NTSU spent the week end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Paul Horne. They accompanied her home Sunday.

Mrs. Altha Williams and Mrs. Arthur Horne were in Knox City Saturday.

Johnny Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cook, was selected class favorite in Monday High School recently.

A film on cancer, its causes, and effects preceded the talk by Mr. Mullino.

Mr. Mullino said he was one of two million people working with the American Cancer Society to combat cancer. He said "no doubt you know of someone who has either died or has a cancer, and wish there was something you could do," he said. There is something we not only can but should do:

First to learn more about cancer; and second to fight back not only financially but through education with the American Cancer Society.

Mr. Mullino said that today over 50 per cent of all cancer patients can be cured if diagnosed and treated early enough.

That one out of three could be saved—and that it could be as high as one out of two saved if people would be checked more often and were aware of the danger signals.

Other statistics—one out of four will be attacked by cancer; out of a possible 96 men—24 will have cancer; eight will be cured and 16 will die and out of the 16 four could have been cured if they had gone to their doctors in time.

"Fifteen patients died in Knox County with cancer, and at least three of these could have been cured," he told the group, and asked which three of the 15 could it have been.

Mullino said 530,000 had cancer last year and that 90,000 died of cancer, which could have been cured.

He said the only way to help was through funds and education, "like the pamphlets you have before you now," he said.

In 1964 Knox County gave $3.50 to cancer crusade and O'Brien gave $240. In 1963 the whole county (Knox) gave $10, and last year Haskell county donated $3700 to the crusade.

"Why this difference," Mullino said there wasn't a leader in Knox County and that the society had been unable to find someone to work. He said on the other hand, Haskell had over 300 workers and that they had contacted personally, over 90 or 95 per cent of the residents.

He said that each April was the month for giving and also the month that cancer was publicized. To prove the effectiveness of the campaign he said that in April and May of each year more cancers were discovered than in any other month.

Mullino said someday there would be discovered a cure for cancer that only 30 years ago there was no cure; that 10 years ago one in five were cured and today one in three is the statistic.

Knox County hasn't had a cancer drive since 1960 he said and this year Mrs. Eddie Bateman will be the chairman, and Mullino asked that people come forward to assist her during the crusade.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"NO, MR. PRESIDENT"

It seems reasonable enough. Congress, debating a proposed new law, has doubts about its constitutionality. Why not simply ask the Supreme Court for an advisory opinion? Sooner or later, the Court (sitting only a block away) will have to decide the question anyhow. Why wait for a long, drawnout test case? Why put a law on the books, and enforce it, only to find out years later that it was unconstitutional all the time?

But the Court would refuse to give Congress an advisory opinion. It would also refuse to advise the President, if he wanted to know—for instance—whether he had the power to issue a sweeping new executive order.

Both Congress and the President would have to take their chances, without any guidance from the Supreme Court.

The Court's hands-off policy dates back to a famous exchange of letters in the summer of 1793, between the nation's first President and the nation's first Chief Justice. George Washington, trying to stay neutral between warring France and England, wanted an advisory opinion on 29 points of international law. But John Jay, speaking for the Court sent a polite reply that amounted to "No, Mr. President." And ever since, the Court has insisted that its job is to decide cases, not to give advice.

This reluctance has been criticized. No doubt it would be useful to know, right away, if a proposed law would be unconstitutional. Delay in finding out can cause major complication. Thus, by the time the Court threw out the National Industrial Recovery Act in 1935, more

Father-Daughter Banquet Held

The annual Father-Daughter Girl Scout banquet was held Saturday night at the school cafeteria. An arrangement of daffodils flanked by green and gold tapers centered the head table. Programs were green trefolts glittered with gold. Gaily decorated boxes by the girls completed the decorations.

Jill Thompson, Cadette Scout, welcomed the Dad's and a singing invocation was given by the Junior Troop.

After the box supper, the Brownie Troop presented a flag ceremony, and sang "The Growing Tree." "The Building of our Cadet" was enacted by the Cadette and Junior Troops. Mrs. Travis Thompson the Troop Organizer, introduced the leaders of the girls. They are:

Mmes. Bruce Campbell Jr., Jack Stubbs, Charles Clarke, John L. Grindstaff, James Jackson, and Oscar Mangis. The program was concluded with the singing of "Taps" led by Walta Grimsley.

Mothers assisting the girls with hostess duties were Mmes. Sammy Tankersley, George Wall, Joe Clonts, and Buddy Angle.

Approximately 100 daughters and dads attended.

Korean Student Entertains Club

Dr. Ralph Swinford, dean of men at Midwestern University, presented Miss Hai Sook Chung, a music student at the university, in a musical program Tuesday for members of the 1946 Study Club.

Miss Chung who is from Korea sang a number of popular numbers and concluded with several operatic selections.

Mrs. Ted Darland introduced Dr. Swinford. Following the program a short business meeting was held. Mrs. Jerry Cobb presided. The club voted to get prices on a new piano for the club house. It was also voted to help with the Easter Seal Drive.

Mrs. Arnold Davis was voted as a new member of the club.

The group held a Valentine party for members and their guests the previous Thursday evening. It was a box supper and a prize was given for the most attractively decorated box. Mrs. Charles Lankford was the winner.

Hostesses were Mmes. Jim Bateman, George Wall, Don Whitley, and John L. Grindstaff, Jr. Coffee, tea and pie were served.

Serving table was centered with a red satin heart flanked by red candles. The individual tables were also centered with hearts and candles. A wisiung well decorated the piano.

Games of bridge, 42 and Rook were played following the supper.

Next meeting of the club will be the Texas Day program with the Knox City Study Club as hostesses.

than 1,000 government agencies were already set up and hard at work.

But the advisory opinion has perils. It could put the Court too close to the legislative or executive process, too close to politics. It could blur the lines of separation between the three branches of government.

Perhaps more important, an advisory opinion is only a theoretical answer to a theoretical question. It is formed without the clash of argument between parties having a personal stake in the outcome. It is not the law's way of reaching a decision.

In a few states, the courts do give advisory opinions to the local legislature or governor. But even there they do it sparingly, in only a few special situations. Most authorities feel that, as a matter of general policy, John Jay's "No, Mr. President," was the wisest answer.

Study Club Has Meeting

Mr. Edward L. Kirk, coordinator of American Studies at Abilene Christian College, was guest speaker for the Knox City Study Club Feb. 18, on the Texas Heritage Program.

Mrs. O. A. Green was leader. Mrs. C. C. Hoge introduced the speaker. His subject was "Incomparable Texas." He gave a panoramic review of the state from the days of the Republic to the present time.

Mr. Kirk said Texas is divided into 13 regions all different. He also said "One of our chief assets in our weather" which has such stimulating effects on the minds of the people.

Mrs. Ernie Wilson played 3 piano selections by Texas composers. Mrs. E. Hob Smith presided for the business in the absence of Mrs. E. R. Carpenter.

Plans were discussed for the Hat Sale which was conducted Saturday in the Joe Roy Smith store.

March 6, will be guest day. A book review will be given by Mrs. Russell Boyd.

The Seventh Grade Chorus will sing, directed by Mrs. Kenneth Lankford.

Historical Committee Will Meet Tuesday

The Knox County Historical Committee will meet Tuesday, March 2, at 2 p.m. in the courthouse in Benjamin.

All members are urged to attend. Officers to serve another year will be elected. Anybody who is interested in the preservation of the history and any phase of the work is welcome to attend any and all the meetings.

Articles are still needed for the museum.

Financing Very Important Item In Buying House

"If you are planning to build or to buy a house, it may well be the largest single investment you will make in a lifetime," says Miss S. C. Kinsey, County Home Demonstration Agent, of Benjamin, "and you certainly will want to consider carefully the factors involved in financing a new home."

The increased cost of new houses in the last decade is accounted for partly by price increases and partly by growing incomes that have led to a demand for houses that are larger, that contain improved materials and more and better mechanical equipment.

Other factors that cause variation in housing costs are location, size, type and quality, says the HD Agent.

She also emphasizes that the cost of land varies as much as does the cost of buildings.

"Great differences exist, for example, between the value of improved farm land in Knox County and the value of the well situated lot with its paved roads sidewalks, water, gas and electricity."

Average cost of a new house in Knox County has risen considerably during the last few years and it is apparent that this figure will rise as much in the next 10 years as it did in the last decade because of the continuing desire for land, of which the cost has increased from 10 to 18 per cent in some counties in the same period of time.

If you are planning to build or to buy that new house, the Extension office in Knox County has available information that will enable you to stretch your housing dollars to include a livable home for your family.

Ozelle Stephens

"Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." (Matt. 5:5). To be meek does not mean to be a weakling.

The Word teaches that meekness has a deep special spiritual significance.

One that is highly trained in God's truths reacts to all negative stimuli with love instead of resentment. It is this attitude of gentle and loving kindness in thought, word, and deed that gives us power to bring happy, harmonious outward expressions into our lives. Thus it is to inherit the earth. Our part is to be obedient and very courageous in the Lord.

FARM and RANCH Notes
JOE W. DOBY
COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

During the pruning demonstration last week, we had some questions asked that may be of interest to some other fruit growers.

One question concerned Fire Blight, a disease of apples and pears that causes the blossoms to turn black, followed by the twig itself dying and turning black. The leaves remain on the twig turning black or brown.

Cankers occur on branches and limbs. The disease is caused by a bacterial infection and is spread by spores carried on the wind. Pruning instruments can also be carried.

Treatments consists of pruning out the dead twigs and limbs during the winter. Make all cuts several inches below visible cankers. Sterilize cutting instruments after each cut by dipping in a formaldehyde solution of 1 part to 25 parts of water. Prune no more than necessary and do not over fertilize.

In conjunction with the pruning, spraying the trees when ten per cent of the blossoms are open and at intervals of 4 to 5 days until a total of three to four applications have been made. Fixed copper, zineb, a weak Bordeaux mixture or streptomycin may be used. Spraying will give poor results when the blighted twigs or cankers are allowed to remain on the tree.

Now is the time to set out fruit trees and if you are wondering what varieties to plant, below are listing those recommended for our section of the country.

PEARS: Orient, Keifer, LeConte, Garber.

APPLES: Holland (tops for our area), King David (needed as a pollinator for Holland), Red Delicious, Yellow Delicious.

FIGS: Texas Everbearing, Cleste.

GRAPES: Fredonia, Delaware, Seibel 9110.

PEACHES: Cardinal, Coronet, Dixigem, Ranger, Redglove, Redskin and Keystone.

PLUMS: Bruce, Methley, and Sapa.

BLACKBERRIES: Early Wonder, Dallas, Brazos, Austin (dew-berry).

STRAWBERRIES: Gem Everbearing and Blakemore.

It must be remembered that apples and pears are extremely susceptible to cotton root rot. Peaches are moderately susceptible.

If one or two year old peach trees are set out, then they can be pruned to the foundation limbs at that time. If three or four year old trees are planted, then top the tree back to within 20 inches of the ground. After growing the first summer, the four foundation limbs can be then selected the next winter.

These four foundation limbs should be growing in four different directions. They should be two or three inches apart on the trunk and growing at a 45 degree angle from the trunk. These then are the main limbs of the tree its entire life so one can see they should be selected with care.

All others should be cut back to the trunk.

The pruning done each year thereafter consists of tipping back all branches to keep the tree close to the ground for easier picking. Peaches are borne on two year old wood. If the limbs are not cut back, all the new growth will be on the ends of the limbs and so will the fruit. This weight on the end of the limb causes breakage of the limb from wind.

It also leaves the bark open for sunscald and later insect damage.

Apple tree pruning consists of pruning limbs that rub each other and to shape the tree. Do not tip back the limbs as for peaches.

big tightwads

Chevy II 100 2-Door Sedan

Chevy II With aluminized exhausts that discourage corrosion... Delcotron generators that encourage longer battery life... brakes that adjust themselves... rocker panels that flush themselves free of dirt and salt. Tight? They're downright miserly!

You're looking at the lowest priced sedan and station wagon that Chevrolet makes. They're good looking. Clean. Functional. You neither look nor act their price. You can get an economical 4-cylinder engine in the sedan or in both cars, a 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six that's quick to do everything but cost you money. As we said earlier, these are our lowest priced cars. Try one out today.
