ED HARRIS----Hart's Man of the Year

ED HARRIS NAMED HART MAN OF YEAR

Ed Harris, a 17-year resident of Hart with an outstanding record of service to his community and his country, Monday was named the town's "Man of the Year".

Presentation of the award was made at the regular noon luncheon of the Hart Lions Club. It highlighted a meeting which also featured the visit of Steve Stephens of Amarillo, district governor of Lions District 2T-1.

In other activity at the meeting, Warren Dayton of Plainview presented the club with its charter for the Hart Boy Scout troop.

The "Man of the Year" was presented a plaque for his civic work.

The 43-year-old Harris, who now serves as Hart's mayor, has operated Ed Harris Lumber Co. here since 1947. He also is a director of Farmers State Bank and operates Ed Harris Lumber Co. at Tulia.

A native of Tulia, Ed was graduated from Tulia High School in 1939. After two years of college work at Texas Tech, the outbreak of World War II saw him volunteer for duty.

In six years of service with the U.S. Army, four of it overseas, Harris rose from private to the rank of captain.

He's been advancing ever since. After his discharge in 1947, Ed located in Hart and established his lumber yard.

During his first year in business here, Harris bought some materials from a Lubbock distributor represented by a pretty young saleswoman.

"She sold me a bill of goods," quips Ed, with a wide grin.

The young saleswoman and Ed were married in 1947. Now he and his wife, Melba, have two children, David, 10, and Jan 7.

The Harrises attend the First Methodist Church where he has served as chairman of the board of stewards and is now a trustee. He is also president of the Methodist Men.

A charter member of the Hart Lions Club, Ed served as its first Lion boss in 1956.

He is in the Masonic Lodge, Tulia, Khiva Temple of Amarillo and the Commandery at Plainview.

He is a past commander of the Hart American Legion Post and now is its service officer. He is also a past scoutmaster of the Hart troop.

In the past three years, Harris' work on civic projects has come strongly to light. He is in his second term as mayor.

When Harris became mayor, he and his co-workers, councilmen Claude Cox and Norlan Dudley, made their first project an effort to update all city records.

This has been done, along with numerous city improvements. These include about $40,000 worth of new paving in the past three years, $34,000 worth of improvements to the city water system and approximately $132,000 in the sewer system. Hart also installed trash service recently.

For the first time, the city of Hart has a full-time city office, with one full-time employee and one part-time.

Harris' ability to get the job done, no matter what he undertakes, is reflected in the way he served his country during World War II.

He participated in the Normandy Invasion on D-Day in June, 1944 and subsequently saw duty in the Battle of the Bulge.

His alertness is reflected in the way he earned the Bronze Star Medal in early 1945.

While on duty in France, Harris once heard a Canadian officer remark that he hadn't eaten any peanut butter for two or three years.

Harris, familiar with the British army menus, thought that everytime he had eaten at a British mess, that plenty of peanut butter was at hand.

Skeptical of the Canadian officer, Harris followed him to a hotel and subsequently learned the man posing as the officer was actually a German espionage agent.

Harris' curiosity resulted in the capture of several German agents and earned him the Bronze Star.

The Hart mayor still has those qualities of service, alertness and curiosity and they are paying off in helping to make Hart a better place in which to live.

Proud Of Our Schools

Astronauts, blast-off, time capsule, moon shot---these words are all part of our space age vocabulary. Our changing times require many different things, most of all the ability to grow with the challenge presented by our awesome scientific development.

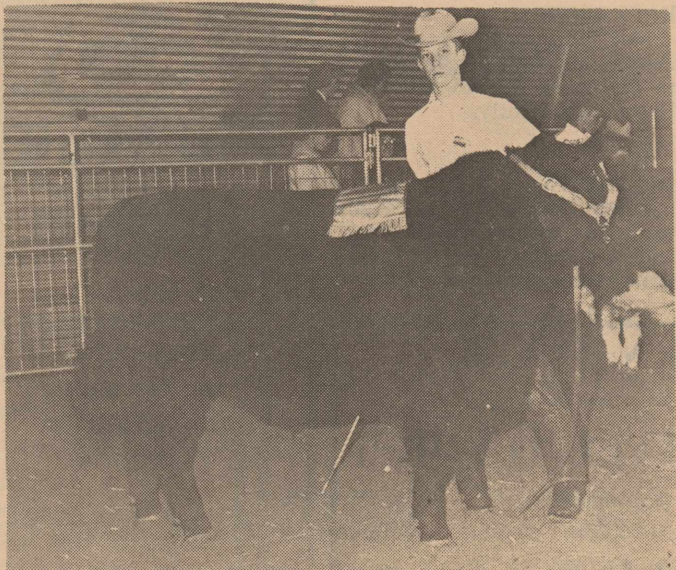

Never before in the history of America has our school system been so important! Never has such emphasis been placed on the development of projects which were unheard of ten years ago.

We, as Texans, have always been proud of our public schools.

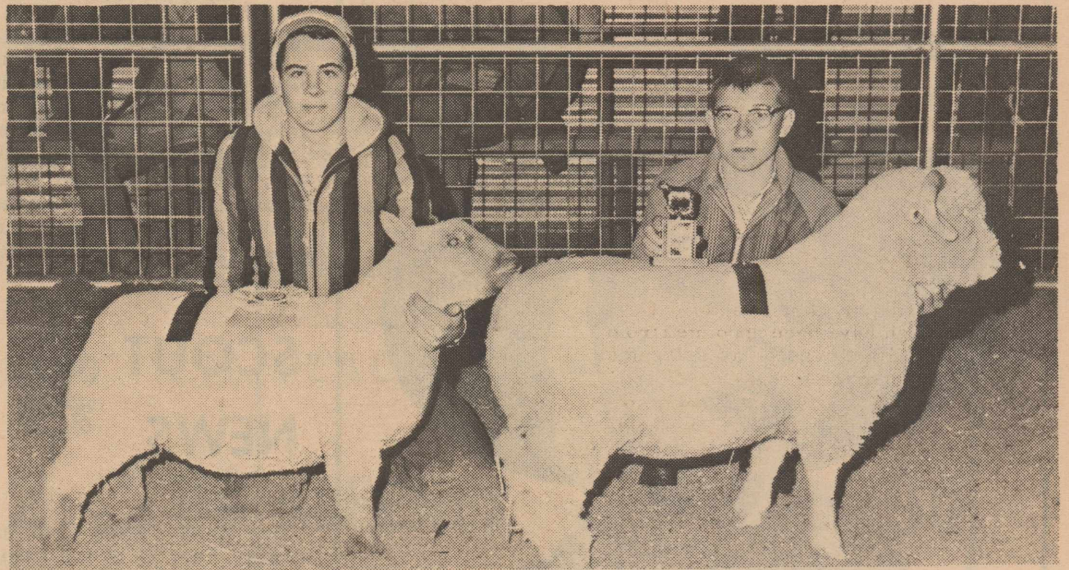

Today, the public school system is faced with its greatest and most important challenge. For our schools must produce the scientists--the engineers--the physicists--the astronauts who will blast off to chart new courses toward an unbelievable future.

Our Texas public schools can meet the challenge, if they get the interest and support they require and deserve. You can help by visiting a public school during the 14th Annual Texas Public Schools Week, March 2-6. Learn what your school is teaching and how. Find out what their needs are and what goals they are trying to reach.

You'll find it is an education for you and a vitally important contribution to your community and to our children's future.

MRS. MARY ELLEN PORTER

Teacher Describes Work As Trying, Never Boring

"There are trying moments, but no boring ones."

Mrs. Mary Ellen Porter made this statement when talking about her work in the teaching profession.

Mrs. Porter is a pre-first grade teacher in the Hart School.

This is her fourth year in the teaching profession, three of which have been in Hart.

In her pre-first class, she says she teaches "anything I feel will help them next year", noting that this includes reading, nursery rhymes and English manners.

Why did she choose this profession? This teachers puts it this way:

"Some people can write.

Some people can sell things. This is what I can do."

She says she thinks that a teacher should be dedicated "as should anyone with a good work to do."

She adds, however, that she thinks that there are other things that are important, too, and that a teacher can do her job well and not be "completely" dedicated.

She says that she had some fine teachers and very helpful parents that influenced her toward teaching as a career.

A graduate of Pampa High School, she attended Wayland College, where she majored in English and minored in education.

Her other interests include camping, sewing, music and volleyball.
