COTTON PLANTIN' TIME---Mike Reed, the driver, and Leon Sanders talk over plantin' time as Mike stopped for a moment while putting down seed at the farm of his father, Glen Reed. Most Hart area farmers were in the process of planting cotton this week, and nearly all of the area's cotton probably will be planted in the next few days.

Skip-Row Cotton Proposal Explained By ASCS Manager

BY CHARLEY E. HILL
CASTRO COUNTY ASCS

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is PROPOSING a change in the rules for measuring cotton when planted in a skip-row pattern for compliance with acreage allotments. The change, if adopted, would become effective for the 1966 cotton crop.

In skip-row plantings, strips of cotton rows are generally alternated with strips of idle land. Under the present rule all the idle land beyond one half of a normal row is not counted as cotton when computing the acreage. This in effect spreads the allotment over more acreage. Under the change, a part of the idle land will be considered cotton acreage for allotment purposes. US DA officials say that studies of different skip-row planting patterns confirm that the cotton planted on the outside, or next to the idle land produces more than cotton planted in a normal row pattern.

The 1965 cotton allotment is set at 16 million acres which is the minimum acreage permitted by the present law. It is expected that a reduction in planting of approximately one million acres will result from the Domestic Allotment Program for 1965. Despite the reduced acreage, cotton production this year is expected to exceed the domestic use plus exports, and will increase the already sizable carryover for the fourth straight year.

Carryover as of Aug. 1, the beginning of the new cotton marketing year, is expected to total about 13.4 million bales, the largest carryover since the record 14.5 million bales in 1956. USDA officials feel that increased yields due to skip-row plantings have contributed substantially to the increase in cotton production. Skip-row plantings have increased to the point that about 2.5 million acres of cotton on 35,000 farms were skip-row planted in 1964.

The purpose of the proposed change is not to eliminate skip-row planting but to bring skip-row acreage for allotment determinations more nearly in line with production increases due to such plantings.

Under the proposed skip-row cotton rule, not only the land planted to cotton but also the 32 inches (an additional 12 inches over what is now counted) beyond the outside rows next to the idle land would be charged as cotton acreage under the allotment program. The following examples illustrate various skip-row patterns, the amount planted area counted as cotton under present rules and the amount which would be counted as cotton under the PROPOSED rule. For example purposes, it is assumed that cotton row width is 40 inches. Any changes in row width would mean additional adjustments in acreage.

2 rows cotton, 1 row skipped--66 2/3% present rule; 86 2/3% proposed rule; 30% increase.
2 rows cotton, 2 rows skipped---50% present rule; 65%

Bennett Wins Spelling Honor

Harold Bob Bennett, 13, Castro County senior spelling champion for the past two years, came in 14th in the competition May 1 among 44 county champions from New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and the Panhandle.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ed Bennett, who farm southwest of Hart, and was coached for the spelling events by Mrs. Max Stephens, Hart school teacher.

Sunday, 8 P.M.

The public is invited to attend the service.

proposed rule; 30% increase.

2 rows cotton, 4 rows skipped--33 1/3% present rule; 43
1/3% proposed rule; 30% increase.

4 rows cotton, 2 rows skipped--66 2/3% present rule; 76
2/3% proposed rule; 15%
increase.

4 rows cotton, 4 rows skipped--50% present rule; 57 1/2
% proposed rule; 15% increase.

The following example demonstrates how skip-row planting works: A farmer with a 50-acre cotton allotment using the skip-row pattern of two rows of cotton and two rows skipped. Under the present system the farmer would be considered to have half (50 percent) of the total area planted to cotton. This would permit him to utilize 100 acres of land and still be considered as being in compliance with his 50-acre cotton allotment.
