'Prosperity Through You'

SWPS Launches New Industries Program

A "Prosperity Through You" program is being launched by the Southwestern Public Service Company to enlist the aid of the electric company's customers and employees to attract new industries to the communities in which they live.

The customers and employees will receive a "Prosperity Through You" prospect card with their March electric service statement. If they have any information at all on an industry that would be interested in locating in their home town, they are requested to fill in the blanks on the card and bring it to their local chamber of commerce office or to their hometown Southwestern Public Service Company office.

"Industrial development has many times resulted from the actions of one individual. Just the slightest rumor has led, on many occasions, to the establishment of an industry which was economically important to a community. This type of approach will obviously lead to some blind alleys, but it is equally obvious that, with the cooperation of all of us, it can also produce some valuable industrial prospects," Larry Milner, industrial development manager for Southwestern Public Service Company, said.

Plans for following up on the leads provided by the "Prosperity Through You" program call for an evaluation of the tip by local business leaders and then some type of contact with the prospect suggested by the local resident.

Southwestern Public Service Company announced establishment of a new industrial development department last fall. Since that time, the department has been accumulating economic information about communities in its service area in order that it will be able to provide industrial prospects with factual information. "Pros-

Communication Breakdown Causes Government Trouble

Much of the trouble in government, as in other walks of life, stems from a breakdown in communication.

To avoid a concentration of power in the hands of one man or one small clique, there was purposely built into the American government a separation of powers and certain checks and balances. To avoid a concentration of power at the national level, the Founding Fathers devised a federal system wherein the states retained considerable power.

These intentionally built-in divisions of power and authority inevitably result in a greater possibility of conflict within the political power structure. Consequently, there is a correspondingly greater need for frequent and effective communication.

President Johnson well knows the need to keep wide open the channels of communication between himself and the Congress. He works hard at it. But somewhere along the way he failed to do the same between himself and the nation's governors.

Now, perhaps in the nick of time, he has taken action to see that the state governors are kept informed as to his legislative intentions. He is going to send a team of government specialists from state to state to brief the governors in detail concerning his legislative program and also to seek their consultation and advice.

Organized efforts of a more permanent nature to bridge the communication gap will be welcome. A new office set up by the governors themselves to keep them informed on federal legislative plans is one such step. But more than information is needed. A friendly working relationship is important.

Thus Mr. Johnson's initiative is most welcome. However pressing the many demands upon his time and attention, he cannot afford to lose touch with the governors. And the nation cannot afford to have a failure of communication between federal and state governments. Far too much is at stake.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford

Texans may be a lot closer than they think to paying city sales taxes. But, in any event, they will have the final say at the local level.

A bill to permit authorization of a one-per-cent sales and use tax by cities, where voters approve, received a Senate Committee endorsement. It didn't find such a warm welcome in a House Committee.

Floor consideration is likely in both houses within a short time, say legislative leaders.

Texas AFL-CIO headed the opposition in committee hearings, while Texas Municipal League paraded mayor after mayor to testify that the property tax -- standby revenue source of municipalities -- is overworked. Texas State Association of Fire-fighters and Texas Municipal Police Association spokesmen, pushing for better fire-police pay and benefits, supported the mayors.

Here is what will happen if this bill is passed:

* City councils can call elections on whether the levy is to be authorized -- or wait to be petitioned for an election.

* If local voters say "no", there will be no local sales tax for at least two years in that community.

* If they approve, an extra one per cent will be added to the two per cent state sales tax on covered items (but not automobiles) in the city. State comptroller will collect total three per cent tax, turning a third over to the city hall.

* If citizens get to feeling overtaxed, they can get up a petition and call another election to throw out local sales taxation.

MONEY BILLS PASS, FAIL- Gov. John Connally's emergency appropriations request, which included $5,500,000 for the state's exhibit at San Antonio's HemisFair '68, won final passage and was signed into law after weathering a Senate filibuster.

A few days later, the House refused 116 to 29 to suspend its rules to permit consideration of the Senate's $15,000,000 interim pay raise bill for state employees. However, House Speaker Ben Barnes promised to encourage an interim raise after the general budget is approved.

INDUSTRIAL BONDS -- Texas is losing ground in the industrial-expansion race among the states. So say Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake and Sen. Charles Wilson of Lufkin. And to get into the ball game, the state needs a new program for statewide industrial financing.

Thus the two have introduced bills in their respective chambers calling for a Constitutional Amendment to authorize a municipal revenue bond program, wherein cities can issue bonds to build facilities for luring new industry. Bonds would be retired by lease revenue paid to the cities.

"Texas is in a favorable competitive position in regard to raw materials, transportation, labor, industrial sites, recreational facilities and all the other industrial location factors which are considered by industry as vital to industrial development, except an industrial financing program," Clayton said, in urging passage of his bill.

WATER BILLS--Public notice by publication of new or amended rulings of the Texas Water Rights Commission would be eliminated by a bill introduced in the House by Rep. Menton J. Murray of Harlingen. Bill also would dissolve the three water divisions in the state.

Another bill by Murray would cut from four to two the number of publications required on an application for appropriation of water.

DRIVERS BILLS--Modernization of Texas' license plates and driver's licenses would be accomplished by a pair of bills introduced in the House of Reps. Milton Schiller of Cameron and Dick Cory of Victoria.

Cory's bill would provide for a color photograph of the license on the driver's license. Persons under 21 years of age would be issued different-colored licenses. Proof of birth date and fingerprints would be required on the applications.

A bill by Schiller calls for reflectorized license plates. Motorists would pay the added 30 cents cost per plate.

COMMUNITY CENTERS--Three bills have been introduced in the House of Representatives to establish community mental health-mental retardation centers and implement the recommendations of the Department of MHMR.

Speaker Barnes sent to the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments the resolution to change the Constitution in order to create the centers. Bill to permit the state

GUADALUPE PARK BILL MOVES ON--Senate approved 30-1 bill to insure creation of $13,500,000 Guadalupe Mountains National Park in Culberson and Hudspeth Counties.

House Parks and Wildlife Committee already had cleared the bill for House-floor debate. Sen. Joe Christi of El Paso and Rep. Gene Hendryx of Alpine are sponsors.

Measure conveys to the federal government all mineral rights in the 71,000-acre area including Guadalupe Peak. Amendments would provide for reclaiming minerals if the area is dropped as a national park and the sharing of royalties if the federal government develops the natural resources.

Representatives of 14 Texas Cotton Producer Organizations in Dallas on Feb. 14 nominated 26 men from which the Secretary will select five members and five alternates to serve on the Cotton Board being formed under the dollar-a-bale Cotton Research and Promotion Act.

Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., with producer members in 23 counties surrounding Lubbock, was represented in the Dallas producer organization caucus by its president, J. D. Smith of Littlefield.

Smith was authorized to speak for PCG by the Executive Committee at a meeting on Feb. 9, and in accordance with the Committee's instructions placed in nomination the names of eight cotton industry leaders well known on the High Plains.

To determine the areas from which the five members and five alternates on the Board would come, Texas was arbitrarily divided into five "Places." Members and alternates from four of these are to represent one or more of the major cotton producing sections of the state. The Board representative from the fifth Place was to be what might be called a "roving" delegate, and could come from anywhere in the state.

For Place One in Texas, which covers the High Plains area, PCG nominated Roy Davis and Roy Forkner, both of Lubbock, as board members. As alternates, the names of Donald A. Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President, and Joe B. Pate, Jr., were submitted.

All fourteen of the producer organizations concurred in these nominations, and Smith says it can be assumed the Secretary will appoint either Davis or Forkner to the Board and Johnson or Pate as alternates.

Place Two includes the Rolling Plains, Pecos and El Paso areas. Place Three is made up of North Central and East Texas, and Place Four covers the coastal Bend and Rio Grande Valley regions.

There were two nominees each for board members and two each for alternates from Places Two and Four, and the 14 organizations were unanimous in the nominations of leaders from those areas.

No complete agreement could be reached among the organizations on Places Three and Five, so three names each were placed in nomination for members and alternates from Place Three, and four names for each position from Place Five.

PCG took no prominent part in the nominations from North Central and East Texas, but nominated its own candidates for the fifth place.

Aubrey Lockett, of Vernon and Lockettville, and Guy Nickels of Muleshoe were PCG's nominees for board members along with Donnell Echols, Lamesa and Roy Hickman, Morton, for alternates. The High Plains normally produces 40 per cent or more of the cotton grown in Texas and the PCG Executive Committee felt the area therefore should nominate two of the five board members that will come from the state.

The Rolling Plains Cotton Growers Association, with headquarters at Stamford, went along with PCG on its nominations for board members from Place Five. With this exception, the other 13 organizations agreed on a slate of four nominees from the staff of Prairie View A&M College, Prairie View, Texas.

Smith said, "We felt the obligation of PCG was to nominate people who could adequately and effectively represent this area on the Board, and we have met this obligation."

The Cotton Board, with 20 members in all, is the group which will designate the cotton handler responsible for collecting the $1 per bale and work out procedures for refund. It will then contract with a belt-wide producer organization, yet to be formed, to carry out cotton research and promotion projects.

All of the cotton producing states have now held producer caucuses such as the Texas caucus in Dallas. And in view of the need to expedite the program the Secretary's appointments to the Cotton Board are not expected to be long in coming.

Areawide, county and community meetings of cotton producers and ginners are continuing over the High Plains to help fill an almost consuming desire for more knowledge on the production of better quality cotton.

For the entire area, two meetings of interest in this connection are being held within the next two weeks.

On Tuesday, Feb. 21, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service began a program on cotton quality at 9:30 a. m. in Lubbock's KoKo Palace. Featured speaker for that occasion was Dr. M. K. Horne, Jr., Chief Economist for the National Cotton Council. He spoke on the world cotton situation and demand for quality cotton.

There were also addresses on quality control, cultural practices, cotton varieties and block ginning.

Billy C. Gunter, District Agent, TAES, says the meeting is primarily designed for County Extension Agents, but that the public is also invited.

On Tuesday, Feb. 28 at 2 p. m., Plains Cotton Growers Inc., is sponsoring a Grower-Spinner Cotton Quality Forum, also in the Ko Ko Palace.

On hand to discuss cotton quality from the textile industry's viewpoint will be the Cotton Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, made up of 12 top textile executives from southeastern states.

Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., said "This is a rare opportunity for cotton growers, ginners and others to get first hand information on what quality means to cotton spinners and on what this area can do to provide cotton that meets mill specifications."

In addition, it will give the textile people a chance to see our area, get acquainted with High Plains producers and assess the area's potential for filling their cotton requirements.
