ORIENT ENGINEER INSTANTLY KILLED

Hambright Loses Life Near Blackwell When Conductor Applies Air.

San Angelo, Texas, Aug. 26. — Clement W. Hambright of San Angelo, Orient railway engineer, was instantly killed shortly after eight o'clock this morning, just after north-bound train No. 3 had left Blackwell, fifty miles north of here. His neck and right shoulder were broken.

Hambright supposedly lost his balance when Conductor Ben J. Robertson of San Angelo applied the air brakes to stop the train and put off two men when, he said, refused to pay their fares.

According to a report from the doctor, Hambright's body was being held there, pending an autopsy from a daughter, Mrs. Hambright, of Burlington, Mo.

Hambright was a veteran railroad man in Mexico before coming with the Orient thirteen years ago. He had lived in Hamlin and San Angelo since 1909. He was a Mason, Elk and a divisional officer in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

G. D. McCarty Opens New Store.

G. D. McCarty, who is opening a new dry goods store in the McLain building, recently vacated by the Campbell Mercantile company, has received small shipments of goods and is already enjoying a fair patronage. He expects to have a complete stock before very long—just as soon as the transportation facilities will permit. He will be glad to have you call on him.

W. F. BISBEE OF BENJAMIN DIED HERE SUNDAY EVENING

W. F. Bisbee, editor of the Benjamin Post and county chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee, died in the Knox City Sanitarium Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, following an operation on Monday for a tumor or enlargement of liver. He had been sick for several weeks.

Mr Bisbee came to Benjamin from Nebraska about twenty-eight years ago and has been in the newspaper business there most of the time since. He had been county chairman for eight or ten years. He has traveled largely and had a liberal education. He was well liked by all who knew him and always was active in every move for the benefit of his community. He has been superintendent of the Christian Church Sunday School for many years.

Deceased was past 60 years of age and is survived by his wife and six children, four boys and two girls, who will continue to publish the Post. Funeral services were conducted in Benjamin Sunday.

Marriage of Miss Mary McKeown.

Miss Mary McKeown, who is well known to many Knox City people, having formerly lived here, was married to Mr. C. R. Roberts of Wichita Falls on Wednesday, August 24th. The marriage took place in Throckmorton, where Miss McKeown has lived for the past two years. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts left immediately after the ceremony—or that is, as soon as they had removed the ropes and wire that had been tied about their car and tin cans, etc., that had been placed in the car—for a trip thru Oklahoma, after which they will be at home in Wichita Falls. The bride is a sister to Professor B. M. McKeown of Knox City, who with his wife attended the marriage.

PREPARING FOR SCHOOL OPENING

A General Clean-up Has Been in Progress and Grounds Are Put in Excellent Condition.

The school buildings and grounds have been the scene of much activity this week. A general clean-up has been in progress in preparation for the opening of school next Monday. The grounds have been dragged and put in good condition for the bare feet that will play upon them. The buildings have been cleaned and the floors oiled. The water system has been over-hauled and all preparations are approaching a stage of completion.

Several changes are being made in the arrangement and location of different departments for the coming year. The agriculture work will be carried on in the basement of the main building, the library will occupy the room formerly used as a science room, and the music department will move into the room where the library has been. A large sand-tray for use of the primary grades has been installed in the basement hall.

Several children reported for the special examinations which ran throughout the day Monday and into Tuesday. Fourteen were successful in removing conditions and advancing their standing in school. These boys and girls are to be commended for the summer study which most of them have done in preparation for these examinations and the promotions thus obtained should be an incentive to better work on their part this year.

It is hoped that all will bear in mind the classification plans for grade pupils Friday morning and for high school pupils Saturday morning. Remember also that all patrons and other interested persons are invited to the opening program next Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Services at the Baptist Church.

Owing to the fact that the pastor will be away, attending the Fisher County Baptist Association, Prof. Oder of Gillespie will speak at the 11 o'clock hour. Everybody hear him. He will only speak once; there will be no evening service.

The Haskell County Baptist Association, as previously announced, will begin its annual session at Knox City September 3rd. We are expecting a large general attendance from over the association and even out of the association. Surely no one in our immediate community will fail to give his whole hearted support to these meetings. To attend means a personal blessing and benefit, besides the real contribution you will make and the loyalty you will show to the local work. We are counting on you—come.

L. D. TUCKER OPENS NEW DRY GOODS STORE

As announced in his ad in The Journal last week, L. D. Tucker opened his dry goods store in his new building on Saturday morning. We intended to mention the opening of this new business in our news columns last week, but did not get to talk with Mr. Tucker and did not learn when he expected to open for business until we had about all the copy we could handle.

Mr. Tucker has in a nice line of goods, has ordered full lines of standard goods and is receiving them as promptly as transportation facilities will permit. He seems to be receiving a fair patronage, which no doubt will be increased as his stock is increased. He will appreciate a call from his friends, whether they buy or not.

Strike of Bituminous Miners Settled Temporarily and in Feeble Manner.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY

Negotiations Between Railway Executives and Shopmen Resumed—Violence by Strikers Exasperates the Public—France Ready to Enforce Sanctions Against Defaulting Germany.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ONE of our great strikes—that of the bituminous miners—was settled last week, partially, temporarily, and after a fashion. The agreement reached at Cleveland by the miners' officials and operators representing perhaps 60,000,000 tons annual production means there will be enough coal to get through the fall and winter, though conservation and rationing probably will be necessary. But the old wage scales and working conditions are to continue in effect until March 31, 1923, which means the high prices for coal that have prevailed for several years will be maintained by the dealers, if they can do it, and also that next April the disputes and probably the strike will begin all over again. To be sure, the agreement provides for the creation of machinery to avert further strikes and to bring some order into the chaotic coal industry, but the public must not count too much on this.

Both the miners and the operators claim to have won a victory at Cleveland, the former because their wages and work conditions are unchanged, and the latter because the miners signed agreements with individual operators and also because the tribunals to be set up solve the issues revolving around the question of arbitration, which the miners oppose.

The agreements were with operators of all the bituminous states except Illinois and Indiana, but the prospects for resumption of mining in those two states also was excellent.

Already the coal profiteers are getting in their work. Senator Borah of Idaho called this to the attention of the federal fuel committee and announced his intention of seeking legislation to check them. At the same time Fuel Distributor Spencer asked the railroads to refrain from competitive bidding for coal, the result of which had been to force the price above the limit set by Secretary Hoover. It was stated in Washington that President Harding would ask congress to pass legislation giving the federal fuel committee legal powers to control the distribution and regulate the price of coal as a safeguard against hardship and profiteering.

HIS final suggestion for settling the strike of railway shopmen having been rejected by the union, and only accepted by the railway executives with reservations, President Harding lost nearly all the wonderful patience with which he has been dealing with that problem.

On Friday the President laid the whole matter before congress. After declaring the right of employer and employee alike to conduct their business must be recognized, he said he was "resolved to use all the power of the government to maintain transportation and sustain the right of men to work." He said the Esch-Cummins was inadequate and recommended action to make the railway labor board's decisions "enforceable and effective against carriers and employees alike."

He scored severely the strikers for their acts of brutality and their contempt for law, and announced his intention to invoke laws, civil and criminal forbidding conspiracies hindering interstate commerce and requiring safety in railway service.

The President asserted a national investigation of the coal industry was necessary and recommended a federal commission to advise as to fair wages and conditions.

In discussing coal the President referred to what he termed the "shocking crime at Herrin, Ill., which so recently occurred and horrified the country," and added the incident was "butchery of human beings outright in madness."

WARNINGS of brotherhood officials that alleged faulty equipment and the employment of armed guards would result in many sporadic strikes of members of their unions were fully justified. Engineers, firemen and trainmen in numerous instances abandoned their trains and service, especially in the Far West, was badly crippled. Passengers were unroofed for days in small towns in the desert regions and women, children and invalids suffered greatly from heat and lack of milk and ice. In some cases the sending of relief trains was prevented or delayed by the strikers. The government, the railway heads and the entire American public were thoroughly exasperated by these methods, and the brotherhood chiefs, realizing the great mistake their men were making, ordered them back to work. The heads of the "big four" still insist that equipment is so degenerated that the lives of the trainmen are endangered, and they were pleased to read that President Harding had written to Chairman McChord of the Interstate Commerce commission insisting that the federal laws relating to inspection of rolling stock and safety appliances must be strictly enforced, regardless of the public inconvenience which might ensue.

As for the employment of armed guards, the striking shopmen and their sympathizers have by their actions destroyed completely the argument of the unions. They have mobbed, killed and maimed many nonunion shop workers in most cowardly fashion; they have set fire to shops; they have torn up tracks, they have bombed trains, and they have blown up at least one railway bridge. Wherever railway property and workers are not well protected by armed guards or state troops, acts of violence are perpetrated, over and over again, in scores of places, the striking shopmen are proving themselves to be brutes and cowards. Their only excuse—if it be an excuse—lies in the statement of Attorney General Daugherty that Red agitators and I. W. W. leaders are exceedingly active in fomenting troubles.

IN ACCORDANCE with its arranged plan, the senate voted Saturday on the tariff bill devised by its committee on finance, accepting it by a fair majority, and the measure is now in conference. During the final days of debate several important amendments were adopted, one of them authorizing the establishment of foreign trade zones in American ports where foreign goods may be brought in without payment of duty to be stored, exhibited, mixed with domestic products and re-exported. Logs of fir, spruce, cedar and western hemlock were transferred to the free list, and so were scientific instruments for educational purposes. The Democrats failed to get a reduction of the rates on aluminum, and Senator Harrell (Rep., Okla.) lost his fight for duties on crude petroleum and fuel oil.

MISSISSIPPI Democrats staged a pretty contest Tuesday in their senatorial primaries. The real fight was between former Senator James K. Vardaman and Hubert D. Stephens. A third contestant was Miss Belle Kearney. She polled only about 17,000 votes, but that was enough to prevent Vardaman from getting the required majority; he received over a thousand more than Stephens. Under the state law it is necessary to hold a second primary on September 5 to determine which of the two men shall be the nominee. Some time ago former President Wilson stated that he hoped Vardaman would not be sent to Washington again.

UNABLE or unwilling to recede from the position he had taken regarding Germany's failure to pay, Poincare returned to Paris and the allied conference in London broke up without result unless it be the momentous one of a rupture of the entente and the wrecking of the treaty of Versailles. The French premier summoned his cabinet and it unqualifiedly indorsed all he had done and said in London. It also decided the government was competent to handle the situation without convening parliament, unless conditions become much worse. Though fully prepared to put into force the French sanctions against Germany, the cabinet decided to await the action of the reparations commission concerning a moratorium. Germany meanwhile defaulted in the war debts due on Tuesday, declaring in a note to the allies that this was due to the demand for foreign currency to pay for urgently needed necessities of life and to the fall in the value of the mark. The reparations commission was trying to devise some way of tiding over the situation until November or December when, it believes, another meeting of the allied premiers will have to be held to consider the whole question of German debt and finances and the interrelated war debts.

THOUGH expected for some time, the death of Lord Northcliffe, the famous British journalist and leading publicist of the world, came as a real shock. America feels the loss only less than Great Britain, for he was often in this country, knew thoroughly its people and its ideals and was the greatest force in the promotion of close friendly relations between the two nations. His power in British politics was tremendous, and there is no one to fill his place.

IRISH insurgents, having been almost totally routed in the South, broke into renewed activity in the North and among other exploits captured Dundalk in a surprise attack. But they were unable to hold the place more than a few days. When the regulars recaptured it they took hundreds of prisoners.

The new Irish Free State lost one of its wisest and strongest supports in the death of Arthur Griffith, president of Dail Eireann, on August 12. Irish and English alike mourned him and his funeral in Dublin was the occasion of a very remarkable demonstration.

OVER in China a peace party actually was begun, the agents of Gen. Wu Pei-Fu, war lord of the North; and of General Chang, dictator of Manchuria, and Sun Yat-Sen, former head of the southern government, getting together in Shanghai. Representatives of President Li and others also were present. Doctor Sun, who reached Shanghai from Canton via Hongkong, said he had no personal ambitions and would obey parliament and support whomever it chose as president.

YOUNG GIRLS

Mothers, watch your Daughters' Health

Health Is Happiness

From the time a girl reaches the age of twelve until womanhood is established, she needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give.

The condition that the girl is then passing through is so critical, and may have such far-reaching effects upon her future happiness and health, that it is almost criminal for a mother or guardian to withhold counsel or advice.

Many a woman has suffered years of prolonged pain and misery through having been the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of those who should have guided her through the dangers and difficulties that beset this period.

Mothers should teach their girls what danger comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, and from overworking. Do not let them over-study. If they complain of headache, pains in the back and lower limbs, they need a mother's thoughtful care and sympathy.

"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was 14 years old for troubles girls often have and for loss of weight. Then after I married I took the Vegetable Compound before each child was born and always when I felt the least run down. Both my sister and sister-in-law take it. I have only the highest praise for it. It has been a household word in my mother's house for years." — Mrs. KATHERYN LYND, 2431 Gladys Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Little Book Helped Her to Decide

Milwaukee, Wis. — "My daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she was so weak and did not feel like going to school. She was like that for a whole year before taking your Vegetable Compound. I found a little book of yours in my mail-box and decided to give her some medicine. She is now strong and attends school every day. We recommend your Vegetable Compound to all mothers with weak daughters. You may use this letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. E. KLUCZNY, 917 20th Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

"I was always feeling tired and sleepy, was losing in weight and would faint at times. I had other troubles too, that made me feel badly. I read your little book and heard friends talk about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done them, so I have taken it too. The results are most satisfactory for I have gained in weight and my bad symptoms are gone. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may make whatever use you like of this letter." — GLORIA RAMIREZ, 1116 9th Ave., Tampa, Florida.

The Mardi Gras Mystery

"...be d—d!" snorted the chief, leaning forward earnestly. "Look here, Fell! Do you believe in your head that Maillard killed his father?"

"I was silent a moment under that scrutiny.

"From the evidence, I am forced to believe it," he said at last. "Of course, he'll be able to prove that he was not the Masquer on previous occasions; his alibi will take care of that. Up to the point of the murder, his story is all right. And, my friend, there is a chance—a very slim, tenuous chance—that his entire story is true. In that case, another person must have appeared as the Masquer, which seems unlikely—"

"Or else," put in Ben Chacherre, smoothly, "the real original Masquer showed up!"

"There was an instant silence. Ja-

"Fell regarded his henchman with gray eyes. Ben Chacherre met his look with almost a trace of defiance. The chief frowned darkly.

"That's the name of the real Masquer; is it, Fell. You're keepin' quiet about the name of the real Masquer?"

"I happen to know that he was in the auditorium at the time of the murder."

Again silence. Ben Chacherre stared at Fell, with amazement and admiration in his gaze. "When the master lies, he lies magnificently!" he murmured in French.

"Well," and the chief gestured despairingly, "I guess that lets out the real Masquer, eh?"

"Exactly," assented Fell. "No use dragging his name into it. I'll keep at work on this, chief, and if any one comes up to clear young Maillard, I'll be very glad."

"All right," grunted the chief, and rose. "It'll be on my way."

He departed. Neither Fell nor Chacherre moved or spoke for a space. When at length the clang of the elevator door resounded through the deserted corridors Ben Chacherre slipped from his chair and went to the outer door. He glanced out into the hall, opened the door, and with a nod returned to his chair.

"Well?" Jacin Fell regarded him with intent, searching eyes. "Have you any light to throw on the occasion?"

Chacherre's usual air of cool impudence was never in evidence when he talked with Mr. Fell.

"I said, shaking his head, "I worked on the car until twelve o'clock, then beat it to quit the job at ten. It had been out some time, but this is a queer affair! I think that Gramont pulled the strings."

"I asked Fell.

"He made a gesture of assent. "The kid can climb anything you think so."

"No evidence—except young Maillard. Gramont goes to the land of Miss you. I'll be his murder affair may a day or two down town."

"Hamm-Gras me barge Make right, will Non-now is breath.

"Slightly and remains on down intend to mas Ham-

"That way,

mond, as the evidence will show very clearly."

Ben Chacherre started, since he had sold that car himself. Then a slow grin came into his thin features—a grin that widened into a noiseless laugh.

"Master, you are magnificent!" he said, and rose. "Well, if there is nothing further on hand, I shall go to bed."

"An excellent program," said Jacin Fell, and took his hat from the desk. "I must get some sleep myself."

They left the office and the building together.

Three hours afterward the dawn had set in—a cold, gray and dismal dawn that rose upon a city littered with the aftermath of carnival. "Lean Wednesday" it was, in sober fact. Thus far, the city in general was ignorant of the tragedy which had taken place at the very conclusion of its gayest carnival season. Within a few hours business and social circles would be swept by the fact of Joseph Maillard's murder, but at this early point of the day the city slept. The morning papers, which today carried a news story that promised to shock and stun the entire community, were not yet distributed.

Rising before daylight, Henry Gramont and Hammond breakfasted early and were off by six in the car. They were well outside town and sweeping on their way to Terrebonne parish and the town of Paradis before they realized that the day was not going to brighten appreciably. Instead, it remained very cloudy and gloomy, with a chill threat of rain in the air.

Weather mattered little to Gramont. When finally the excellent highway was left behind, and they started on the last lap of their seventy-mile ride, they found the parish roads execrable and the going slow. Thus, noon was at hand when they at length pulled into Paradis, the town closest to Lucie Ledanois' bayou land. The rain was still holding off.

"Too cold to rain," observed Gramont. "Let's hit for the hotel and get something to eat. I'll have to locate the land, which is somewhere near town."

They discovered the hotel to be an ancient structure, and boasting prices worthy of Lafitte and his buccannery. As in many small towns of Louisiana, however, the food proved fit for a king. After a light luncheon of quail, crayfish bisque, and probably illegal venison, Gramont sighed regret that he could eat no more, and set about inquiring where the Ledanois farm lay.

There was very little, indeed, to Paradis, which lay on the bayou but well away from the railroad. It was a desolate spot, unpainted and unkempt. The parish seat of Houma had robbed it of all life and growth on the one hand; on the other, the new oil and gas district had not yet touched it.

Southward lay the swamp—fully forty miles of it, merging by degrees into the Gulf. Forty miles of cypress marsh and winding bayou, uncharted, unexplored save by occasional hunters or semi-occasional sheriffs. No man knew who or what might be in those swamps, and no one cared to know. The man who brought in fish or oysters in his skiff might be a bayou fisherman, and he might be a murderer wanted in ten states. Curiosity was apt to prove extremely unhealthy. Like the Atchafalaya, where chance travelers find themselves abruptly ordered elsewhere, the Terrebonne swamps have their own secrets and know how to keep them.

Gramont had no difficulty in locating the Ledanois land, and he found that it was by no means in the swamp. A part of it, lying closer to Houma, had been sold and was now included in the new oil district; it was this portion which Joseph Maillard had sold off.

The remainder, and the largest portion, lay north of Paradis and ran along the west bank of the bayou for half a mile. A long-abandoned farm, it was high ground, with the timber well cleared off and excellently located; but tenets were hard to get and shiftless when obtained, so that the place had not been farmed for the last five years or more. After getting these facts, Gramont consulted with Hammond.

"We'd better buy some grub here in town and arrange to stay a couple of nights on the farm, if necessary," he said. "There are some buildings there, so we'll find shelter. Along the bayou are summer cottages—I believe some of them rather pretentious places—and we ought to find the road pretty decent. It's only three or four miles out of town."

With some provisions piled in the car, they set forth. The road wound along the bayou side, past ancient Cajun farms and the squat homes of fishermen. Here and there had been placed camps and summer cottages, nestling amid groups of huge oaks and cypress, whose fronds of silver-gray moss hung in drooping clusters like pale and ghostly shrouds.

Watching the road closely, Gramont suddenly found the landmarks that had been described to him, and ordered Hammond to stop and turn in as they approached the place which had once been the farm.

"Some are the buildings. Who! I should say it had been abandoned! Nothing much left but ruins. Go ahead!"

Before them, as they drove in from the road by a grass-covered drive, showed a house, shed, and barn amid a cluster of towering trees. Indeed, trees were everywhere about the farm, which had grown up in a regular sapling forest. The buildings were in a ruinous state—clapboards hanging loosely, roofs dotted by gaping holes, doors and windows long since gone.

Leaving the car, Gramont, followed by the chauffeur, went to the front doorway and surveyed the wreckage inside.

"What do you say, Hammond? Think we can stop here, or go back to the hotel? It's not much of a run to town—"

Hammond pointed to a wide fireplace facing them.

"I can get this shack cleaned out in about half an hour—this one room, anyhow. When we get a fire goin' in there, and board up the windows and doors, we ought to be comfortable enough. But suit yourself, cap'n! It's your funeral."

Gramont laughed. "All right. Go ahead and clean up, then, and if rain comes down we can camp here. Be sure and look for snakes and vermin. The floor seems sound, and if there's plenty of moss on the trees, we can make up comfortable beds. Too bad you're not a fisherman, or we might get a fresh fish out of the bayou—"

"I got some tackle in town," and Hammond grinned widely.

"Good work! Then make yourself at home and go to it. We've most of the afternoon before us."

Gramont left the house, and headed down toward the bayou shore.

He took a letter from his pocket, opened it, and glanced over it anew. It was an old letter, one written him nearly two years previously by Lucie Ledanois. It had been written merely in the endeavor to distract the thoughts of a wounded soldier, to bring his mind to Louisiana, away from the stricken fields of France. In the letter Lucie had described some of the more interesting features of Bayou Terrebonne—the oyster and shrimp fleets, the Chinese and Filipino villages along the gulf, the far-spread cypress swamps; the bubbling fountains, natural curiosities, that broke up through the streams and bayous of the whole wide parish—fountains that were caused by gas seeping up from the earth's interior, and breaking through.

Gramont knew that plans were already afoot to tap this field of natural gas and pipe it to New Orleans. Oil had been found, too, and all the state was now oil-mad. Fortunes were being made daily, and other fortunes were being lost daily by those who dealt with oil stocks instead of with oil.

"Those gas fountains did the work!" reflected Gramont. "And according to this letter there's one of those fountains here in the bayou, close to her property. Just opposite the dock," she says. The first thing is to find the dock, then the fountain. After that, we'll decide if it's true mineral gas. If it is, then the work's done—for I'll sure take a chance on finding oil near it!"

Gramont came to the bayou and began searching his way along the thick and high fringe of bushes and saplings that girded the water's edge. Presently he came upon the ruined evidences of what had once been a small boat shed. Not far from this he found the dock referred to in the letter; nothing was left of it except a few splines protruding from the surface of the water. But he had no need to look farther. Directly before him, he saw that which he was seeking.

A dozen feet out from shore the water was rising and falling in a continuous dome or fountain of highly charged bubbles that rose a foot above the surface. Gramont stared at it, motionless. He watched it for a space—then, abruptly, he started. It was a violent start, a start of sheer amazement and incredulity.

He leaned forward, staring no longer at the gas dome but at the water closer inshore. For a moment he thought that his senses had deceived him, then he saw that the thing was there, indeed, there beyond any doubt—a very faint trace of iridescent light that played over the surface of the water.

Grew Younger as Years Passed

The death of M. S. Bataille recently in his villa at Reuil, France, where he was working on a play about Empress Josephine, who once lived next door at Malmalson, has revealed the fact that in his researches he discovered that Josephine was born three times, according to "authentic documents." The same documents show that the imperial coquette became younger with advancing years.

There is a birth certificate filed at the time of her marriage with Beauharnais, showing her to have been born in July, 1763, there is a certificate which was filed when she married Napoleon and gave the date of her birth as June, 1767, and a third document is the death notice of Josephine posted in the Town hall at Reuil declaring the empress was born in June, 1768.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

YOU CAN'T TRUST CALOMEL AT ALL

It's Quicksilver, Salivates, Causes Rheumatism and Bone Decay.

The next dose of calomel you take may salivate you. It may shock your liver or start bone necrosis. Calomel is dangerous. It is mercury, quicksilver. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

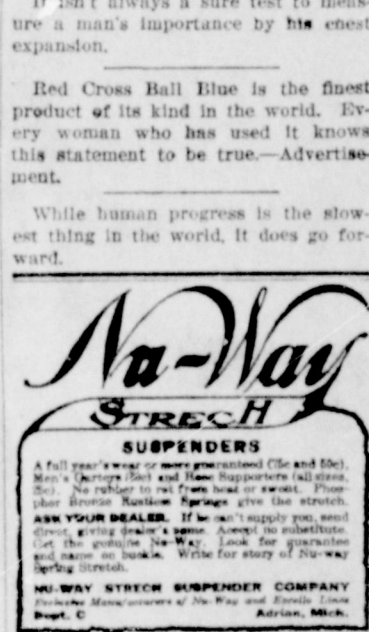

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It can't be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

PERFECT PEACE.—Thou wilt find perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee.—Isaiah 26: 3.

A good farmer friend of ours made a worth-while suggestion to us the other day. He suggested that it would be much more appreciated and of more benefit if the merchants, instead of handing out expensive calendars at the beginning of the year would give a few of their good chickens and friends a few settings of good eggs instead. "Yes, pan," said our friend, "I would greatly assist the farmers in stocking their farms with pure-bred poultry and work as a boomerang for the business man, whereas in handing out nice and expensive calendars the only people benefited are the people in the north who manufacture them, and who care little of naught for the farmers of the country." Yes; a bad idea. — Monday Times.

GROOM DOESN'T COUNT

Polynesian is probably the only place in the world where the marriage feast takes place without the presence of the bridegroom. For some unexplained reason the young man is "sent into the bush" when the bride becomes a member of his family, and he invariably remains there during the subsequent festivities. It is only when the guests have departed and the girl is left alone that messengers are dispatched for him.

Oil Well Now Past 300 Feet; Stratas of Oil and Gas Found at Depth of 100 and 200 Feet

The Brazos Bend Oil Company has overcome the trouble they were having with the water well, and now have plenty of water to do the drilling.

They have unloaded a large tank of fuel oil, have it stored on the lease at the well in three one hundred barrel tanks. This fuel will last them nearly a month as it takes about ten barrels per day to do the drilling.

When the well was started for the oil pool which they expect to encounter, a quick sand was encountered at 42 feet which delayed the well for a day or so on account of the well filling up with this sand when the bit was drawn from the hole; however, this was speedily overcome and the surface casing was set the first day of the week, and since that time the well has been steadily going down.

Some hard formations, of red clay and bird's eye clay were passed through, and at about 110 feet a small sand of about one foot in thickness was passed through. A few rainbows of oil came from this sand. And at 200 feet deep a second sand was encountered, which shows a very small gas, and more rainbows, but no more sands are expected for several hundred feet. They are now drilling at past three hundred feet in blue and red shale. The drillers are expecting to get through what is known as the red beds at about 500 feet to 800 feet, when they are going to watch the hole with some expectations of encountering most any kind of stratas of coal, gas, oil or anything that may be encountered in the Pennsylvania formation. You had better watch this well.

No Abatement in Interest Shown in Clothes for General Daytime Wear.

ADOPTED IN WORLD-WIDE WAY

Paris Competing With London and New York in Turning Out Smartest and Most Appealing Styles.

There is no abatement in the tremendous interest shown in pastime clothes. Women of all ages are selecting them for general day-time wear practically to the exclusion of other types. Even those who have long realized the versatility of clothes of this sort never, in their most sanguine moments, dreamed that they would be adopted in such a world-wide way, declares a fashion writer in the New York Tribune.

Paris is competing with London and New York in the making of the smartest and most appealing styles in outdoor clothes. When any type of dress is exploited from all sides it always means that if the models are pretty and becoming a certain number of women will wear them with little sense of fitness. That is, a so-called pastime hat may be worn with a gown to which it is entirely unsuited. This is also true of shoes.

We have cut adrift from the old standards which governed the selection of footwear. The final blow was dealt with the wholesale adoption of patent leather for low-heeled walking shoes. With the flooding of the market with many excellent ideas in dress at one time there always comes a misapplication of the best of them.

Both sweaters and dresses are made in two or more contrasting colors; that is, of silk or wool in a plain color patterned in high relief.

Trimmed With Red Crepe Braid

Another successful Lanvin model also is developed in crepe marocain in two colors, but in this instance yellow and white are chosen, the blouse being in citron yellow trimmed with black and the skirt in pure white.

Jean Patou has been featuring the three-piece suit in his summer collection. In one of Patou's best models of this sort white serge is the material used and the trimming is red crepe braid. The lining of the jacket and the foundation skirt are of red silk; the blouse is of white crepe georgette.

Patou in many of his recent models has shown an extreme fondness for red. He apparently never misses an opportunity to use this color with good effect. It is pleasingly exploited in a jacket and dress. These two make up a costume developed in white and red serge. The loose-fitting jacket is of the red material trimmed with black and red leather, while the dress is of white serge with leather trimming.

An interesting idea in connection with daytime garments is the use of large embroidered open-work motifs placed on the center of the

Among the prettiest of the sweaters are those in lavender brocaded in blue. A new model in these shades which closes down the front like the very old-fashioned coat sweater is long, coming almost to the knees, and has long sleeves which flare at the bottom. There is a high collar buttoning up about the neck. The sweater itself is lavender and around the bottom and on the sleeves and the collar are squares knitted in blue. It is bloused by means of an elastic band placed low on the inside.

A great demand for any particular type of dress is a wonderful inspiration to designers and manufacturers and an incentive to do their best in that particular line. While there is the greatest diversity of color in the outing costume, here as everywhere else, a few colors become the extreme of fashion. In the plain shades brown, gray and white are favorite, while in the brighter hues there are unusual shades of cerise, purple, yellow and red. Emphasis is placed on yellow and black used in unison.

A complete reaction from black in daytime clothes is manifesting itself in the other extreme, white, for street wear, particularly white with color. And on this wave comes white flannel as well as white serge of an extremely soft and fine texture woven in part of camel's hair, which, mixed with the wool, gives a marvelous effect. The kasha serge of Rodler is of this character.

Jeanne Lanvin has been responsible largely for this movement to white serge and flannel with trimmings of embroidery in high colors, a trimming which she always has favored and in which she ever has excelled. One of her best models is in white serge embroidered in a brilliant Chinese red with little flakes of black as a relief.

Another interesting model of white serge is of simple design with slim panels on the bodice and on the skirt. This frock is embroidered in red and black in a Jugo-Slav pattern. A great many of Lanvin's embroideries are in Russian and Jugo-Slav designs. There are charming frocks of white serge done with bead embroideries in high colors after Russian motifs. Very often such frocks are in coat styles with the Russian bodice crossing.

English women long have recognized the desirability of flannel for outdoor skirts, jackets and frocks, and this season sees them adopted in a larger way than ever before. Many American women have felt that flannel was not the most practical material.

Few women realize that the Vivia flannels are absolutely unshrinkable if properly laundered and that they come in a large variety of styles and weights. It is possible to obtain the creamy white shades in six different weights. Then there are the stripes, the checks and the Scotch tartan plaids. In addition to the heavy or suiting weights in both white and fancy checks. Smart costumes consisting of a dress and cape are developed from the lighter-weight flannels in both the white and ivory shades and topped with hats of a vivid hue.

Crepe de chine and crepe marocain still are very important fabrics for the development of pastime clothes. Lanvin has made a beautiful model in two shades of crepe marocain. The blouse is of bright red, while the skirt is cream white. The bodice is made to slip on over the head and cut in pointed scallops at the bottom. The sleeves are finished in like manner. The girdle consists of a narrow strip of the white silk run through medallion slides of coral-colored composition. The skirt has a plaited front panel set in with hemstitching and Mexican drawn work—types of trimming which are very popular just now.

Blouse just beneath the pointed V collar. This idea is also shown in knitted garments.

Evening Cloaks.

One of the most attractive types of evening cloaks in a season of unusually attractive evening cloaks is that in blue-gray, resembling the swagger cape of an Italian officer. Unlike the officer, however, the summer girl generally makes her cape of taffeta or crepe de chine, and a delightfully summery garment it is. Another type of evening cloak is in gabardine, frequently in a shade of beige. It is merely a succession of graduated flounces, the one at the top a mere little wisp of a collar.

Net Blouses.

Net blouses are very popular this season, which means sweaters, sleeveless coats and jumper effects are in vogue. One rarely sees a shirtwaist these days that is not accompanied by some contrivance which gives the effect of a costume.

GAMES NOW PLAYED BY RADIO

Checkers Only One of the Many Amusements That Lend Themselves to the Wireless.

"Playing games by radio is the newest sport," writes William Teller in the July St. Nicholas. "The boys in and around New York city who have small radio-telegraph sets, are having a great deal of fun nowadays in carrying on contests and tournaments through the air. Folks who are listening in hear conversations like this: 'It's your move, John. I just jumped from twenty to twenty-seven.' 'All right, Tom; I'm moving from ten to fourteen.'"

"If we did hear a conversation like this, we should at once know that a game of checkers was being played. Checkers is only one of the many games that lends itself to radio. Playing radio checkers is just as easy and almost as fast as playing the game in the ordinary manner. In fact, it is more exciting than the usual game, because we are always playing an invisible opponent."

Wrong Conclusion.

Paul, like all healthy boys, was fond of playing outdoors, and like boys in general, he usually got himself scandalously dirty. He was about to sit down to dinner one evening when his mother happened to notice the soiled condition of his hands, and sent him out to the kitchen to wash them.

"You incorrigible boy!" she exclaimed, as soon as she saw the basin of water in which he had performed the required ablutions. "How in the world do you manage to get your hands so dirty?"

"That didn't all come from my hands," indignantly answered Paul. "I washed my face in that water, too!"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Slight Mistake.

Jim was very much in love, but held back his proposal from sheer bashfulness. At last he decided to pop the question by telephone.

"Mabel, I love you!" he gasped, his heart thumping. "Will you marry me?"

There was a moment's hesitation before the answer came.

"Of course I will, Arthur. Why didn't you come and ask me yourself?"

Then Jim shouted back: "You'll have to break the news to Arthur yourself. I'll be hanged if I will!"

Other End Up.

Mother—"Johnny, don't go in the water over your knees." Johnny—"All right, ma, I'll just dive."

Chestnut bell of 30 years ago went out of fashion because it had to be rung all the time.

The Department of Agriculture has just completed a survey which shows that the 1922 Texas pecan crop is almost an entire failure, according to E. W. Coie, Director of Markets.

All fuel bids having been rejected by the State Board of Control, new bids will be opened soon. If prices are still high the board will again reject the proposals and buy fuel in the open market until prices are nearer normal.

Doves may be hunted Sept. 1, at the opening of the dove-hunting season, and State Game Commissioner W. W. Boyd, who has recently returned from extended inspections of the State, reports gratifying number of them to hunt.

F. P. Wood, for some time general liquidating agent of the State Department of Insurance and Banking, has resigned, effective Sept. 15, to become an officer of the Seaboard Bank and Trust Company of Port Arthur. His successor has not been named.

Governor Neff is to leave within a few days for an inspection of the penitentiary and prison farms, this being one of his periodical visitations. It has been some time since he last visited the farms and will again look up friendless convicts and those seeking pardons.

Telegrams from State bankers have been pouring into the Governor's office asking for the appointment of Elders McKinnon as Commissioner of Insurance and Banking to succeed Ed Hall on Sept. 1, since W. W. Woodson of Waco is understood not to want it.

The W. B. Pyron attendance cup, for the best attendance record at the Texas National Guard Cavalry encampment, has been won by Troop F, 112th Cavalry of Tyler, Brigadier General Jacob F. Walters, Fifty-Sixth Brigade Commander, announced, Troop K, which has 71 enlisted men, made a perfect attendance record with every man in camp.

It is said at the capitol that W. W. Woodson, president of the First National Bank of Waco, would not accept the position of Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, to succeed Ed Hall, who leaves the State service on Sept. 1, to be first vice president and a director of the Dallas County State Bank.

J. L. Thomas, dairy specialist at the A. & M. College, was in Austin at the request of Dr. J. T. Harrington member of the State Board of Control in charge of purchases. Mr. Thomas inspected local dairies supplying products to the State institutions. Most of the State institutions away from Austin have their own dairies and do not have to purchase dairy products by contract.

Friends of the venerable Chief Justice W. M. Key of the Third Court of Civil Appeals and Mrs. Key will be glad to learn that the automobile accident which befell them near Bentonville, Ark., was not as serious as first reported. Dr. N. S. Key of Austin, a son, received a message from his father declaring that his parents were not seriously injured.

Adjutant General Thomas D. Barton has returned from Denison and reported to the Governor that the situation there is quiet and in hand. He does not think the troops will be withdrawn, as requested by several Labor Councils, as, under present conditions, that step might produce violence.

Notice has been given that the Texas radio market news service will suspend for two weeks in order that the radio plant may be moved to a new location on the University campus. The suspension, it was explained, comes when the movement of perishable produce from Texas is at its lowest.

The keenest competition of the two National Guard encampments at Camp Mabry started when cavalry marksmen were pitted against infantry and staff corps riflemen in an elimination contest by which the Texas National Guard rifle team will be selected for the national rifle matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

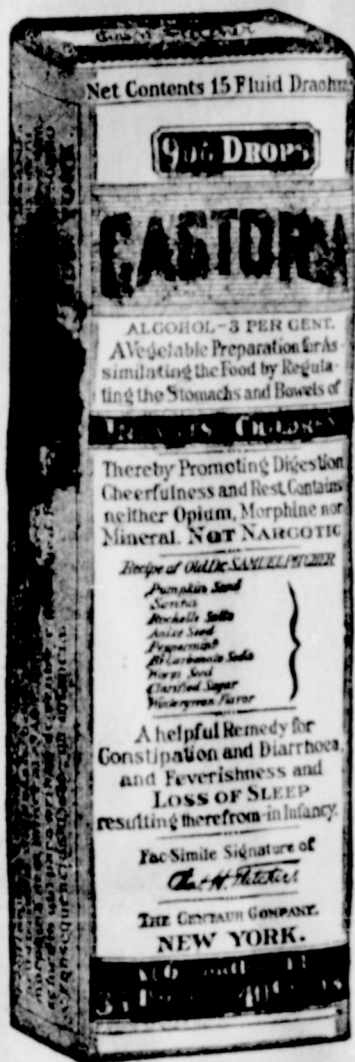

The newly organized International Great Northern Railroad has applied to the Railroad Commission for authority to issue $20,000,000 first mortgage bonds and $17,000,000 in come bonds. The petition was presented by General Attorney S. B. [Name] and will be approved, since the [Name] does not exceed the [Name] fixed by the commission.

Shame on Them.

PERHAPS there are a few mothers who do not know the virtues of Fletcher's Castoria. Perhaps there are a few who know that there are imitations on the market, and knowing this demand Fletcher's. It is to ALL motherhood, then, that we call attention to the numerous imitations and counterfeits that may be set before them.

It is to all motherhood everywhere that we ring out the warning to beware of the "Just-as-good". For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been an aid in the upbuilding of our population; an aid in the saving of babies.

And yet there are those who would ask you to try something new. Try this. Try that. Even try the same remedy for the tiny, scarcely breathing, babe that you in all your robust womanhood would use for yourself. Shame on them.

Your Friend, the Physician.

The history of all medicines carries with it the story of battles against popular beliefs; fights against prejudice; even differences of opinion among scientists and men devoting their lives to research work; laboring always for the betterment of mankind. This information is at the hand of all physicians. He is with you at a moment's call be the trouble trifling or great. He is your friend, your household counselor. He is the one to whom you can always look for advice even though it might not be a case of sickness. He is not just a doctor. He is a student to his last and final call. His patients are his family and to lose one is little less than losing one of his own flesh and blood.

SET THE STANDARD TOO LOW

National Motion Picture Director Gives His Opinion as to Mistakes Made by Producers.

Will Hays, the new motion-picture director, said the other day in New York:

"Too many motion-picture people think that everything really good is highbrow. Their standard is too low. They are like the chorus girl.

"A chorus girl married a rich man after a stormy courtship of about a week, and the Sunday morning following the wedding, when she came downstairs to breakfast, she found her young husband engrossed in the two or three hundred enormous pages of the city's yellowest newspaper.

"Before this spectacle the chorus girl started back aghast.

"Heavens," she said, 'I've married a highbrow!'"

Dear as Bush Slashers.

W. J. Murray Gibson, the successful novelist, in writing of French-Canadian guides in the Nineteenth Century Review, tells a tale of one called Van, of Tobique river, encountered in his own spacious clearing:

"Must have taken some work to clear this brush," I remarked. "Not a bit," he said. "All it cost me was a little salt. It was the deer that did it—a shot of salt at the root of each bush, and they cleared the whole yard."

But in the Air. Rub—"I think I shall buy an airplane." Rub—"Why, you have no use on earth for one."

"Potential Energy."

Potential energy is that which exists by virtue of position as opposed to motion; that is, nonactive energy. Water stored in an elevated reservoir represents potential energy, as its liberation to a lower level may be utilized to effect work.

Division Road Engineer Visits Knox City and Confers With County Engineer L. Nolan

Austin, Texas, August 23, 1922.
Hon. J. M. Morgan, County Judge, Benjamin, Texas.

Dear Sir:
This is to advise you that the State Highway Commission at its monthly meeting on August 21 after considering the application of Knox County for aid on State Highway 28 from Knox City North to the Ford County line decided before taking any definite action upon this matter that it would be best for our Division Engineer to visit Knox County and to confer with your Court relative to receiving aid on this Highway.

Owing to the fact that you have already started construction on this highway and have completed about three miles with five miles yet to be constructed I wish to advise that if aid were allotted it could only apply on that portion of the highway on which no work has been done. This would mean that you would have to submit formal application for the remaining five miles, appoint a County Engineer to prepare the plans and specifications and submit same to this office for approval before we could authorize you to advertise for bids and resume construction. This would require at least six weeks or two months and in view of this we believe that it would be better to have our Division Engineer confer with you in order that these matters may be fully explained and that your Court will understand.

We have instructed Mr. Henry C. Porter, Division Engineer, to visit Knox County at the earliest possible date. He will advise you when he will be in Knox City.

Yours very truly,

J. D. Fauntleroy,
State Highway Engineer.

In compliance with letter from State Highway Engineer, which appears above, Division Engineer Henry C. Porter of Palinger, Texas, spent Monday here consulting with County Engineer L. Nolan relative to federal aid for a portion of Highway No. 28. Mr. Porter spoke very favorably of the work already done and will recommend federal aid on the unfinished portion.

resume work, under the pen-ity of expulsion, was posted throughout the Ruhr and Rhineland recently.

The order affects 500,000 Germans, as the families of those refusing to return to their posts will accompany them into unoccupied Germany.

Approximately 125,000 men come directly under the order.

All the Ruhr and Rhineland railways systems now are held by the French and Belgians, except the line in the Cologne zone bridgehead, which is in the hands of the British.
The Germans have continued at work on this system.

The task of expelling the strikers and their families will require several weeks. It is said that German Government has anticipated the expulsion order and arranged for distributing the men and their families throughout the country.

Under a decree by the interallied Rhineland commission the railway workers were notified a week ago by the French that those who refused to serve under the French and Belgians would be expelled from occupied territory the first week of April. It is said that 1,843 Germans have agreed to return to work.

has been sent into occupied territory up to date by the Berlin Government for the striking railway men and passive resistance although not on strike.

PROPOSED VISIT OF ALIENS IS PROTESTED

Immigration Authorities Will Question Martens and Associates

Washington.—Reports that Ludwig
A. K. Martens, former "Soviet Ambassador to the United States," his secretary, Gregory Weinstein, and Madame Kalinin, wife of the peasant president of the Russian Soviet Republic, are coming to the United States, have caused a deluge of protests to Secretary Davis. Orders have been issued to all immigration inspectors to watch for them and if application is made by them for entry to make a thorough investigation as to their purpose.

Orders previously were issued to cover the entrance of Weinstein, who is on the list of undesirables.
Madame Kalinin, however, is said to be coming to America at the invitation of a children's relief society to make a two months' tour appealing for aid for famine sufferers.

No information covering the movements and purposes of Martens have been received at the Labor Depart-

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE FOR DINNER.

A simple plum pudding which is nice to have on hand is the following:

Plum Pudding.
—Take one quart
of milk, nine milk
crackers, one-half cupful each of molasses and sugar, one cupful of raisins, soak over night and in the morning add such spices as desired and steam four hours.
Warm up as needed and serve with any pudding sauce.

Tapioca Pudding.—Take one tablespoonful of tapioca, the minute variety; one tablespoonful of corn meal, salt to taste, and one pint of milk mixed with one-half cupful of molasses. Bake and stir while cooking. Flavor with nutmeg or cinnamon.

This is the time of the year when water cress is most enjoyed.

Water Cress and Grapefruit Salad.—
Cut the stalks from a bunch of cress, carefully pick over to remove all dis-colored leaves and cover with cold water in which is dissolved a little salt.

Pare and remove the pulp from grapefruit, cut into small, thin slices.
Put into a salad bowl with three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a little paprika and salt to taste. Mix gently, not to crush the fruit. At serving time put the cress into a towel and swing vigorously to remove every drop of water, mix with the fruit and serve at once.

Tamales.—Boil a fowl until tender, salt and season with onion or garlic while boiling. Remove the meat from the bones and chop fine, add a bit of garlic and a generous quantity of cayenne pepper. Make a thick paste of corn meal, salt and boiling water.
Form the meat into rolls the size of a finger and incase each in the corn meal paste. Wrap each tamale in the inner husk of corn, tie with a strip of corn husk and drop the tamales into the chicken stock to cook. Add two or three Mexican peppers and cook fifteen minutes.

Each day a little later now lingers the westerling sun,
Far out of sight the miracles
Of April are begun.

Work will be started in the near future and within the course of a few weeks there will be water running to every house in town. This will make bathing more convenient and will be helpful in a number of ways.

Band Developing Rapidly.

From some demonstrations given on the streets here recently by the Knox City band it is to be noticed that the band is developing rapidly and is beginning to play real music. To any one who appreciates good music it is a pleasure to hear this band.

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday it was voted that the chamber would back the band in a financial way and would co-operate with it in any possible way to keep the good work going. Details of the plans have not been developed, but the band is guaranteed the support of the town and there is no reason why it should not reach its goal.

UNFORTUNATE
"It's sorter funny," philosophically said the gaunt Knox City fellow, "that all the men I want to whip are either so big I can't whip 'em or so little I'm ashame to."
