SCHOOL ANNOUNCEMENTS

All pupils who desire information as to their standing in school are asked to call on either Friday afternoon or Saturday afternoon next week. I shall be in the school each afternoon and shall check up credits with the pupils but it is especially desired that all who expect to graduate this year will be on hand.

All pupils who wish to take special examinations in any subject or subjects will please meet at the school building at nine o'clock, Monday, August 28th.

All pupils in the primary and elementary grades will be at the school building on Friday morning, September 1st, at nine o'clock. Pupils will be classified at this time, books will be passed and lessons will be reviewed, in order that work may be done promptly on the following Monday morning.

On Saturday morning, September 2nd, High School Pupils will be classified. It is hoped that all high school pupils will be present at this time, that they may get their books and their lesson assignments for the first day of school.

On Monday morning, September 4th, at nine o'clock, the opening exercises of the school will be held. A short program will be rendered in the auditorium.

Mr. J. B. Jones, the new county Supt will speak and it is hoped that Mr. Roper, who graduated in a meeting here a year or so ago, will be present and will sing. The public is invited to attend and to give the school a good send-off.

Boyd M. McKeown,
Superintendent.

Benjamin Post was here one day of Knox County.

MRS. L. L. WRIGHT TO ENGAGE IN MILLINERY BUSINESS HERE

Mrs. L. L. Wright, who now conducts a millinery business in Rochester, will open a line of millinery goods in the new dry goods store of G. D. McCarty on Saturday of this week. Mrs. Wright was in Knox City last Friday, making arrangements for the opening of her millinery line. This will add to the commercial interests of Knox City and will also be of value to Mr. McCarty in his business.

Mrs. Wright is well known to many of the people of this community, hence needs no introduction to them. She will be glad to have her friends call and see her and look over her line of goods. See her announcement elsewhere in The Journal this week.

Still in Race for Commissioner.

The name of W. R. Condron was dropped from our announcement column following the primary election on July 22nd, owing to the fact that we were, as we thought at that time, reliably informed that he would not be in the run-off primary to be held tomorrow, the 26th. We were not authorized to take his name off the list of candidates, but as we stated above, we thought we were reliably informed that he was out of the race. And we did not learn until this week to the contrary. Mr. Condron states that he did not know until this week that his name had been dropped from our announcement column, as he left on Monday after the primary and did not return home until a few days ago. We regret that we were misinformed in regard to this matter, but can only state that Mr. Condron's name will appear on the ticket tomorrow and that had we not thought that we had been correctly informed we would not have taken his name from our announcement column.

REVIVAL AT O'BRIEN

Rev. J. W. Hawkins, pastor, announces that an outdoor revival meeting is to begin at O'Brien Sunday, September 3rd.

EVANGELIST A. P. LOWREY

Bro. Lowrey has been in the evangelistic work about twenty-two or twenty-three years, and under his ministry there have been over 27,000 professions. He has held meetings in several states and in most of the large cities of Texas. Owing to a long friendship, Bro. Hawkins is able to get him for the O'Brien meeting.

SINGER HARLIN J. ROPER

Harlin J. Roper of Carthage, Mo., has been with Bro. Lowrey for some years. He is talented, religious and trained, and is a great song leader. His wife is very fine at the piano and with the young people.

W. F. Bisbee, editor of the Benjamin Post, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, was brought to Knox City and placed in the sanitarium last Saturday. An operation was performed upon him Monday morning. He was reported to be doing fairly well Tuesday, though it was not possible at that time to tell what the result might be. Mr. Bisbee has a tumor or enlargement of the liver.

FEDERAL AID APPLIED FOR

Dr. Jas. M. Green made a trip to Austin this week to make application to the State Highway Commission for Federal aid on that portion of State Highway No. 29 extending between the Brazos river and the county line, and passing through Knox City. Dr. Green succeeded in getting the promise of Federal aid in the sum of $15,000 to match an equal amount to be set aside from the bond money, and this will then be used on the five miles of the road which is yet to be built. Three miles of the eight miles is practically completed and Federal aid for this could not be had, as it is the policy of the government to combine the funds before work is begun and construct under Federal supervision.

The work, under the supervision of L. Nolan, State highway engineer, has been progressing very nicely. A change has recently been made in the office force, a new bookkeeper having been employed. The citizens of this community are watching the road work with interest and are hopeful that at the earliest possible moment the work will be completed and that we will have one of the best systems of public roads in the state.

In our writeup last week of the spudding in of the oil well we intended to mention the fact that the drill stem was christened by Miss Mabel Benedict, but in our hurry to get the paper printed so all hands could take in the carnival and rodeo, we overlooked this item. The christening took place just preceding the starting of the drill, when Miss Benedict broke a bottle of "champaign" (the kind that is manufactured by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company) on the drill stem.

Texas News

Arrangements are being made for holding the annual South Texas Fair at Yoakum October 5 to 8. The fair promises to be one of the largest ever held.

The attorney general has approved
$75,000 issue of New Braunfels street and bridge improvement bonds, 4 1/2%.

Harris County taxpayers will be assessed 13c more on county taxes during the coming year. This, with the 12c increase in state taxes, will increase their payments 25c on the $100 valuation.

August 29 has been designated as Trades Day for Brownsville by the Retail Merchants' Association.

Cotton picking is now general throughout Washington County and both grade and staple compare well with the product of the past two years.

Jefferson county commissioners have increased taxes 3 cents on the $100 valuation. To take care of the $2,000,- 000 road bond issue the total state and county taxes will be $1,630,000 on a valuation of $92,000,000.

Plans are being perfected for the Jackson County fair to be held at Edna on November 10 and 11. The various committees are hard at work and before long the plan for the entire two-days' fair will be mapped out.

The contract for rebuilding the portion of the bridge over the Brazos on the Hempstead-Belleville road, which was washed away by the May flood, has been let for $16,000, of which amount Waller County is to pay $6,000.
Austin County $6,000, and the state $4,- 000.

Workmen have completed practically the regrading of the Jim Hogg highway through Wood County, making it one of the best highways in that section of the state. This means that Wood County is the first in the state to complete its part of the Jim Hogg highway.

Governor Neff has appointed the following as Texas commissioners to the Brazilian Centennial Exposition at Rio Janeiro Sept. 7: C. B. Gillespie, Sugarland; John L. Darroutet, Galveston; C. W. Blake, Houston; Harry Hyan, El Paso, and Burt J. Bean, Wichita Falls.

The railroad commission has authorized a rate of 18c per 100 pounds, minimum weight 2,600 pounds per car, on cast iron pipe and connections
from Lufkin to Beaumont, Chalson, Orange, Port Arthur, West Port Arthur, Port Neches, Houston and Galveston, effective Sept. 5.

Grain exports through Galveston and Texas City for the first fifteen days of August totaled 2,294,895 bushels, or almost twice as much as was exported from these ports during the entire month of July, according to figures compiled from clearance statements at the custom house. The July total from both ports was 1,447,417 bushels.

The state board of control has rejected all bids for coal and fuel oil, believing the prices quoted too high and that with the settlement of the coal strike lower quotations will be had.
The board will purchase emergency fuel where necessary, but expects to open new bids in about two weeks at a date yet to be fixed.

In practically all of its orders issued at this time establishing rates and regulations the railroad commission of Texas stipulates that if same is found unduly discriminatory against interstate commerce the commission, upon proper showing being made, will amend and modify its orders to remove such discrimination. This is one of the results of the agreement with the interstate commerce commission when it vacated the old Shreveport order, which tightly bound the commission.

The attorney general has approved
the following bonds: Brashear Independent School District, $10,000, serials, sixes; Jones-Shackelford County Common Line District 25, $12,000, five-forties, sixes; Coleman County Common School District 52, $7,500, twenty-forties, sixes; DeWitt County Common School District 38, $4,500, five-twenties, sixes.

Several men, under supervision of the federal bureau of horticulture, have been in Williamson County, with headquarters at Georgetown, for a number of weeks making investigation on farms and in cotton fields to ascertain if the pink boll worm has made its appearance in that section.
Their report is that no trace of the worm is to be found in Williamson County.

With the cotton picking season just getting into full swing in other sections of the state, in the Rio Grande Valley the farmers have practically completed picking. The season has been unusually favorable for the cotton growers, the yield has been fine and the prices have remained good.
There have been many reports of the hole in the ear. There has been no damage from boll weevil.

A "Wet" Drive on "Dry" Law

A tremendous effort is going to be made throught the United States to override the Volstead Act and restore wine and beer as a common beverage. The greatest hope the wet interests have in this effort is that prohibitionists will stay away from the primary elections and let the wets select and nominate the congressional candidates. For unless congress lets wine and beer come back they will not come back.

The experience of every prohibition state has proved the price of prohibition in the early stages of enforcement, is eternal vigilance by the citizens and officials who stand steadfast for enforcement of law and order.

Booze, either light or heavy, has never obeyed the law. The saloon was an outlaw during the whole of its existence, until it became an outcast and finally was kicked out of the United States. If the so-called light wines and beers are legalized, their alcoholic content will not remain stationary. The consumer will demand a little more and a little more "kick" the booze seller and the booze manufacturer will give it to him and we shall have a lively competition to see who can be quickest and cleverest at breaking the law.

These "light" wines and beers will gradually be made stronger and stronger, despite the vigilance of gaugers, until we shall have old, disreputable, besotted John Barleycorn back here again and worse than ever. Anyone who has watched a Western or Southern state in its pioneer grapple with the liquor evil, knows how true it is that if you give him an inch John barleycorn will take a mile. The only way to enforce prohibition is to screw the lid down tight, tighter and tightest. The least temporizing with the booze devil, and the work of reform has all to be done again. Just this is the merace of the light wine and beer propaganda.

The Literary Digest, published in New York, is polling all its readers on national prohibition and whether the use of light wines and beer shall be permitted. The Digest's early returns are largely from the cities and show, especially in the Eastern states, a large vote favoring beer and wine. Many non-thinking persons who are for national prohibition, are in favor of modifying the law in this respect, not seeing what this modification inevitably entails. In this they are greatly strengthening and encouraging the liquor interests in their propaganda. They do not yet know what prohibition states learned years ago, that the only brand of prohibition that is effective is the bone-dry brand.

The poll of the Literary Digest on the 18th Amendment has gone far enough to warrant the prophecy of the New York Times that "The polling is sure to confirm the belief already held by the observing, that repeal of the 18th Amendment is hopeless. It is plainly in the organic law to stay."

That may be true so far as the letter of the law is concerned, but the 18th Amendment will be nullified if not repealed, by permitting "light" wines and beer to become a common beverage. This country will never vote to repeal the 18th Amendment. It won't have to if it permits wine and beer to circulate. That is certain. - Capper's Weekly.

Professor Jefferson G. Smith, who was a candidate for State Superintendent in the July primary, passed through Knox City last Friday, and while here he called on The Journal editor. He left with us a lengthy communication stating his position in regard to the two remaining candidates for this office who will be in the run-off primary on the 26th. Ed R. Bentley and S. M. N. Marrs. He did not state whether or not he expected us to publish this communication, and we took it for granted that he only left it for our personal perusal. However, he later mailed us a more lengthy communication boosting his choice of the two candidates and requesting us to publish same. We will do so whenever we receive the proper amount of "kick" at our regular rate for this class of political advertising or the assurance that same will be forthcoming - not before.

In conjunction with this plan, there will be held at Mr. Frizzell's store a series of Recitals. Every month Mr. Frizzell will receive a set of the newest in musical Re-Creation two weeks before these records are published, for these Recitals. Invitations will be sent out to Edison owners and any others who may be interested.

Edison owners are advised to consult Mr. Frizzell regarding their schedules for the Clubs, so as to be in a position to receive the first sets in September. There is no membership fee, charge or obligation attached to the membership except the calling for and returning the sets on the schedule dates on time.

RAIL AGREEMENT IS ABOUT EFFECTED

EXECUTIVES AND BROTHERHOOD CHIEFS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE COMPROMISED.

NEW PLANS FOR SENIORITY

Strikers Will Take Rights Behind Men Who Stayed on Job, Ahead of New Employes.

New York—Railroad executives and chiefs of the big five brotherhoods have agreed on a compromise proposal for settling the strike of shopmen. It was indicated after an all-day session Friday. The conference adjourned to meet at an unfixd date next week.

Meanwhile, the brotherhood chiefs will discuss with the shopmen the proposals on seniority that were put forward, and the committee of executives will confer with the other railroad heads. It was intimated that a vote of the complete membership of the Association of Railway Executives would be required.

After a session Friday morning the brotherhood chiefs, who are acting as mediators, conferred with heads of the shop crafts unions. Another session was held during the afternoon.

The nature of the proposals on seniority was not revealed. They are understood, however, to call for the return of the shopmen with seniority rights behind men who remained on the job, but ahead of new men employed. This would be a concession from each side. The executives have insisted that the new men should have first rights in seniority, and that returning strikers should go back as new men. Shopmen have held out for full retention of their seniority rights.

All parties to the conference are carefully refraining from discussion. Bert M. Jewell, leader of the shopmen, said that the situation is a "delicate" one, and declined to comment. Spokesmen for the executives would go no further than intimating guardedly that they were optimistic for a settlement.

ALLIES' DELEGATES WILL GO TO BERLIN AT ONCE

To Determine Whether Germany Can Mobilize Securities to Float A Loan.

Paris—The reparations commission is to send to Berlin delegates to confer directly in the German capital with Chancellor Wirth and other officials on the reparations problem. The delegation will consist of Sir John Bradbury, British member of the reparations commission, and Eugene Mauciere, president of the allied commission on guarantees, and two experts. The party will leave Paris for Berlin at once.

One of the chief purposes behind the decision of the commission to have referees confer direct with the German authorities is to determine whether Germany can mobilize sufficient securities to float a loan of 12,000,000 lbs. with which to meet the remaining cash payments due this year. The commission has reason to believe that if adequate collateral can be found certain international bankers would arrange the loan.

With such a loan effected the reparations commission would be able to avoid the question of a moratorium for at least six months, and the feeling is gaining ground that at the end of this time the allies would be ready to meet in conference to discuss the general reparations settlement in connection with a reduced indemnity and cancellation of war debts.

Refusal to Move Coal Investigated.

Washington, D. C.—Attorney General Daugherty announces he was "giving attention" to the situation in Southern Illinois resulting from the refusal of workers on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad at Cypress, Ill., to move or permit the movement of southern coal from Kentucky and Alabama. "That is a violation of law—when men do that," said Mr. Daugherty. "I do not care to say at this time what the department's action has been or will be."

Coal and Oil Bids Rejected.

Austin, Texas—The State Board of Control has rejected all bids for coal and fuel oil believing the prices quoted too high and that with the settlement of the coal strike lower quotations will be had. The board will purchase emergency fuel when necessary, but expects to open new bids in about two weeks at a date yet to be fixed.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take salivating calomel when a cent buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it won't make you sick and can not salivate. CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

"By heavens!" he cried, furiously. "Here's that d-d villain again—hold him, you! at him, everybody!"

In a blind rage, transported out of himself by his sudden access of passion, the banker buried himself forward. From the hand he burst a cry of futile warning; the pistol in his hand veered toward his assailant.

This action precipitated the event. Perhaps because the Masquer did not fire instantly, and perhaps because Maillard's mad action shamed them, the nearer members of the drinking party hurried themselves at the bandit. The threat of the weapon was forgotten, unheeded in the sweeping lust of the man-hunt. It seemed that the fellow feared to fire; and about him closed the party in a surging mass, with a burst of sudden shouts, striking and clutching to pull him down and put him under foot.

Then, when it seemed that they had him without a struggle, the Masquer broke from them, swept them apart and threw them off, hurried them clear away.

With an oath, Maillard buried himself forward, struck blindly and furiously at the bandit, and fastened upon him about the waist. There was a surge forward of bodies as the others crowded in to pull down the Masquer before he could escape. It looked then as though he were indeed lost—until the automatic flamed and roared in his hand, its choking fumes bursting at them. The report thundered in the room; a second report thundered, deafeningly, as a second bullet sought its mark.

Like a faint echo to those shots came the slam of a door. The Masquer was gone!

After him, into the farther room, rushed some of the party; but he had vanished utterly. There was no trace of him. His complete disappearance confused the searchers. After a moment, however, they returned to the lighted room. The Masquer had gone.

In the room which he had just left, however, there had fallen a dread silence and consternation. One of the masquer drinkers held an arm that hung helpless, dripping blood; but his hurt passed unseen and uncared for, even by himself.

Doctor Ansley was kneeling above a motionless figure, prone on the dirty floor; and it was the figure of Joseph Maillard. The physician glanced up, then rose slowly to his feet. He made a terribly significant gesture, and his crisp voice broke in upon the appalled silence.

"Dead," he said, curtly. "Shot twice—each bullet through the heart."

The Threat of the Weapon Was Forgotten, Unheeded in the Sweeping Lust of the Man-Hunt.

Judge Forester, I'm afraid there is no alternative but to call in the police. Gentlemen, you will kindly unmask—which one of you is Robert Maillard?"

Aid a stunned and horrified silence the members of the Krewe one by one removed their grotesque headgear, staring at the dead man whose white face looked up at them with an air of grim accusation. But none of them came forward to claim kinship with the dead man; Bob Maillard was not in the room.

"I think," said the toneless, even voice of Jachin Fell, "that all of you gentlemen had better be very careful to say only what you have seen—and know. You will kindly remain here until I have summoned the police."

He left the room, and if there were any dark implication hidden in his words, no one seemed to observe it.

CHAPTER IX.

On the Bayou.

At three o'clock on the morning of Wednesday the great white Maillard building was deserted and so far as its office were concerned the cleaners and scrubbers had finished their work in the streets. A single electric light was, however, in use. A single suite of offices, with carefully drawn blinds, was lighted and occupied.

They were not ornate, these offices. They consisted of two rooms, a small reception room and a large private office, both lined to the ceiling with books, chiefly law books. In the larger room were sitting three men. One of the three, Ben Chacherre, sat in a chair tipped back against the wall, his eyes closed. From time to time he opened those sparkling black eyes of his, and through narrow-slitted lids directed keen glances at the other two men.

One of the men was the chief of police. The second was Jachin Fell, whose offices these were.

"Even if things are as you say, which I don't doubt at all," said the chief, slowly, "I can't believe the boy did it! And darn it all, if I pinch him there's gold to be a h— of a scandal!"

Fell shrugged his shoulders, and made response in his toneless voice: "Chief, you're up against facts. Those facts are bound to come out and the newspapers will nail your hide to the wall in a minute. You've a bare chance to save yourself by taking in young Maillard at once."

The chief chewed hard on his cigar. "I don't want to save myself by putting the wrong man behind the bars," he returned. "It sure looks like he was the Masquer all the while, but you say that he wasn't. You say this was his only job—a joke that turned out bad."

"Those are the facts," said Fell. "I don't want to accuse a man of crimes I know he did not commit. We have the best of evidence that he did commit this crime. If the newspapers fasten the entire Midnight Masquer business on him, as they're sure to do, we can't very well help him. I have no sympathy for the boy."

"Of course he did it," put in Ben Chacherre, sleepily. "Wasn't he caught with the goods?"

The others paid no heed. The chief indicated two early editions of the morning papers, which lay on the desk in front of Fell. These papers carried full accounts of the return of the Midnight Masquer's loot, explaining his robberies as part of a carnival jest.

"The later editions, comin' out now," said the chief, "will crowd all that stuff off the front page with the Maillard murder. Darn it, Fell! Whether I believe it or not, I'll have to arrest the 'young fool.'"

Chacherre chuckled. Jachin Fell smiled faintly.

"Nothing could be plainer, chief," he responded. "First, Bob Maillard comes to us in front of the open house, and talks about a great joke that he's going to spring on his friends across the way—"

"How'd you know who he was?" interjected the chief, shrewdly.

"Gramont recognized him; Ansley and I confirmed the recognition. He was more or less intoxicated—chiefly more. Now, young Maillard was not in the room at the moment of the murder—unless he was the Masquer. Five minutes afterward he was found in a nearby room, hastily changing out of an aviator's uniform into his masquerade costume. Obviously, he had assumed the guise of the Masquer as a joke on his friends, and the joke had a tragic ending. Further, he was in the aviation service during the war, and so had the uniform ready to hand. You couldn't make anybody believe that he hasn't been the Masquer all the time!"

"Of course," and the chief nodded perplexedly. "It'd be a clear case—only you call me in and say that he wasn't the Masquer! D—n it, Fell, this thing has my goat!"

"What's Maillard's story?" struck in Ben Chacherre.

"He denies the whole thing," said the worried chief. "According to his story, which sounded straight the way he tells it, he meant to pull off the joke on his friends and was dressing in the Masquer's costume when he heard the shots. He claims that the shots startled him and made him change back. He swears that he had not entered the other room at all, except in his masquerade clothes. He says the murderer must have been the real Masquer. It's likely enough, because all young Maillard's crowd knew about the party that was to be held in that room during the Comus ball—"

"No matter," said Fell, coldly. "Chief, this is an open and shut case; the boy was bound to lie. That he killed his father was an accident, of course, but none the less it did take place."

"The boy's a wreck this minute."

The chief held a match to his unlighted cigar. "But you say that he ain't the original Masquer?"

"No," Fell spoke quietly. "The original Masquer was another person and had nothing to do with the present case. This information is confidential and between ourselves."

"Oh, of course," assented the chief. "Well, I suppose I got to pull Maillard, but I hate to do it. I got a hunch that he ain't the right party."

"Virtuous man!" Fell smiled thinly. "According to all the books, the chief of police is only too glad to catch the crime on anybody—"

HOT WEATHER DRINKS

If we have been forehanded and last summer and fall provided for the hot days, by putting up various fruit juices, we will always be prepared for the warm weather.

Of course there is the ever-present lemon, which is a good old standby, and one of which we never tire. Add a beaten egg to a pitcher of lemonade—two, if a good-sized pitcher; it adds to the value of the drink as a food and makes it a different drink. This will be a good tip to mothers who want the family to eat eggs; in this way they go down with little protest. With the addition of a sprig of mint or a section of lemon the delicacy and attractiveness of the draught is increased.

The juices of any of the berries make delicious fruit drinks. Raspberry shrub is especially well liked. This is prepared by adding vinegar to the berries, let stand for a day and drain, sweeten the juice, cook and bottle. Grape juice is one of the most popular of all; this may be bought in any town, but when prepared at home is of much better quality and less expensive. Cocoa or chocolate for those who are fond of these flavors may be prepared in a sirup and kept for weeks.

Iced coffee and tea are both refreshing and stimulating.

Iced Tea.—Take two teaspoonfuls each of green and black tea; pour over a pint of boiling water and cover tightly, let stand five minutes to draw. Take a large piece of ice, place in a granite pan and pour over it the boiling tea. When well chilled add water to taste and fill glasses. Garnish with sections of lemon and serve with loaf sugar.

Fruit Shrub.—Cover the berries, using half as much vinegar as berries, let them stand for three days in a cool place, then strain and add four more quarts of fruit to the juice and vinegar; again stand three days, drain and put into a preserving kettle with a pound of sugar to each three cupfuls of juice. Boil and seal in bottles. Blackberries, loganberries, or any fruit may be thus treated.

Frozen Beef Tea.—This is a novelty which will appeal to the invalid during the hot weather. Take a thick cut of round steak, broil it quickly until the juice begins to run, place in a vegetable press and extract all the juice. Add a pinch of salt and serve frozen like mush.

Don't think you have a corner on the trouble market. I could mention several varieties you've never even heard of. What you need is the philosophy of cheerful endurance. Then you will begin to accomplish.—Lloyd.

TASTY TID-BITS

A delicacy to serve with a cup of tea is round, crisp crackers spread with cottage cheese and a maraschino cherry placed in the middle. Gingerbread cut in small rounds may be treated the same way. A small square of apple jelly may be used in place of the cherry, if desired.

Another cheese cracker which is not very common is prepared as follows: Take the fresh crisp crackers a third longer than wide and lay them side by side in a dripping pan. Cut thin oblongs of cheese slightly smaller than the crackers, lay on, and over this place halves of pecans, four or five to each cracker. Place in the oven and melt the cheese. Serve with crisp stalks of white celery.

Rice à la Creme.—Wash one-half cupful of rice and cook in water until partly done, then add milk and simmer until the milk is absorbed; season with a little salt. Dissolve one tablespoonful of gelatin in a little water, add to the hot rice, sugar to sweeten and vanilla to flavor. When cold add a half cupful of heavy cream whipped, pour into a mold and serve with fruit as a garnish.

Huntington Salad.—Chop very fine enough white cabbage to make two-thirds of a cupful, add one softened cream cheese to the cabbage, mix well, season, roll into balls and sprinkle with paprika. Arrange on lettuce and serve with French dressing.

Harvest Ginger-ade.—Take a tablespoonful of powdered ginger, mix with four tablespoonfuls of sugar and add three cupfuls of cold water. Stir well, add a piece of ice and let stand for a few minutes before serving.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a 19 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend your medicine to all women although I am young to be advising some one older."—Mrs. CHRIST. PETROFF, 318 W. Liberty St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

To Friends of The Journal.

Once again we call attention to the fact that we desire to publish all the news—and to publish it while it is news. We greatly appreciate the items that are handed in to us each week by our friends. There are many items, we realize, that escape us and do not get in the paper. This is not our fault, however, as we cannot tell what is happening on the outside when we are busy at work in our office, unless some of our friends tell us about it. And in sending or handing in items of news, it will be better for ourselves and better for all concerned and more fully appreciated by all for these items to get in as early as possible.
 There have been items handed us as late as pre-s day that had taken place more than a week before. And please write your rule is adhered to everywhere.

 We are not kidding, but merely calling your attention to the fact that it is a great deal more convenient for our friends to hand us these items soon after they transpire, written plainly, etc., than it is for us to give them justice in our news columns when these rules are not adhered to.
