The New Bread.

The flour with which the new bread is made is not the Royal Baking Powder. Instead of that, has been received by our best bakers and most expert bread-makers is really wonderful. It saves all the hard and tedious work of kneading and moulding. "I write you, 'less than an hour from the dry flour to the most perfect loaf of bread I ever saw,'" writes another. "Fresh bread every day," says another, "and that the lightest, fluffiest, most wholesome, is something to live for!" "We relish the bread better than the old kind." "It is ahead of any yeast bread I ever baked!" "The bread was whiter and softer." "Best of all," writes an enthusiastic housewife, "we can eat the Royal informed bread when freshly baked, or even when warm, with perfect impunity. It is actually an anti-dyspeptic."

The bread has a "nutty" taste that is peculiarly pleasing," writes still another. This is owing to the fact that the active gas-producing principle of the Royal is derived from the pure grape acid. The greatest value of this bread arises from the fact that it preserves all the most nutritive elements of the grain, some of which are decomposed, and destroyed by the action of yeast. The loss of these properties is what makes fresh yeast bread unwholesome. Instead of being found to make a finer, lighter bread, devoid of all dyspeptic qualities. The same gas, which is used, but it is evolved from the baking powder itself and not from the flour. Thereby the bread is made more wholesome, actually anti-dyspeptic. The greater convenience where a batch of the finest bread can be made, baked in less than an hour with no danger of a sour or heavy loaf, must be appreciated by every one.

The receipt for making this bread is herewith given, and housekeepers will be well to cut it out and preserve it.

To Make One Loaf: One quart flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, half a teaspoonful of baking powder, 1/2 cup of Royal Baking Powder, half medium-sized cold boiled potato and water. Sift together thoroughly flour, salt, sugar and baking powder, rub in the potato, add sufficient water to mix smoothly and rapidly into a stiff batter, about as soft as putty, knead for a minute, wrap in a quart of flour will be required—more or less according to the brand and quality of the flour used. Do not make a stiff dough, like yeast bread. Pour the batter into a greased pan, 4x8 inches, and bake in a hot oven, filling about 3/4 full. Bake in 45 minutes, placing paper on first 15 minutes' baking, to prevent burning too soon on top. Bake at once. Don't mix with milk.

Perfect success requires the most careful observance of all these details, and the author of the receipt, emphasizes the following rules in the Royal Powder only can be used because it is the only powder in which the ingredients are prepared so as to give that uniform result necessary to raise the loaf bread flour.

To every reader who will write the name of the Royal Baking Powder Co., 101 Wall street, New York, that company, anxious that they will send it free of cost, a most practical and useful cook-book, containing one hundred recipes for all kinds of baking, cooking, etc. Mention this paper.

He has his own granddaddy. Of genealogical curiosities the one of a fourth level is probably the oddest singular piece of reasoning yet put in print. Here it is: There was a widow named George and his son (Henry). This widow married the son of the daughter married the father. The widow was, therefore, mother-in-law to her husband's father and grandmother to her own husband. By his husband she had a son (David), to whom she was, of course, great-grandmother. Now, the son of her grandmother must be a grand-son or grand-great-son. In the person of whom his mother was or is great-grandmother, but in this instance Anne was great-grandmother to him (David), therefore David could not be other than his own grandfather.

A Town in Ruins.

It may not be generally known that the little seaport town of Wisnar, in the Baltic, is situated in the same locality as the "fontange Tiggs" shrine—namely, at the pawbrower. It was in 163 that Sweden paved the town with the bones of Mackleburg for a round sum of money. It was then stipulated that the town should be named after the man who had given the money, providing the sum lent, to Mackleburg.

The man who said to amount to several hundred million marks, and apparently there is little chance of his being able to pay it at the date fixed.

SPRING TIME.

The Best Season of the Year to Treat Chronic Catarrh.

Notwithstanding that a great number of people have been cured of chronic catarrh by taking Peruna during the past cold season, yet it cannot be denied that the cold, wet, stormy winter has retarded many cures, and in some cases actually prevented a cure. But, after a mild delay, spring time has come at last, and now is the time for all catarrh sufferers to begin a systematic course of treatment for this disease. The greatest difficulty in the way of treating chronic catarrh is that the patient is so liable to catch cold during the treatment, and thus delay a cure. This liability at this season of the year is, in a great measure, removed, and no one should neglect the opportunity to be given treatment. Send for free catarrh book.

As a spring medicine Peruna is a never-failing remedy. It cleanses the blood through digestion, and gives tone to the whole system by increasing the nutritive value of the food. "Spring fever," as it is sometimes called, which is characterized by sleepiness and inability to do much mental or physical work, is the result of a sluggish digestion, and so blood medicine will be of some advantage unless it is able to rectify the impaired digestion. The great popularity that Peruna has is due to the fact that in all cases it acts on correct digestive derangements and enriches the blood by purifying this very important source of that vital fluid. Send for free book on spring medicine and spring diseases. Address: The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

MORE THAN HALF A MILLION.

A Directory Kansas Puts the Population of 2,545,689.

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—The new city directory just published contains 191,743 names and lists a population of 2,545,689, allowing three persons to each name. It is usual in making computations of this kind to multiply the names in the directory by three and a half, but this is probably less accurate than the simple trebling of the names. The census of 1890 gave a population of a little over 2,000,000, and in that year the directory had 660,000 names. Thus, assuming the directory and the government censuses to have been correct in 1890, there must have been an increase of over 100,000 in the population since that time. There is every indication that this is correct, as an immense number of buildings have been erected since that time. The census of 1890, in spite of which the renting agencies experience great difficulty in satisfying the demands of newcomers for homes.

St. Louis is acknowledged to have some of the best building material in the world, but it did not propose to be content with success already attained in this direction. A schedule has just been prepared by the State Commissioner including so large a number of improvements as to embrace 200 miles. It will take ten years to carry out the plan, and when it is completed, there will be little left to desire in the way of good streets. The Boulevard system on which the city is progressing will be finished next year, and will provide excellent driving ways for light vehicles. The acknowledged statement in the city is that in those running north and south, and these will be attended to as soon as the boulevards are finished.

One of the pleasant duties of the new Mayor's first day in office was an inspection of the new city hall under the guidance of the architect. The building will be finished and occupied in the fall. It will be built with imposing ceremonies. Representatives from all parts of the state will be invited and special interest will center in the proceedings from the fact that Missouri granite and stone have been used exclusively in the construction. Visitors to this year's fall festivities will see the building about completed, and it will probably be occupied from the sixth story to the basement during the coming winter.

A meeting of representative citizens was held in the city on Tuesday afternoon when it was resolved to take measures to endeavor to secure the naming of one of the new ships in course of construction by the American Navigation Company, "St. Louis." The two popular vessels of this line are now known as the Paris and New York, and it is understood that the two vessels now in course of construction will have the names of two important cities of the state.

Large amount of trans-Atlantic traffic, both of business men and tourists en route for St. Louis, is being directed to the company in accordance to the request and name one of the first American Greyhounds constructed in an American dock yard at St. Louis.
