NEW RURAL AID LAW AFFECTS SCHOOLS

STATE ORDERS GRADES CUT IN MANY SCHOOLS

Important information in the Rural Aid Law, passed at the last session of the Texas Legislature, is unknown to many school patrons of Foard County. For that reason The News will attempt to give some of the major provisions contained in this new law that will affect schools of this county.

Many counties have already changed their systems to comply with the provisions of the new law, however, no action in this respect has yet been taken in Foard County.

State school officials have warned that state aid will be given where the largest returns will come and where the taxpayers will know what has become of their money.

To those schools who comply with all standard requirements and rules, the state will do its part toward aiding them in their work, according to state school officials.

One of the rulings passed by the state board of education calls for the following classification of rural schools: 2 teachers, 7 grades; 3 teachers, 8 grades; 4 teachers, 9 grades; 5 teachers, 10 grades; 6 teachers, 10 grades; 7 teachers, 11 grades.

The county school board of Foard County has already classified the rural schools of this county, however, the classification conforms to the new state ruling at only Thalia, Claytonville and Beaver.

Re-classification of the county school system is yet possible and in view of statements made by state school officials it seems that if Foard County is to get its share of state aid, its schools must comply with standard requirements and rules and one of the most important of these is proper classification.

The table below shows the classification of Foard County schools at the present time. The first row of figures shows the number of grades to be taught under present classification and the second row shows the number to be taught if the ruling of the state board of education is followed.

School	Grades
Four Corners, 2 teachers	9 7
Thalia, 9 teachers	11 11
Gambleville, 2 teachers	8 7
Fish, 2 teachers	9 7

Provision has been made under the new rural aid law to assist pupils in securing a high school education in an accredited high school in case such high school grades are not taught in their own district. The only accredited high schools in Foard County are Crowell and Thalia, the latter coming under this designation since its units of affiliation have

The people of the county will also be shown reasons why they should work for the retention of the 18th amendment.

Prohibition Address By Judge Sartin in Crowell Wed. Night

Judge B. D. Sartin of Wichita Falls, one of the most prominent prohibitionists of Texas, spoke Wednesday night in Crowell in the interest of the retention of the 18th amendment and defeat of the Texas beer amendment.

He came here with several other temperance workers of Northwest Texas in the "West Texas Dry Special," a vehicle resembling a railroad passenger coach, which is pulled by an auto with certain features resembling a locomotive.

This "Special" has already traveled over 4,000 miles and visited more than 300 west Texas towns and cities in the interest of the dry cause. Thursday morning it departed for Thalia, where a speaking was held at 10:30 o'clock.

"We are now facing the greatest battle of our civilization," Judge Sartin stated, "and we must work to keep our ideals and not permit our representatives in government to sell souls to balance the budget. Many leading wets say they are against the saloon, but when you have any place selling liquor, it will be a saloon, no matter what you call it."

Wedding of Crowell Couple in Okla. Sat.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sanders, who live about 3 miles northeast of Crowell. They came here with their family about four years ago from Pittsburg, Tex.

Mr. Fox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Fox of this city and has spent the greater part of his life here. Both bride and groom were members of the 1932 graduating class of Crowell High School, where Mr. Fox earned three letters in football.

After the wedding the young couple returned to Crowell and are making their home at the residence of Mrs. M. E. Todd. Mr. Fox is employed by R. N. Barker, local wholesale agent for the Phillips Petroleum Co.

FOARD COUNTY PIONEER AND CIVIL WAR VETERAN REACHED 90TH BIRTHDAY HERE MONDAY

C. B. Garlinghouse

The 90th birthday of C. B. Garlinghouse, Foard County pioneer and Civil War veteran, was quietly observed here Monday, Aug. 14. Mr. Garlinghouse served four years with the Federal forces during the Civil War and is one of three veterans of this war that are now living in this county. The other two are A. J. Howard, Confederate veteran, and John W. Wesley of Margaret, Foard County's earliest settler, who was also a Federal soldier.

In connection with the birthday of Mr. Garlinghouse a rather unusual incident was recalled. Over 30 years ago, 1902, Joe W. Beverly of this city compiled a list of 34 Civil War veterans that were living in Foard County at that time. By 1910 this list had been increased to 43. Forty-one of these were Confederate veterans and the other two fought for the North. Only two of this number now remain and they are the only two Yankees listed by Beverly in 1902, C. B. Garlinghouse and John W. Wesley.

The last remaining Confederate soldier of this list, J. J. Vernon, 90, died at the home of his son, S. A. Vernon, at Ovalo, Tex., on Dec. 20, 1932. Others from this list preceding him in death in recent years were: James A. Ashford, at Crowell, May 22, 1932; W. A. Wheeler at Austin, Oct. 22, 1931; R. P. Womack, at Crowell, March 10, 1931; M. Bond, at Margaret, Dec. 25, 1929; J. H. Emery at Abernathy, Feb. 25, 1929. The remaining Confederate in Foard, A. J. Howard, was not here when Mr. Beverly compiled his list.

Mr. and Mrs. Garlinghouse, whose 54th wedding anniversary came on July 30, have lived in Foard County continuously since coming here on Sept. 5, 1891. The house in which they live is Crowell's oldest residence.

Cyrus Buell Garlinghouse was born in Van Buren County, Iowa, on August 14, 1843. At 13 he moved with his family to Effingham County, Illinois. In 1819 the family moved to Switzerland County, Indiana.

Civil War Service
At the age of 18, he volunteered for service with the Union forces in Sept., 1861, and entered Co. E., 50th Indiana Infantry. After serving for three years, he re-enlisted for three more years in Co. D, 52nd Indiana.

S. T. Knox's Brother Instantly Killed by Airplane Propellor

Eugene J. Knox, 53, of Vernon, brother of S. T. Knox, who lives near Crowell, was instantly killed at about 5:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon when he walked into the path of a whirling airplane propellor at an air circus a few miles south of Vernon.

Mr. Knox had just completed a ride in the Ryan cabin monoplane, owned and piloted by Ray Shifflett of Mangum, Okla., well known aviator of this section, when the accident occurred. Leaving the plane he walked under the right wing and into the path of the steel propellor which struck him twice before he fell to the ground. His head was almost severed from his body.

It is reported that this was the second or third ride that Mr. Knox had taken as a paid passenger during the afternoon. Justice of the Peace F. M. Taylor declared the accident unavoidable in a verdict after receiving statements from the pilot and other witnesses.

Mr. Knox came to Vernon three years ago from Dodsontonville, Texas. He had lived in Texas about 27 years. He was not employed and as a Spanish-American war veteran, drew a Federal pension.

Survivors include five brothers, S. T. Knox of Crowell; Oscar Knox of South Texas, and Gus, Houston, and Theodore Knox of Tennessee, and three sisters, all residing in Tennessee.

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon from the Frost & Ramsey funeral home with Rev. G. T. Reeves, pastor of the Central Christian Church, officiating. Interment was in the East View Cemetery of Vernon.

S. T. Knox was stopped near Vernon Sunday afternoon and notified of the accident while on his return from Electra to Crowell.

Texas Marriage Law Change in Effect; License Issued Here

One marriage license has been issued by Grady Magee, county clerk, since the change in the Texas marriage law went into effect on Aug. 8. The license was issued on that day to Murrell Gray and Miss Lucille Spears, whose marriage was published in The News last week.

It is not necessary to wait three days to secure a license after application has been made, as has been the case for the past four years. A license can now be secured by eligible persons immediately after a physician's certificate has been presented by the groom.

So far this year only 9 licenses have been issued from the clerk's office. Marriages of local couples have increased this year, however, most of the weddings have taken place in Oklahoma.

Mr. Magee is hoping for increased business in the marriage license department of his office as a result of the change in the law.

Foard County benefited from a general rain early Wednesday morning, ranging from a half to three inches. The heaviest downpour came in the vicinity of Foard City and Good Creek with two to three inches reported.

Over a half inch was reported in the Vivian section and about the same was received around Rayland. According to reports the downfall was heavier in most other parts of the county. At Crowell the rain for this week amounted to .8 of an inch, the greater part of which fell Wednesday morning. Scattered showers have been received throughout the county during the week.

Hail damaged crops in a strip about one-half mile wide and 3 miles long in the Foard City section Monday afternoon. Beginning at the B. I. Smith ranch, the strip extended in a southeast direction toward Foard City. The J. H. McDaniel farm was near the center of the area damaged by hail.

VIVIAN FARMER SAYS CHILTEX BEST FOR FOARD

"I have raised nearly every kind of feed and have found Chiltex to be the best grain sorghum feed for this county," said G. J. Benham of the Vivian community here Wednesday.

He had evidence to back up his statement in the form of several excellent stalks of Chiltex, which were taken from the 30-acre field that he has planted to this crop. The rain Wednesday morning was the first real moisture that the crop had received since May 25, since the other few rains received in the county this summer have had a habit of skipping the territory around Mr. Benham's farm.

Despite this fact a good yield is expected from the 30 acres. The stalks on exhibit here had large and well-developed heads of grain. Heading will start in the field in about two weeks.

His experience with Chiltex this and past years has convinced Mr. Benham and many others that this crop can stand dry weather better than any other grain sorghum and that it will make a fair yield most any years if proper attention is given to the preparation of the land for it. Mr. Benham's Chiltex is on tilled land. It was flat-broken six inches deep shortly after Christmas and planting took place a few days before the rains in the latter part of May.

Chiltex was created at the State Experiment Station near Chillicothe several years ago. Besides having drought-resisting qualities, it is also less susceptible to insect damage than most grain sorghums. It also possesses excellent feeding qualities.

Appendicitis Takes Lives of 605 Texas People in Past Year

Austin, Texas, Aug. 16.—During the past year 605 persons have died of appendicitis in Texas, according to the Director of Vital Statistics for the State Department of Health. Many of these deaths were caused by the persons' ignorance of the disease.

There are two forms of appendicitis, acute and chronic. The form that appears suddenly, with great pain and sickness, is acute. Chronic appendicitis may extend over a long period of time and consists of slight attacks at intervals, but, at some time, there will usually occur an attack worse than any before and the disease may then become serious.

The acute attack appears suddenly. The first symptom is pain, sometimes over the entire abdomen, sometimes in a particular portion in the right side of the abdomen. Sometimes this pain extends around to the back or down into the right limb. The pain is cramp-like and is often mistaken for colic. The fever rises to 100 or 101 degrees and the pulse becomes quickened. Chronic appendicitis is the result of repeated attacks of the milder forms of appendicitis.

How to prevent appendicitis? Keep the body in perfect health as long as possible. Watch your teeth, your tonsils, any place where an infection may occur. Get plenty of good food, plenty of sleep, plenty of exercise. Have a thorough medical examination at least once a year and have your teeth examined and cleaned by a dentist at least once every six months. This kind of News coming from the battle front is just about as good as we could wish for. The Allies are gradually pushing the barbarians back and they are doing it in a way that gives us confidence in the power of our forces. The Allies are gaining every day and the barbarians are weakening. Therefore the inevitable is approaching. There is already unrest in Germany among the big heads who now see the handwriting on the wall.

The Foard County News

T. B. KLEPPER, Editor and Owner. MACK BOSWELL, Asst. Editor.

Crowell, Texas, August 17, 1933

A TIMELY WARNING

An article regarding liquor evils, published in the Foard County News issue of May 24, 1931, is timely even at present.

The article of over three columns is too long to reprint, however, after giving a number of specific instances of tragedies caused by drink, the writer concluded as follows:

"I want to plead with every man in Foard County to use his utmost influence and cast his true vote against the saloon. Boys, you who are of voting age, consider the matter carefully and in earnest and cast your vote against the foul demon of drink! He will get you down if you just give him any chance at all.

WORLD POLICE PLAN

What seems to be a constructive suggestion in connection with the efforts being made to stamp out or reduce serious crimes was made at the recent international convention of police chiefs held in Chicago.

The idea of establishing such a force was advanced by Barron Collier, honorary deputy police commissioner of New York, who explained how such a body would operate to capture the criminal who crossed oceans and continents plying his profession.

It is well known that the limited jurisdiction of officers of the law seriously handicaps them in bringing criminals to justice. When a criminal crosses a state line he can not be followed and taken into custody, or returned to the state in which the crime was committed, without much legal formality and red tape.

An American criminal escaping to Canada, Mexico, or any other foreign country, is virtually immune from the consequences of his crime. Thousands of the most dangerous offenders against society thus escape capture and punishment.

Such a police force as Mr. Collier suggests would not need to be large. All that would be necessary would be that a few picked men in each country should be authorized by international agreement to go anywhere in the world in pursuit of criminals, with the added provision that no nation would interfere to defeat the ends of justice.

Crime is organized on a worldwide scale. It can be combatted successfully only by like organization on the part of the forces of law and order.

MORE BABIES ADOPTED

It speaks well for the humane spirit of our people that the number of orphans and children of incompetent parents who have been adopted into comfortable homes has greatly increased during the depression.

In 1927 the number of such adoptions was about 100,000, while last year over 120,000 found homes with desirable foster parents. During the same period the number of homeless children who had to be cared for by institutions remained practically as a standstill, the yearly average being about 160,000.

These facts are presented by the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor in Washington, which points out that this difference between institutional and home care shows a significant trend in the housing of these unfortunate little ones.

Commenting on this humane trend, the Houston Post says: "Such children have brought joy to thousands of childless homes. The doors of every childless home in America should be thrown open to one or more of these unfortunate tots. It will mean happiness to the foster parents and a real chance for the youngsters upon whom fate has not smiled."

If our Christian faith be well founded, the adoption of a homeless child must be pleasing to Him who said: "Suffer little children to come unto Me."

A GOOD WILL DESK

It has long been the custom for nations to send historic tokens of good will to one another, and the United States has sent and received many such mementoes.

One of the most interesting gifts in the possession of our government is a desk in the White House executive offices, which was presented by Queen Victoria some years before her death. The desk is of carved heavy oak and carries a brass plate with this inscription: "H. M. S. Resolute, forming part of the expedition sent in search of

Garlinghouse—

Infantry and served with this company until he was discharged on Sept. 18, 1865, after four years service for his country.

Near the end of the war he received a slight injury to his hip when it was struck by a piece of a shell while serving under General Buell. He was with the Buell Army in battles and skirmishes at the Ohio River and through Kentucky to Nashville. He was at Parker's Crossroads and was also present for the capture of Little Rock by General Frederick Steele. One of the hardest battles in which he participated was at Jenkins Ferry, Ark. From there he went to Mobile, Ala., and was there when the war ended.

His family was living in Spencer County, Ind., upon his return home. Following his mother's death in the spring of 1866, Mr. Garlinghouse went to Kansas, where he drove an 8-mule team to a freighter.

Indian Trouble

Trouble with Indians were experienced on some of his trips and on one trip in 1867, the wagon train of which his was a part, was attacked four times by Indians.

Close to 500 Indians attacked the train of 36 wagons which were camped at Smoke River. "We placed the wagons in a circle with the mules inside. The Indians stuck to us all evening and night, but the next day the government sent out a squad of soldiers and the Indians were driven away and we didn't lose a man, although we lost a number of mules and the Indians lost quite a few of their braves," Mr. Garlinghouse said.

From Kansas Mr. Garlinghouse went to Louisiana, where he worked as a carpenter, and from there he went to Collin County, Texas, and started work at a cotton gin ten miles northeast of McKinney.

Experience as Cowboy

After working in a country blacksmith shop in Collin County, he went to Old Mexico and got a job as a cowboy in helping to drive cattle to Nebraska. Crossing the Rio Grande at Eagle Pass, he proceeded up the Chisholm Trail and remained with the cattle until reaching a point near Vernon. "That was enough experience as a cowboy for me," Mr. Garlinghouse commented.

It was about 1877 when Mr. Garlinghouse said good-bye to the saddle and from Wilbarger County he went to Grayson County and settled about 13 miles south of Sherman.

While in Grayson County, he and Miss Amelia Fitzpatrick were married July 30, 1879. They remained there a few years before moving to Lebanon in the Indian Nation, now Oklahoma.

Come to Crowell

After remaining there six years, they came to Crowell on Sept. 5, 1891, about five months after the town had been created. Their son, Bruce, was with them at the time.

Mr. Garlinghouse went to work for Tom Donahoe in his blacksmith shop at the corner where Ringgold Variety is now located. After working there a few months he bought the shop and later moved to lots he bought east of the Crowell State Bank.

In about 1900 he decided to try his luck at farming and sold the shop to George Burks and Bill Moncus. He bought a farm on Mule Creek, southeast of Margaret, and remained there over two years before returning again to Crowell, where he has since made his home.

Upon his return he went to work for Mr. Burks and shortly afterward bought his tools and established a shop of his own. Mr. Garlinghouse was actively engaged in the blacksmith business until Nov., 1921, when he sold his shop to T. A. Spears, who has since owned and operated this business.

Mr. Garlinghouse was 78 years of age when he retired from active blacksmith work. For a brief period in about 1912 he worked on a commission basis for E. Swain.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Garlinghouse, two of whom are living, Bruce Garlinghouse of Crowell, and Elmer Garlinghouse of Boston, Mass. A daughter died in Grayson County at the age of six months.

Mr. Garlinghouse is the last survivor of his own family, which included 4 boys and 3 girls. His father was a millwright and blacksmith.

Sir John Franklin in 1852, was abandoned in latitude 74 degrees 41 minutes north, longitude 101 degrees 22 minutes west, on the 15th of May, 1854. She was discovered and extricated in September, 1885, in latitude 67 degrees north by Captain Buddington, of the United States whaler George Henry. The ship was purchased, fitted out and sent to England as a gift to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, by the President and people of the United States, as a token of good will and friendship. This table was made from her timbers when she was broken up, and is presented by the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland to the President of the United States as a memorial of the courtesy and loving kindness which dictated the offer of the gift of the Resolute."

Sir John Franklin, in search of whose expedition the Resolute and many other vessels were sent, perished with his 134 officers and men while trying to find a northwest passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

A Giant Who Reaches To The Sky

By Albert T. Reid

BRUCE BARTON

Writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experience of "The Man Nobody Knows."

SIX GREAT MEN

Here is another business principle, seemingly equally impracticable. Remember the words of the Lord Jesus how he said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Bruce Barton

"You have stood upon a mountain and viewed the whole panorama of human progress. You have seen the captains and the kings, the princes and the prophets, the scientists and the adventurers, the millionaires and the dreamers—that have lived and loved and struggled their little hour upon the earth. In this vast army what heads rise above the common level, Among all those what half dozen men among them all deserve to be called great?"

He turned the question over in his mind for a day or two and then gave me a list of six names, with his reasons for each. An extraordinary list!

Jesus of Nazareth, Buddha, Asoka, Aristotle, Roger Bacon, Abraham Lincoln.

Think of the thousands of emperors who have battled for fame, and fashioned their immortality into monuments of brick and stone. Yet there is only one emperor, Asoka, on the list; and he is not there because of his victories but because he voluntarily abandoned war, after his success, and devoted himself to the betterment of his millions of subjects. Think of the hosts who have struggled for wealth, fretting over figures, denying their generous instincts, cheating and grasping and worrying. Yet no millionaire is on the list excepting again Asoka.

The tumult and the shouting dies, The captains and the kings depart.

And when the historian, looking over the field where they contended for the prize, seeks for something which has endured, he finds the message of a teacher, the dream of a scientist, the vision of a seer. "These six men stood on the corners of History," said Wells in his picturesque way. "Events hinged on them. The current of human thought was freer and clearer because they had lived and worked. They took little from the world and left it much. They did not get; they gave; and, in the giving, gained eternal influence."

New Rural Law—

Transfer Information Under this emergency condition, students having to go to other schools now in order to get the grade of work they need, may make such transfers now, even though the regular date for ordinary transfers has passed.

They may transfer to the nearest school where they can get the grade of work needed, but they cannot get their tuition and transportation paid unless they transfer to one of Foard County's two affiliated schools Crowell and Thalia.

Transportation

Section 11 of the rural aid law, which contains 26 sections, asks the co-operation of the county superintendent and the county school board in setting up a system of transportation for the purpose of transporting high school pupils from their districts, where their grade is not taught, to the most convenient accredited high school. The expense of such transportation shall be paid out of funds provided for this purpose, not to exceed $2.00 per pupil per month.

In case the county board cannot provide for a bus to run through the district of a pupil whose grade is not taught in the community where he resides, such a student will be allowed $2.00 per month to help take care of his own form of transportation.

In paying the tuition and transportation of students affected by the new law, the state is doing this in order that no part of the burden will be on the parents of children who might not be able to pay such expenses. Equal educational opportunity to all is emphasized in the new law.

The new rural aid law is supposed to see that every school child in Texas is given a chance at receiving an education in a first class four-year accredited high school. Compliance with this part of the law will be of invaluable aid to the school children of Texas. They will be given standard educations that will enable them to enter any higher institution in Texas and be given full credit for their work.

The new law permits the county board to make some minor adjustments where unusual circumstances warrant.

Crowell, Vernon and Frederick are in a three-way tie for first place in the Texas-Oklahoma Golf Association second half race as a result of Crowell's loss to Frederick and Vernon's victory over Electra in Sunday's matches.

At Frederick, the local linksmen lost 13 matches and won 4. Two matches were tied. One of these, M. L. Hughton vs. L. A. Brandenburg was all square after 4 extra holes had been played. Guy Crews of Crowell and Frank Hall were also tied at the end of 18 holes.

In the No. 1 match, Clarence Haynes of Frederick beat T. P. Duncan Jr. 1 up, 20 holes. In the next three matches, Crowell won as follows: Oswald Jr. beat E. M. Mitchell, 3 and 2; Oswald Sr. beat E. Zumalt, 6 and 5; T. S. Haney beat Paul Brunk, 1 up. Crowell's only other victory came when Fred Rennels beat L. Dobbs, 3 and 2.

The other matches were Frederick victories as follows: C. Zeller beat A. Bell, 6 and 4; W. R. Harper beat Griffith, 3 and 2; F. C. Carter beat R. L. Burrow, 1 up; W. Phillips beat J. O. Ross, 5 and 4; Paul McLellan beat A. Spencer, 7 and 6; Noble Speed beat Lee Black, 4 and 3; F. B. Hall beat Ernest Spears, 8 and 7; Paul Hershey beat R. J. Thomas Jr. 3 and 2; E. A. Hall beat J. T. Billington, 7 and 6; L. L. Powers beat V. Walden, 6 and 5; T. J. Coursey beat D. Miller, 3 and 2; Joe Tyson beat B. T. O'Connell, 8 and 6.

The absence of Grady Magee and Gordon Bell from the Crowell lineup was keenly felt by the local club.

FOUR MOTHERS LOST

G. H. Williams, manager of the Haskell Telephone Company, was in Haskell Tuesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Baker, mother of one of the girls in the district office at Lubbock. The telephone system has been called on during the past several months to witness deaths of four mothers of employes in this section. The chief operators at Me-gargel, Crowell and Munday have all lost their mothers in recent months.—Seymour Banner.

W. F. KIRKPATRICK AND REV. TURRENTINE SPEAK AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

W. F. Kirkpatrick and Rev. Geo. E. Turrentine were speakers Wednesday for the program at the Rotary Club luncheon.

Mr. Kirkpatrick discussed the questions to be voted upon at the election on Aug. 26. After giving information about the four constitutional amendments he touched upon the local beer question with the following comment: "Many state that if Foard County will not permit the sale of beer that the people will go to neighboring towns for it. If Crowell and Foard County cannot get along without this money—then let us sink."

Rev. Turrentine gave an interesting discussion of several portions of the Rotary ethics and his interpretations of them.

The program was in charge of T. B. Klepper. Visitors were J. B. Lawson, Rotarian of Vernon; D. T. Griffith of Dallas and L. H. Baker, new manager of the Crowell Gin.

Methodist Church

Hello folks! After missing my announcements for weeks we are at the job of putting information about our services in the paper. I hope you have noticed the omission. It would be interesting to hear from you if you do follow the work of the church as it is reported in The Foard County News. I have heard several say that they looked for these notices in vain the last week.

Your pastor has had the assistance of Rev. Marvin Brotherton of Margaret the past week in a heart warming revival at Black. There were conversions and reclamations of old and young and the church and Sunday School life of the community was greatly strengthened, while the loyal workers rejoiced and manifested their love for one another in many visible ways. During the process of the meeting both of the preachers were pounded royally. All feel that the people of Black have taken on new life and zeal and the churches of the community represented by pastors will receive a number of additions to their rolls. Jim Gamble, Miss Theresa Gamble, Miss Lilly Huggins, Cleo Huggins and Wallace Bostic were baptised and received into the Methodist church Sunday afternoon.

The pastor will preach Sunday morning and we will give way for the Christian meeting that evening. We have missed some from the services the past few Sundays. May we not go into a Summer slump this late in the year, after having had splendid attendance during the Summer months of June and July.

GEO. E. TURRENTINE, Pastor.

"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 20.

The Golden Text is from Philippians 2: "It is God which worketh in both to will and to do of his good pleasure."

Passages comprising the Lesson-Sermon include the following from Romans 11: "For who hath known the mind of the Lord? . . . For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever."

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind is the I AM, or infinity. Mind never enters the finite. Intelligence never passes into non-intelligence, or matter. Good never enters evil, the unlimited into the limited, the eternal into temporal, nor the immortal into mortality. The divine Ego, or individuality, is reflected in all spiritual individuality from the infinitesimal to the infinite" (p. 336).

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

SAMUEL
Lesson for August 20th. 1 Samuel 3, 7, 12.
Golden Text: 1 Samuel 12:20.

The lesson opens with one of the most charming narratives in the Bible, the story of the child Samuel hearing the voice of the Lord in the night, at the time he ministered in the temple under the supervision of Eli. At first he supposed the strange voice to be that of Eli. But the priest knew at once that God was speaking, and instructed the child to respond, when the call sounded anew "Speak, Lord, Rev. Chas. E. Dunn for thy servant heareth."

Surely this is a most appealing incident, told with that artlessness that is the highest art. Nowadays we call such a voice conscience, that "something inside that I cannot do what I want to with," as a small boy well defined it.

The mature Samuel was a forceful Judge both respected and feared by his people. Their eagerness to follow strange gods he did not hesitate to denounce, as he went about from city to city holding court. His powerful influence is clearly revealed at Mizpah, where he called the people to repentance, and then miraculously saved them from the hands of the invading Philistines.

Though a great leader, of unusual sanctity, Samuel had more piety than charm. There was a streak of strait-laced severity about him that makes him seem a trifle unhuman. There is pathos in the declining years of Samuel. His influence had waned, and his unworthy sons, who succeeded him in the judgeship, naturally aroused antagonism. It is then that the people, with almost brutal frankness, said, "You are old, and your sons are not following your footsteps. Now appoint a king for us, to rule us like all other nations." This request, though reasonable, angered Samuel, but he finally yielded warning them that their king would be a tyrant.

We take leave of him at Gilgal, where the people gathered to see Saul made king, and to hear Samuel's farewell address.

SERMONETTE

GETTING TOGETHER

By Arthur B. Rhinow

On a postal card announcing an alumni meeting I found these significant words: "Times like these demand our getting together."

Getting together? Do we not get together in good times? Indeed we do. Some, to be sure, are happiest when they are alone, to brood and work, and when they do get together with others, it is for a venture that promises profit. But many are unhappy unless they can be in a crowd, at gay festivities where they nod and smile and pretend to relax.

And do we not get together in depression? We do, indeed. We do, indeed. We meet to lament until we grow tired. By and by each one wants to be alone, just alone, to feed his own worry, and perhaps yield to the gnawing of despair. What's the use of talking to anybody else? What's the use of telling others our troubles? They have troubles enough of their own.

But strong men get together. They hear the challenge of the times to rally and help. Their faith deepens as it is shaken, even as the oak drives its roots into deeper soil when the storm bends the boughs.

They believe in God more than ever before, because they need Him more.

And how they do get together! No longer just a mere handclasp, a "cheerio" or a good story as they pause for a moment. More than that, much more. Heart touches heart as together they strain to lift the burden, and after it is all over, they will know how sacrifice draws us together in the finest companionship of all.

That on the 8th day of August, A. D. 1933, plaintiff was and still is the owner in fee simple of the following described property and appurtenances, to-wit:

All that certain tract of land situated in the County of Foard and State of Texas, and being a part of the John Shearer 640 acre survey, patented to John Shearer on August 5, 1890, by virtue of Certificate No. 422, Patent No. 488, Vol. 9, of the Patent Records of the State of Texas, and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the northwest corner of the Christopher Knolle 640-acre survey; thence west 950 varas; thence south 986 varas; thence west 475 varas; thence north 986 varas; thence west 475 varas, to the northwest corner of the John Shearer survey; thence south 1900 varas to the southwest corner of the said survey; thence east 1900 varas to the southeast corner of said survey; thence north 1900 varas to the place of beginning.

Also all that certain tract of land situated in the County of Foard and State of Texas and being a part of the John Shearer 640-acre survey, patented to John Shearer on August 5, 1890, by virtue of Certificate No. 422, Patent No. 488, Vol. 9, of the Patent Records of the State of Texas, and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the north boundary line of said John Shearer survey, said beginning point being 475 varas east from the northwest corner of said survey; thence east 475 varas; thence south 986 varas; thence west 475 varas; thence north 986 varas to the place of beginning, being all of the east 82.5 acres of the west 165 acres of the north 330 acres of the John Shearer survey.

That on the 8th day of August,

BELOW THE WAIST

Just a word to the shut-ins, or the wheel-chair folk. Suppose we consider the feminine patient; the ones who began to lose their activity in the knees and other portions of the lower extremities. I have seen and treated these many times. I have found that they have usually been subject to treatment for "rheumatism," although they have not had a single lame joint above the waist!

Such patients are usually housewives, that have done their share in bearing children. Busy workers as well. They may be just approaching, or over with the menopause. Indeed this sort of "rheumatism" I am talking about, is noted for appearing about that time. This shows plainly that the CAUSE of the disabling trouble is situated in the GENERATIVE organs.

Get it plainly: there is no joint-trouble above the waist-line. Have your doctor look you over thoroughly. He may find lacérations, scars, internal hemorrhoids, prolapsed rteri, or disease of the bladder. These things should receive attention at once. I have seen ulcer of the neck of the uterus put a patient in an invalid chair and the treatment given for "arthritis," "rheumatism," and so on—which did no good, because the real trouble was neither.

The good woman should submit to thorough examination without any hesitation; it may mean recovery for her. She should submit to rational treatment, even if it demand surgery; at any rate, she should ask for removal of the CAUSE of her trouble.

Not every laming complaint is rheumatism or arthritis, when we find its cause. Nothing but removal of the cause will cure.

The cause is in the pelvis, in nine-tenths of the patients whose lameness is in extremities below the waist. I hope these hints may prove of worth.

A. D. 1933, plaintiff was in possession of said above described property, and afterward on the 9th day of August, 1933, the defendants, unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed him of such premises, and withheld from him the possession thereof.

That the residence and domicile of each and all of the defendants herein is unknown to plaintiff with the exception of that of the R. B. Edwards Company whose office and principal place of business is in Crowell, Foard County, Texas.

That the names of each and all of the defendants designated in said petition and cause of action as "The heirs of deceased persons and their heirs or legal representatives," are unknown to affiant.

That this action is brought as well to try title as for damages.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays that the defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition, and that he have judgment for the title and possession of the above described

A. G. MAGEE, Clerk.

WHISPERING ROCK

Third Installment

SYNOPSIS: Ruth Warren, living in the East, comes into possession of a three-quarter interest in an Arizona ranch, left to her in the will of her only brother, reported to have died on business in Mexico. With her ailing husband and small child she goes to Arizona to take possession, thinking the climate would prove beneficial to her husband's weakened lungs. Arriving at the nearest town, she learns that the "Dead Lantern", is 85 miles across the desert. Charley Thane, a rancher and rural mail carrier, offers to take them to "Dead Lantern" gate.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Neither the girl nor her husband seemed anxious to start up the road. It was when this fact became plain to them both that Ruth cried, "I'll sundown before long—we simply can't stay here."

Warren nodded. "We'd better start I guess."
Ruth looked back toward the gate. Beyond her eyes sought the occasional stretches of dusty highway as she wound up the valley. . . . eighty-five miles to the first thing which could be called civilization, eighty-five miles to a policeman. She shivered; but turned to her husband with a smile which meant to be brave. "All right, dear; let's go. If we get lost we'll just get shot—we can't stay here and we certainly can't go back."

For two long, hot, dusty hours they walked on with never a sign of human things. The awesome silence enveloped them, penetrated them, and their very thoughts seemed like small independent voices. They felt watched by a grim, thousand-eyed giant. The occasional rabbit or coyote which ran before them looked back furtively, then went on to the news of their coming. When Ruth spoke, the words passed between them in a low frightened tone, as though speech were forbidden.

They came among the lower foothills of the mountains. No longer did their eyes follow the two parallel paths through the dead grass for any distance. Constantly, the road dipped into ravines, skirted low hills, crossed gulches and arroyos covered with coarse gray sand. The man's face was bluish-white, his breathing rapid, short and quick. The girl looked doggedly in the dust, red of face, sweat-grimed.

The sun winked from behind a red peak and was gone. The man and woman stared at the mountains—blue-colored, utterly desolate. David looked at his mother tightly at the end of her voice. "Where are we?" she moaned. "Oh, Kenneth, where are we?"

He shook his head, but could not find breath for speech. The girl picked up her son and started forward desperately. At the bottom of the next arroyo well filled with live oak trees—wheel marks of the Indian's wagon—turned to the right and disappeared up the river of sand. It was strange how they missed those fresh wheel tracks.

Beyond this arroyo the road rose and descended presently into a deep ditch. The banks on either side fell sheer to the bottom of coarse, bare sand—a great channel plowed by mud-bursts in the mountains. A distance ahead a large brown boulder thrust its bulk through the sand. The man and the girl kept their eyes upon this rock—an oasis, a place to sit for a moment, a place to slip their shoes. The road, too, bent slightly to pass the rock.

They rested a moment until the opening dusk, the awful silence pressed them to their feet. They took one step then froze to statues, error leaped into their faces: a face, low, intimate, whispered into their ears. "Go—back. Go—back. Ken—!" Ruth screamed the word. The man and woman clutched each other, staring wildly. The gulch was barren, nothing moved, not a light could have been hidden. Yet a hollow whisper came again, at their very ears. "Go—back. You—go—back! Go—"

Like wild things, the man and woman ran blindly forward. Immediate the whisper was lost, dying away with a single word. The two stopped and clung together trembling. The darkness was coming quickly—suddenly the banded walls of the ditch had taken on weird mystery and the light. With terror-widened eyes the man and girl looked from the bank of the gulch to the other, conscious of no thought or plan.

Then Ruth caught her breath in a hysterical sob, another followed. Warren gripped her shoulder with the agony of the sudden cough which presently was flecking his white lips with red. . . . A dog barked friendly. Some distance ahead the gulch turned to the right and the road rose out of it by another incline. At the bottom of the cut in the bank sat a small black

"Dog!" announced David, squirming about in his mother's arms. As he was concerned, all was well with the world. Some of this feeling came to the man. With a backward glance, he now held wonder instead of fear, they went forward with a steady step. When they were near, the dog—one of whose remote ancestors had undoubtedly been part Spaniel—moved out of sight at the side of the incline. A few more strides again brought the man and girl to a rigid halt. In the shadow of the bank stood the most gigantic woman they had ever seen. Nearly six and a half feet in height, her huge arms folded across her breast, she stood as straight as the sheer bank behind her. Her face, hawked-nosed, had the dignity of an Indian chief's and the color of a southern negro. "Where you-all think you're goin'?" she demanded, her voice a deep ominous rumble.

In the shadow of the rock stood the most gigantic woman they had ever seen.

It was a moment before the girl could make a sound; then the words poured themselves out shrilly. "I'm Mrs. Warren, the sister of Harry Grey—I own three-quarters of this ranch—take us to Jep Snavely at once—at once—at once!"

The giantess bent her head slightly, unfolded her arms, and turning, started up the incline, the little dog frisking before her.

Warren took an uncertain step forward, tottered, and fell in a heap. "Help us!" cried the girl, dropping beside her husband.

The huge woman came slowly down to them. She stooped and lifted her hand to her forehead. "Come," she gulch, carrying the man more easily than the girl carried the child.

At the top of the gulch the girl saw the ranch house and buildings. She also saw a man leave the barn and walk swiftly toward them. He had a bucket in his hand—a bucket of milk.

"Who are you?" The man stopped close to the girl. His tall, wiry body was tense, sinuously alert. His pale blue eyes, almost white against the dark tan of his clean-shaven face, shifted constantly with small quick movements as though focused in turn upon every point of her face.

"Answer me!" His voice was imperious, high-pitched — "What are you doin' here?"

The girl caught her breath sharply. "I am Ruth Warren and this is my husband—" She indicated Warren who was now standing, supported by the giant woman. "My husband must have rest at once—a bed."

"That don't mean nothing to me—what're you doin' here?"

"We—I am the sister of Harry Grey."

"What!" he thrust his face within a hand's breadth of the girl's. "You lie! Grey tol' me his own se'f he didn't have no folks."

Ruth took a step backward. "But I am Harry Grey's sister. He willed me his interest in this ranch. My husband and I have come here to see about it."

"You—come here—to take this ranch—" His words faltered. At length, with an effort, he spoke, his voice in a softer key. "You—got—your documents?"

"Yes, Mr. Warren has the will in his pocket. Please—can't we go up to the house? My husband and little boy must rest. We walked all the way from the mail box."

"Let's see—the will."
Warren was able to step forward and give Snavely the paper. The man read it slowly and completely. At last he lifted his eyes to the girl. "Why didn't your brother tell me about this?"

"I'm sure I don't know."
"He tol' me he didn't have no folks."
The girl hesitated. "His real mother is dead and Harry and I—Harry became estranged from his father before he came West. Perhaps that's what he meant."

"Huh, Maybe. You seen a lawyer about this, I reckon?"
There was a perceptible pause before Ruth replied. "Yes," she said firmly, "and my lawyer has the other copy. Now please, take us to the house—can't you understand? My husband is not well."

the time it took to cover the distance to the house—nearly two hundred yards—in complete silence. Nothing he could have done would have served better to put the girl in a more frantic state of mind. She felt that he was thinking, planning, feverishly and craftily.

And as she neared the small house with its whitewashed walls and red roof of corrugated iron, Ruth Warren became aware of another dissatisfaction. A hundred feet west of the house stood a huge adobe ruin. It had character, this ruin. Compared to the one-story ranch house with its almost flat roof, the ruin had been a palace. Grim, mutilated, forgotten, the old building frowned upon the ranch house. The girl had a queer fancy which made her shiver. It seemed to her that the ruin wanted the house to come closer—very close—for just for a moment.

The giant woman arrived at the porch of the ranch house first. Carrying Warren to a rawhide cot she laid him upon it.

Warren promptly sat up, grinning at his wife as she and Snavely arrived. "Great Scott, Ruth, but I've certainly been carried! She's the strongest thing I ever met in my life."

The giantess opened the screen door and handed a pillow to the girl. After she had arranged her husband comfortably upon the cot, the girl left him with Snavely and took her son into the house. Snavely spoke no word to Warren. When the girl returned she gave Warren a glass of milk and some crisp tortillas.

For the first time since returning the will to the girl, Snavely spoke. "When did you get in?" he asked suddenly.

"You mean when did we arrive in town? Only this morning. You see," continued the girl, "we wrote you about a fortnight ago—but we got here as soon as the letter—we didn't know about your once-a-week delivery."

"You seen your lawyer this mornin'?"

"I don't understand—what lawyer?"

"There must have been a lawyer to send you the will when your brother died."

"Oh, No, Harry sent us the will himself—it was some time ago; about three months after he went into this ranch."

"Huh. There was quite a pause. "But you just said your lawyer had a copy of it."

Snavely's face returned in a little jump to the girl. "Just what are you aiming to do here?"

"There are plenty of attorneys in the East," replied the girl sweetly. "I reckon." Snavely considered a corner of the whitewashed wall. Sounds from within indicated that the giantess was getting supper.

Snavely's eyes returned in a little jump to the girl. "Just what are you aimin' to do here?"

"Well, since I have this interest in the ranch, I suppose I'm in the same position that Harry was. I can't be the partner he was, but I'll try to do my share."

A definite plan shown in his pale eyes. "Oh, sure. Well, now, I get you—yes, sir." Snavely seemed on the verge of becoming pleasant. "I've got the idea—you an' me is to go on just like as if you was your brother. Is that it?"

"Why, yes. I have the same interest in the ranch that he had."

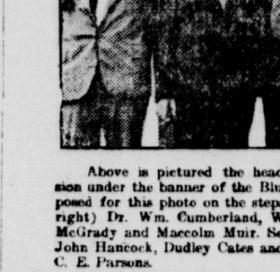

"You sure have."
There was a long silence. "I suppose," said the girl, "that there will be some legal technicalities or something, won't there? I thought we'd leave it until we could see about it together, you know."

Our School of Radio was organized for the purpose to be of help to the young man who is Radio-minded. Who knows but that you who read these lines will some day be heralded to the world as one who has added a star to his crown by the discovery of some simple device that eliminates static, the barrier to Television.

To eliminate static means Television perfected. Then, we cannot only hear the speakers, artists, orchestras, etc., but we can see them in action. Millions of dollars are spent annually in the various branches of Radio. Opportunities untold, it seems to us, are awaiting for the Radio-minded young man.

For your convenience, we have one of the nicest and most up to date broadcasting studios where our students are privileged to work and learn in the very atmosphere of Radio. Do you want to be an announcer? Do you want to be a Radio engineer? Do you want to be a studio manager? Do you want to be able to do whatever you want to do in connection with a Radio Station? Or, if you prefer to go aboard ship as ship operator, or to be an operator for the numerous airway-lines, then fill in the coupon below and ask for our Radio booklet R-6, which tells you all about our School of Radio.

This-That, Etc.

By Typo Wrighter

A local citizen states that traffic conditions on the west side of the square were some improved last Saturday. "The Saturday before that I didn't even attempt to drive through that part of the street, but this Saturday I did and actually made it after having to come to a stop six times, was nearly packed into twice, but I kept a steady nerve, dodged first here and then there and by golly, after several minutes I came out safely at the other end of the block," he stated.

Another Crowellite states that the street was so jammed with cars on Saturday, Aug. 5, that even a pedestrian had a difficult time of getting across the street. "I started across to the court house, but couldn't make it at the customary crossing point and had to go nearly to the end of the block before I could find an opening," he stated.

Webster's dictionary says a street is "a thoroughfare in a city or village." Webster also says that a thoroughfare is "a place or way for passing or travel; a public road or street open at both ends. And now we wonder what is the correct name for that paved strip on the west side of the square."

It's going to happen sooner or later if these big oil trucks continue to pass through Crowell at the high rate of speed that an average of about ten a day pass through here now. We mean that some time or other there is going to be one heck of an accident to take place at the intersection of the streets on the northeast and northwest corners of the square, or between these two points.

Did you ever think of what might happen if a crash should occur in about the middle of the street on the north side of the square, causing one of these trucks and its 1,100-gallon load of gasoline to catch on fire?

As a local citizen says, "It's time to furnish Constable John Ford with a bicycle so he can chase down these speed demons in these oil trucks."

We don't know just what effect the trip to Oklahoma had on local golfers, but just take a look, elsewhere in this issue, at the number of matches that Crowell lost to Frederick by 3-2 scores. One local linksman states that there were 32 losses not shown in the scores.

Crowell has one of the finest war memorials to be found anywhere and yet the appearance of that combination—the doughboy and sailor statues and the German cannon—can be spotted almost 100 per cent as a result of some thoughtless person turning that device on the cannon so as to lower its barrel to the point where it reminds one of a chicken with a broken neck.

Over two thousand dollars were raised to complete this memorial. Surely it would be possible to raise about a dollar more for a chain and lock to prevent the manipulation of the cannon barrel, thus protecting the beauty and impressiveness of this memorial to our departed soldier and sailor boys.

The use of the west part of the court house lawn as a place for kicking a football may result in the breaking of one of those upraised arms of the statues. Legion officials hope that if local boys continue to use the lawn as a football field, that they will at least be considerate enough to move to the south or east side of the square.

Now that the Texas marriage law change has gone into effect, Grady Magee, county clerk, is hoping that matrimonially inclined couples will decide to "trade at home" in securing their licenses. Maybe Grady should set an example in this respect.

What happened this time of the year in 1928-29-30-31-32? Well here are a few of the happenings: 1928—Allen Chevrolet Co. moves into new Ferguson Bros. building. 1929—Griffith Hotel completed; 1930—day passenger service started on Santa Fe; 1931—earth tremors felt in Foard; Gribble Park for this community announced; hair-cut prices reduced to 25c. 1932—county officers capture still in operation; general rain over the county.

A German inventor has made a lamp which not only provides electric light, but keeps time and runs a radio.

Danger of landing an airplane in bad weather may be reduced materially by a hanger or hall with a "floating" roof designed by a German architect.

LAST HALF IN GOLF ASS'N. TO END AUGUST 20

With only one more scheduled match to be played by each of the four clubs in the Texas-Oklahoma Golf Association, three of the association members, Crowell, Vernon and Frederick, are tied for first place. Matches Sunday afternoon will either determine the winner of the second half race or throw two teams into a tie for first place.

Crowell plays at Vernon and Frederick at Electra. If Frederick should lose, then the victor in the Crowell-Vernon contest will become the second half winner. If Frederick wins, the Oklahomans will be tied with either Crowell or Vernon for first place.

Frederick won the first half championship, with Electra winning second, Crowell, third and Vernon, last. A play-off between the first and second half winners will be played if Frederick fails to win second half honors.

Crowell held first place in the standing last week.
