Foard Relief Figures For Past Year Given

Austin, Aug. 23.—In many counties in Texas the Federal government is now spending more money every month for relief work than those counties would have to pay back in a year in paying off the relief bonds, according to William Strauss, chairman of the committee campaigning for adoption of the proposed relief bond amendment.

"It is primarily a matter of bread and meat for the hungry," said Mr. Strauss. "It is unthinkable that Texas will let its women and children go hungry. But some people may want to know what Texas will get for authorizing a bond issue that may go up to $20,000,000 if the legislature finds that much is needed.

"In the first place, there is hardly a county in Texas that can care for its own destitute through local taxation. If they could the burden of taxes would fall on homes and farms, for the taxes to fund these bonds cannot be raised on real or personal property. If all the bonds are issued the tax per capita will not average over 41 cents a year for 10 years. Actually it probably will be some special tax that will fall heavier on city people and be lighter than on rural citizens.

"In Foard County the Federal government in the past ten months has spent for relief work $9,084. The county has asked for $1,200 to carry on the work during August for the benefit of 778 persons on its relief rolls."

WHISPERING ROCK

AUTOKASTER SERVICE

Fourth Installment

I did, I felt sorry for her. There's nothin' bad about Ann. She just can't stand bein' in town—spends most of her time in jail when she is in town. It ain't her fault—but folks give her liquor, you see, an' when she's drunk she's a God-a-mighty terror.

"How much do you suppose she weighs?" asked Warren.

"Close to three hundred, I reckon—solid as a rock. She's powerful. You'll look a long ways before you find a man as strong as what Ann is."

"I'll subscribe for that," said Warren. "What kind of trouble did she get into down in Texas—did she just prove too destructive to the city hall?"

"I was only going to ask what you have just told us, Mr. Snavely. The girls heart was in her throat."

"Well, no. She killed a man—beat him to death with a chair. But it was his fault," Snavely paused. "He wasn't no small man, neither," he added as an interesting afterthought.

For quite some time the conversation hung fire. Snavely sat as before—waiting.

Ruth began by asking about the ranch. To all of her questions Snavely returned prompt and pessimistic answers. It was soon evident that there would be no need of any one working the exact value of three-quarters of forty thousand dollars.

"But couldn't we get some new cattle if that's what we need?" asked the girl.

"We could if we had the money. But it wouldn't be no use—no't enough water for more stock. We've got some water, but it ain't close enough to where the feed is."

"How could we get more watering places?"

"Havin' it rain would help. In this country a waterin' place is a represa, a dirt tank. You take an' dig a basin in the ground where a gully runs. When it rains the water comes down the gully an' fills the pond. We got plenty of them ponds but they're so silted up an' shallow they don't hold water long an' it don't rain anyways. It rained just enough last winter to fill the biggest pond on the place; that an' the well here, is all the water we got. There's four other ponds but they're powder dry. An' all the grass is sunburned an' wispy-like."

"Mr. Snavely," asked Warren. "perhaps we should wait until tomorrow to see the books—but could you give an idea of the earnings?" Snavely observed the young man for a moment. "Yes, Mr. Warren. You can. There ain't any time you want to see the books any more."

per. Then he do other things that medicine man can do. When all is ready he lay down by the big rock and let his life go away.

"The bad Indian come to the arroyo. The chief try to step over the old man. But he stop. Into his ear there come a little whisper. All the bad Indian hear the whisper. It tell them things and they are much afraid. They go out of the San Jorge Valley and they do never come back."

"Always there is the little breeze in the arroyo. Sometimes it whisper. More I do not know!"

Beneath the legend Harry Grey had written, "The old man tells me that for centuries the Indians have used the big boulder in the gulch as a council place. They believe that when the need is great the voice will advise them."

"What do you think now?" For the first time Snavely had asked a question. Neither the girl nor her husband found an answer.

"Can you tell us any more?" asked Warren at last.

when we were leaving, this voice told us to—to go back. The unaccountable thing about it was that the words seemed to have been spoken just a few inches from our ears. We were rather tired and a bit unstrung, though, perhaps our imaginations—"

Snavely frowned and shook his head. "No—you heard it all right."

"But what is—who was it and how in the world was it done? Why was it done?"

Snavely thought a moment. "Oh, it's a superstition—I guess you'd call it."

"I wouldn't!" breathed the girl, with a shiver.

"But we heard something," said Warren.

Snavely rose and entered his bedroom. In a moment he returned and gave the girl a sheet of paper in her brother's handwriting. "Your brother was always interested in legends an' things about this country. He used to try to find somebody who said they'd heard the voice, but he had poor luck. Then some Indians come up in this neighborhood to gather acorns an' your brother got one old bush-head, who'd had education, to come up to the house an' tell about the legend. I was right here when your brother took down what the old buck said."

The girl read aloud from the paper:

"THE LEGEND OF THE VOICE"

"In the long ago days a tribe of good Indian live in the San Jorge Valley. They grow what they eat and kill nothing. They never do fight other Indian for so long they forget how it is."

"One time some bad Indian come quick from the north. These Indian kill what they eat and fight much. All the village and all the field of the good Indian is burn up. All the young men become dead. They do not know how it is to fight."

"But there is one very wise old man. He is medicine man. He take the women and the little children away. He lead them in these mountains when the young men try to fight. But very quick the bad Indian are on the trail. When the wise old man come to the arroyo with the women and the little children he look back. He see the bad Indian follow. When the trail leave the arroyo he stop. The wise old man say to the women and the little children, 'You must go on. Go in the still places of the mountains and wait. You must stay four days. Then go back into the valley and make again the village and the field.'

"The wise old medicine man go back in the arroyo and wait for the bad Indian by the big rock. He make this little breeze into a soft whisper."

"Your brother was always interested in legends an' things about this country."

per. Then he do other things that medicine man can do. When all is ready he lay down by the big rock and let his life go away.

Here in Interest of West Tex. Teachers College at Canyon

C. A. Murray, head of the mathematics department of the West Texas State College of Canyon, was here Monday in the interest of this institution. Mr. Murray was with the faculty of the summer normal that was conducted in Crowell in 1913. He left the following article with The News:

The West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon is making a great effort to enable worthy young people to continue their education without interruption even though times are hard.

Although the last legislature increased the fees at all State Institutions they are still not large and the college at Canyon has worked out a split-semester plan which will enable the student of small means to pay for nine weeks work at a time and complete that much of the year's work; then if he can get more money, he can continue. $16.50 pays his tuition, hospital and laboratory fees, student activity fee and all other campus fees which the average student has. For students who want private lessons in music, or speech, payment is allowed on the monthly basis, allowing the produce checks which are received monthly at home to pay his expenses.

A co-operative home for girls, under college supervision offers living facilities at about $13.00 per month, and $6.00 of this amount can be paid in approved produce. The girls living in the home do all of the work, each carrying her share. Nearly 100 girls can live this way if they wish. Reservations are being made very rapidly at this time.

A limited number of boys are provided for on a similar basis at the farm which is maintained by the department of Agriculture.

General courses are provided for students who wish to enter the commercial field, or take work leading to special study in engineering, medicine, law, commercial chemistry architecture or the ministry, in addition to the highly specialized courses for those who expect to teach.

The Canyon college has always been a very democratic institution, trying in good times and bad to help young people prepare themselves for good citizenship. J. A. Hill, the president, is known for his leadership, not only in West Texas, but throughout the entire state.

Wheat

There is a good demand for actual wheat every day at the market. The receipts from the country at all the big terminals are so light that the mills are having to buy wheat from the terminal elevators.

Keep your wheat in your granaries as long as you can, but if you have to have some money bring your wheat to our elevators either at Margaret, Crowell or Foard City and borrow your money at 6 per cent interest.

Do as you please, but we would not sell wheat at the present market.

Elevators open every day at Margaret, Crowell and Foard City.
