COTTON BLANKS NOW READY FOR FOARD FARMERS

Application blanks are ready to be filled out by all cotton farmers in the county, contract signers and non-signers, for the purpose of securing their tax exemption certificates, which are necessary to market their cotton under the Bankhead act, according to announcement of Fred Hines, county agent.

An attempt will be made to notify all farmers in the county and set days on which they may appear to make application. This is done in order to avoid confusion, since only a limited number can be handled by the committees each day.

It is necessary for every farmer who is producing cotton in the county to make application for the tax exemption certificate, which includes the years of 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932.

All persons making application for exemption certificates, are required to make oath that the information given is true and correct, according to their best information and figures available. There is a possibility that the names of all cotton producers in the county, according to the records, and if any producer fails to receive notice within the next few days, he should get in touch with his local committee and make application for certificates.

The county and community committees feel that time is being saved and less inconvenience to all applicants will result having each one come to the county agent's office in the county seat to complete details in making application.

W. D. McFarlane Speaker in Crowell Last Friday Night

W. D. McFarlane of Graham, candidate for re-election to a second term as Congressman from the Thirteenth district, spoke before many Crowell and Foard County people on the west side of the square in Crowell last Friday night.

He outlined his record of two years in Congress and touched briefly upon his previous legislative experience as a member of the Texas Legislature for eight years. He stated that he had kept faith with every promise he made the people in his campaign two years ago to the best of his ability.

In stating that he was a member of one of the 12 major committees, the Naval Affairs Committee, Mr. McFarlane gave an account of his work with it. He headed the investigation that revealed that the United States was "paying more and getting less" than any other nation in expenditures for naval equipment.

The speaker mentioned that after months of work, he completed gathering information which showed the amount of taxes escaping the Federal government through mass income tax payments of subsidiaries. He stated that he saved the government $2,046,967 through forcing the companies to file separate returns as would ordinary business concerns.

Various other phases of his record in Congress were mentioned, including his votes on different measures and the reasons for his actions. Criticism against him was also answered. Letters from prominent figures in Washington were read approving his work and aid in Congress in answer to criticism that he had been blacklisted by Congress.

Dr. R. L. Kincaid of Crowell introduced Mr. McFarlane. He formerly served in the Legislature with the Congressional candidate.

While in Crowell, Mr. McFarlane sent a telegram to Washington requesting that Foard County be placed in the emergency class for drought relief. Local officials sought the Congressman's aid in this respect.

He was the son of an American army officer, and started on a military career himself, having three years of training at West Point before he left the service to study art in Paris. After gaining recognition as a painter, etcher and lithographer, he spent most of his time in England and on the continent of Europe.

Bob Thomas came to our office this week and had cards printed announcing his candidacy for Commissioner of No. 3. He failed to get his name on the ticket, but says that from the encouragement he has received, there will be enough who will write his name on the ticket to elect him.

WASTE IN ADVERTISING

This is an age of advertising. Business could not get along without it. Yet many merchants waste a large share of the money they think they are spending for advertising and wonder why they do not get better results.

Outside of the store itself, the best and almost the only way to attract a prospective consumer's attention to what you have to sell is through the newspaper that goes into the home.

VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF SAFETY

The annual report of the President of the National Board of Fire Underwriters comments on the gratifying decrease in fire loss that was achieved last year.

Every American citizen should do his part to continue the good work that eliminates fires. No form of waste is more absolute—none is less necessary.

With the coming of summer, certain fire hazards automatically increase. Dry grass is among the worst, and many a carelessly dropped match or cigarette has started a disastrous fire.

There is no room for economic waste in good times, and in bad times the crime of fire becomes the greater.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Following the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir presumptive to the throne of Austria-Hungary, on June 28, 1914, the stage was speedily set for the Great War, which formally began by Austria's declaration of war on Serbia exactly one month later, on July 28th.

Other declarations of war followed with dramatic swiftness: Germany against Russia, August 1; Germany against France, Belgium and England, August 4.

The total number of men mobilized was nearly 65 million, of which approximately two-thirds were on the side of the Allies.

War expenditures reached the incomprehensible total of 186 billion dollars, and of this vast sum the Allies also spent about two thirds.

All this waste of lives and treasure is still reflected in the unhappy economic affairs of the world.

What a commentary on our so-called Christian civilization!

GETTING THE STATES TOGETHER

Uniform traffic laws and ordinances in all states are vital to any movement designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries as well as the economic loss chargeable annually to automobile accidents—a fact that was emphasized by the recent Fourth National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

With Secretary of Commerce Roper presiding, the Conference approved a model Uniform Vehicle Code which all states are asked to copy or adopt.

Other laws in the Uniform Code are: Model Motor Vehicle Administration; Registration and Certification of Title and Anti-Theft Act; Model Civil Liability Act; Model Financial Responsibility Act; Uniform Act Regulating Traffic on Highways; Model Municipal Ordinance.

Albert W. Whitney, Associate General Manager of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, who was a member of the Committee which arranged for the Conference, said, in explaining purpose of the Uniform Code:

"As anyone can realize it is vital for a state to control those it permits to use its highways. It should have the right to say who shall drive in the first place, and then to penalize those whose driving practices are dangerous to the lives and limbs of others.

"The other acts of the Code are so reasonable as to recommend them to every driver."

Playing the semi-finals of Scotch golf tournament at the local country club is scheduled for today with T. S. Haney and Oscar Boman playing Merl Kincaid and Bob Oswald, and with Grady Magee and Tanner Billington playing Alton Bell and R. J. Roberts.

Thirty local golfers have participated in this year's tourney. In the qualifying round, Gordon Bell was medalist with a 76. In arranging the matches for the tournament the lowest scorer formed a partnership with the highest scorer and so on down the line, and these pairs were then matched against other pairs.

In a Scotch tourney, the partners play with only one ball, each taking a stroke at the ball in regular succession.

Results thus far have been as follows: First Round G. Bell-Rasor beat Hughston-Hill; Haney-Boman beat Crews-Hooks; Oswald, Sr.-Smith beat Spears-Lilly; Kincaid-Oswalt, Jr. beat Spencer-P. Bell; Magee-Billington beat Edwards-Duvall; Magee-Billington beat Ross-R. J. Thomas, Jr.; A. Bell-Roberts beat Burrow-Elliott; J. Thomas-Walden, bye.

Second Round Haney-Boman beat G. Bell-Rasor; Kincaid-Oswalt, Jr. beat Smith-Oswalt, Sr.; Magee-Billington beat Black-Miller; A. Bell-Roberts beat Walden-Thomas.

NO BOY'S JOB

Edom, July 17. — Declaring that the only issue in the attorney general's race is election of a man who can do the job, Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman today entered the home stretch of his campaign.

"Don't send a boy to do a man's job," Senator Woodward said here. "You want in the attorney general's office a man with whiskers on his face and harness marks of experience on his body. It is important to elect a qualified man. An inexperienced attorney general would cause the state losses which the people would feel sharply in the form of increased taxes."

Senator Woodward cited his 25 years practice in civil law courts, 10 years in the state senate, experience as assistant attorney general and as county attorney.

"The man you elect governor and all other state and county officers must come to the attorney general for legal advice," he said. "This attorney general is lawyer for the 6,000,000 people of Texas. It is a place for a man well schooled in civil law. It is no place for a man who got his experience in a prosecutor's office or police court. Both my opponents are prosecutors and gained their experience prosecuting petty violators under the fee system at so much per prosecution."

Vacancies In Marine Corps to Be Filled In Monthly Installments

New Orleans, La., July 18.—The United States Marine Corps District office in New Orleans announces that the vacancies recently created in the Marine Corps by Congress will be filled in limited monthly installments during the next few months.

The number of qualified applicants in June was greater than could be accepted in the authorized June installment. The excess was carried on the waiting list to be accepted in July.

The Marine Corps is the only military service in the world which requires that its accepted applicants must have the educational qualifications required for entrance to college. Only those who are graduates from high schools or have equivalent education from other schools are accepted.

This high standard is maintained because Marines must be capable of learning quickly the arts of all arms of the military service ashore and of the naval service on board battleships and cruisers.

The Marine Corps is the Navy's little army, and serves on board the Navy's battleships and cruisers, and ashore in our overseas territory and in foreign countries when it is necessary to land forces to protect our interests.

Our "soldiers of the sea" are our "fortign legion." They are always ready to embark on our naval vessels and proceed where there is trouble expected, ready to land instantly.

"Soldiers and sailors too," they fall in with either the Army or Navy and know the arts and habits of both.

While their educational qualifications are equal to those required for entrance to college, their physical standards are rigid. They must be over 18 years old and not under 66 inches tall. Also they must furnish evidence of character and good standing.

Their duties and responsibilities require exemplary men who can be entrusted to act with credit for our country throughout the world in difficult situations.

This splendid corps with its opportunities for travel and varied service attracts many applicants from which only the most select are accepted.

The U. S. Marine Corps District Office, 535 St. Charles St., New Orleans, La., receives by mail and considers all applications from Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Mississippi, and is the only office, except the U. S. Marine Corps District offices in Savannah and Macon, Ga., where applicants in the Southern States are considered, examined, and accepted.

THE GYRO-STABILIZER

Seasickness and other discomforts of ocean travel in stormy weather will be eliminated when the new gyro-stabilizer comes into general use, according to Science Service.

This stabilizer, which is really a high top made to spin at high speed, has been developed to a practical stage, for installation in new vessels. The largest so far made weighs 120 tons and its rotor is capable of being spun at the rate of 930 revolutions per minute by means of a 200-horsepower motor. It takes an hour to get the rotor up to full speed, and it will continue to spin for two hours after the power is shut off.

Engineers say that a stabilizer of this size will prevent a 450-foot ship from rolling more than two degrees in a heavy storm. A new 45,000-ton Italian liner will have three huge gyro-stabilizers, it is understood, and it is expected that this device will be adopted for use generally in the finest ocean passenger ships of the future. Stabilizers have been successfully used for some time on yachts and other small crafts, and it is believed that they will be equally effective on the largest ships.

If expectations are realized, ocean passengers of the future may be able, regardless of the weather, to eat their meals in comfort, and, best of all, retain them after they are eaten.

A PRISON FOR WOMEN

Six years ago a new Federal prison for women was opened at Alderson, West Virginia, with Dr. Mary B. Harris as superintendent. A recent writer describes it as "a Federal junk yard where women are sent who have broken the nation's laws," but adds that under the guidance of Dr. Harris "these misfits of society are being reconducted to such good purpose that the prison world in general is sitting up and taking notice."

Dr. Harris has demonstrated that strict prison discipline may well be combined with sympathetic interest in her unfortunate wards, a majority of whom are drug addicts when they are sent to her. While many of these cases seem hopeless, much success has been attained already in effecting what appears to be permanent cures.

A striking illustration of the efficacy of the prison's system is seen in the fact that of 170 paroles granted, only one has been broken. Many affectionate letters are received by the superintendent and her assistants from women who were former inmates of the prison, and quite a number have returned for a friendly visit.

The prison is conducted on the theory that there is some good in everyone, and it is the business of prison authorities to develop the best in its wards, at the same time firmly repressing the evil tendencies so far as possible. This theory is working out well in practice at Alderson.

STAMP HOBBY PRAISED

The educational value of stamp collecting was pointed out in a recent address by a high postal official, who told of the encouragement given by the department of this widespread and growing hobby.

He expressed the belief that young people who devote a portion of their spare time to stamp collecting add much to the knowledge gained in school, particularly with reference to history and geography.

For example, the life of Washington means more to the young person who has made a collection of postage stamps bearing his likeness, and the same holds true with respect to other presidents and national leaders who have been honored by stamp issues. Stamps issued in commemoration of historical events serve a similar purpose, while a study of foreign stamps leads to a desire for more knowledge concerning the countries represented.

In order to facilitate collectors, the Post Office Department in 1921 established a sales agency in Washington, known as the Philatelic Agency, where stamps not found on sale in local post offices may be secured.

The business of supplying stamps to collectors has been developed by private individuals and firms until it has become an extensive industry, and rare stamps bring high prices.

THE BOOK

... the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures

by BRUCE BARTON

TWO RULERS TO FORE

Inevitably Jerusalem came under the conquering power of Rome, but the vigor of the Maccabees promised to perpetuate itself in a new line of kings. Herod, a military leader from across Jordan, allied himself with Rome and was made a kind of feudal king. He married a Maccabean princess, Mariamne, whose beauty and tragic fate gripped the imaginations of the people and made the name Mar... common in New Testament times and later. Herod murdered her, and she was only one among his many victims.

Bruce Barton

Rome passed from a nominal republic into an empire. Caesar Augustus was Emperor and Herod (beneficiary of the brave Maccabees) reigned in Palestine when Jesus was born. The policy of Rome was tolerant; local customs and even local prejudices were not greatly interfered with, and the Jews were permitted to carry on their worship and, to a large extent, the internal affairs of their government as they chose under their own rulers. But Rome was the power that ruled, and naturally the Jews were not happy. They had become a nation whose ideals were bound up in a book. If they no longer had their independence they still did have the Law, the Prophets and the Writings. They studied these and thought they found promises that Jerusalem was again to have political power. They looked back to the days of David and Solomon, idealizing the reigns of these great kings. They were sure that some day another king of David's lineage would sit on the throne in their sacred city and they even found in Micah a verse which some imagined to mean that their king would be born in Bethlehem:

But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting.

It is necessary to have this little historic background in order to understand why there were two rulers simultaneously in the days of Jesus: Herod the King, whom Jesus characterized as "that fox," and Pilate, the Roman governor; and why the Jewish crowds, fired by patriotism, sought to take Jesus, "Son of David," by force and make Him their king; and why, when He refused, they melted away from Him and allowed the shouts of "Hosanna" of Palm Sunday to be drowned out on Friday by the shout of "Crucify."

As nearly as scholars can figure it out, Jesus was born about 4 B. C. The Christian chronology was not fixed until the sixth century, and our subsequent study of Roman records indicates that a mistake of about four years was made. Assuming the date 4 B. C., therefore, we now approach the nineteenth hundredth anniversary of Jesus' thirtieth birthday.

Our Sunday School attendance Sunday was again above the average for this year. This is encouraging. Let's all plan so as to be present and encourage others to be present every Lord's Day. Thus we will find the greatest measure of peace and happiness for ourselves and at the same time assist effectively in the Master's work.

The co-operative meeting at Vivian goes forward with good interest. We believe that this religious effort on the part of the religious people of this community is the forerunner of a fine co-operative spirit and effort that will result in a steady and progressive spiritual improvement in the community for a long time to come.

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 22.

The Golden Text is: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself" (John 5:26.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "That thou mayest love the Lord thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him; for he is thy life, and the length of thy days" (Deuteronomy 30:20.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Because Life is God, Life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I AM, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase" (page 289-290.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Elijah Hears God's Voice.

Lesson for July 22nd. I Kings 19:9-21.

Golden Text: 1 Samuel 3-9.

Our lesson tells of Elijah's recovery from despondency. First an angel commanded, "Arise, and eat." The worn out body of Elijah needed the refreshment of food. A square meal is a first rate means of banishing gloom. His appetite appeased, the prophet, like Moses, spent forty days and nights in solitary communion with God.

Then the Lord asked a searching question: "What doest thou here, Elijah?" There was important work for the prophet to accomplish. A discouraged man usually needs not less work but more. The prodigal son, in his degradation, doubtless heard a query much like that hurled at Elijah. And he answered by go-

The Family DOCTOR
by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

YOUR FAMILY DOCTOR

Yesterday an old neighbor—he admitted being 75—dropped in my office to shake hands and "see about a small patch that had appeared over the right cheek-bone; it is slightly thickened, itches a little, and announces its presence every time I shave."

It didn't bleed, which was fortunate. It was just a skin-lesion on an aged face. I had seen hundreds of them... we both were thinking about skin-cancer, technically epithelioma. Probably least form of the malignancies. The patient usually goes to the doctor's time—a measure of HIGHEST IMPORTANCE. Nobody loves blotched face.

I could speak to this old man with authority; here is what I said to him:

"This is not yet unmistakable; it may be malignant, and may be; but we must proceed with caution. Do not "scratch" this little fender—you get a habit of doing that. Do not shave over this spot. Trim the beard here with scissors. You must use no irritating soap even to use no soap here is well. Don't provoke bleeding with towel or accidental bruise. Be exceedingly kind to this fellow.

"Do not even subject it to sunburn—I mean to the point of irritation; wear your hat for shade. Above all—do not buy patented ointments or "salves" that may be recommended to you—let them alone nine out of ten of them contain some irritant that lights up a fire some times—a fire that becomes destructive—take no chances. Get a small bottle of pure castor oil—and paint the skin here with it at least once a day—leave the oil lying on the surface all the time; it ought to well in three or four weeks—

"But, suppose it is not! Then we will be in good shape for applying X-Ray... though let's not cross that bridge until we come to it. This applies to any age patient who has a similar lesion.

ing back to his old home, and getting to work. John Bright, famous English statesman, heard a similar inquiry as he mourned the loss of his beautiful young wife. It came to him in the appeal of Richard Cobden who urged him to give his life to the repeal of the unjust corn laws.

And now the divine voice spoke a third time. "Go forth," it said, "and stand upon the mount." How important it is to ascend to an elevation where one may see the broad horizons of God's providence! It was from a mountain that Moses looked into the Promised Land.

And when Elijah had ascended, an altogether extraordinary spectacle met his gaze. Magnificent displays of physical power greeted his astonished eyes. But God, much to the prophet's surprise, was not in the wind, or the earthquake, or the fire. He spoke, instead in a still small voice. And so Elijah learned that the Lord can speak softly, as well as loudly, peacefully, as well as in the storm.

Do we hear the dulcet tones of the divine appeal? Do we allow the Lord to enter the citadel of our affections on a wave of stillness? Listen to a great verse spoken by the psalmist, "Thy gentleness hath made me great."

TRAIL'S END

by AGNES LOUISE PROVOST

Third Installment

SYNOPSIS—Three weeks after a grim colored roadster had been wrecked in the sea at the foot of a cliff, a girl calling herself Anne Cushing appears at the ranch of Marston. She has a light, slight, unsexed, a ranch loiterer, thirty miles away. Barry Duane, her nearest neighbor and man, Boone Petry procure a female woman for her and in Barry's car, loaded down with supplies, they start across the desert. Marston her reticence has caused suspicion.

The glimpse was only a glimpse, as quickly as it had come, the car gave a jolt of protest and started off obliquely from the place they had been following. She wanted privacy and here it was.

"Now," said her host cheerfully, "we are aiming straight—more or less straight—for your ranch. The real road is back of us. This is just your short cut to it. See that little jag in the hills? Your ranch is right below that, in a valley."

She looked at it with sharpened interest. A valley, rounded by soft of snug and tucked up, a stream ran through the middle. She hoped that was true, she did not ask Barry Duane. The hills were coming closer and a slow rise of land began to spotted thinly with dwarf pines. Higher slopes towered and, great, wrinkled, rocky ridges, almost black in shadow, other south, where the car was being were long, thin wooded trees. Lying lonely but protected there was a little valley.

Anne had a glimpse of willows and cottonwoods, hugging what was a little creek. There was water! They swept in with a triumphant burst of speed, past a strip fence with tired looking posts and discouraged wires, past a ragged field or two, catching sight a lovely meadow.

"Here we are," said Barry Duane, "at Cushing's Ranch. You can judge it by first appearance, because a handy man with hammer, a few nails can work miracles."

His voice sounded nervous. They were all looking at her, a little anxiously. She began to laugh. Softly at first, but with a swelling note, it was her ranch, hers, bought cheaply over the counter in a little office in a small town. "The dear little funny old man! I don't mind if it's run on. It's mine! And I'm going to have orange curtains at the windows. Flaming orange! Let's have it!"

She was out before anyone could help her, running up a carefree path to a frankly sagging porch, and turned at the door. "I forgot the most important thing. Welcome to Trail's End. Larrabee, if I help, do you think I'd dare invite the gentleman to our first meal?"

They stayed. It would have taken force to have dragged at least one of them away from that glow picture on the low, lazy old couch, with the weathered logs and a silvered background for vivid youth and the lovely smile in her cheeks. "Don't see why they shouldn't," agreed calmly. "There's plenty to eat, and we can keep men busy until supper time. Come, you take these things out. I'll show you where they go. Then you might clean out the house. I'll need it—and lay a mat for me. Barry, suppose you Miss Cushing around and you take a look at the well and if it needs cleanin' out."

Anne listened to them, eyes bright with laughter. "Tell me I can help. I'm not going to be a drone, you know. But I want to see what the house is like. First. Coming?"

This was not addressed to Marston. A slightly dizzy young man picked up a suitcase in each hand, and followed her. The door yielded under her hand with a gentle squeak, and a slanting ray of sunlight followed her in. The room was a fair-sized room, with doors on both sides leading to other rooms. The first impression was one of dust and bareness, the hasty litter of odds and ends dropped in moving. The floor wasn't bad at all. The walls needed scrubbing, but there was a generous stone fireplace with some glistening quartz faces, and a long mantle above formed of a single cedar slab. The time-darkened beams were dark hewn, and if the few pieces of furniture were heavy and primitive, that, had she known it, was nothing to give thanks for. "Well, I'm glad Mrs. Larrabee cyclone. But I love the old place and that fireplace—alright it's hard to imagine ever being a fire after that sun outside."

"You'd rather unback first." "Before I've seen my own ranch? Never! I just want to get out some sensible shoes. I'll join you in just a minute."

He went, but with a backward look. Interested and not a little puzzled. He knew that the girls of his own generation did practically what they pleased, but they didn't usually please to bury their talents in humdrum and unrespectable farm work. Perhaps it was just a whim, or a let-down after a love affair, or—Oh, damn it, what business was it of his, anyway? He went to find Martha Larrabee.

Left to herself, Anne grimaced frankly at the slightly dingy look of her new quarters, and blessed Martha's stern creed of soap and water. She slipped into a pair of smart sport shoes, and hurried out. "Mrs. Larrabee, I can't ask two perfect strangers to do all my work for me. It's awfully nice of them to be willing, but it's really too much."

"My name's Martha," said that capable woman composedly, "and don't you worry about the work. It won't hurt 'em. Besides, they'd want to anyway. It's only neighborly. Now you run along and tell Barry to show you around, but before he goes he might as well help Boone out with that table. I thought we might have supper early, and eat it outdoors."

A step sounded on the porch. Anne knew already whose it was. "I've brought you some water, Martha. The well seems in good shape, but I'll take a better look at it tomorrow. It's placed right for drainage, too."

He sighted Anne. White, even teeth flashed. "All ready for action? Come along, and I'll show you the estate."

She trudged off gaily with him, to look at her kingdom. Martha looked after them, with elevated brow and that smiling quirk at the corner of her smiling mouth. "Him!" she said eloquently. "Runnin' after a girl!"

The tour of inspection took in the hay barn and wagon shed, tool house and store house, a disused blacksmith shop cluttered with odds and ends, a fairly good cabin with several bunks, used, no doubt, in busier days. There were farm implements more or less in repair, a fair assortment of tools, some noticeably patched harness and a quite respectable saddle.

They left these dusty details behind them and walked slowly down beside the little creek, hustling busily along over its stones. Young willows crowded close to its banks, cottonwoods towered gracefully, golden green with young leaves. It was quiet and lovely here.

"An Indian," said Barry Duane, "would feed a tribe on what a Simpson wastes. A primitive dam out there and some irrigation ditches on each side would add acres to this place. But try to make them do it!"

There was a curious bitterness in his voice, out of all relation to such a harmless subject. She wondered. "Why, I think it sounds exciting."

"Yes, it's exciting enough," he broke off with an apologetic grin. "Don't let me get started. It's a hobby of mine. Come on, let's go up to that knoll. You will get a good view down your little valley and a nice glimpse of some aspens on the other side. When they turn in the autumn that upper slope is like running gold."

Martha's solid step sounded back to her.

"You better get to bed. You look mighty near done out to me."

"Just lazy. You've done wonders, I like my ranch, Martha. Perhaps I'm a hopeless greenhorn, but I do."

"So do I," said Martha unexpectedly. "I've always liked it." "Oh, do you?" A certain listlessness had gone out of her voice. "I thought perhaps—well, it's generally agreed to be rather run down, isn't it?"

"Nothing that plain, ordinary hard work and a little backbone won't bring up again," said Martha bluntly. "There's a home and a reasonable livin' on it, and in good years there ought to be a little over to tuck in the bank."

She looked shrewdly down at the small dark head, at shapely, taper-fingered hands clasped over a rounded knee. Martha had a head and used it, but whatever she may have felt of curiosity or doubt she kept to herself. She added a brief afterthought, cautiously.

"And if you ever got tired of ranchin', I guess you wouldn't have any trouble turnin' your money over. Anybody could easily turn it into a dude ranch, and I guess there's rich men that would like it just for the shootin' and fishin' back in the hills. Now I'm on my way to bed. We've got to get up early tomorrow morning."

"All right, Martha, I'll follow in a minute. Be sure to call me."

The firm step retreated. Anne was alone again, and thoughtful. Home and a living. It was curious how precious that seemed now. Hidden away in her smaller suitcase there was still a little store of bills in that golden bag, hated and yet miraculous. Enough to buy some needed things for her ranchito, and a little in reserve, always in reserve, if by any chance disaster should pursue her even here, and the need for flight should come suddenly.

"Hide me!" she whispered fiercely. "Hold me and hide me, until no one remembers my face!"

A memory stung her like a nettle. She shook it off abruptly and jumped to her feet. "Four days had passed since Anne had arrived at this tucked away, neglected ranch of hers, four days of almost unremitting work which had sent her to bed with every muscle protesting and had swept her in five minutes into dreamless sleep.

From the kitchen came a subdued rattle of pans. Anne's eyes opened wide and she reached for the watch lying on an unsteady little table beside her bed. Seven o'clock! A swing and a soft thump took her out of bed, and she threw open the door and ran out. "Martha, you villain, you've let me oversleep! Don't you know I'm a hard-working woman?" Her shrewd eyes warned, in spite of an inner protest, as they looked at the gay little figure in the kitchen door. Bright eyes and a curly mop of hair, bare feet thrust into gaudy Chinese slippers, silken, impudent pajamas, scarlet and black. "If you're goin' to run around in those red pants, you'd better keep an eye on the door. First thing you know one of your regular callers will be stickin' his head in, and then what'll you look like?"

Vacationists Warned To Be Careful About Their Food and Water

Austin, Texas.—Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, warns those going on a vacation or picnic, to be careful about their food and the water they drink if they want to avoid unpleasant after effects.

"As to foods," Dr. Brown said, "First, be sure that what you take is perfectly fresh. Second, take things that won't spoil. During the hot muggy weather that prevails at this time of the year, it is hard to keep any kind of food in good condition, as every housekeeper knows. Rich, perishable food taken off the ice and carried around for several hours before using will spoil very quickly."

"It is better to avoid rich salads and indigestible combinations and to stick to the simpler things. Sandwiches—of which an infinite variety can be prepared—cake, the simpler the better—and plenty of fresh, ripe fruit, are usually safe and satisfying and should form the principal part of your menu. Whatever you take, don't overeat and don't indulge in all sorts of queer mixtures. If you do, the day after the picnic is not likely to be a pleasant one for you."

"And as a third precaution: Take your own drinking water, unless you are sure that the water supply of the place where you are going to spend the day, is free from contamination. Thermos bottles, thermos jugs, fruit jars, can all be pressed into service. It may be more trouble to carry water from home, but it is much safer than to drink water from a source that may be contaminated with disease germs, especially those of typhoid fever."

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS

Perhaps in no other industry is there such a variety of conditions as in the newspaper business. Totalled indiscriminately, there are something over 14,000 newspapers in the United States, ranging from the smallest country weekly which prints only two pages in its own shop with additional pages printed by a syndicate, to the great metropolitan dailies which employ thousands of persons each.

For the smallest, probably not more than 25 pounds of paper is required each week, while the Chicago Tribune uses for one Sunday edition all the paper produced from timber grown on 240 acres of land.

According to Grove Patterson, the well-known writer, the New York Times employs 3,100 persons, with a payroll of $25,000,000 a year. Hearst's newspapers and magazines use more than $50,000,000 worth of paper a year.

But in spite of the disparity between the smallest and the largest of American newspapers, the publisher of the small country weekly need not be overawed by the size of his metropolitan rival. The local newspaper has a place in the life of its community which the great dailies can not usurp if the local publisher is alive to his opportunities and makes the most of them.

Now, as always, the hometown newspaper is the best and cleanest exponent of constructive journalism.

DESERVED RECOGNITION

A trip to the A. and M. Short Course has been given to Elizabeth Whitten by the West Rayland 4-H Club. This comes as a deserved recognition of Elizabeth's work with the club. She has served as president of the club, attended every meeting, completed every goal up-to-date, and has taken part in every other activity of the club, such as the tour of the county, the dress contest and the girls' encampment.

In addition to her work as president Elizabeth has served as reporter and as garden demonstrator for her club.

WEST RAYLAND CLUB

Mrs. H. E. Gloyna's bedroom, which won second place in the contest recently, was visited at a meeting of the West Rayland H. D. Club with Mrs. Gloyna July 10.

A visit to her room will convince anyone that a very beautiful and convenient bedroom may be had with little expense.

Mrs. Luther Marlow and Mrs. C. L. Adkins were elected class 1 and class 2 wardrobe demonstrators, respectively. The treasurer reported that a total of $4.05 was made by selling ice cream at a community meeting at the school house. This was added to the 4-H Club girls' treasure to send a delegate to A. & M. Short Course. Mrs. E. M. Key, a former club member, who is ill, sent a letter of thanks to the club for the pot flower which was presented her recently. Plans were made to attend the encampment July 24 and 25.

Fifteen members and 4 visitors, Mrs. Ed Lehman and Mrs. Albert Lowke of Five-in-One, Miss Mildred Elliot, Mrs. Jess Gregg and Miss Holman were present. The club will have no regular meeting until August 14 with Mrs. J. S. Ray, as the women's encampment takes the place of the second July meeting and the meeting with Miss Holman takes the place of the first August meeting.

GOOD CREEK GIRLS MAKE GOOD IN DRESS CONTEST

Two members of the Good Creek 4-H Club took part in the recent dress contest. Both of the girls placed in the contest, Ada Groomer winning second place and Marie Dunn getting honorable mention. These girls represent a club which has been organized for just a short time and which has had only one regular meeting since its organization.

WEST RAYLAND 4-H CLUB

The West Rayland girls 4-H Club met Tuesday, July 10, at the school house.

Elizabeth Whitten was elected delegate to the A. & M. Short Course. Discussion on other matters also took place. The next meeting will be on Tuesday, July 24.

WEST SIDE H. D. CLUB

Reports for wardrobe and bedroom demonstrators were given by Mrs. F. A. Davis and Miss Lela Patton at an all-day meeting of the West Side Club at the home of Mrs. Davis on July 11. Both demonstrators reported that their work had been very enjoyable.

The H. D. encampment for July 24 was discussed. A bountiful covered dish luncheon was served to eight members and the following five visitors: Mrs. T. W. Cooper of Vivian, Mrs. E. A. Dunagan of Gamberville, Miss Beulah Bowley, Mrs. Marion Crowell and Miss Virginia Sue Crowell, all of Crowell.

All members are urged to attend the next program on table service at the home of Mrs. S. E. Tate on Aug. 22.

MARGARET H. D. CLUB

The Margaret H. D. Club met with Mrs. C. T. Murphy Friday, July 13, with 9 members, three visitors and three new members present, to enjoy a good program. Plans were made for the annual encampment on July 24 and two delegates were named to the A. & M. Short Course. They were Mrs. Jimmy Larue and Mrs. Murphy.

A dainty refreshment plate was served to all.

"Man's Castle" Will Show Here Next Week

"Man's Castle," hailed as "The Seventh Heaven" of talking pictures, will be shown at the Rialto Theatre on Thursday night of next week. The presentation here is for the benefit of the West Side Home Demonstration Club.

Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young, two of the finest players of the screen, are featured in "Man's Castle." When "Seventh Heaven" was filmed, featuring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, these two stars were not known, however, this is not the case with the two leading stars in "Man's Castle."

"Seventh Heaven" was regarded as one of the ten best pictures of 1924 and it is believed that "Man's Castle" will reach a high place in 1934 film history.

Foreclosure Sought On Municipal Light Plant at Seymour

Dallas, Tex., July 10.—Foreclosure on the municipally owned electric light plant of the City of Seymour, Texas, is sought in a suit filed in the District Court here today by the Municipal Acceptance Corporation of Chicago, holder of the mortgage. Total indebtedness of $132,419.07 is claimed in the petition, including principal and interest.

Plaintiff's original petition alleges that the plant was built by Fairbanks, Morse & Co. in 1923 at a total contract price of $125,479, payable in seventy-two installments with interest at 6 per cent; that in December, 1930, when the unpaid principal and interest amounted to $129,306, by written agreement between the City and Fairbanks, Morse & Co., the repayment terms were modified, the City agreeing to pay $500 a month the first year, $900 a month the second, $1,000 a month the third, and thereafter $1,250 a month until the indebtedness was finally discharged. Subsequent to this agreement, Fairbanks, Morse & Co., for a valuable consideration, transferred the mortgage to the Municipal Acceptance Corporation.

Of the $36,300 that has become due and payable under the December, 1930, refinancing agreement, petitioner claims the City has paid only $13,100, leaving a balance of $22,800 now due and unpaid; that under the terms of the contract, petitioner has the legal right to declare the entire indebtedness due and payable and that it now exercises that right, asking for final judgment for principal, interest, costs of suit and foreclosure of its lien upon the plant and its revenues.

In July of 1931 the city council passed an ordinance increasing the electric rates and making them the minimum rates that could be charged by the municipal plant and the private utility also serving the town, and the rates fixed were higher than those that had been in effect.

Plan for Installment Payments on College Expenses at Tarleton

Stephenville, Texas, July 3.—A plan for installment payments on college expenses has been announced by Dean J. Thomas Davis of John Tarleton Agricultural College for the 1934-35 session. Tarleton's "New Deal" will make it possible for students to enter college in the fall by making a down payment of between $9 and $28, to be followed by four like payments, October 1, November 1, December 1, and January 1. Spring semester payments may be made in four installments.

These payments will cover fees, uniforms, books and other supplies, and, if the student stays on the campus, room and board. The variation depends chiefly on whether the student rooms and boards on the campus, and partly by the cost of uniforms and of school supplies.

To cover the amount due the college, students will be allowed to borrow as much as $50 from the student loan, putting up a note as collateral. Hence it is necessary that those who wish to use the plan should file their applications not later than August 18, or thirty days prior to the opening of the fall semester on September 17.

Giant Exhibition Is Planned During '36 For Tex. Centennial

Corsicana, Texas, July 17.—If there was ever a question in the mind of any Texan as to whether or not a giant exhibition would be held in 1936, that doubt has been dispelled.

This is the opinion of Will H. Mayes, Austin, executive secretary of the Texas Centennial Commission, here the first of the week attending a meeting of the Commissioners.

"Prior to the organization meeting of the Commission in Austin on June 6 my mail indicated that a considerable portion of the public had grave doubt as to whether or not the State would be able to stage the exhibition. Following that meeting there has been a radical change in the viewpoint. Now all the mail is optimistic. All are making suggestions. These towns having historical shrines near them are indicating active preparation to participate."

Mr. Mayes for more than a quarter of a century was himself an active newspaper editor and publisher, and a former president of the Texas Press Association. His ability to gauge public sentiment is recognized in all sections.

"There was a gradual change in the public viewpoint," Mr. Mayes said, "from the day the legislature made its appropriation for the preliminary work of the Commission. The people then began to realize that the Centennial idea was not hallow, but the presentation of a great plan which had gotten so far along as to command legislative approval."

"Now with the Commission having announced a definite working plan for these cities desiring to secure the central exhibition, with it having been made plain what those locations having historic shrines are expected to do to have their share in the Centennial, everybody has a job, a definite goal, and can go to work."

"In no movement have I ever witnessed this early as much favorable sentiment as has been crystallized in the last few weeks. Everybody wants to help. Everybody wants a part. It will be a job, as I understand it, of the publicity committee to give the folks a job. The service of the loyal Texan is needed. The cause this exhibition must be a Texas and for all its citizens.

"It now is generally recognized that the Centennial will benefit all Texas. There isn't a name but that will benefit. We want the people to understand this, and at the same time to know that historical, the cultural, the artistic and the religious life of Texas through the last stirring century will be paramount."

Mr. Mayes in connection with the historical side of the exhibition pointed out that the publicity committee in its Corsicana report provided that an authentic and comprehensive history of Texas be written and that it "assemble data for an unbiased chronicle of the events, forces and influences not only military and political, but in every field of human endeavor."

It provided for a number of worthy celebrations during the Centennial year in those places famous in Texas history by reason of military, political or cultural events. It also provided that the main exhibition be all-Texas in proportions; that the participation of all those Nations under whose Texas has lived be asked to participate. Thus it is expected that the glorious history of the State will be paramount at all times every phase of the great exhibition, plans for which now are actively under way in all sections.
