PE REVIVED DR BUILDING PEASE DAM

Favorable attitude from officials in Washington toward the River dam project was revealed at a meeting in Vernon last day by R. H. Nichols of Vice-president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, who returned from a trip to Washington.

On his recent visit in Washington Mr. Nichols urged the association for an allotment of $100,000 of the government's billion dollar work-relief fund, for an earthen dam across the river at a point about ten miles northwest of Crowell.

Nichols said he was encouraged toward the project, which is being studied by FERA engineers, report of their findings will be submitted through Congressman McFarlane at an early date, he promised.

It will be necessary to have the dam sponsored by the U. S. Army Engineers or in the Texas work-relief program by the State Works Administration, Mr. Nichols said. The latter course is becoming more practicable.

R. Brown of Electra, president of the association, and L. A. Vernon, secretary, were present to handle all details of the report received from McFarlane.

Nichols praised the assistance given by Mr. McFarlane and Senators Tom Conner and Morris Sheppard.

ANNUAL SPRING LAKE TOURNNEY WON BY G. BELL

Gordon Bell won the 1935 championship of the annual Spring Lake Country Club golf tournament by defeating Ernest (Red) Spears 11 and 10 in a 36-hole match on the local course Sunday afternoon.

This makes the second time that Bell has won the Spring Lake championship. In 1931 he defeated M. L. Hughton in the tourney final. R. D. Oswalt holds the Spring Lake record with three championships.

Since the annual tournament was started in 1929, the winners have been as follows: 1929—R. D. Oswalt; 1930—T. S. Haney; 1931—Gordon Bell; 1932—R. D. Oswalt; 1933—T. P. Duncan, Jr.; 1934—R. D. Oswalt; 1935—Gordon Bell.

In reaching the final match of the championship flight this year, Bell beat Oswalt in the first round, Haney in the second, and Grady Magee in the semi-finals. Spears beat Martin Duvall, Raymond Burrow and R. J. Thomas, Jr., in his climb to the final match.

The 1935 local golf champion was also the first person to account for a hole-in-one on the Spring Lake course. He accomplished this unusual feat in 1932. Equally as unusual as his hole-in-one on the 140-yard No. 7 hole in 1932 was his record in March of this year when he used only two strokes in making No. 6, a 479-yard 5-par hole.

Consolation Flight
Vern Walden beat J. T. Billington 3 and 1 for the first flight consolation championship. Results in this flight follow:
First round—Oswalt beat Crews, Jr.; Walden beat M. L. Hughton; Billington beat Guy Crews; M. Duvall beat Ernest King. Second round—Walden beat Oswalt; Billington beat Duvall. Final—Walden beat Billington.

Final play in the second flight has not been completed. Lee Black is ready to meet some player from the lower end of the bracket in the championship match. He beat Guy Hooks in the first round, Merl Kincaid in the second and H. K. Edwards in the semi-finals.

Bill Elliott, candidate for the final match, has already won over M. N. Kenner and Dr. H. Schindler.

Mrs. Bill Bell Local Sponsor at Texas Cowboy Reunion
Mrs. Bill Bell will serve as Crowell sponsor at the annual Texas Cowboy Reunion in Stamford July 2, 3 and 4. Before her recent marriage, she was Miss Lora Whatley. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hagan Whatley, who live on a Foard County ranch about 25 miles northwest of Crowell. Mrs. Bell also served as the Crowell sponsor last year.

C. H. S. GRADUATES HAVE HIGHER AVERAGE GRADE AS COLLEGE FRESHMEN THAN ANY GROUP OF GRADUATES FROM THIS SECTION

The average grade of Crowell High School graduates who were freshmen in college during the past year is higher than that of any other group of graduates from high schools of this section of Texas, according to results of a survey just completed by I. T. Graves, superintendent of the local school system.

Ten out of 35 graduates of the 1934 class attended college during the past year and had an average grade of 81.46. Seymour's average of 80.63 is second and Olney is third with 77.12.

Crowell graduates' percentage of failures in college was 2.7, the lowest for any school in this section and 11 per cent lower than the 13.7 average for 217 high schools of the state.

A letter was written to each registrar of colleges attended by Crowell High graduates who were freshmen the past year in securing the grades of each and the information about the other schools listed in the accompanying table was secured from the annual 1933-34 volume of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, showing the distribution by grades made by graduates as freshmen in college for each of the 217 Texas high schools holding membership in the association.

The distribution showing the per cent of all grades made by Crowell freshmen in college follow: A's—25; B's—27.8; C's—32.4; D's—12.2; F's—2.7; average—81.46. In determining the average, A is equivalent to 95, B to 85, C to 75, D to 65, and F to 50.

Eighteen Marriage Licenses This Year

With the first half of 1935 almost over, the number of marriage licenses issued from the office of the county clerk, Grady Magee, amounted to 18 from Jan. 1 to Wednesday afternoon of this week.

While this is above the average for the first six-month period of most recent years, yet it is 13 less than for the first half of 1934, since 31 were issued for that period last year and 49 for the entire year. Only 6 licenses were issued for the first six months of 1933.

CONDITION IMPROVES

There has been some improvement this week in the condition of Mrs. N. A. Crowell, who has been seriously ill several months.

Author of Serial

"Hostile Valley" by Ben Ames Williams begins in The News this week and will appear serially in this newspaper. The works of the author of this serial hardly need to be introduced to America's millions of readers of good fiction, for they have long been popular in the large national magazines.

In "Hostile Valley" he has created a worthy successor to "Splendid" "An End to Mirth," "Pirate's Purchase," "All the Brothers Were Valiant," and his other successes.

Ben Ames Williams was born in Macon, Miss., in 1889, and was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1910. Two years of his youth were spent in Cardiff, Wales, where his father was the American consul. He worked on Boston newspapers until his stories began to sell. He is married and now makes his home in Massachusetts in winter and Maine in summer.

"Hostile Valley" is a story of passion, hate and murder in backwoods Maine, which Williams knows well. Begin it today on Page 7 and follow it every week in this newspaper.

The discovery of several black widow spiders in Crowell and Foard County during the past week has been reported. One of the deadly insects found by J. H. (Red) Easley and H. D. Nelson, local painters, is now on display in The News office.

Many more deaths than usual over the nation have been caused this year from bites of these spiders, including a few deaths in this section of Texas and southern Oklahoma in recent weeks.

Immediate attention of a physician can usually prevent serious results when one has been bitten. The principal distinguishing mark about the insects is the red hour-glass figure on the under side.

Keys Quadruplets Please Crowell Audience Monday

The famous Keys Quadruplets of Hollis, Okla., presented an interesting program at the High School auditorium on Monday evening to a fair-sized audience. The program included vocal and saxophone numbers, skits and readings. Most of the numbers were ensemble, but several were individual.

The young ladies are each of a pleasing personality, but each sacrifices her own desires and interests to the combined interest of the four. They were accompanied by Miss Alice Margaret Hopkins, a life-time friend.

Their names are Roberta, Mona, Mary and Leola. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Flake Keys, prominent citizens of Hollis who have four other children, besides the quadruplets. They have given their children a high school education and the "Bunch of Keys" is now attending Baylor University at Waco, having just completed their sophomore year. Their intention now is to accept a stage or motion picture offer when they have graduated, capitalize on their quadruplet and retire within two years to lead normal, natural lives.

The sisters have recently celebrated their 20th birthday and so far as is known, no other set of quadruplets has ever lived to that age. Statistics state that once in a million births, quadruplets are born; but only once in uncounted millions do they survive.

Beginning July 10th they plan to make a tour through North Carolina, Tennessee and Mississippi during the remainder of the summer.

The Misses Keys were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Henry during their stay in Crowell. They left Tuesday morning for Paducah for a visit with their maternal grandmother before returning to their home.

FOARD WHEAT HARVEST NEAR HALF FINISHED

Approximately 114,000 bushels of wheat from the 1935 crop had been received at Foard County elevators at Crowell, Foard City and Margaret up to last night. Many farmers are storing wheat in their own granaries and the total amount harvested to the present time is likely between 140,000 and 150,000 bushels.

Present indications are that Foard County's wheat crop for this year will yield about 300,000 bushels or more.

The harvest this week has proceeded at a very rapid rate, weather conditions having been very favorable, except for a light shower yesterday morning that covered most of the county.

The elevators have been experiencing trouble with the green wheat that comes from suckers and it has been necessary for this wheat to be shifted in order that it might become dry enough to be stored. Another week of favorable weather and that portion of the wheat crop that is being combined will be stored.

A greater per cent of the crop this year has been cut and shocked than in any year since 1927, according to a number of grain men. Many threshing machines will be in operation over the county by next week.

It is estimated that about one-third of this year's crop will be threshed instead of combined.

PIONEER SERIOUSLY ILL

The condition of C. B. Garlinghouse, who has been seriously ill for several months, is growing gradually worse. Mr. Garlinghouse has been confined to his home for a number of weeks and is now confined to his bed most of the time.

Mr. Garlinghouse is 91 years of age and he and Mrs. Garlinghouse were among Crowell's earliest citizens.

Construction Nears Completion New Good Creek Bridge

W. Barscer, commissioner of Precinct No. 3, in which the bridge is being constructed. Dirt approaches to the bridge will be completed by the county when the bridge construction work is finished.

Time Lost is Money Lost

It costs money to be sick. You see it directly if your pay envelope is short. You lose out on some important work if you live on a farm or if you are one of the few who are not docked for lost time. You can't afford to show up on the job unless you are feeling fit. The boss wants results—not excuses.

How many times do Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, "That Tired Feeling," That "Morning After" Feeling, Neuralgia, Rheumatic, Sciatic, Muscular or Periodic Pains keep you at home or interfere with your doing a full day's work?

All these troubles are caused or made worse by too much acid in your body. To correct this condition take

ALKA-SELTZER

The New Pain Relieving, Alkalinizing, Effervescent Tablet.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid. Alka-Seltzer is pleasant to take, harmless, non-laxative.

Why don't you try it? Get a drink at your drug store soda fountain for a nickel. Buy a package for home use.

Year's Work Finished by Wardrobe Workers

Achievement days are here again! This time for the women and girls who are completing a year's work on wardrobes.

Among the improvements to be seen this week are those made by Mrs. Jim Cates, wardrobe demonstrator for the Community Club. She has recently torn down a makeshift closet, and built a new one which extends to the ceiling, has five shelves down one side and a storage space above. This is calcimined inside and out in white.

Improvements in a closet which was already built have been made by Mrs. Claude Dodd of the Gambleville Club. She has added and rearranged rods and shelves and added hat and shoe racks.

In the same club Mrs. F. E. Diggs has made similar improvements. She took a closet which was used for storing canned goods and other miscellaneous material, and made a closet for her own use. For this she added extra shelves, made a shoe rack, and papered the closet in white.

Mrs. E. A. Dunagan, class 2 demonstrator for the Gambleville Club remodeled a closet in her work last year, then moved away and left it. This year she has built in a closet from the beginning, making one larger and more conveniently arranged than the other.

Foard Dresser Scarf Winners Announced

Dresser scarfs were judged last week and here are the winners: Anita Traweek of Foard City won first place. Anita's scarf was made of white Indian head. She cut the material to fit the top of the dresser so that when finished about an inch of wood showed on all sides. An inch hem was basted in all around and put in with double hemstitching. The corners were basted in all around and put in with double hemstitching. The corners were mitered to make a neat finish. The judge characterized the scarf as one on which the work was beautifully done and stated that it would still be a pretty scarf ten years from now.

Second place in the judging went to Dorothy Nell Beggs of Vivian. Dorothy Nell's scarf was made of cream colored crash. The hem was neatly whipped in with the corners mitered. For decoration a small design in double hemstitching was done in each corner.

Single hemstitching was used as her scarf decoration by Wanda V. Gamble of Gambleville, winner of third place. Her scarf was made of a light weight Ramona cloth. The three-fourth inch hem was put in with single hemstitching, and the corners mitered.

Honorable mention on the scarfs went to Maxine Flesher, Thalia; Marguerite Lewis, Vivian; and Vivian Collins, Good Creek.

A total of 88 scarfs were made in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Greenless this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Shultz of Vernon and Mrs. Carpenter of Vernon spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Shultz.

Miss Vivian Lawson of Crowell is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. Orville Black.

Misses Mildred and Evelyn Solis attended the singing convention at Ogden Sunday afternoon.

Word has been received here that Herman Shultz of Relingo, formerly of this community, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Shultz, had died. His death was caused from an explosion of gasoline which ignited when he struck a match to light a cigarette. He suffered for two weeks before his death. He leaves his widow and one daughter and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Shultz, of Vernon.

DRESS MADE FROM FEED SACKS WINS CONTEST

A dress made from feed sacks won first place in the girls' dress contest for Dorothy Ree Bell of the Margaret Club. She had made a white suit-skirt and short coat and wore a print blouse with it. The only expense was twenty-five cents for the material for the blouse.

Dorothy Ree first washed and boiled the sacks to remove the lettering, then made the suit. This was the first dress that she had made, but she did all of both the cutting and sewing on it.

In the construction of the suit special attention was called to the seams which were plain, pressed open, and the edges turned back and stitched, making a neat and serviceable finish.

BLACK 4-H CLUB

A gaze needle is the best kind of needle to use in tufting. Black 4-H Club girls learned at their meeting June 21. Miss Holman gave a demonstration on "How to Tuft."

Four members, Miss Holman, and the sponsor, Mrs. Nichols, were present. The next meeting will be July 5.

AYERSVILLE 4-H CLUB

The Ayersville 4-H Club met Wednesday at the home of Frances Tamplin. After a few songs, Miss Holman named some flowers and showed members how tufting was done. Several games were played. The next meeting will be July 3.

WEST RAYLAND H. D. CLUB

The West Rayland H. D. Club met June 11 with Mrs. C. L. Adkins. Miss Holman gave a demonstration on vegetable cooking.

GOOD CREEK H. D. CLUB

A quart of beans cooked in a pressure cooker have more vitamins than a quart cooked in an open kettle, stated Miss Holman at a meeting of the Good Creek H. D. Club with Mrs. A. L. Davis on June 18.

In cooking in an open kettle, the air destroys the vitamins, while they are preserved in the pressure cooker. The greener the bean, that is when they are young and tender, the more vitamins they will have, Miss Holman said.

One visitor, Mrs. Roy Cravy, was present. The program for the next meeting, "God in Nature," will be with Mrs. Glenn Jones.

FOARD CITY H. D. CLUB

"Cry Havoc," by Beverly Nichols, was the book reviewed by Mrs. Hubert Brown of Crowell at the club house on Tuesday, June 18, at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Blake McDaniel was leader of the program, the theme being, "Peace."

Mrs. Lewis Sloan ably discussed "Who Wants War?" by Bishop Edgar Blake.

"Motorpepeca" was the title of an interesting contest given by Mrs. J. M. Glover. When properly re-arranged this title read, "Promote Peace" and the discussion Mrs. Glover gave in connection with the contest brought out the idea of beginning in our own hearts and building, step by step, through the home, the church, school, community, county, and nation, that making peace a reality is possible.

Besides the members of club, three visitors enjoyed Bell and Hubert Brown of Crowell and Mrs. Earl Norman.

The next meeting will be home of the wardrobe demonstrator, Mrs. Blake McDaniel, on day, July 2.

The hour for meeting was officially changed from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. for the long summer days.

The items below were taken in whole or in part from the issues of The News of June 17-24, July 1, 1910.

Crowell, Texas, June 27, 1935

THE NEWS' BIRTHDAY

With this issue The Foard County News begins its forty-fifth year of continuous publication.

In beginning the new year we again pledge our best efforts to give Foard County a good weekly newspaper. Whatever success that has been attained so far has been made possible by the splendid co-operation we have received from the business men and citizens of our county.

According to information furnished us by Geo. P. Brown of McKinney, Mrs. J. L. Harger, wife of the first editor of The News, is now living near Plano in Collin County. In his letter to The News, Mr. Brown, brother of Mrs. J. M. Allee, and a teacher in the Crowell school when the present editor started to school, expressed his gratification that The News had won the Belo cup for 1935.

Too many appear to be ambitious to become efficiency experts. Any person who maintains a high standard of efficiency in his work, whether he is an employer or employe, and is courteous and loyal to his customers, will no doubt be a success in his particular line of work.

Persons Engaged in Oil Lease Selling, Buying Must Qualify

"I own a piece of royalty near an oil field. I want to sell this interest," one man recently inquired of the Secretary of State. "I understand that oil and gas leases and royalty interests are classified as Securities under Texas' new Securities Law. Will I have to register and get a license before I can sell this interest?"

In answering the question the Secretary of State pointed out that isolated transactions are exempt under the terms of the law. But if a person is engaged in the business of buying and selling oil leases, royalty or other such interests, he must qualify as a dealer and in some cases as an issuer of securities. The lease "peddler" must qualify.

In a single deal, it is not necessary to qualify under the Texas law.

The same applies to vendor's lien notes and other forms of commercial paper. However, if a person makes a practice of selling commercial paper, the transaction is not an isolated case and that person must qualify under the law. The simple rule is—Single and individual transactions are exempt. Multiple transactions are not.

Texas Industrial Survey Plans Are Completed by Gov.

Austin, June 25.—Governor James V. Allred announced this week completion of plans for a far-reaching industrial survey designed to provide jobs, attract outside capital into Texas and rehabilitate dormant and ruined industries.

The governor revealed that Dudley P. South of Houston, an industrial engineer of exceptional training had already done several weeks' of work in determining the feasibility and possibilities of the survey.

Mr. South, a graduate of Rice Institute and Columbia University, close associate of Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, will head the survey.

Governor Allred pointed out that an industrial survey of Texas, with particular reference to getting men and women off public relief rolls into gainful private occupation, had been recommended by the Democratic Party in its convention last September.

"Inauguration of the Texas Industrial Survey," the Governor said, "with Dudley P. South as director, offers almost unlimited possibilities for co-ordinating public and private initiative to the end that jobs for the jobless will be provided and the entire industrial welfare of the state be promoted."

"We have already received assurances of co-operation from leading civic organizations, including chambers of commerce throughout the state, the University of Texas and Southern Methodist University, also from many public-spirited citizens. An advisory council composed of prominent commercial and industrial leaders of Texas, will be announced shortly. Also, a co-ordination committee, composed of several men who have worked with Mr. South in the preliminary surveys and will assist him in furthering the work."

The governor released a statement from Mr. South briefly outlining objectives of the survey as follows: "The function of this survey is to make available for all business enterprises such data as will enable them to expand their work, undertake new development, hire more men, and judiciously invest more capital."

"There are many types of manufacturing which require little investment and use considerable hand labor. We are beginning our survey with this type in the foreground."

"There are also many major industries outside of Texas which do not have important branches in the state and which could profitably establish such branches. We hope to furnish them with data that will convince them of the wisdom of coming here."

"The survey will be entirely impartial with respect to the different cities and sections of the state and will make its findings available to all. It invites the co-operation of all institutions which have been doing this sort of work on a local or regional scale; and we have already received assurance of help from many of these."

"National and world opportunities for Texas business enterprises will be studied. We hope to increase the scope of the survey and this increase will come steadily if we receive the co-operation we have been encouraged to expect."

Mr. South is a veteran of the world war, having served with the signal corps in the Meuse-Argonne, St. Mihiel and other offensives. He is married and has two children.

Typhoid Danger Is Increased by Floods

Austin, Texas, June 27.—Recent floods may be responsible for an epidemic of typhoid fever, declares Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. Flood conditions have prevailed over most of the State and unless the utmost precautions are observed to prevent this disease the monetary loss from illness may equal the property loss.

Typhoid fever is often called a "filth-borne" disease. It can only grow into epidemic proportions under conditions which are insanitary. A typhoid epidemic means that water, milk, or food have been contaminated with germs from the body discharges of a patient or carrier. Contamination of milk or food by flies is favored by a lack of sanitation.

The prevention of typhoid fever is peculiarly a matter of community responsibility. In cities large and small most urgent control measures are those providing for (1) proper disposal of human excreta through sewage disposal plants and toilets of sanitary type; (2) safe public and well water supplies; (3) extermination of flies; (4) healthy food handlers; (5) supervision of disease carriers and (6) public milk supplies of high quality with the added safeguard of careful pasteurization.

Inoculations with vaccine increase individual resistance to typhoid fever. Such treatments are advised for exposed persons and those who, through travel or change of residence are subject to varied water, food and milk supplies. For the rank and file of our population, reduction of deaths and sickness from preventable disease like typhoid fever is largely dependent upon carrying out the six above mentioned measures.

Texas sold a portion of five states—Oklahoma, Kansas, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, covering 100,000 square miles of land to the United States government for $10,000,000.

CROWELL NINE ADDS SEVENTH STRAIGHT WIN

Crowell's Cotton Belt League baseball team continued its winning ways by defeating Truscott 20 to 14 here Sunday afternoon. This made the sixth consecutive Cotton Belt win and the seventh straight victory for the local nine this season.

Crowell piled up 12 runs from 11 hits in the third inning, five runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth. Truscott scored nine times when the Crowell infield went to pieces in the seventh inning. Dink Russell relieved Rasberry and Graves relieved Russell before the Truscott rally was finally checked.

Graves, Sloan, Ashford and Drabek were the heavy hitters for Crowell and C. Myers, B. Myers, and W. Myers led in hitting for Truscott.

New Law Answers Security Question

What is a security? Under the new Texas law regulating the sale of securities, the term includes any form of stocks, bonds, mortgage certificates, any form of commercial paper, any certificate in or under a profit sharing or participation agreement, lease or royalty interest in an oil, gas or mining property. In addition there are many lesser known forms of securities.

The Texas Securities law which replaced the old Blue Sky law, on May 23, 1935, is broad in its definitions of what constitutes a security, according to Secretary

FARM BOYS' FUTURE

For a good many years various writers have seemed to be worried because farm boys leave the farms to seek their fortunes in the towns and cities, as if the farm boy had not the same right to choose his career as other boys.

There would be as much logic in asserting that the son of a coal miner, for instance, should never aspire to be anything but a coal miner.

Of course, if a farm boy has no ambition to acquire an education, or no desire to enter business or a profession, or is not willing to apply himself to learning a skilled trade, he had better stay on the farm. Without some sort of practical education he would be worse off in a town or city than in the country, and would probably have to accept the lot of a common laborer.

But for the intelligent and energetic farm boy who can obtain an education it can not be denied that the towns and cities afford wider opportunities. In fact, many of the leaders in every field of endeavor came originally from humble farm homes.

While most of the trades and professions are crowded today, farming is also overdone. More farm products are produced than can be marketed at a profit over the cost of production.

Whenever the demand equals the supply we shall see better prices for agricultural products, and we shall also see people, young and old, going back to the farms. But until that time comes the farm boy should be encouraged to enter any vocation for which his talents and education fit him.

It may be added that there are right now excellent opportunities on the farms of the country for boys who will study and apply modern agricultural methods, but the future holds little in store for the indolent and shiftless, on the farm or anywhere else.

State Gerald C. Mann.

Before purchasing any form of security, such as those named above, the buyer should determine if the person doing the selling has registered with the Secretary of State. Emphasis is placed on the fact that in no case does the State guarantee or endorse any security.

But registration is not the extent of responsibility on the part of the seller. Under the law he may be held accountable for representations as to fact made in the sale of a security.

WOOD WITHOUT WARP

A new process of treating wood, developed by the Forest Service, is said to be the answer to the age-old demand by craftsmen for a better working material. Wood treated by the new process will not warp or shrink.

While the new process has not yet been applied on a commercial scale, it is believed that this may come soon. In that case an entirely new standard may be developed for high-grade wood products.

Sporting goods such as tennis rackets and golf clubs, says the Forest Service, would be free from the hazards of warping; parquet floors would take on new life, smoothness, and permanent polish; cabinets, panels, and table tops would stay for years in "new" condition—all the while preserving a natural finish to reveal the beauty of the wood grain.

Attention!

ALL MEMBERS OF WOMACK BROS. BURIAL ASS'N.

You will receive a letter by July first, telling you that Womack Brothers Burial Association was compelled by a new law just passed, to cease business by July first or re-organize, by forming a regular Insurance Co. ourselves or to merge with a reputable company already doing business. We absolutely had no option in the matter.

Read all information in those papers which will come to you in that letter mentioned above. We have acted so as to protect you and automatically incorporated you into a Vernon company just as you are, as to age, name, etc., in every particular—except rates. All rates are raised (By Law) some, but the older ones will be higher—yet it will be absolutely the very best and very lowest rate at any age you will be able to get at all.

Although the new law forced us to quit, etc., Womack Brothers began to try to secure for its faithful and worthy members—if they would accept it—good, equitable and safe insurance. We have done just that. Every member in good standing at 6 p. m., June first, was placed in the Vernon Mutual Aid Co. at 12 o'clock, noon, today, June 26, 1935. You are accepted just as you are—but if you fail to pay their first assessment call, you will lose all this great advantage, and you may not be able to be renewed at all—so don't drop it.

We will return all unused advance assessments paid to us.

Christian Science Services
"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 30.
The Golden Text is: "Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ" (Revelation 12:10.)
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions" (Psalms 107:20.)
The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Acquaintance with the original texts, and willingness to give up human beliefs... open the way for Christian Science to be understood, and make the Bible the chart of life, where the buoy and healing currents of Truth are pointed out. Divine Science derives its sanction from the Bible, and the divine origin of Science is demonstrated through the hold influence of Truth in healing sickness and sin" (pages 24 and 146.)

Lesson for June 30: Romans 14:13-21.
Golden Text: Romans 14:21.
As this is a temperance lesson, it affords an opportunity to explore one of the most vital aspects of the liquor problem, the effect of moderate drinking on the muscular reactions of the motorist.
Last year 36,000 persons were killed, and nearly a million injured in automobile accidents. These appalling figures establish a new record for slaughter on our highways. What is the relation of alcohol to this dreadful blot on our national escutcheon? The figures on arrests for drunken driving give an illuminating answer.
During the period from January through October, 1934, as compared with the same months of 1933, such arrests increased 80 per cent in Duluth, 100 per cent in Rochester, N. Y., and 90 per cent in Erie, Pa., 15 per cent in Chicago, and 25 per cent in Milwaukee.
And what about accidents involving drunken drivers? For the same period Buffalo registered an increase of 55 per cent, and Chicago an increase of 330 per cent in the number of fatal automobile accidents in which intoxicated drivers figured. And these startling figures do not tell the whole story, for there is much evidence indicative of a decided under-reporting of alcohol cases.
Now we must bear in mind, in the analysis of this black showing, that the heavy drinker is not the real menace on the road, but the moderate imbibor. Not the drunk driver, but rather the drinking driver presents such a serious traffic problem. Elaborate tests demonstrate conclusively that even tiny quantities of alcohol have a measurable effect upon the human machine.

It is obvious, then, that booze and gasoline do not mix. A motor age like ours calls loudly for total abstinence. Drinking, even in slight amounts, is a reprehensible practice for all who drive cars. Our autos should be handled only by those who are 100 per cent sober.

Through the American principle of private initiative in business, electric rate reductions have been continued along with improvement in service. According to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, electric service costs for the United States as a whole are now 39% lower while the cost of living now is 38% higher than in 1913.
According to the National Industrial Conference Board, food is now 25% higher than 1933, clothing 22% higher, and rent 8% higher. Total taxes, including the numerous Federal taxes the consumers pay indirectly, have increased at an alarming rate and for the average family now amount to more than ten times the cost of electric service.

Net average rate for all the 160 communities served by the West Texas Utilities Company is today more than 60% below that of 1923.

HOSTILE VALLEY

By Ben Ames Williams

PROLOGUE

Will Bissell's store in Fraternity was not only a store; but also a social center and a clearing-house for news of the country. After supper, a dozen or a score of men are likely to drop in for the mail, for a few dry cigarettes, or for to listen and to the chance to listen and to the chance to be listened to. Jim Saladine came in from his farm on the ridge one spring evening and told the McAusland there he and Gay Hunt, and Luke Hills, and others, too. He was short and straight and vigorous despite his seventy years, speaking when Saladine came speaking, as he was apt to in spring, of fish and fishing. He had Jim with a nod, and finished that he had been saying. "You hear many a tale of big trout from out there," he confessed grudgingly enough. "But I'd eat a small trout anyway; I can catch a good mess in the slow brooks, along toward dark time."

Gay Hunt retorted with a dejected chuckle: "Just the same, something funny about it, you never went out there, you fish the way you do."

Saladine asked curiously: "Where, Gay?" He was a father of the deer and of the trout and he liked trout as well as any man.

Gay's brook, out in Hostile Valley, explained. He produced this word to rhyme with "hostile" with a long vowel in the syllable. "Bart Carey was a while ago; claimed that he was staying at his place caught two-pounders one afternoon week."

How a two-pound trout is, for the time about Fraternity, unusual; to catch three such monsters in a single day was without precedent. Saladine was interested, but not immediately credulous. "I've heard such tales," he admitted. "But I dunno. This Carey, like a man to tell the truth."

"How him, don't you?" Gay asked. "Lives right there at Bart's bridge. He paused to take care, folks that come for the trout. After the old man died, and his brother had a row and another pulled out, Bart's sister herself here a year ago."

Saladine confessed, "I never went out to Hostile Valley." He died faintly. "Matter of fact, Bart kind of dodged the place, like the name of it. I don't know as I ever see it."

Saladine confessed, "I never went out to Hostile Valley." He died faintly. "Matter of fact, Bart kind of dodged the place, like the name of it. I don't know as I ever see it."

Others nodded understandingly. This Hostile Valley had an ill repute. Hidden away in hills somewhat north and west of Fraternity, it was a deep gorge between two ridges, and the slopes bold and black with spruce and they had a trick of being low clouds and squeezing out of moisture, so that rain fell there and farms did not prosper. The very aspect of the place was somehow gloomy forbidding.

McAusland said now: "I've been there once. It's an awful place. Roads are bad and there's a lot of down timber along the brook, enough to drive you crazy with mosquitoes and black flies awful. Once was enough for me."

Hunt assented: "Me, I liked the sound of it." There in fact a harsh asperity in the name, conjuring a picture of a countryside inhabited by dour silent folk who looked askance at a stranger. "How come it called that in the beginning?"

He knew the answer to this question, as he was apt to know the ancient lore of these hills. "They had a kind of a war going on out there. They fit and there wa'n't ever a word from Hostile Valley drafted to the South, was they?" Gay asked.

"Wa'n't that, so much," Chet retorted. "It was more that they out there, you can't ever get 'em. Old Enoch Ferrin riled 'em got their backs up."

He continued: "Enoch was a boss con around there then, heard my father tell it. He had a farm on the ridge this side, and four sons and one of 'em gone to South Carolina and he'd down there. When the war came, Enoch wrote him to come and this son—his name was Saladine—wouldn't do it. So Enoch got to go hunt up this brother and kill him for a company, out there in the South. But he was kind of bullheaded about it, so folks got their backs up and wouldn't go for him nobody. So they had a rough time of it for a while."

Chet went out to Jim's car together and in the car started up the hill. Chet's farm was on the shoulder of the Ridge, where two roads forked; and Jim stopped to let the other man down. "You say you never fished Carey's brook only that once?" he asked then.

"Once was plenty," Chet replied. "Do anything?"

Chet shook his head. "A few small ones. It's a chancy brook," he explained. He added honestly: "It's full of big trout, though, in the deep holes and down through the bog, if a man could get at them."

"Say we try it some day," Saladine proposed.

"Sho," Chet protested, "what's the sense in going so far when you can get plenty nearer home? The roads is awful."

Jim chuckled. "This old car is used to bad roads, Chet. I'm a mind to go. I'd like to have a look at that brook. You come along?"

But Chet would not; and Saladine's curiosity was stimulated by the other's attitude. Chet was not a fearful man, nor given to imaginings; yet it was obvious that he had a lively distaste for this hidden valley with the harsh name. When the two men said good night, and Jim drove on up the hill, his intent was by Chet's very reluctance crystallized.

And two or three days later, when rain and the promise of more rain made farm work a tedious business of turning water-soaked clods which weighed heavily upon the plow, he took the opportunity thus afforded. "I'll be back by dark on a little after," he told Mrs. Saladine when he set out. "I don't aim to do much only look over the brook and try a few holes."

But it would be long after dark before he came home, and many things would happen in the intervening hours. The past is a book which any man may read, but it is impossible to look ahead with certainty through thirty seconds' span. It may be as well that this is so; foreknowledge might so often daunt and dismay the stoutest man, and futile dread of the inescapable paralyze the energies of human kind. Saladine often afterward asked himself, if he had known what a sequence of events his entrance into the Valley was to set in motion, he would have gone there that day; and he could find no certain answer.

But he set out with no misgivings. It had rained the day before, and in the night a sharp torrential downpour. The road from his farm to the village was rutted and washed away along the borders, and mud splashed merrily under his wheels. Chains, Jim decided, might be useful; and he stopped at the garage in North Fraternity to buy a pair.

Lon Pride, the garage man, had news to relate. "Hear about the murder out at Liberty?" he asked, with unction. Jim had not heard, and Lon said: "Old man Mayhew lived on the road to Mac's corner, they found him dead this morning with his head beat in. They've sent for the sheriff."

Jim knew Sheriff Sohler, but not Old Man Mayhew. Nevertheless he was tempted to turn that way. In the end, he put this temptation aside, but he would be glad to know where the sheriff could be found, before this day was done.

The chains adjusted, he went on; and there was a prickling excitement, a deep sense of adventure, in him as he drove. On the surface, he went to fish and nothing more; yet this was not a good fishing day. The brooks were bank-deep with boily water; the sky was overcast, and surly clouds went scurrying as though on sinister errands. The roads he followed were narrow and rocky and rutted, and deep woods after a while pressed close on either hand, so that sometimes the dripping branches met over the car.

He had no clear and certain notion of the proper route, knew only in a general fashion where the Valley lay, and steered as it were by compass now. He meant to come to Carey's bridge, at the upper end of the Valley, and fish downstream; so at crossroads or at forks, he took what seemed the most promising turn, and once or twice he passed abandoned farms, with the glass broken in the windows, so that the empty rooms looked out at him with hollow eye sockets.

By and by he arrived at a farm where a man had just felled a knotted old beech across the road, blocking the way; and he pulled up to ask directions. The farmer took off his hat and scratched his head.

"You're going all right," he said, "if you want to come to Carey's. Course, this here is the hardest way. Bart don't ever come out this way. Will Ferrin, he does, though. It's the hardest for him."

Saladine glanced toward the felled tree. "Looks like I might have trouble getting past that there," he suggested.

The farmer grinned. "There's worse places than that," he said. "There's places that's gullied out something scandalous. What do you want to go in there for, anyway?"

Jim said: "Fishing."

The other nodded with a mild mirth in his dry eye. "So they all say," he commented in a sardonic tone. "But I guess full as many stop at Ferrin's as go on to Carey's."

Saladine understood the allusion. He had heard tales enough of this woman who was wife to Will Ferrin. Legend painted her as a figure at once glamorous and sinister, seductive and heartless, enticing and without scruple. Her reputation had spread for miles across the countryside; and he thought this man's present incredulity not surprising. He was conscious of some frank curiosity on his own account to see such a woman; wondered whether their paths would cross today.

But just now he listened to the other man's directions, and drove on. The road was miserable. The car, laboring in low gear, ascended steadily, till through a gap in the woods on the right Saladine saw low lands, and knew that he was well up on the slope of the barrier ridge. So he came at last to its crest, and followed that high land for a space, and in a sort of saddle in the ridge he found another road turning to the left, in the direction in which he wished to go.

This was a road by all the signs not much used, with ruts unmarked by the tread of any recent tire, and last year's grass dead between the ruts, and boulders that had been heaved upward by the frost. Yet it was beyond doubt the proper road, and Saladine turned into it without hesitation.

After a few rods, however, he checked the car; for the road emerged upon a naked ledge, beyond which it dipped steeply downward. From this ledge it was possible to see a sweep of the Valley far below.

Saladine quietly appraised this outlook; but there was not much to see. Directly across from him, two miles or so away, another ridge rose like a wall. To his right, the Valley seemed too narrow, pinched between converging ranges of hills. To the left it opened out in some degree; yet there was nothing to see save the blanket of forest, hardwood and evergreen.

Above him, the clouds scurried low and menacing; and they were like a sodden blanket across the Valley. He could discover no least sign of habitation anywhere; nothing save this sweeping forest carpet, the evergreens sodden from last night's rain, the hardwoods still half naked, thinly clad in their just springing leaves.

He saw a solitary crow, silent, flying on swift-beating wings as bird even this dark, ill-omened bird only crossed the Valley because it must, and was in haste to come to a pleasant scene.

And Saladine was not cold; yet he shivered. Then he laughed at his own uneasiness, and loosed the brake, and between a double screen

Washington Letter

(By W. D. McFARLANE, M. C.)

Taxes

Taxes, government finances, and the redistribution of wealth have been holding the center of the stage at Washington during the past week. Monday, June 17th, the House passed by a vote of 247 to 117 the bill extending the so-called nuisance taxes. These extended taxes are estimated to probably bring the Treasury additional receipts during the next year of approximately $500,000,000. The major revenue producers of these taxes are automobiles, trucks, accessories and fuel and oil for these, and the taxes on telegrams and phone calls, and also the increases in postal rates. The Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee stated that while undoubtedly these taxes should be repealed when the Treasury could bear the loss of these additional receipts, at the present time there was no choice except their extension. He did however, state further that this measure was the only general tax legislation planned at this session.

Chairman Doughton was referring to the increases in inheritance and gift taxes proposed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Whether this attitude still persists is highly questionable now for late in the afternoon of Wednesday, June 19th, the President, in a surprise tax measure, requested the enactment of not only these increases in gift and inheritances taxes but also increases in the tax on incomes in the higher brackets. Basing his requests on the desirability of a more equitable distribution of the national income, the President made three suggestions. First a recommendation for the increased tax on inheritances and gifts which would be applied to the reduction of the national debt. Second, restriction and limitation of excessively high personal incomes, particularly those in excess of $1,000,000. Third, a graduated income tax on the income of corporations ranging from 10% for small companies to 16 2/3% for the largest corporations. Besides the portion of the message dealing with taxes the President recommended to Congress the following long-time objectives: A constitutional amendment to permit the taxation of all subsequently issued securities of a nature that are now exempt. Next, elimination of all unnecessary holding companies in all lines of business. This latter suggestion seems to be the result of the failure of the House to act promptly and decisively on the Wheeler-Rayburn Bill which the President had advocated. In fact, the President seems to have declared a war "to-the-death" on all holding companies.

House and Senate leaders were in a quandary as to whether or not the President wanted these proposals put into legislation at this session. Most of the Progressives advocated immediate action declaring their belief that such was the President's desire. However, the White House rather indefinitely indicated that the matter was now up to Capitol Hill. The writer advocated similar tax measures in his speech on May 17. Senator LaFollette made a proposal to the Senate Finance Committee to place a rider to the nuisance tax bill but this was rejected Thursday. LaFollette then started a petition to hold Congress in session and enact the proposals into law. At a late hour Friday he had secured 22 signers. A similar petition will be started in the House.

Tuesday, the Merchant Marine Bill comes before the House to clarify the policy of the government towards the establishment and subsidization of the U. S. Merchant Marine. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday have been assigned either to the T. V. A. legislation or to the Wheeler-Rayburn Bill which the subcommittee of the Interstate Commerce has been delaying and deleting.

Drive far—drive fast —without a worry!

With Conoco Germ Processed Oil in your crankcase, you KNOW the strain won't hurt your motor!

Tests prove this new alloyed oil has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than plain mineral oils and resists heat better!

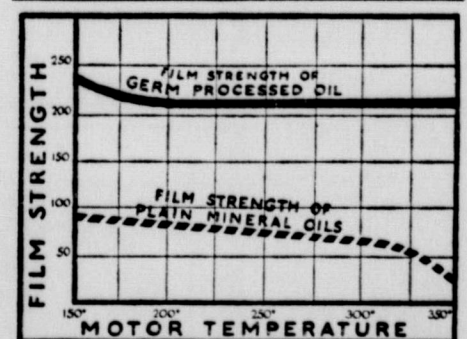

On July 4th or week-end and vacation trips, you'll want to drive far and get there in a hurry. And you don't want that nagging worry of "I wonder if this speed and heat will hurt anything in my motor."

You can't always be sure when you use plain mineral oils, for they have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleansing processes have even less. Moreover, as motor heat goes up, these oils rapidly lose film strength.

Film strength is the load-carrying ability of an oil, the quality that keeps bearings and cylinders from wearing out. Lack of film strength results in costly damage.

You can drive without a worry when you use Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! It has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than any plain mineral oil. Heat does not lessen this advantage.*

Supervised road tests—over good and bad roads, at low and high speeds, in all kinds of weather—give practical proof that Germ Processed Oil protects motors better.

CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL

PLAIN MINERAL OILS

*HERE'S THE PROOF

Note that as heat increases, the plain mineral oils continue to lose film strength, but that above 225° (Minimum Summer crankcase temperature) Germ Processed oil's film strength is not affected by heat. Tests made with Timken machine.

In every test, gravimetric measurement of motor bearings showed that Germ Processed Oil prevented wear far better than plain mineral oils. Tested in a fleet of cars equipped with the new alloy-metal bearings used in many 1935 cars, a high-quality plain mineral oil permitted 45% more wear on connecting rod bearings than did Germ Processed Oil.

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is the first alloyed oil—alloyed, much as metals are, by adding concentrated oily essence to highly refined oil. It is the only oil made by the Germ Process. It is the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away!

Say "O. K.—Drain"—fill with Germ Processed Oil. Drive far—drive fast—without a worry!

Mrs. D. M. Shultz Honored on 76th Birthday Sunday

The 76th birthday of Mrs. D. M. Shultz was celebrated at the Shultz home Sunday afternoon. More than one hundred guests joined in good wishes and birthday greetings to Mrs. Shultz.

The party was planned as a surprise to the honoree and it was almost completely so.

A program consisting of songs, readings, musical numbers and talks, with "mother" the theme of most of them, was given in the large, shady yard where the guests were seated. Mrs. Shultz's daughter, Mrs. C. D. Haney, was in charge of the program.

Many pretty and useful gifts were received by Mrs. Shultz and these were opened where everyone could see and enjoy them with her. At the close of the program, punch and cake were served to the large crowd of friends. The birthday cake was pink with decorations of pink and blue and the word "Mother" written on top. It was cut and served, also.

It has become a custom in the Shultz family to celebrate the birthdays of both the mother and father each year.

About Women

The Rev. Helen M. Graham was one of five elders recently ordained to the Methodist ministry in New York City. She is said to be the city's first woman to hold full privileges in the Methodist ministry.

Mrs. E. Newman, wife of an unemployed truck driver, of Newcastle, England, has given birth to their 19th baby at the age of six years of age.

Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., a descendant of pioneer families and granddaughter of the last tribal chief of the Delaware Indians, has been elected president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Gertrude Baker McEvoy of Bayside, L. I., is winner of the first woman's national amateur pocket billiard championship.

Miss Frances Taylor recently became the first woman officer among Manhattan savings banks.

Grandma Anna L. Sher of Chicago, who has been in the police department 18 years, was admitted to the bar in 1926, and handles a gun like a man.

RARE U. S. MONEY

In a collection owned by a New York bank is the most complete assortment of rare money in the world, which visitors are permitted to see. A few of the rarest United States issues may be mentioned.

There is a silver dollar of 1804, only 14 of which are now in existence. It is said that the rest of those minted that year went down with a ship bound for China and lost in a storm.

Another oddity is the Pine Tree shilling. Although this coin was minted for 30 years the date 1652 is on all of them. There are paper bills issued in the early days by various states which were printed in two languages; for example, Louisiana issued bills printed in English and French, and Pennsylvania in English and German.

Various specimens of local scrip, issued during emergencies, are also shown, as well as greenbacks issued by banks between 1820 and 1860, also specimens of Confederate money.

In the early days, American Indians highly valued red woodpecker sculps, which were used as money. Two cancelled checks issued by Henry Ford are shown—one for one cent, the other for $146,000,000. There is also the special check designed for the payment of Lindbergh's $25,000 Atlantic flight prize money, and a draft executed in Braille, signed by Helen Keller.

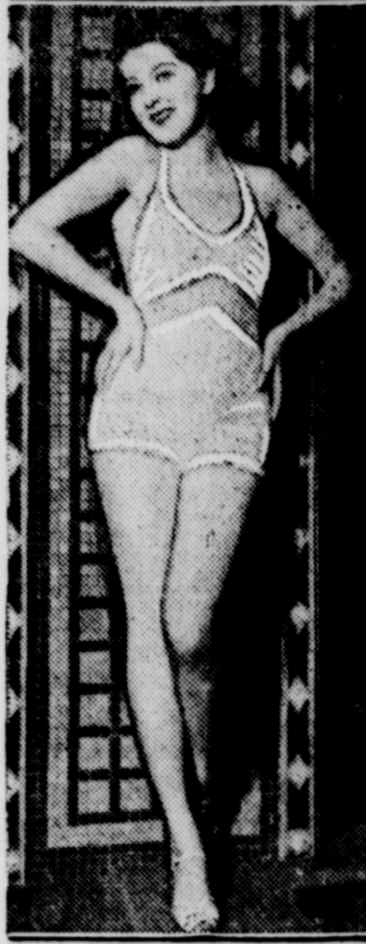

Altogether there are about 40,000 pieces in the collection, owned by the Chase National Bank, which is visited by some 15,000 persons every year.

INTO THE DEPTHS

Less than 10 years ago, an oil operator read a paper before the American Petroleum Institute in which he described the deepest well in the world at that time. It was in a California oil field and had been completed as a successful producer at a depth of 7,591 feet.

Now every well in the Kettleman field in the same state is deeper than the record well of 10 years ago. Today the deepest well that is really producing oil is in Caddo County, Okla., and is 11,230 feet in depth.

The deepest hole in the world, however, is in West Texas. It was started in March, 1933, and is still being drilled. At last report it had reached the unprecedented depth of 12,385 feet.

Such deep drilling is very expensive, and there is never any assurance that oil will be found. John F. Dodge, noted professor of petroleum engineering, estimates that a well-planned 10,000-foot well costs between $300,000 and $350,000.

It is rather well known that more money has been spent in drilling for oil than the total value of all the oil ever recovered. In the oil business every well is a gamble. Much is heard of the gushers that are brought in by the lucky ones, but the losses of those who drill dry holes do not make sensational news.

Chevrolet Dealers Endorse Newspaper Ads as Best Media

Seventy-four of Chevrolet's leading dealers, who together accounted for the sales of 38,116 new cars and trucks last year, attending a two-day conference at Detroit on sales and advertising plans for the remainder of 1935, went on record as unanimously endorsing the Chevrolet Motor Company's decision, announced at the closing session, to retain the newspaper as the backbone of the company's advertising media.

The announcement that Chevrolet intended to adhere to this time-tried policy was made by C. P. Fiske, advertising manager, who spoke in enthusiastic terms of the results the company has obtained through newspaper advertising, in which it has long been a conspicuous leader.

"We are constantly on the lookout for any means of making our appeal to the public more effective," said Mr. Fiske. "But up to date we have found nothing to compare with the newspaper as the 'main highway' for our advertising expenditure."

The day's sessions were in the nature of round-table discussions, and the subject was referred to the dealers for expressions of opinion. At the close of the discussion, which was strongly in support of the plan, the dealers voted their unanimous endorsement.

The conference, held under the supervision of William E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, sought to obtain free interchange of ideas on the mutual problems of the company and its dealers. Several round-table discussions were on the program, and dealers were invited to offer constructive suggestions on advertising and other subjects relating to their business. Several suggestions made at a previous conference of the same type were adopted with excellent results, and the cementing of dealer-factory relations, made possible through the conference, more than justified the undertaking, in the opinion of Chevrolet officials.

While the meeting was termed a "dealers' advertising conference," its scope was wider than that name would imply, Mr. Holler explained. The sessions touched upon every phase of Chevrolet dealer activity—new cars and trucks, used cars, parts, accessories, service, accounting and business management, and financing.

Representatives of each Chevrolet department outlined for the group of dealers the company's plans for the summer, so that when the dealers left Detroit they took with them a complete picture of what is in prospect.

Florida is not likely to develop a big sugar beet crop, for the soils in few parts of the state are suitable.

Boys and Girls

Miss Tommie Peck of Florence, Ala., was recently chosen as the "Muscle Shoals" in a beauty competition in which 59 girls participated.

Ronnie Hinkle, 16 months old of Fairview, Pa., who suffered a broken neck when he fell from his father's truck about a month ago, is now able to play outdoors, though still wearing a plaster cast.

Beatrice Frear, 16-year-old school junior of Evanston, Ill., recently won a two-month trip to Europe in a competitive contest on the League of Nations.

Muriel Carson, 10, New York City, police officer's daughter, inherited a dollar in the Irish hospital lottery stakes drawing at Dublin and received word she won $30,000.

At the age of 15, Claud Paine, a grocer's son of Paddington, England, is a brilliant organizer.

Sixteen-year-old Helen Maltby of Oroville, Calif., who averaged 100 words per minute for one hour, believes she is the world's fastest typist.

"I agree with you; your wish is impossible," said Judge Henry Cleveland, in granting Henry Frey a divorce.
