Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

- (1) Cheap tobaccos.
- (2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
- (3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidior and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

(B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection. (D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory Report No. 150473-Jun 12 1931

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition.

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced. We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.

Sparks Poultry—

There are now around two hundred White Leghorn hens on the place, whose eggs average about twenty-six ounces to the dozen. Every egg produced on the farm is weighed separately on special scales for this purpose.

In the efforts to build up a first class breeding plant the incubator capacity on the farm is now being increased from 400 to 1,600 and construction is being started on a modern new incubator house. Mrs. Sparks hopes to increase her flock eventually to 1,500 pedigree trap-nested hens. She expects to add over one hundred pullets this year. Every male bird on the place comes from hens with records of over 300 eggs per year. A number of the cockerels are from hens of 335-egg records.

The Sparks intend to enter their chickens in official egg-laying contests next year and now have eggs in incubation for the contest pullets.

Every detail about the poultry business is watched carefully by Mr. and Mrs. Sparks. There are about six poultry houses on the farm and these are scattered over a considerable area. The colony houses are moved every two weeks to prevent disease and insects from getting a start.

Warm drinking water is provided for the chickens during the colder weather through the use of automatic water heaters.

A number of 300-egg hens are expected on the farm. Most of the pullets are trapping an average of better than 22 eggs per month. One pen of 20 hens averaged 22 eggs each month even in the past November. One pullet on the place that is not quite six months old has laid 103 eggs in the past four months. From the day that this pullet laid its first egg, she laid 42 eggs in as many days.

In spite of the present low price of eggs Mrs. Sparks is not discouraged and is building up a poultry flock that will certainly pay a good profit when better times return.

EDGAR ALLAN POE

Theme of Week (By Bonnie Cogdell—Junior)

Poe is a man whom all people love his tales, if not for the man. One first thinks of Poe, he thinks of his horrible tales, but it is not all he wrote, for his poems are stories of beautiful women and beautiful characters are far more interesting and contain more life in them. Poe wrote of beautiful women only because he loved dead wife so much, and she was first upon his mind. Poe had character which many people admire. He loved mystery. Poe made himself what he was in the literary world. He had no training for the kind he chose to be his own. Time not diminished the worth of his first work. His works will live for years.

Poe loved melody; therefore he wrote poems for the melody in them. He wrote poems for a worthy purpose—to make people more intelligent. Poe was always the same in poems. Poe wrote for and to give pleasure alone. Poe is admired for choice of words, for he chose them for their sound and not for their meaning.

Poe's tales reflect the life he lived. His tales were sought out and read more than the best authors, because people loved his type. He wrote the kind of tales that we like to read. Poe is loved and admired for years.

his ability to write the tales he has written. He wrote the tales because he loved to write them. Many of the best writers hold him up as their example. He loved to leave an impression. He certainly succeeded, for all of his works have a single impression. His life caused him to write the wonderful tales that he did. In glancing at his work, we might think it a "mess," but upon close examination it proves to be a wonderful specimen of great achievement.

Poe believed life to be what one made it. He chose to make his a one of horror and mystery. He believed in writing as one felt. His life of unhappiness and trouble is clearly seen in his poems and tales. As he sought to live a life of trouble, he wrote about the unhappiness and trouble of others. If one first looks at Poe's life, then his works, they will appreciate his works and him far more.

TO THE WILDCATS

Why feel downhearted over the game results, boys? Such are the little things in life. Why not play Pollyanna's "glad game" and be glad that it wasn't any worse? Don't ever think the people of Crowell are ashamed of you, because they are not; they are exceedingly proud of you. To show you how we feel—here's three rabs for the best boys yet! Rah! Rah! Rah! Wildcats! And of course 3 for Nocona—Rah! Rah! Rah! Indians!

Let's hope that Nocona goes completely through State—and say, are we downhearted? No, no, no!

IN THE HALLS

The English Profs. will be surprised to learn the literary tastes of some of the big athletes run so high. Todd was seen reading the "Scribners Magazine" and he was vastly enjoying the thing he was reading—something about a place to hang one's hat.

After Crowell met their Waterloo with Nocona at Wichita Falls, every one is back in his place again. Kathryn Crowell back to telling jokes, Evelyn and Guy back to talking in the halls even though Mr. Graves is still telling them to get out of the hall.

Whenever we hear any of the students singing, "You're Driving Me Crazy," we immediately know they are struggling with their chemistry.

Mr. Todd: Ralph, what do you have to say about that writing on your cuff?
Ralph: Isn't it terrible the way the laundry treats one's shirt?

Rags: I've got a cold in the head.
Guy: That's something.

Cotton: You must have a wonderful memory to keep all that knowledge in your head.
Harrold: Yes, I never forget anything when it is once in my head.
Cotton: Well, old top, how about that fifty cents you borrowed from me sometime ago?
Harrold: Ah, that is different. I put that in my pocket.

Maurine: I don't know the meaning of fear.
Bonnie: Well, I wouldn't let a little word like that stump me, look it up in the dictionary.

John: Have you ever read Aesops Fables?
Kathryn: Oh! Yes. I read them

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice. He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of aenna and other mild herbs, with pepsin. The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Guy: Oh! I bumped my crazy bone.
Evelyn: Oh! That's alright. Just comb your hair straight back and it won't show.

James: My girl has had her nose broken in three places.
Rudell: I guess that will teach her to keep out of those three places.

Bonnie: Are you going to my sister's birthday party?
Joe R.: Which is it?
Bonnie: Twentieth.
Joe R.: Shucks, I attended that 5 years ago.

Crews: My ancestors came over on the Mayflower.
Jo G.: It's a good thing they did. The immigration laws are stricter now.

Lella Ben: What did you name your baby girl?
Neighbor: Hazel.
Lella Ben: What? With 25 saints to choose from and you are going to name her after a nut?

Mr. Todd: "What did you learn about the salinary glands?"
Peggy: "I couldn't learn a thing, they're so darn secretive."

Addie Loraine: "I want to buy some glasses."
Clerk: "Kid glasses?"
Addie: "Certainly not, I'm a high school student now."

Maggie: "That girl is grace personified."
Mae: "What did you say her name was?"
