HOW ABOUT A TWILIGHT
BASEBALL LEAGUE

With the coming of spring comes the urge of baseball. The major leagues, state leagues, sectional leagues and back yard leagues are getting started on a season of buzzing activity. On every hand we see boys and men gathered in the streets, in the back alleys, on vacant lots and elsewhere tossing the pill that swings the potato masher in an ambitious mood. One game has been played here, but school will soon be out, and that will let the one who has been playing for some time.

Why may not O'Donnell have some three or four teams organized into a sort of "Twilight League" this summer? The Sunday school could each organize a team and form an organization with a man at the head of the league to carry out an interesting summer schedule.

Games could be played two or three days a week after working hours, about the time that school attendance could be boosted considerably with the requirement that all players must attend at least two Sundays previous to the game in which they play. Much interest will be taken on the part of practically everybody.

There are plenty of gloves, mits and bats already in use to furnish the league, while free-will offerings at the games would meet the need for money for balls. No admission need be charged.

Baseball is a fine sport, and played in this manner it becomes even more of a true sport. What do you think of the idea? Mention it to your Sunday school next Sunday. Let's get it started. Let's call a get-together meeting next week. Somebody issue a challenge! Who'll take the lead?

A NEW POLICY

President W. B. Hamilton of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce announces that the annual convention this year will be used, as never before, as a means of shaping the policies of the organization. Every one of the 150 member units will be called upon to take part in the shaping of the program and policies. All resolutions which are reported out of the work of the convention committee will be argued and debated from the floor of the convention. At the close of the debate each member unit will be given an opportunity to vote for or against the proposed resolution.

This change in the method of adopting the policies of the West Texas C. of C. will be welcomed by a large number of members. It will put into the meeting quite a bit more real democracy, and in a democratic country a free and open discussion of principles and policies of any organization will go a long way toward keeping that body in the narrow path of democracy. It will inspire confidence and lend prestige to the organization.

CLEAN-UP WEEK NOT OBSERVED

Although the mayor proclaimed a certain period recently for a general clean-up of O'Donnell and the Index gave considerable space to the idea, very little result has been noted. True, certain enterprising housewives did a good share of cleaning-up (which they probably would have done anyway), but so far as anyone can tell by observation, nothing was done in the business district to carry out Mayor Wilder's proclamation.

It's no easy task to clean up a dirty town and keep it clean when the prevailing westerlies of southern Texas prevail, but we can at least make an effort. And, by the way, these winds don't blow scrap iron and tin cans into the streets. If they did, that would be no reason why we shouldn't clean them out of the street.

This clean-up failure is a logical result of what will usually happen when there is no organized leadership. Everybody's business is nobody's business. What O'Donnell should have done was to have offered some small prizes for the largest piles of trash and junk gathered up by the citizens. What a fine incentive other than a mere urge. The chamber of commerce should have taken the lead and done something definite to encourage a general clean-up. Our part-time secretary was out of town blame. We, the citizens and business men of O'Donnell are to blame.

We need a full time secretary to keep the chambers of commerce functioning properly. There is plenty he could do even in the summer when things are a bit quiet.

If you are discouraged, the best thing you can do for yourself is to stop and give some other fellow a lift.

The only value there is in a backward look is to fit you for a forward

BROOMCORN GROWS IN POPULARITY IN O'DONNELL SECTION; NEARLY 300 ACRES TO BE PLANTED NEAR HERE

Five farmers of the O'Donnell section plan to put in a total of 260 acres of broomcorn, according to E. R. Smith, more commonly known as the "Broomcorn King" of this section. If these five farmers have an average season and make an average crop, they will sell around $19,000 worth of broomcorn about August 1.

Mr. Smith, who introduced broomcorn into this county three years ago, has made a phenomenal success raising this new crop and has induced his friends and neighbors to plant some land to this crop this year.

Uhl Thompson will plant 60 acres. Hamb Thompson will plant fifty. I. U. Burdine will plant 35 acres. E. G. Stokes will plant 35 acres, and Mr. Smith will plant 80 acres, making 260 acres in all.

Mr. Smith said recently that in 1927, the first year he tried broomcorn here, he sold $2,896 worth of the crop from 65 acres. This was more than he has ever sold in his 14 years experience raising this crop. He came to Lynn County from Lindsey, Okla., known as the greatest broomcorn country in the world. He thinks this section is even better than Oklahoma, due to the absence of Johnson grass here, which makes the crop easier to grow.

Market is Good

According to government estimates the broomcorn supply is about 180,000 tons short of the demand, which condition assures a good price for the 1930 crop. Mr. Smith says the average price has been around $150 per ton. If it should be this figure this year, a total of sixty tons would bring in $9,000.

Mr. Smith has averaged one-fourth of a ton per acre, he says, and expects to do at least that well this year.

To Plant Soon

About the middle of April is the usual time for planting provided there is a season in the ground. The crop matures and is harvested about the middle of July.

If quite a number of farmers would unite in growing, harvesting and marketing this crop a good market could be established in O'Donnell, which would make the crop even more profitable.

Those interested in trying broomcorn this year should get in touch with Mr. Smith at once. He will tell you where to get the seed and will be glad to tell you all he knows about the culture of the crop, which is quite a lot.

INTERESTING DATA COMING IN DIRECTORY

"Every dog has his day" is a familiar saying known to every school child, and although the good farmers of Lynn County are not dogs, and we are not trying to compare them with such, no doubt they have been treated just that way at times. Yes, indeed, good folks, they have actually been treated like we were dogs numerous times, but let and behold, the farmers of Lynn County are going to have their day.

The O'Donnell Index is going to get out one of the best two-color directories ever published on the Lower South Plains, and it's going to be the farmers' directory, carrying the names and addresses of the farmers of Lynn County, besides numerous farm pictures and general information about the rural schools. No other than farmers' names will be carried in this directory, except city officials of O'Donnell, Tahoka, and Wilson, and a picture from each of these places. Also a list of the county officials will be in this Farm Directory, with some of their pictures, chamber of commerce data and pictures from these organizations.

Below is given data on the organization of Lynn County and its first officials, which may give a very good idea of how valuable the Farm Directory will actually be:

Organization of Lynn County
At a regular term of the Commissioners Court of Lubbock County, Texas, at the February Term, 1903, an order was made appointing election holders to elect the first officers for Lynn County, Texas.

"BALDIE" GETS HOME IN JOE BAILEY COMMUNITY

The cute little baby eagle, orphaned and lonely, which has been residing in the Williams Hatchery for the past few days, has been adopted by one R. T. Brewer of the Joe Bailey community. Young Brewer's kindly heart was forced to action when he saw the eaglet for the first time Tuesday morning screaming to the height of his vocal cords for a mother or possibly another dime's worth of hamburger meat.

When asked what his intentions were, Mr. Brewer replied: "Just keep 'im I guess—raise 'im up. I'll try my best to make sompin' outa him. There are some jackrabbits outa home and also pigeons to feed the little hanjo-eyed rascal."

You can DO MORE in Less Time
with Less Effort
by using More Electricity

HOUSEKEEPING is a delightful game at which every housewife can play with equal pleasure. The cost of using electric appliances today is so low that every one can enjoy their conveniences to the fullest.

A few years ago before inventive genius brought the magic of electric appliances to their aid, housewives worked from early morning until late at night—and their work was seldom finished. Then there were few pleasures for her, and she found little time to enter into them, and was too tired from her work to enjoy them.

Today electricity has made possible an entirely new life for the modern housewife. By the use of electric appliances she does her work in far less time, with less effort—in fact, she can do more work than ever before and feel the strain of doing it scarcely at all. Consequently she has the time and the strength to enjoy many new hours with her family. Modern times have brought her countless new pleasures and diversions. And electricity has made it possible for her to enjoy these things completely.

This Company exercises a rigid policy of selecting and offering for sale to its customers only the most efficient and most economical electric appliances made in this country. It is our aim to give you the fullest measure of electric service possible for the least amount of cost to you.

LUCY'S COMPANION

The children were fast asleep, for as Christmas night," began Dad with a smile, "but Lucy had a new plan.

On the pillow beside her with his arms around his neck was a Teddy Bear. And such a nice Teddy Bear! He was brown and his bright eyes shined as if he thought the world was his jolly place after all.

"I have secrets to tell you now you are fast asleep," said the Teddy Bear. "I will tell you all the secrets I know. I will tell you all the secrets I know. I will tell you all the secrets I know."

And at that point Lucy awoke and found the bear curled up with a smile in his eye. "At least everybody is fast asleep!"

Lucy put her arms around the bear and hugged him very close. She looked at the bear and said, "I was made by Santa Claus, and what fun I had after I was born. I was in his shop long, long ago, on Christmas eve, for he has to make many Teddy Bears."

There were white Teddy Bears, black ones and brown ones just like me. Some were larger and some were much smaller than I am, and in Santa's shop there were many rubber balls and worsted and balls with pictures painted on them.

"I don't love those balls!" said Lucy. "I don't love those balls!" said Lucy. "I don't love those balls!" said Lucy.

And what fun we had playing for we found he had made some more like me. We had teams—the white Teddy Bears played against the black Teddy Bears and the brown Teddy Bears, like I did, so that we helped both.

Then came the time when Santa's shop was becoming so full of bears that we couldn't play ball very much. So Santa told us to go to a little room where we would have more fun.

So, for a while, we played in there. It became time for us to be put in different packs.

Then we were driven along in a drawn by reindeer with jingling bells on their harness.

Once or twice I was sure I was to fall out of the pack. I was trying to see what the reindeer looked like as we skidded along over the hoofs, through the white snow.

At last we were home. I was so tired that I fell right off to sleep. I was so tired that I fell right off to sleep. I was so tired that I fell right off to sleep.

Fun We Had Playing Ball. Covered fields, stopping at every where Santa Claus knew there were children. I stayed in my pack for a long time before we reached our house.

And wasn't I glad that I hadn't got out into the snow, because then I might have been buried deep in a drift and I wouldn't have gotten out at all!

But you did get here—and I'm so glad! I exclaimed Lucy as she gave the bear a big hug. "I'm so glad, too," replied the bear.

But I had a good look at the stars as we hurried along and they seemed smiling at us in such a friendly way.

They called down to Santa Claus and said that they enjoyed seeing his team ride more than anything that had happened through the whole year. Santa Claus threw his cap into the air and said, "That makes me feel happy."

And the moon followed us along, and he wouldn't miss the fun we were having.

When we reached our house I went down the chimney with many toys, but I was put right at the bottom of the stocking.

And I'll never leave you as long as you want me to stay," said the bear. "I'll be here for ever," said the bear. "I'll be here for ever," said the bear.

"Isn't that nice?" said the brown Teddy Bear. "Isn't that nice?" said the brown Teddy Bear. "Isn't that nice?" said the brown Teddy Bear.

And he looked as if he really did love to be here. "I'll be here for ever," said the bear. "I'll be here for ever," said the bear. "I'll be here for ever," said the bear.

Insulation in House Cuts Down Coal Bill One-Third, College Test Shows

ONE OF THE HOUSES USED IN TEST

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—An experiment of far-reaching importance and interest to prospective home owners has been conducted here by the Evansville College to determine the relative coal consumption under practically identical conditions for a house finished with ordinary lath and plaster and for another similarly built except that insulating material was used as a plaster base.

The two houses were built close to each other from the same set of plans. The one with standard lath and plaster construction is occupied by a family of three. The other, insulation on outside walls and ceiling is unoccupied, having been completed just prior to the test.

The same fireman, a student of the college, tended both furnaces, which were identically alike and the fires were kept as uniform as could be judged. Outside temperature ranged between 30 and 44 degrees during the test.

In spite of the fact that the plaster and paint were thoroughly dry and that heat was being introduced into the unheated house, due to the constant presence of people and the use of gas, electricity and hot water, the unoccupied house insulated with masonry saved 32 per cent less coal and maintained a more uniform temperature throughout the test period. This 32 per cent saving for insulation in this small house will save approximately $30 a year in fuel for heating, according to industrial engineers.

"No Medicine Ever Helped Me As Did Konjola"

Tulsa Lady Is Enthusiastic About New Medicine—"Best In The World," She Says

MRS. G. J. CRABAUGH

"No medicine ever helped me as did Konjola," said Mrs. G. J. Crabaugh, 739 Quaker St., Tulsa. "For more than nine years I had trouble with my stomach. Gas accumulated after meals and I bloated terribly. The pains and pressure often made me short of breath and dizzy. Constipation was another of my worries and I became an almost daily user of cathartics. I had terrible headaches and found it difficult to sleep. My nerves became badly affected and my general condition badly run down."

"I am delighted with the results I obtained from Konjola. Before I had finished the second bottle my constipation had been relieved and my stomach greatly improved. As I kept on with this great medicine my general health improved until I am feeling better today than I have in a long time. I have an excellent appetite and eat heartily without distress. Even neuritis which attacked me occasionally has been totally driven from my system. I cannot say too much in praise of this great medicine."

Though Konjola works quickly six to eight bottles are recommended as a fair trial. Although many people are benefited within a few weeks, the longer period is best.

Konjola is sold in O'Donnell, Texas, at White's Drug Co., one of all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

BOYS SOCIETY

PICNIC PARTY IN BREAKS ENJOYED SUNDAY

One of the pleasant features of the summer months was much enjoyed Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gibson and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Rayburn and Billy, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hubbard and family when they made up a party for a picnic and day in the breaks near the Dean ranch.

They were lucky enough to find a shady spot exactly suited for a dining room where a delicious feast was spread, and games were played in the afternoon.

Billy Joe Hubbard furnished excitement for the crowd when he fell from a tree and succeeded very thoroughly in knocking himself cuckoo. However, as soon as he was found that he was only severely shaken up his attempted take-off was funny to everyone but himself.

JOE CARROLL HAS PARTY ON FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Master Joe Carroll celebrated his fifth birthday last Friday with a party in the afternoon for a large number of his little friends. Mrs. Carroll was assisted in waiting on the guests by Mrs. Gus Minton.
An Easter egg hunt and all the usual games were much enjoyed by the honoree and the guests, and the attractive gifts were highly appreciated by the recipient.

CHURCH AUXILIARY HOLDS OPEN PROGRAM

An unusually interesting program and open house was held last Thursday evening by the Presbyteryan Auxiliary in the church.
This year being the fifty-first anniversary of the work of the women of that church, many interesting features are being sent out. The subject of the program was "The Now," and each number carried out in some way the central idea.

Mrs. Ethel Singleton Williams read a charming poem bearing that title, and a two-act playlet pictured the difference fifty years have made. Mrs. C. L. Davis played the role of the old-fashioned grandmother who was getting ready to lead the services at the missionary society, and Miss Jessie Gery was her granddaughter. This act showed that in the old days only the elderly ladies were supposed to work in the missionary society. The modern grandmother was played by Mrs. Sidne Cathey, and her granddaughters were as keenly interested as she. Mesdames Koeninger, Hal Singleton Jr., and W. E. Singleton played the modern granddaughters.
The purpose of this program and reception was to acquaint the church in general with the work being done by the auxiliary and to enable the members to become better acquainted with each other.

FOODS CLASS ENTERTAINS FOR CHILDREN

Since the Foods I Class has spent some time in the study of "Child Care and Guidance," it was decided that an interesting project could be developed in the form of a party for children between the ages of three and five.
On Wednesday afternoon the small guests gathered in the home economics laboratory for such games as "Drop the Handkerchief" and "Cat and Rat," after which refreshments of orangeade and cookies were served. The guests were then taken to a place where the Easter rabbit had visited earlier in the afternoon, and they were soon busily engaged in finding the eggs he had left.

The members of the class enjoyed the party as much as the guests themselves and are eager to have another party. Those present were Virginia Ann and Betty Lou Higgs, Louise Nelson, Dixie Jean Wyatt, John Ellen Beach, Aubrey Lee Shook, Mary Evelyn Parr, Dorothy Ruth Smith, Wendell Burdine, Walter Parr, Claude Tomlinson Jr., and Billie Tane.

Members of the class are Margaret Miller, Ruby Burdine, Nell Kyle, Lois Burdett, Novae Russell, Faye Tomlinson, George Mae Smith, Kimmie Lee Pearce, Genevieve Lawler, Mollie Zell Edwards, Viola Wyatt, Nelson and Mrs. V. Shook. Mrs. Cecil Nelson was a pleasant guest, even though she said she was too bashful to help in the Easter egg hunt.

ROOM SISTER ENTERTAINS

Miss Gladys Terry was the charming hostess last Tuesday evening to members of Mrs. Gilbreath's room when she entertained with a jolly informal party in her honor.
A. C. Hamilton, one of the boys of the class, favored the guests with songs, accompanying himself with the guitar.

Lively games were played in the moonlight and the guests enjoyed Billie Tane's of the hours that passed away all too hurriedly.
Delicious refreshments of cream and cake were served to the following: Arthur Singleton, Era Culp, Hazel Cox, Joe Pugh, Thelma Parker, William Frost, Jim Ellen Wells, Odwin Hasley, J. Curtis, Sue McIlroy, J. D. Hunt, Eugene Debenport, Thelma Williams, Raymond James Jim McKeen, Claude McKee, McConall, I. D. Ables, Winson Ables, A. C. Hamilton, Eugene Echols, Ruth Terry, Crissy Simmons, Tressie Payne, Andrew Simmons, LuVenia Austin, Beatrice James, Roxine Terry, Jewel Singleton, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbreath, Mrs. Singleton, and Miss Beverly Wells.

LOCAL PEOPLE ENJOY FISH FRY ON EVERETT RANCH

Guests from O'Donnell at the fish fry on the ranch of Dewey Everett near Gall last Sunday included Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Everett and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wells and Jim Ellen, John Johnson and daughters.
Three tubs full of fish gave each one an opportunity to show his gastronomic ability.

PICNIC AT SANDHILLS IS ENJOYED BY MERRY GROUP

On Tuesday afternoon of last week a number of young people, chaperoned by Mrs. Elvis Gilbreath, adjourned to the sandhills west of town for a picnic. The girls came to the meeting place loaded with sandwiches and cookies, the boys appeared with pop and fruit, and each one took along the old appetite which is always a guest at a picnic.
Those who enjoyed the occasion were Misses Sue and Mary Joe Gates, Irene ordo, Opal Jenkins, Roxie Hancock, Messrs. L. J. and V. B. Hohn, Desmond Vandell and John Vermillion.

LATIN TOURNAMENT IS NEW EXPERIENCE FOR LOCAL STUDENTS

The teams and the representatives of the local Latin department report that a Latin tournament is one of the most enjoyable occasions yet invented. Though El Paso, Amarillo and Big Spring took off the honors, the students from here declare that the experience was well worth the trip to Lubbock. The tournament will be held in Lubbock again next year.

MISS HANCOCK ENTERTAINS WITH SLUMBER PARTY

Miss Beale Hancock was the gracious hostess last Saturday night to a number of friends when she entertained with a slumber party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hancock.

Slumber parties and their activities are past description, so suffice it to say that this was one of that kind. A midnight lunch of ice cream and cake was served to Misses Louise Anderson, Sue and Hester Gates, Irene Hohn, Claire Ruth Nichols and the hostess.

MRS. J. S. WELLS AND FAMILY GUESTS OF HONOR AT THEATRE PARTY

E. D. English of the English Theatre at Tahoka paid a graceful compliment to Mrs. J. S. Wells of Tahoka last Wednesday evening when he entertained her, her children and grandchildren with a theatre party. Mrs. E. T. Wells and daughters, Beverly and Jim Ellen, attended.

SOUTHLAND LIFE MONTHLY CROP REPORT MARCH 1930

- BELOW NORMAL

CROP CONDITIONS IN TEXAS WIDELY VARIED ACCORDING TO REPORTS

DALLAS, April 14.—The crop map of Texas for the month of March, as reported by the Public Relations Department of the Southland Life Insurance Company, is curiously spotted. Prospects in general, are excellent—perhaps more so than they have been in years. In some communities, however, the planting of crops has been seriously hampered by dry and unseasonable spring weather. In others, strangely enough, the opposite is true—it has been too cold or too damp.

One of the most encouraging aspects of the entire situation is that there are certain indications that diversification finally has taken a real hold with farmers of Texas. Almost without exception, reports indicate far greater diversification of crops than ever before. More feed crops will be raised; the dairy industry is proving popular and profitable; poultry raising has become more widespread; and farmers, almost without exception, are apparently convinced of the wisdom of raising their own living. Business conditions are decidedly more hopeful. Money is still tight, but in spite of these facts, income tax collections and other certain indicators have proven that money is available and that the recent stock market crash had but slight influence and did but slight harm in Texas.

The head of one of the state's largest financial institutions sums up the situation as follows: "Prosperity in Texas, greater than the state has ever known before, is in the offing. With even fair crop conditions, Texas as a whole is jubilant by the time these crops are harvested and, if this is true, the state will find itself on the soundest economic basis it has ever known."

WILLIS AND GASTON MAY WRESTLE SOON

According to a statement from Clyde Ash, the barber, O'Donnell wrestling fans may have an opportunity to see the match between Willis and Gaston, the O'Donnell Idol, and R. C. Willis, the big muscle man, thrown together like pitching war horse roosters in a pen together at an early date. He said:

"I have been assured by Willis that he is ready and fit for action any time, and although I have not talked to Gaston yet, I am trying to get in touch with him, and if he will agree to meet Willis, you can bet your sweet life we will get a packed house to see them. So many fans have wanted to see these two eye gougers get together that no doubt it will be a big drawing card. More than likely the high school auditorium will be used for the affair, as it would be about the only place that would take care of the crowd, according to my belief."

So there you are. Well, Mr. Ash, do your best to get these two favorites together. If you can, you need not worry but that there will be plenty of fans to see the match. The rural route carried and the O'Donnell Idol do their stuff.

Prof. Edwards, Coach Gilbreath, Postmaster Singleton and a flock of others want to see this match, and so now it is up to Ash, the barber, to gladden their hearts.

LOCAL BARBERS GET REGISTRY CERTIFICATES

O'Donnell's barbers are now recognized officially by the State Board of Barbers' Examiners and have their registry certificates along with their photographs neatly framed and hanging near their respective shops and became effective recently.

The law requiring the examination and registration of barbers was passed at the first and second called sessions of the first Legislature and became effective recently.

Local barbers who successfully passed the examination and who have received their certificates are John Johnson and John Ellis of the Johnson Barber Shop, R. O. Miles and O. L. Miller of the Miles Barber Shop, and James Naymon Everett and Clyde Ash of the Everett Barber Shop.

HAVING FINE TIME

W. B. Phillips received a card last from his father, L. G. Phillips, who with a party of several O'Donnell folks is fishing near Rockport. Mr. Phillips says they are having a fine time, catching a lot of fish and that they have had plenty of rain.

BLACK HILLS TROUT LURE FISHERMEN; SEASON OPENS

The fishing season is on in the Black Hills. The scores of little trout streams that scurry down from the mountains to the Cheyenne and Belle Fourche rivers to wind somewhere safe to the Missouri, are alive with loach, minnow, rainbow, and brook trout. The trout season opened April 1, and will close September 30. The season for crappies, pike, perch, pickerel and sunfish extends from May 1 to February 28. More than one million little trout hatched in the state and federal fish hatcheries since the first of the year, will be released in the streams this spring. Several thousand big mouth black bass were planted last year in Orman Lake and not only will there be no dearth of fishing in the Hills this year, but there is no prospect of the waters ever being fished out, because of the systematic method of planting fish.

The Black Hills offer several advantages to the fishermen. There is an abundance of fish. The days are crisp and sunny with very little extreme heat at noontime, and none at night. And the splash of mountains that the Rockies throw out ahead as a sentry, make such a compact country, that the angler in search of variety as well as trout can fish a dozen streams a day. Or he can make it the tide pastime of a late afternoon, starting out in the cool of the afternoon and getting back to his home or hotel with the early dark.

 COMPARE the delivered price as well as the list price in considering automobiles. Chevrolet's price is the only reasonable charge for delivery and financing. Easy G. M. A. C. Terms.

There is one sure way to get greater value in a low-priced car today—choose a Six!

This greater value is instantly obvious when you drive a Chevrolet Six. You notice first of all its greater smoothness. There is no tremor in the steering wheel—no rattle in the floor boards—no drumming in the body.

In addition to the finer performance of its six-cylinder motor, the new Chevrolet gives you truly remarkable economy.

Its six-cylinder smoothness saves the entire car from the strain and wear of vibration. This, of course, lowers the cost of maintenance and assures a longer-lasting automobile.

From the standpoint of operating expense, Chevrolet is equally economical. No automobile uses less gasoline and oil. No car shows a lower expense for tires. And no car costs less for service.

Because of its modern engineering, Chevrolet also assures a high re-sale value—for its entire design is just as advanced as its six-cylinder engine.

Chevrolet gives you fully-enclosed, weather-proof, 4-wheel brakes. It gives you a modern fuel system—with the gasoline tank mounted in the rear outside the body. It gives you four long semi-elliptic springs, mounted lengthwise in the direction of car travel. It gives you beautiful Fisher bodies built of combination hardwood-and-steel. It gives you a full ball bearing steering mechanism, an adjustable driver's seat, a Fisher VV non-glare windshield, and tilting beam headlights, operated by a foot-controlled button.

Before you decide on any car in the low-price field, see and drive the Chevrolet Six. The more thoroughly you investigate, the more certain you are to conclude that it's wise to choose a Six—for value, for performance and for economical transportation!

Unwin even threw kisses at the unknown. It seemed to Bettington that Unwin must hear his shouts before he flew away from the vessel. The launch was only few yards distant at one time, before she put about and made for the shore. On the landing stage of the yacht club Unwin stood still waving. And so he stood until the ocean-going steamer had turned her bow to the south.

Unwin went back to his wife's very happy. "It will be wonderful for both of them," he said. "Honey was very pleasant, for a man in his position to one in mine. But she is a rarer and finer type. I am sure she is unhappy. She seemed to cling to me and, except from his cabin to the larger prison of the ship at sea offered little betterment of his condition. He pondered over Sam's command that he should be quiet. This presupposed that there was a person, or group of persons, unaware of his detention. But whether a declaration of his presence would bring liberty was another matter.

The hours passed slowly. It was dusk when they dropped anchor at the foot of East Twenty-fourth street. When Sam came in with his evening meal there was a safety razor and a comb. "Got to spruce up," said Sam. "Owner's coming aboard tomorrow morning. The boss says for you to look like ready money."

Bettington looked at Sam and envied what made him so serene and happy. It was a face on which had been graven the marks of violent emotions. He was no more than five feet eight inches in height, but his chest was fully forty-five inches in girth. A life of ease had turned some of his once steel muscles to fat, but he was still enormously strong. A fat and bulbous nose, driven into his face by some tremendous impact, conspired to make him repulsive. Essentially he was of the sea. There was the sailor's roll in his walk. A dangerous man in a physical combat Bettington decided. Intellectually he was below the normal. He was cleanly shaved and the shirt he wore was new.

"Wondering what I'm all dolled up for?" he demanded. "I'll tell you. We're going to have skirts aboard this trip. Metzger told me. There's a lady's maid, a secretary and the owner's wife. Metzger's seen her pictures in the paper. He's crazy over her."

"Who's Metzger?" "The chief engineer. Lucky for him he don't like 'em as young as I do. Me," said Sam slyly, rolling his red eyes. "Do you suppose," he said, looking at Sam with a disfavor that could be felt even by the sailor, "that any lady, secretary to the owner of this boat, would have anything to do with you? How did you Sam, who herbed and speak to the owner's guests? Don't be foolish, Sam."

Sam looked at him a long time in silence. "I can see what you're driving at," said the sailor. "You want to die out to be. Well, you don't get nothing out of me." He laughed long and loud at the "secret" of his master's discovery of the other's motives. Then he described his way of life and love. There was something nauseating in it. And there was something frightening, too. How did Sam, who herbed and messed with the crew, come to imagine, without good grounds, that he would have the opportunity to come intimately into contact with the owner's guests?

There was another disquieting thought. Suppose that he was kept a prisoner here until the boat put out to sea and no forest to be a party to indescribable scenes? Escape was impossible. It was a steel-built boat; the porthole was a small one and his only weapon a safety razor blade.

He was thinking bitterly at noon on Monday, when, from his porthole, he saw a launch approaching the ship. He recognized it as the one which had taken him from Blackport to Bar Harbor. Beside the crew there were two men and two women. He had no time to take in their features because he was amazed to see that one of the men was none other than Tubby Unwin. The launch had passed his field of vision before he could recover from his surprise. With the aid of the mirror that Sam had brought with the shaving outfit Bettington could see that the launch was brought alongside. And from it, Unwin and the three strangers climbed aboard.

In vain Bettington shouted and kicked at the door. Steam was up, and the various noises and activities on deck made his outcry inaudible. Looking through his mirror he saw, presently, that Unwin descended the steps into the boat. Apparently he was not going. He was waving to some one on deck.

Unwin even threw kisses at the unknown. It seemed to Bettington that Unwin must hear his shouts before he flew away from the vessel. The launch was only few yards distant at one time, before she put about and made for the shore. On the landing stage of the yacht club Unwin stood still waving. And so he stood until the ocean-going steamer had turned her bow to the south. Unwin went back to his wife's very happy. "It will be wonderful for both of them," he said. "Honey was very pleasant, for a man in his position to one in mine. But she is a rarer and finer type. I am sure she is unhappy. She seemed to cling to me and, except from his cabin to the larger prison of the ship at sea offered little betterment of his condition. He pondered over Sam's command that he should be quiet. This presupposed that there was a person, or group of persons, unaware of his detention. But whether a declaration of his presence would bring liberty was another matter.

just when to try of such terms. We are here to talk business." "Look here," Bettington began, "I explained to your first murderer out there, that there had been some mistake of identities. My name is Bettington; I am a painter of seascapes and my studio is on East Thirty-fourth street."

"The Boss took from a small table a New York paper. "Did you have a pleasant journey," he asked sweetly. He passed the paper over the table and pointed out an obituary notice tucked away in an obscure spot. "Read it," the Boss commanded.

"Well-known Marine Painter Killed. "Falls From Fire Escape in Dark." Bettington read an amazing description of his death, burial and life's work. The chief witness at the inquest was Floyd Unwin. Unwin had been amazed to see his friend, whom he thought to be out of town, and climbed to his studio to call upon him. The rooms were seemingly in darkness and none answered the knock. In the morning the janitor had discovered the mutilated body in the yard. Floyd Unwin and he had identified it.

"It was a clever idea," said the Boss, "but I, too, read the papers. In the idiom of poker, I have called your bluff. In almost every case I have had to do that to get my crew. Take Sam, for example. Sam, under another name, was doing rather well bootlegging across the Canadian line. In Rangely he was on the way to become respected. It was necessary to remind him that he had broken from Dannemora. I was compelled to build up his real past. I told it over him."

The Boss waved his delicate hand airily. "It is a truism that knowledge is power. I have just told you by what method I have the whip-hand of what you call my 'first murderer.'" "But why put me in possession of it?" Bettington demanded. "That strikes me as a very unwise step." "Because, my dear Andrew Orme, I have just as strong a hold over you." Bettington made a gesture of despair. The Boss had not the look of a crazed man; but this sort of talk pointed to an eccentricity not far from megalomania. He had the delusion of power. "Andrew Orme," said Bettington. "I'll tell you." The Boss passed a box of cigars to the other. "Andrew Orme did very well at Yale. He was on his way to become a great surgeon. Then he found within himself the curse of gaming. He needed money by accident. I was attending in San Francisco and was sent to San Quentin as a life prisoner. He escaped and was absolutely lost from view. That was almost ten years ago. I found him by accident. I was automaton in New England and needed water for a boiling motor. I went to a fisherman's shack. There I found one John-

MAN JAILED FOR STEALING HARNESS HERE LAST MONDAY

Clayton Standefor of Cochran County is in jail at Tahoka on a complaint charging the theft of four sets of harness valued at approximately $100 from a farmer near here Monday night.

As soon as the harness was missed officers were notified, and they got busy investigating the matter. Following a clue which they had obtained Lawrence Sanford of Tahoka and T. W. Brown of O'Donnell left early Tuesday night for Morton. There they found the harness in the possession of Standefor, placed him under arrest and brought the accused man and the stolen property back to Tahoka, arriving there early Wednesday morning. The owner of the property readily and positively identified it.

Standefor is said to have been at O'Donnell with a truck Monday. The charge against him is of the grade of felony and will be investigated by the next grand jury which meets in August.

Mrs. Kathryn Veavey visited Miss Clyde Jones of Lubbock last Friday.
