Local Citizens Entering Army

The Selective Service Board this week reclassified many registrants, placing married men without children who have no farming set-up in class 1-A, according to Judge J. W. Elliott, chairman of the board.

This affects many registrants in Lynn County, though Judge Elliott was unable to state the number.

Quite a little group of young men boarded the bus here last Friday to enter the army training camps. The list included the following:

Richard Cleaton Askew, O'Donnell, Rt. 3; Ramon Medina Lara, Tahoka, Rt. 4; Lorenzo D. Reyes, Tahoka, Rt. 4; Homer William Strickland, O'Donnell; Clyde Thomas Yarbrough, O'Donnell, Rt. 3; Ira Loyd Preston, Tahoka; Manuel Rangel Lopez, O'Donnell; Ollie Ausburn Best, Post, Rt. 2; William Mason, Tahoka; Jose Ochoa, Meadow, Rt. 1; Raymond Edward Hinkle, Tahoka; Nelson Melton, O'Donnell; James Hulya Shafer, O'Donnell; Troy Lee Milliken, Wilson; Andrew William Hill, Tahoka; William Paul Cox, Tahoka, Rt. 5; Cecil Crouch Hickerson, O'Donnell, Rt. 3; Clevis Monroe Eaton, Tahoka, Rt. 2; Robert Maines Hill, Tahoka, Rt. 4; Lloyd Teel Boren, Post, Rt. 3.

Quite a number who were included in last Friday's call had volunteered for service and enlisted in various branches of service during the week. These included:

Carl Fred Gickhorn, Wilson, Rt. 1, Navy; Olin Jesse Johnson, Tahoka, Rt. 3, air corps specialist, Lubbock; John Benton Hill, Tahoka, Rt. 4, U. S. Army, state of Washington; James Dalton Woodward, Tahoka, Rt. 1, air corps specialist, Lubbock; Jesse Mclellan, Tahoka, Rt. 4, Navy; Paul Jack Blevins, air corps specialist, Lubbock.

Others who have enlisted from Lynn County recently include the following: Arlie D. Reed, Post, Rt. 2, air corps; Jack W. Hancock, Tahoka, Rt. 4, Naval Reserve, in office at New Orleans, Warren G. (Rusty) Waldrep, Tahoka, Rt. 3, Cadet in Air Corps Reserve; Clarence Arol Moore, O'Donnell, Rt. 1, Navy; Henry Otto Kieschnick, Wilson, Navy.

Billy Hays, school bus driver, has accepted part time work at Mansell Grocery.

Fire Prevention Program Planned

A radio program which dramatizes the work of Auxiliary Firemen in the plan of Civilian Defense will be broadcast by stations of the Texas Quality Network, Sunday, September 27, at 2 p. m. This announcement was made by Fire Chief Roy Gibson upon the receipt of information from Marvin Hall, State Fire Defense Coordinator of the National Defense Committee for Texas.

The program will be another in the series, titled, "Texans on the Alert," which is prepared by the Texas School of the Air in cooperation with the National Defense Committee for Texas, and features various activities of Civilian Defense.

Chief Gibson also reminds local citizens that Governor Coke Stevenson has proclaimed October 4 to 10 as Fire Prevention Week in Texas.

"This year," the chief said, "all of us must accept the responsibility of preventing fires. Every fire helps the cause of our enemy. The war cannot be won by ashes, if we permit carelessness to cause fires which destroy our factories, stores, homes, and farms."

Civilians must constantly keep on the alert, and continued active support of the Civilian Defense training program will be gratefully appreciated, Chief Gibson said.

Games Added To Football Schedule

TAHOKA, September 24 (Special) — Three home games have been added to the Tahoka Bulldogs' schedule to take the place of those previously announced with Slaton, Post, and O'Donnell, which schools have been forced to drop football because of the shortage of coaches. Coach Volney Hill announces.

Leveland will play here on Nov. 5, Morton here on Nov. 11, and Ralls here on Nov. 20.

Also, Hill has tentative agreements with Class B Friendship, Cooper, and Meadow, and it is likely that one of these teams will play Tahoka on the local gridiron Thursday night of next week, that being an open date.

Though Tahoka lost 18 to 0 to Big Spring last Friday night, Coach Hill states they played a much better game than against Lamesa. The team journeys to Monahans tonight to meet another strong Class AA outfit.

Lynn Scholastics Show 200 Increase

TAHOKA, September 24 (Special) — County Superintendent Lenore M. Tunnell announces that after all transfers have been made, the rolls show a decided increase this year over last year in the number of scholastics in Lynn County. A few school districts, however, show a decrease.

Schools showing an increase are: O'Donnell, Tahoka, Wilson, Draw-Redwine, Grassland, Edith, Midway, T-Bar, Dixie, Gordon, Newmoore, and Three Lakes. The total for this year is 3,055 against a total of 2,831 last year.

The schools with the number of scholastics each year follow:

	1941	1942
Tahoka	728	765
O'Donnell	527	616
Wilson	333	408
New Home	380	368
Draw-Redwine	203	246
Grassland	92	94
New Lynn	83	73
Wells	96	74
Newmoore	58	78
West Point	62	49
T-Bar	33	46
Three Lakes	21	31
Midway	42	56
Edith	42	55
Dixie	61	71
Gordon	21	25
TOTAL	2831	3055

Leave For Dallas

Stewart Schooler and Raymond Kelley Curtis left Monday for Dallas where they will be employed. Their wives will join them later.

Miss Ann Brewer has recently accepted a position at the Cotton Compress Warehouse as bookkeeper. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henderson and Billy Bob visited relatives in Quanah last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Middleton and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Middleton spent the week end in Ruidoso.

Mrs. Guy Thompson and her sister, Billie Johnson of Gall, visited here last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Newell Hughes were in Lubbock Monday evening to attend the show, "Mrs. Miniver."

Mr. and Mrs. Homer McKee have returned here from Seagraves to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bradley returned Friday from California where they visited their son.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Hollowell were in Lubbock Tuesday.

Mrs. J. H. Bouillon of Tahoka was a business visitor here Friday.

Students' Blanket Donation To England Has Been Received

A letter from England stating that the blankets which school children here had furnished last year had, at last, been received, was the welcome news for those concerned.

Mailed on July 31, the letter came from the Northhamptonshire County Red Cross Council, Rushden Nursery Center, and was as follows:

Dear Friends:

Your nice blankets have been received at the above named nursery center from the American Red Cross. We thank you very much indeed. They look so cheerful and they keep the small children warm while their mothers are helping in the war effort.

With grateful thanks,
W. McLean, Matron.

It will be recalled that the blankets were exhibited by the Saleh Store and Teeter Bakery. Members of the Tuesday Bridge Club assisted. Other firms furnished some help, and many thanks have been expressed to those donating thread.

Promotion Day Is Planned Next Sun. By Methodists

Rev. H. H. Hollowell has returned from Ropesville and will be present Sunday. The services are as follows: Sunday School — 10:00 a. m. Preaching — 11:00 a. m. Youth Fellowship — 7:30 p. m. Evening Worship — 8:15 p. m.

At the close of the Sunday School session, the various classes will give a resume of the work done during the year. The Sunday session will close the church school year and Promotion Day will be observed. About 25 are to be promoted in the various departments. New teachers will take their classes on the first Sunday of October, and a formal installation service will be conducted at the 11 o'clock hour on that day. Warren D. Smith will again superintend the Church school.

FSA Placed On War-Time Basis

Returning Thursday from Big Spring where he attended a district meeting of the Farm Security Administration, Wyman J. Welch, rural rehabilitation supervisor of the Federal agency, said the FSA's program has been placed on a war-time footing.

"Every activity of the Farm Security program will be considered on the basis of its contribution to the nation's war needs," he said. "This means that food production comes first and that we will do nothing which does not contribute directly to the Food for Freedom program."

Of special interest to Lynn County farmers was Mr. Welch's announcement that loan funds are immediately available for food and feed preservation needs this fall and for food and feed production operations next spring.

"Farm Security," said Mr. Welch, "has the responsibility for giving the needy, low income farmer a chance to participate effectively in the nation's war effort. With our help he can make a valuable contribution to America's food production program. Without our help, his strength and power will be wasted."

"We have instructions," he continued, "to begin making loans immediately and to dig down deeper than ever before in order to help the greatest number of farm families."

"With the prospect of serious shortages in certain foods, the nation must depend upon the small farm operators to utilize their full labor and skills if the United States and the other United Nations are to pull through the present crisis to victory."

Lynn County farmers may obtain complete details about the FSA's wartime lending program by contacting Mr. Welch at his office at the courthouse in Tahoka.

Hulon Bolch visited here last week end. Mrs. Bolch and young son accompanied him home and they will reside in Dalhart.

Farmers Urged To Pick Cotton With Care This Fall

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 24 — Texas cotton farmers and handlers were urged today by the Texas USDA War Board to be extra careful in picking and handling of this year's cotton crop.

"Careful picking and handling of this year's cotton crop is of A-1 importance because of the record need for high-grade and long staple cotton in this country and the drop in demand for low-grade and short staple cotton," the War Board advised members of county boards.

Heavy military and civilian demand for cotton textiles have resulted in a greater need for high-grade and long staple cotton than ever before by domestic mills, the board declared. In addition, widened market premiums and discounts make it much more profitable to guard against unnecessary lowering of grade.

Variation in the care of handling cotton often can raise or lower the quality of a bale by one or two grades, the board's statement continued. Since grade and staple premiums and discounts have widened so much, present market differentials work more to the advantage of the higher grades and longer lengths than at any time during the past 10 or 15 years.

Rain Totaling 1.55 Fell Here Saturday

A downpour totaling 1.55 inches on the government gauge operated by Ben Moore fell here last Saturday, and while no appreciable amount has fallen in the territory since, the weather has remained threatening.

Following a beautiful summer day Wednesday, which was the first day of autumn, a complete change occurred when an early "norther" struck Thursday morning when a light mist fell and clouds obscured the sun.

Cotton picking has been hindered, and unless a quick appearance of the sun is made, followed by several days of warm weather, it is feared that the cotton fiber will become of poorer staple.

Leaf worms are still bothering on many farms.

BETTER CIVICS CLUB

The Civics and Law Class organized a club Sept. 15th which they call the Better Civics Club.

Officers were elected as follows: president, Junior Barnes; vice president, Margaret Gibbs, secretary and treasurer, John Ellen Beach; reporter, Jo Ann Campbell; parliamentarian, Myrtle Daniels.

Our motto is "Upward, Onward, Ever." The aim is "Striving for higher education."

We hope the club will bring the class closer together and teach us to work together.

We plan to have several social parties and believe we will enjoy the class very much providing we can keep Junior Barnes from jumping into the trees just outside the window, every time Tarzan calls and the pet monkeys from throwing coconuts at Mrs. Winn.

W. S. of C. S.

W. S. of C. S. met Monday afternoon, Sept. 21, at 3:30.

The opening song was followed by a prayer.

The program was the conclusion of the Study on "Christian Roots of Democracy." Chapter VIII was given by Mrs. Sherill, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Waldo McLaurin. Chapter IX was given by Mrs. Hollowell.

Meeting dismissed in prayer by Mrs. Ben Moore.

Place of next meeting will be announced later.

Present were: Mmes. Schooler, Bowlin, Curtis, Pickens, Warren, Knight, Stark, Gates, besides those mentioned above.

Judge J. E. Garland and court reporter John Burton of Lamesa were business visitors here Saturday.

Mrs. W. V. McElroy and daughter Jan of Tahoka visited friends here Friday.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Yank Fliers and Subs Blast Jap Ships In Battles for Supremacy in Pacific; Rubber Czar Speeds Synthetic Output; Fuel Oil Rationing Covers Thirty States

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

William M. Jeffers (right), newly appointed rubber administrator, confers with War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson concerning problems to be solved in the nation-wide rubber conservation program which he heads. The former president of the Union Pacific railroad called for the co-operation of all Americans in making the program effective.

PACIFIC FRONT: Jap Ships Smashed

The Japs got a taste of American air and undersea power when aircraft and submarines struck at widely separated points on the far-flung Pacific battlefield and damaged or destroyed 18 enemy ships.

In the Solomon islands, American bombers attacking the enemy base at Retaka bay, north of the American airfield at Guadalcanal, damaged two cruisers and destroyed vital enemy shore installations.

In the Aleutians heavy army bombers and long range fighters inflicted severe damage. Included in the American score were two mine sweepers sunk, three large cargo vessels damaged, three submarines hit and trapped and "several small craft" damaged.

Elsewhere in the far western Pacific, submarines sank four ships and damaged four others. The successful attacks on these eight ships raised to 107 the total of Japanese vessels of all types which the navy has reported sunk or damaged by American submarine attacks since the outbreak of war.

FUEL OIL RATION: Forecasts 65 Degrees

Home owners in the 30 eastern and midwestern states affected by the WPB's fuel oil rationing order were told by Price Administrator Leon Henderson that domestic allotments would be pegged to a daytime temperature of 65 degrees under average weather conditions.

Mr. Henderson said the amount of oil allowed each heating unit would be based largely on the floor space and the amount of fuel used last year. In order to obtain coupon rationing sheets, householders will be required to furnish local rationing boards with detailed information concerning the dwelling and furnace.

DRAFT: Fathers or Boys?

Congress was given its choice between drafting 1,500,000 youths of 18 and 19 years of age or the same number of married men with dependent families by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

In a statement before the house committee investigating national defense migration, Hershey said: "We are going to get 18 or 19-year-olds, or 1,500,000 men out of the family." He added that the war department has certain reasons for wanting younger men and that industry would be disturbed less by taking the youths.

RUBBER CZAR: Tough Job Ahead

Blunt, energetic Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers had a big job on his hands and he knew it. War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson knew it too, for when he announced Jeffers' appointment, he called it "one of the toughest" assignments in the whole war effort.

As recommended by the President's special inquiry committee, Mr. Jeffers was given full authority over every phase of the rubber program. He was charged with reorganizing, consolidating and administering the government's efforts to alleviate the rubber shortage.

One of the new rubber czar's biggest tasks was to drastically step up synthetic rubber production. The report of the President's committee headed by Bernard M. Baruch had noted that there was "grave danger" that construction delays might hold up the present program as much as four months, leaving rubber supplies next year insufficient even for military needs.

Directness was one of the things Jeffers was noted for as president of the Union Pacific railroad. He showed the same approach when he said:

"This means I have a tough job. But it is also a job for all the people of the United States. The biggest stockpile of rubber we have is on the wheels of our automobiles. I ask every motorist, every truck driver, everybody who runs a car, to remember that he is now the custodian of a material more precious than gold."

RUSSIA: Needs Second Front

As the news from Russian battle sectors had become gloomier, the increasing necessity of an Anglo-American second front in western Europe to take the pressure off the battered Red armies and thus avoid complete disaster was urged by Soviet military experts in London.

Although the eleventh-hour arrival of thousands of crack Siberian troops at Stalingrad had enabled the Reds to throw fresh reserves against Marshal Von Bock's Nazi legions, the over-all picture remained somber. The need for a diversion elsewhere appeared as pressing as ever.

Soviet representatives in London were said to believe that Allied invasion of western Europe would draw 30 to 40 German divisions away from the Russian front.

Meanwhile as massed squadrons of the RAF had continued their smashes at German industrial centers in a "softening up" drive, Production Minister Oliver Lyttleton declared:

"We are approaching the breathless moment when, if Russia holds a few more weeks, the gathering forces of the greatest alliance the world has ever seen will give us the first evidences of victory."

Captain Lyttleton had predicted in July that the next 80 days would be the war's gravest.

U. S. Transport 'Wakefield' Burns at Sea

The former luxury liner, Manhattan, now a naval transport ship and renamed the Wakefield, caught fire and was severely damaged at sea. More than 1,600 passengers and crew members were removed without loss of life by U. S. warships in the convoy. In the upper left the Wakefield is shown at sea, and at right is its commander, H. G. Bradbury. In lower left, passengers and crewmen are shown jammed on rear decks awaiting rescue. Notice the rope nets which were used to climb to the deck of rescue vessel. (Navy photos.)

Unsung Heroes of Medical Corps Play Important Role

One of the most ticklish jobs which men of the U. S. army medical corps are called upon to undertake is the removal of wounded men from the inside of tanks. The method of this removal may mean life or death to the casualty. At the left you see trainees from the medical corps field service school at Carlisle, Pa., engaged in the task. The man has been successfully removed through the tank turret and is being placed on a stretcher atop the tank. At right you see a demonstration of a method of transforming a pair of skis into a smooth-running litter for transporting a wounded man over the snow.

Commando Tactics at Harding Field, La.

Soldiers are undergoing a special training course in Commando tactics at Harding Field, La. Here we see a soldier about to leave the jumping tower and dive into a blazing pool of water. The soldiers are taught to swim with a modified breast stroke, splashing water in front of them to protect them from the flames. The tower from which they leap is 20 feet high, the approximate distance of a transport's deck from the water. In case of a torpedoing, the soldiers would have to dive into the flaming water with their full packs and swim for shore.

Laugh Is on Axis

The Axis boasted that a floating drydock they had sunk at an Egyptian port would never be raised. Capt. Edward Ellsburg, U.S.N., confounded them by raising the drydock in record time. He is shown here in an official auto in Egypt.

Mexico's President Makes Wartime Report

Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, president of the United States of Mexico, makes his annual report before the congress of Mexico. This report—his first wartime capitulation of the situation—was particularly important and was addressed to the rest of the American continent as well as to Mexico. Thousands of distinguished guests heard him in person.

Flag in Solomons

Old Glory is raised over the embattled Solomon islands, eight months to the day after Pearl Harbor. This is the first territory that has been taken from the Japs since the sneak attack.

My Week by Eleanor Roosevelt

OF DOGS AND LANDLORDS As I write this I am in a mood when I wish that I could only see one side of a question. The other night a very important gentleman told me that he found it very difficult, because he could often see two sides to every question. It is certainly much more convenient to be a crusader and close your mind to everything but your own point of view. In the sad tale I am going to tell you, I would like to have only one point of view, though I know that there is another.

A lady writes me that she has a thoroughbred six-months-old Scottie dog she has trained and brought up from puppyhood. She is the wife of an officer and is trying to find a place to lay her head in overcrowded Washington, so that she can be with her husband until he is ordered away. But the "hard-hearted" real estate people, who sometimes refuse to rent apartments to people with babies, are even more adamant when it comes to dogs.

She agrees that if her dog became a nuisance to the neighbors, he should go, because she thinks that in that case the pet would also become a nuisance to her. She has no one to whom she can give the poor little Scottie, and the choice seems to be between getting rid of him, or seeking in vain for a place in which to live.

It will become anyone who lives in the house with Fala and knows what a joy a really well-behaved pet dog can be, even to consider the real estate owner's point of view for a second. But I do know that if you are running a crowded development and a great many people have pets, they make a difference to the grounds and mean added complications in the house for an often sorely tried manager. I am sure from the woman's letter that she would always have a well-trained and well-behaved dog. Unfortunately, everybody is not as considerate or capable.

Those of us who love dogs know that our greatest joy with them is usually in the country. To have a little dog in the city is not impossible. If you are alone, it is surely very comforting to have one friend on whom you can rely, who will never question your moods, nor your actions, but will simply look at you adoringly and lick your hand whenever you give him a chance.

I can only suggest trying to find a real estate owner who feels the same devotion to dogs that my respondent and I have in common because gas and rubber shortages make it impossible to move out of town.

SAVING 'WASTE' FOOD

I have a most interesting letter from some food sales consultants who make the point that if we are going to improve the nutrition of the country while the cost of living is going up, we must find ways of saving. They enclose a series of suggestions stating that there is practically no household in the country whose kitchen could not make savings which will amount to a great deal in the aggregate. I quote here one paragraph, which struck me as particularly interesting and made me want to investigate my own kitchen at once.

"What is waste, 'where' is it and 'how' can we put a stop to it? Waste is the withered potato lying in the bottom of the bag, multiplied by millions of other potatoes all over the country. Waste is the time out box of crackers reposing on the pantry shelf and that of my neighbor. These may sound like trivial examples, but the sum total of such minor wasteful habits from Maine to California have expanded our national 'waste-line' until it is around our necks and choking us out 3,500,000,000 food dollars each year."

AVIATION IN HIGH SCHOOLS

WASHINGTON. — The United States office of education is cooperating with high schools to make their pupils air-minded, and I have a long letter from Gould academies in Bethel, Maine, telling me about the aviation ground school course for their older students, which is beginning this fall. A teacher training course in aeronautics has been held at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo., and Gould academies is fortunate in having their teachers in physics and chemistry a graduate of this course.

Many schools will carry on similar courses for high school students with the purpose of developing in them a greater knowledge of the growth of aviation and of giving such basic preparation as they will need in aviation positions.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

The closing session of the assembly organized by the United States Committee of the International Student Service was a very moving meeting. The declaration which was drafted by the young people and their determination to keep a committee together to work in peace as well as in war, with all the various countries represented, shows faith and hope in the future.

I am sure that every one of the older generation said a fervent prayer last night.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON: Home guards throughout England are to have live ammunition for training with the weapons they will use in the event of invasion, a war office communique said. Within the next few months, millions of rounds of ammunition will be released for rifles, Sten guns, Lewis and Browning machine guns and Spigot mortars with which home guards have been trained.

OTTAWA: No relaxation of prices in Canada and no compromise in the fight against an inflationary increase in prices in commodities will be tolerated, Donald Gordon, price control head, declared. Canada's counterpart of Leon Henderson issued the statement following rumors to the effect that a breathing spell might be accorded to admit an adjustment of prices.

CHAPTER XIX

Clay had nothing to say. Reaching for his hat he left the room, crossing the darkened store and letting himself out to the porch. Habit made him reach into his pockets for his cigarette paper; he rolled up a smoke without giving it any thought. He was like this, sorry and confused and still stirred by Ann's kiss when he heard Jesse Rusey call out sharply:

"Heads up—heads up!"

That tone, from the silent Rusey, was a warning that made him drop his smoke and jerk around. He saw, first, the two Ryder brothers backed against the saloon wall, as though pushed against it; and then, his glance racing on, he found Rusey in the thick shadows by the hotel. Rusey had drawn his gun on the Ryders; he was holding them there. Morgan knew at once how it was, and backed against the store wall, sharply scanning all the roundabout shadows, his nerves quickening and his pulse striking hard in his neck. Swinging his head through a full half-circle he looked into the gray deserted shadows of Old Town and saw Herendeen slowly drop back around the corner of the blacksmith shop into darkness.

He remained in his tracks, knowing what lay before him yet puzzled that Herendeen should slide away as though avoiding him. He knew Herendeen thoroughly—the raw physical courage, the sullen will that drove him forward, the contempt he had for weakness, the hatred which for these ten years had governed his life and his actions. Thus this backward step into darkness seemed out of character. Thinking about it, Morgan looked along the street again and now noticed the shape of somebody outlined in a dark second-story window of the hotel. He didn't know who it was but he realized Herendeen had noticed the man and was protecting himself in the fight to come.

Morgan, hanging to his tracks, drew and fired. He saw Herendeen's gun kick up from its first shot; he saw the barrel steady again. The roar of the shots cracked along the street and somewhere men ran the walks recklessly. These were sensations that reached him all at once, these and the crash of a bullet into the wall behind him and the smell of powder. He had fired twice, still watching Herendeen's gun settle to a level pointing. But he fired no more, for he heard his shot strike home, releasing a quick small cough from Herendeen. The big man's gun dropped; he fired as it went down, the slug breaking up dust from the street. His shoulders fell back against the wall of the blacksmith shop and scrubbed along the boards. Morgan's bullet had knocked him back, and when he fell it was this way, slowly to a sitting position and then sidewise, as though wearily going to sleep. The shadows at the base of the building smothered him; all Morgan saw was the vague stain of his face.

The echoes of the firing had not yet died when men ran into the street, toward Morgan. Someone called: "Clay—that you?" He didn't answer, for he was paying his respects to Ben Herendeen—a man who had never known what fear was, a man who had waited for him, without trickery, to come up and end this quarrel. That, Morgan believed, had been the single great force in Ben Herendeen's life—his will to push aside, to destroy the one person who had ever taken from him anything he had wanted. He turned from the gathering crowd, walking back to the main street, fatigue beginning to spread through him. It was deep in his bones, it ran shallowly beneath his skin. Parr Gentry walked from the shadows of the hotel and confronted him. Parr said, in a smooth fatherly voice: "Well, Clay, I'm sure glad it wasn't you."

"Parr," said Morgan, "Vance Ketchell watched you go into the Potholes yesterday and he watched you come out. You met Hillhouse and spoke to him. After that Hillhouse went into the Potholes, and found Hack." He had no feeling in his voice. The words were slow and flat. "If you are still in this country tomorrow night you'll be dead."

Ann McGarrah was at the doorway of her store, watching Morgan. He paused in the dust, most of the energy and purpose out of him; it was the faint push of an old habit which swung him around, carried him through the Old Town to the cemetery, and took him to the foot of Lila's grave.

In this dark silence she was close to him, she was very real. Some things faded and some did not; her image was quite clear—that dark, dramatic face with the light of laughter veering so swiftly to the heavy shadows of despair and anger and tears. Childlike and womanlike by turns; hating herself and hating him for the mistake of a runaway marriage, and bearing it tragically while the short year went on, and dying with no love for him, no soft word.

But he remembered now a thought which had occurred to him earlier in the night. A man could not live forever in the past. One by one the links connecting him to it gave way. Hillhouse and Breathitt, who had ridden beside him through these earlier years, were dead. The sound of their voices was gone, their common memories were broken. Now Ben Herendeen was dead in the dust and at last, as he paused here in the wholly silver-shot fog, he felt adrift and free. There was nothing left of the old quarrel, the old fine times, the old adventures, the old songs. The last link of the past had broken and he realized that he was, at twenty-nine, a man looking ahead because there was no other way to look.

It affected him powerfully; it spilled something into his blood, like a chemical absorbing the virus of an old fever. Looking down at Lila's headboard he said, to her and to himself in a gentle voice:

"I guess that's all. What's gone is gone."

He had been gone from the ranch nearly two hours. When he came into the living room he found Padden ready to leave. Padden said: "That wasn't as bad as it looked. Lige is all right. Mrs. Lige just came."

"Where's Catherine?"

"Started home about fifteen minutes ago."

Jump came in. "I got the boys riding circle on the place. Fox Willing's out on the flats, behind the rocks."

"You can pull them in. It's all over."

"What?"

"I met Ben in town," said Morgan, and left the room at once. Jump followed him to the porch, calling "For God's sake, Morgan, tell a man . . ." Morgan curved around the yard and was lost in the fog.

Lige White's wife stood beside the bed, looking down at her husband. Padden closed the door definitely behind him as he left the room. Now she said: "You were on the way to town, weren't you, Lige? And then you changed your mind and started into a fight?"

"Well," he said, "it was a way of passing the time."

"I know. Time's been heavy on your hands these last years. And your house has been empty, hasn't it?"

He could smile, weak as he was. He still had his old flash of gallantry. "No house is empty with you in it, Grace."

"You're lying, Lige. I know why you were going to War Pass. I've known for a long time."

He laid a hand over his eyes. "I am not proud of that, Grace. God knows I hate dirt. But there are things . . ." He didn't go on with it; he had no way of explaining and so lay still.

She said: "This is the first time I ever saw you weak, the first time you have been helpless. Most all ways you have been so well, so full—and I've kept away from you. Sometimes you have frightened me, Lige. Sometimes you have made me feel ashamed. I have been a strange wife."

He said: "I saw a vase one time in a museum. It was a beautiful thing. The sort of a thing that gives a man a wallop to look at—to make him feel maybe there's a side of life he can't reach. I didn't touch it. Was afraid I'd break it if I did. That's you, Grace. I'm not complaining. I'm glad I've got as much of you as I do have." Then he said, slowly: "If I stray off the path, it is because a man like me belongs on the street, not in a museum. Looking at beautiful things ain't enough. I've got to have something to touch and use."

She showed the effect of his talk. It colored her cheeks; it put something close to tears in her eyes. She was a graceful, firm-bodied woman and even as he looked at her Lige White was stirred. She saw it. She saw the things it put in his face, and suddenly looked away. But a moment later she looked back, smiling. She pulled her shoulders expressively up, the color deepening on her face. "Always, Lige, you have come to me and always I've drawn back. That's our trouble, isn't it? Well, Lige . . ."

She made a gesture with her arms, as though pushing something away from her. She turned, dropping to the bed beside him. She lifted his head and slid her arm around his shoulders and, this close to him, showed him the long, straight glance of a wife who was desired, and desiring. "I've been afraid of too many things, I guess. Here I am, Lige, if it isn't too late."

Traveling westward on the trail to Dell Lake, which was also the trail to Crowfoot, Morgan came suddenly upon Catherine's horse standing riderless in the heavy-shining fog.

This was at the edge of the Mogul plateau, with the line of timber directly beyond. For a moment he had his deep fear of accident; then, coming up to the horse, he saw Catherine's shape against the trees. She had dismounted and sat now on the yellow-dry grass, looking toward him. He came before her, watching her face swing up. A moment later she rose, walking to him. She said nothing at the moment but her hand touched his arm and her face, pale and round in this light, showed its intent, drawn interest.

He said: "Why didn't you wait?"

"I thought that perhaps something held you in town."

"Yes," he said, "something did. I met Ben."

She came nearer, watching the familiar marks on his face, studying all the little signs she knew so well. So she knew what he had done, and said: "It's over then. That has been my prayer for so long—that it would be soon over. Go on back. There's nothing on this trail I'm afraid of."

He said: "Why do you suppose I came?"

She seemed to hold her breath. He saw her long lips tremble. Her shoulders straightened away from him. "Clay," she murmured, "say nothing you don't mean. I can't go through that again. To be as close as we were, with all that it meant to us then, and to lose it—I can't go through that again."

He said: "There is nothing between us now. Nothing except me, things you remember against me, Catherine."

A long breathing sigh came from her. She was smiling, this tall and robust and gay girl she was near him, her body still. She said: "Old times—new times. You have been a faithful man, Clay. I have never ceased to love you for it—even when there seemed nothing for me. Well, haven't I been faithful, too?"

She was there for him, she was waiting for him. When he put his arms around her and saw her head lift to him, swift and expectant, he felt the long rush of his youth again. When he kissed her it was as she had said: Something old, something new. Nothing had changed. The old wild sweetness was here, the same immense shock, the same feeling of a deep need satisfied. It passed between them and took the last loneliness, the incompleteness, the emptiness out of him. The ten years of waiting were finished; they were together.

ON THE HOME FRONT

With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

NOTE: These bedside tables are from BOOK 7 of the series of 32-page booklets that Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. BOOK 2 contains a complete alphabet for making monograms similar to the one on the bedspread. Books are 10 cents each. A hot iron transfer pattern for eight cornflower and poppy designs suitable for linens or for framing will be included with each order for two books. Address:

MRS. RUTH WYETH SPEARS Bedford Hills Drawer 10 New York

THESE orange crate bedside tables are useful and easy to make; they are very decorative, too, when fitted out as illustrated. These were lined with green oil cloth cut, fitted and pasted as shown. The full skirt pieces were tacked to the top of the sides and lapped a few inches around the back. A top cover with a three-inch frill all around was then added. The bedspread is trimmed with five-inch frills of the muslin and one-inch straight bands over seams and for the monograms.

Sail on Rum

Virtually every navy in the world gives its sailors a daily ration of rum, wine or some other alcoholic drink, an exception being the United States navy, in which the practice was abolished in 1862. However, the American boys may have as many as a dozen cups of coffee a day, although their average consumption is not more than six cups.

My Creed

I BELIEVE in nationally advertised brands. They are trusted friends in my house, for national advertising is a pledge of quality . . . a guarantee of the maker's good faith.

I believe that manufacturers who win millions of friends through advertising will never betray these friends by lessening quality . . . demanding unfair prices . . . or by substituting inferior ingredients.

I am going to show my approval by observing Nationally Advertised Brands Week*. I urge you all to join me in asking for nationally advertised brands that week . . . and every time you go into a drug store. It is the surest way to safeguard the health and happiness of your family.

YOUR GOVERNMENT URGES YOU TO AID IN WINNING THE WAR BY CONSERVING YOUR TIRES . . . YOUR CAR AND GASOLINE

Not many years ago our nation, our farmers, were using methods of transportation that are now obsolete. In recent years, our people have geared their business farming, their very lives to the steel, gas and rubber age. Now, we find ourselves a shortage of all three. To maintain our present mode of life through this emergency we must co-operate—that we may have tires and gasoline for our automobiles, tractors and trucks, steel for farm repairs.

Your Merchants invite your trade now, as never before. The more we trade at home the longer our motive vehicles will run, and the longer we can continue working together, making a living and winning a war.

CLEAN FIXTURES GIVE MORE LIGHT!

Here are three easy and economical ways to get more light from your present electric lighting fixtures without using vital war materials. They apply in the home, the store, office or factory.

1. Keep Bulbs and Shades Clean. Lamp bulbs, glass diffusing bowls and lamp shades collect a film of dust that greatly decreases the amount of light you receive. Use a damp cloth to keep bulbs and glass shades clean, and dust cloth and parchment shades frequently. You'll get as much as 20 per cent more light!
2. Use Light-Colored Shades. Lamp shades that are dark on the under side absorb light, while light-colored and white shade linings reflect light. Use shades on all lights, for they help direct more light on the book or newspaper you are reading.
3. Place the Light Near the Place it is Needed. The intensity of illumination decreases rapidly as the distance between the light and the object increases. Keep your lamp as close as practical for maximum illumination.

9. What famous general said: "My center is giving way, my right is pushed back—excellent! I'll attack!"
10. Of the 2,000 known species of snakes in the world, what per cent is harmless to man?

The Answers

1. Glass.
2. Fifty-six.
3. Argus.
4. Theodore Roosevelt. (He was forty-two.)
5. Portsmouth, N. H.
6. Mercury is the planet nearest the sun.
7. An illustration for a book.
8. By voluntary acquisition in 1898.
9. Foch (at the Battle of the Marne, 1918).
10. At least 70 per cent or 1,400 are harmless to man. Only 200 of the other 600 species possess a venom of sufficient virulence to cause death.

Are You Needlessly Suffering Constipation?

Many people think that constipation is "one of those things" you must put up with. That the only thing you can do is take a purge or cathartic—and hope it doesn't come soon again. How foolish that is if you, like millions of others, have the ordinary kind of constipation that's due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. Kellogg's All-Bran is probably just what you need! This crisp, delicious cereal has the "bulk"-forming properties your intestines need to function "regularly"! It gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it—helps you get back to normal, easy elimination. Eat All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and help free yourself from constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

Oranges for vitamins—'Sunkist' for quality

Oranges stamped "Sunkist" are the finest from 14,500 cooperating growers. And oranges are the best way to be sure of vitamin C. Few foods supply much. It's easily lost in cooking. Yet you need an abundance daily, since you do not store it. Oranges also have vitamins A, B and G; calcium, and other minerals. Buy Sunkist Oranges in quantity for juice and sugar-saving sweets. They keep.

Sunkist California Oranges

RED BALL ORANGES packed by Sunkist growers are a dependable brand of juicy, rich-flavored California oranges. Look for the trademark on skin or wrap.

JOSEPH: AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-15; 47:11, 12. GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending.

Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4). Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph—a deep movement of spirit—a solemn and often a sacred moment.

It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph.

How great and noble was the forgiving love of Joseph; an example to us, especially appropriate and needed in a world of hate and bitterness.

II. Grace Overrides Sin (vv. 5-8). The guilt of these men was none the less and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure.

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine.

Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmoved by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity.

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts, something we need. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude.

III. Kindness Provides the Best (vv. 9-15; 47:11, 12). It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough, Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47:11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness.

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families.

They fear lest their new-found friends in the circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and mother!

Joseph, who really had an exalted position gained by merit and by the blessing of God, never forgot his place before God as a son in the family and as a brother. Let us consider him and do likewise.

Household Hints

Suede garments should be kept dry if possible. If rain does catch them, let them dry away from heat, then brush in a circular motion with a wire brush.

To prevent mold from growing on stored fat be sure the container is dry, cook until the moisture is all out when cooking down the fat for storing, keep in a dry place.

To prepare uncoated iron or steel for painting, wire brush it, unless it is extremely corroded. In that case, crude oil or spent lubricating oil will loosen the rust.

Wash ice cream boxes, dry them and store seeds in them with the name written on the box along with any special planting information.

Furniture bought in piecemeal fashion on a small budget should serve as many purposes as conveniently possible and should lend itself to arrangement with added pieces.

MACK C. BRADLEY MARRIED AT RENO, NEVADA

Wedding vows were spoken by Miss Geneva Ruth Graham and Mack C. Bradley at the Baptist Church parsonage in Reno, Nevada, Sunday, Sept. 13, with the Rev. Brewster Adams officiating.

The double ring ceremony was read at 6 p. m. in a candlelight service with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bradley as attendants.

The bride wore an R.A.F. blue costume suit with white accessories. For something old she wore an antique gold locket of her mother's, which was also worn by her sister in her recent marriage. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Graham of Hobbs, N. M., formerly of Lubbock and O'Donnell.

She was graduated from the Lubbock high school and attended Teen college there.

Mr. Bradley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Bradley, was reared in O'Donnell. He was graduated from the local high school in 1938. Later he attended Texas Tech in Lubbock and also a technical school in Lincoln, Nebraska. At present he is employed by the Kaiser Shipbuilding Co. in Richmond, Calif.

The couple spent their honeymoon in the Sierra Nevadas at Lake Tahoe.

They are at home at 2333 Channing Way, Apt. 22, Berkeley, Calif.

KONGENIAL KLUB

Mrs. Burley Brewer was hostess Tuesday to members of the Kongenial Bridge Club at the L. T. Brewer home.

Colorful fall blossoms decorated the rooms where games of bridge were enjoyed.

At the tea hour, a salad, wafers, and beverages were served.

Those present were Mesdames Joe Garner, Elmer Daniel, Roy Everett, George Wall, Irvin Street and Brewer.

THANKS!

Miss Betty Tyler will receive the Press while in Lubbock, as her mother subscribed this week.

1939 STUDY CLUB

For the initial meeting of the 1942-43 year, members of the 1939 Study Club met September 17 in the home of Mrs. J. P. Bowlin with Mrs. R. R. Adams as co-hostess.

A covered dish luncheon was served at 1:30 and guests enjoyed an informal get-together.

Lovely fall roses decorated the rooms.

Mrs. J. T. Middleton Sr., the new president, spoke to the club on the aims and objects of the club.

Mrs. John Earles, past president, was presented a set of crystal goblets from the club. In a cleverly worded verse, Mrs. Burley Brewer made the presentation.

Those present were Mesdames Adams, Bowlin, Boyd, Brewer, Carroll, Coffee, Hagood, Howard, Koeninger, McLaurin, Middleton, Moore, Nichols, Wells, Pickens, Shoemaker, Hollowell and McDonald.

Mrs. Lenore M. Tunnell, county superintendent, was an out-of-town guest.

The club will meet Sept. 30 with Mrs. Waldo McLaurin.

W. M. U.

Members of the W. M. U. met at the Baptist Church Monday for their regular meeting.

A Mission program was conducted by Mrs. Cliff Lambert, Mission Study chairman.

Those present were Mesdames Vaughn, Middleton, McDonald, Edwards, Singleton, Debenport, Earles, Howard and Lambert.

W. M. U. business meeting. Mrs. Singleton had charge. Plans were made for an all-day program next Monday — covered dish luncheon and a box to be packed for Buckner's Orphans Home.

Those who haven't sent their gift please do so by next Monday. Any kind of clothing, linens, books or toys.

JOLLY DOZEN CLUB

For an enjoyable afternoon spent in knitting and sewing, members met at the home of Mrs. Shack Blocker Tuesday afternoon.

The rooms were decorated with lovely fall flowers.

In a business meeting, Mrs. J. A. Edwards was elected president and Mrs. Con Burns secretary-treasurer.

A delectable salad plate was served to the following: Mesdames Howard, Carroll, Koeninger, Yandell, Earles, Middleton, Goddard, Burns, Moore, and McDonald.

The next meeting will be October 6 at Mrs. J. T. Middleton's, when a covered dish luncheon will be held, and the quilt for the Red Cross finished.

TO ST. LOUIS

Mrs. Stansell Jones and daughter Jane, accompanied by Mrs. Jones' sister-in-law left Friday for St. Louis.

Chief Petty Officer Jones will meet them there. He has been stationed in Rhode Island with the Seabees.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation of the many acts of kindness and help rendered us during the illness and death of our beloved one. Also for the beautiful flowers and words of sympathy. We pray that each of you will have
