

O'DONNELL T-ENTERTAIN INTERSCHOLASTIC MEET

EDWARDS ACCEPTS POSITION AT CROSBYTON COMPLETES SIX YEARS' SCHOOL WORK HERE

D. A. Edwards, superintendent of the school system for the past several years, Monday evening signed a contract to fill that position at Crosbyton during the forthcoming year. Mr. Edwards has grown to be an important and dependable personage in this section here. During the six years that he acted as principal and district director, he came into the school and thoughts of his students as he given few men to do, and his service as superintendent has only broadened his field of influence.

In these six years he has been a major factor in the growth of the school. Growing from an enrollment only seventy-five, with only six one-half credits, the high school now has an enrollment close to the hundred mark, with more than fifty credits.

It is felt by all thinking people in the town that he has been large instrumental in bringing about the development. In addition to this growth, he has helped in the development of the modern, well-equipped $70,000 high school building, and was largely responsible for the addition of the Home Economic and Vocational Agriculture departments. He has proved himself a

TWO O'DONNELL STORES JOIN RED AND WHITE

In order to be able to buy, and in turn sell on a narrower margin of profit, two of our local stores have joined the national organization of Red and White Stores.

This organization consists of 20,000 retail independent merchants in the United States, and extends up into Canada. The organization has been coming this way some time, and for the last year or two has had stores on the North Plains, but did not seem to be pushed in this section. B. & O. Cash Store and "M" System grocery departments are now listed in this huge buying power here.

The new organization is sponsoring the organization of the Red and White System in West Texas, New Mexico and in Southwestern Oklahoma and expect to begin operations under the plan about April 1. It is estimated that between 800 and 1,000 stores in this section will enter the organization.

The Red and White, according to one of the local merchants "is a union of wholesalers, manufacturers and retailers, banded for group buying and advertising."

While the organization is a merger of purchasing power, there is not interfering with the member's method of doing business. He remains an independent merchant, using co-operative advertised brands. He can maintain his delivery and charge business, adopt the cash and carry method, use uniform signs, store arrangement and advertising may or may not be used.

The plan brings further economy in that principal business goes through one supply system. Members are kept posted on market conditions, and have their own buyers in the field buying in large quantities.

Several weeks ago, representatives of the two stores, B. L. Davis and Boss Johnson, were guests of the H. O. Wooten Wholesale grocery establishment, with headquarters in Abilene, and a number of branches in this section, to a trip to Denver to attend a convention of the Red and White stores at that place; to get first hand information from other dealers who were in the organization in that state. It seems that all organizations must do this, and with local talent at hand, the production should be very good indeed. Watch this paper for further announcements as to date and characters.

INTER-CLASS OPERETTA NOW UNDER WAY HERE

A clever operetta, "The Crimson Eyebrows" will be presented at an early date by members of the Junior and Senior classes of the high school under the direction of Mrs. Nina V. Berry and Mrs. H. B. Scott.

The cast of characters is not ready for announcement as we go to press, but will be announced later.

The directors are of the opinion that the operetta is one of the best for amateurs yet published, and with local talent at hand, the production should be very good indeed. Watch this paper for further announcements as to date and characters.

FIREBOYS STAGE MERRY CHASE MONDAY AFTERNOON

O'Donnell's crack volunteer fire department answered the alarm in record time Monday afternoon when a small, unoccupied box car house just west of the tracks burst into flames.

Origin of the fire is unknown, but it is believed that children had been playing in it, using matches as part of their equipment.

At any rate, the small structure was blazing happily along when the department reached the scene, but in a very short time only sudden embers scattered around in various places indicated the rather exciting end to somebody's "playing house". The building was not destroyed, but only the quick work of the fire department saved it.

Eagles Lose to Brownfield Cubs

The O'Donnell High School Eagles journeyed to Brownfield Monday afternoon and engaged the Brownfield Cubs in a thrilling track meet.

Although the Eagles came home with the short end of a 69-43 score they exhibited some fine work, especially in the running events. Their weakness in the field events and the handicap of running on a strange and sandy track cost the Eagles the meet. The boys are still working hard in preparation for the County Meet to be held in O'Donnell Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28.

Monday's scores resulted as follows:

Pole vault, Parker, Brownfield, L. Parr of O'Donnell and Neal of Brownfield tied for second place; discuss, Lane, Brownfield, Neal Brownfield; high jump, Parker, Brownfield, Petty, O'Donnell; shot put, Parker, Brownfield, Neal of Brownfield; javelin, Graham, Brownfield, Parr, O'Donnell; 120 high hurdles; Neal, Brownfield, Parker, Brownfield; 100 yd. dash, Christopher, O'Donnell, Neal, Brownfield, 880 yd. dash, Clayton, O'Donnell, and a Brownfield man tied; 220 low hurdles, Neal, Brownfield, Parker, Brownfield; 440 yd. dash, Christopher, O'Donnell, L. Parr, O'Donnell; 220 yard dash, Christopher, O'Donnell, Neal, Brownfield; Mile run, McKee, O'Donnell, Lane, Brownfield; mile relay, O'Donnell, L. Parr, J. Parr, Tredway, and Christopher.

PARM LOAN CHECKS BEING RECEIVED HERE

Up to Wednesday of this week some nine or ten checks for Government aid had already been received in the O'Donnell territory, with more coming in each day.

Eight of the above mentioned notes were received Tuesday. Business men state that they can already feel a difference in the atmosphere and spirit. With the assurance of the ability to make another crop, farmers are bending every effort toward diversification and better methods as well as better farming methods. Tracing is being used in this country as it has never been used before, and other differences in farming methods not so apparent are also being put into practice.

Fuel, seed, etc. seem to be the chief concerns of those receiving the checks, which is altogether as it should be.

This amount of money released in the country at this time, together with that being issued World War veterans, should tend materially to relieve the situation and mitigate the financial depression.

Other Farm Loan checks will doubtless be in the hands of their applicants before this paper goes to press and the Index rejoices with these families in the assurance that they will find the South Plains will be seeded for harvest.

And boy howdy! don't we hope the harvest is great and the price greater.

MR. SCOTT ILL IN LOUISIANA HOME

Dave and M. A. Scott and their sister, Mrs. Brown, left here shortly after noon Friday for Hope, La., where their father, W. H. Scott, was reported seriously ill.

Communications received here from them after their arrival indicate that they found him slightly improved. Mr. Scott wrote that they made the trip fine, in twenty-four hours, and arrived feeling none the worse for the trip.

He also said that other members of the family were skinning a forty pound catfish as he wrote, which seems to indicate that the party will not be home until several mornings.

The Index joins with other friends in rejoicing over the elder Mr. Scott's apparent return to health.

HERE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY MARCH 27TH--28TH COMPETATIVE INTEREST RUNNING HIGH

AUXILIARY SPECIAL MEETING WELL ATTENDED TUESDAY

Mrs. Van W. Stewart, chairman of the 18th district of the American Legion Auxiliary, spoke to a large group of local auxiliary members Tuesday evening at a special meeting held in the I. O. O. F. hall.

Her discussion was a general outline of the great work being undertaken by this body, covering child welfare, rehabilitation, legislation, Americanism, and Fidas.

A special call for clean old silk rags and old silk hose has been issued. These items will be sent to Fort Root, Ark., where mentally disabled veterans of the World War make them into rugs.

Mrs. Gay Bradley, president of the local auxiliary, said Wednesday that auxiliary members will call at every house sometime next week, and each person is asked to have a bundle of these articles, thus helping a worthy cause.

Contrary to plans announced last week, it was decided Monday that O'Donnell instead of Tahoka will entertain the County Interscholastic League meet here March 27 and 28.

For several years it has been the custom for the meet to be held in Tahoka because of its central location, but that city seemed to feel unable, or to be unwilling to care for it this year, and O'Donnell merchants at once got busy on the job of bringing it here.

According to the committee in charge of the plans, it is likely that O'Donnell and Tahoka will alternate as host from year to year, O'Donnell entertaining this year and next, with Tahoka as host the following year, etc.

The Chamber of Commerce sponsored the movement to bring the meet to O'Donnell this year, and that organization together with other business men will underwrite the expenses.

It is estimated that approximately seventy-five dollars will be needed to defray the expenses which will include medals, pennants, and in securing the judges for the various literary events. It is expected that a portion of that sum will be raised by popular contribution, though other plans are now being considered.

This will be one of the biggest things O'Donnell has ever undertaken.

"QUILTING PARTY" DATE ANNOUNCED—MARCH 21

The clever and unique feature sponsored by W. E. Guye Dry Goods store and known as a quilt party, will be held at the store Saturday, March 21st, unless the weather is inclement. In that case, further announcement will be made.

In case you are one among the few who do not know about such work, therefore, let me explain. To further interest in fine handwork and also the use of cotton goods, Mr. and Mrs. Guye fell upon the plan of holding a contest among the ladies of the town and surrounding communities who were interested in such work. Therefore, they announced and advertised through this paper that they would hold a party. And it will be a real party, with a program and, if possible, games, where everyone who cares to do so may examine and see the many intricacies of quilt making.

Ladies, judges, whose names are not yet ready for publication will decide which quilt is worthy of first place, etc. The distinction alone will be worth much, but it is generally understood that prizes will be given, and for the first place. At any rate, this is a wonderful opportunity to display one's skill with the needle.

Mrs. Guye said Wednesday that the number of quilts already in the store was extremely gratifying, indicating that much interest has been created. Many others are expected in by the end of the week. All ladies are urged to bring their specimens in as soon as possible in order that they may be displayed to the best advantage.

THREE-CORNERED MEET HERE FRIDAY

Beginning at 3:30 Friday afternoon, Brownfield, Tahoka, and O'Donnell will engage in a track meet here. Brownfield and O'Donnell met in a spirited scrap last Monday, and there seems to be several contests which will be even more hotly contested.

Tahoka's track men have not yet met, but the skill and speed of the local boys, but it is understood that that city has an exceedingly good team, one that will make the local boys crouch just a little lower on their marks, and get away for just a little more speed and stamina.

The coach and the boys are especially anxious that as many townspeople as possible be out Friday afternoon to witness these contests and support the local team. Several of them, especially in the running events are unusually good, and promise to cause quite a bit of excitement.

Christopher will act as timekeeper for O'Donnell for several years, is in good form again this year, and will give all comers a pretty good run for their money. Others are also out in fine fission, and this track meet will furnish sport fans many thrills.

The local county meet which will convene here March 27-28.

BILLINGTON MOVES SHOP TO NEW LOCATION THURSDAY

The Shoe and Boot shop owned and operated by F. A. Billington, which has been located next door to Whitsett Drug Store, moved across the street Thursday last week just as we went to press, and is now located next door to Welch's barber shop.

This will, perhaps be a more favorable location for Mr. Billington's work, and we feel sure that he will enjoy the change.

BAPTIST MEETING CLOSED HERE SUNDAY EVENING

The Baptist spring revival-closed here Sunday evening ending after a week of services held twice a day.

Pastor Jenkins said Wednesday that though there were no additions to the church during this season, nevertheless it is felt that much good has been done. There seems to be a quickening and revival of interest in this part of the country, and the children will maintain their home here.

The entire mattress-building equipment was located on Mr. Nelson's truck, and the whole thing moved one time.

ANY FAMILIES STILL NEED RED CROSS AID

Rev. W. O. Parr, chairman of the financing committee of the Community Chest and assistant in Red Cross work, said Tuesday evening at an approximately seventy families will still depend on the Red Cross for assistance, clothing, and shelter.

The number reached the alarming figure of 169 several weeks ago, but many of them have been able to secure aid from other sources. Sad to say, several families were referring to who did not really depend on the Red Cross.

These families have been helped from all Red Cross and Community Chest aid. Most of them would be unnecessary to state. Six families, unless the reporter got the number all mixed up, were cut off at the first of this week; which added to a number already cut off brings to a number above a hundred who have been cut off by the Red Cross authorities of this district.

This fact is deplorable. The mere idea that some persons have little pride as to ask for unneeded money, even though it is granted in the most business-like and cheerful manner, seems a reflection on all American institutions. Fortunately, such cases are few and far between, and are quickly weeded out.

The work accomplished by the all chapter of the American National Red Cross can hardly be estimated in psychological as well as material accounts. A fact that it is felt by everyone connected in any manner with this enterprise, which still maintains the standards of excellence it set during the trials and tribulations of the World War. More glory and honor to it.

TWO CHANGES MADE IN SCHOOL ELECTION NOTICE

Since the publishing of the School Election Notice last week, the state law governing the election has been changed. The public's attention is called to these changes, which are:

Trustees elected at this election will serve for a period of three years instead of two years as stated in the notice last week, and the polls shall open at 7 o'clock a. m. and remain open until 8 o'clock p. m., instead of closing at 7 p. m. as stated last week.

The president of the school board, W. L. Gardenhire, has received the notice of these changes of the law and accordingly the election this year will be held under the law that carries these two revisions.

PARR TO HOLD UNION MEETING AT QUAYLE

Rev. Walter O. Parr, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church of this place, will be absent next week as he will preach in a union meeting of Methodist, Baptist, and Christians at Quayle.

A member of the Index force assured him that with that many denominations holding the meeting and a Presbyterian doing the preaching, the whole affair should be called a religious hash.

BAPTIST BEGINNING BIBLE SCHOOL SUNDAY MORNING

Beginning Sunday morning, March 15, a Bible school or revival will be conducted at the First Baptist Church according to announcement made Wednesday morning by pastor, L. S. Jenkins.

Services will be conducted at ten o'clock each morning and at 7:30 each evening. W. F. Fry, who has been head of the Bible Department at Simons University for the past twenty years, will be in charge of the course, beginning Sunday evening.

The Rev. Mr. Jenkins extends a cordial and hearty invitation to members of the other churches to attend these services, and urges them to feel that the Baptist church is at all times ready to be of any service or help to any person in the town or community.

appeal to the people which, it seems is in the making.

Veteran political observers predict that power will be one of the ranking issues in 1932, actually exceeding in public interest in some states the discussion over prohibition. The disposition of Muscle Shoals will focus public attention on the general subject. The discussion will embrace a general debate on whether the government or private capital should participate in the future development of the nation.

Most people will not make the proper differentiation between government operation of Muscle Shoals and its participation in future developments. There is, however, a vast gulf between the two. As everybody knows, the Government expended millions of dollars on Muscle Shoals as a wartime measure and found itself, at the advent of peace, the owner of a valuable property. The question arose, what to do.

There were some who insisted that the Government should get out of business, turning over the wartime plant for the best offer that it could get from private sources. There were others who insisted that unless the Government receive a worthwhile bid, comparable to its value, that it should operate the plant rather than work off a tremendous loss. Another group insisted upon government operation regardless of all factors. As everyone can see, the second group might or might not favor government initiative in developing new hydro-electric plants.

The general question of power has been given impetus by the action of the newly created Federal Power Commission in dismissing several employees. This action set off the senatorial temper and caused the institution of a court action to determine whether the Senate could reconsider its confirmation of Chairman Smith. The fact that the House voted 289 to 93 in favor of a "lame duck" resolution is, we hope, evidence that a constitutional amendment will be submitted to the states for ratification. As readers know, it would change the date of succession of President and Vice-President and the meeting time for Congress. While the House vote was on a different resolution from that sponsored in the Senate by Senator Norris, it is believed that some acceptable resolution will go through.

Everyone is familiar with the fact that the present session of Congress was not composed of those elected last November but of the members who were elected in 1928. The newly elected Congress does not convene in regular session until December, 1931, about thirteen months after its election. This is plainly a travesty upon representative government. Citizens of every state should do what they can to bring about the prompt ratification of the "lame duck" amendment.

That prohibition will be widely agitated between now and the fall of 1932 is evident, with the certainty that both political parties will feel the effects of the fight. Already in Washington a new organization is being perfected by the advocates of prohibition. The wets are also busy. The Democrats face a terrific party fight if the question is raised in a decisive form in its next convention. While there is some Republican wet sentiment it is the opinion of this writer that the battle will not rage as fiercely in the ranks of the Republican Party and that the last word will be whatever President Hoover demands.

him during his career. Both of them have shown themselves to have the religious and civic interests of their town at heart, and both have been active in the work of the Methodist church, where they are members. Each teaches a class in Sunday school, and neither has ever failed when called upon for any worthwhile endeavor.

Mr. Edwards has been very active in the Masonic Lodges and Mrs. Edwards' place in the Eastern Star will be a place that will be hard to fill. O'Donnell deeply regrets losing this splendid family, to leave off the school system's part. Only the fact that a much increased salary with greater freedom to carry out certain cherished plans and ambitions for school work caused the change, can in any manner reconcile school patrons and students to the loss.

Mr. Edwards may have met persons who do not agree with his ideas of advancement and school growth; if so, he is asked not to remember the disagreeable things that may have come up, but rather to feel uplifted by the fact that nine-tenths of the people feel just as one young mother who rushed up to him with tears in her eyes and said, "Oh, Mr. Edwards, I did hope that you'd be here to sign W.'s and M.'s diplomas."

As the young ladies in question are not yet in school at all, Mr. Edwards evidently was due long stay, according to that mother.

Election of the remainder of the faculty will probably be deferred until after election of new trustees, according to information reaching this office. It is hoped that most of them will return for the coming year. In closing this article, the Index begs to be numbered among the many friends who regret to lose Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, even though to larger fields of endeavor, and also to wish them much success and happiness in their new home.

W. M.—told the fine people of Crosby County that they are to have one of the outstanding school men on the North Plains at the helm of their school the next year, and by giving this gentleman their hearty and unrestrained co-operation, that they may expect a red letter year in their school work during 1931-'32.

Carlsbad Cavern was visited by 1,762 persons during January, 1931. This number represents an increase over January 1930. People came from 42 states and 16 foreign countries. Texas furnished the greatest number of visitors, 535. During 1930 more than 90,000 visitors registered at the Cavern National Park.

Saturday afternoon soon after four o'clock, there assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bowlin, a group of some eight or ten giggling girls who called themselves, tramps.

And startled spectators can testify to the fact that they truly looked the part. Everything from a pair of "pegs" old shoes to false teeth helped to disguise the guests, who nevertheless, finally proved to be merely the club members. The tramps entertained themselves by pulling jokes of various kinds on each other and seeing which could act the silliest.

Dainty refreshments of red beans, corn bread, onions, buttermilk, and syrup and butter were served with knives as eating "artillery" to the following guests: Misses Wynona Huff, Ruth Roberts, Louise Miles, Elizabeth Turner, Aline McIlroy, Alice Busby, Hallie Lindsey, Kathryn Veazey, and Mrs. Mary Dell Vaughn.

TALKING FILM MADE OF "WHOOPEE." STAGE SMASH

Launching their newly formed partnership with a production of an unparalleled magnificence, Samuel Goldwyn and Florence Ziegfeld jointly present the renowned comedian, Eddie Cantor, in a picture titled "Whoopee," based on the famous stage success that ran for two years at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York. It will be shown at the Palace Theatre, Lamesa, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, March 15, 16, and 17.

Eddie Cantor's screen musical comedy, his first, is based on that uproarious farce, "The Nervous Wreck," which originated with "Whoopee" with the addition of William Anthony McGuire's lyrics and Walter Donaldson's tunes.

It is the first United Artists picture in technicolor and is said to represent the most advanced use of the most perfect example of the possibilities of the color screen yet made.

Cantor, as the hypochondriac who was "too sick to die," cavorts through his fevered romance of the wildest West, an unwilling victim of love at the hands of his nurse, played by the comely comedienne, Kiki Shutta. Pau Gregory, the most handsome of Broadway's songsters, shares the singing honors with Chief Capoulcain, renowned opera and concert tenor. George Olsen and his band set the rhythmic undertone to the piece.

The outstanding note of the first Ziegfeld-Goldwyn picture, after Cantor has had his say, is Girls. Never in Hollywood's rather girl-conscious history has a group of young ladies been selected with such meticulous care—face, form, contouring; all combined to give a resplendent and decorative femininity an eye-filling display that pales even the most ambitious of the girl-glorifying "Follies" that Mr. Ziegfeld now says he has foresworn in favor of the audible color screen.

H. E. DEPARTMENT TO HOLD STYLE SHOW SOON

According to announcements made this week, the Home Economics department of the high school is about ready to stage the annual spring style show. A contest has been under way among the girls as to which one will be able to show the best results for time spent.

Ladies of the town are asked to serve as judges in these events. Their names are asked to be withheld from the public for the time being. However, they will be strictly fair and non-partisan, and will endeavor to render the very wisest of decisions.

The exact date of the style show will be announced within the next few days. All the ladies of the town especially are cordially invited to be present. The show will be held in the high school auditorium.

IS THE SMALL TOWN MERCHANT LOSING OUT?

Of late a great many Texas editors have been asking that question. They ask it in all seriousness; they are genuinely alarmed about the survival of the small town.

To the small town editor, who sees his townsmen purchasing too much and too often from nearby cities, it is a serious matter. Everybody seems to take out; nobody seems to put in—and that's a dangerous condition, which it is, because it may mean a city where seventeen railroads and ninety-six steamship lines elbow.

As a matter of fact, no far-sighted city endorses any movement which threatens the prosperity and progress of the small towns which dot its hinterland. The big city is the most dependent and helpless of all political subdivisions. Its arteries are rooted in the towns and villages which surround it, and, when these towns and villages are ill-nourished, the city, too, is pretty certain to wither and decay.

The greatest enemy of the small town is not the nearby city; it is the small town citizen who hasn't learned that the only hundred-per-cent dollar is the dollar spent at home. Moreover, it is strange as it may seem, the worst offender frequently is the small-town merchant who neglects to practice what he preaches.

For an apparent saving of a few cents the thousand pieces, there are an astonishing number of small-town merchants who put letterheads and envelopes from the cut-rate printers of distant cities, or envelopes from the government. Does that dollar come home to roost? It does not. Does the out-of-town printer's employees spend his share of the dollar with the home-town merchants? He does not. Does the out-of-town printer himself contribute to the home-town improvement, program the local churches, the schools, the Community Chest, or the local Red Cross? He does not. Does he bank his profits with the home-town bank? Again, he does not.

If home-town people would develop a sense of home-town loyalty, all this talk of the "small-town losing out" would be the emptiest sort of prattle. There never was a time when so much opportunity for development and growth was offered enterprising communities. Texas' only glass factory is located in a relatively small town as are her two greatest sugar refineries—in point-of-fact, high tension lines of the transmission of electric power have wiped out the small town's disadvantages and emphasized its advantages.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The city of Chicago boasts more factories than the entire state of Texas. With an investment of something like half-a-dollar in Texas hides, St. Louis manages to sell us eight dollars worth of shoes; and the frugal New England buys fifteen cents worth of Texas grown wool and ships us back a forty dollar suit of clothes.

Facts such as these do credit to the ingenuity and enterprise of other states, but they are a reflection upon Texas.

The value added by manufacture frequently is greater than the original value of the raw material. Because she consistently loses this great value which is created by skilled hands and factory machinery, Texas today is, by comparison, a very thinly populated state.

The products of the field are the raw materials of the factory, and Texas too long has offered her agricultural products upon the altar of another state's industrial preeminence. It lies within the power of Texas to be a great industrial as well as a great agricultural state. But we have got to learn to think in terms of the finished product instead of the raw material; we've got to think of shoes instead of hides, yards of cloth instead of pounds of wool or bales of cotton.

The highest intellectual effort undertaken by some voters is trying to pick the winner of a horse race.

In a few months there will be many city gardens abandoned to whatever nature will let them do.

Lesson for March 15

JESUS AMONG FRIENDS AND FOES

GOLDEN TEXT—He is my friend, if ye do whatsoever I command you. LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-43; 11:14-15. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Among His Friends. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Test of Friendship. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Friendship With Jesus. ADULT TOPIC—Dealing With Friend and Foe.

1. Jesus in the Home of Friends (Luke 10:38-42).

There is no place where true character is so clearly revealed as at home. 1. His reception (v. 38). Jesus was received by Martha, as was the head of the home. Jesus must have greatly appreciated the fact that there was one home in which he was welcome. 2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). She, with fine spiritual discernment, knew that sitting at the Lord's feet and hearing his word was that which would most please him. He was more concerned with opportunity to reveal himself to human hearts than with the eating of well-bred meals. Mary's way of entertaining Jesus was more acceptable than that of Martha.

3. Martha cumbered about much serving (v. 40). Both sisters loved the Lord. It would be impossible to say which loved the more, but Martha was bent on providing a fine meal for him. Because she was trying to do so many things, she was on the verge of distraction, and found fault with Jesus for permitting Mary to leave the kitchen to listen to his teaching.

4. Jesus' answer (v. 41, 42). (a) He rebuked Martha (v. 41). He did this most tenderly for he knew that she loved him sincerely. (b) Defends Mary (v. 42). He declared that but one thing was useful and that Mary had done that. That good part which could not be taken away from her. The one thing useful for every member of the race is a heart for the Lord which brings the individual to Jesus to hear his teaching.

5. Jesus Among Foes (11:14-15). 1. Charged with being in league with the devil (v. 14-23). Being unwilling to receive him as the Son of God and yet unable to account for his mighty works, they declared that he was casting out demons through Beelzebub, the chief of the demons. 2. Heretics to believe his miracles (v. 29-32). They asked for a sign which he replied that they would have a sign from heaven in his death and resurrection. He reminded them, however, that their request showed unbelief surpassing that of the heathen queen of the South and the wicked people of Nineveh.

6. Wickedness denounced (v. 37-54). He pronounced six woes upon those who were opposing him and seeking his destruction: three upon the Pharisees and three upon the lawyers. a. The Pharisees (v. 37-43). These he denounced for: (1) Punctiliously observing minute rites while at the same time breaking the Ten Commandments. They carefully tithe the small herbs of the garden while practicing injustice with their fellow men and withholding love from God. He pointed out to them their attending to these external acts while their hearts were filled with wickedness. It was as absurd as merely washing the outside of an unclean cup. (2) Desire for public recognition (v. 43). This is a common sin today. Love for titles of respect and positions of prominence is a very common sin. (3) Feigning humility (v. 44). He compared their hypocrisy to graves which are on the ground and may be stepped upon unconsciously by some one who would thus be defiled. b. The lawyers (v. 45-54). The strictures of Jesus on the hypocritical Pharisees angered the lawyers, one of whom indignantly declared, "Thou reproachest us also." In reply to this Christ pronounced three woes upon them:

(1) For placing burdensome requirements upon the people which they themselves would not submit (v. 46). Religious rites should not be made irksome. (2) For the murder of God's prophets (v. 47-51). He showed that their attitude toward him was the same as was shown to the prophets by their fathers. Jesus declared that their guilt was the same as that of their fathers and that their generation would be held responsible for all that the fathers had done. (3) For keeping back the knowledge of God by false interpretations of the Scripture (v. 52-54).

WHITE FEATHERS

"I didn't say that I was merely the beautiful whooping crane," the Whooping Crane said. "I remarked that I was the most beautiful crane—meaning you Brown Crane, the demoiseelle crane, the sandhill crane, the Atlantic white crane.

"Yes, know they come from a country they call Asia, and the demoiseelle—the small crane—comes from a country named Africa."

"Yes," said the Brown Crane, "you are the most beautiful around these parts."

"But you couldn't compare yourself with the paradise crane or the crowned crane, for instance.

"I am proud of my own white feathers, my black legs and beak. My wing feathers are particularly lovely, and I am quite a rare bird, too.

"Ah, I don't make myself common as the sparrow does. When I am seen it is a treat."

"You like yourself pretty well," said the Brown Crane. "Don't you?"

"I must admit I do," said the Whooping Crane. "I can't help it."

"My feathers are so white and lovely," said the Brown Crane. "It's just as well you admit it," said the Brown Crane, "for when a creature has boasted as much as you have it would be foolish to say you didn't think well of yourself."

"Of course it would," said the Whooping Crane. And then he gave a great and terrific call.

"I never knew you had such a voice," said the Brown Crane.

"Ah, isn't it noble and lovely? I could be a king with such a great and commanding voice as I have.

"Yes, I could be called King Whooping Crane. Of course I never am called by such an honorable name."

"You know, Whooping Crane," said Mr. Brown Crane, "that I didn't say I thought your voice was lovely."

The Brown Crane grinned as he thought how brave he had been to tell the Whooping Crane this, just after he had said he could be called king.

"What do you think?" asked Mr. Whooping Crane. "I said that I never knew you had such a voice.

"And I must not use your voice!" "Why you could be heard almost a mile away."

"I could indeed," said the Whooping Crane.

"I know," said Mr. Brown Crane, after a moment.

"What do you know?" asked Mr. Whooping Crane. "I wouldn't say that you know much—not before his very eyes to appreciate a glorious voice."

"You mean a good, loud voice," said Mr. Brown Crane. "And that, of course, is why you are called Whooping Crane."

"That's what I know! It means your voice can be heard a great distance away—it sounds like a regular whoop—so you have that name."

But, Mr. Whooping Crane went on to tell about himself, how he summured in the Arctic region and came south in the winter time, and of the great power of his voice and the beauty of his white feathers.

A Trick to Try

You can mystify your friends quite easily with this cunning needle trick, though you will have to prepare everything before you show it to them.

Get an old box—a shoe box will do—and cut off the bottom, replacing it with a sheet of paper. Push a pin on top of the paper lay a needle, and keep hidden in your hand a magnet.

Tell your chum that you can move the needle about just anywhere on the paper without touching it. Naturally he'll just marvel at your statement; in fact, I don't suppose he'll believe you until he sees the needle actually move about before his very eyes. And all you have to do is to move the magnet about beneath the box and the needle moves with it.

WAR WIDOWS OF 1812

Ten women are still on the pension rolls as a result of the War of 1812, according to a report from Washington. Nine are widows of veterans and one is a daughter. Ages of the widow range from 71 to 90 years, while the daughter is 73. The pensions average $48 a month. They are: Arminia Anderson, Cedar Grove, Ga.; Marion Clark, Iowa City, Iowa; Mary Coleman, Claudiville, Va.; Mary Isgrig, Cincinnati, Ohio; Caroline King, East Aurora, N. Y.; Emma Mann, Greenbrush, Mass.; Mary Williams, Philadelphia, Pa.; Elizabeth Huron, Indianapolis, Ind., widows, and Ester Morgan, Independence, Ore., daughter.

Thus Uncle Sam is not quite finished paying for a war that ended more than 116 years ago. Actual veterans were on the pension roll more than 90 years after that war, the last one, Hiram Cronk of Ava, N. Y., having died in 1906 at the age of 105.

Blending makes it better
CONOCO
The best gasoline, too, is blended. In the process of a modern refinery three types of gasoline are produced. They are, Natural Gasoline, Straight-run Gasoline, and Cracked Gasoline. Each possesses certain desirable qualities necessary for perfect motor operation... but... no one of them possesses all these wanted characteristics. So CONOCO Gasoline is a blend of the three. There is Natural Gasoline, to give quick starting. There is Straight-run Gasoline, to give power and long-mileage. There is Cracked Gasoline, with its desirable anti-knock quality. Just as carefully as the perfume blender at his delicate task, CONOCO refiners have developed their balanced blend of these three ingredients. There is the gift of knowing how to merge the qualities of the three gasolines to create a balanced, triple-test fuel. One brand of coffee outsells all others because of the expertness of its blender. And so, with CONOCO Balanced-Blend Gasoline, the knowledge and genius of the blender accounts for the popularity of the product. Stop today at the sign of the CONOCO Red Triangle and have your gas tank filled with this better motor fuel.

The FIGHTING TENDERFOOT

WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE
W. M. S. SERVICE

"Why then I reckon I'll be number seventeen for him," Ingram finished seriously.

Phillips drew up to deflect for the Circle S O. "Well, they claim threat-ment folks live long. Maybe so, Adios."

The other two struck a road gait across the mesa.

They talked—casually of one topic and another: the number of beaves the gather would total, the need of rain, the best route along which to send the San Jacinto drive in order to get good grass. As Ingram talked, his keen eyes searched the wooded hill slopes and the arroyos filled with scrub oak.

He might appear to take Quantrell's threats lightly, but he had no intention of offering himself as an easy mark.

They were dropping down a hill to the road which swung around a bluff to the ranch. The horses picked their way slowly through the rubble ready to start sliding at the least pressure. Knowing how sure-footed their mounts were, both riders leaned back and gave them their heads.

They reached the red road ribbon, then turned to follow it as it curved the base of the butte. Presently they could see the luddled buildings of the ranch and the windmill shining in the setting sun.

Three twisted cedars hugged the shale cliff close to the road. A man and a horse were in the cedars. The heart had dismounted.

Roche pulled to a sudden halt. The man in him died under his ribs. The man in the cedars was Bob Quantrell and he held in his hands a shotgun. It was a double-barreled one. That his cartridges were loaded with buck-shot the cowboy did not need to be told. The outlaw paid no attention to Roche. He looked at the man who had fogged him, and it seemed to the vaquero that a red-hot devil of rage glared out of his eyes. But when he spoke his voice was low and almost casual, yet somehow malignantly sinister.

"Like I promised you, Dave, me an' you alone."

Ingram must have known that he was a dead man. At that distance Quantrell could not miss. The young ruffian who stood there taunting him would pull the trigger long before he could drag the rifle from its scabbard, before even he could flash a six-shooter into the light. Ingram's decision was instant, and it was characteristic of the man. He took the one forlorn fighting chance that offered.

Flinging his body from the saddle head first, the outlaw's clutching fingers plucked out a revolver as he dived for the ground. A gun roared, and a dozen buckshot tore through Ingram's side while he was still in the air. His moments were to be counted on the fingers of two hands, and he knew it. But his indomitable will for one instant stronger than death. He stretched himself on his left forearm, raised the weapon jerkily, and fired. Simultaneously, or perhaps a fraction of a second later, came the roar of the shotgun.

He stretched himself on his left forearm, raised the weapon jerkily, and fired. Simultaneously, or perhaps a fraction of a second later, came the roar of the shotgun.

Quantrell reached for his revolver. Roche was flying in a panic down the road toward the Diamond T. The killer's tasks showed in a grin, one not pleasant to see. He shuffled his bow-legged way forward, and in a sudden fury of rage flung three bullets into the dead body.

"Maybe you'll not be so handy with a quit from now on," he spat out venomously.

The outlaw could not stay in enjoy my own son" the third said. "If I don't too late I'll take a job with a troll outfit in the Panhandle. A friend of mine's brother is foreman. Anyways, I'll shake a hoof for Tassoco, an' glad to get away at that. I mean right now, ever since Bob bumped off Ingram."

So it happened that within six weeks of the appointment of O'Hara the Quantrell gang was dissolved and sent its members to the penitentiary. The sheriff got some credit for this because of his activity in organizing and directing the posse that had kept the outlaws on the jump, but he knew he still had to justify his selection in the eyes of the old-timers.

This he proceeded to do. There were other rustlers, horse thieves, and criminals in his district. Some of both were nesters in the hills. Others had their headquarters at Concho. Against these O'Hara waged continuous warfare if he could prove that they had lifted a hand to do any lawless act, or that they were in the way of the end of the war.

Deever drifted down to Concho and joined the group of bad men who still hung around. He relied on the fact that there was very little defiance evident that he had been one of Quantrell's men. That he had been with them now and again he did not deny, but never while the gang had been engaged in rustling or any other lawlessness.

O'Hara had adopted much more than Smith-Bereford the habit of life of those about him. He wore corduroy trousers thrust into the tops of cowboy boots, a pinched-in Stetson hat, and a gray flannel shirt. A 45-caliber Colt six-shooter sagged from a belt fastened above his hips. His face had become as brown as coffee. His muscles were hard and plant as if from the tough buckskin peg pony he rode. But the change in him was more than physical. It extended to his mental reactions. Two months ago, for instance, he would never have taken with Deever the high-handed course he took now.

It was evening when he drifted into the Circle S. The place buzzed with activity. A poker game was in progress near the back door, by which way the sheriff had entered. Some young cowboys were trying their luck with a pair of professional gamblers. A faro game was running and also one of Mexican monte. Men were lined up beside the bar drinking.

O'Hara nodded to one and another of those who knew him. He was on friendly terms with a good many citizens. Most honest men liked this quiet, amiable young man who had proved unambiguously that he had nerves.

He stopped at the faro table just back of the man he had come to see. Deever looked around. "Don't put your foot on the rung of my chair," he growled. "I'm kinda superstitious, young fellow."

"All right, I won't," O'Hara promised pleasantly. "You about through playing?"

"What's eatin' you? Want my seat?"

"Not tonight. Don't let me hurry you. When you're through I've got a few words to say to you."

Deever slewed around in his chair. "Speak your piece right out in meetha, fellow. I got nothing to say to you that can't be said before everybody."

"Just as you please, Deever." The sheriff's voice did not lose its amiability in the least. "What I wanted to say was that you are to get out of this country inside of twenty-four hours."

"Me! What for?" The squat cowboy rose to his feet and faced the officer. His hands eyes narrowed. "I don't have to get out on your say-so."

"No, you can stay. But I wouldn't if I were you. Take a straight tip and hit the trail. This climate is unhealthy for you."

"Why? Because some squirt of a tenderfoot sheriff says so?" Deever's manner was menacing, his voice harsh.

His suspended their card playing and their drinking to watch this drama. Red tragedy might flame out of it at any moment.

"That's it, Deever. You've guessed it first time," O'Hara still spoke gently, almost smilingly, but what he said rang out clear as a bell. "Because this tenderfoot sheriff says so. Get out. Inside of twenty-four hours, as I said."

"An' if I don't?"

The sheriff shook his head. "No 'if' about it. You're checking out?"

"If was so quiet, comfident that Deever wavered. The outlaw knew Concho had a change of heart. If he followed his impulse, called for a showup and shot O'Hara, very likely he would never leave town alive. For a moment his glance sidled around the room, looking for the men who might be expected to stand with him. What he saw gave him small comfort.

A score of men were watching him, but what they were thinking behind those steady eyes he could not tell.

"You're the big sugar round here now, are you?" jeered the outlaw. "Because Wes Steelman got you appointed to a two-by-four job. Say, lawd, don't get heavy with me. It ain't supposed to be safe."

"Safe for you?" asked O'Hara, his brown eyes never lifting from the outlaw's face. "Listen, Deever. Here's the layout. Don't try to crowd your luck here. You're bucked out in this county. Get out, or I'll throw you into jail."

jumpin' horn' told, you're sure one self-satisfied. Betcha, my side-face mare against a dollar bet that Concho will lose one of its sure-enough bully puss warriors right soon, say within twenty-four hours."

"I think you're agreed O'Hara nonchalantly. "How's the freighting business these days, Steve?"

"Looks' up again, like sheriffin'." Worrall grinned. "Say, young fellow, you're sure a tonic to an old store-up stonker like me. Travelin' with you would make a jackrabbit split in a wildcat's eye."

"Come on, Steve, I want to have a powwow with you," O'Hara said. He slipped an arm under the tall man's elbow and the two walked out of the Gold Nugget together.

The prediction of Steve Worrall turned out to be a true one. In the dark hours of the night Deever slipped out of town and departed for parts unknown.

"Dad burn it, I got to light a stunk," he told himself. "But if I ever get to crack at this pligrin O'Hara I'll send him a through ticket to Kingdom Come."

After which he slapped a saddle on a bronco and decamped.

This enhanced the new sheriff's reputation tremendously. The people of Concho could not follow the workings of Deever's mind. What reached them was that O'Hara had served a term on this outlaw, one of the most vicious of the bad men, to get out of town within a specified time and that the fellow had not waited to challenge the ultimatum. They deduced that he was afraid of the sheriff.

As the months passed O'Hara, assisted by public sentiment, cleaned up the town. There were still occasional shooting affairs, but they did not have the sanction of community support.

O'Hara was kept so busy that for months he did not find time to pay more than one or two flying visits to the Circle S O. His partner, Smith-Bereford, was managing the ranch, with some advice from Wesley Steelman, and he was doing so well that it began to look as though he might escape the usual fate of wealthy Englishmen who went into cows in the West.

It was nearly nine months after the death of Ingram that a cowboy from the Diamond Tail brought the sheriff news, not entirely unexpected. Barbara had given birth to a boy, weight eighty pounds.

Since the day of the funeral O'Hara had not set eyes on Barbara. His excuse had been that he was too busy. But the real reason was that he did not know whether he could keep his eyes from telling her what was in his heart. Now he could no longer decently stay away. At the first opportunity he rode out to the Diamond Tail.

At sight of Barbara the blood rushed stormily to his heart. He knew that he was betraying himself, yet that he could not help it. He would choke in his throat and he could find nothing to say. In his brown hand he held the one she had given him, and as he looked at her a slow flush crept into his cheeks.

The demand for Natural Gas for household use is Extremely Valuable!

For example, the quantity of gas used by domestic consumers in January may be six or seven times the quantity used by these consumers in August, and if good service is to be rendered at all times, the capacity of distribution system must be sufficient to meet the maximum demand.

This means that a natural gas system largely dependent upon domestic sales must work far below its capacity throughout most of the year. The cost of supplying natural gas includes the expense of standing ready to serve in addition to the cost of the gas, and payment for Natural Gas should be on a basis that recognizes both service and commodity features and provides that each consumer shall carry his fair share of the burden of cost.

CONOCO TO DEDICATE PROGRAM TO SOUTHWEST

Dedicated to the Southwest, the next program of the Conoco Listeners' Hour, weekly broadcast sponsored by the Continental Oil Co., will feature songs typical of that section of the country; its charms will be described, and motor travelers will be urged to include it on their summer vacation schedule.

Peggy and Pat evolved the idea of dedicating some of the programs to various sections of the country since many listeners requested songs typical of their own region. Further broadcasts will salute other sections of the country which are of unusual interest to motorists.

The program will be the 16th of the series. Peggy and Pat—the representatives of the radio audience—will, as usual, direct the program in accordance with requests from listeners. The Conoco orchestra and the quartet will be featured.

Tune in next Monday evening, March 16, for this broadcast, transmitted in this territory by station WFAA, Dallas, at 6:30. The program can also be heard Tuesday evening at 8 from KFRO, Abilene, and Friday at 12:30 p. m. from KFTL, Dublin.

He didn't get away
He just didn't bite

B. L. Davis and L. E. Robinson returned Wednesday morning from a fishing trip of short duration in the southwest. A lack of foresight on their part caused them to leave the most essential part of a fisherman's equipment—their Liar's License—and as a consequence they couldn't even tell about the big ones that got away.

B. L. Declares that such an accident won't happen again as far as he's concerned, because when he goes fishing he either wants results or wants to explain how old grandpa got away. Better luck next time, boys, and we'll give you credit for telling the truth, however, that isn't orthodox.

More than 73,000 miles in a New Ford

THE substantial worth of the new Ford is reflected in its good performance, economy and reliability. Its stamina and endurance are particularly apparent in sections where bad roads and severe weather put a heavy extra burden on the automobile.

In less than a year a new Ford Tudor Sedan was driven more than seventy-three thousand miles over a difficult route. The operating cost per mile was very low and practically the only expense for repairs was for new piston rings and a new bearing for the generator.

The car carried an average load of 1200 pounds of mail and was driven 250 miles daily. "The Ford has never failed to go when I was ready," writes one of the three mail carriers operating the car. "The starter did the trick last winter even at 34 degrees below zero. The gas runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer whenever I have a bulky load."

Many other Ford owners report the same satisfactory performance. Every part has been made to endure — to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles.

Tennis courts with backstops, hurdles, and various other pieces of such equipment will be used this year during the meet and will be left for the convenience of the local schools. Such equipment will be the solution to what becomes of perhaps sixty per cent of the funds raised.

About half the amount has already been raised, and the remainder will probably be raised this week. Be ready when the committee calls on you.

ONE YEAR IN O'DONNELL
(Rev. W. O. Parr)

Just a little over a year ago I arrived in O'Donnell with my wife and babies to make my home. As I look back through the year, we have had much to be thankful for. It has been a year of hard work. We have not sold as much result as we would have liked to, but we can see a number of improvements in some lines.

I said, it had been a hard year's work, the hardest of my 10 years in the ministry, but it has made me a stronger man in some respects. I have worked harder for humanity than ever before, especially in the last 60 days, through the Red Cross and helping the farmers to get lined up for a loan from the Government.

The most of our work has been pleasant, it has had some bitter along with the sweet, to make us enjoy the sweet more I suppose. The church has made great progress, considering the handicaps we have had, in not having a church of our own.

We had hoped before now to have a new building, but the depression hit us as a church like it did all the rest. However, we still have faith and believe before this year is gone the town will have a new church in it. Our Sunday school is almost too large for the building we have now; our enrollment went to 78 last Sunday. If all should be there, we surely would have a full house.

I do not know how long I will remain here, but I do know I want to help my fellow man and brother while here. The Session met sometime ago and extended a call for another year, and if the Lord is willing I hope to stay at least that long.

I take this opportunity to express my appreciation to one and all for each kindness shown me and mine through the past year, and ask you to look over the mistakes that have been made and try to see the good we have tried to do.

We will have services at both hours Sunday, we had a nice crowd last Sunday, but room for you. Meet us at church.

Six Years Ago

News items taken from files of The O'Donnell Index published here six years ago.

FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1926

Construction of a two-story brick building on Baldridge St., was begun, the building to be occupied by a store and the newly-organized Odd Fellows' Lodge.

Charles Minton had been awarded the contract for carrying mail on the newly-established route to Tredway.

J. M. Christopher was planning construction of a brick building on Eighth Street.

Phillips, Parker, & Phillips contractors, were at work on the Sanderson building on the corner of Doak and 8th St.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Minton, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Miles were visiting in Eagle Lake and other South-eastern points, including the Rio Valley.

14,044 bales of cotton were ginned in O'Donnell that season.

COSTUMES COSTING $1000 EACH USED IN "WHOOPEE"

It is no cinch to costume a production the size and lavishness of "Whoopee," the Samuel Goldwyn-Florenz Ziegfeld musical sensation; starring Eddie Cantor, which comes to the Palace Theatre, Lamesa on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, March 13, 14, and 17. Many of the costumes designed by John Hartridge, in charge of costuming "Whoopee" cost toward a thousand dollars and are to be manufactured as carefully as a wedding dress.

The mere scale of the production produced the necessity for getting such items as forty-five pairs of blue and white cowboy leggings exact alike, 250 station hats of the same make and patterns, costing fifty dollars apiece and 350 Colt's revolvers, an order which caused the Columbia Arms company to wonder who was starting a revolution in South California.

NEW MEMORIAL STAMP

Three new memorial stamps have been either issued or authorized by the Post Office department this year, and about a score of applications for others have been filed. The three will commemorate the services of General Pulaski, the 50th anniversary of the Red Cross and the surrender of Lord Cornwallis 150 years ago.

Next year it is planned to issue 12 memorial stamps in connection with the celebration of the 200th anniversary of Washington's birthday, and the coining of a silver quarter bearing his likeness is also proposed.

If the event commemorated is considered of sufficient importance, the issue of such stamps is generally looked upon with favor by the department, as many thousands of such stamps are gathered by collectors and never used, so that Uncle Sam makes money by their transaction.
