THE OLD TIMER WRITES

Reminiscent of the good (?) of days when men were men and earned their bread by the sweat of their brow, or did without, said bread - back when tractors were unheard, undreamed-of, when plows could hardly pull a plow sufficiently deep in the now famous Fred way community soil to so much as tease the then dreaded blueweeds, is this tale hinged.

One, Bill Brown, now Justice of the Peace, of O'Donnell was, along with a bunch of his neighbors wondering just how on earth he was going to get out of debt. He owed a Lamesa merchant several hundred dollars. Not many letters were written in those days but word was sent to Brown "To please come to see me."

With terrible misgivings he called on his creditor, who believe it or not, said, "I am going to Calif and I orna for a loan visit. You would like to loan you a thousand dollars to help in making a crop? The venerable creditor is none other than R. D. Simpson, long since retired Lamesan.

Prevention Is Urged

It is a tragedy that Texas parents continue to allow their babies to suffer and die from that painful and killing disease diphtheria. This is the opinion of the State Health Officer who says "It is up to the parents. If they protect their child with immunization, they need not have diphtheria."

Dr. Cox said that it is amazing that this disease should be allowed to take its toll of young lives when it can be entirely stamped out by proper immunization. Yet in the past week, 33 cases were reported in this state.

Babies should be immunized by the age of 8 or 9 months. Authorities on the care of infants recommend a first dose by the age of 9 months and sometimes as early as 6 months. A second dose is usually given later. To maintain complete immunity a reinforcing dose of toxoid is advised when a child is old enough to enter school if a Schick test reveals the need of one. Children who have never been immunized certainly should be protected without any further delay and it is the responsibility of the parents to save the lives of their children.

Texas Nat'l Cemetery Is Enlarged

All the Texas dead of the past war, returned for permanent burial could be buried in the national cemetery at Ft. Sam Houston and still leave plenty of space, officials of the American Graves Registration Division at San Antonio declared recently.

The statement was prompted by recurrent rumors in various sections of Texas that the national cemetery at Ft. Sam Houston is now filled to capacity and that no more war dead can be buried there.

American Graves Registration officials estimate that approximately 7,000 Texans, killed during the past war, will be returned to this country for reburial. The national cemetery at Ft. Sam Houston is now undergoing an expansion program that will provide space for about 10,000 graves.

Lewis Battles Taft-Hartley Law; Baruch Sees 'Total Mobilization'; Eisenhower Repeats His Refusal

Re-based by WNU Features

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

LABOR:

Lewis Fight

John L. Lewis and the Taft-Hartley law were locked in a mortal struggle.

His United Mine Workers were still out of the pits in a "voluntary" objection to the companies' alleged refusal to provide them with a $100-a-month pension plan. Most of the 400,000 miners were out fishing. Lewis himself was out gunning for the Taft-Hartley law, enactment of which was largely the result of his activities in the first place.

After the miners had gone out, President Truman, acting under the Taft-Hartley law, had appointed a fact-finding board to investigate the difficulties. But when the board asked John L. Lewis to testify, he refused.

Then the board issued a subpoena requesting that he appear. Again Lewis refused, stating that the board had no right to demand his presence before it.

He said he based his disinclination to testify on the facts that:

1. Neither he nor the UMW had done anything covered by the Taft-Hartley law, thereby nullifying the President's invocation of the law, and

2. Two of the three board members were "biased and prejudiced and in honor should not serve."

Finally, minutes before the deadline, the burly, bushy-eyebrowed chief appeared.

It was obvious, of course, that the UMW chief was out to break the Taft-Hartley enactment. Apparently he was determined to drag the pension dispute all the way through the courts—preferably as high as the supreme court to get a final verdict.

And any way it turned out, the process would react for the miners' immediate benefit. While the courts would be mulling over the matter the date for the annual renewal of the mine workers' contract in June would be approaching. The longer the present dispute remained unsettled, the worse the nation's coal situation would grow, thus putting Lewis in a good bargaining position to extract a favorable contract for next year.

MOBILIZE:

Controls?

Bernard M. Baruch approves of selective service and universal military training for the present quasi-crisis, but he does not think that is enough to meet all the implications of the world situation.

The financier and presidential adviser called also for an "economic mobilization plan" and said that America's failure to muster all its resources now for peace would leave "no alternative but to mobilize for war" in the future.

Baruch told the senate armed services committee that he was afraid that if the nation suddenly and without preparation were called upon to mobilize and prepare for a big war, such forces of domestic inflation would be set in motion as could blow the country wide open and leave it defenseless.

He suggested the appointment of someone to "watch the impact upon our economy of the partial mobilization we are entering upon and to maintain a constant inventory, balancing all our growing commitments against our resources."

It had not been a hidden threat, but Baruch's statement had focused attention on the possible danger that a sudden spate of military spending could bring about ruinous inflation.

As a result, talk of reviving the defunct OPA was being heard in Washington. Baruch's warning touched off informal discussions in congress about the possibility of reviving wage-price controls, rationing and other curbs on the domestic economy.

This, of course, had been an integral part of President Truman's famous 10-point program against inflation which he proposed last year, but most congressmen virtually had gagged at the thought of reimposing price and wage controls, and the President was accused of trying to set up something like a "police state."

Now, however, congressmen were not so sure. They were beginning to wonder if the military spending necessary to contain Russia might not have to be buttressed by controls at home.

BUNDLE FROM HEAVEN

New Minor Planet 'Swims Into Ken'

U. S. astronomers have revealed the discovery of a bundle from heaven—a strange new minor planet which moves around the sun at high speed.

The planetoid is only about two miles in diameter. Although there are about 1000 of these minor chunks of matter, all circling around the earth like the sun, most of them

'Greatest Killer'

Glenn L. Martin, pioneer aircraft builder, revealed that the U. S. has developed an offensive weapon superior to the atomic bomb. He called it a "radioactive cloud—the greatest killer of human beings ever devised." Martin said also, "I'd be in favor of using it before I'd become a slave to another nation."

LUCIUS CLOBB

On War Nerves

"Pharonie," said Lucius Clobb to his helpmate as he arranged a quizzical wrinkle in his brow, "d'you think we're thunderin' toward another war?"

"Soon as you open your mouth I figure we're in for at least a skirmish," retorted Pharonie. "If you spent half as much time cultivatin' my peace of mind as you do your soybeans we wouldn't have near the arguments we do." She impaled the elder statesman of Pawhoooley county on a spearlike glance.

"Dang it, Pharonie, why do you have to drag you' rockin' chair militarism into everything I set out to do a little talkin' on? One of the reasons you married me in the first place was to get security. Now you got security but you still want to fight."

The light of creative achievement gleamed briskly in Lucius Clobb's eye.

"Say, by gosh, that there gives me a right smart idea for an aphorism. Nothing I like better than an aphorism. What d'you think of this Pharonie: Between 1941 and 1945 we were united with Russia in the bonds of holy warlock, but now the honeymoon's over, the lock is busted and there ain't nothin' left of the original idea except war."

"Mister Clobb, you can put that out in the corn crib with the rest of your aphorisms," commented the critical Pharonie.

"Mebbe so," sighed the elder statesman, "but it worries me—not knowin' how to feel about this here world situation. I'm gettin' on toward 60, so I could afford to think that in order to have peace and a secure foreign policy we first got to rig up a strong backbone at home. And a strong backbone right now means a strong army and navy and air force."

REPEAT:

Ike's 'No'

Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower, fair-haired boy of both political parties, said it once more: He would not be a presidential candidate on anybody's ticket.

There had been a lull following his unequivocal refusal of Republican overtures, and then the pro-Eisenhower sentiment was resurrected in the hearts of no fewer than four widely divergent groups.

Probably the most unique approach was being made by Torrey Stearns, a New York public relations man, who harbors the opinion that Eisenhower is a Republican. He conceived a "People for Eisenhower" movement. The method is a nationwide solicitation of voting citizens to send in postcards bearing this signed testimony:

"I want to vote for General Eisenhower for president in November. I am a citizen of voting age."

"On June 21," Stearns announced, "all of the statements will be presented to the Republican national convention as indisputable evidence that the people of the United States demand the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower for president."

But Eisenhower was having none of it. Speaking through a statement by Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, army press chief, he indicated that "his no politics statement of some weeks ago" should "apply to all parties and groups of voters."

Said Parks: "He has not changed one iota in his position and I do not believe he will do so."

TO WALLACE:

Veiled Hint

Henry Wallace, whose third party movement was coming more and more to follow the standard Communist party line, had reached the status of a complete pariah as far as President Truman was concerned.

In his St. Patrick's day address in New York the President had rejected angrily any notion of accepting Wallace's support in his campaign, even if it cost him the election.

Then, during the course of remarks made at a dinner meeting of Greek-Americans in Washington, Mr. Truman turned on still more heat.

He issued an acidulous, thinly veiled suggestion that Wallace take his third party movement to Russia where Mr. Truman obviously thinks it belongs.

"I was going to tell you that the Greeks had a Henry Wallace," the President said to his listeners. "I was going to tell you that the Greeks had a statesman, an orator, a demagogue. . . They had the greatest demagogue of all times, Alcibiades." (Alcibiades was a famous Athenian who, after committing certain indiscretions, was forced to flee Athens. He went to Sparta and there betrayed secrets of his countrymen which was instrumental in bringing about the fall of Athens.)

Mr. Truman continued: "If imitators of that ancient Greek conqueror want to see . . . liberties subverted, I suggest that they go not to the Rocky mountains—that's fine country out there. He ought to go to the country he loves so well and help them against his own country if that's the way he feels."

Aw, Drop Dead

Few people can appear more human than this quizzical simian as he bestows a suspicious glare on photographer Arthur Sasse and obviously is thinking he wants his picture taken about as much as he wants a hole in the head. Sasse staunchly unafraid in his belief that no animal would attack a photographer, has been taking pictures at New York's Bronx zoo for 28 years.

HOMEBOODY:

No Meeting

With the arrival of spring and the yearly rebirth of hope eternal, a second-hand rumor suddenly was revived across the Atlantic. It had to do with the rebuilding of the stripped gears of East-West relations.

The rumor, which was being circulated widely in Europe, said that President Truman was planning a trip to the continent for a Big Three conference with Attlee and Stalin.

Another version, as given currency by newspapers in Turkey, reported that the President might go to Europe sometime in April and possibly visit Turkey and Greece.

All this was good for a flurry of excitement, but in the end it turned out to be nothing more than a clutching at straws.

Mr. Truman, the White House announced, had no plans for leaving the country, and there was no prospect of a Big Three meeting.

SPIES:

In Germany

Conditions were getting back to the cloak and dagger state.

With a dramatic flare, radio Moscow charged that Russia had uncovered an American-directed spy ring of former German army officers operating out of western Germany, Austria and Sweden to learn Soviet zone secrets.

Leaders of the group functioning in the Soviet zone had been captured and had confessed, Moscow reported. The broadcast claimed, in part:

"He confessed he was a member of an illegal Fascist organization existing in the western occupation zone of Germany, consisting of officers of the former German army who are being used by the American intelligence service for espionage in the Soviet zone."

PIPELINE:

Junked

The Canal pipeline, that 140-million-dollar project constructed during the war as a means of getting an emergency oil supply from Norman wells in Northwest Canada to Alaska, is ending in the junk yard.

All that is left of it now is being trucked out for shipment to junk dealers in the Midwest United States. Fifty trucks work night and day out of Johnson's Crossings on the Alaska highway hauling salvage.

Ruminating on Ruminants, Or Cogitating About Cows

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON—The subject of cows recently has been called to my attention.

In the early pre-crossword days, a cow was supposed to be an animal of the bovine species. Now it is just a three-letter word meaning ruminant. There is another three-letter word which also sometimes means a ruminant of which I will speak later.

Before I knew that a cow was either a member of the bovine species or a ruminant, I thought it was something fearful which was euphemistically addressed as "Bossie," and which (I was told) would not hurt me. I took the former statement as correct, but had grave doubts about the latter. Later I was taught that c-o-w spelled, not bossie, but cow, and still later I was chased by one. This caused additional doubt concerning free information furnished by one's elders.

Then came the crossword puzzles. I saw that "three, horizontal" was a three-letter word meaning ruminant. Having heard of the word "ruminant" by that time, and thinking that, thinking or, if you will, ruminating, was a fairly common practice among the genus homo, I wrote down "man." Later when I met a number of congressmen I was convinced of my error.

Now I know that neither definition is entirely wrong. A cow ruminates when it chews its cud (having chewed it before), and a man ruminates when he chews an idea upon which he has chewed before.

In some ways however, cows and men differ. In fact, cows even differ in some respects from women, although all three creatures—man, woman and cow—are mammals, the highest form of vertebrate, those which (the authorities inform me) nurse their young with milk. Just how man gets into this category is a little beyond me, but that is what the scientist says, and I am willing to strain my credulity a little. After all, I suppose that my father, who paid for the milk which I drank when I got so I could take it out of a glass, nourished me in a manner of speaking. We will let it go at that, although it seems to me that a man assumes a little of what might be criticized as the gland manner of speaking when he tries to get more than a grade B rating as a mammal.

But to return to the differences between cows on the one hand, and men and women on the other—(and I think no one will contradict me when I say there ARE differences): One thing a cow cannot do that a man can, is blow its own horn. And as we know from listening to the soap operas, it is easier to make a woman slip than to make a cowslip.

Now what has a cow got that you and I haven't? Answer: Cattle are closely related to the buffalo, the bison and the yak. I defy any genealogist to produce a bison, a buffalo and a yak in one human family tree. On the other hand, in the branches of a cow's family tree, there are no monkeys.

In some ways the cow has superior abilities. For instance, I have seen a cow roll over without spilling a drop of milk, which is more than any man, carrying a similar amount of lactical fluid, could do.

Philologically, the cow seems to have somewhat of an edge on man, at least for those who believe in the capitalistic system. The Latin word for cattle (as of course you know if you just looked it up as I did) is "pecus." And the word pecuniary is derived from that, and the words cattle, chattel and capital are to each other what cow itself is to buffalo, bison and yak.

All present-day breeds of cattle, I am authoritatively informed, are descended from the two types, large and small, known in prehistoric times in Europe. However, in recent times (and now we are getting down to what started me ruminating), something new has been added. We now have developed what might be laughingly called "hot cows" and "cold cows."

The "hot" are the Brahmas which have been insinuated into our own American strains to inure them to our southern latitudes and for other purposes. As you know, Brahma cattle are known by their humps. A braw Brahma has a large hump just about the shoulders, and the others of lesser rank have smaller humps getting down to something not much larger than a fever blister.

The "cold" cow is quite a different thing. As might be expected, it comes from Russia where they invented the cold war, the cold shoulder and the common or Siberian cold, which is used to correct false ideologies, longevity and monopolistic capitalism.

When applied to cows instead of capitalists, the cold has the opposite effect on longevity. According to a recent article in Food Industries, a McGraw-Hill publication, the Russians have produced, by means of a chilling process applied from early calf-hood, cows which live with a high output to 15 years, yield up to 100,000 liters of milk and give birth to 15 calves.

The process is simple. One selects a calf from selected parents. It is put in an unheated barn where the temperature is kept at five degrees Fahrenheit. The barns, I take it, are much like the ordinary Soviet citizen's dwelling except that there is plenty of bedding and the calves are provided with earmuffs. A citizen of the U.S.S.R. doesn't need the earmuffs because he is only allowed to listen to what the government thinks is good for him, and if his ears freeze it's all right with the censor.

The results of the chilling process on calves appear remarkable, but not for a moment would I doubt the veracity of the writer—despite my early experience with erroneous information concerning cows.

The other type of ruminant upon which these ruminations are based is illustrated in these columns.

The Old Order

How It Passeth

After the grey winter days New Hampshire avenue almost sparkles these spring mornings.

The elm buds are spreading and the shadows of trunk and limb make sharp patterns on the wide expanse of the huge Belmont house. This house now is occupied by the Eastern Star—no family ever could have done more than rattle about in that palatial mansion. I suppose there will be few such palaces built in Washington any more—one after another, they are being torn down. The Leiter house on Dupont Circle is gone and a family hotel is rising in its place. Many other mansions, too big for embassies even, served as boarding houses for war workers and now they are empty and for sale.

One huge house which I pass occasionally is opened when the third generation, which still retains some of the original fortune, comes to Washington for a wedding or a party. After that the house is sealed up again, the burglar alarms are attached and the old residence goes back to dreaming of the past.

A part of this section of Washington—Dupont Circle—is being sealed off for a year while the roadbuilders burrow under the grassy park to make an underpass for trolley cars and automobiles. This will be the final blow of disfiguration to Connecticut avenue, which has yielded gradually over the years since I first knew it, to the vulgarian invasion.

A block below Dupont Circle that once was gay with the chatter of nursemaids and children of the foreign diplomats stood the British embassy. On the site today is a filling station.

Americans have eaten bananas since the 19th century but still many misconceptions concerning them exist, says Middle America Information. Not, we hope, that they should be kept in the refrigerator.

Limit Building Heights

By a law of 1910, congress set an extreme maximum height of 160 feet for any building in the District of Columbia, and this maximum applies only on Pennsylvania avenue, between 1st and 15th street; otherwise the limit is 130 feet.

The economy of pasture, says the U. S. department of agriculture, is due in large part to the fact that labor is saved, the animals gathering their own feed and spreading the manure as they graze.

THE FICTION CORNER

STRICTLY BUSINESS

By ROBERT C. BLACKMON

THE finest sermon I ever heard ended and the benediction came straight from the heart of the broad-shouldered figure in the pulpit. The stirring voice of the big man filled the church and the congregation began to leave.

Harry Thatcher and I were surprised by sober, thoughtful people who went to the car. He drove toward the lake.

"Don't," Thatcher said abruptly after we got a cigar started. "There are three million, five hundred and sixty-six thousand, four hundred and thirty letters in the Bible."

"I suppose so." I almost dropped my cigarette. His talking about the Bible took me by surprise. His interest was financial news, exclusive-

"There are seven hundred and seventy-three thousand, seven hundred and forty-six words in its thirty-one thousand, one hundred and seventy-three verses."

"Sure." I looked at him, wonder-

His gray eyes were half closed, his broad face grave. One could see why he was called "Bull-dog" Thatcher. He had a reputation of being after business, wherever it was, and getting it.

Shortly after the war ended, a young man named Phillip Crasor came into my club one evening. Thatcher settled himself more comfortably in the broad front seat of the car, one big hand on the wheel. "He had been a pilot. I don't know how many missions, but enough. Star end at the university before that. All around athlete. He had been mentioned as a possible Olympic chance. Folks had a little money."

The car rolled with almost no noise. I said nothing. This wasn't the Harry Thatcher I'd known. I'd dropped in on him last night since he was in town for a few days, and he'd insisted upon my going to church with him that morning. Thatcher was not a church man, so far as I knew, I waited.

"Phillip had got some cockeyed ideas in the army," Thatcher went on. "Some radical talk. He started talking about youngsters in the army getting killed while the big-income businessmen stayed home safe. My income runs up a little." He couldn't conceal a note of pride. "He looked at me when he said it and I thought he was making it personal. I told him that big-income men were worth what they got and he said they were a lot of stuffed fools. I got angry. I told him he couldn't handle a $50,000 job for a month, much less a year."

Thatcher coughed a little, apologetically.

"I was a captain in the first world war. Infantry. Shrapnel. His hand moved to his right side. They wouldn't take me the last time."

He straightened. Breeze from the lake swept our smoke from the car. "Phillip Crasor said he had $5,000 to do a job for 12 months. Inherited the money from an aunt, I believe. Anyway, he said for me to put up or shut up. The fellows in the club laughed, and I—well, I lost my temper. I called him at ten to one, betting $5,000 against his five that he couldn't handle the job. I was to name the job. It wasn't to be impossible, or require technical skill, or either of us had. It was foolish, but neither of us would back down. It was a bet and I couldn't call it off. Betting is strictly business with me. If I win I collect, and if I lose I pay off. Strictly business.

If a man can't look at it like that, he has no business betting."

He tooted the big car around a curve. Sunlight was on the lake, a moving pattern of glinting water under a cloud splashed sky.

"The club was in an uproar, with men betting each other we'd both back out, or go on with it. I went over to the big bookcase at the other end of the room to think it out.

"I saw the Bible in the bookcase and remembered my mother telling me that the Book was good to read when you didn't know what to do. I didn't know what to do.

"I took the Bible and saw in the back where it had so many letters and words and all that, and it gave me an idea. When I was in school I couldn't spell.

"The teacher used to make me write missed words on the black-

My man cabled me that Phillip Crasor had locked himself in the cottage and wouldn't let anyone in.

board a couple of hundred times. I wrote about 20 words a minute, writing carefully. I figured I could write perhaps 30 words a minute, fast. That meant about 15,000 words in a full day of writing. At that rate, it would take 50 days to complete a handwritten copy of the Bible. Ten good, clear, handwritten copies would therefore take about 500 days, and the bet was for a year."

Thatcher laughed softly, remembering.

"I realized that this was an ideal job for the purpose. It required no technical skill neither of us had, and there was a good chance that Phillip Crasor couldn't do it. I didn't want to lose $50,000 any more than he wanted to lose the five. Phillip hadn't stuck at anything since he came out of the army, and I figured he'd drop out within a few weeks at the most. Then, I'd return his money and teach him a lesson he wouldn't forget about betting. And there was a very good chance that, after he learned what the job was to be, he'd drop the whole thing and agree to call the bet off. That would have been fine with me. I couldn't back down as long as Phillip wanted to go on, of course. The men at the club never would have forgotten it, and it would have hurt me in a business way. I went back to the others."

He nursed his cigar for a few moments.

"Phillip Crasor exploded when he learned what the job was to be. I didn't know it, but his handwriting was awful. He thought I was rubbing him. The men in the club were having the time of their lives. A well-known lawyer drew up a contract and both of us signed it. Phillip Crasor wouldn't back down and I couldn't. I was to furnish the place and the materials to do the job, and I was to be the judge of whether the copies produced were acceptable or not. If we had too much argument we could each choose a friend and they would choose a third party to settle the argument. There wasn't anything left for me to do but go through with it. I was going to teach Phillip Crasor a lesson, anyway."

My forgotten cigarette burned my fingers and I tossed it from the car.

"I turned over a small cottage down on the lake to Phillip Crasor stocked it with a Bible, paper, pens ink and blotters and told him to go to work. I left a man there to see that he didn't get outside help. I was strictly business with me. I had $50,000 at stake."

"Phillip Crasor was going to produce 10 perfectly legible handwritten copies of the Bible, as the contract provided, or he would lose the bet."

"I didn't get back for a week or two, and Phillip had spoiled a lot of paper but produced nothing acceptable. He wanted to fight, but I told him to read the contract and it was time for him to put up or shut up. I thought he would burst. The club was betting he'd last about another week. I did not think he'd go that long."

Thatcher looked out over the lake, then his eyes came back to the driver before us.

"Business suddenly" took me to France and Italy and I stayed there for months." He coughed again, apologetically. "All wars are not won on the battlefield, and all soldiers do not wear uniforms, you know. Anyway, I was gone over nine months. My man cabled me that Phillip Crasor had locked himself in the cottage and wouldn't let anyone in. The year was almost up when I got back home. It had about 20 days to run. I hurried down to the cottage."

Thatcher flicked ashes from the cigar.

"My man said Phillip Crasor had been gone for a week. The 10 handwritten copies of the Bible were on a table in the cottage, all perfectly legible. On top of one pile was a letter to me from Phillip Crasor. I have that letter home now, in my Bible. He said he wouldn't take the $50,000 and the bet was off. I paid, though, to the church we attended that morning. When a man loses, he should pay. It's strictly business. If I'd won—"

"But what about Phillip Crasor?" I held another forgotten cigarette in my hand.

"Oh. He preached that sermon you heard this morning."

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU

BY CHARLES B. ROTH

GIVE YOURSELF TO A CHAIR

A friend of the late William James, greatest psychologist of his day, asked the noted man if he would mind giving a few rules for the improvement of personality.

"One rule I will give you," responded Dr. James, "a simple rule—but so important. The rule is this: Learn to give yourself up to a chair at least once each day."

Mystified, the inquirer asked what Dr. James meant when he said "give yourself up to a chair."

"Practice conscious relaxation," he was told. "Relax every day. Relaxation, particularly the ease and restfulness associated with utter relaxation, is one of the best aids I know in developing a charming personality."

How often one sees these futile run-arounds, men and women who are busy from morning till night who never relax, who dash from one thing to another, who fidget and fume, who talk rapidly, who burr up energy and tire themselves and everyone else out by their fruitless display of waste motion. And how rarely one finds the composed, relaxed personality of power.

Dr. James' advice was, of course, purely physical—all you had to do was to give yourself up to the chair, relax utterly, let your body sag where it would. But there is always a subtle and marked relationship between mind and body. And the purpose of his counsel was to let your mental moods take their tone from your physical department. "What mental mood can you expect if you are always physically tense?" he inquired.

Woman's World

Alter Coats, Dresses, Add Boleros to Remain in Style

By Erta Haley

IF YOU agree with Mark Twain that "A woman is always better dressed in fashion than out of it," then you'll gradually be remodeling your last season's clothes to this season's modes.

Fashion experts claim that it will take at least two years for the average woman to replace her present wardrobe with new clothes and the "new look." This means that remodeling, remodeling and refurbishing will be the order of the day for some time to come.

Trot out the wardrobe problems in your closet to see how they can be handled. Imagination plus ingenuity with needles and thread will do wonders.

For instance, take the short-skirted, short-waisted problem. What better way to solve it than to cut the dress apart at the waist, insert a wide strip of another nicely matching or contrasting material and add a matching band at the hem? The wide midriff inset will delineate the tiny waist while the bottom band adds a graceful flare.

Use Inserted Bands To Add Length

Many of your crepe dresses can be made longer by bands in the skirt. The skirt, if a rather full type, can be cut apart and lengthened by adding faille or material of another type in stripes for length. Another wide band may be placed at the hem.

There are several other remedies if your headache is hemline trouble. One consists of cutting two lengths of material from around the waist. This may be replaced with grosgrain ribbon and hidden with a gaily colored rayon sash of swathed cummerbund fashioned around the waist. Take two strips of material, seam them together and stitch these to the bottom of the dress.

The joining may be concealed by covering it with any one of a number of kinds of decorative tape, braid or soutache. Or you may just want to run rows of stitching around the dress, evenly spaced above and below the seam joining.

Another simple solution for skirt problems is to drop your skirt from two or three rows of grosgrain ribbon stitched together and sewed on top of the waistband. If you can steal a tab of material from underneath the pocket or down a pleat, stitch this over the grosgrain, right in middle of the front, and make the whole thing appear as a part of the original design.

Still another favorite trick is to drop the skirt from a yoke made of another material. This is easy to do if the problem is a suit or dress with a peplum (of course you always can add one or a long jacket which will cover the yoke).

Hemline troubles which are not too severe as to require lots of length can be solved by using a tape applied to the hem. When there isn't enough hem to let down, take a look at the waistband. It's likely to be made on the fold of the material. Clip the stitches that hold the inside to the skirt, open it and press flat. You can face this widened band with elasticized ribbing or wide hem tape.

Cotton Dresses Are Easy to Lengthen

If your closet holds many cottons, these are easy to remodel as far as lengthening goes. One of the favorite tricks is to use a four or five-inch band of plain material and add it to the bottom. For a charming effect, applique the print of the dress over the plain material. Then, using a zigzag attachment on your sewing machine, make several rows of stitching, following the irregularities in the print. Hem the material in the usual fashion.

When your closet skeleton is a plain cotton that shows your knees, take a tip from grandmother's day and use patchwork sewn around the hem.

A plain dress may be cut apart at two places across the skirt or at both skirt and bustline, then inserted with bands of eyelet. Repeat the touch of eyelet at the neckline and sleeves in a band.

Your remodeling will be simplicity itself if you have a thermoplastic dress "twin" to eliminate the guesswork in fitting. This dress form "double" of your own figure, which may be molded in about a half an hour, actually cuts dress construction time in half and proves a boon in all sewing and remodeling problems.

Remodel Your Navy Wool Dress

Navy is again a favorite color and you can greet the season with one that's remodeled from fall and winter. Why not consider cutting the dress in two, making the top a pert short bolero and the bottom a skirt. Lengthen in any of the ways already mentioned. Then use the new suit-dress accompanied by the crispest of white pique blouses.

When you've remodeled your dresses, turn your thoughts to the coat situation. Local sewing center experts say that you can make a three quarter "shortie" out of your last year's coat. But the real trick is to line the coat with the cheeriest print you can find. Then stitch a matching blouse for the gay ensemble. Isn't that an idea—and especially if the lining of the coat looks as though it wouldn't last another season.

Wide Range Gives Women Chance to Be 'Well-Suited'

As definitely a sign of the new season as the first brave robin or April's traditional showers is the parade of suits which invariably marks the advent of spring. There's something particularly crisp and tempting in a spring suit. No matter what the color, silhouette, width of skirt or length of jacket, a suit spells spring.

Black and navy blue are the smartest and most practical colors, with brown and soft neutrals like gray and deep beige ranking as most popular second choices.

Typical spring suit shades lead off with the pastels in shades of gray, honey beige, leaf green, palest cocoa brown, a few orange tones, light blues and some apple blossom pinks. The last color usually is cunningly combined with navy blue, jacket of the pink and skirt of navy blue.

Spring navy blue, as always, is a color parade alone.

Be Smart!

Let your new-season bolero take its turn at contributing color contrasts to your costume. Sketched here is a solid black cutaway bolero with a white checked skirt—a patent leather belt as a go-between. Patent leather belts, incidentally, are tops in new accessory ideas.

THIS would I hold more precious than fine gold, This would I keep although all else be lost: Hope in the heart, that precious, priceless thing, Hope at any cost.

And God, if its fine luster should be dimmed, If seemingly through grief it may be spent, Help me to wait without too much despair, Too great an ornament.

Let me be patient when my spirit lacks its high exuberance, its shining wealth; Hope is a matter, often, God, I know Of strength, of health.

Help me to wait until my strength returns, Help me to climb each difficult high slope, Always within my heart some golden gleam, Some quenchless spark of hope.

Expensive Alarm

Why keep a rooster when an alarm clock is cheaper?
 That question is posed by Boyd A. Ivory, Wyoming agricultural extension service poultry specialist. A rooster, Ivory points out, eats about $5 worth of feed a year at current prices. All you get in return, he insists, is a lot of crowing--accompanied by NO eggs!
 A rooster is worthless in a poultry flock unless he is being used for breeding purposes in supplying fertile eggs for hatcheries or home incubation.
 Hens won't lay any more eggs than they are laying just because a rooster is on the premises, so why not sell that "crowing so-and-so"?

Trade him for a $1.93 alarm clock that tells the time of day for the entire 24 hours and you'll save about $3 in feed costs on the swap!

Quality Chicks Needed To Offset Feed Costs

One method through which poultrymen can combat the present high cost of feed is to purchase good quality chicks. Feed costs, records compiled by the extension service indicate, now amount to 60 per cent or more of the total costs of producing eggs and chicken meat in contrast to 50 per cent in normal times.

Beware the 'New Look,'
Crop Specialist Advises
 Beware the "new look," especially in crop varieties. That is the advice of Joe Robinson, Iowa State college agronomist.
 "New varieties seem to hold some sort of magic charm over many farmers," stated Robinson. "I am happy to see the farmer change to new varieties whenever they can increase his yield but just because a variety carries a new name is no indication of its value."
 Robinson pointed out that performance records are more important than newness.
 Selection of suitable hybrid corn varieties creates another problem. Unlike other crops, some hybrid corn varieties are produced by only one concern. Eligibility of both the private hybrid lines and the experiment station lines for certification depends on the performance records in a corn yield test.

JAMES G. PATTON, President, National Farmers Union, says: "My advice to the farmers is to put all cash they can spare into U. S. Savings Bonds, and to hold onto every Bond they own. If the farmers and ranchers generally will do that—and millions of them are doing it today—we won't have the heartbreaking hard times we had after the last war on most of the farms of this country. Money saved in savings now is hardship saved later."

Yes, from one end of the country to the other, public enthusiasm for the new 1948 Chevrolet points to a great public conviction that CHEVROLET AND ONLY CHEVROLET IS FIRST in all-round value as in popularity. More people drive Chevrolets, according to official nationwide registrations and more people want Chevrolets, according to seven independent nationwide surveys than any other make of car. Ain't It So?

Of the six requisites for a happy marriage, the first is faith—and the other five don't matter.

People like to say they have an open mind. But with some of them it's mighty hard to find the opening.

Even a watch that won't run is right twice a day.

Termites and Pecans

Termites usually live in dead wood and most people associate them with wood destruction. However, pecan nursery stock and small trees sometimes are killed by the feeding of termites in the roots. The tree may have its taproot or its branches tunneled until only a shell or the bark remains.

Brushing Woollens

Brush woollens carefully with a firm-bristled brush after each wearing. Open the pleats and brush between them in a straight downward line. Brush into seam lines, under lapels and any other place where there may be rubbing action, which will wear out material.

Irish White House

James Hoban, a native of Ireland, who had resided for some time in Charleston, S. C., in 1792 won a prize of $500 offered for the best design for the President's house. Construction began in 1792, but President Adams in 1800 was the first to occupy the mansion.

Auto Snowplow

Hiram Maxim, son of the inventor of the Maxim silencer for guns, has patented a snowplow to be attached to the bumper of an automobile. The attachment is a simple one, requiring no additional equipment to enable an automobile to operate it.

Cooking Fish

Most important thing to remember in cooking fish is that it too often is overcooked. Just enough cooking to enable the flesh to be flaked easily from the bones will leave the fish moist and tender and bring out its delicate flavor.

Progress in Drying Grain

Results of experiments in chemical drying of seed grain, using calcium chloride as the drying agent, justify further investigations of this method, according to the U. S. department of agriculture.

SCRIPTURE: Ezra 1-6; HAGGAI
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalms 124:1-6

The Return From Exile
Lesson for April 18, 1948

COWPER'S lines come to mind as we study the dramatic return of the Jews from their exile in Babylon to Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Cyrus, king of Persia, 536 B. C.:

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea
And rides upon the storm."

Dr. Newton

And yet it is not altogether strange, for if you will turn to Jeremiah 29:4-14, you will find a prophecy given 50 years before the event that this very thing would occur.

There were two other deportations of the Jews from Babylon, prior to the incident in our lesson—the return led by Daniel, 606 B. C., and the one led by Ezekiel, 597 B. C.

PROCLAMATION OF CYRUS

THE proclamation of Cyrus, Ezra 1:1-5, records the happy word to the Jews that they would not only return, but that the temple would be rebuilt. Cyrus called upon all the people who would to make offerings by which the temple might be restored. Cyrus was acting under divine impulse in this gracious and generous proclamation.

"The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah," said Cyrus, Ezra 1:2.

Fifty thousand Jews, their hearts rejoicing at the thought of returning to the land of their fathers, set out on the trek of 600 miles, laden with gifts from the Persians for the restoration of the temple in Jerusalem. They could now sing the song of the Lord, and no longer did their harps hang silently on the willow trees.

THE DECREE OF ARTAXERXES

THE fourth chapter of Ezra brings us to the halting of the work on the temple, after they had raised the magnificent sum of approximately $400,000, and had laid the foundation for the temple, with imposing ceremonies.

This delay was occasioned by the jealousy of the Samaritans, who went to Artaxerxes, through employed counsel, and convinced him that it would be dangerous to allow these Jews to rebuild Jerusalem. At first, the Samaritans proposed that the Jews let them use the temple in joint worship, but the Jews feared the Samaritans and refused their offer. It was then that the Samaritans effected the delay in the building of the temple by the space of 14 years. Meanwhile, the Jews went forward with the building of their homes and reestablishing themselves and their civilization in Jerusalem.

STICKING TO ONE'S PURPOSE

WE come now to the part Haggai played in summoning the Jews to their duty and obligation to God to restore the temple. It was in the second year of the reign of Darius that Haggai received the word of the Lord. "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie waste? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Consider your ways."

It was enough. The people rallied to the call of Haggai, and the temple was completed. Men can always do what they ought to do, if they will to do it.

GOD'S PURPOSE FULFILLED

THE message of Haggai was heeded. The temple was completed, Ezra 6:13-18, and God's purpose was fulfilled. Read Psalm 126.

This brings us to the golden text: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." Luke 9:62. When once the returned exiles felt the iron of God's purpose surging through their veins, they quitted themselves like men, and God's power was everywhere manifest. So may it ever be with us!

As We Achieve

The degree of success which we achieve in making effective our Christian education program in the life of this generation will determine whether future generations will be able to enjoy a society free from the distrust of religious intolerance, the vindictiveness of race prejudice, and the bitterness of class hatred.—Walter W. Head.

ENJOY QUICK, CLEAN WASHING WITH A NEW ELECTRIC WASHER

"My New Home Laundry Takes the Work and Worry Out of Wash Day"

There's no need for today's wash day to be a wish day. For washing is easier, better, and quicker when electricity does the job.

An electric washer will swirl your clothes to bright cleanliness—and all you have to do is put in the dirty clothes and later take out fresh, clean clothes.

And an automatic electric ironer rolls out your clothes beautifully pressed while you sit at ease.

With electricity helping with your laundry there'll be more leisure time and less fatigue. You'll take the wishing out of washing.
