

Canadian Dude Ranches Lure Saddle-Minded Vacationists

GUY WEADICK

DUDE RANCHERS AT KANNAHACKS

GIVEN GUY WEADICK BY PRINCE OF WALES

MRS. W. A. BREWSTER, KANNAHACKS

Different types of vacations appeal to various temperaments—some prefer the seashore with its bathing and social gaiety; others like the deep fastnesses of the woods, while there is still another type to whom horses and life in the saddle makes an irresistible appeal. Lovers of horseback riding, much life and the great open spaces find from the madding crowd's ignominious strife" are afforded an opportunity to indulge their favorite pastimes and at the same time reap the benefits of a holiday spent in the open air by the increasingly popular institution known as the "Dude Ranch" in Canada.

To accommodate saddle-minded vacationists in the Canadian Rockies, Mrs. Bill Brewster has organized the KannaHack Dude Ranch on the Bow River near Banff, Alberta. Mrs. Brewster is the guide, mentor, friend and confidante of tenderfeet innumerable and she sees to it that her guests from New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Montreal, Toronto and other urban areas have such a good time that they reluctantly leave her Dude ranch tanned and strong, with voracious appetites and a new outlook on life.

Another ranch catering to tenderfeet is that of Guy Weadick, well known proprietor of the Canadian West and originator of the celebrated Calgary Stampede. His place, known as the T-S Ranch, is at Long View, Alberta, and it is run by Guy and his wife, Flora La Due, champion lady rope-thrasher of the world. Here the novice learns to ride the mountain trails, play polo, call-roping, lariat-throwing, tent pitching and other tricks of the great outdoors. Seasoned cowboys act as teachers, and Guy reports that some of his guests are surprisingly quick to grasp the various arts associated with ranch life.

The Prince of Wales, Britain's popular heir apparent, has a ranch not far away. His is called the E-F Ranch, and he and Guy Weadick are not only neighbors but friends. Among Guy's prized possessions are a pair of rosettes for his bridle bearing the three feathers of the Prince's coat of arms.

and re-building the land besides. M. W. Franks in Coryell county says he's rather milk dairy cows than to pick cheap cotton, and thinks $95 above feed cost from 13 cows in one summer month isn't so bad. His feed cost $1.50 per hundred, the cost of producing a pound of butterfat was 14 1/2 cents, and it sold for 43 cents. He stays by his cows and plants surplus land in cotton.

In Fisher county 25 cows in demonstration herds have produced fat for 21.4 cents per pound. Sudan grass pasture lowered the cost 5.3 cents per pound and increased the profit $1.25 per head.

A herd of 11 Jerseys in DeWitt county has paid its owner O. C. Fitzhery, 77 cents per hour for his time with them, or a profit above feed cost of $101.42 in one month.

These men are demonstrators, and are helped by county agents, but otherwise they have no special advantages.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

Edison R. White Shawnee, Oklahoma

A. E. West, president of the Nevada-California Electric Corporation, says:

"There is perhaps no more fascinating study than the tracing of the remote and trivial causes out of which most great enterprises have had their origin. A commonplace and everyday incident in the life of an individual will set into motion a chain of events that will profoundly affect not only the life of the individual, but that of thousands of others, and result in the up-building of great industries not dreamed of at the time.

"In the spring of 1906 a lone prospector was wandering through the mountains of Southwestern Nevada with two burros carrying his supplies, looking for gold. He hobbled his burros and camped for the night in a high valley in a section of the Emeralds County, not then supposed to be mineralized. In the morning he found the burros had strayed from camp and finally succeeded in locating them near the mouth of one of the hills surrounding the valley. While engaged in recapturing the two animals, his eye was caught by the glint of mineral in a nearby ledge of rock. With his prospector's hammer he chipped off a few samples, which were rich in silver ore. The prospector was Jim Butler and the outcrop was the surface showing of the famous Mizpah Ledge, which later outpoured millions of wealth and resulted in the opening of Tonopah, one of the greatest silver camps ever discovered in this country. Now considered the strange working of destiny. If Butler's burros had not wandered away to the vicinity of that particular outcropping that fateful night the vast treasures of precious metal underlying Tonopah might still be hidden and The Nevada-California Electric Corporation never have been conceived.

"HAIRBREADTH" NO LONGER STANDARD OF MINUTE MEASUREMENT

"Hairsbreadth" used to be the standard of fineness of measurements and to miss anything by a "hairsbreadth" was a close shave, for the diameter of the average human hair is three-thousandths of an inch. But modern telephone equipment, to give the high quality of service expected and rendered, must be accurate to the one hundred-thousandth of an inch. In other words if a hair were split accurately into 300 parts, the result of the 300th split would approximate one hundred-thousandth of an inch.

To maintain this high degree of accuracy, diamond dies and cutting tools enter largely into the manufacture. In checking diameters, an electrical gage is used, as for instances in the case of copper wire diameters. This gage will measure a variation of .004 of an inch, and can be made to check as close as .00005 of an inch.

By means of three electric lights, this gage determines diameter dimensions of copper wire finer than a hair. A white light is used to designate the mean or desired diameter and wire measuring between .0199 and .0203 of an inch causes a white light to show. The red light shows when the wire is .0001 of an inch above the .0203 maximum, and the green light shines when the figure is below the .0199 minimum.

Numerous other gages, more accurate than a micrometer, are used in various parts of the work. In some tests it is necessary to use a projector apparatus which throws a much enlarged image of the part to be tested, sometimes as many as 500 times as large. This is used in places where it is impractical to use gages because of the fineness of the part to be measured.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo.

ARTICLE XV SHORT CUT TO LONGER PROFITS

Investing Displaces Guess Work is Favor of Certainty for Selecting the Really Profitable Members of a Poultry Flock.

Editor's Note — This is another in a series of articles on dairy written by the well known national dairy and poultry authority, L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo. The entire series will appear in paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

You think that you have eliminated the heavy eading, light-laying hens from your flock but are you sure you have got them all? If you are a good judge of the signs which indicate poor layers, the chances you have eliminated the worst ones. In all likelihood, however, there are still a number of hens left which are on the border line or just below it, either they consume as much in food as they put back in eggs or just little bit more. In these cases, they are unprofitable to keep, but hard to discover when many methods of culling are employed. Now these "border line" fowls are just as much care and equipment as their more profitable sisters. Care and equipment represent a part of the investment on which a profit must be paid. It becomes self-evident, therefore, that very many fowls will cause a serious cut in the percentage of profit returned. The question is how to connect the offenders of their shortcomings, know of but one certain way and that is to keep books on the whole of them and in short while you will know beyond peradventure or doubt which are the egg layers and which are destined for a speedy trip to market.

Trap-nesting, in short, is the one method of determining exactly how much each hen is laying and whether or not she is going to be kept on the job. Such knowledge is of especially great importance to the breeder of fine pedigreed fowls, but is sufficiently important to most poultry raisers to warrant serious consideration. Trapping, incidentally, is valuable in raising young birds which tends to increase productivity.

scientific certainty. The change may mean more work of one kind, but it also means less work of a less profitable kind, and in the long run trap nesting is bound to pay a sufficiently large increase in cash dividends to more than justify the increased investment in labor and equipment.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Times are discouraging. Some think the country is going to the dogs. Farmers find low prices offered for nearly everything they have to sell. Some have had a drought on top of it. There is a tendency to quit formerly profitable lines, such as dairying, to fish in new waters. But those who stay "put" and continue to cut costs will likely keep on making some money from cows, because many who have been managing herds wisely have been making small profits all summer.

A dairy herd demonstrator in Bastrop county says his 10 cows have paid him from $83 to $95 per month above feed for his labor and care of milk and for the use of five acres of sudan pasture. Two others declare that their cows are feeding themselves and the family helping to pay for farm improve-

A flock should be trap-nested for twelve (12) months to tell accurately just what each individual hen is capable of doing in egg production. To trap-nest for three months and multiply by four does not give an accurate yearly record.

And now, just a word about the mechanics of trap-nesting. A trap nest, as everyone knows, is one equipped to hold a hen captive when she enters it to lay. Each hen in the flock has a numbered leg band on one of her legs, and before she is released, if she has laid, her number is put down on a daily record book, indicating that she has laid that day. After a hen lays in a nest, she has to be released by an attendant and the nest left open ready for another hen. Home-made nests of this kind are easily constructed, although space is lacking in this article for giving definite instructions as to how it is done. There are many ready-made forms of trap nests that give satisfaction and are reasonably priced. Some manufacturers simply furnish a font with the trap mechanism attached. It can easily be fitted to a suitable form of home-made nest. Numbered leg bands for identifying the hens are purchased in series at comparatively trivial cost.

At least one trap nest should be furnished for every four birds in flocks of fifty or more, and one for every two in smaller flocks. Try to have a sufficient number so that hens do not have to wait too long for their respective turns. For the same reason, pay a bit more attention to the trap nests during the normally busy hours of the day, which are usually from 8 to 11 a. m. They should be visited once every hour, especially during the forenoon.

The use of trap nests enables the poultry raiser to learn some really astonishing facts about what his hens are really doing. He will be surprised to find that some of those in which he had made little or no investment, and which were least deserving of his trust, and vice versa. He will definitely drop guessing from his payroll and substitute

T. E. L. CLASS HAS PLEASANT MEETING

Mmes. Rayburn and Hinkle were gracious hostesses last Friday afternoon when they entertained members of the T. E. L. Class of the Baptist Sunday School with a party at the lovely new home of the former.

Mrs. J. T. Middleton, teacher of the class, led the discussion on the class study, "Pupil Life", which was much enjoyed.

At the end of the social hour dainty refreshments of ice cream and angel food cake were served to the following guests: Mmes. Anderson, Yandell, Middleton, Lambert, Greenwood, Wilkes, Hubbard, Goddard, Brock, Jenkins, Sutton, Harville, Lawler, and Street.

SENIORS ENJOY PICNIC AND THEATRE PARTY FRIDAY

Several members of the senior class of the high school, with their sponsors, and a few guests, enjoyed a picnic after the football game Friday afternoon, and concluded the day with a theatre party at Tahoka, Texas, the party soon after the game, the party drove out west a few miles and spread a hearty picnic lunch, and then went back to Tahoka for the show.

Those present were Messrs. and Mmes. B. H. Scott, Elvia Gilbreath, Nina V. Berry and the class members; Mary Dell Vaughn, Rebekah Schouler, Woodrow McLaurin, J. C. Christopher, Edward Clayton Truett Hobdy, and June Gary.

McILROY FAMILY REUNION HELD HERE SUNDAY

With only one son unable to attend, the family of Dr. and Mrs. T. A. McIlroy were all present at a reunion of their family held at the home of their parents here Sunday. Howard McIlroy of Lubbock sent his wife and their two sons as his representatives, but at the last moment found that he could not be present.

Mrs. McIlroy prepared a lovely family dinner, and the day was spent in the usual way to occasions of the kind.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dominguez and children of San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Obery McIlroy and son of Lubbock, Mrs. Howard McIlroy and children, Haskell Alline, Lucy Sue, and Jack who are at home with their parents here.

DINNER PARTY HONORS TWO BIRTHDAYS

Miss Louise Miles and Morris McIlroy were honor guests Sunday when a one o'clock dinner was served to a number of guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miles, the occasion being the seventeenth birthday of Miss Louise and the eighteenth birthday of McIlroy.

A delicious dinner with all the good things which accompany it was spread in the dining room, the climax of the feast being a huge angel food cake, iced in white with the numerals 17-18, 1930 written in pink.

Guests were Misses Eula Belle Miles, Ruth Roberts, Hallie Lindsey and Alline McIlroy; Messrs Randall Gibson, Hobart Jordan, and Edward Clayton.

NORMA RUTH VERMILLION HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

(Accidentally omitted last week)
Little Miss Norma Ruth Vermillion celebrated her tenth birthday on Saturday, September 13, with a party for a number of friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Vermillion.

Each little guest arrived proudly bearing a tissue-wrapped package which was delivered with a chorus of "happy birthday." All the things to delight the heart of a young lady were there, and some time was spent in admiring them.

Games of all sorts were played on the lawn, and at the end of the afternoon dainty refreshments of punch and cake were served to the following:

J. Verna Street, Marjorie Musick, Billie B. McConal, Opal and Jennie V. Dehunk, Mary Hamilton, Mildred and Mary Jane Goddard, Marye St. Clair, Wilda Gene and Joe Anne Campbell.

TERRY EDWARDS HAS PARTY ON FOURTH BIRTHDAY

Master Terry Edwards, son of Supt. and Mrs. D. A. Edwards, celebrated his fourth birthday Monday with a party for a number of his little friends. This being his first party, the young man was much excited, so much so that he could hardly speak. However, his appreciation of the array of toys was plainly expressed by the way in which he handled each one.

With the coming of the tea hour, he recovered his usual nonchalance, and called to his mother to "light the candles and bring on the cake" in the lordly manner assumed on occasions by young gentlemen of four years.

The small guests were ushered into the dining-room, and the cake with four pink candles bravely burning on top was brought in during an ecstatic silence, which was immediately broken by long sighs of satisfaction. Mrs. Edwards, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Terry, served delicious ice cream as the accompaniment to the cake.

Guests were John Ellen Beach, Harold and Dan Burkhalter, Wilda Gene and Joe Campbell, Aubra Lee Shook and Kenith McConal.

VEDA SHUMAKE HONORS TUSCOLA VISITOR

Miss Sidney G. French of Tuscola was named honor guest last Thursday evening when Miss Veda Shumake entertained a number of friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Shumake.

Group games were played on the lawn, and songs, stories, and stunts did their part to make the occasion a most enjoyable one.

Refreshments of sandwiches, stuffed olives, and lemonade were served to the honor guest and Misses Lourene Beach, Kitty May Garner, Marie Greenwood, Madeline McLaurin, and Marye St. Clair; Messrs. Preston Davis, Harold Gibson, Earl Wayne Guye, Raymond James, Melvin Moore, Kirby and Thornton Musick, and Howard Scott.

THURSDAY CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. KOENINGER

Mrs. A. H. Koeninger was the gracious hostess last Thursday afternoon to the members of the Thursday Club and a number of guests when she entertained with six tables of forty-two.

Cut flowers in brilliant autumn colors were used throughout the entertainment suite. Several interesting games were played before the refreshment hour.

Assisted by Mrs. W. H. Smith and Miss Laynetta Smith, the hostess served dainty pear salad, sandwiches, olives and iced tea to the following guests:

FOURTH GRADE ENTERTAINED BY ROOM MOTHER FRIDAY

Members of the fourth grade, of which grade Miss Irene Jordan is teacher, were guests at a party last Friday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. A. McIlroy. Mrs. McIlroy is the room mother.

Games were played on the lawn and refreshments of punch and cookies were served to about thirty-five class members and guests, all of whom declared they had a glorious time.

CHEVROLET MOTOR CO. TO BROADCAST RADIO PROGRAM EACH WEEK

An outstanding event in the automobile industry will take place within the next few weeks when the Chevrolet Motor Company goes on the air over more than one hundred radio stations throughout the country in the first of a series of weekly programs to continue late into the fall. R. K. White, advertising manager, announced Saturday.

The radio campaign is in addition to all other forms of promotional activities such as newspaper, magazine and outdoor advertising, Mr. White said. Each week there will be presented a personally-narrated experience of prominent American war veterans who have received the highest honor bestowed for valor in action. Capt. W. Rickenbacker, ace of American aviators, will introduce them to the air force. Each program, to be heard as the "Chevrolet Chronicles", will be of a half hour's duration.

The first of the series will be presented early in October. Mr. White said. Local dealers will sponsor the programs in their localities, with the cooperation of the factory. Because of the extent of the dealer organization, between 110 and 130 radio stations will be used to get complete national coverage reaching into the stories of every one of Chevrolet's 10,000 dealers.

The character of the programs was determined upon, Mr. White explained, after extensive research for a type of air entertainment which would render a real national service as well as prove instructive and entertaining. In presenting the experiences of war veterans, Mr. White pointed out that these programs will be furthering the general appreciation for those qualities of patriotism, devotion and self-sacrifice which make up the typical soldier.

The campaign also links the Chevrolet Motor Company with those organizations which are adding impetus to the movement to relieve financial conditions by putting extraordinary efforts into their advertising activities.

CARPENTER-FARMER DEVELOPS NEW DROUTH RESISTING GRAIN

Six years ago Fred Groff grafted several varieties of sugar cane with kafir corn, and the resulting plant is expected to relieve stock raisers of considerable anxiety during dry spells.

The plant is called "grohoma," a name formed from part of Groff's name and that of his state, Oklahoma.

Groff, a former carpenter, moved to a small farm near Britton after he had tired of city confinement. During his first season of farming, a drouth hit his crops and he lost almost all he put in. Then he set out raising some kind of plant which would resist drouth. His cross between kafir corn and ribbon cane is the resulting product of his experiments.

For five years Groff nursed his grohoma. This season, when his corn was burned to a crisp during the unprecedented dry spell, his kafir corn failed to yield and even the sunflowers were withered to bare stalks, his grohoma continued to grow.

Last year several farmers became interested in Groff's plant. They agreed to finance the growing of the crop on a wide scale. As a result more than 471 acres were planted in that county under government supervision. This has been closely watched during the past dry spell.

It has been found to adapt itself particularly well to this condition.

H. B. Gordell, state agriculture board president of Oklahoma, became interested in Groff's grain, and had some planted at the agricultural colleges at Stillwater, and Manhattan, Kansas.

Tests made by the state agricultural departments show that grohoma contains 12 per cent protein, a greater amount than Indian corn, kafir, oats or wheat; 3.8 per cent fat, greater than any of the other grains; 70 per cent nitrogen-free extract, but 2.5 per cent fiber less than the other grains.

In tests recently taken by a large flour mill, the grain tested well for flour making, and it is expected that flour will be made commercially from it this fall.

It Was A Life Saver
"I got tired to death of starving," Groff says in explaining why he developed the plant. "I did a little relief work of my own. If I've discovered something I hope other farmers will grow it, for it's certainly been a life saver to me."

So great has been the demand for Groff's crop and seed in his section that the entire production has been sold this year.

"If we could fill all the orders we have received, we'd have field after field of grohoma all over the country," the carpenter-farmer says. The plant is a 90-day crop, has deep roots and yields from 5 to 10 tons per acre. Tests have shown grohoma yields from 100 bushels an acre in dry weather to over 200 bushels in favorable seasons. Groff has harvested two crops this year, the first early and the other late. When the stalk is cut another crop comes on.

MIDWAY NOTES

Farmers are very busy over this way, heading and cutting feed. Some few are picking cotton.

Lee Stafford and family, grandpa Stafford, of Hobbs, N. M., and Lester Parks and wife, of Cap-rock, N. M., were visitors in the W. M. Coor home Sunday.

Miss Inez Saunders who is going to school at Lamesa spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Saunders, who has been sick for some time.

Several from Midway attended the party Friday night in the home of Miss Hallie Harred. The party was in honor of Clara Mae Sweatt's sixteenth birthday. A large crowd was present and all enjoyed a fine time.

Roy Boyer and wife, Clint and Marvin Boyer, of Marlow, Okla., came in Friday to pick cotton as the crops are not good out in their country.

W. H. Ray and wife took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Sweatt and family Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Harred and children and Mrs. Shirley Harred spent Wednesday in the Sweatt home helping can corn.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED TO BOWLIN GIN LATE THURSDAY EVENING

A week ago yesterday evening the fire alarm was sounded and the fire boys promptly answered the summons from the J. P. Bowlin Gin. It was not necessary for the boys to use either chemicals or water, for when the truck arrived the fire was under control.

Very little damage was done and loss was small. The machinery was kept moving and soon the fire was confined in the press.

THE FAIRIES' PARTY

As the sun fairies were coming along, old Mr. Sun turned himself in and behind the hill, opened his eyes, and said:

"It's high time I was up," said the fairies.

"So with a great hurry and great Mr. Sun got up. I was almost late," he said, as he saw the fairies. They were having a swimming party.

"But you are never really late," said the fairies.

"That is because I have made a habit of being on time—of being punctual, as I believe it is called."

"That is so," the fairies all agreed.

"I even make a habit of being on time when I am late," said Mr. Sun.

All the fairies laughed. "What is the world do you mean, Mr. Sun?"

"How can you be on time when you are late? The first half of your sentence doesn't get along with the last half! They don't agree at all; in fact, they quarrel most horribly."

"I know it sounds impossible," said Mr. Sun. "But it isn't. Listen, and I shall tell you just how I do it. I shall explain how it is that I am on time when I am late."

The fairies sat around, and thought the swimming party could wait for a little while.

Mr. Sun was going to be so extremely interesting. They knew that.

"You see," said Mr. Sun, "it is all arranged."

"What is all arranged?" asked the fairies.

"The time," said Mr. Sun. "There is a certain hour of the day when I am supposed to get up, and so I get up at that time."

"Then there is my going-to-bed time. I always go on time. I may appear to be lazy and not want to get up, or I may appear to be wide awake and as though I did not want to go to bed."

"But I always do."

"To be sure you do, Mr. Sun. We know you are a very prompt, punctual old soul."

"But do tell us about being on time when you are late."

"I will take great pleasure in so doing," said Mr. Sun, very solemnly.

"It's this way," he continued. "This is the time of year when I do not care about going to bed so early. And why? Because I am not supposed to go so soon."

"Of course, a few months ago I was sitting up much later every night, but still the time when I will go to bed very much earlier than I am going these nights."

"It is then—when I am late in going to bed—the time when I still am on time."

"Do you see? I go to bed at the time of the day that the calendar tells me to, and I get up in the same way."

"Even when I am late in getting up—it is just the same—I am late because I am supposed to be late."

"Therefore I am punctual, prompt and on time."

The fairies laughed.

"You've started our day so merrily for us," they said.

And then what a bathing party they had. They swam all the strokes they knew. They had swimming and diving competitions and it was a glorious swimming party.

They loved it and Mr. Sun beamed upon them and gave them his warmest, loveliest smile.

A tennis or larger ball is put in the middle, and at the word "Go," players have to try and hit the ball with a stick into their opponents' goal, not getting off their little cycles.

In a given time, the side scoring the most goals is the winner.

Each time a goal is scored the ball has to go back to the center of the ground.

CALVES BECOME STURDY ON SKIM MILK

Modern Methods of Feed Standards Dairy men to Improve Feeds by Raising Own Stock at Low Cost.

Editor's Note—This is another of a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by prominent national and local poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

The calf "industry," if it may be so called, is one of the largest in the country. It is estimated that 3,000,000 calves, in round numbers, are slaughtered each year in order to provide American tables with veal. Farmers and stockmen realize about $785,000,000 in receipts for the year's crop. Added to this number are the heifer calves which must be brought into the world every year to take the place of the worn-out milk cows.

We have discussed in previous articles the importance of good sires. The expense in both time and money in raising a calf is too great to make the mistake of starting with poor stock. Another mistake so many make, especially those who sell the whole milk to dairies or cheese factories, is that they buy cows to replace the discarded. Usually the cows offered for sale have some defects, and the danger of introducing tuberculosis or some other disease into the herd is ever present.

Let us assume then that the best way to enlarge and improve the dairy herd is by raising our own calves. Shall the calf be fed whole milk, skim milk, or some substitute for milk? We know now that calves raised on skim milk, if properly handled, will grow into just as sturdy, healthy heifers as those nursed by the mothers. The whole question is that of method.

The chief difference between whole milk and skim milk is the butterfat or cream which has been removed from the latter. The water, protein and sugar content are practically the same in both. Now fat is not essential for growth. It supplies heat and certain tissue necessary to the body. The benefit that the growing calf gets from the fat in whole milk can be obtained from corn meal or some other grain, and at a much lower cost. So many records are available to prove that calves raised on skim milk plus grain and hay equal those raised by the more expensive system that the question is not debatable. Farmers also become uneasy when the skim milk diet does not seem to put as much weight on the calf during the early months, as the whole milk diet. That is to be expected. But the time to compare results is at the end of the year or a few months after the milk feeding period is over. Then, if the proper system has been used, they will compare on equal terms in size, quality and quantity of milk.

The calf should run with the mother one or two days, before hand feeding begins. The first milk from the cow after freshening contains elements valuable to the young calf. Some dairymen let the calves nurse only once or twice. A good way to teach the calf to drink is to put your fingers into its mouth and stick its nose into the pail of milk. For the first week about five quarts of milk a day is sufficient, in three feedings. Remember, the stomach is small and cannot hold much. Add a quart the next week to the daily amount. Eight or nine quarts a day is about the limit. Overfeeding is one of the commonest causes of ailment. Wash and scald the feed buckets and feeding utensils every day.

For the first two or three weeks mix the mother's milk and skim milk. Gradually increase the percentage of skim milk. It should be both warm and sweet, so as not to upset the digestion. At about 4 weeks of age hay is better than pasture grass. Clover or alfalfa are a little too rich.

I would caution you regarding the condition of the milk fed to the young calf. If you take your whole milk to the dairy and haul the skim milk back for feeding, it may soon be on you. Another thing, in the dairy process your milk becomes mixed with milk from other herds, and it may contain germs. Pasteurization by the dairy will avoid that. Or, if the dairy is not equipped, do it yourself. Heat the milk to 150 degrees Fahrenheit and hold it there for 30 minutes and it will be safe.

The most satisfactory plan is to have your own separator and feed the skim milk to the young calf soon after it comes from the mother. It does not seem necessary here to caution you regarding clean, dry, warm pens for the growing calves, and plenty of good drinking water. Most breeders like to have their calves come in the fall. They can be fed on skim milk, hay and grain during the winter and be ready for grass in the spring. The weaning age is about six months.

KONJOLA FREED FT. WORTH MAN OF RHEUMATISM

Suffered Five Years — Kidney and Stomach Ailments Also Banished

MR. N. R. DANIEL

"I suffered from rheumatism for four or five years," said Mr. N. R. Daniel, 808 East Arlington avenue, Ft. Worth. "This settled in my left leg and hips and I became so sore and stiff that I walked with a limp. I could not stoop sufficiently to lace my shoes. Later I became afflicted with stomach pains caused by gas. My kidneys became affected and I suffered constant back pains."

"I watched local endorsements of Konjola and decided to give it a trial. I noticed a change while I was taking the first bottle so I continued the treatment. Today the pains of rheumatism have entirely passed. I move my limbs freely and without effort. The stomach and kidney ailment have gone the way of my rheumatism and I no longer suffer from constipation. Even head catarrh which bothered me for years has been relieved by this new medicine."

The files of Konjola contain many such instances. Konjola is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs or heart-depressing chemicals. Konjola is sold in O'Donnell at the Whitsett Drug Company and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Ad.

A LESSON FROM GERMANY

In Germany possession and ownership of pistols and revolvers is strictly controlled by law. To purchase a gun from a legitimate dealer the law-abiding citizen must first obtain a police permit. This can be done only by unwinding a great deal of red tape.

The purpose of the law, of course, is to keep small arms away from the criminal. That is the theory. But in actual practice somewhat different results have been obtained. A recent Associated Press dispatch shows that "pistol toting" has become a fixed practice in German underworld circles and though 98 per cent of all former dealers in firearms have gone out of business, the crook or gangster has no trouble in obtaining his weapon.

This should be of interest to those who sincerely believe that an anti-gun law is needed in the United States. Such a measure, by making it unlawful for a law-abiding citizen to own a gun, acts directly as an aid to crime. Experience in various of our states, as well as in foreign countries, has conclusively demonstrated that it cannot disarm the underworld.

What we do need is a law that will automatically increase the punishment of any criminal committing a crime with a gun in his possession. A law of that kind would help to fight against crime without penalizing the law-abiding in the process.

OUT IN THE BLACK HILLS THEY RIDE EVERYTHING

In the Black Hills of South Dakota and Wyoming, where the horse in early gold rush and free range cattle days was the pioneer's best friend and his most valuable asset, they ride everything. The bucking broncho has become almost a commonplace. Sometimes he is wilder than a moose in the Arctic and sometimes he bucks as though where he stops with the whistle. Chattering along with him now is his brother who never bucks because he doesn't like to and has a kindly friendship with riders, and the cavalry horse who understands perfectly men, commands, and bugle calls. The Black Hills have not forgotten the horse but they ride other animals too. They have made steer riding a part of their round-up, and they even taught the buffalo so much horse sense that skillful riders can stay in the saddle and control their mounts by bit and bridle.

There is nothing they can't ride in the Black Hills—airplanes, motors, buses, but the horse and his kind hold their popularity for steady of all kind and for pleasure riding.

Weighing Your "Risk"

In your building every fire danger, every unprotected opening and each protective device, is measured against known standards and practical experience.

Your insurance rate reflects your fire danger as closely as human minds can judge a future event.

It may be possible for you to make changes or improve your fire protection, thereby deserving a lower rate. In any case you will need the services of an experienced stock fire insurance agent.

"I don't mean anything," he answered, avoiding her. "I would like to make my search alone. Go back to your guests, or go back to your father, I explain to him why you blocked my way."

He had twisted from her now. If he had wished to stop him she could have done so. He ran, with the quick swiftness of his long legs made possible, across the little bridge and up the road which led to the highway. The road behind him was quite empty. He waited a moment, his senses alert, any movement in the brush but there was none. Not a sound, so far as he could hear. He went slowly to meet, as he crossed the bridge, the riotous greetings and questions as to where and when he had seen his girl. He replied to them in the same jesting tone, relieved that he had not been seen running along the road, and that no one had been arrested.

Robert MacBeth gave him a quick glancing look. He answered it with little warning frown.

Lady Sandison went toward the door with some of Robert's guests, saying in a low voice to her steward, as she said him: "Dance with Roberta, dear. She's missed you."

"I can't flatter myself so much as believe that, Aggy. I advise you—they say over here—'they off us'—we can't drive us together."

"Dear me, dear!" said Lady Sandison and hurried after her guests.

MacBeth looked up at Sir George as he entered the room.

"Well?"

"I couldn't catch him."

"The man who was listening at the door?"

"You're crazy!"

"I chased him along the terrace and on to the water's edge and then—"

"Well?"

"Then I lost him."

"Because a girl got between us. I did to avoid knocking her down. The blow got away."

"Who was the girl?"

"Father not tell, sir."

"Then you think she knew something?"

"I could not say."

Robert MacBeth gazed at him puzzled. "What would he want under a window?"

"Again I don't know, sir. But there are a lot of your men here tonight. I mean the gang after your style—may have thought you would guess some of your plans. Some one was there—and he was listening."

Robert MacBeth leaned back to study the facts again. While he did the band played a riotous fox trot. "If you're worried about the party," MacBeth, who had been smoking and thinking, suddenly said aloud, the spy went empty away. "Nothing to anyone tonight about our plans."

"Good! Then we'll sleep on it. I have a scheme which I would like to tell you about tomorrow."

A voice from the door made them look up. "Tired, Dad?" Roberta asked. She glanced quickly at the men. "Has Sir George been scaring you with his imaginary men-behind-the-window-curtains?"

MacBeth stared. "Did you? He

"Send an armored car from New York at the usual time only there won't be any money in that car and the men will be armed."

MacBeth merely raised an expressive eyebrow.

"And in the meantime," finished his assistant, his eyes snapping. "I will walk up the towpath with the money in my pocket and deliver it to Ray Browne on time."

MacBeth whistled and stared at him. "I don't want to expose—"

"You will not be exposing any of your men," Sir George said lastly. "I wouldn't for a moment propose that. It would be well worth the expense of the armored car, sir, if we notified the state police and they caught some of the rascals."

"But you? It is of you I was thinking."

The younger man laughed. "Who would believe that 'Beauty' Sandison was doing anything but strolling along to meet a girl. Or if they met me higher up the river, I am, of course, indulging in the British passion for walking."

"The river road or the towpath?"

"The towpath, of course."

"That has long lonely stretches?"

"Yes, but they can't be traveled by motor. Their motor would have to be left on the road."

MacBeth looked at him jealously. "It's what I would like to do myself. But, thinking of Aggy—I hesitate to allow you to—"

Aggy's stepson frowned. "Of course, Aggy isn't to know; that would be fatal. Roberta's not to know, either. She's not to know even the smallest detail. If it's to be a successful trip."

"What do you mean?" MacBeth asked.

"What I said," and Sir George forgot his customary respectful attitude and unconsciously assumed a dogmatic tone. "Nothing can or will be done unless both of the women in this house are kept absolutely ignorant of what is going on, and especially your daughter."

MacBeth lay back on his pillows and arched the determined young face. The young fellow thinks Roberta will get excited about him, he thought.

At last he said, "Roberta's not the girl to get excited about your dangers."

"Perhaps not," said his secretary, grimly, "but she's not to know for more reasons than one. Not," he added, as he saw MacBeth's expression, "that the girl herself may not be perfectly loyal and trustworthy, but," and he said it with due emphasis, "I am not trusting some of her quaint companions."

MacBeth found he could get nothing more from him then and finally gave it up.

"Mind, I don't agree with you about Roberta," he said emphatically. "She's high-strung and determined, but she's my girl and I know I can trust her."

"That may be, but after all she is young, and she picks her friends rather carelessly to my way of thinking. Is it on, with Roberta in the dark completely? Or is it off, and you tell the girl the whole scheme?"

MacBeth thought awhile, and then held out his hand. "It's a good business-like, workable scheme, so we'll say it's on and all females barred."

"Done!" said Sir George. "Ray Browne will meet me half way, and I'll get the money up there or be felled in the canal."

Construction to be Started on New W. O. W. Chapel and Bird Sanctuary

Carillon of 25 Chimes in Beautiful Tower of $150,000 Building on Woodmen Hospital Grounds at San Antonio, Texas

This is the architect's drawing of the $150,000 Woodmen of the World Chapel and Bird Sanctuary to be built at San Antonio, Tex., on the W. O. W. Memorial Hospital grounds.

Construction will be started immediately on the $150,000 Woodmen of the World Chapel and Bird Sanctuary on the grounds of the Woodmen of the World Memorial Hospital at San Antonio, Texas, President W. A. Fraser announced today. The chapel will be built along similar lines to the Bell Tower and Bird Sanctuary located in Florida. As part of the chapel there will be a tower which will have a carillon of twenty-five chimes.

"This will be a universal church," said President Fraser. "Regardless whether a person be a Protestant, Jew or Catholic, he or she can hold services in this church," said President Fraser. The membership of the Woodmen of the World is made up of people of all religions and nationalities and the church must be universal in order to serve our membership.

The chapel will be located on a 250 acre tract within a short distance from the Woodmen of the World hospital. Patients will be encouraged to go to chapel and worship God according to their own religions.

"The chapel and tower will be a unique architectural design," said Mr. Fraser. "The outside will be of Indiana limestone. Dark oak with large ceiling beams will be used in the interior. The main-stain-glass window of the church will be a production of Tiffany of New York.

The chapel will also have a patio with a beautiful fountain especially designed, according to Mr. Fraser.

"In my opinion, this chapel and carillon tower will be one of the most beautiful ever designed," said Mr. Fraser. "It will not be large, seating only two hundred, but the beauty will be there." He said that it will be one of the show places of Texas.

A special landscaping is now being carried on, and in the bird sanctuary will be various types of birds collected from various parts of the world.

Mr. Fraser said that the chapel and the bird sanctuary will be a memorial to the departed membership of the Woodmen of the World. Phelps and Deveses of San Antonio are the architects.
