Coffee, anyone

Coffee Stop sponsored by the local Jaycees during Labor Day weekend has been reported by Joe Singer, president, as a success. About 700 people were served.

Among them was one from Paris, France. Casey Tibbs, world famous rodeo performer from Hobbs, N.M., also stopped for a short rest. There were many from other states in the Union.

A heavy rain kept the Jaycees from operating their life-saving project Sunday night, but the other three nights are considered quite worthwhile.

The state was covered with coffee stops sponsored by Texas Jaycees. Singer and other local members feel these coffee stops helped reduce the death rate on highways during the weekend.

Writes...

DEAR MR. PENSIVE:

I thought from the sound of your first letter that some definite contribution to the literary world was going to be made. After reading the epistle of Sept. 7, I admit am entertaining my doubts.

You seem to be very amused with your sarcastic diatribe about a local Book - Burning club. To hear you tell it, no restriction of any kind should be placed on what our youngsters read or think. Are you willing to go all the way with your application? Let's see! According to your "free-reading" philosophy our young people should not be restrained from reading and studying sly Communist propaganda, for it might inhibit their free thinking. Don't raise any objections to the smutty magazines and paperbacks they pass around at school; after all they need to be encouraged to think for themselves! Further, don't discourage them from drinking whiskey, for they need to think for themselves in forming tastes for drinks as well as for literature. According to your philosophy, parents dare not question any activity of their children. Statisticians tell us one reason for the juvenile problems of this generation is that it has known no restraint at home and knows not how to react to it elsewhere. Your encouragement in no restraints will certainly help this problem—to get bigger!

I picked up the idea somewhere that "a man is no better than what he reads." I have also been told that the character of a home can be easily determined by the reading material found therein. But, alas, I suppose I have been misinformed.

But that's not all. I like to read the Bible. (And I should think that you should read more of it, Mr. Pensive.) In the 19th Chapter of Acts, I read where a group of men had a bookburning party! Now the reason I mention this is because it was done with divine approbation. It was a token of the mighty growth of God's word in the city of Ephesus (v. 20). Personally, I would like to see some book burning done in Iowa Park. Some of our own stores have become "merchants in filth" by allowing many modesty-shocking books and magazines to occupy their newsstands. Yes, Mr. Pensive, I have seen them—because you can't buy a decent magazine or book or magazine on some local newsstands without having to dig through the dirty ones!

Yes Sir, worthy correspondent, if you hear of a book-burning movement to rid our town of such filth, let me know. I want to strike the first match! I could sign this

P.S. A very informative booklet will be sent free (upon request) to those who read this, showing the enormity of the problem of obscenity in our country and what some communities are doing to combat it. Address your request on a post card to: Box 988, Iowa Park, Texas, and say, "Please send me the free booklet."

JAMES GARAGE
Iowa Park, Texas

Dear Sir:
On about June 4 of this year we stopped by your garage from Cheyenne, Wyo., with a bit of car trouble. You fixed it and made no charge. This letter, the late, is commending you for that courteous action.

The people of Iowa Park should be, and are, I am sure proud to have a gentleman like you, in their city.

When we are back in your community we will surely stop. Again thanking you and best of everything to you and yours.

Yours
The H. L. Heglers

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Campbell of Santa Cruz, Calif., were guests this week of her sister Mrs. Frankie Hendrix. They were enroute to Houston and stayed here until Hurricane Carla had made her damaging run.

PensiveNotes

DEAR SIR:

Today I wish to report on a major trend in American cultural life. A "trend" usually is a generalization erected on the basis of one or two instances of something or other. But in this case there really is a trend.

The trend I want to report is the "No Lessons Needed" one. It is the advertisement that raises its lovely and tempting head in nearly every magazine and newspaper. With the help of the advertising wizards of Oz, we actually are approaching that heavenly bliss of having all the effort taken out of life. Music, for an off-chord example. Nothing to it! You can do it with one finger and two minutes! Ah, here's an advertisement by a company manufacturing the most difficult instrument made since the days of the lute. But the heading says: "So easy to play that you can enjoy it without lessons." No waiting to learn how! No tedious scales and finger exercises before you can play real music. You sit down and play! One finger of your right hand plays any melody.

But, there is more! "One finger of your left hand presses a button to play a full rich chord." Just think of it: all with two fingers! With the other seven you can toss jacks or do a bit of crocheting while batting out a Hungarian rhapsody. Think of the wasted lives of Beethoven, Bach, Mozart and Sibellius; poor men, fiddling around taking useless lessons. Certainly we have made progress since those dark days. All the old wives' tales and superstitions about the need to practice five-finger exercises are obsolete. Two fingers are plenty.

And besides, think of the saving in wear and tear of our ears! Yes, father, you won't have to listen to junior practice those murderous lessons, when it sounds asected:

if he's walking up and down the keyboard. Blessed peace. Play pushbutton music!

Painting makes the same happy promise about no work or practice or talent. Some oldtimers (the reactionaries) still squint to get the right proportions. But that is a terrible waste. For now, without lessons, by filling in with the indicated colors, you can do a Mona Lisa in five minutes flat. Very flat.

In short, sir, we have a new freedom from the tyranny of old slogans such as "Practice makes perfect." Unfortunately, this all adds up to a fearsome thing; taking the discipline out of life. What follows is juvenile and adult delinquency. Unfortunately, life without discipline collapses like a jelly fish. And the impression is given that no lessons, no obligations, no practice, no work, or no effort is needed in the moral world. The end of this "No Lessons Needed" trend is death by flabbiness.

But I guess that that is what you can expect from a fat, satisfied society. Yet a few old lessons might still be needed, even in this pushbutton, "no-effort" world. Tough ones like this: "Precept upon precept, line upon line, here a little and there a little."

Yours faithfully
J. PENWRIGHT PENSIVE

Park Area club opened the fall season with a meeting Wednesday of last week in the home of Mrs. E. J. Hawkins, president, with Mrs. Harold Lynn as co-hostess.

Annual reports were read and Mrs. Ray Low reported on the last council meeting.

Nominating committee reported a slate of officers, who were then derous lessons, when it sounds asected:
